This is an accurate facsimile of a Crowmer Table. Both as to print in the scrolls which differ in the various editions & the List of the Books on the back. - The Table is imperfect by so much as the List is defective. This List differs from all others which I have seen. - The Centre has been cut out therefore we can not know what a device it was printed with in a Copy all the Text of which is, & November 1540. But as the first five leaves of the prologue are not of the same edition this fact affords but little evidence. James's Fay

Almanacke for .xviii. yeares

[illegible]

The year hath xii. months, lvi. weeks, and one day.
And it hath in all, the hundred and. lxi. days and lyx hours.

A Prologue or p̄face made by the moost reuerende father in God, Thomas Archbyshop of Cantuarke Metropolitane and primate of Englande.

Of two sondrye sortes of peo ple, it seemeth moche necessarie þ̄ some thyng be sayde in the entree of this booke by the waye of a p̄face or prologue, wherby hereafter, it maye be both þ̄ better accepted of them which hereto coulde not well beare it: and also the better vnderstanded of them, which heretofore haue misvnderstanded it. For truly some there are that be to slowe, and neede the spurre: some other seme to quicke, and neede in the waye of the byddell. Some loose theyr game by thate sportyng, some by ouerthotynge. Some walke to much on the letter bande, some to much on the ryghter. In the former sorte be all they that refuse to reade, as to beate redde the scripture in the vulgare tongue.

moche worse: for that also let as discourage the other from the readeyng as bearyng the of. In the latter sorte be they, which by theyr inordinate readeyng, vnderstande speakeyng, contentyng, disputyng, as otherwyse, by theyr licentious lynyng, sauander and bynder the word of God, moost of all other, wherof they wolde seme to be greatest furtherers. These two sortes albeit they be most far vnlke the one to the other, yet they both deserue in effect the repaiche. Forther can I well tell to the effect of them I maye iudge the moze offender, him that both obstynately refuse to godly & goodly knowledg: as hym that so vngodly & so vngoodly doth abuse the same. And as touchyng the former, I wolde magnifye muche þ̄ any man shulde be so mad, as to refuse in darkenes, lyght: in hongre, soode: in colde, fyre: for the word of God is lyght.  Lucerna p̄dibz meis, et lumen tuum. Rode. * Non in solo pane uiuit homo, sed in omni uerbo dei.*

Forther, Iguem ueni mitti in terram et quid uolo nisi ut ardeat? I wolde interuaile (I saye at this) saue that I consider howe muche custome and vñage maye doo. So that yf there were a people as some wyte, & Cymre, whiche neuer sawe the sunne, by reason that they be sytuatyd farre towarde the North poole, and be enclosed and ouersadowed wth hye mountaynes: it is credyble and lyke ynough, that yf by the power and wyll of God, the mountaynes shoulde synke downe and geue place, that the lyghte of the sunne myghte haue entraunce to them: at the fyrste, some of them wolde be offended therewith. And the olde p̄soner be affermeth, that after tyllage of come was fyrste founde: many deyled moze to fede of malte and acornes, wherewith they had bene accustomed, then to eate bread made of good come. Suche is the nature of custome, that it causeth vs to beare all thynges well and easely, wherewith we haue bene accustomed, and to be offended with all thynges there vnto contrary. And therfore, I can well thynke them worthy pardon, whiche at the comyng abrode of scripture doutyd and dyewe backe. But suche as wyll perlyste styll in theyr wylnesse, I must nedes iudge not onely foolyshe, forward and obstinate: but also p̄uyshe, peruerse and indurate. And yet, yf the matter shulde be tryed by custome, we myghte also allege custome for the readeyng of the scripture in the vulgare tonge, and p̄scribe the moze auncyent custome. For it is not muche aboue one hundredth yere ago, sence scripture hath not bene accustomed to be redde in the vulgare tonge wthin this realme, and many hundred yeres befoze that, it was translated and redde in the Saxones tonge, wherof at that tyme was oure mothers tonge, wherof there remaine yet byuerse copys founde lately in olde abbeyes, of such antique maner of wytyng and speakeyng, that seme men now ben able to reade and vnderstand the. And when this langage wated olde and out of comen vñage, by cause folke shulde not lache the frute of readeyng, it was agayne translated into þ̄ newer langage. Wherof yet also many copys remaine and be dayly founde. But now to let passe custome, & to weye as wyse men euer shulde, the thyng in his owne nature. Let vs here d̄cuss, what it anap̄lyth scripture to be had and redde of the laye and vulgare people. And to this questyon I entend here to saye nothyng: but that was spoken and wyrtten by the noble doctour and moost moztal dymys sapiente John Chrysostome, in his thyrd sermon de laza, albeit, I wyll be some thyng shorter, and gather the matter into fewer wordes and lesse roums the he doth there: because I wolde not be teduous. He exhorteth there his audyence, that euery man shulde reade by hym selfe at home in the meane vñages and tyme, betwene sermon and sermon: to the effect they myghte both moze profoundly fyre in theyr myndes and memoyses that he had sayd for vpon suche textes, wherupon he had already p̄ached and also that they myghte by theyr myndes the moze readey and better p̄pared to receyue and p̄ceyue that whiche shulde saye from thensforth in his sermones, vpon suche textes, as he had not yet decyde.

The prologue.

preached vpon: therefore sayeth he there: My comen usage is to geue you warnynge before, what matter I intende after to entreat vpon, that you your selues in the meane dayes may take the booke in hande, reade, wepe and perceyue the summe and effecte of the matter: and marke what hath bene declared, and what remaineth yet to be declared: so that thereby your mynde maye be the more furnished, to heare the rest, that shalbe sayde. And that I exhort
 u. sayeth he) and curte haue, & wyl exhort you, that you (not only here in church) geue care to that, that is sayde by the preacher: but that also, when ye be at home in your houses, ye applye your selues from tyme to tyme to the reaynyng of holie scriptures: whiche thyng also I neuer lerne to beate into the eares of them that be my samplers, and wch whome I haue ppyuate acquaintance and conuersacyon. Let no man make excuse and saye: (sayeth he) I am busied aboute matters of the comen welth, I beare this office as that, I am a craftesman, I muste applye myne occupacyon, I haue a wyfe, my chyldren muste be fedde, my householders must I ppyoude for. Briefly I am a man of the worlde, it is not for me to reade & scriptures, that belongeth to them y haue bydden the worlde fare wel: which lyue in solitary nens and contemplacyon, and haue bene brought vp, and continuallye noursed in learninge & religion. To this answerynge: what sayest thou man (sayeth he) is it not for the to studie
 a. to reade the scripture: because thou art encombered & bystrakte with cares and busynesse?
 So much the more it is behoufull for the to haue defence of scriptures: howe much thou art the more bystrasse in worldly dangers. They that bene free and farre from trouble and en-tremedynge of worldly thynges, lyue in sauegarde and tranquylte, and in the calme of within a sure haven. Thou art in the myddell of the see of worldly mychardnesse, and therfore thou needest the more of goodly succoure and comfort: they lyt farre from the strokes of battaile, and farre out of gunne shotte, and therefore they be but selde wounded: thou y standest in the foye fronte of the host, and next to thyne enemies, muste nedes take nowe and then many strokes, and be greuously wounded. And therefore thou hast more nede to haue thy remedies and medecynes at hande. Thy wyfe prouoketh the to anger, thy chyldre greneeth the occasion to take fozow & penyuenell, thyne enemies lye in wayte for the, thy frende (as thou takest hym) comytine enuyeth the: thy nryghbour mystrydgeth y, as yycheth quarels agaynst the, thy mate as partener vndermyneyth y, thy lord iudge, as iustice thretenyth the power is paynfull vnto the, the losse of thy deare & welbeloued canseth the to moorne. How shaldest thou craue the, aduersyte byngeth the low. Briefly, so dyuerse & so manyfold occasions of cares, tribulacions & theacions besette the and beseege the rounde about. Where canst y haue armour as foztreffe agaynst thine assautes? Where canst y haue salues for thy sores, but of holie scripture? Thy flesch must nedes be pnone & subiect to fleschly lusses, which dayly walkest & arte conuersant amonge women, synst they be wyues let forth to the eye, bearest they: nyse & wanton wordes, smellst their balme, ciuet & muske, with many other lyke provocacions & stringes, except y hast in a redynes wherwith to suppress & auoide them which can not elles where be had, but onely out of the holie scriptures. Let vs reade and seke all re-medyes y we can, and all shalbe lyte ynough. Howe shal we then do, yf we suffre and take dayly woundes, & when we haue done, wyl syn spill and serch for no medecynes? Doest thou not marke, & consider howe the smith, mason, or carpenter, or any other handy craftesman, what neade so euer he be in, what ocher synne so euer he make, he wyl not sell, nor lape to pledge the toles of his occupacyon, for then howe shuld he worke his teate or get his liuynge thereby? Of lyke mynde and affection oughe we to be towardes holie scripture, for as mallets, hammers, sawes, chesyles, axes, and hatchettes be the toles of theyr occupacyon: so be the bookes of the prophetes, and apostels and all holie wytte inspired by the holy ghooste the instrumentes of our saluacyon. Therefore let vs not synche to hye and proude vs y sy-ble, that is to saye, the bookes of holie scripture. And let vs thynke that to be a better Juell in our house then eyther golde or syluer. For lyke as theues bene lothe to assaute an house, where they knowe to be good armour & artillery, so where so euer these holie & goodlye bookes bene occupped, there nether the deuyl, nor none of his aungelles dare come nere. And they that occuppe them bene in moche sauegarde, and haue a greate consolacyon, and bene y readyer vnto all goodnesse, the flower to all euell: and yf they haue done any thyng amysse, none euen by the syght of the bookes theyr consciences ben admonysed, & they waken loy-and ashamed of the facte. Peraduenture they wyl saye vnto me: howe yf we vnderstand not what we reade, that is contened in the bookes. What then? Suppose, thou vnderstande not the depe and profounde misteries of scriptures, yet can it not be, but that much frute and bones must come and growe vnto the by the reaynyng: for it cannot be that thou shuldest be ignorant in all thynges a lyke. For the holy ghoost hath so ordered and attempted the scriptures, that in them as well publycanes, synners, and the sheparden maye fynde theyr edificaon, as greate doctours theyr erudicyon: for those bookes were not made to bayne gloze, as were the wytynges of the gentile phylosophers and rethoricians, to the entente the makers shulde be had in admiracyon for theye hys styles and obscure maner and rymyng, whereof nothyng can be vnderstande without a master or an expostoure. But the Apostles and prophetes wrote theyr booke so, that theyr spectall entent and purpose myght be vnderstande and perceaued of euery reader, whiche was nothyng but the edifycacyon of amende-ment of the lyfe of them that readeth or heareth it. Who is it, that redyng or hearyng reade in the gospel. Blessed are they that bene meke. Blessed are they that bene merciful. Blessed are they that be of cleane herte: & suche other lyke places, can perceyue nothyng excepte they haue a master to teache hym what it meaneth. Likewise, the signes and myracles with all other histories of the doynges of Christe or his Apostles, who is there, of so symple wryt, and capacitye, but he maye be able to perceiue and vnderstande them. These be but exultes and clothes for the rayne, and heueninges of theyr owne ydell slouthfulness: I can not vnderstand it. What maruayle? howe shuldest thou vnderstande, yf thou wylt not reade, nor loke vpon it: take the booke into thyne handes, reade the hole booke, and that thou vnderstandest kepe it well in memoire: that thou vnderstandest not, reade it agayne, & agayne: yf thou can neither so come by it, counsaile wyth some other that is better learned. Soo to thy curate and preacher, shewe thy selfe to be desyous to knowe and learne. And I doubt not but God seying thy diligence and redynesse (yf no man elles teache) wyl hym selfe vouchsaife wyth his holy sperte to illumynate the, and to open vnto the that whiche was locked from the.

Remember the Eunnuchus of Candace queene of Ethiopia, whiche albeit he was a man of a wyld and barbarous countrie, and one occupied with worldly cares and busynesses, yet redyng in his charet, he was readdyng the scripture. Howe consyder, yf this man passyng in his iourney, was so diligent as to reade the scripture, what thyndest thou of lyke was he woulde to do lyyng at home? Agayne he that lettereth not to reade, albeit he byd not vnderstande, what byd he then, to wasteth tyme after that when he had learned and had gotten vnderstandyng? For that thou mayst well knowe that he vnderstode not what he reade: heken what whilp there sayeth vnto hym. Vnderstandest thou what thou reade? And he nothyng ashamed to confesse his ignorance, answered: howe shulde I vnderstande hauyng no body to shewe me the waye? Lo when he lacked one to shewe hym the waye and to expounde to hym the scripture, yet byd he reade: & therefore God the rather prouided for hym a guyde of the waye that taughte hym to vnderstande it. God perceyued his willynge and towarde mynde: and therefore he lent hym a teacher by & by. Therefore let no man be negligent about his owne heath and saluacyon: though he thou haue not whilppe alwayes when thou woldest, the holy ghost, whiche then moued and spired up whilp, wyl be ready and not faile the yf thou do thy diligence accordingly. All these thynges ben wrytten vnto vs for our edification and amende-ment, whiche be hoyme towardes the latter ende of the world. The reading of scriptures is a greates & stronge bulwarke or fortresse agaynst synne: the ignorance of y same is the greater ruine and destruction of them that wyl not knowe it. That is the thyng that byngeth in herselfe, that is it, that causeth all corrupte and peruerse luyng: & is it, that byngeth all thynges out of good order. Whereto all that I haue sayde I haue taken and gathered out of the foresayde sermon of this holy doctoure saynte John Chrysostome. Howe yf I woulde in lyke maner byng furth, what the selfe same doctoure speaketh in other places and what other doctours and wryters saye, concernyng the same purpose. I myght seme to you to wryte another Byble, rather then to make a preface to the Byble. Wherfore in fewe wordes to comprehend the largenesse & distynte of the scripture, howe it concerneth fruteful instructyon and erudicyon for euery man, yf any thyng be necessarie to be learned: of the holy scripture we maye learne it. Yf falsheed shall be reprovied, thereof we maye gather wherewithall. Yf any thyng be to be corrected and amended, yf there nede any exhortacyon or consolation of the scripture we maye well learne. In the scriptures be the fatte pastures of the soule, therein is no denyng meate, no vnholysome thyng, they be the very dayntye & pure feedinge. He that is ignorant, shall fynde there what he shoulde learne. He that is a peruerse synner, shall there fynde his damnacyon to make hym to tremble for feare. He that laboureth to serue God shall fynde there his gloire, and the promysions of eternal lyfe, exhortyng hym moze diligently to labour. Herein maye prynces learne howe to gouerne theyr subiectes. Subiectes obediens, loue and dyde to theyr prynces. Hym vnder, howe they shulde behaue them vnto theyr wyues: howe to educate theyr chyldren & seruantes. And contrary the wyues, chyldren, & seruantes maye knowe theyr dutye, to theyr husbandes, parentes, & misters. Here maye all maner of persons, men, women, yonge, olde, learned, vnlarned, rich, poore, prestes, laymen, lordes, ladies, officers, tenantes, and meane men, virgyns, wyues, widowes, lawers, marchaunces, artificers, husbandmen, & all maner of persones of what estate or condicyon so euer they be, maye in this booke learne all thynges what they oughte beleue, what they oughte to do, and what they shulde not do, as well conceyng almyghty

God as al. concerninge them selues & all other. Briefly to the readynge of the scripture none can be enemye, but that eithre be so syche, that they lone not to heare of any medecyne: or els that be so ignoraunt, that they knowe not scripture to be the moost belifful medecyne. Therfore as touchynge this former parte, I wyll here conclude and take it as a conclusion: suffiently determyne and appoynte, that it is conuenient and good, the scripture to be red of all men and kyndes of people and in the vulgare tonge wythout further allegations or probans for the same, whyche shall not nebe, syns that this one place of Ihon Chylososome is ynough & sufficient to perswade al them that be not frowardy & peruerly set in theyr owne wyllfull opinion, specially now that the kynges byghnes beynge supreme heade next vnder Chyriste, of this church of Englande hath approued wyth his royal assent the setting forth hereof, whiche onely to all true and obedient subiectes ought to be a sufficient reason, for the allowance of the same, without farther delaye, reclamation, or resystance, althoughe there were no preface nor other reason here in exprest. Therfore nowe to come to the seconde and latter parte of my purpose, here is nothyng so good in this worlde but it may be abused, and turned from frutefull and dolesome, to hurtfull and noysome. What is there aboue, better then the sunne, the moone, the starres: Yet was there that toke occasion by a great beawtye and vertue of them to dishonoure God, and to despyle them selues with ydolatre, geupng the honoure of the luyng God and creatoure of all thynges, to such thynges as he had created.

What is there here beneath, better than fyre, water, meates, drynkes, metalles of golde, silver, yron and steele: Yet we se dayly great harme and muche myschance, done by enery one of these, as well for lacke of wysedome & prouydenoe of them that suffer enill, as by the malice of them that worketh the enill. Thus to them that be euyl of them selues enery thyng letteth forwarde and increaseth theyr euyl, be it of his owne nature a thyng neuer to good lyke as contrarily, to them that studieth and endeuoreth them selues to goodnes, enery thyng proueyneth them, and proueyneth vnto good: be it of his owne nature a thyng neuer so bad.
As saynct Paule sayd. Mis qui diligunt deum, omnia cooperantur in bonum, euen as out of most venymouse woymes is made triacle, the moost soueraygne medecyne for the pfectioun of mans bodye in tyme of daunger. Wherfore I wolde aduise you all, that come to the readynge or hearyng of this booke, whiche is the worde of God, the mooste precious Juell, and moost holy lyque, that remaineth vpon earth, that ye byng wyth you the feare of God, and that ye do it wyth all due reuerence, and vse your knowlege therof, not to bayneglosy of frivolouse disputation: but to the honour of God, increase of vertue, and edification both of your selues and other. And to the entente that my wordes maye be the moze regarded, I wyll blein this parte the auctorite of sayncte Gregoie Nazianzene, lyke as in the other I byd of S.
Ihon Chylososome. It appeareth that in his tyme there were some (as I feare me, there bene also nowe at these dayes a greafe nombre) whiche were ydel babblers, and talkers of the scripture out of reason, & al good order, and wythout any increase of vertue, or example of good luyng: to them he wytteth al his first booke, de theologia. Wherfore I shall bryefly gather the hole effecte, and recyte it here vnto you. There ben some (sayeth he) whose not onely eares and tonges, but also theyr sytes ben whetted and ready bent all to contention & vnprofi-table disputation, whom I wolde wyshe as they ben bedement & earnest to reason the matter with tonge: so they were also redy and practyse to do good dedes. But for asmoche as they subuertynge the order of all godlynesse, haue respecte onely to this thyng, howe they maye bynde and lose subtile questions, so that nowe euery market place, euery alehouse & tauerne euery fraithouse: bryefly euery compaigne of men, euery assemblie of women is fylled with suche talke. Wens the matter is so (sayeth he) and that our sayth and holy relygion of Chyrist begynneth to waxe nothyng els, but as it were a sopdestyfe or a talkynge crafter, I can no lesse do but saye some thyng ther vnto. It is not fyete (sayeth he) for euery man to dispute the dygh questions of diuinite, nether is it to be done at all tymes: nether in euery audiance must we discusse euery doubte, but we must knowe when, to whom, & howe farre we ought to enter into suche matters. For it is not for euery man: but it is for suche as be of exacte & ex-quysite iudgements, and suche as haue spent theyr tyme before in study and contemplation and suche as before haue clenched themselves as well in soule, as bodye: or at the leaste, ende-uored them selues to be made cleane. For it is daungerous (sayeth he) for the vncleane to touch that thyng, that is mooste cleane: lyke as the sope eye taketh harme by lohyng vpon the sunne. Secundarilye, not at all tymes, but when we be reposed, and at resse from all outwarde byrges and trouble, and when that our headdes ben not encombrd with other vouldelpe and wanderynge ymaginations: as yf a man shulde myngle balme and byrra-netter. For be that shal iudge and determyne suche matters and doubtes of scriptures, must che bys tyme, when he maye applye his wyttes therunto, that he maye thereby the better and dyscerne what is truly.

Thyrdly

To the reader.

Thysdylp where, and in what audience. There and amonge those that bene hādpyng to learne: and not amonge such as haue pleasure to trylle, with such matters, as wryth other thynges of pastyme, which repute for theyr chere delicates, the disputacion of hygh questyons, to serue theyr wyttes, lernynge and eloquence in reasonyng of hygh matters. Fourthly, it is to be consydred how farre to wade in such matters of dyfficultie. No further (sayth he) but as euery mans owne capacytye wyl serue hym: and agayne no further the the weake- nesse or intelligence of the other audience maye beare. For lyke as to great noyse hurterh care, to much meate hurterh the mannes body, heauy burtherns hurte the bearters of them, to much rapne doth moze hurte then good to the ground: bryefly, in all thynges to much is nopous: euen so weake wyttes and weake consciences maye sone be oppressed with ouer hard questyons. I saye not this to dissuade men from the knowledg of God, & readynge or studyng of the scripture. For I saye: yf it is as necessary for the lyfe of mans soule, as for the body to breath. And yf it were possible so to lyue, I wold thynke it good for a mā to spend all his lyfe in that, & to do none other thyng. I commende the lawe which byddeth to me dyrate and study the scriptures al dayes, both night and daye: and sermons and preachyn- ges to be made both moornynge, noone and euentyde. And God to be lauded and blessed in al tymes, to bedwarde, from bed, in our iourneyes, and all our other wayes: I forbyd not to reade, but I forbyd to reason. Neyther forbyd I to reason so farre as is good and godlye. But I alowe not that is done out of season, and out of measure and good order. A mā maye eat to much of honye be it neuer so swete, & there is tyme for euery thyng, and that thyng that is good is not good, yf it be vngodly done. Eue as a floure in wynter is out of season, and as a womans apparel becommeth not a mā: neyther contrariwise, the mans the womā, neyther is wepyng comenient at a byrdale: neyther laughynge at a buryall. Howe yf we can obserue and kepe that is comely and tymely, in all other thynges, shall not we the pre- cher do the same in the holy scriptures? Let vs not rume for the as it were wyld beozles, that can suffer neyther byddle in theire mouthes, nor sytter on theyr backs. Let vs kepe vs in our boundes, and neyther let vs go to farre on thone syde, lest we retourne into Egypte, neyther to farre ouer y other, lest ye be carped a waye to Babilō. Let vs not syng of longe of our Loyde in a straunge lande, that is to saye: let vs not dispute the woide of God at all aduentures, as well where it is not to be reasoned, as where it is: and as well in the eares of them that be not fyt therfore, as of the that be. Yf we can in no wyse forbear, but that we must nedes dispute, let vs forbear thus much at the lest, to do it out of tyme, and place co- uenient: And let vs entreate of those thynges which be holy, holily: and vnder those thynges that be mystical, mystically: and not to vtter the deupne mysteries in the eares vnworthy to heare them, but let vs knowe what is comely as well in our sylence and talkynge, as in our garments wearynge, in our sedynge, in our gestur, in our goynge, in all our other be- hauyng. This contention and debate about scriptures and doubtes therof (specially whē such as pretende to be the fauourers and students therof, cannot agre wrythin the selues) doth moost hurte to oure selues, and to the furtherynge of the cause and quarells that we wolde haue forthered aboue al other thynges. And we in this (sayth he) be not vnylye to the that beynge mad, let theyr owne houses on fyre, & that slay theyr owne chyldre, or beat theire owne parentes. I maruaile much (sayth he) to recount wherof cometh all this despyse of wayne gloze, wherof cometh al this tongeitcher, that we haue so much helpe to talke and clatter. And wherof is our communicatio: Not in the comendations of vertuous and good dedes of hospilitie, of lone betwene christian brother and brother, of lone betwene mā and wyfe, of virgynyte and chastyte, and of almyse towarde the poore. Not in psalmes and godly songes, not in lamentynge for our synnes, not in repellyng y affections of y bo- dy, not in prayers to God. We talke of scripture, but in the meane tyme we subdue not oure fleshy by fastynge, wakyng, & wepyng. we make not this lyfe a meditation of death, we do not stryue to be lordes ouer our appetites & affections. We go not about to pul downe our prynde and hygh myndes, to abate our sumytte and rascous stomaches, to restrayne our lustes and bodely delectations, our vndiscrete folyes, our late wryng mynth, our moody- nate lohyng, our insatiable hearynge of vanities, our speakynge without measure, our in- comenient thoughtes, & bryefly to retourne our lyfe and maners: but al our holynesse co- systerh in talkynge. And we pardon eche other fro al good luyng, so that we maye styche fast togther in argumentatid, as though ther were no mo wayes to heue but this alone, the waye of speculation and knowledg (as they take it) but in verie dede, it is rather the waye of superfluous contention and sophistication. Hytherto haue I recyted the mynde of Gregoipe Nazianzen: in that booke which I spake of before. The same autho sayth al- so in an other place, that the lernynge of a Christen man ought to begyn of y feare of God to ende in matters of hye speculation: and not contrariwise to begynne wryth speculation and fi-

and to enle in feare. For speculation (sayeth he) other hye conynges & knowledges, yf it be not stayed with the byddle of feare to offende God is daungerous, and ynough to tumble a man headlyng downe the hyll. Therfore sayeth he: the feare of God must be the fyrst begynnyng, & as it were an A. B. C. as an introduction to all them yf shall entre into yf we eye true and moost frutesfull knowledge of holy scrptures. Where as is the feare of God, there is (sayeth he) the hepyng of the commaundementes: and where as is the hepyng of the commaundementes, there is the clesnyng of the fleshe: which fleshe is a cloude before the soules eye, and suffereth it nat purely to se the beame of yf heavenly lyght. Where as is the clesnyng of the fleshe, there is the illumination of the holy goost, & ende of all our desyres and the very lyght wherby the veritie of scrptures is lene & perceyued. This is the mynd and almost the wordes of Gregorie Nazianzen doctoure of the Greke church, of whome Maynet Jerome sayth: that vnto his tyme, the Latyn church had no wyrtier hable to be compared, and to make an even match with hym. Therfore to conclude this latter part, every man that cometh to the readynge of this holy booke, ought to byng with him fyrst and for moost this feare of almyghty God, and then next a lyne & a stable purpose to reforme his owne selfe accordyng therunto, and so to continue, procede and prospere from tyme to tyme. We wyng hym selfe to be a sobze and frutesfull hearer and learner: which yf he do, he shall proue as the length well hable to teache, though not with his mouth, yet with his lyfynge and good example, wherby is sure the moost spuelye, and effectuous fourme and manner of teachynge. He that otherwyse intermedleth with this boke, let hym be assured, that onen he shall make accompte therof: when he shall haue sayd to hym as it is wyrtien in the prophete David. Peccatori dicit Deus, etc. Unto the vngodlye sayde God: why dost thou preache my lawes, and takest my testament in thy mouth? Where as thou hatest to be reformed, and hast ben partaker wyth aduocaters. Thou hast let thy mouth speake wickednesse, and wyth thy tēge thou hast let forth discepte. Thou hast set and spoken agaynst thy byether, and hast schaued thyne owne mothers sonne. These thynges hast thou done and I helde my tonge, and thou thoughtest (wickedlye) that I am even luche a one as thy selfe. But I wyl proue the, and let vnto the the thynges that thou hast done. O confyde this ye that forger God, lest I plucke you awaye, and ther be none to deliuer you. Whoso offrech me thanks and prayle, he honoureth me: and to hym that odyeth his conuersation tyght wyll I shewe the saluation of God.

tion of world.

The fyrst Chapter.

In the beginning God created heauen and earth. the lyght, the firmament, the waters, the moont, the starres, and all beastes, foules, a vyrgin in the womb made by the worthe of God. And howe man also was created.

In the beginning God created heauen and earth. The earth was voyde and empty, and darkenes was vpon
the face of the depe, and the spi-
rite of god moued vpon the face of the waters.

And God sayde: let there be made lyght, and there was lyght made. And God saw the lyght that it was good. And God made a diuision betweene the lyght and darkenes. And God called the lyght, daye: and the darkenes called he, nyght.
And the eueninge and the moorning was made one daye. And God sayde: let there be a fyрмаment betweene the waters, and let it make a diusion betweene waters and waters. And God made the firmament, and let a diuision betweene the waters which were vnder the firmament, and the waters that were aboue the firmament. And it was so. And God called the firmament heauen. The eueninge also and the moorning was made the seconde daye.

And God sayde: let the waters vnder heauen be gathered together into one place, that the drye lande maye be sene. And so it came to passe. And God called the drye lande, Earth: and the gatheringe together of waters called he the Seas. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let the earth bringe forth grene herbe, which maye engendye scede: and frutful tree, yeldynge frute after hys kynde, whose scede maye be in it selfe vpon the earth.

And it came to passe. And the earth brought forth grene herbe, makinge scede after his kynde:
a tree yeldynge frute, whose scede was in it selfe after hys kynde. And God sawe that it was good. The eueninge also and the moorning was made the thyrde daye. And God sayde: let there be made lyghtes in the firmament of heauen, and let them make a difference betwene the day and the nyghte, and lette them be vnto sygnes:
and vnto appointed seasons, and vnto dayes, and vnto yeares.

And let them be vnto lyghtes in the fyрмаment of heauen: that they maye gyue lyght vpon the earth. And so it came to passe.

And god made two great lyghtes: a greater lyght to rule the daye, and a lesse lyghte to rule the nyghte. (And he made) starres also. And God set them in the firmament of heauen that they myghte gyue lyght vpon the earth, and that they myghte rule the daye and the nyght, and to make a difference betwene the lyght and the darkenesse. And God sawe that it was good. The e-ueninge also and the moorning was made the fourth daye. And God sayde: let the waters bringe forth mooringe creatures that hath lyfe, and foule that maye flye vpon the earth in the face of the firmament of heauen. And God created great whales, and euery lyuynge and mooringe creature, which the waters brought forth after they kynde: and euery fethered foule after they kynde. And God sawe that it was good. And God blessed them, sayinge: Growe and increase, and fyll the waters of the see, and let fethered foules be multiplied in the earth. The eueninge also and the moorning was made the fyfthe daye.

And God sayde: let the earth bringe forth lyuynge creature after hys kynde: catel, wyms, and beast of the earth after hys kynde, and so it came to passe. And God made the beast of the earth after hys kynde, and catel after they kynde, and euery thyng that creepeth vpon the earth after hys kynde. And God sawe that it was good.
And God sayde, let vs make man in oure ymage after our lykenesse, and let them haue rule of the fyfthe of the see: and foules of the ayre and catell, and all the earth and of euery creepinge thyng that creepeth vpon the earth. And so God created man in hys owne ymage, in the ymage of God created he hym, a male and female created he them.
And God blessed them, and God sayde vnto them:
Growe and increase, and replenysh the earth, and subdue it: and haue dominion of the fyfthe of the see, and foules of the ayre, and of euery lyuynge thyng that moueth vpon the earth. And God sayde: beholde, I haue geuen you euery beaste so wynged scede, which is in the upper face of all the earth: and euery tree in the which is the frute of tree, and that soweth scede, that they maye be meate vnto you. To euery beast of the earth also, and to euery wynde of the ayre and to euery such thyng as creepeth vpon the earth (wherein is a lyuynge foule) I haue geuen al greenesse of herbe to be meate. And it came so to passe. And God sawe euery thyng that he had made, and beholde: it was exceeding good. The eueninge also and the moorning was made the vi. daye.

The ii. Chapter.

The daye of the Sabbath. The fourte thousand of paradise. The settinge in of man in paradise. The tre of knowledge is forbidden hym: howe Adam named all creatur-res. The creation of Eua. The institution of marriage.

The heauens also and the earth were fynished, and all the hoste of them.
And in the seuenth daye God ended hys worke wherby he had made. In the vii. daye also he rested from all hys worke, which he had made. And God blessed the vii. daye, and sanctified it, because in it he had rested from al his worke, which God ordeyned to make.
These are the generations of the heauens and of the earth when they were created, in the daye when

when the Lorde God made the earth & the hea-uens, and every plant of the felde, before it was in the earth: and every herbe of the felde, before it grew. For the Lorde God had not caused it to rayne upon the earth, neither was there a mist to ryl the ground. And there went up a mist fro of the earth, & watered the whole face of the ground.

B The Lorde God also * toke man, euen duste from of the ground, and * breathed into hym no-brelling the breath of lyfe, and Adam was made a lypunge soule. And the Lorde God planted a garden eastwarde from Eden, and there he put man whome he had made. * For out of the grounde made the Lorde God to growe, euerye tree that was pleasaunt to the syghte, and commodious for meate. The * tree of lyfe also, and the tree of knowledge of good and of euell was in the myddes of the garden.

And out of Eden there wente south a ryuer to water the garden. And from thence it was de-uided, and became into foure brades. The name of one is * Pison: The same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Hauilah, where there is gold.
And the golde of the lande is good: There is also Soddium, and the Onix stone. The name of the seconde ryuer, is Syhon: the same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Ethiopia. The name of the thyrde ryuer is Hiddekel, and it goeth towarde the Eastsyde of Assyria: And the fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

C The Lorde God also toke Adam, and put hym into the garden of Eden, that he myght dresse and kepe it. And the Lorde God commaunded Adam sayinge: Eatynge, thou shalt eate of euery tree of the garden. But as touching the tree of knowledge of good and euell, thou shalt not eat of it. For in what daye soeuer thou eatest ther-of thou shalt dye the death.

And agayne, the Lorde God sayd: It is not good that Adam shulde be alone, I will make hym an helpe, which maye be present with hym.
And so out of the grounde toke the Lorde God euery beaste of the felde, and euerye soule of the ayre, and broughte it vnto man: that he myght se howe he wolde call it. For the wyse as man hym selfe named euery lypunge thyng, euen so was the name therof.

D When hym selfe therfore named the names vnto all catell, and soule of the ayre, and to euerye beaste of the felde. And for man founde he not an helpe, that myght be present with hym. The Lorde God also caused a slomber to fall vpon Adam. And he slept. And he toke one of hym rybbes and closed vp the fleshe in steade therof. And the rybbe which the Lorde God had taken fro man * made he a woma, & broughte her vnto Adam. And Adam sayd: This is now bone of my bones, & fleshe of my fleshe. Shee shall be called woman, because she was take out of me. For this cause shall man leave his father & his mother, & shall be ioyned with his wife, & they shall become one fleshe, & they were both naked, & Adam & his wife, & were not ashamed.

The .iii. Chapter.

* The serpent deceyved the woman. The serpent the woman, and the man are curst, and hymen out of paradys. Chyld our only saviour is promysed.

B At the serpent was subtyller the curry beaste of the felde, wherby the Lorde God made. And he sayd: vnto the woman: yea, hath the Lorde God sayd: ye shall not eate of euery tree of the garden: And the woman sayde vnto the serpent: we eate of the frute of the tree of the garden, but as for the frute of the tree whiche is in the myddes of the garden, God hath sayd: ye shall not eate of it, neither shall ye tounge it, lest haplye ye dye. And
* the serpent sayd vnto the woman: ye shall not dye the death, but God doth knowe, that if some daye that ye eate therof, youre eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be euen as goddes, knowynge good and euell. And so the woman (lyng that the same tree was good to eate, and lusty to the eyes, and that the same tree was pleasaunt to get wylsome) toke of the frute therof, and dyd eate, and gaue vnto her husbende beyng with her, wherby dyd eate also. And the eyes of them both were opened, & they knewe that they were naked: and they sewed figge leaues together, & made them selues apions.

And they hearde the voyce of the Lorde God walkynge in the garden in the coole of the daye.
And Adam and his wyfe hyd them selues from the presence of the Lorde God amonge the trees of the garden. And the Lorde God called Adam and sayde vnto hym: where arte thou? wherby sayd: I herde thy voyce in the garden, and was afraid, because I was naked, and hyd my self.
And he sayd: Who tolde the, that thou wast naked? thou hast not eaten of the same tree, concernynge the wherby I commaunded the, that thou shuldest not eate of it: And Adam sayde:
The woman whom thou gauest to be with me she gaue me of the tree, and I dyd eate.

And the Lorde God sayd vnto the woman:
why hast thou done this? And the woman sayd: pouder serpent begyled me, and I dyd eate. And the Lorde God sayd vnto the serpent: because thou hast done this, thou arte curst about all catell, and aboue euery beaste of the felde. Upon thy bellye shalt thou go, and duste shalt thou eate all the dayes of thy lyfe. I will also put enimistie betwene the and the woman, betwene thy seed and her seed.

* The same shall treade downe thy heade, & and thou shalt treade vpon hym heele.

But vnto the woman he sayd: In multiplyenge, thyll I multiplye thy sorrowe, and thy concepyng: In sorrow shalt thou bringe forth children, and thy lust shall pertaine to thy husband and he shall haue the rule of the.

Unto Adam he sayde, because thou hast hehened vnto the voyce of thy wyfe, and hast e-ten of the tree (concernyng the which I commaunded the, saying: Thou shalt not eate of it) cursed is the grounde for thy sake. In fozowe shalt thou eate of it all the dayes of thy lyfe. Thowme also, and the ylle thal it cause to growe vnto the, and thou shalt eate the hearbe of the felde. In the sweate of thy face shalt thou eate breade, tyll thou be turned agayne into the grounde, for out of it wast thou taken, in as muche as thou arte dust, and into dust shalt thou be turned agayne.

And Adam called his wyues name heua, because she was the mother of all lyvynge. Unto the same Adam also & to his wyfe byd the Lord God make lathen garments, and clothed them.
And the Lord God sayd: Beholde, ponder man hath bene euen as one of vs, & he myght knowe good and euell.

And now lest haplye he put forth his hande and take also of the tree of lyfe and eate, and lyeve for ever. And the Lord God sent them forth from the garden of Eden, to dwelle the grounde that he was taken out of. And so he dyone out man, and at the east syde of the garden of Eden, he set Cherubims, and the glisterynge flame of a wakyng swerde, to kepe the waye off tre of lyfe.

The. iiii. Chapter.

Cain doth not only hel his treacherous brother Abel, but also bydeth, and is cursed. The generacion of enoch, methusael, Tuball, Lamech, Noe, and Enos.

Adam knewe heua his wyfe: who conceyvinge, bare Cain, sayinge:
I haue gotten a man of the Lord.
And he procedyng forth, brought forth his brother Habel, and Ha-bell was a keeper of shepe. But Cain was a planer of the grounde. And in pzoelle of dayes it came to passe, that Cain brought of the frute of the grounde an oblation vnto the Lord. Habel also brought of the fyrrynges of his shepe, and of the fat therof. And the Lord had respecte vnto Habel, and to his oblation. But vnto Cain and to his offeringe he had no respect. For the whyche cause Cain was exceedinge wroth, and his countenance abated. And the Lord sayde vnto Cain: Why arte thou wroth, and why is thy countenance abated? If thou do well, shall there not be a promotion? And if thou dost not well, lyeth not thy synne in the doores? Unto the also pertayneth the lust therof, and thou shalt haue dominion ouer it, and Cain spake vnto Habel his brother, sayinge: (let us go forth.)

And it fortuned: when they were in the feld Cain rose vp agaynst Habel his brother, & slew him. And the Lord sayd vnto Cain: Where is Habel thy brother? whyche sayde: I wote not.

Am I my brothers keeper? And he sayd: what hast thou done? The voyce of thy brothers bloude cryeth vnto me out of the grounde. And now art thou cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth, to receaue thy brothers bloude from thy hande. If thou tply the grounde, she shall not pzoceade to yelde vnto the her strength.

Fugitive and a vagabound shalt thou be in the earth. And Cain sayde vnto the Lord: My iniquitie is moze, then that it maye be forgeuen. Beholde, thou hast cast me out this daye from the vyper face of the earth, and from thy face shall I be byd: Fugitive also and a vaga-bounde shall I be in the earth. And it shall come to passe, euery one shall synde me, shall slaye me.
And the Lord sayd vnto hym: Yea, but who so euer slayeth Cain, it shall be auenged seven folde.

And the Lord set a marke vpon Cayn: lest any man synde hym, whildest hym. And Cayn went out from the pzoence of the Lord, and dwelte in the lande of Nod eastwarde from Eden. Cain also knewe his wyfe whyche conceiued and bare Henoch: and bydyng a cyte he called the name of the same cyte after the name of his sonne Henoch. Unto the same Henoch was borne Irad. Irad begat Methusael, and Methu-sael begat Methusael. Methusael begat Lamech. And Lamech toke vnto hym two wy-ues: The name of the one was Ada, & the name of the other was Zilla. And Ada begat Iabel, whyche was the father of such as dwelle in the tentes, and of such as haue catel. His brothers name was Chuball, whyche was the father of such as handle harpe and organ. And Zilla also begat Chubalcain, which wrought cunynge ly euery crafte of brasse and of yron. The wyfe of Chubalcain, was Naama.

And Lamech sayd vnto his wyues Ada and Zilla: heare my voyce ye wyues of Lamech, her-ken vnto my speche: I haue slayne a man to the woundyng of my selfe, & a ponge man to myne owne punishment. If Cain shall be auyged leul folde, cruelly Lamech seuentye tymes and seuen tymes. Adam knewe his wyfe agayne, and he bare a sonne & called his name Seth: For God (sayd he) hath appointed me another syde in steade of Habel, whome Cain slewe. And vnto the same Seth also, there was borne a sonne, & he called his name Enos. Then began they to make inuocation in the name of the Lord.

his ymage and called his name Seth. At the B Kenan lyued seuentye yeres, and begat Aabelael. And Kenan lyued (after he begat Aabelael) epghte hundyeth yeres and fourty yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of Kenan were nyne hundyeth yeres and ten yeres, and he dyed. Aabelael lyued fyrtye yeres and fyue yeres and begat Jared. And agayne, Aabelael lyued (after he begate Jared) epghte hundyeth and thyrtye yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters. And al the dayes of Aabelael were epghte hundyeth nyntye and fyue yeres. And he dyed. Jared lyued an hundyeth and fyrty and two yeres, and he begat Henoch. And Jared lyued (after he begat Henoch) epghte hundyeth yeres, and begate sonnes and daughters. C Henoch lyued fyrtye and fyue yeres, and begate Methuselah. And Henoch walked wth God after he begat Methuselah, thye hundyeth yeres and begat sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of Henoch were thye hundyeth fyrty and fyue yeres. And Henoch walked wth God, and he was nomoze sene, for God toke hym awaye. Methuselah also lyued an hundyeth yeres epghty and seven yeres, and begat Lamech. And agayne Methuselah lyued (after he begat Lamech) seven hūdyeth yeres, and epghtye and two yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters. And Lamech lyued (after he begat Noah) fyue hundyeth yeres and nyntye and fyue yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters. And al the dayes of Lamech were seven hūdyeth yeres and seuentye and seven yeres, and he dyed.

Noah was fyue hundyeth yere olde. And Noah begat Sem, Ham, and Japheth.

¶ The .vi. Chapter.

A And it came to passe, that man began to be multiplied in the vpper face of the earth, and there were daughters bozne vnto them. The sonnes of God also sawe the daughters of men that they were saye, and they toke them wyues from amonge al that they had chosen. And the Lozde sayde: my sperte shal not alwaye styue in man, because he is fleshe, and his dayes shalbe an hundyeth and twentye yeres. But there were giantes in the earth in those dayes: yea, and after that the sonnes of God came vnto the daughters of men, and they had gendred vnto the, the same became myghty men of strength, men of renowne. But God sawe the malice of man was great in the earth, and all the ymagination of the thoughtes of his herte was onely euyl euerie daye. And it repented the Lozde, that he had made man in the earth, and he was touched wth sorrow in his herte. And the Lozde sayd: I wyll (from the vpper face of the earth) destroy man, whome I haue created: both man, cattell, wyeme and soule of the ayre, for it repented me that I haue made them.

But Noah founde grace in the eyes of the Lozde. These are the generacions of Noah, Noah was iuste and perfyte in hys generacions, and walked wth God. Noah begat thye sonnes: Sem, Ham, and Japheth. The earth also was corrupte before God, and the same earth was fylled wth crueltie. And God looked vpon the earth, and beholde, it was corrupte: for all fleshe had corrupte hys waye vpon earth.

And God sayde vnto Noah: The ende of all fleshe is come before me, for the earth is fylled wth crueltie from the face of them. And behold I wil destroye them wth the earth. Make the an arke of pyne trees. Habitacions shalte I make in the Arke, and thalt pyche it within and without wth pytche. And of thys fashion thalt thou make it: The length of the Arke shalbe thye hundyeth cubites: The bredth of it .L. cubytes, and the heygth of it thyrty cubites. A window thalt thou make in the Arke, and in a cubite thalt thou spynne it about: but the doore of the Arke thalt thou set in the syde therof. With thye lofkes one aboute another thalt thou make it. And beholde, I euen I, do byngge a floude of waters vpon the earth, that I maye destroye all fleshe wherein is the byrth of lyfe vnder heauen: And euery thyng that is in the earth shal dye.

¶ And the alio wyll I make my couenant and thou shalt come into the Arke thou and thy sonnes, thy wyfe and thy sonnes wyues wth thee: And euery lyuynge thyng, of al fleshe a payre of euery one thalt thou byngge into the Arke, to kepe them alpyue wth thee. They shalbe male and female. Of feathered soules also after theyr kynde, of all cattell after theyr kynde, of euery wyeme of the earth after hys kynde: two of euery one shal come vnto thee, that thou mayest kepe them alpyue: And take thou wth thee of all meate that is eaten, and thou shalt laye it vp wth thee, that it maye be meate for thee and them. Noah therefore dyd accordyng vnto all that God commaunded hym: euen so dyd he.

¶ The entrance of Noe, and of them that were wth hym into the Arke. The resting of the floude, where the water all thynges dyd perishe.

And

Ad the Lorde sayde vnto Noah: come thou and al thy house into the Arke for the haue I seene thyngs before me in this generacion.

Of euery cleane beast thou shalt take with the leut and seuen: The male and hys female: But of vncleane catell, two, the male and hys female. Of foules also of the ayre, seuen and seuen, the male and the female, to kepe seke aloue vpon the face of all the whole earth. For yet after seuen dayes I wyl rayne vpon the earth forty dayes and fourty nyghtes. And all substance that I haue made, wyl I destroye from the vpper face of the earth. Noah therefore dyd accordyng vnto all that God commaunded hym.

B And Noah was syre hundred yeres olde, and a floude of waters was vpon the earth. And Noah came (and hys sonnes, and his wyfe, & his sonnes wyues with hym) vnto the Arke, because of the waters of a floude. Of cleane catell, and of vncleane catell and of flyinge foules, & of euery such as creepeth vpon the earth, there came two and two vnto Noah into the arke, the male and the female, as God had commaunded Noah. It fortuneth also after seuen dayes, and the waters of the floude were vpon the earth.

C In the syre hundred yere of Noes lyfe in the seconde moneth, the seuententh daye of the moneth. In the same daye were all the fountaynes of the great depe broken vp and the wyndowes of heuen were opened. And the rayne was vpon the earth forty dayes and forty nyghtes. In the selfe same daye entered Noah, Sem, Ham, & Japheth, the sonnes of Noah, & Noahs wyfe, and the thre wyues of his sonnes, with them into the Arke: They, and euery beast after hys kynde, & al catell after theyr kynde: yea and euery woyme that creepeth vpon the earth after his kynde, and euery byrde after his kynde, and euery flyinge & fethered foule. And they came vnto Noah into the Arke, two & two, of all fleshe wherein is the byrth of lyfe. And they enterynge in, came male & female of al fleshe, as God had commaunded hym. And God shut hym in rounde aboute. And the floude came forty dayes vpon the earth, and the waters were increased, and bare vp the Arke, whych was lyfte vp aboue the earth. The waters also preuapled, and were increased exceedingly vpon the earth, and so the arke went on the vpper face of the waters.

And the waters preuapled exceedingly vpon the earth, and all the hye hylls that are vnder the whole heauen, were couered. A fyftene cubites upwarde dyd the waters preuaple, so that the mountaynes were couered.

D And al fleshe dyd that mooued vpon the earth in foule, in catell, in beast, & in euery woyme that creepeth vpon the earth: yea, and euery man also (what soeuer was in whose nostrils the byrth of lyfe dyd byrthe all these in the byre lande dyed.) And euery thyng was destroyed, that remaineth, and that was in the vpper parte of the grounde (both man, and catell, and woyme, and foule of the ayre) they were euen destroyed from of the earth. And Noah onely remaineth aloue, and they that were with hym in the Arke. But the waters preuapled vpon the earth an hundred and fyfety dayes.

The viii. Chapter.

After the sentynce out of the man and the beest, the growth both of the Arke, and of the creature. The natural corruption of manns beest.

Ad God remembered Noah, and euery beast, and all the catell that was with hym in the Arke. And God made a wynde to passe vpon the earth, and the waters ceased. The fountaynes also of the depe and the wyndowes of heauen were stopped, and the rayne from heuen was restrayned. And the waters from the earth were returned, goynge and commynge agayne. And after the ende of the hundred and fyfetyth daye, the waters were abated.

And in the seuenth moneth: in the scrutenth daye of the moneth, the Arke rested vpon the mountaynes of Armenia. And the waters truly were goynge & decreasyng vntill the tenth moneth. For in the tenth moneth, and in the first daye of the same moneth, were the toppes of the mountaynes sent. And after the ende of the fortyeth daye, it happened that Noah opened the wyndowes of the Arke whych he had made. And he sent forth a rauen, whych went out goynge forth and returnyng agayne, vntill the waters were dried vp vpon the earth. And agayne he sent forth a doue from hym, that he myght see if the waters were abated from the vpper face of the grounde. And the doue founde no rest for the sole of her fote, & she returned vnto hym agayne into the Arke: for the waters were in the vpper face of the whole earth. And he when he had put forth hys hande, toke her: and pulled her in to hym into the Arke.

And he abode yet other seuen dayes, and proceedinge further, he sente forth the doue out of the Arke. And the doue came to hym in the euen tyde, and so, in her mouth was an Olive leafe that she had plucked: wherby Noah dyd knowe, that the waters were abated vpon the earth. And he abode yet other seuen dayes, and sente forth the doue, whiche proceeded not to returne vnto hym any moze.

C And it came to passe in the syre hundred and one yere, in the fyrste moneth, and in the fyrste daye of the moneth, the waters were dried vp from the earth. And Noah remoued the couerynge of the Arke, and looked, and beheld, the vpper face of the grounde was dried vp. And in the seconde moneth, in the seuen and twety daye of the moneth, was the earth dried.

And God spake vnto Noah saying: Go forth of the Arke, thou and thy wyfe, thy sonnes, and thy sonnes wyues with the. And byynge forth with the, euery beast that is with the: of al flesch (both foule and catell, and euery woyme that creepeth vpon the earth) that they maye geuize in the earth, & byynge forth frute, and increace vpon earth. And so Noah came forth, and hys sonnes, hys wyfe, and hys sonnes wyues with hym. Euery beast also and euery woyme, euery foyle, and what so ever creepeth vpon the earthe (after they) kyndes) went out of the Arke.

Gen. i. 1.

And Noah buylded an altare vnto γ Lozde, and toke of euery * cleane beaste, and of euery cleane foule, and offered sacrifices in the altare. And the Lozde smelled a sweete (or gayer) sauour. And the Lozde sayde in his heart: I wyl not pro-

Neether wyl I adde to smyte any moze euery thyng lyuynge, as I haue done, yet therfore shall not to wyngge tyme and haruyl, cold and heate, Sommer and wynter, daye & nyghte cease, all γ dayes of the earth.

C The ix. Chapter.

God blessed Noe and his sonnes. He forsyndeth to rate the lioure of beastes, and to shew mans bloude. The lawe of the covenante. He maketh a covenante that he wyl destroye the world: the damage by water, & geueth the covenante for a token and confirmation of the same. Noe is spoken. Ham becometh bym, and getteth the curse.

Gen. ix. 1. and viii. 1.

AND GOD * blessed Noah and his sonnes. And sayde vnto them: Be ynnge forth frute, and multiplye, and replenysh the earth. The feare of youe the beede of you shalbe vpon euery beaste of the earth, and vpon euery foule of the ayre, in al suche as the earth bynggeth forth and in all the fywes of the see.

Gen. ix. 1. and viii. 1.

In to your hande are they deliuered. Euery thyng that moueth it selfe, and that lyueth shal be meat for you: Euen as the grene hearbe haue I geuen you all thynges. But * fleshe in the lyfe therof and in the bloude therof shal ye not eate. Elles your bloude of your lyues wyl I requyre. From the hande of euery beaste wyl I requyre it, and from the hande of man: From the hande of mans brother wyl I requyre the lyfe of man. Who so * sheddeth mannes bloude, by man shal his bloude be shedde: For in the ymage of God dyd God make ma. But bynge you forth frute and multiplye: Genyete ye in the earth, and encrease therein.

Gen. ix. 1. and viii. 1.

GOD spake also vnto Noah and to his sonnes wyth hym, sayinge: Beholde, I set vpon my * couenaunt wyth you, and wyth your seide after you and wyth euery lyuynge creature that is wyth you, both in foule and in catel, & in euery beaste of the earth whiche is wyth you of all that go out of the Arke, accordynge vnto euery lyuynge thyng of the earth. But my couenaunt wyl I make wyth you, that from * hence forth euery fleshe, be not rooted oute wyth the waters of a floude, neyther shal there be a floude to destroye the earth any moze.

Gen. ix. 1. and viii. 1.

And God sayd: This is the token of the covenante whych I gyue betwene me and you, and euery lyuynge creature that is wyth you into perpetuall generations. I haue set my bowe in the cloud, and it shalbe for a token betwene me and the earth. And it shal come to passe that when I bynge a cloude vpon the earth, the bowe al-
 C to shal be sene in the same cloude. And I wyl thynke vpon my couenaunt whych is betwene me and you, & euery lyuynge creature in al fleshe and it shal nomoze come to passe, that * waters make a floude to destroye all fleshe. But the bowe shalbe in the same cloude, and I wyl loke vpon it, that I maye thynke vpon the cuerlastynge couenaunt betwene God, and euery lyuynge creature in all fleshe that is vpon earth. And God sayd vnto Noah. This is the token of the covenante whych I haue made betwene me and all fleshe that is vpon earth.

The sonnes of Noah goynge forth of γ Arke were: Sem, Ham, and Japheth. And Ham truly is the father of Canaan. These are the thre sons of Noah, and of them was the whole earth ouerspyed. God also beganne to be an husband man, and planted a vyneparde. And he byn-lyng of the wyne, was bynken, and vncou-red wythin his tente.

And Ham the father of Canaan seyng the nakednesse of his father, told his two brethren wythout. And Sem and Japheth, they two takynge a garmente, layde it vpon they: shulders and comynge backwarde, couered the naked priuities of they: father: namely, they: faces be ynnge turned awayne, lest they shulde se they: fathers priuities.

And Noah awoke from his wyne, and knew what his yonger sonne had done vnto him. And he sayd: Cursed be Canaan, a seruaunt of ser-nantes shal he be vnto his brethren. He sayd mozeouer: Blessed be the Lozde God of Sem, and Canaan shalbe his seruaunt. God shal enlarge Japheth, and he shal dwel in the tentes of Sem, and Canaan shalbe they: seruaunt. Noah lyued after the floude the hundredth and fyttyte yeres. And all the dayes of Noah were nyne hundredth and fyttyte yeres, and he dyed.

C The x. Chapter.

Out of that lande came Assur, and buylded * Ninue, and the stretes of the ctye, & Calah. Resen also betwene Ninue and Calah, and it is a great ctye.

AL the whole earth was of one language and lyke speche. And it happened when they wente forth from the Ester, they founde a playne in the lade of Simhar, and there they abode: And they sayde euery one to hys neygh-boure: Come, let vs prepare bypche, and burne them in the fyre. And they had bypche for stone, and syme had they in stede of moxter. And they begyn to do, neyther wyl it be restrayned from them, what so euer they haue ymagined to do.

Come on, let vs go downe, and confounde thei

These are the generacions of Sem: Sem

Peleg lyued after he begat Reu, two hundredth

Terah his father, in the lande of hys nativite, toke them wyues: The name of Abrahams wyfe was Sarai, and the name of Rahozs wyf was Hylea, the doughter of Haran: father of Mil-ca, and the father of Yisca. But Sarai was bar-ren, and had no chyldre.

And Terah toke Abraham his sone, and Lot the sonne of Haran, hys sonnes sone, and Sara

The xii. Chapter.

Abiam is called of God, and girth wylt. Lot into the land of Canaan, where God promysed to give unto him and his son. Abiam girth into Egypt, and coulted that his wyfe to call her self bys syde, for whome he was in plene.

Gen. xii. 1.
Gen. xii. 2.

Gen. xii. 3.
Gen. xii. 4.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Abiam:
* Gette the out of thy countre, and out of thy nacyon, and from thy fa thers house vnto a lade that I wyl shewe the. And I wyl make of the a greate people, and wyl * blesse the, and make thy name great, that thou mayst be euen a bles syng. I wyl also blesse them that blesse the, and curse them that curse the, and in the shall all kynredes of the earth be blessed.

And so Abiam departed, euen as the Lorde spake vnto hym, and Lot went wylth hym. And Abiam was seuentie and fyue yeres olde, when he departed out of Haran. And Abiam toke Sa rai his wyfe and Lot his bjothers sonne, and al theyr substance that they had in possession, & the soules that they had begotten in Haran.

And they departed, that they myghte come in to the lande of Chanaan: And into the lande of Chanaan they came. Abiam passed thorow the lande vnto the place of Sichem, and vnto the playne of Moyses: And the Cananites was then in the lande. And the Lorde apperaynge vnto Abiam, sayde: Vnto thy seide wyl I geue this lande. And there buylded he an altare vnto the Lorde, euen where he had appered vnto hym.

And remouynge thence vnto a mountayne that was eastward from Bethel, he pyched his tent haunge Bethel on the west syde, and Hai on the east. And he buyldynge an altare vnto the Lorde, byd call on the name of the Lorde. And Abiam wente forth goynge and departynge to warde the south. But there was a dearth in that lande, and therefore went Abiam downe into E gypte, that he myghte logeourne there, for there was a soze dearth in the lande. And it happened when he was come nere to entre into Egypt, he sayde vnto Sarai his wyfe: Beholde, I knowe that thou arte a fayre woman to loke vpon.

Therefore shall it come to passe, that when the Egyptians se the, they shall saye: She is bys wyfe. And they shall saye me, but they shall saue the almye. Saye: I praye the that thou art my syter, that I maye fare wel for thy sake, & that my soule may lyue thorow thy occasyon.

And so it happened, when Abiam was come into Egypt, the Egyptians behelde the woman for she was very fayre. And the prynces also of Pharao sawe her, & commended her before Pha rao, & the woman was take into Pharao's house.
And he truly intrated Abiam wel for her sake and he had shepe and oxen and he asses, men ser uauntes and mayde seruauntes, he asses, & ca melles. And the Lorde smote Pharao and bys house wylth great plagues, because of Sarai A biam's wyfe. And Pharao calling Abiam sayd Why hast thou done thys vnto me? Why dy dest thou not tell me, that she was thy wyfe?

Nowe therefore beholde, there is thy wyfe, take her, and go thy waye: And Pharao gaue the men commaundemente, concernynge hym:
and they commaed hym for the, and bys wyfe, and all that he had.

The xiii. Chapter.

Abiam and Lot departe out of Egypt. And Abiam deny eth his lande a cattell wylth Lot his bjothers sonne. They againe is promysed to Abiam the lande of Chanaan.

And so Abiam gat hym vp out of Egypt he and his wyfe, and * al that he had, and Lot wylth hym, towarde the south. And Abiam was verie ryche, in cattell, in syluer and golde. And he wente forth on bys iourneys from the south towarde Bethel, to the place where bys tente had bene at the begynnyng, betwene Bethel and Hai: Euen vnto the place of the * al tare whiche he had made there at the fyrst, and there Abiam called on the name of the Lorde.
Lot also whych wente wylth Abiam had shepe cattell and tentes: and the lande was not able to receaue them that they myghte dwell together, for the substance of theyr ryches was greete, and they coulde not dwell together. And there fell a stryfe betwene the herdmen of Abiam's ca till, and the herdmen of Lots cattell. Whereouer the Cananites and the Phereites dwelled at that tyme in the lande. Then sayd Abiam vnto Lot: Let ther be no stryfe, I praye the betwene the and me and betwene my herdmen and thynne for we be byrthzen. Is not all the * whole lande before the? Depasse I praye the frome. If thou wylt take thy lyste hande, I wyl go to thy ryghte, or if thou departe to the ryghte hande, I wyl go to the lyste. And so Lot lytynge by bys eyes, behelde all the contrey of Jordane, whych was a plenteous contrey of water euerie where, be fore the Lorde destroyed Sodome and Gomo ra, euen as the garden of the Lorde, lyke the lade of Egypt as thou comest vnto soar.

Then Lot chose all the playne costre of Jor dane and toke the iourney from the east. And so departed the one bjothre from the other. Abiam dwelled in the lande of Canaan: and Lot abode in the cyties of the playne, and tented vntyl So dome. But the men of Sodome were wyched and excedynge synners before the Lorde.

And the Lorde said vnto Abiam, after that Lot was departed from hym: Lyfte vp thyn eyes now, and loke from the place where thou arte northwarde, southwarde, eastwarde, and westwarde, for all the lande whych thou seest: wyl I geue vnto the and to thy seide for euer.
And I wyl make thy seide, as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seide also be nombred. Arise and walke aboute in the lande, after the length of it, and after the bredth therof, for I wyl geue it vnto the. And Abiam takynge downe bys tente, came and dwelled in yoke groue of Ham re, namely in Ebou, and buylded there an altare vnto the Lorde.

The xiiii. Chapter.

there came one that had escaped, and told Abrahams the hebrue which dwelled in the oke groue of Danre the Amorite, brother of Eschol, and brother of Aner, which were confederate with Abraham. When Abraham hearde that his brother was taken, he harnesssed his freshe ponge men, borne in his owne house, thre hundred and eghwas set in aray vpon them by nyght, he and his vnto Hobab: which lyeth of the left hande of Da-malcos, and recovered all the goodes, and also brought agayne his brother Lot, and his goo-

After that he returned agayne fro the slaughter of Nedolaomoz and of the kynges that were with hym, came the kyng of Sodom forth to mete hym in the playne valley which is the ky-brought forth byed and wyne. For he was the deale of the moost hygh God, and blessed hygh God, possessor of heauen and earth. And blessed be the hye God, which hath deliuered thyne enemyes into thyne hande. And Abram gaue hym eyther of all.

And the kyng of Sodom sayd vnto Abram Gyue me the soules, and take the goodes to thy dome: I haue yfste by my hande vnto the Lozde the hye God possessor of heauen and earth, that I wyll not take of all that is thyn e so moche as a thyede of shoulachet, lest thou shouldest saye:

I haue made Abram ryche. Haue onely that, which the ponge men haue eaten and the par-tes of the men which went with me, Aner, Es-chol, and Mamre, which shal take theys partes.

The. xv. Chapter.

*The lande of Canaan is yet agayne promysed to Abram, whom promysed hym seed. He becometh and is called.
The prophete of the bondage wherein the chylde of Israel shoulde be under Pharaos, and of theys deliuerance from the same.*

After these thynges were done, the wozde of the Lozde came vnto Abram in a vpyon, sayinge: Feare not Abram, I am thy defence, and thy reward shalbe exceeding great And Abram sayd: Lozde God what wylt thou gyue me when I go chylidlesse, and the chylde of the shuardhyppes of my house is this Eleazar of Damasco? And Abram sayd: Se, to me thou hast gyuen no seed: lo, a lad borne in my house is myne heyre. And behold, the wozd of the Lozde cam vnto hym, sayinge: He shall not be thyn heyre, but one that shal come out of thyn owne bodge shalbe thyn heyre: And he brought hym out, and sayde: loke vp vnto heauen, and tell the stars, p thou be able to nombze them. And he sayde vnto hym: Euen so shal thy seed be.

And Abram belued the Lozde, and p counted he to hym for ryghtousnesse. And agayne he sayde vnto hym: I am the Lozde that brought the oute of Egipt of the Chaldees, to gyue the this lande, and that thou myghtest possesse it.

And he sayde: Lozde God, whereby shal I knowe that I shal possesse it: he answered vnto hym: Take an heyser of thye yere olde and a he goote of thye yere olde, and a thye yere olde ramme, a turtle doue also and a ponge pyggon.
he toke therfoze all these vnto hym, and deuyded them in the middes, and layd eury pece one agaynst an other. But the soules deuided he not And when the bydes fel on the carcasses, Abrahme drew them awaye. And when the sunne was downe, there fell a slombze vpon Abram. And lo, a darke and a great feare fell vpon hym.

And he sayde vnto Abram: knowe this of a suretye, that thy seed shal be a straunger in a lande that pertayneth not vnto them. And shal serue them, and they shal entreate them euill, & foure hundred yeres.

But the nacion whom they shal serue, wyl I iudge. And afterwarde shal they come out with grate substaunce. And thou shalt go vnto thy fathers in peace, and shalt be buried in a good olde age. But in the fourthe generacyon they shall come byther agayne, for the wychednesse of the Amoytes is not yet full.

And it came to passe that when the sunne went downe there was a darke cloude: behold, there was a smokyng furnace, and a fyre brande goinge betwene the sayde peeces.

D In that same daye, the Lorde made a covenante wth Abraham, saying: vnto thy * seed haue I gyuen this lande, from y^e ryuer of Egypte vnto the great ryuer the ryuer of Euphrates, the Kenites, the Kenizzites, and the Cadmonites, the Hethites, and the Pherezites, and the Gountes, the Amoytes also and y^e Cananites the Sergetites and the Jebusytes.

¶ The xxii. Chapter.

¶ Sarai gyueth Abraham leue to take Hagar her mayde to wyfe. Hagar becometh her maistrisse, for which she was curst. Sarai and Hagar, and therefore runneth awaye. The angell me- trophe her commandeth her to tounne agayne, and becometh her seer. And nameth her byrd childe, Ismael.

S Irai Abzams wyfe bare hym no child-dren. But she had an handmayde an Egyptian Hagar by name. And Sarai sayde vnto Abraham: Beholde, the Lorde hath restrayned me, that I can not beare
I praye the go in vnto my mayde, peradventure
I maye be edified by her. And Abraham obeyed the voyce of Sarai. And Sarai Abzams wyfe toke Hagar her mayde the Egyptian (after Abham had dwelled ten yere in the lande of Cana-an) and gaue her to her husbnde Abraham to be his wyfe. Which when he went in vnto Hagar, she conceived. And when she sawe that she had conceyued, her maistrisse was despised in her eyes.
And Sarai sayde vnto Abraham: Thou doest me wrong, I haue gyuen my mayde into thy bolom, which thing that she hath conceyued, I am despised in her eyes, the Lorde iudge betwene the and me. But Abraham sayd to Sarai: behold, thy mayde is in thynne honde, do with her as it plea-seth the.

B And when Sarai sared soule with her, she fled from the face of her. And the angell of the Lorde founde her bysde a fountayne of water in the wyldernesse: euen by the well that is in the waye to Sur. And he sayde: Hagar Sarais mayde, whence comest thou, and whither wyle thou go? She sayd: I fye from y^e face of my ma-istrisse Sarai. And the angell of the Lorde sayd vnto her: returne to thy maistrisse agayne, and submit thy selfe vnder her handes.

C And agayne, the angell of the Lorde sayd vnto her: In creascynge I wylle increase thy seed, and it shal not be nombred for multitude. And the Lordes angell sayde vnto her, se: thou arte with chyld, and shalte beare a sonne, and shalte call his name Ismael: because the Lorde hath hearde thy tribulation. He also wylle be a wyld man, and his hande wylle be agaynst every man and every mans hande agaynst hym. And he shal dwell in the presence of all his byethen.
And he called the name of the lorde that spake vnto her: thou God lokest on me, for the sayde:
haue I not sene here the backe partes of hym? seeth me? Wherefore the wel was called the wel of hym that lyueth and seeth me. And it is be-twene Cades and Bared. And Hagar bare Abham a sonne, and Abraham called his sons name whiche Hagar bare vnto hym, Ismael: And Abham was lxxxvi. yere olde, when Hagar bare hym, Ismael.

¶ The xvii. Chapter.

*¶ Abraham is called Abraham, and Sarai is named Sara.
The land of Canaan is here the fourth tyme promysed.
Circumcysion is here instructed. Hagar is promysed.
Abraham prayeth for Ismael.*

Abham was nyneety yere olde, and nyne, the Lorde appeared to Abha and sayde vnto hym: I am the al-myghty God: walke * before me, Gen. xii. 1 and be thou perfecte. And I wyl
* make my bonde betwene me and the, and wyl multiplye the exceedingly. And Abraham fell on his face. And God talked with him, saying: Be holde, I am, and my testament is with the, and thou shalt be a father of many nacyns. Rep-ther shall thy name any more be called Abraham, but thy name shalbe Abraham: * for a father of many nacyns haue I made the. I wyl make y^e to growe exceedingly, and wyl make nacyns of the: yea, and kynges shall sprynge out of the. S Moreover, I wil make my bonde * betwene me and the, and thy seed after the, in theyr generacyons, by an euerlastyng testament, that I maye be God vnto the and thy seed after the. And I wyl gyue vnto the and to thy seed after the: the lande wherin thou art a straunger. Euen all the lande of Canaan, for an euerlastyng possesyon and wyl be theyr God.

And God sayde agayne vnto Abraham: Be thou also kepe my Testamente therfore, bothe thou and thy seed after the in theyr generacions This is my testament whiche ye shall kepe be-twene me and you, and thy seed after the. Eue-ry man chyldre amonge you shalbe circumcysed.
Ye shall circumcise the fleshe of your foreskyne and it shal be a * token of the bonde betwyte me and you. And euery man chyldre of egypte dages * olde, shalbe circumcysed amonge you, and such as be in your generacions, and bozne at home, and he that is bought with monye of any straunger, which is not of thy seed. He that is bozne in thy house, and he also that is bought with monye must nedes be circumcysed. And my Testamente shal be in youre fleshe, for an euerlastyng bonde. And the vncircumcysed man chyldre, in whose fleshe the foreskyne is not circumcysed, that soule shal perishe, from his people: because he hath broken my Testament. And God sayde vnto Abraham: Sarai thy wyfe shalte thou not call Sarai: but Sara shal be her name. And I wyl blesse her, & haue gyuen the a sonne of her, and wyl blesse her people: yea, and kynges of people shall sprynge of her. But Abraham fel vpon his face, & laughed and sayd in his herte: Shall a chyldre be bozne vnto hym that is an hundred yere olde? And shall Sara that is nyneety yere olde beare?

And Abraham sayde vnto hym: O that Ismael

mael myght lyue in thy syght.

¶ Unto whom God sayd: Sara thy wyfe shal beare the a sonne in dede, and thou shalt call his name Ishaac. And I will make my bonde with hym, for an everlastyng bonde, and with his seed after hym. And as concerning Imael also, I have hearde the: for I have blessed hym, and will make hym to encrease, and will multiply hym exceedingly. Twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make a great nation of him. But my bonde will I make with Ishaac which Sara shall beare vnto the: euen thys tyme. xii. moneth.

¶ And he left of talkyng with hym, and departed vp from Abraham. Abraham toke Imael his sonne and all such as were bozne in his house and all that was bought with money, as many as were men chyldren whiche were amonge the men of Abrahams house, and circumcysed the fleshe of the: for they were euen in that self same daye as God had sayd vnto hym. Abraham also hym selfe was nynty yere olde & nyne, when the fleshe of his foreskynne was circumcysed. Imael his son was thysene yere olde when he was circumcysed in the fleshe of his foreskynne. The selfe same daye was Abraham circumcysed, and Imael his sonne. And all the men of his house, bozne in his house or bought with monney (of straungers) were circumcysed with hym.

¶ There appeared thre men vnto Abraham. Ishaac is promysed to hym agayne: at which Sara laughed. The destruction of the Sodomytes is declared vnto Abraham. Abraham prayeth for them.

¶ And the Lorde appeared vnto hym in the playne of Hamer, as he sat in his tente doze in the heate of the daye. And he lyft vp his eyes, and lohed: and lo, thre me stode by him. And when he sawe them he ranne to mete them from the tente doze, and fell to the grounde, and sayd: Lorde (I beseeche the) yf I haue founde fauour in thy syght: go not (I praye the) from thy seruant. Let a lytle water be fet, and wash your feet and refresh your selues vnder the tree. And I will fet a * mozell of bread to comforte your hartes withall. And then shal ye go your wayes for euen therfore are ye come to your seruant. And they sayd: Doe euen as thou hast sayd. And Abraham went a pale into his tent vnto Sara, and sayd: make readye at ones thre peckes of fyne meale, kneede it, and make cakes. And Abraham runnyng vnto his beastes, fet a calfe, tender and good, and gane it vnto a ponge man and he hasted to make it readye at ones. And he toke butter and mylke, and the calfe whiche he had prepared, and set it before them, and stode hym selfe by them vnder the tree, * when they had eate.

And they sayde vnto hym: where is Sara thy wyfe? he answered: beholde, she is in the tent. And he sayde: In retournyng I will come agayne vnto the, accordyng to the tyme of lyfe. And lo, * Sara thy wyfe shall haue a sonne.

That hearde Sara in the tent doze whiche was behynde hym. Abraham and Sara were both olde and well stryken in age, and it ceased to be with Sara, after the maner as it is with women. Therefore Sara laughed within her selfe, saying: Howe I am wared olde, shall I gyue my selfe to * luste, and my lord be also? And God sayd vnto Abraham: wherfore dyd Sara laugh, saying: Shall I of a surety beare a chyld whiche am olde? In anye thyng wonderfull to God: Accordyng to the tyme * appoynted wyl I returne vnto the, euen accordyng to the tyme of lyfe, and Sara shall haue a sonne. Then Sara denyed it, saying: I laughed not, for she was a feyred. And he sayde: It is not so, but thou laughedst. And the men standyng vnto thence looked towarde Sodome: And Abraham wente with them to byngne them on the waye.

And the Lorde sayd: Shal I hyde from Abraham that thyng which I do: seeing that Abraham shalbe a * great and a myghty people, and all the nations of the earth shalbe blessed in him, I knowe this also, that he wyl commaunde his chyldren and his household after hym, that they kepe the waye of the Lorde, and do after ryght and conscience, that the Lorde may byngne vpon Abraham that he hath spoken vnto hym.

And the Lorde sayd: * The crite of Sodome and Gomorra is great, and they: synne is exceedingly greuous. I wyl go downe now, and se whether they haue done altogether accordyng to that crite which is come vnto me or not, that I maye knowe. And the men departed thence and went to Sodome ward. But Abraham stode yet before the Lorde, and Abraham drew nere, and sayd: Wylt thou also destroye ryghteous with the wycked? Peradventure there be ryghteous within the crite wyl, thou destroye, and not spare the place for the sake of ryghteous that are therein. That be far from the that thou shouldest do after this saying: and slaye the ryghteous with the wycked, and that the ryghteous shoulde be as the wycked that be farre from the.

Shall not the iudge of all the worlde do accordyng to ryght? And the Lorde sayde: yf I fynde in Sodome fiftye ryghteous within the crite, I wyl spare all the place for theyr sakes. And Abraham answerpge, sayde: Beholde, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the Lorde, * whiche am but dust and ashes: peradventure there shall lacke foue of fiftye ryghteous. Wylt thou destroye all the crite for lacke of foue? And he sayde: yf I fynde there fourtye and foue I wyl not destroye them:

And

And he proceeded to speake vnto hym agayne, and sayde: peradventure there shall be fourtye founde there. He answered: I wyll not do it for fortye sake. He sayde vnto hym agayne: O let not my Lord be angry that I speake: peradventure there shall thyrtye be founde there. And he sayde: I wyll do nothyng yf I fynde thyrtye there. He sayde agayne: O se, I haue taken vpon me to speake now also vnto my Lozde: peradventure there shall be twentye founde there. He answered: I wyll not destroye them for twentye sake. And he sayde: O let not my Lozde be angry, and I wyll speake yet but this ones, peradventure there shall ten be founde there. He answered: I wyll not destroye them for tens sake. And the Lozde went his waye as soone as he had left communynge with Abraham. And Abraham also turned vnto his place.

The xix. Chapter:

¶ Lot receyved two angels into his house. The thyrtye lasses of the Sodomites. Lot is helpered, and helpered to dwell in the cytye of Zoar. Lottes wyfe is turned in to a pylle of salt. Sodome is destroyed. Lot is honyed and luyth wth his daughters, wherby conceived children by hym.

And there came two angels to Sodoma at euen. And Lot sat at the gate of Sodoma. And Lot seynge them rose vp to mete them, and he bowed hym selfe to the ground to his face. And he sayde: my lordes, tourne in I praye you into your seruantes house, and tarpe all nyght, and wash your feet, and ye shall eyle vp early to go in your wayes. Whiche sayde: naye, but we wyll abyde in the stretes all nyght. And he in maner dyd euen: compell them violently. And they returnynge in vnto hym entered into his house, and he made the a feast, and did bahe swete byed, and they dyd eate.

And before they wente to rest, the men of the cytye (euen the men of Sodome) compassed the house rounde about both olde and yonge, all the people from all quarters: And they callynge vnto Lot sayd vnto him: where are the men which came into the this nyght: byng them out vnto vs and we wyll knowe them. And Lot went out at the doze vnto them, and shut the doze after hym and sayde: naye for Gods sake byethien do not so wychedlye. Beholde, I haue two daughters whiche haue knowen noman, them wyll I byng out now vnto you: and do wth them as it se meth good in your eyes. Only vnto these me do nothyng, therfore came they in vnder the shadowe of my rose. And they sayde: stande backe. And they sayde: he came in as one to solourne, and wyll be be nowe a iudge: We wyll surely deale wozle wth the then wth them. And they pleased soze vpon the man, euen Lot: he came to bryake vp the doze, but the men put sozth they hand and pulled Lot into the house to them and shut to the doze. And the men that were at the doze of the house were smote with blyndenesse, both smal and great: so that they saynted and coule not fynde the doze. And the men sayd vnto Lot: If thou haue yet here any soon in lawe, or sonnes or daughters, or whatsoeuer thou hast in a cille, byng it out of this place: for we must destroye this place, because the crye of them is grent: before the face of God: for the Lord hath sent vs to destroye it. And Lot went out a spake vnto his sonnes in lawe which married his daughters, saying: stande vp, get you out of this place for the Lozde wyll ouerthrowe this cytye. But he seemed as though he had mocked, vnto his sonnes in lawe. And when the mornynge arose the angels caused Lot to speke him, saying: Stande vp, take thy wyfe and thy two daughters at hand, lest thou perishe in the synne of the cytye. And as he prologed the tyme, the men caught both hym his wyfe and his two daughters by the handes the Lozde beinge mercifull vnto hym, and they brought hym sozth and set hym without the cytye. It fortuneth, when they had brought them out he sayde: Haue thy lyfe, & loke not behynde the, neither tary thou in all this playne costre. Haue thy selfe in the mountayne, lest thou perishe. And Lot sayde vnto them: O naye lozde, beholde, thy seruant hath founde grace in thy sight, and I haue magnified thy mercy whiche thou hast shewed vnto me in sauynge my lyfe. Beholde, I can not be saued in the mountayne, lest some my fortune fall vpon me, and I dye. Beholde, here is a cytye by, to fflye vnto, euen yonder lytle one: O let me be saued there: is it not a lytle one, and my soule shall lyue? And he sayde vnto hym: se, I haue receyued thy request as concernynge this thyng, that I wyll not ouerthrowe this cytye, for the whiche thou hast spoken. Haste the, and be saued there, for I can do nothyng tyll thou be come thither. And therfore the name of the cytye is called zoar. And the sunne was now rysen vpon the earth, wher Lot was entered into zoar.

Then the Lozde rayned vpon Sodome and Gomorra, by mistone and fyze from the Lozde out of heauen, and ouerthrewe those cities and all the regyon, and all that dwelled in the cyties, & that that grewe vpon the earth. But Lottes wyfe looked behynde her, and was turned into a pylle of salt. Abraham caryng vpearly, got him to the place where he stode before the pylence of God, and loynge towarde Sodome and Gomorra and towarde all the lande of that costre he looked: and beholde, the smoke of the countrey arose as the smoke of a fornace. And it happened that when God destroyed the cyties of that regyon, he thought vpon Abraham, and sent Lot oute from the myddest of the ouerthrowynge when he ouerthrewe the cyties, wher Lotte dwelled.

And Lot departed out of zoar and dwelled in the mountaynes with his two daughters, for he feared to tarpe in zoar, but dwelled in a cane, he and his two daughters. And the elder sayde vnto the yonger: our father is olde, and there is not a man in the earth to come in vnto vs after the maner of all the world. Come, we wyll make our father dronken with wyne, and lye wth hym, that we maye saue seed of our father.

And so they made they father dronken wth wyne that nyght. And the elder daughter went and laye with her father. And he perceyued it not, neyther when she laye downe, neyther when she rose vp. And on the morow it happened that the elder sayde vnto the yonger: beholde, yester nyght laye I with my father. Let vs make him dionke with wyne this nyght also, and go thou and lye with hym: that we may rase vp seed of our father. And they made theyr father dionke with wyne & nyght also. And the yonger arose, and laye with hym. And he perceyued it not: neyther when she laye downe, neyther when she rose vp. Thus were both the daughters of Lot with chylde by theyr father. And the elder bare a son, and called his name Moab. The same is the father of the Moabites vnto this daye. And the yonger bare a sonne also, and called his name Ben Ammi. The same is the father of the chyldren of Ammon vnto this daye.

The. xx. Chapter.

Abraham was an stranger in the land of Gerar.
The king of Gerar laboureth against his wife.

And Abraham departed thence to-warde the south countrey, & dwelled betwene Cades and Sur, & sojourned in Gerar. And Abraham sayd of Sara his wyfe: She is my sister. And Abimelech kynge of Gerar sent & fet Sara awaye.

But God came to Abimelech in a dreame in the nyght and sayde vnto hym: Be thou walke dye for the womans sake which thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mans wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her, & he sayde: Loide wyle thou slaye ryghteous people: sayd not he vnto me, she is my sister: yea, and sayd not she her self he is my brother: with a pure hert and innocent handes haue I done this. And God sayde vnto hym by a dreame. I wot it wel that thou dydest it in the purenes of thy hert. I kept the also that thou shouldest not syn agaynst me, and therfore suffered I the not to touche her. Nowe therfore, deliuer the man his wyfe agayne for he is a prophet. And he shall pray for the that thou mayest lyue. But and yet thou deliuer her not agayne, be sure that thou shalt dye the death, both thou, and all that thou hast. Therfore Abimelech rysynge vp by tymes in the morning called al his seruauntes and tolde all these saynges in theyr eares, and the men were soze afraied. And Abimelech called Abraham & sayd vnto hym: what hast thou done vnto vs, and what haue I offended the that thou hast brought on me and on my kyngdome so great a synne: thou hast done de-des vnto me that ought not to be done. And Abimelech sayd vnto Abraham: What sauest thou that thou hast done this chynge?

Abraham answered. For I sayde: surely the fear of God is not in this place, and they shall slaye me for my wyues sake: yet in very dede she is my sister, for she is the daughter of my father though she be not the daughter of my mother: & she became my wyfe. And after God caused me to wandre out of my fathers house, I sayd vnto her: This kynnesse shalt thou shew vnto me in all places where we come, that thou say of me he is my brother. Then toke Abimelech shee & oxen, me seruantes and womes seruantes, and gaue them vnto Abraham, and deliuered hym Sara his wyf agayne. And Abimelech sayde: beholde, my lande lyeth before the, dwell where it please the best. But vnto Sara he sayd: Be I haue giuen thy brother a thousande peces of syluer: beholde, it shalbe a coneyng of thyne eyes, vnto all that are with the: and thus wyl all was the retyourd.

And so Abraham prayd vnto God, and God healed Abimelech, and his wyfe, and his may-dens, and they bare chylidren. For the Lord had closed to all the matrices of the house of Abime-lech because of Abrahams wyfe.

The. xxi. Chapter.

Abraham is borne. Agar is cast out with her yonger sonne Ishmael. The angell comforteth Agar. The conuaint betwene Abimelech and Abraham.

He Loide vpsped Sara, as he had I sayd, and dyd vnto her: accordyng as he had promysed. For Sara was with chylde, and bare Abraham a son in his olde age, euen the same season which the Lord had appoynted him. And Abraham called his (sones) name that was borne vnto him which Sara bare hym, Ishaac: and Abraham circumcysed Ishaac his son when he was viii. dayes olde: as God commaunded him. And Abraham was an hundred yere olde: when his sonne Ishaac was borne vnto hym. But Sara sayde: God hath made me a laughynge stocke, so that all that heare, wyl laugh at me. She sayd also who wolde haue sayde vnto Abraham, & Sara shoulde haue giuen chylidren sucke: for I haue borne hym a sonne in his olde age. The chylde grew, and was wened: and Abraham made a great feast the same daye that Ishaac was we-
ned. Sara sawe also the sonne of Hagar the Eg-iptian (whiche she had borne vnto Abraham) to be a mother, wherfore she sayde vnto Abraham put awaye this bonde mayde and her son: for the son of this bond woman shal not be heire w my sonne Ishaac: and this saying was verrey greuous in Abrahams syght because of his sonne.
And God sayde vnto Abraham: let it not be ge-nious in thy syght, because of the lad, and of thy bondmayde. All that Sara hath sayd vnto the, heare her voyce: for in Ishaac shall thy seed be called. Moreover of the sonne of the bondwoma wyl I make a nacion: because he is thy seed.

And so Abraham arose vp early in the moryng, and tooke hysed, and a bottell of water, and gaue it vnto Hagar, puttynge it on her shulders with the lad also, and sent her awaye, who departyng, wandred vp and downe in the wyl-dernesse of Beer Seba. And the water was spilt in the bottell, and she cast the lad vnder a bush, and went and sat on the other syde a great way as it were a bowe shot of: for she sayde: I wyl not se the death of the chylde. And she sytynge downe on the other syde, lyfte vp her voyce and wepte.

And God hearde the voyce of the chylde.
And the angell of God called Hagar out of heaut and sayde vnto her: What ayleth the Hagar?

Fear not, for God hath berde the voyce of the chyldre where he lyeth. Arise, and lyfe vp the lad, and take hym in thy hande, for I wyl make of hym a grete people. And God opened her eyes: and she saw a well of water. And she went and fylled the bottell with water, and gaue the boye drynke. And God was with the ladde, and he grewe and dwelt in the wyldernesse, and became an archer. And he dwelt in the wyldernesse of Sharan. And his mother gat hym a wyfe out of the lande of Egypt.

And it chaunced the same season that Abimelech and Phicol his chiefe captayne spake vnto Abraham, sayinge: * God is with the in all that thou dost. And nowe therfore sweare vnto me euen here by God, that thou wylt not hurte me nor my chyldren, nor my chyldres chyldren. But that thou shalt deal with me, and the cōtry where thou hast ben a stranger, accordyng vnto the kyndnes that I haue shewed the. And Abraham sayde: I wyl sweare.

And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, whiche Abimelechs seruantes had vpolently taken awaye. And Abimelech sayd: I wot not who hath done this thyng. Also thou toldest me not: neyther hearde I of it but this daye. And Abraham toke shepe and oxen, and gaue them vnto Abimelech. And they made both of them a bond together. And Abraham set seuen ewe lambes by them selues. And Abimelech sayde vnto Abraham: what meane these seuen ewe lambes whiche thou hast set by them selues? he answered: for these seuen lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that they may be a wytnesse vnto me, that I haue dygged this well. Wherefore the place is called Beer Seba, because that there they swore both of them. Thus made they a bonde together at Beer Seba. And Abimelech & Phicol his chiefe captayne rose vp, and turned agayne vnto the land of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a wood in Beer Seba, and called there on the name of the Lorde, the cuerlastyng God: and so gouerned in the Philistines lande a longe season,

The xxii. Chapter.

The sayde of Abraham is proued in offering his sonne Isaac. Chyldren four are to be proued. The generall son of Abraham brother.

After these sayinges, it happened, & God byd & moue Abraham & sayde vnto hym: Abraham. Whiche answered: here am I. And he sayde: take thyne only son Isaac whome thou louest, and get the vnto the lande Mozia, and sacrifice him there for a sacrifice vpon one of the mountaynes, whiche I wyl shewe the. Then Abraham rose vp early in the mornynge, and saddled his asse, and toke two of his yonge men with hym, and Isaac his sonne: and cloued wood for the sacrifice, and rose vp and gat hym to the place which God had appoynted hym.

The thyrde daye Abraham lyft up his eyes, and sawe the place afarre of, and sayd vnto his yonge men: byde here with the asse I and the lad wyl go pender and wo:shyp, and come agayne vnto you. And Abraham toke the wood of the sacrifice, and layed it vpon Isaac his sonne, but he hym selfe toke fyre in his hande, and a knyfe. And they went both of them togyther.

Then spake Isaac vnto Abraham his father and sayde, My father? And he answered: here am I my sonne. He sayde: He, here is fyre and wood, but where is the shepe for sacrifice? Abraham answered: my sonne, God wyl prouyde hym a shepe for sacrifice, and so they went both togyther.

And when they came vnto the place whiche God had shewed hym, Abraham made an altar there: and dressed the wood, and bounde Isaac his sonne: & layed hym on the altar, aboue vpon the wood. And Abraham stretching forth his hande, toke the knyfe to haue kylled his son. And the angel of the Lorde called vnto him from heauen, sayinge: Abraham, Abraham: And he sayd: here am I. And he sayd: laye not thy hande vpon the chyldre, neyther do any thyng at al vnto him, for now I knowe that thou fearest God and hast for my sake not spared thyne only son. And Abraham lyftynge vp his eyes, lohed about: and behold, there was a ram caught by the hoznes in a thychet. And he wente and toke the ram and offered him vp for a sacrifice in the steede of his sonne. And Abraham called the name of the place, the Lorde wyl liue. As it is sayde this daye: in the mount wyl the Lorde be seene.

And the aungel of the Lorde cryed vnto Abraham from heauen the seconde tyme, and sayde: * by my selfe haue I sworne (sayde the Lorde) because thou hast done this thyng, and haste not spared thyne only son: that in blessinge I wyl blesse the, and in multiplying I wyl multiply thy seed as the starrs of heauen, and as the sande whiche is vpon the see syde. And thy seed shall possesse & gate of his enemyes. * And in thy seed shall all the nacjons of the earth be blessed, because thou hast dearde my voyce. So turned Abraham agayne vnto his yonge men, and they rose vp and went togyther to Beer Seba. And Abraham dwelled at Beer Seba. And it chaunced after these thynges, that one tolde Abraham sayinge: Beholde Wiche, he hath also boyne chyldren vnto thy brother Nachor: hus his eldest sonne, and hus his brother, and hemuel & father of the Syrians, and ceassed, and Hado, & Pilbas, and Jedaph, and Beruel. And Beruel begat Rebecca. These viii. did Wiche beare Nachor: Abrahams brother. And his concubine called Rhuma: she bare also Tedah, and Sahan, Thas and Waacha.

C The. xlii. Chapter.

¶ Sara dyeth, and is buryed in the tyke that Abraham bought of Ephron the Hethite.

SARA was an hundred and xviij. yere olde (so longe lyued she) and Sara dyed in Egiptiath Arba. The same is Hebron in the land of Canaan. And Abraham came to mouene Sara and to wepe for her. And Abraham stode vp from the syght of his coorse, and talked with the sonnes of Heth, saying: I am a straunger, and a foriner amonge you, gyue me a possession to burie in to you, that I may burie my coorse out of my sight. And the chyldren of Heth answered Abraham, sayinge vnto hym: heare vs lozde, thou arte a pynce of God amonge vs. In the cheifest of our sepulchres burie thy deede. None of vs also shal forbydde the his sepulchre: but thou mayest burie thy deede therein. Abraham stode vp, and bowed hym selfe before the people of the lande of the chyldren of Heth. And he communed with them, sayinge: If it be your mynde that I shall burie my deede oute of my syght, heare me: and speake for me to Ephron the sonne of zoar, that he maye gyue me the double caue, whyche he hath, and that is in the ende of his felde: but for as moche monye as it is worth, shall he gyue it me in the ptesence of you, for a possession to burie in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the chyldren of Heth.

And Ephron the Hethite answered Abraham in the audyence of the chyldren of Heth and of all that went in at the gates of his ctye, sayinge: Not so my lozde, heare me. The felde gyue I the, and the caue that therein is gyue I the also: and euen in the ptesence of the sonnes of my people gyue I it the, burie thy deede: and Abraham bowed hym selfe before the people of the lande and spake vnto Ephron in the audyence of the people of the cuntry, sayinge: I praye the heare me if it please the: I wyl gyue syluer for the felde, take it, & I wyl burie my deede there. Ephron answered Abraham saying vnto hym: My lozde hearken vnto me. The lande is worth four hundred sylues of syluer: what is that betwixt the and me, burie therfore thy deede. And Abraham hekened vnto Ephron, and weped hym the syluer which he had sayde, in the audyence of the sonnes of Heth. Euen foure hundred syluer sylues of currant monye amonge marchautes. And the felde of Ephron with the double caue which was before Hamme: euen the felde and the caue that was therein, and all the trees that were in the felde, and that were in all the boundes rounde about, was made sure vnto Abraham for a possession, in the syght of the chyldren of Heth, before all that went in at the gates of the ctye. After this dyd Abraham burie Sara his wyfe in the double caue of the felde that Iperth before Hamme. The same is Hebron in the lande of Canaan. And so boeth the felde and the caue that is therein was made vnto Abraham a sure possession to burie in of the sonnes of Heth.

C The. xliii. Chapter.

ABRAM was olde, and streghen in dayes, and the Lozde had blessed hym in all thynges. And Abraham sayd vnto his eldest seruant of his house which had the rule ouer all that he had. Put thy hande vnder my thyghe, and I wyl make the sweare by the Lozde God of heauen, and God of the earth, that thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne of the doughters of Canaan, amonge whiche I dwell. But thou shalt go vnto my cuntrye and to my natyue lande, and take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isaac. But the seruante sayde vnto hym: peradventure the woman wyl not agree to come w me vnto this lande, shall I bypunge thy sonne agayne vnto the lande which thou camest out of? To whiche Abraham answered: beware that thou bypunge not my sonne thither agayne.

The Lozde God of heauen, whiche toke me from my fathers house, and from the lande where I was borne: And whiche spake vnto me, and that sweare vnto me saying: vnto thy seed wil I gyue this lande, he shall sende his aungell before the, and thou shalt take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuerthelesse if the woman wyl not agree to folowe the, then shalt thou be without daunger of this myne oth.

Only bypunge not my sonne thither agayne. And the seruante put his hand vnder the thyghe of Abraham his master, and sware to hym, as concerninge that matter. And the seruante toke ten camelles of the camelles of his master, and departed, and had of all maner of goodes of his master with hym, and stode vp: and went to Mesopotamia, vnto the ctye of Haran. And made his camels to lye downe without the cite by a welles syde of water, at euen aboute the tyme that women come oute to drawe water. And he sayde.

Lozde God of my master Abraham, sende me good speche this daye, and shewe merce vnto my master Abraham. Lo, I stande here by the well of water, and the doughters of the men of this ctye come out to drawe water. Nowe I damselfe to whom I saye, stoupe downe thy pytcher I maye the, that I maye drynke. If she saye also: Drynke, and I wyl gyue thy camels drynke: the same is she that thou hast ordeyned for thy seruant Isaac: yea, and therby shal I knowe that thou hast shewed merce on my master. And it came to passe per he had leste spea-lyng, beholde Rebecca came out, the doughter of Bethuel, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Haran: Abrahams brother, and her pytcher vpon her shoulde: The damselfe was very saye to loke vpon, and yet a mayde and vnkowen of man. And she went downe to the well, and fylled her pytcher, and came vp. And the seruante runnyng vnto her, sayde: let me saye a lytle water of thy pytcher. And she sayde: drynke my lozde.

And she hastned, & let downe her pytcher vpon her arme, and gaue hym drynke. And when she had gyuen hym drynke, she sayde: I wyl drawe water.

water for the camels also until they have dronken ynough. And she poured out her picher into the trough hastily, and ran agayne unto the well to get water, and drew for all his camels. And a man wooed at her. But heide his peace, to wite whether the Lord had made his journey prosperous or not. And it fortuned, as the camels had leste dnyng, the man toke a golden earrynge of halfe a shele weyght, and two bracelettes for her handes, of trene sheles weyght of golde, and sayde: whose daughter art thou: tell me I praye, is there rounne in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in: she answered hym: I am the daughter of Bathuel the son of Sylica, whiche she bare vnto Rahoz, and sayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue yttre and psonauntye ynough, & also rounne to lodge in.

D And the ma bowed him selfe and worshipped the Lord, and sayde: blessed be the Lord God of my master Abraham, whiche ceased not to deale mercifullly and true with my master, and hath brought me a way to my masters house. And the damsell ran and told them of her mothers house these thynges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And he ran out vnto the man, euen to the well for as soone as he had sene the earrynges and the bracelettes in his sisters handes, and hearde the wordes of Rebecca his sister, saying: thus sayd the man vnto me: he went oute vnto the man. And so, he tooke with the camelles by the well syde. And he sayde: Come in thou blessed of the Lord. Wherfore standest thou without: I haue blessed the house, and made rounne for thy camels. And then the man cam into the house: and he bishpyled the camels, and (Laban) brought yttre and psonauntye for the camelles, and water to wash his feet, and the mens feete that wer with hym, and set meate before hym to eate. But he sayd: I will not eate until I haue sayde myn errande. And he sayde: saye on: And he sayde: I am Abrahams seruante, and God hath blessed my master oute of measure, that he is become grete, and hath gyven hym shepe and oxen, sheuer and golde, menservantes, and mayde seruantes, camels, and asses.

Gen. 27.1 And Sara my masters wyfe bare hym a sonne when she was olde, and vnto him hath he gyven all that he hath. And my master made me swear, saying: thou shalt not take a wife to my son amonge the daughters of the Cananytes in whose lande I dwell.

E But thou shalt go vnto my fathers house, and to my kindred, & take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my master: peradventure the wyfe will not folowe me: And he answered me: The Lord, before whome I walke, wyl sende his Angell with the, and prosper thy journeye and thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne of my kynrede and of my fathers house. Then shalt thou be guiltlesse of my curse, when thou comest to my kynrede. And yf they gyue the not one, thou shalt be guiltlesse of my curse.

And so I came this daye vnto the well, & sayd O Lord, the God of my master Abraham, yf it be so nowe that thou makest my journey which I go prosperous: beholde, I stande by this well of water, and when a virgin cometh forth to drawe water, and I say to her: gyue me (I pray the) a lytle water of thy picher to dnyke, and she saye to me: dnyke thou, & I wyl also drawe for thy camels, the same is the wyfe, whome the Lord hath prepared for my masters sonne.

And before I had made an ende of speakhing in myne herte, beholde, Rebecca came forth, and her picher on her shoulde, and she went downe vnto the well, and drew water. And I sayde vnto her: gyue me dnyke I praye the. And she made haste, and toke downe her picher from of her, and sayde: dnyke, and I wyl gyue thy camels dnyke also.

And I thanke, and she gaue the camels dnyke also. And I asked her, saying: whose daughter art thou: she answered: the daughter of Bathuel Rahozs sonne: whome Sylica bare vnto hym. And I put the earrynge vpon her face, and the bracelettes vpon her handes. And I bowed my selfe and worshipped the Lord, and blessed the Lord God of my master Abraham whiche had brought me my ryght waye to take my masters brothers daughter vnto his sonne. And also, yf ye wyl deale mercifullly and truly with my master, tel me: and yf not, tell me also that I maye turne me to the ryght hande or to the left.

Then answered Laban and Bathuel, saying: This saying is recorded euen out of the Lord: we can not therfore saye vnto the, eyther good, or badde: Beholde, Rebecca is before the, take her and go, that the maye be thy masters sonnes wyfe, euen as God hath sayd: And when Abrahams seruante herde thes wordes, he worshipped the Lord flat vpon the earth. And the seruant roke forth his welles of silver, and welles of golde, and rayment and gaue them to Rebecca and vnto her brother & to her mother, he gaue gyftes, and they byd eate and dnyke, bothe he & the men that were with hym, and tarped all nyght. And when they rose vp in the morning, he sayd: let me departe vnto my master. her brother and her mother answered: let the damsell abyde with vs a while, and it be but euen ten dayes, & then shall she go. he sayde vnto them: hynde me not: Beholde, the Lord hath prospered my journey. Sende me awaye therfore, that I may go vnto my master. And they sayde: we wyl call the damsell, and enquyre at her mouth: And they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wylte thou goo with this man: And she answered: I wyl go.

So they let Rebecca thes sisters go, and her nourse, and Abrahams seruante, and his men. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou art our sister, growe into thousand thousandes: and thy seede possesse the gate of theys enemyes. And Rebecca arose, and her damells, and set them vp vpon the camelles, and wente thes way after the man. And the seruante toke Rebecca, and went his waye.

And Isaac was commynge from the waye of the well of the spynge and fringe me, for he dwelle

he dwelt in the south country, and Isaac was gone out to pray in the field at the outside. And he lift up his eyes and saw the camels camyng. And Rebecca lyfte up her eyes, & when she sawe Isaac, she sayde unto him, what meanest thou that comest walking agaynst vs in the feld? And the seruante said it is my master. Therefore he toke her cloke and put it about her. And the seruante told Isaac all things that he had done. And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarahs tent, and toke Rebecca, and she became his wyfe, & he loved her, & so Isaac receaued comforte after his mothers death.

Abraham proceeded further and toke him a wyfe called Rebekah, which bare him Shimon, and Issachar, & Gedon & Shimon, and Issachar, & Shimon, Issachar begat Zebulon, & Dan. And the sonnes of Gedon were Aser, Leui, and Leui. And the sonnes of Shimon Ephraim, & Ephraim, & Aser, & Aser, & Aser. All these were the children of Rebekah. And Abraham gaue all his goods vnto Isaac. But vnto the sonnes of the concubynes which Abraham had, he gaue gyftes and sent them awaye from Isaac his sonne, while he yet liued, eastward vnto the land of Eder. And these are the names of the children of Abraham which he liued in. The xxv. ch. v. then he liued in a lusty age (while he had liued ynough) & was put to his people. And his sons, Isaac & Ismael buried him in the double caue in the feld of Ephraim sonne of Isaac the Bethyter, beyde the playne of Mamre. Whych felde Abraham bought of the sons of Heth: where Abraham was buried & Sara his wyfe. It fortuned after the death of Abraham & God blessed Isaac his sonne, and Isaac dwelled by the well of the living, and seruing me.

15 These are the generations of Isaac, Abrahams sonne, whiche Hagar the Egyptian Sarais handmayd bare vnto Abraham. And these are the names of the sonnes of Isaac in their names according to their kynreds: the eldest sonne of Isaac Reuailoth, & Erdar, and Abbel, & Shimon, & Shimon, and Shimon, & Shimon, & Shimon. And these are the generations of Isaac Abrahams sonne: Abraham begat Isaac.

16 And Isaac was forty yeare olde when he toke Rebecca to wyfe, the daughter of Bethuel the Syrian of Mesopotamia, and sister to Laban the Syrian. And Isaac made intercession vnto the Lorde for his wyfe: because she was barren:

and the Lorde was intreated of hym, and Rebecca his wyfe conceaued, and the chyldre stroue to gether within her. Therefore she sayd: if it shuld go so to passe, what helpeth it that I am with chyldre? therefore she wente to aske the Lorde. And the Lorde sayd vnto her: there are two manner of people in thy wombe, and two nacyns shalbe drydd out of thy bowels, and one nation shalbe myghtyer then the other, and the elder shalbe seruant vnto the yonger.

Therefore when her tyme was come to be deliuered, behold, there were two twynes in her wombe. And he that came out first was red, and he was all ouer as it were a rough garment, and they called his name Esau. And after hym came his brother out, and his hande holdyng Esau by the heile. And his name was called Jacob. And Isaac was xl. yeare olde when they were borne: and the boyes grew, and Esau became a comyng hunter and a ryler of the erth. But Jacob was a percyte man, and dwelled in the tentes. Isaac loued Esau, because he dyd eate of his venison, but Rebecca loued Jacob.

Isaac sod portage, and Esau came from the feld and was saynt, and Esau sayde to Jacob: I pray the with that redde portage, for I am saynt. And therefore was his name called Esau. And Jacob sayd: sell me this daye thy birth right. Esau sayd: Lo, I am at the point to dye, and what profite shall this birth right do me? Jacob answered & swaure to me the birth right. And he swaure to hym, and solde his birth right vnto Jacob. The Jacob gaue Esau bread and potage of ryle. And he dyd eate and dlynke and was up, and wente his waye. And Esau regarded not his birth right.

And he came to hys father, he sayd, my father. And he answered: here am I, who arte thou my sonne? And Jacob sayd vnto hys father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done accordyng as thou baddest me: vp and slay and eate of my venison, & thy soule maye blesse me. And Isaac sayd vnto hys sonne: how cometh it that thou haste founde it so quickly my sonne? he answered: The Lord thy God brought it to my hande. Then sayde Isaac vnto Jacob, come nere and let me fele the my sonne whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. Then wente Jacob to Isaac hys father, & he felt and sayde: The voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he knewe hym not, because his handes were rough as hys brothers Esaus handes: and so he blessed hym.

And he asked him: art thou my sonne Esau? And he sayde, that I am. Then sayde he: brynge me and let me eate of my sonnes venison, that my soule maye blesse the. And he brought hym and he ate. And he brought hym wyne also, and he dranke. And hys father Isaac sayd vnto hym: come nere, and kysse me my sonne. And he went vnto hym and kysed hym. And he smelled the sauoure of hys rayment, and blessed hym, & sayde: The smell of my sonne is as the smell of a feld, whyche the Lord hath blessed. God geue the of the dewe of heuen, and of the fatnes of the earth, and plenty of coyne and wyne. People be thy seruantes, and nacons bowe vnto the. Be lord ouer thy brethren, & thy mothers chyliden stoupe vnto the. Cursed be he that curseth the, and blessed be he that blesseth the.

It happened that asone as Isaac had made an ende of blessing, and Jacob was scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac hys father, then came Esau hys brother from his huntynge, and had made also meate and broughte it vnto hys father, and sayde vnto hys father: let my father arys and eate of hys sonnes venison, that thy soule maye blesse me. Then hys father Isaac sayde vnto hym: who arte thou? he answered: I am thy eldest sonne Esau, and Isaac was greatly astonysd out of measure, and sayd: whyche is he and where is he then that hath hunted venison: and brought it me? and I haue eate of al before thou comest, and haue blessed him, and he shal be blessed. When Esau herde the wordes of hys father, he cryed out greatly and byterly: aboute measure, & sayde vnto his father: blesse me also my father. Who answered, thy brother came & subtyllye, & hath taken away thy blessing. And he sayd againe: he may wel be called Jacob for he hath undermynded me now two tymes: fyrste he toke away my byttinge, and se: now hath he taken away my blessing also. And he sayde: hast thou kept nere a blessing for me?

Isaac answered and sayde vnto Esau: behold, I haue made hym thy lord, and all hys mothers chyliden haue I made his seruantes. Moreover with coyne & wyne haue I stablished hym, what can I do vnto the now my sonne? And Esau sayde vnto his father: hast thou but that one blessing my father: blesse me also my father: so lysted vp Esau his voyce and wept. Then Isaac his father answered and sayd vnto hym: beholde, thy dwellinge place shal be the fatnesse of the earth, and of the dewe of heauen from aboue. & And with thy sweete wale thou lyue, and shal be thy brothers seruaunt. And it wyl come to passe, that when thou shalt get the masterye, thou shalt loose his yoke from of thy necke. And Esau hated Jacob, because of the blessing that hys father blessed hym with all. And Esau sayd in hys herte: The dayes of my fathers sorowe are at hande, and I wyl slaye my brother Jacob. And these wordes of Esau her eldest sonne were tolde to Rebecca. And she sent and called Jacob her yongest sonne, & sayde vnto hym: beholde, thy brother Esau threatheneth to kyll the: now therefore my sone heare my voyce, make the redy, and flee to Laban my brother at Haran: and tary with him a whyle: vntill thy brothers fearnes be swaged, and vntill thy brothers wrauth turne away from the, and he forgette the thynges whych thou haste done to hym. Then wyl I sende and let the awaye fro thence. Why shoulde I be desolate of you both in one daye? And Rebecca spake to Isaac, I am wery of my lyfe, for fear of my daughters of heere. If Jacob take a wyfe of the daughters of heere such one as these are, of the daughters of the lande what good shal my lyfe do me?

The xxviii. Chapter.

¶ Jacob is sente into Mesopotamia to Laban to a wyfe. Esau marryeth an Hittite. Jacob bryngeth a home. Esau is promysed. Jacob maketh a home.

And so Isaac called Jacob & blessed hym and charged hym, & sayde vnto hym: se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Chanaan, but arys and get the to Mesopotamia to the house of Bethuel thy mothers father: and there take the a wyfe of the daughters of Laban thy mothers brother. And God almighty blesse the, and make the to encrease, and multiply the that thou mayest be a nōbre of people, and geue the the blessing of Abraham: to the & to thy seede with the, that thou mayest possesse the lande wherein I am a stranger: which God gaue vnto Abraham. Thus Isaac sent forth Jacob. And he went to Mesopotamia vnto Laban: sonne of Bethuel the Syrian, & brother to Rebecca Jacob & Esaus mother. When Esau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob, & sent hym to Mesopotamia, to see hym a wyfe there, and as he blessed hym he gaue hi a charge saying: thou shalt not take a wyfe of the daughters of Chanaan and thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Chanaan and thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Chanaan and thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Chanaan. Esau serpyng also the daughters of Chanaan pleased not Isaac his father: the went he vnto Hama, & toke vnto a wyche whych he had called a daughter of Hama. Abrahams sonne, the sister of Hama to be his wyfe. Jacob departed fro Beers Beba, to come vnto Haran, and came vnto a place by Channer, & tarried there all nyght, because the sonne was downe.

b ii And of Laban and behold, it was not as yesterday, and yestereday. And the Loyde sayd vnto Jacob, turne againe into the lande of thy fathers, and to thy brethren, and I will be with thee. Then tooke Jacob Lent and called Rachel and Lea to the felde with his flocke, and sayde vnto them: I fe poure fathers countenance: it is not toward me as yesterdaye, and yesteredaye. But the God of my father hath bene with me. And ye knowe howe that I haue serued poure father w all my myght. But poure father hath deceyued me, and chaunged my wages: 7. tymes: but God suffred hym not to hurte me. When he sayde, the spotted halbe thy wages, then al the shepe were spotted. And when he sayde: the streaked shall be thy wages, then they were all streaked. When he sayde:

15 the reward, then said all the shepe strahed: thus said God taken awaye your fathers shepe, and grouen them me. But in eam mynne tyme it happened, that I lyfied by myne eyes and sawe in a dreaime, and beholde 4 rammes leaped vpon the shepe that were strahed, spotted and party. And the Angell of God spake vnto me in a dreaime, sayinge: Iacob: And I answered: here am I.
And he sayd: lyfe vp nowe thyne eyes, and se al the rammes leapyng vpon the shepe that are strahed, spotted and partye: for I haue sene all that Laban doth vnto the, I am 4 God of 4 Bethell, where thou annoyntedst the stone, & where thou bowedst a vowe vnto me. Nowe therfore arise and get the 4 out of thy countrey, and returne vnto the lande where thou wast borne.

C Then answered Rabel, and Lea, and sayde vnto hym: haue we a porcion and inheritaunce in our fathers house? Doth not he count vs each as strangers, for he hath sold vs, & hath euen eaten vp our money. But all the ryches whiche God hath taken from oure father, that is oures and our chyldrens. And nowe what forerit God hath sayde vnto the, that do. Then Jacob rose vp, and set hys sonnes and wyues vp vpon camels, and carped awaye all hys flockes, and all hys substance whiche he had procured, hys ryches and possessions which he had gotten in the sopotamia, for to go to Mahab hys father vnto the lande of Canaan. But Laban was gone to

* there his shepe, and Rachel had stolen her fathers ymagis. And Jacob stole awaye the best of Laban the Syrian, in that he tolde hym not that he fled. So fled he and all that he had, and made hym selfe ready, and passed ouer the ryuer, and set hys face streight toward the mount Si-lead. Upon the thyrde daye after, was it tolde Laban that Jacob fled. Then he toke hys bye-then wyth hym, and folowed after hym seuen dayes iourney, and ouertoke hym at the mount Siload. And God came to Laban the Syrian in a dreame by nyght, and sayde vnto hym: take heede that thou speake not to Jacob oughte sauē good. And Laban ouertoke Jacob: and Jacob had pyched by tent in the mount. And Laban wyth his byethen pyched theyr tent also vpon the mount Siload. And Laban sayde to Jacob: Why hast thou done to steale awaye my herde and carpe awaye my doughers as though they had bene taken captyue wyth the swerde:

Wherfore wentest thou away secretly vnhumbled to me, and dydest not tell me, that I myght haue brought the on the waye wth myth syngynge, tymrel and harpe, and hast not suffered me to kysse my chyldren and my doughters. Thou wast a foole now to do it, for I am able to do yon euyl. But \S God of your father spake vnto me yesterdaye, sayynge take hede that thou speake not to Jacob ought faue good. And not though thou wentest thy waye, because \S longest after thy fathers house, yet wherfore hast thou stolen my goddes. Jacob answered & said to Laban: because I was afraide, and thought that thou woldest haue taken away thy doughters from me. But \S ^{where as thou layest thers to my charge} with whome soeuer thou syndest thy goddes, let hym dye, here before our byethren. Marke that thyns is by me, and take it to the. But Jacob wyl not that Rabel had stole them. Then went Laban into Jacobs tente, and into Leas tente, & into the two maydens tentes: but founde them not. Then went he out of Leas tente, and entred into Rabels tente. And Rabel had taken the ymages and put them in the camels strawe, and late downe vpon them. And Laban serched all the tente: but founde them not. Then sayde the to her father: my loyde, be not angrey that I can not tpe vp before the, for the custome of we men is come vpon me. So serched he but found not those ydois. And Jacob was wroth, & chode wth Laban. Jacob also answered and sayde to hym: what haue I respaced or what haue I offended, that thou folowdest so after me? Thou hast searched all my stuffe, and what hast thou founde of al thy household stuffe put it here before thy biethren & myne \S they may iudge betwixt vs both. Behold: Thus twenty pce haue I ben wth the, thy shepe and thy goates haue not ben barren, & the rammes of thy flocke haue I not eat. Whatsoeuer was some of bestes, I broughte it not vnto the, but made it good my selfe: of my hāde dydst \S requyre it, eue as it \S was stole by daye or nyght. By daye the heate consumed me, & the frost by nyght, & my slepe departed fro myn eyes. Thus haue I bene .xx. yeres in thy house, and serued \S .xiiiij. yeres for thy .ii. doughters, and .x. yeres for thy shepe, and thou hast chaiged my reward ten tymes. And except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and \S feare of Isaac had ben wth me, surely thou haddest sente me awaye nowe all emptyr. But God behede my tribulacyon, & the labour of my handes, and rebuked the yesterdaye.

Laban answered and sayd vnto Jacob: these daughters are my daughters, and these chyldre are my chyldren, and these shepe are my shepe, and all that thou seyst, is myne. And what can I do this daye vnto these my daughters, or vnto theyr chyldren whiche they haue borne? Now therefore come on and let vs make a bonde. And thou, whiche maye be a wytnesse betwene the and me. Then toke Jacob a stone, and sette it vp an ende, and Jacob sayde vnto hys brethren: gather stones. And they toke stones, and made an heape, and they byd eate there vpon the and fell on his necke and kyssed hym, and they wepte. And he lyfte up his eyes, and sawe the women, and the chyldren: and sayde: whence hast thou these? ^(And do they belonge unto thee?) And he answered: they are the chyldren which god hath geuen thy seruante. Then came the maydens forth, and they: chyldren, and byd they: obersaunce. Lea also with her chyldren came and byd they: obersaunce. And last of all came Joseph & Rabel, and byd they: obersaunce.

And he sayde: what is all the dreue wherch I mette? he answered: that I may fynde grace in the syght of my Lorde. And Esau sayde: I haue prouoked my brother, kepe that thou haste vnto thy selfe. To whome Jacob answered, oh nay, but yf I haue founde grace in thy syght, receaue my present of my hande: for I haue sene thy face as though I had sene the face of god and thou haste had a good will toward me. Oh take my blessinge that is broughte the, for God hath had mercy on me. ^(I sayng me all thynges.) And I haue prouoked. And so he compelled hym, and he toke it. And he sayd: let vs take our iourney and go. I will go before the. Jacob answered hym: my Lorde. Thou knowest, that the chyldren are with me, & the ewes & kyne with yonge vnder myne hande, wherby yf men shulde ouerdyne me one daye all the shepe wyl dye. Oh let my Lorde go before his seruante, and I will dyne saye and soflye, accordyng as the cattell that goeth before me and the chyldren, be able to endure vntill I come to my Lorde vnto Meir.

And Esau sayde: let me yet leaue some of my folke with the. And he answered, what needeth it? ^(Take our shepe onely haue I need of.) let me fynd grace in the syght of my Lorde. So Esau wente bys waye agayne that same daye vnto Meir. And Jacob toke his iourney towarde Succoth, and buylt hym an house, and made boordes for his cattell. And therfore is it, that the name of the place is called Succoth.

And Jacob came to Halem a cite of Sichem whiche is in the lande of Canaan: after that he was come from Mesopotomia, and pyched he fore the cite, and bought a parcell of grounde where he pyched his tente: of the chyldren of hemoz: Sichems father for an hundred peces of money. And he made there an altier, and called vpon the myghty God of Israel.

¶ The rauynge of Dina Jacobs daughter by the wil of Sichem. And of the great droue shepynges wherby the sonnes of Jacob.

In the daughter of Lea: whiche she bare vnto Jacob, wente oute to se the daughters of the lande. Whome when Sichem the sonne of hemoz & Henite: lorde of that countrey sawe, he toke her, and lay with her, and forced her: and his herte laye vnto Dina the daughter of Jacob. And he loued that damsell: and spake kindly vnto her, and Sichem spake vnto his father hemoz, saying: geue me this mayden vnto my wyfe.

And Jacob herde that he had despyed Dina his daughter, his sonnes deynge with they: cattell in the felde, and he helde his peace, vntill they were come. And hemoz the father of Sichem went out vnto Jacob to comen with hym. And when the sonnes of Jacob comyng out of felde hearde it, it grieved them, & they were not a lytle wroth, because he had wrought folpe in Israel, in that he had lyeu vnto Jacobs daughter whiche thyng ought not to be done. And hemoz communed with them, sayinge: the soule of my son Sichem longeth for your daughter: gyue her hym to wyfe, and make mariages with vs: and gyue your daughters vnto vs, and take oure daughters vnto you, and ye shal dwel with vs, and the lande shal be before you. dwell and do your vntynesse, and haue your possessions therein. And Sichem sayde vnto her father and her brethren let me fynde grace in your eyes, and whatsoeuer ye appoynt me, that wyl I gyue. The frelpe of me both the dowrye and gyftes, and I wyl gyue accordyng as ye say vnto me so that ye gyue me the damsell to wyfe.

But the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem, and hemoz his father talkyng amonge them selues deceptfully, because he had despyed Dina they: syster. And they sayd vnto them: we can not do this thyng that we should gyue our sister to one that is vncircumcised, for that were a shame vnto vs. But in this wyl we consent vnto you. Yf ye wyl be as we be and all the men chyldren amonge you be circumcised, then wyl we gyue our daughters to you, and take your daughters to vs, and wyl dwell with you, and be one people. But and yf ye wyl not perthen vnto vs to be circumcised, then wyl we take our daughter & go our wayes. They: wordes pleased hemoz: and Sichem his soune. And the yonge man deserde not for to do the thyng because he had luste to Jacobs daughter: he was also moost se: by of all that were in his fathers house. Then hemoz and Sichem his sonne went vnto the gate of they: cite, and communed with the men of they: cite, saying: these men are vntayned toward vs, and dwell in the lande, and do they: occupacion therein. And in the land is roume prouoked for them: we wyl take they: daughters to wiues, and gyue them our daughters, onely herein wyl they consent vnto vs for to dwell with vs and to be one people: yf all the men chyldren that are amonge vs be circumcised as they are. What not their goodes and their substance and all they: cattell be ouys, onely we consent vnto them? For they wyl dwell with vs. And vnto hemoz and Sichem bys sonne perthened all that wente out of the gate of his cite. And all the men chyldren were circumcised whatsoeuer went out of the gates of his cite. And it happened the thyrde day (when it was paynfull to them) two of the sonnes of Jacob Simeon and Levi, Dinas brethren toke either of them bes: & swerde and went into the cite boldly: and slew all that was male, & slewe also hemoz and Sichem his sonne with f edge of the swerde, and toke Dina out of Sichems house, and went they: waye.

And the sonnes of Jacob comynge vpon the deed

But Jacob sayde to Symeon and Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me synke befoze the inhabytours of the lande, befoze the Cananites, and the phere syte. And I beinge fewe in nombe, they shall gather them selues together agaynst me, and slaye me, and so shall I and my house be destroyed. And they answered: shoulde they deale with our sister as with an whor?

¶ The xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Jacob goeth vnto Bethel, and buryeth his ymaginable an oke. Deboia dyeth. Jacob is called Israel. The lande of Canaan is promysed hym. Rachel dyeth in labour: when she with her father's concubine. The death of Rachel.

And God sayde vnto Jacob: arise: and get the vp to Bethel and dwel there. And make there an alter vnto God, for I appeared vnto the when thou fleddest from the face of Esau thy brother. Then sayde Jacob vnto his household and to all that were with hym: put awaye the strange goddes that are amonge you, and be cleane, and chaunge your garmentes, for we wyl arise and go vp to Bethel, and wyl make an alter there, vnto God which berde me in the day of my tribulation, and was with me in the waye which I went.

And they gone vnto Jacob all the strange goddes whiche they had in theyr hande, and all theyr carnynges whiche were in theyr eares, and Jacob hyd them vnder an oke, whiche was by Sichem. And when they departed, the feare of God set vpon the egyptes that were round about them. And they dyd not folowe after the sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob to Lus whiche is in the lande of Canaan. The same is Bethel, he and all the people that was with hym. And he builded there an alter, and called the place: The God of Bethel: because that God appered vnto him there, when he fled fro the face of his brother.

But Deboia Rebbecca's nurse dyed, and was buried beneath Bethel vnder an oke. And the name of it was called: the oke of lamentation. And God appeared vnto Jacob againe, after he came out of Mesopotamia and blessed hym, and God sayde vnto hym: thy name is Jacob. Not withstanding, thou shalt be nomore called Jacob, but Israel: whelke thy name. And he called his name Israel.

And God sayde vnto hym: I am God almighty, growe, and multiplie: people and a multitude of people shall spring of the: yea and kynge shall come out of thy loynes. And the lande which I gaue Abraham and Isahac, wyl I gyue vnto the, and vnto thy seed after the wil I gyue that land also. And so God departed vp from him in the place where he had talked with hym. And Jacob sette vp a marke in the place where he talked with him, eue a marke of stone and poured oyle thereon, and poured also oyle thereon, and Jacob called the name of the place where God spake with him * Bethel.

And they departed from Bethel, and when he was but a feilde byrader from Ephraim Rachel beganne to trauaile: and in traauylinge, she was in peryll. And it happened, as she was in paynes of her labour, the mydwyfe sayd vnto her: feare not: for this sonne is thyne also.

Then as her soule was a departyng: that she must dye, she called his name Ben Onon. But his father called him Benjamin. And thus dyed Rachel, and was buried in the waye to Ephraim, which is Bethlehem. And Jacob set vp a stone vpon her graue, whiche is called Rabel's graue stone vnto this daye. And Israel wente thence, and pitched vpon his tente beyonde the towne of Eder. And it chaunced, as Israel dwelt in the lande, that Ruben wente, and laye

And so Jacob came vnto Isahac his father to Hamre vnto Syrach Arba whiche is in Hebron: where Abraham and Isahac solourned as stragglers. And the dayes of Isahac were an hundred and lxx. yeres: and Isahac fel syck and dyed, and was put vnto his people, bringe olds and full of dayes. And his sonnes, Esau and Jacob buried hym.

The xxxvii. Chapter

C Joseph accuseth his brethren. Joseph dreamed and is hated of his brethren, and sold to the Egyptians. Jacob bewaileth Joseph.

Jacob dwelt in the lande wherein his father was a stranger, even in the lande of Canaan. These are the generations of Jacob: When Joseph was seuentene yere old, he kept shepe with his brethren, and the ladde was with the sonnes of Bilha and with the sonnes of Zilpha, his fathers wyues. And he brought vnto theyr father an euill sayinge of them. But Israel loved Joseph more then all his chyldren, because he begat hym in his olde age, and he made hym a coote of many colours.

And when his brethren sawe that theyr father loved hym more then al his brethren, they hated hym, and coulde not speake peaceably vnto hym. Moreover, when Joseph had dreamed a dreame, he tolde it his brethren, whiche hated hym yet the more. And he sayde vnto them: heare, I praye you, this dreame whiche I haue dreamed: Beholde, we were byndyng sheues in the felde: and lo, my shefe arose, and stode vpryght, and yours stode rounde about, and made obeyssaunce to my shefe. To whom his brethren sayd: Hail thou be our kynge in dede? Or halte thou in dede haue domynion ouer vs? And they hated hym yet the more, because of his dreames and of his wordes.

And he dreamed yet an other dreame, and tolde his brethren, sayinge: beholde, I haue had one dreame more: me thought the sunne and the moone and xi. starres made obeyssaunce to me.

And when he had tolde it vnto his father and his brethren, his father rebuked hym, and sayde vnto hym: what is this dreame which thou hast dreamed? Shall I and thy mother, and thy brethren then come to fall on the ground before the

And his brethren hated him, but his father noted the sayinge. His brethren also went to kepe they fathers shepe in Sichem, and Israel sayde vnto Joseph: doo not thy brethren kepe in Si-chem, and I will sende the to them.

L. xix. 19

He answered: here am I. And he sayde vnto him: goo, and se whether it be well with thy brethren, and the shepe: and bypunge me word agayne. And so he sente him oute of the vale of Iehon, and he wnt to Sichem. And a certayne man founde him, and behold he was wandring oute of his waye in the felde, and the man asked him: what sekest thou? he answered: I seeke my brethren, tel me I praye where they kepe shepe And the man sayde: they are departed hence, for I herde them saye: let vs go vnto Dothan.

Gen. xxi. 1
Gen. xxi. 2

Thus went Joseph after his brethren, & found them in Dothan. And when they saw him afar of before he came at them, they toke counsaile agaynst him for to slaye him. For one sayde to an other: Beholde, this dreamer cometh: come now therfore and let vs slaye him, and cast him into some pyt, and we wyl save a wycked beast hath deuoured him, and we shall se what wyl come of his dreames. When Ruben hearde that he ryd him out of theyr handes, & sayd: we wyl not kyll him. And Ruben sayde moreover vnto them: shed not his bloude, but cast him into this pyt that is in the wyldernesse, and laye no hande vpon him. And when he sawe that he myghte ryd him out of theyr handes, and deli-uer him to his father agayne.

Gen. xxi. 3

v. 1

And it happened, that when Joseph was come vnto his brethren, they strepte him oute of his coote, his partye coloured coote that was vpon him, and they toke him and caste him into an emyt pyt, wherein was no water. And they sat them downe to eate bredd. And as they lyfte vp theyr eyes and looked about, there came a company of Ismaelytes from Silad, and theyr camels laden with hyssop, baulme and myrr: and were goinge downe to carie it into Egypt.

Gen. xxi. 4
Gen. xxi. 5

And Iuda sayde vnto his brethren: what a unprofitable thinge we haue done to our brother, and kepe his bloude secrete, come on and let vs sell him to the Ismaelytes, and let not our handes be vpon him: for he is our brother and our fleshy. And his brethren were content. Then as the Adianytes marchant men passed by, they drewe, and lyft Joseph oute of the pyt, and solde him vnto the Ismaelytes for twenty piers of siluer. And they brought him into Egypt.

Gen. xxi. 6

And when Ruben came agayne vnto the pyt, and founde not Joseph there, he rent his clothes and wnt agayne vnto his brethren, sayinge: the lad is not yonder, and whither shall I goe? And they toke Josephs coote, and hylled a goote, and depped the coote in the bloude. And they sente that partye coloured coote, and brought it vnto their father, and sayd: This haue we founde: se, whether it be thy sonnes coote or no. And he hnt it, sayinge: it is my sonnes coote, a wycked beast hath deuoured him, Joseph is rent in pices.

And Iacob rent his clothes, and put sacke cloth aboute his loynes, and sorrowed for his sonne a longe season. But all his sonnes & all his dought-ters rose vp to comforte him. But he woulde not be comforted, but sayde: I wyl goo downe into the graue vnto my sonne mourning And thus his father wept for him. And the Adianytes solde him into Egypt vnto Putiphar a loyde of Pharaon, and his cheif stuarde:

The xxxviii. Chapter.

The marriage of Iuda. The trespass of Er and Onan, and the begetting of Sela that came thereupon. Iuda saye with his doughter Thamar. The birth of Iuda very and Iudith.

Fortuned at that tyme that Iudas wente downe from his brethren, and gate him to a man called Hira of O-dolan, and there he sawe the dought-ter of a man called Sela a Canaanite.

Gen. xxi. 9

And he toke her, and went into her. And Er conceyued and bare a sonne, and called his name Er. And he conceyued agayne, and bare a sonne, and called him Onan. And he conceyued a-gayne, and bare yet a sonne, whome he called Sela: and he was at Christ when he bare him.

And Iudas gaue Er his eldest sonne a wyfe, whose name was Thamar. And Er Judas eldest sonne was wycked in the syght of the Lord and the Lord slewe him. And Iudas sayde vnto Onan: go into thy brothers wyfe, and mary her, that thou mayest styre vp seede vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceyved that the seed shuld not be his, therfore when he went into his brothers wyfe, he spilled it on the grounde, and gaue not seed vnto his brother. And the thynge which he dyd, displeased the Lord, wherfore he slewe him also. Then sayde Iudas to Thamar his doughter in lawe, remayne a wyddowe at thy fathers house, tyl Sela my sonne be growen, for he sayd: Lest peraduenture he dye also as his brethren dyd. And Thamar went and dwelte in her fathers house.

Gen. xxi. 10

And in procelle of tyme the doughter of Sela Iudas wyfe dyed. Then Iudas when he had left mourninge, went vnto his shepe sheppers to Timnath he and his frende Hira of Odolan.

Gen. xxi. 11
Gen. xxi. 12

And one tolde Thamar, sayinge: beholde, thy father in lawe goeth vp to Timnath, to Sela his shepe. And she put her wyddowes garmentes of from her, and covered her with a clooke, and disguysed her selfe: & sat her downe in a commune place which is by the hys wayes syde to Tim-nath, for by cause she sawe Sela was growen and she was not gyven vnto him to wyfe.

When Iuda sawe her, he thought it had bene an whore, by cause she had covered her face. And he turned to her vnto the waye, and sayde: come I praye the, let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his doughter in lawe. And she answered: what wilt thou gyue me for to lye with me? Then sayde he: I wyl sende the a kyd from the flocke. She sayde: Then gyue me a pledge, tyl thou sende it. He sayde: what pledge shall I gyue the? She answered: thy signet, thy byace-let, and thy staffe that is in thyne hande. And he gaue it her, and lay by her, and she was with childe by him. And she gat her by, and wente and put her

her mantell from her, and put on her byddens rayment. And Judas sent the kyb by his frende of Obolam, for to receyue his pldge agayne from the wyne hande. But he founde her not.

Euen after he the men of the same place, saying where is the whoze that sat openly by f wapes side. They answered: Ther was no whoze here he came therfore to Juda agayne, and sayd vnto him: I cannot fynde her, and also the men of place sayd: that there was no whoze there. And Juda sayd: let her take it to her, lest we be shamed. Beholde, I sent the kyb, and thou hast not founde her. And it came to passe, that after thre monethes, one told Juda, saying: Thamar thy

A daughter in lawe hath playd the whoze, and w playing the whoze is become great with childe. And Juda sayd byngre her forth, that she maye be bynt. And when they broughte her forth, she sent to her father in lawe saying: by the man vnto who these thynges pertaine am I w childe. And sayd also, loke whose are this seale, vnce let, and this staffe. And Juda knewe them and sayd: she hath bene moze ryghteous then I, because I gaue her not to Shela my sonne. And he

And it fortuneth that when she trauced, the one put out his hande, and the mydwife toke and bounde a red threde about it, saying: this is come out first. And it chaunced, that he plucked his hand back agayne, and beholde, his brother came out. And he sayd: wherfore haste thou rent a rent vpon the / and called his name Pharez. Afterwarde came out his brother that had the red threde about his hand, and his name was called sarah:

CThe xxxi. Chapter.

God prospereth Joseph. Pharaon wele remembreth hym. He is accused & cast in prison. God hath mercy vpon hym.

Ioseph was brought vnto Egypt: and Putiphar a lord of Pharaon (and his chefe liuard an Egyptian) bought him out of Imaclites which had brought hym thither. And God was with Joseph, and he became a luckye man, continuing in f house of his master the Egyptian. And his master sawe that God was with hym, and that God made all that he dyd to prosper in his hande.

And Joseph founde grace in his masters syght, and serued hym. And made hym ruler of his house, and put all that he had in his hande.

And it fortuneth fro that tyme that he had made him ruler ouer his house & ouer al that he had, f Lord blessed the Egyptians house for Joseph sake, & the blessing of the Loyde was vpon al f he had in the house, and in the feilde. And therfore he leste all that he had in Josephs hand, and lohed vpon nothyng that was with hym, save onely on the byeed whiche he dyd eat. And Joseph was a goodly persone, and wellfaoured.

B And it fortuneth after this, that his masters wyfe cast her eyes vpon Joseph and sayd: come lye with me. But he refused, and sayd to his masters wyfe: Beholde, my master wotech not what he hath in the house with me, and hath co-mytted all that he hath to my hande. There is nomd greater in the house then I. Neither hath he kept any thyng from me, but onely the, because thou art his wyfe. How then can I do this great wychednesse & syn agaynst God? And after this maner spake he to Joseph daye by daye but he hekened not vnto her, to slepe nor heare of to be in her compaignie. And it fortuneth on a tertayne conuenient daye, that Joseph entred into the house, to do his busynesse: and ther was none of the household by, in the house. And he caught hym by the garment, saying: come slepe with me. And he leste his garment in her hande and fledde, and got hym out. And it chaunced, when she sawe that he had leste his garmente in her hand, and was fled out. (And he not regretted) she called vnto the men of her house, and tolde them, saying: He, he hath broughte in an hebbu vnto vs to do vs shame: for he came into me for to haue slept with me. And I begd to crye with a loude voyce. And when he hearde that I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he leste his garment w me, and fled awaye, and got hym out.

And she layed by his garment by her, vntyll her lord came home. And she tolde hym wyth these wordes, sayinge: This hebbues seruaunt which thou hast broughte vnto vs, came into me to dome shame. But as soone as I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he leste his garment with me, and fled out. When his master (beinge to lyght of syence) hearde these wordes of his wyfe whiche she tolde hym, saying: after this maner dyd thy seruaunt to me, he wared wyth.

And the master toke Joseph and put him in *pylson, euen into the place where the hynges pylsoners laye bounde. And there continued he in pylson, but the Loyde was with Joseph, and shewed hym mercede, and got hym fauour in the syght of the lord of the pylson. And the keeper of the pylson commytted to Josephs hand al the pylsoners that were in the pylson house. And whatsoever was done there, that dyd he. And f keeper of the pylson lohed vnto nothyng f was vnder his hande, seinge that the Loyde was w hym. For whatsoever he dyd, the Loyde made it to prosper.

Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two pylsoners.

And it chaunced after this, that the butler of the hyngre of Egypte and his baker had offended the Loyde the hyngre of Egypte. And Pharaon was angrye agaynst his two offy- cers, agaynst the chefe butler and the chefe baker: and put them in ward in his chefe stwardes house: euen in the pylson and place where Joseph was bound. And the chefe stwardes gaue Joseph a charge w them, & he serued them. And they continued a season in ward: And they dreamed either of them in one night both the butler & the baker of the hyngre of Egypte whiche were bounde in the pylson house, either of them his dreame, and eche mannes dreame of a sondry interpretation. When Joseph came in vnto them in the morning, and lohed vpon them, beholde, they were sad.

sed. And he asked Pharaons officers that were with hym in his masters warde, saying: wherefore loke ye so sadlye to daye? They answered hym: we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayde vnto them

C Do not interpretynge belonge to God: yet tel me: and the chefe butler tolde the dreame to Joseph, and sayde vnto hym: In my dreame me thought there stode a vyne before me, and in the vyne were. iii. bzaunches, and it was as though it budded, and her blossomes shot forth: and the grapes thereof wared rype. And I had Pharaons cup in my hande, and toke of the grapes, and wronge them into Pharaons cup, and deliuered Pharaons cup into his hande. And Joseph sayde vnto him: this is the interpretation of it. The thre bzaunches are thre dayes: for within the dayes shall Pharaos lyfte vp thynne heed, and restore the vnto thynne office agayne, and I shal deliuer Pharaons cup into his hande after folde manner wherein I wait wanto gyue hym drinke. But yt thou thynke on me with the, when thou art in good case, shewe mercy (I wape the) vnto me. And make mencyon of me to Pharaos, & wyngte me out of this house: for I was stollen out of the lande of the hebrues, & here also haue I done nothyng at all wherfore they shuld haue put me into this dongeon. When the chefe baker sawe that the interpretacyon was good, he sayd vnto Joseph: me thought also in my dreame that I had thre wycker baskettes on myne heed

D And in the uppermoost basket there was of all maner bahemecates for Pharaos. And the byrdes byd eate them out of the basket that was vpon my heed. And Joseph answered and sayde: this is the interpretacyon thereof. The thre baskettes are thre dayes, for this daye the dayes shal Pharaos take thy heed from the, and shall hange I on a tree, and the byrdes shal eat the flesh from the.

E And it came to passe I thys daye which was Pharaons byrthdaye, I he made a feast vnto all his seruantes. And he lyfted vp the heed of the chefe butler & of the chefe baker amonge his seruantes. And restored the chefe butler vnto his butlership agayne: which also recched the cup in to Pharaos hand, but he hanged the chefe baker eue as Joseph had interpreted vnto them. After the byd the chefe butler remembred Joseph, but forgot hym.

C The. xli. Chapter.

C Pharaos dreames are reponed by Joseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypt. He hath two sonnes: Manasses and Ephraim. The death begunneth in Egypt.

A As it is fortunad after. ii. yerres, that Pharaos dreamed, & behold he stode by a ryuers syde, and there cam out of the ryuer seven goodly hyne and fatfleshed and fed in a medowe, and seven other hyne came vp after them out of the ryuer, euylfaoured and leane fleshed, and stode by the other hyne vpon the bynke of the ryuer. And the euylfaoured and leane fleshed hyne did eat vp the seven wel faoured and fat hyne: and Pharaos awoke. And he slept agayne, and dreamed the seconde tyme. And beholde, seven eares of cozne grewe vpon one stalk, same and good ly. And agayne, seven thynne eares blasted with the East wynde sprange vp after them: and the seven thynne eares deuoured the seven ranke &

full eares. And Pharaos awoke, and se, it was a dreame. And when the morning came, his spyte was troubled. And he sent and called for all the forslayers of Egypt, & all the wyle men thereof, and Pharaos tolde them his dreame: but there was none of them that coulde interpretat it vnto Pharaos. Then spake the chefe butler vnto Pharaos, sayinge: I do remembre my faultes this daye. Pharaos beinge angrey with his seruantes put in warde in I chefe snardes house both me and the chefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, and eche mans dreame of sondrye interpretacyon. And there was with vs a ponge man, an hebreue boyne, seruante vnto the cheffest steward. To whom when we told them, he declared our dreames to vs accordyng to cypher of oure dreames. And as he declared them vnto vs, euen so it came to passe. For he restored me to myne office agayne, and hanged hym. Pharaos sent therfore, and called Joseph.

And they brought hym hastily out of prison. And he shaued hym selfe, and chaunged his rayment, and came into Pharaos. And Pharaos sayd vnto Joseph: I haue sene a dreame & nomā can interpretate it, and I haue hearde saye of the, that as sone as thou hearest a dreame, thou canst interpretate it. Joseph answered Pharaos, sayinge: Not I, but God shall gyue Pharaos an answer of peace.

C And Pharaos sayd vnto Joseph: in my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuers syde, and there came out of ryuer. vii. fatfleshed, and wel faoured hyne & fed in the meddowe. And then seven other hyne came vp after them, poze & very euylfaoured, & leane fleshed: suche as I neuer sawe in all this land of Egypt, they were so euyl faoured. And the seven leane and euylfaoured hyne did eate vp I first vii. fat hyne. And when they had eaten the vp, a man could not perceyue I they had eate them: but they were styll as euyl faoured, as they were at the begynnynge. And I awoke. And I saw agayne in my dream, and behold, seven eares sprang out of one stalk, full and saye, and seven other eares agayne, withered, thin, and blasted with the east wynde, sprang vp after them. And the thynne eares deuoured I seven good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto the soth i pers, but there was no man that could tel what it meant. And Joseph answered Pharaos both Pharaos dreames are one. And God

hard shewed Pharaon what he is aboute to do. The seven good yere are seven yeres: and the seven good eares are seven yeres also, and it is but one dreame. Lp he wylle the seven thyn and eysl fauoured hyne that came out after them, are se- yeres: and the seven emptye and blashed eares, shall be seven yeres of hunger. This whiche I haue sayd vnto Pharaon, it is that god is about to do, and sheweth it vnto Pharaon.

Behold, there came seven yere of great plenteousnesse throughout all the lande of Egypt. And agayne, there shal come after the seven yeres of hunger. And also y plenteousnesse shal be forgotten in the lande of Egypt. And the hunger shal consume the lande: neither shal the plenteousnesse be knowne in the land, by reason of y hunger that shal come after, for it shal be excre- dyngre great. And as concerning y dreame was doubled vnto Pharaon the second tyme, be- holde, the thynge is certainly prepared of God, and God wylle shortly byng it to passe.

Now therfore let Pharaon prouide for a ma of vnderstandyng and wysdom, and let hym o- ner the land of Egypt. And let Pharaon do this also that he make officers ouer y land, and take vp the fyfth parte of the lande of Egypt in the seven plenteous yeres, and let them gather al y foode of the good yeres that come, and lay vp corne vnder the hand of Pharaon, that there may be foode in the cyties, and there let them hepe it: that there may be founde in store in the lande, agaynst the seven yeres of hunger whiche shall come in the lande of Egypt, that the land perishe not thowgh hunger.

E And the sayinge pleased Pharaon and all his seruantes. Then sayde Pharaon vnto his ser- uantes: where shall we fynde such a man as this is, in whom is the spirit of God? And Pha- raon sayd vnto Joseph: for as moch as God hath shewed the al this, there is no man of vnderstan- dyng or of wysdome lyke vnto the. Thou ther- fore shalt be ouer my house, and accordyng to thy wyse shall all my people be ruled, onely in the hynges scate wyl I be aboute the. And Pha- raon sayde agayne vnto Joseph: beholde, I haue set the ouer all the lande of Egypt. And he toke of his rynge from his hand, and put it vpon Jo- sephs hand, and arrayed hym in cloth of raynes, and put a golden cheyne aboute his necke, y set hym vpon the best charet that he had, saue one. And they crept before him: Bowe the knee, and Pharaon made hym ruler ouer all the lande of E- gypte. And Pharaon sayde vnto Joseph: I am Pharaon, without the shall no man lyue vnto his hande or foote in all the lande of Egypt.

A And he called Josephs name saphnath Parna. And he gaue hym to wyfe Asnath the daug- ter of Putiphar prest of On. Then wente Joseph abode in the lande of Egypt. And he was thyrty yere olde when he stode before Pha- raon kynge of Egypt. And Joseph departyng from the presence of Pharaon, went thowghout all the lande of Egypt. And in the seven plente- ous yeres they made theyres and gathered vp all the foode of the seven plenteous yeres wherpe were in the lande of Egypt, and layed vp the same in the cyties. The foode of the felde that grew round about every cytie, layed he vp in y same. And Joseph layed vp corne in store, lyke vnto the lande of yse in multitude out of mea- sure, vntyl he left nombryng: for it was with out nombre. And vnto Joseph were doyne two sonnes (before the yeres of hunger came) whiche Asnath the daughter of Putiphar prest of On bare vnto hym. And Joseph called the name of the fyfth sonne * Manasse, for God (sayde he) hath made me forget all my labour and all my fathers householde. The name of the seconde cal- led be Ephraim, for God (sayde he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

And when the seven yeres of plenteousnesse y was in y lande of Egypt were ended, then came the seven yeres of * derty accordyng as Joseph had sayde. And the derty was in all landes: but in all the lande of Egypt was there yet foode. And when the lande of Egypt also bega to hun- ger, the people crept to Pharaon for breed. And Pharaon sayde vnto all the Egyptians: go vnto Joseph, and what he sayeth to you, that do. And the derty was thowghout all the lande. And Jo- seph opened all that was in the cyties, and solde vnto the Egyptians. For y hunger waxed soze in the lande of Egypt. And all countreyes came to Egypt to Joseph for to bye corne, bycause y the hunger was so soze in all landes.

Josephs brethren come into Egypt to bye corne. And he knoweth them, and reuereth them. Asymon is put in prison the other returns to theyr father to set them at liberte. And father is led in to be hym go, but at the last he graunteth it.

A And Jacob seing y there was corne in Egypt, sayde vnto his sonnes: why gaue ye one vnto another? And he sayd: beholde, I haue herde that there is corne in Egypt. * Get you downe thether and bye vs corne fro thence, that we maye lyue and not dye. So wente Josephs ten brethren downe to bye corne of the Egypti- ans. But Ben Jamin Josephs brother wolde not Jacob sende with his other brethren, for he sayde, lest some mysfortune happen hym. And the sonnes of Israel came to bye corne amonge other that came, for there was derty in the land of Canaan. And Joseph was gouerner in y lande and solde to all the people of the lande. And his brethren came, and fell flat on the grounde be- fore hym. When Joseph sawe his brethren, he knewe them: and made him selfe straunge vnto them, and spake roughlye vnto them, sayinge: Whence come ye? They answered: out of y land of Canaan, to by vntayle. And Joseph knewe his brethren, but they knewe not hym.

And Joseph remembered his dreames whiche he dreamed of them, and sayde vnto them: ye are lppes, and to se where the land is weak is your commynge. And they sayde vnto hym: naye my lord, but to bye vntayle thy seruantes are com. We are all one mans sonnes, and meane truly, and thy seruantes are no lppes. And he sayde vnto them agayne: naye, but euen to se where y lande is weak, is your commynge. And they sayde sayde: we thy seruantes are thoru brythren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Chanaan. And beholde, the pongest is this daye with our father, and one woman woteb where he is. And Joseph sayde vnto them, that is it that I spake vnto you, saying: ye are spyes. wherby ye shalbe proued. By the lyfe of Pharao, ye shall not go hence, except your pongest brother come hyther. Sende out one of you which maye set your brother, and ye shall be kepte in prison, that your wordes maye be proued, whether there be anye truth in you: or els by the lyfe of Pharao ye are but spyes. And he put them in wardes thre dayes.

C And Joseph sayd vnto them the thyrde daye: This do and lyue, for I feare God. If ye meane no hurte, let one of your brythren be bounde in the house of your prison, and go ye and brynge the necessarpe foode vnto your householdes, but brynge your pongest brother vnto me: that your wordes maye be tryed, and that ye dye not. And they dyd so. And one sayde to an other: we haue verely synned agaynst oure brother, in that we sawe the anguish of his soule when he besought vs, and we wolde not heare hym: and therfore is this trouble come vpon vs. And Ruben answered them, saying: sayde I not vnto you that ye shoulde not synne agaynst the ladde: and ye wolde not heare. And se his blonde is requyred.

D They were not aware that Joseph vnderstode them, for he spake vnto them by an interpreter. And he turned from them and wepte, and turned to them agayne and communed with them, & toke out Simeon from amonge them, & bounde hym before they eyes, and Joseph commaunded to sly thys saches with cozne, and to put euery mans money in his sache, and to gyue them vnto the waye. And thus dyd he vnto them. And they laded they asses with the cozne, and departed thence.

E And as one of them opened his sache for to gyue his ass prouandze in s June, he espyed his money: for it was in his saches mouth. And he sayde vnto his brythren: my money is restord me agayne. For lo, it is euen in my sache. And they brste sayled them, & they were astonnyed, and sayd one to au other: whp hath God deale thus with vs? And they came vnto Jacob they father vnto the lande of Chanaan, and tolde hym all that had happened them, saying: The man, euen the lord of s lande spake roughly to vs and toke vs for spyes of the countre. And we sayd vnto hym: we meane truly, and are no spyes. We be twelue brythren and sonnes of our father, one is awaye, and the pongest is this daye with our father in the lande of Chanaan. And the lord of the countre sayd agayne vnto vs: wherby shal I knowe if ye meane truly: leave one of your brythren here with me, and take fode necessary for your householdes and get you awaye, and bring your pongest brother vnto me, that I maye knowe if ye are no spyes, but meane truly: so wyll I deliuer you your brother, and ye shall occupye in the lande.

F And it fortuneth as they emptyed they saches, beholde, euery mannes bundel of money was in his sache. And when both they and they father sawe the bundels of money, they were afrayed: And Jacob they father sayde vnto them: We haue ye robbed of my chyldren: Joseph is awaye and Simeon is awaye, and ye take Ben Jamin awaye: All these thynges are agaynst me. Ruben sayd vnto his father: Slay my two sonnes if I bring hym not to the agayne. Deliyuer him to my hande, & I wyll bring hym to the agayne. And he sayde: my sonne shal not go downe with you. For his brother is dead, and he is left alone. If some mysfortune happen vnto hym by the waye which ye go, ye shall brynge my graye

E The. xliii. Chapter.
When Ben Jamin was brought, they returned with grite. Simeon in deliuerd out of prison. Joseph goeth alre and wepeth. They lead together.

A And the death was great in s lande. And it fortuneth when they had eaten vp s cozne which they brought out of the lande of Egypt, they father sayde vnto them: go agayne, and bye vs a lytle foode. Iuda answered hym, & sayde: the man dyd testyfy vnto vs, sayinge, Ioke that ye se not my face except your brother be with you. If thou wyll sende our brother to us, we wyll go downe, and by the foode. But if thou wyll not sende hym, we wyll not go downe: for the man sayde vnto us: Ioke that ye se not my face, except your brother be with you. And Israel sayde: wherfore deli ye so cruelly to me, as to tell the man that ye had yet a brother? They answered: The m asked vs strapye of our hired saying: is your father yet aliue? shant ye not yet an other brother? And we tolde hym accordyng to these wordes. Coulede we knowe that he wolde saye: brynge your brother downe with you? Then sayd Iuda vnto Israel his father: Sende the lad with me, that we maye ryse and go, and that we may lyue and not dye: both we & thou, and also our chyldren. I wyll be suretye for hym, of myne handes shalt thou requyre hym. If I bring hym not to the agayne, and set hym before thyne eyes, then lette me beare the blame for euer. Truly except we had made this sayyng, by this, we had bene there twyse, and come agayne. And they father Israel sayd vnto them: If it must nedes be so now: thd do thus. Take of the best frutes of the lande in your vessels, and brynge the man a present, a curtesie of badolme, & a curtesie of hony, spyes & myrr, nuttes and almondes. And take double money in your hande. And the money s was brought agayne in your saches, take it agayne with you lest peradventure it was som ouerlyght.

D Take also your brother with you, and arys, and go agayne to the man. And God almighty gyue you merce in the sight of the man, that he maye deliyuer you your other brother, and this Ben Jamin, and I shalbe robbed of my chyld, as I haue bene. Thus toke they the present and twyse so much moze money in they hande with Ben Jamin: and rose vp, went downe to Egypt and stode before Joseph. When Joseph sawe Ben Jamin with them, he sayde to the ruler of his house: brynge these men home and slay: and make make ready, for the men shall dine with me at noon. And the man was as Joseph bade, and brought them unto Josephs house. When the men were brought into Josephs house, they were afraid, and sayde: because of the money that came in our sacks mouthes at the first tyme are we brought in, that he maye ppeche a quarrel with vs, and to laye some thyng to our charge and to byng vs in bondage and our asses also. Therfore came they to the man that was the ruler ouer Josephs house, and communed with him at the doore of the house, and sayde.

E Ch. xij. we came downe hyther at the first tyme to bye foode: and as we came to an Inne it happened that we opened our sacks, and beholde, euer y man * money was in his sack with full weight. And we haue brought it agayne in our hande, and other money haue we brought also in our handes to bye foode, but we can not tell who put our money in our sacks. And he sayd: peace be vnto you, feare not: your God and the God of your father hath giuen you that treasure in your sacks, I had your money. And he brought hymen out to them, and the man led them to Josephs house, and gaue them water to wash theyr feet, and gaue theyr asses pproandit. And they made ready theyr present agaynst Joseph came at none, for they heard saye that they shoulde eate byed there. When Joseph came home, they brought the presente into the house to hym which was in theyr handes, and fell flat on the grounde before hym. And he welcomed them curteously saying: is your father that olde man which ye tolde me of in good health? and is he yet aluue? they answered: thy seruauit our father is in good helth, and is yet aluue. And they bowed downe theyr heedes, & made obeysaunce.

And he lyste up by his eyes, behelde his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne, and sayde: E is this your yonger brother, of whom ye sayd vnto me? And he sayde: God be mercifull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast for his berte byd melte vpon his brother) and soughte where to wepe and entered into his chambze, and wepte there. And he washed his face, and came out, and refrayned hym selfe, and sayd: set byed on the table. And they prepared for hym by hym selfe and for them by them selues, & for the Egyptians which byd eate with hym by them selues, because the Egyptians maye not eat byed with the hebrues, for that is an abhominacion vnto the Egyptians. And they satte before hym the eldest accordyng vnto the age, and the yongest accordyng vnto his youth. And the men marvelled amonge them selues. And they brought seruantes vnto them from before him: But Ben Jamins part was five tymes so much as any of theyr. And they drinke were donne to him.

Joseph accuseth his brother of theft. Yuda becometh surety for Ben Jamin.

I As he commaunded the ruler of his house saying: fill the mens sacks with foode, as much as they can carry, & put euery mans money in his sack mouth, & put my silver cup in the sack mouth of the yongest, & his coine money also. And he did according to the wordes of Joseph had sayd. And in the morninge a shone as it was light the men were let go, they & their asses. And whē they were out of the cite & not yet farr away, Joseph sayde vnto the ruler of his house: by & folow after the men, and whē thou overtake them, & thalte saye vnto them: wherfore haue ye rewarded euil for good? is that not the cup in the which my lord drinketh, and for the which he prophesyeth: ye haue euil done & ye haue done. And when he overtake them, he sayde these same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayest my lord such wordes? God forbyd that thy seruantes shoulde do so: behold, the money which we found in our sacks mouthes, we brought agayne to the out of the lande of Chanaan: howe then shoulde we steale out of thy lordes house, eyther silver, or golde? with whome soeuer of thy seruantes it be founde let hym dye, and we also will be my lordes bondemen. And he sayde: Howe also let it be accordyng vnto your wordes: he to whom it is founde, shalbe my seruauit, and ye shall be harmlesse. And at ones euery man toke downe his sack to the grounde, and euery man opened his sack. And he searched, and beganne at the eldest and lest at the yongest. And the cup was founde in Ben Jamins sack. Then they rente & theyr clothes, and laded euery man his ass, & went agayne vnto the cite. And Yuda and his brethren came to Josephs house, for he was yet there, and they fell before hym on the grounde. And Joseph sayd vnto them: what bede is this which ye haue done? wote ye not that I am a man as I can prophesy? Then sayde Yuda: what shal we say vnto my lord? what shal we speake of? what excuse can we make? God hath founde out the wyche done of thy seruantes. Behold both we and he with whom the cuppe is founde are my lordes seruantes. And he answered: God forbyd that I shoulde do so, but the man to whom the cup is founde, he shalbe my seruauit. And go ye in peace vnto your father.

Then Yuda wēt vnto him and sayd: O my lord, let thy seruauit speake a word in my lordes eares, and be not wroth with thy seruauit, for thou arte euen as Pharao. My lord asked his seruauit, sayinge: haue ye a father or a brother. And we answered my lord: we haue a father that is olde, and a yonge lad which he begat in his age: and the brother of the sayde lad is deed, and he is all that is left of that mother. And his father loueth hym. And thou saydest vnto thy seruantes: byng hym vnto me, that I maye set myne eye vpon hym. And we answered my lord, & the lad coulde not go from his father, for yf he shoulde leaue his father, he were but deed. Then saydest thou vnto thy seruantes: except your yonger brother come with you loke that ye be my face no more. And when we came vnto thy seruauit our father, we shewed hym what my lord had sayde: And our father sayde vnto vs: God agayne, and bye vs a lytle foode. And we answered: we can not go downe.

The xliii. Chapter.

Joseph cometh before Pharao, and vnto hym to shewe the lande of Golan. He maketh hym counte to Pharao f his byrth.

Joseph came therfore & told Pharao & sayd: my father and my brythren theyr shepe and theyr oxen, and al that they haue, are come out of the lande of Canaan, and behold: they are in the lande of Golan. And Joseph toke of the byrmost of his brythren: euen fye men, and presented them vnto Pharao. And Pharao sayd vnto his brythren: What is your occupation? And they answered Pharao: shepherdes are thy seruantes, bothe we and also our father. They sayd moreover vnto Pharao: for to lodge in the lande are we come, for thy seruantes haue no pasture for theyr shepe, so loze is the famyshment in the lande of Canaan. Now therfore let thy seruantes dwell in the lande of Golan.

And Pharao sayd vnto Joseph: thy father & thy brythren are come vnto the. The lade of Egypt is before the: In the best place of the lade make both thy father & thy brythren dwell: euen in the lande of Golan let them dwell: Moreover yf thou knowest any man of actiuite among the make them rulers ouer my cattell. And Joseph brought in Jacob his father, and set him before Pharao. And Jacob blessed Pharao.

And Pharao said vnto Jacob: how olde art thou? And Jacob sayde vnto Pharao: the dayes of my pilgrimage are an hundred and thyrtye yeres. Fewe and euil haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, and haue not attayned vnto f yeres of the lyfe of my faders, in the dayes of theyr pilgrimage. And Jacob blessed Pharao and went out from hym. And Joseph prepared dwellinges for his father and his brythren, & gaue them possessions in the lande of Egypt, in the best of the lande: euen in the lande of Ramesses, as Pharao had commanded. And Joseph made promysse on for his father, his brythren: and al his faders householde with bread, euen as pange chyl djen are fedde. There was no bzeade in al the lande, for the deth was exceedinge loze: so that the lande of Egypt and the lande of Canaan, were famished by the reason of the dearth. And Joseph broughte together all the money that was founde in the lande of Egypt, and of Canaan, for the cozne whiche they bought, and he layde vnto the money in Pharaos house. When money failed in the lade of Egypt, & of Canaan all the Egyptians came vnto Joseph and sayde: gyue vs bzeade: wherfore sufferest thou vs to dye before the when our money is spent. Then sayde Joseph: hyngre youre catell, and I wyll geue you for your catell, yf ye be without money.

 And they brought their catell vnto Joseph. And Joseph gaue them breade for horses & sheepe and oxen, & asses, and fed them wth breade, for all theyr catell that yere. But whē y^e yere was ended, they came vnto hym the next yere, & sayde vnto hym we wyll not hyde it frome my lord: howe that our money is spent, my lord also had oure ca-tell and beastes, neither is there ought left in the syght of my lord, but euen our bodyes and our landes. Wherefore letteth y^e vs dye before theyre eyes, & the lande to go to nought: yve vs and our landes for bread: and both we & our landes wyl be bounde to pharaos. Only giue vs seede, y^e we maye lyeue and not dye, & that the lande go not to wast. And so Joseph bought al y^e lāde of Egypt for pharaos. For the Egyptians solde euery man his lande because the dearth was sore vpon them and so the lande became pharaos. And he appointed the people vnto cyties, from one syde of Egypt vnto the other: onely the lande of the prestes bought he not. For the prestes had an ordynauce of pharaos, y^e they shoulde eate that which was appointed vnto them: wherby pharao had geuen the wherfoze they solde not their landes. Then Joseph sayde vnto the folke: be-holde I haue bought you this daye & your lande for pharaos. Take there bread and seede & sowe the lande. And of the increase, ye shall geue the fyfte parte vnto pharaos, and foure partes shal be your owne, for the seede of y^e seide and for you, and them of your householdes, and for your chy-ldyren to eate. And they answered: Thou hast saued our lyues. Let vs fynde grace in the syght of my lord, and we wyl be pharaos seruantes.
 And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this daye: that pharaos shoulde haue the fyfte parte, excepte the lande of the prestes only, wherby was not pharaos.

And Israel dwelte in Egypt: euen in the coſt tre of Goſan. And they had theꝝ poſſeſſions unto the place of the Cananites and Hethites, and Amozites, and Pherezites, and Heuites, of the Jebusites. Nowe therfore, the complaint of the children of Israel is come unto me, and I haue also sene the oppression wherewith the Egyptians oppresse them. Come thou therfore, and I will sende the vnto Pharaon, that thou mayest bringe my people the children of Israel out of Egypte.

D And Moses sayd vnto God: what am I to go vnto Pharaon, and to bringe the children of Israel out of Egypte? And he answered: I will be with the. And thus shalbe a token vnto the, that I haue sente the: after that thou hast brought the people out of Egypte, ye shall serue God vpon thys mountayne. And Moses sayde vnto God: beholde, when I come vnto the children of Israel I shall say vnto them: the God of your fathers hath sent me vnto you, and yf they saye vnto me, what is hys name, what answer shall I gve them? And God answered Moses: I am that I am: and he sayde, thus shalt thou saye vnto the children of Israel: I am hath sent me vnto you. And God spake further vnto Moses: thus shalt thou saye vnto the children of Israel.

E the Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isahac, and the god of Jacob hath sent me vnto you: this is my name for ever, and this is my memorizall into generation and generation. So and gather the elders of Israel together, and thou shalt say vnto them: the Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isahac, and the God of Jacob appeared vnto me, and sayd: In visitynge haue I visyted you, and knowe that whych is done to you in Egypte.

And I haue sayde, I will bringe you out of the tribulation of Egypt vnto the lade of the Cananites, and Hethites, and Amozites, and Pherezites, and Heuites, and Jebusites: euen vnto a lande that floweth with mylke and hony. And whē they heare thy voyce then go: both thou and the elders of Israel shall goo vnto the kynge of Egypte, and saye vnto hym: The Lord God of the Hebrewes hath met with vs: now we wyl we go therfore. ut. dayes iourney into the wyldernesse, and do sacrifice vnto the Lord our God. And I am sure, that the kynge of Egypte wyl not let you go: no not in a myghte hande: and I wyl stretch out myne hande and smyte Egypte wth all my wonders whych I wyl do in the myddest therof. And after that he wyl let you go. And I wyl get this people fauoure in the syght of the Egyptians: so that whē ye go, ye shal not go empty: but a wyf shal boiove of her neyghbours and of her so: georneth in her house, ierwels of siluer and golde and rayment. And ye shal put the on your sons and daughters, and shal robbe the Egyptians.

The. iiii. Chapter:

E In after receaued signes of hys callinge a moose sent into Egypte. This moose sende a circumcised her son. Aaron met with Moses. Moses saith hys leane of hys father in lawe.

Moses answered and sayde: Se, they wyl not beleue me, noz herken vnto my voyce: but wyl saye, the Lord hath not appeared vnto the. And the Lord sayd vnto hym: what is that which is in thy hande? he answered a rodde. And he sayd: cast it on the grounde. And he cast it on the grounde and it became a serpent. And Moses fled from the syght of it. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: put forth thyne hande & take it by the tayle. And therfore he put forth hys hande and caught it, and it became a rodde in hys hande. For thus thyng (sayeth he) shall they beleue the, that the Lord God of they fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isahac, and the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

And the Lord sayde furthermore vnto hym B thrust thyne hande into thy bosome. And he thrust his hande into his bosome. And when he toke it out agayne, beholde: his hande was hye rous euen as snowe. And he sayd: put thyne had into thy bosome agayne. And he put hys hande into hys bosome agayne, and plucked it oute of hys bosome, and beholde, it was turned agayne as hys other fleshe. Therfore yf they wyl not beleue the, nether heare the voyce of the fyrst toke pr wyl they beleue for the voyce of the seconde token. But and yf they wyl not beleue the two signes, nether herken vnto thy voyce, thou shalt take of the water of the ryuer, and powre it vpon the drye lande. And the water whych thou takest out of the ryuer, shall turne to bloude vpon the drye lande.

Moses sayd vnto the Lord: oh my Lord, I C am not eloquent from yester daye and yester daye, and namely sence thou hast spoken vnto thy seruant: but I am slow mouthed and slow tunded. And the Lord sayd vnto him: who hath made mans mouth, or who hath made the dome of the deafe, the syenge of the blynde: haue not I the Lord? Therfore I wyl be with thy mouth and teache the what thou shalt saye. he sayde: oh my Lord, sende I praye the by the hande of hym whome thou wylte sende. And the Lord was angrie wth Moses, and sayde: Do not I knowe Aaron thy brother the Leuyte, that he can speake? For so, he commeth forthe to mete the, and when he seyth the, he wyl be glad in hys herte. Therfore thou shalt speake vnto hym and put these wordes in hys mouth, and I wyl be with thy mouth and with his mouth, and wil teache you what ye ought to do. And he shal be thy spokesman vnto the people: he also shal be thy mouth and thou shalt be hys God: and thou shalt take this rod in thy hande, wherewith thou shalt do myracles. Therfore Moses went and returned to Jethro hys father in lawe agayne, and sayd vnto hym: I wyl go nowe, and turne agayne vnto my brethren which are in Egypte and se whether they be yet aloue. And Jethro sayde to Moses, goo in peace. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses in Midian: goo and returne agayne into Egypte, for they are deade which wente aboute to kyl the. And Moses toke hys wyfe, and hys sonnes, and put them on an asse, and wente agayne to Egypte, and Moses toke the rod of God in hys hande. And the Lord said vnto Moses: When thou arte entred and come into Egypte agayne, se that thou do all these wh

Exod. 11. And thus before Pharaoh, whereby I have put in thy hands: but I will holde his herte, and he shall not let the people go: And thou shalt say vnto Pharaoh, thus sayeth the Lorde: Israel is myne eldest sonne, and I haue sayd vnto thee that thou shouldest let my sonne go, that he maye serue me: And thou wouldest not let him go, behold, I will Exod. 11. 2. * be thyne eldest sonne.

And it chaunced by the way in the Iune that the Lorde met hym, and wolde haue kylled him: And yephora toke a stone, and cut a way the soze kynne of her sonne, and fell at his fete, and sayd a bloudy husbnde arte thou vnto me: Then he let hym go. And she sayd a bloudy husband, because of the circumcision. Then sayd the Lorde vnto Aaron: go mete Moses in the wyldernesse. And he went and met hym in the mount of God and kylled hym. And Moses tolde Aaron al the wordes of the Lorde which had sent him, and all the tokens whych he had charged hym wythal. So wente Moses and Aaron, and gathered all the elders of the chyldren of Israel. And Aaron tolde al the wordes which the Lorde had spoken vnto Moses, and byd the myracles in the syght of the people, and the people beleeued. And when they hearde that the Lorde had vpsited the chyldren of Israel and had looked vpon theyr tribulation, they bowed theyr heade, and worshypped.

Exod. v. Chapter.

Moses and Aaron go vnto Pharaoh. The people of Israel are oppressed more and more, and they crye out vnto God for and Aaron therfor.

Exod. 5. 1. Moses and Aaron went in after ward, and tolde Pharaoh, thus sayeth the Lorde god of Israel: Let my people go, that they maye kepe holy daye vnto me in the wyldernesse. And Pharaoh sayd: who is the Lorde, that I shoulde heare his voyce, and let Israel go? I knowe not the Lorde, neyther will I let Israel go. And they sayde: the God of the hebrues hath met wyth vs: and therfore will we go thre dayes iourneye in the deserte and sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God: lest there happen vnto vs, either pestilence or swerde. The Lorde sayd the kynge of Egypt vnto them: wherfore do ye (Moses and Aaron) lette the people from theyr worke: get you vnto your labour. And Pharaoh sayd furthermore: beholde, there is muche people nowe in the lande, and ye make them leaue theyr worke. And Pharaoh commaunded the same daye vnto the taskmasters whych were amoge the people and vnto the officers, saying: ye shall geue the people nomore strawe, to make byrche wythal, (as ye byd in tyme pasted,) let them go and gather them strawe them selues, and the nobye of byrche whych they were wonte to make in tyme pasted lay vnto their charges also, and myniste nothyng therof, for they be ydle, and therfore crye, sayinge: we will go and do sacrifice vnto our god. They must haue more worke layde vpon them, that they may labour therein and not regarde daye wordes.

Then wente the taskmasters of the people and the officers out: and tolde the people: Thus sayeth Pharaoh: I will geue you nomore strawe, go your selues and gather you strawe where ye can fynde it, yet shall none of your laboure be mynistred. And so were the people scattered abrode thorow out al the lade of Egypt: for to gather stubble in stonde of strawe. And the taskmasters baddest them forwarde, saying: fulfyl our worke daye by daye, euen as ye had strawe. And the officers of the chyldren of Israel whereby Pharaohs taskmasters had set ouer them, were beaten. And they sayd vnto them: wherfore haue ye not fulfylled your task in makinge byrche, both yesterday and to daye, as well as in tyme past: The officers also of the chyldren of Israel came and complained vnto Pharaoh, sayinge: wherfore bealest thou thus wyth thy seruantes: there is no strawe giuen to thy seruantes, and they saye vnto vs: make byrche. And thy seruantes are beaten, and thy people is soule increased. He sayde, ydell are ye, ydell, and therfore ye saye: We will go and do sacrifice vnto the Lorde. So therfore nowe and worke and there shall no strawe be giuen you, and yet shall ye be lyuer the whole tale of byrche.

And the officers of the chyldren of Israel byd wyth heynynesse loke on them that sayd: ye shall myniste nothyng of your daylye makinge of byrche. And they met Moses and Aaron whych stode in theyr waye as they came out from Pharaoh, and sayde vnto them: The Lorde loke vpon you and iudge you, whych hath made this sauoure of vs synche in the eyes of Pharaoh and in the eyes of his seruantes: and haue put a swerde in theyr hande to sle vs. Moses returned vnto the Lorde, and sayd: Lorde, wherfore hast thou dealt cruelly wyth this people, and wherfore hast thou sent me: for sence I came to Pharaoh to speake in thy name, he hath sared soule wyth this folk, and yet thou hast not deliuered thy people at all. Then the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Howe shalt thou se, what I will do vnto Pharaoh, for in a mygdyr hande shall he let them go. And in a mygdyr hande shall he dyspue them out of his lande.

Exod. vi. Chapter.

God promyseth the deliuerance of the Israelites and the lande of Chanaan. The genealogy of Moses, Aaron, and Leui.

And god spake vnto Moses, and said vnto him: I am the Lorde: I appeared vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob as an almygdyr God: and in my name Jehonah, was I not knowne vnto the. Wherefore I made an appointment wth them to geue them the lande of Chanaan: the lade of theyr pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers. And I haue also herde the gronyng of the chyldren of Israel, who the Egyptians kepe in bondage, and haue remembred my covenante. Wherfore saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: I am the Lorde, I will byynge you oute from the burthens of the Egyptians, and will ryd you out of theyr bondage, and will deliuer you in a stretched out arme and in greate iudgementes. And I will take you for my people, and will be to you a God. And ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God, whiche byynge you out from the burthens of the Egyptians. And I will

will bring you into the land concerning the which I will lift up my hand to give it unto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and will give it unto you for a possession: even in the Lord.

And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel enen so
C But they hearkened not unto Moses, for anguish of spirit & for cruel bondage. The Lord spake unto Moses, saying: So in, and speake unto Pharaos kynge of Egypte, that he let the chyldren of Israel go out of this lande. And Moses spake before the Lord, saying: behold, the chyldren of Israel hearken not unto me, howe then shall Pharaos heare me, whiche am of uncircumcised lippes? And the Lord spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, & gaue them a charge unto the chyldren of Israel, and unto Pharaos kynge of Egypte, to bringe the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte. These be the heedes of theyr fathers houses. The chyldren of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel are these: Hanoch and Pallu, Hezron and Carmi, these be the four holders of Ruben. The chyldren of Simeon Semuel and Jamin, Ohad, and Jachin, Zohar, & Saul the sonne of a Canaanitish wyfe: these are the chyldren of Simeon. These also are the names of the chyldren of Levi in theyr generacions: Gerson and Cahath and Merari. Lemmyrd an hundred and thyrty and seven yere. The sones of Gerson: Libni and Semel by theyr kintredes. The chyldren of Cahath: Amram and Ischar, Hebron and Eliel. And Ischar lived an hundred and thyrtye and thre yere. The chyldren of Merari: Mabeli and Gushi: these are the chyldren of Levi by theyr generacions. Amram toke Jochebed his nyce to wyfe, & she bare hym Aaron and Moses. And Amram lived an hundred and thyrty and seven yere. The chyldren of Ischar, Nojah, Aepheg, and Michi. The chyldren of Eliel, Misael, Elaphan, and Michi. And Aaron tooke Elizabeth daughter of Aminadab: and she bare hym Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar and Jehamar. The chyldren of Nojah: Assir, and Elcana, and Abiasan: These are the chyldren of the Nojahytes. Eleazar Aarons sonne toke hym one of the daughters of Putiel to wyfe, whiche bare hym Phinehas, and these are the principall fathers of the Levytes throughout theyr kyndredes. This is that Aaron and Moses to whome the Lord sayde: carry the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte, according to theyr armyes. These are that Moses and Aaron whiche spake to Pharaos kynge of Egypte, that they myghte bringe the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte. And in the daye when the Lord spake unto Moses in the lande of Egypt he spake unto hym, sayinge: I am the Lord, speake thou unto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte all that I saie unto the. And Moses sayde before the Lord: Beholde, I am of uncircumcised lippes, and howe shall Pharaos geue me audience?

And the Lord sayde unto Moses: Behold, I haue made the Pharaos God, and Aaron thy brother shall be thy prophet. Thou shalt speake all that I commaunded the, and Aaron thy brother shall speake unto Pharaos, that he sende the chyldren of Israel out of his lande. And I will harden Pharaos herte, and multiply my myracles and my wondres in the lande of Egypte. But Pharaos shall not hearken unto you, that I may set myne hande vpon Egypte and bringe out myne armyes and my people of chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte, in greate iudgements, and the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lord, when I stretch forth my hande vpon Egypte, and bringe out of chyldren of Israel from amonge them.

Moses and Aaron dyd as the Lord commaunded them, euen so dyd they. Moses was lxxx. yere olde, and Aaron lxxxiij. when they spake unto Pharaos. And the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: If Pharaos speake vnto you, sayinge: Shewe a wondre, thou shalt say vnto Aaron: take thy rod and caste it before Pharaos, that it maye be a serpent. Then went Moses and Aaron vnto Pharaos, and dyd euen as the Lord had commaunded. And Aaron caste forth his rod before Pharaos and before his seruantes: and it turned to a serpent. Then Pharaos called for the wyse men and enchaunters, and those wyse men of Egypte dyd in lyke manner with theyr sojcery. For they cast downe euery man his rodde, and they turned to serpentes: but Aarons rodde dyd eate vp theyr rodde: and he hardened Pharaos herte, that he hearkened not unto them, euen as the Lord had sayde.

The Lord also sayde vnto Moses: Pharaos herte is hardened, he refuseth to let the people go. Set the vnto Pharaos in the morninge, so he will come vnto the water, and I will stande vpon the ryuer: and he shall come, and the rod whiche turned to a serpent, shalt thou take in thynne hande. And thou shalt say vnto hym: the Lord God of the Hebrewes hath sent me vnto the, sayinge: let my people go, that they may serue me in the wilderness: And behold, hyther-to thou wouldest not heare. Thus sayeth the Lord In this thou shalt knowe that I am the Lord. Beholde, I will smyte (with the staffe that is in myne hande) the water that is in the ryuer & it shall turne to bloude. And the fische that is in the ryuer shall dye, and the ryuer shall stynke, and it shall greue the Egyptians to bringe of the water of the ryuer: and the Lord spake vnto Moses, saye vnto Aaron, take thy staffe, and stretch out thynne hande ouer the waters of Egypte ouer theyr streames, ouer theyr ryuers and poudes, & all poudes of water whiche they haue, that they maye be bloude, and that there maye be bloude throughout all the lande of Egypte: both in vessels of wood and also of stone. And Moses and Aaron dyd euen as the Lord commaunded. And he lyfte vp the staffe, and smote the waters that were in the ryuer in the syght of Pharaos, and in the syght of his seruantes: and all the water of the ryuer was turned to bloude.

The vii. Chapter.

The toke to knowe God. The rod of Moses is turned to a serpent. The fische in the ryuer are turned into bloude.

was in the ryuer, turned into bloude. And the syde that was in the ryuer dyed, and the ryuer stank: and the Egyptians coulde not drynke of the waters of the ryuer. And there was bloude thowout all the lande of Egypte. And the en-chaunters of Egypte dyd lyke wyse with theyr sozceres: and he hardened Pharaos herte: neyther dyd he hearken vnto them: as the Lord had sayde. And Pharaos turned hym selfe, and went agayn into his house: & let not his hert ther vnto.
 And the Egyptians dygged rounde about the ryuer for water to drynke, for they coulde not drynke of the water of the ryuer. And it continued a weke after the Lord had smytten the ryuer.

¶ The viii. Chapter

*The plague of frogges. Moyses prayeth for Pharaos.
 The plague of flies.*

The Lord spake vnto Moyses: Go vnto Pharaos, and tell hym, thus sayth the Lord: *let my people go, & they may serue me. If thou wilt not let the go: behold, I will smite al thy bordre with frogges. And the ryuer shall be full with frogges which shall go vp and come into thine house: and into thy pympre chambie, where thou sleepest, and vpon thy bed, and into the house of thy seruantes, and vpon the people, and into thine ouens, and vpon thy meates.
 And the frogges shall come vnto the, and on thy people, and vpon all thy seruantes.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moyses: saye vnto Aaron: stretche forth thyne hande with thy rod ouer the streames, ouer the ryuers, and ouer the ponde, that thou mayest bring vp frogges vpon the lande of Egypte: And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the waters of Egypte, and the frogges came vp, and couered the lande of Egypte.
 And the sozcerers dyd lyke wyse with theyr sozcery, and brought frogges vp vpon the lande of Egypte. Then Pharaos called for Moyses and Aaron, and sayd: *praye ye vnto the Lord that he maye take awaye the frogges from me: and from my people, and I will let the people go, & they maye do sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moses sayd vnto Pharaos: reioyse thou ouer me and appoynt when I shall praye for the and for thy seruantes, and for thy people, to dryue awaye the frogges from the and thy houses, and if they maye remaine but in the ryuer only. he sayde: to morowe. And he sayde: euen as thou hast sayde that thou mayest knowe that there is none lyke vnto the Lord our God. And so the frogges shal departe from the and from thy houses, from thy seruantes: and from thy people, and shall re-maine in the ryuer onely. Moyses and Aaron went out from Pharaos, and Moyses cryed vnto the Lord vpon the appoyntment of frogges, which he had made vnto Pharaos. And the Lord dyd accordynge to the sayinge of Moyses. And the frogges dyed out of the houses, out of the cour-tes and feldes. And they gathered them together vnto heapes, and the lande stank of them.

¶ But when Pharaos sawe that he had rest gyuen hym, he hardened his hert, and hearkened not vnto them, as the Lord had sayd. And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: saye vnto Aaron, stretche out thy rodde and smyte the dust of the lande, that it maye turne to lyke thowout all the lande of Egypte. And they dyd so. And Aaron stretched out his hande, and with his rodde he smot the dust of the earth which turned to lyke in men & beastes so that all the dust of the lande turned to lyke, thowout all the lande of Egypte.

And the enchaunters assayed lyke wyse with theyr enchauntemetes to bringe forth lyke, but they coulde not. And the lyke were both vpon men and beastes. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharaos: it is the finger of God. And Pha-raos herte remayned obstynate, and he hearkened not vnto them, euen as the Lord had sayde.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: ryse vp early in the morning, and stand before Pharaos for he wyl come forth vnto the water, and thou shalt saye vnto him: thus sayeth the Lord: Let my people go, that they maye serue me. Els, if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will sende all maner of flies vnto the and thy seruantes, and thy people, and into thy houses.
 And the houses of the Egyptians shalbe full of flies, and the grounde whereon they are. And the lande of *Gosan where my people are, wyl cause to be wonderfull in that daye: so that there shal no flies be there. Whereby thou shal knowe that I am the Lord in the myddes of the earth.
 And I wyl put a deuysion betwene my people and thine. And euen to morowe shall this myracle be done. And the Lord dyd euen so: and there came noysom flies into the house of Pharaos, & into his seruantes houses, and into al the lande of Egypte: and the lande was couered with these flies. And Pharaos called for Moyses and Aaron, and sayde. So and do sacrifice vnto your God in the lande: And Moyses answered: It is not mete that we do so. For then we must offere vnto the Lord our God, that which is an abomination vnto the Egyptians. But and if we sacrifice that which is an abomynacion vnto the Egyptians before theyr eyes, wuld they not stone vs: we wyl go thre dayes iourney into the deserte, and sacrifice vnto the Lord our God, as he hath commaunded vs.

And Pharaos sayd: I wyl let you go that ye maye sacrifice vnto the Lord your God in the wilderness: but go not farre awaye, praye for me. And Moyses sayde: beholde, I wyl go out from the, and praye vnto the Lord, that the flies maye departe from Pharaos, and from his ser-uantes and from his people to morowe. But let Pharaos from henceforth deccyne nomore, & he wyl not let the people go to sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moyses went out from Pharaos and prayed vnto the Lord. And the Lord dyd accordynge to the sayinge of Moyses, and the flies departed from Pharaos, and from his seruantes, and from his people, & there remayned not one. And Pharaos hardened his hert euen then also, and dyd not let the people go.

¶ The ix. Chapter.

*The moyses of blood: The plague of botches and sores
 The botches, the sores, and the thympe.*

The

In the Lorde sayde vnto Moses go in vnto Pharaon, and thou shalt tell hym: thus sayth the Lorde God of the Hebrewes: * let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, and wilt holde them still, beholde, the hande of the Lorde is vpon thy sheeke which is in the feld for vpon horses, asses, camels, oxen, and shepe, there shall be a myghty great mozaune. And the Lorde shall do wonderfull things betwene the beasts of Israel and the beasts of Egypt: so that there shall nothyng dye of all that pertaineth to the chyldren of Israel. And the Lorde appoynted a tyme, sayinge: tomozowe the Lorde shall synnise this woerde in the lande. And the Lorde dyed it on the mozaune, and all the cattell of Egypt dyed: but of the cattell of the chyldren of Israel dyed not one. And Pharaon sent, and beholde, there was not one of the cattell of the Israelites dead. And the heart of Pharaon was hardened that he wolde not let the people go.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: take poure handes full of ashes out of the furnace, and Moses shall spynke it vp into the ayre, in the syght of Pharaon, and it shall tourne to dust in all the lande of Egypt: that there maye be swellinge sores with blaynes both on man & beast thowout all the lande of Egypt. And they toke ashes out of the furnace, and stode before Pharaon and Moses spynked it vp into the ayre. And there were sores with blaynes both in men and in beasts: and the sores could not stand before Moses because of the blaynes for there were botches vpon the enchaunters, & vpon all the Egyptians. And the Lorde hardened the heart of Pharaon, & he hardened not vnto them as the Lorde had sayde vnto Moses.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: ryse vp early in the mozynge, and stande before Pharaon, and thou shalt tell hym, thus sayth the Lorde God of the Hebrewes: * let my people go, & they maye serue me: or els I will at this tyme sende all my plagues vpon thyne herte, and vpon thy seruantes, and on thy people, that thou mayest know that there is none lyke me in all the earth. For nowe I will stretch out myne hande, that I may smyte the and thy people with pestilence and thou shalt perishe from the earth. And in verpe dede, * for this cause haue I kepte the, for to shewe the my power: and that they myght declare my name thowout all the world.

Per thou exaltest thy selfe agaynst my people, that thou wilt not let them go: beholde, tomozowe this tyme I will sende downe a myghty greates hayle: euen such a one as was not in Egypte. syns it was grounded vnto this tyme. Sende therfore nowe, and gather thy beasts, and all that thou hast in the feld. For vpon all the men and the beasts which are founde in the feld, and not brought home, shall the hayle fall and they shall dye. And as manye as feared the woerde of the Lorde amonge the seruantes of Pharaon made theyr seruantes and their beasts flye in to the houses, but he that regarded not the woerde of the Lorde, left his seruantes and his beasts in the feld. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: stretch forth thyne hande vnto heauen, that there maye be hayle in all the lande of Egypt: vpon man and vpon beasts, and vpon all the herbes of the feld thowout all the lande of Egypt. And Moses stretched out his rod vnto heauen: and the Lorde thundred and hayled, & the fyre ran alonge vpon the grounde. * And the Lorde so hayled in the lande of Egypt, & there was hayle and fyre mingled with the hayle, so greuous, and such as there was none thowout all the lande of Egypt, syns people inhabited it. And the hayle smote thowout all the land of Egypt, all that was in the feld both man & beast. And the hayle smote all the herbes of the feld, and brake all the trees of the feld: only in the lande of Gozan, where the chyldren of Israel were, was no hayle. And Pharaon sent and called for Moses and Aaron, & sayd vnto them I haue now synned: the Lorde is righte, and I and my people are vngodly. * Praye ye vnto the Lorde: for it is moche that shoulde be thunders of God and hayle. I will let you go, and ye shall earpe no longer. Moses sayd vnto hym: asone as I am out of the ctrye, I will speede a hynde my handes vnto the Lorde, and the thunder shall cease, neyther shall there be anye more hayle, that thou mayest know how that the crth is the Lordes. But I knowe that thou and thy seruantes yet feare not the face of the Lord God.

And so the flaxe and the barley were smytten for the barley was out vp, & the flaxe was boyled: but the wheate and the rye were not smytten for they were late sowne. And Moses went out of the ctrye from Pharaon and spiede a hynde his handes vnto the Lorde: and the thunder & hayle ceased, neyther rained it vpon the earth. And when Pharaon saw that the rayne and the hayle and thunder were ceased, he synned agayne: and hardened his herte he and his seruantes. And the heart of Pharaon was hardened: neither wold he let the chyldren of Israel go, as the Lorde had sayde by the hande of Moses.

Chapter.

The heart of Pharaon was hardened of God. The grethoppers. The sheche darkness.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: go in vnto Pharaon: for * I haue hardened his herte, and the herte of his seruantes, that I might put these my signes amongest them, and that thou tell in the audience of thy sonne, and of thy sonnes sonne, what thynges I haue done in Egypte, and the myzacles which I haue done amonge them: that ye maye knowe howe that I am the Lorde. And so Moses and Aaron came vnto Pharaon, and sayd vnto hym: Thus sayth the Lorde God of the Hebrewes, howe longe shall it be: thou wilt submyt thy selfe vnto me? * Let my people go, that they maye serue me. Or els (if thou dost not) and wilt not let my people go: beholde, tomozowe I will bringe grethoppers into thy coostes, and they shall couer the face of the earth, that it cannot be seene: and they shall eat the residue which remaineth vnto you and

and is escaped from the bayle: and they shal eat every grene tree that beareth you frute in þe feild and: þey shal syl the houses, and all the seruantes houses, and the houses of all the Egyptians after suche a maner as neyther the fathers, nor the fathers fathers haue leue, syns þe tyme they were vpon the earth vnto this daye. And he turned him selfe about, & went out from Pharaos.

And Pharaos seruantes sayde vnto hym: how longe shall he be a schlaundie vnto vs? Let the men go, that they maye serue the Lorde thy God: knowell thou not that Egypt is destroyed? And Moses and Aaron were broughte agayne vnto Pharaos, and he sayde: then go, and serue þe Lorde your God. Who are they that shall go? And Moses answered: we wyll goo, with oure yonge and with our olde: yea, and with our sonnes and with our daughters, and with our shep and with our oxen we must go. For we muste holde a feast vnto the Lorde.

And he sayd vnto them: let it be so. The Lorde be with you. When I let you go and your chyldren also, take heede, for ye haue some myschete in hande. Knye, not so: but go they that are men, & serue the Lorde: for that was your desyre. And they thrust them out of Pharaos presenche. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: stretch out thynne hande ouer the lande of Egypt for grethoppers: that they maye come vpon the lande of Egypte and eate all the herbes of the lande, and al that the bayle leste behynde. And Moses stretched forth his rod ouer the lande of Egypt: and the Lorde broughte an east wynde vpon the land al that daye, and all that nyght. And in the morninge, the east wynde broughte the grethoppers, and the grethoppers wente vpon ouer all the lande of Egypt: and remayned in all quarters of Egypte very greuouslye. Before them were there no suche grethoppers, neyther after them shalbe: for they couered all the face of the earth, so that the lande was darke. And they dyd eate all the herbes of the lande, and all the frutes of the trees, and what soener the bayle had left ther was no grene thyng leste in the trees and herbes of the felde thowowout all þe land of Egypt.

Therefore Pharaos called for Moses and Aaron in haste, and sayde: I haue synned agaynst þe Lorde your God, and agaynst you. And nowe forgyue me my synne only this ones: and pray vnto the Lorde your God, that he maye take awaye from me this death only. And Moses went out from Pharaos, and prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde turned a myghtye stronge west wynde, and it toke awaye the grethoppers, and cast them into the red see, so that there was not one grethopper in all the coast of Egypt. And Pharaos hardened Pharaos hert, so that he wold not let the chyldren of Israel go.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: stretch out thy hande vnto heauen, that there maye be vpon the lande of Egypte darknesse which maye be felt. And Moses stretched forth his hande vnto heauen, and there was a thycke darknesse vpon al the lande of Egypte thre dayes longe, no man saw an other, neyther rose vpon from þe place where he was by the space of thre dayes: but al þe chyldren of Israel had lyght where they dwelled.

And Pharaos called for Moses and sayd: go, and serue the Lorde, only let your shepe and your oxen abyde, and let your chyldren go with you. And Moses sayde: thou must gyue vs also offerynges, and burnt offerynges for to sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God: our cattell also shal go w vs, and there shal not one dooke be left behynde, forther of must we take to serue the Lorde our God. Whether do we knowe what we shal offre vnto the Lorde, vntill we come thither.

But the Lorde hardened Pharaos hert: and he wold not let them go. And Pharaos sayd vnto hym: get thee from me, and take heede to thy self, and se my face nomore. For whensoever, thou comest in my syght, thou shalt dye. And Moses sayde: Let it be as thou hast sayde: I wyll se thy face nomore.

¶ The xi. Chapter.

¶ The Lorde commaundeth to smyte the Egyptians, The death of all the fyrst begotten in Egypt.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: yet I wyll bringe one plage moze vpon Pharaos & vpon Egypt: and after þe he wyll let you go hence. And when he leteyth you go, he shal utterlye dymne you hence. Speake þe wordes in the eares of the people: every man be iowde of his neyghbour, and every woman of her neyghbours: lewels of syluer and lewels of gold. And þe Lorde shal gyue the people sauoure in the syght of the Egyptians. Moreover, * Moses was verreye great in the lande of Egypt, in the syght of Pharaos seruantes and in the syght of the people.

And Moses sayd: thus sayeth the Lorde: * At mynnyght wyll I go out into the myddes of Egypt, and all the fyrste bozne in the lande of Egypt shal dye, euen from the fyrst bozne of Pharaos that lyteth on his seate, vnto the first bozne of the mayd seruaunt that is behynde the mple and all the fyrst genyng of the cattel. And there shal be a great crye thowowout all the lande of Egypt, suche as there was neuer none lyke, nor shalbe. But amonge the chyldren of Israel shal not a dog moue his tonge, nor yet man or beast that ye maye knowe howe that the Lorde putteth a difference betwene the Egyptians and Israel. And these thy seruantes shal all come downe vnto me. And fall before me, and say: get thee out, and all the people that are vnder the, and then wyll I departe. And he went out from Pharaos with an angry countenance. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Pharaos shal not heare you, that my wonders maye be multiplied in the lande of Egypt. And Moses and Aaron dyd al these wonders & tokens whiche are wyrtten before Pharaos. And the Lorde hardened Pharaos hert, so that he wold not let the chyldren of Israel go out of his lande.

¶ The xii. Chapter.

And

Ad the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron in the lande of Egypt sayinge: This moneth shall be vnto you the begynnyng of monethes and the fyrst moneth of yere shall it be vnto you. Speake ye vnto all the congregation of Israel, sayinge: In the tenth daye of this moneth euery man take vnto hym a lambe accor dyng to the house of the fathers, a lambe thowout euery house. If the household be to lytle for the lambe, let hym take his neygbbour which is next vnto his house accor dyng to the nombr of soules: euery one of you, accor dyng to his eatyng shall make your comyt for a lamb And let the lambe of yours be without blemish a male of a yere olde which ye shall take out fro amonge the shepe, or from amonge the gootes.

And ye shall kepe hym vntyll the xiiij. daye of the same moneth. And euery man of the multitude of Israel shall kyl hym about euen. And they shall take of the bloude and stryke it on the two syde postes and on the upper doze post euen in the houses where they shall eate hym. And they shall eat the flesch the same nyght with fye and with vneleuened bzeed, and with lowe herbes they shall eate it. He y that eate not thereof rawe nor soden in water, but rost with fye:
the heeb, feet, and purtenaunce therof: And ye shall let nothing of it to remayne vnto the monyng. That whiche remaineth of it vntyll the morow shall ye burne with fye.

Of this maner shall ye eate it: with your loynes girded, and your shooes on your feet and your staves in your handes. And ye shall eate it in hast for it is the Lordes passouer: I for I will passe thowout the lande of Egypte this same nyght, and will smyte all the fyrste boyme in the lande of Egypte bothe man and beaste, and vpon all the goddesses of Egypte will I the Lord do erec-ution. And the bloude shall be vnto you a token in the houses wherein ye are. And when I se the bloude, I wyl passe ouer you, and the plage shall not be vpon you to destroye you, when I smyte the lande of Egypte. And this daye shall be vnto you a remembraunce: and ye shall kepe it holpe vnto the Lord, euen thowout your generacyons shall ye kepe it holpe daye, that it be a custome for euer. * Seven dayes shall ye eate vne-leuened bzeed: and the fyrste daye ye shall put awaye leuen out of your houses. For whosoener eateth leuened bzeed from the fyrst daye vntyll the seuen daye, that soule shall be plucked out from Israel. * The fyrste daye shall be an holpe conuocation, and the seuen daye shall be an holpe conuocation vnto you: There shall be no maner of worke done in them, save aboute that onely whiche euery man must eate, that onely maye ye do. And ye shall obserue vneleuened bzeed. For this same daye haue I brought your armyes out of the lande of Egypte, therefore ye shall obserue this daye, and all your chyldren after you by a custome for euer. * The fyrste mo-neth, and the fourteenth daye of the moneth at euen, ye shall eate swete bzeed vnto the xxi. daye of the moneth at eue agayne. Seven dayes shall there be no leuened bzeed founde in your houses And whosoener eateth leuened bzeed, that soule shall be rooted out from the multitude of Israel:

whether he be a stranger or boyme in the lande.
Ye shall eate nothyng leuened: but in all your habytations shall ye eate swete bzeed.

Moses called for the elders of Israel, & sayd vnto them: chose out and take you to euery hou-sholde of you a shepe, and kyl it for passouer.
And take a bunch of yflope, and dip it in y bloud that is in the bason, and stryke the upper poste, and the two syde postes with the bloude that is in the bason, and none of you go out at the doze of his house, vntyll the mornyng. For the Lord wyl go aboute to smyte the Egyptians. And when he seeth the bloud vpon y upper doze post and on the two syde postes: he wyl passe ouer the doze, and wil not suffer the destroyer to come in to your house to plage you. Therefore shall ye ob-serue this thyng, that it be an ordynance bothe to the and thy sonnes for euer.

And when ye be come into the lande whiche the Lord wyl gyue you, accor dyng as he hath promysed, ye shall kepe this seruyce. * And when your chyldren aske you what maner of seruyce is this ye do, ye shall saye it is the sacrifice of the Lordes passouer whiche passed ouer the houses of the chyldren of Israel in Egypte, as he smote the Egyptians, and saved our houses. And the people bowed the kyues, and worshypped: And the chyldren of Israel went, and dyd as y Lord had commaunded Moses and Aaron: Euen so dyd they. And at y mydnyght, the Lord smote all y fyrste boyme in the lande of Egypte, from the fyrst boyme of pharaos that sat on his seate, vnto the fyrste boyme of the captyne that was in pryson, and all the fyrst genyzed of cattel. And pharaos rose vp in the nyght, he and all his seruantes & all the Egyptians: * and there was a great cry-ng in Egypte, for there was no house where there was not one dead. And he called vnto Moses and Aaron by nyght, sayinge: ryls vp, and get you out from amonge my people: both ye & also the chyldren of Israel, and go and serue the Lord as ye haue sayde. And take your shepe & your dyones with you as ye haue sayde, and departe and * blesse me. And the Egyptians were fearce vpon the people, that they myght sende them out of the lande in haste: for they sayde: we dye all. And the people toke theyr dough before it was leued, and their wytales bound in clothes vpon their shuldres. And y chyldren of Israel dyd accor dyng to the sayinge of Moses: And they borrowed of y Egyptians: * ierels of syluer ierels of gold, & rayment. And the Lord gaue y people fauour in the syght of the Egyptians: so that they graunted such thynges as they required. And they robbed the Egyptians. And the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iournepe from Ramesses to Succoth: yere hundred thousande men of fote, besyde chyldren. And moche chymen people went out also with them, and shepe and oxen, an excedyng great flocke. And they baked swete cakes of y dough which they brought out of Egypte, for it was not leued. For when they

they were thrust out by the Egyptians, they could not tary to prepare them selues any proportion of meate. The dwelling of the chyldren of Israel, whiche they dwelled in Egypte was four hundred and thyrty yeres: and when the four hundred and thyrty yeres were crypted, even the litle same daye departed all the doostes of the Lozde out of the lande of Egypte. It is a myght to be obserued to the Lozde, in the which he brought them out of the lande of Egypte. This is that myght of the Lozde whiche al the chyldren of Israel must hepe theowout they generacions. And the Lozde sayde vnto Moyses and Aaron: This is the lawe of the passecouer: there shal no stranger eate thereof. But every seruant that is bought for moneye (after that thou hast crypted him) shal eate thereof. A stranger and an hyed seruant shal not eate thereof. In one house shall it be eaten. Thou shalt carpe none of the flesh out of the house. Neither shal ye breake a bone thereof. All the multitude shall obserue it. If a stranger also dwell amonge you, and wyl holde passecouer vnto the Lozde, let hym circumcise all that be males, and then let hym come and obserue it, and he shal be as one that is boyn in the lande. For the vncircumcised person shal not eate thereof. One manner of lawe shal be vnto hym that is boyn in the lande: & vnto the stranger that dwelleth amonge you. And all the chyldren of Israel byd as the Lozde commaunded Moyses and Aaron. Euen so byd they. And the litle same daye byd the Lozde byng the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte w they armyes.

The Lozde begotten must be sanctified vnto the Lozde. The memo shall of theys becomance. Why they were carped theow the wyldest. The bones of Joseph. The pylle of the cloude.

Ad the Lozde spake vnto Moyses, saying: Sanctify vnto me all the first bozne, that open all maner matryces amonge the chyldren of Israel, as well of man as of beast: for it is myne. And Moyses sayd vnto the people: thinke on this day in which ye came out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage: for theow a myghty hande the Lozde brought you out from thence. There shall no leuened byed be eaten. This daye come ye out in the moneth when come begynneth to rype. When the Lozde hath brought the into the lande of the Cananytes, Hethytes, Amorytes, Hewites, and Jebusytes, which he swore vnto thy fathers, that he wolde gyue the a lande wherein mylke and hony floweth, I shal kepe this scrupel in this same moneth. Seven dayes shalte thou eate swete byed: and in the seventh daye it is the feast of the Lozde.

Swete byed shall be eaten seven dayes, and there shall no leuened byed be sene, nor yet leuen with the in all thy quarters. And thou shalte shewe thy sonne in that day, saying this is done because of that whiche the Lozde byd vnto me, when I came out of Egypte. And it shall be a signe vnto the vpon thyne hande, and for a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lozdes lawe maye be in thy mouth. For in a stryg bande the Lozde brought the out of Egypte. Hepe therfore this ordinaunce in his season fro yere to yere. And it wyl come to passe, that the Lozde shall bynge the into the lande of the Cananytes, whiche he swore vnto the and to thy fathers, & shall gyue it the. And then thou shalt appoynt vnto the Lozde all that openeth a matryce. And every cast thing that first doth open the matryce of a beaste which thou hast: if they be males, they shal be of Lozdes. And every first genbyed of an alle, thou shalt redeme w a lambe: if thou redeme hym not, thou shalt breake hym necke. All the first bozne amonge the chyldren also shalt thou bye out. And when thy sonne asketh the to morrow, saying what is this, I shal saye vnto hym: With a myghty hand the Lozde brought vs out of Egypte, out of the house of bondage. And when Pharaos was loth to let vs go, the Lozde sware all the first bozne in the land of Egypte: as well the first bozne of man as of beaste. Therfore I sacrifice vnto the Lozde all the males that open the matryce: and all the first bozne of my chyldren I redeme. This shall be a token vpon thyne hande, and a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lozde brought vs out of Egypte theow a myghty hande.

It came to passe, that when Pharaos had let the people go, God carped them not theow the waye and lande of the Chylystines whiche was the moze nere waye. But God sayd: lest the people happily repent when they se warre, & so turne agayne to Egypte. But God led the people about theow the waye of the wilderness of the red see. And the chyldren of Israel went wharrested out of the lande of Egypte. And Moyses toke the bones of Joseph with him: for he made the chyldren of Israel swear, saying: God wil surely vylite you, and ye shall take my bones awaye hence with you. And they toke their four nepe from Guroch: & abode in Etcham in the edge of the wilderness. And the Lozde went before them by daye in a pylle of a cloude to leade the way: and by nyght in a pylle of fyre to gyue them lyght, that they myght go both by daye & by nyght. The pylle of the cloude departed not by daye, nor the pylle of fyre by nyght, out of the syght of the people.

The xliii. Chapter.

Pharaos herte is hardened, and foloweth the yftrynges with all his host and captaynes, and is drawen. The yftrynges gynges, they go theow the red see.

Ad the Lozde spake vnto Moyses, saying: Speake to the chyldren of Israel, that they toune & remayne before Pi Huroch betwene Migdol and the see ouer agaynst Baalze phon: and before that shall they pytche by the see. For Pharaos wyl saye of the chyldren of Israel they are tangled in the land, & I wyl harden Pharaos herte that he shal folowe after you: and I wyl get me donour vpon Pharaos and vpon all his host: the Egyptians also shal knowe that I am the Lozde. And they byd euen so. And it was tolde the king of Egypte, that the people fled. And the herte of Pharaos Pharao and of his seruantes turned agaynst the people, & they sayd: why haue we this done that we haue let Israel go out of our seruice? & he made redy his charrettes, and toke his people with hym and toke syre hundred cholen charrettes, and all the charrets of Egypt and captaynes vpon every one of them. And the Lorde hardened the herte of Pharao kynge of Egypt, and he folowed after the chyldren of Israel. But the chyldren of Israel went out with an hye hand and the Egyptians folowed after them, and all the hoyses and charrets of Pharao and his hoysen men and his hoost ouertoke them abyding by the see, besyde Pi Hicroch before Baalzephon. And when Pharao dyd see the chyldren of Israel lye by the see, and beholde, the Egyptians folowed after them, and they were sore afrayed, & the chyldren of Israel cryed out vnto the Lorde. But they sayd vnto Moyses: because there were no graues in Egypt, haste thou therefore brought vs a way for to dye in the wilderness: wherfore hast thou serued vs thus, for to carry vs out of Egypt? Dyd not we tell the this in Egypt, sayinge: let vs be in rest, that we maye serue the Egyptians? For it had bene better for vs to haue serued the Egyptians then for to dye in the wilderness. And Moyses sayde vnto the people: feare ye not, stande still, and beholde, how the Lorde shall saue pon this daye. For ye that haue sene the Egyptians this daye, shall se them no more for euer. The Lorde shall fyghte for you, and ye shall holde your peace.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: wherfore cryest thou vnto me? speake vnto the chyldren of Israel that they go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rod, and stretche out thy hand ouer the see, and deuyde it alonge, and let the chyldren of Israel go on drye grounde thorow the myddest of the see. And beholde, I will harden the herte of the Egyptians that they maye folowe them. And I will get me honoure vpon Pharao, and vpon all his hoost, and vpon his charrettes, and vpon his hoysen men. And the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lorde, when I haue gotte me honoure vpon Pharao, vpon his charrettes, and vpon his hoysen men. And the angell of God which went before the hoost of Israel remoued and began to go behynde them. And the cloude piler that was before the face of them, beganne to stande behynde them, & came betwene the hoost of the Egyptians and the hoost of Israel. It was also a darke cloude, & gaue lyghte by nyght: and all the nyght longe the one came not at the other. And Moyses stretched forth his hande ouer the see: and the Lorde carped awaye the see, by a very stronge Easter wynde all that nyght, and made the see drye lande, and the waters were deuyded. And the chyldren of Israel went out into the myddest of the see: vpon drye grounde. And the waters were a walle vnto them on the ryght hande, and on the left hand. And the Egyptians folowed and went in after them to the myddest of the see, euen all Pharao's hoyses, his charrettes and his hoysen men. And in the mornyng watche, the Lorde looked vnto

the hoost of the Egyptians out of the fyre and cloude piler: and troubled the hoost of the Egyptians, & toke of his charret wheels, and carped them awaye violently. So that the Egyptians sayde: Let vs flye from the face of Israel, for the Lorde fyghteth for them agaynst the Egyptians. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: stretche out thyne hande ouer the see, that the waters maye come agayne vpon the Egyptians, vpon his charrettes and vpon his hoysen men.

And Moyses stretched forth his hand ouer the see, and it came agayne to his course early in the mornyng, and the Egyptians fled agaynst it. And the Lorde ouerthrew the Egyptians in the myddest of the see: and the water returned & couered the charrettes and the hoysen men: and all the hoost of Pharao that came into the see after them, so that there remayned not one of them. But the chyldren of Israel walked vpon drye lande: & thorow the mydd of the see, and the waters were a walle vnto them on the ryght hande of them, and on the lefte. Thus the Lorde deuyded Israel the selfe same daye out of the hand of the Egyptians: and Israel sawe the Egyptians dead vpon the see syde. And Israel sawe the myghtye power which the Lorde shewed vpon the Egyptians: and the people feared the Lorde and beloued the Lorde & his seruant Moyses.

The xv Chapter.

Moyses and the people with the women singe. At the prayer of Moyses the bitter waters were sweete. God must be herke. They come to Sium.

When Moyses and the chyldren of Israel sange this songe vnto the Lorde and sayde: I will synge vnto the Lorde: for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and hym that rode vpon hym hath he ouerthrowen in the see. The Lorde is my strength and prayle, and he is become my saluacyon. He is my God, and I will glorifye hym: my fathers God, and I will exalte hym. The Lorde is a man of warre. The Lorde is his name. Pharao's charrettes and his hoost he hath cast into the see. His cholen captaynes also were drowned in the red see, the depe waters haue couered them: they sanke to the botome as a stone. Thy ryght hande Lorde is become gloriouse in power: thy ryght hande Lorde hath all to dashed the encmy. And in thy great glory thou hast ouerthrowen them that rose up agaynst the: thou sentest forth thy wrath which consumed them euen as stubble. Thorow the wind of thy nostrils the water gathered together, the floudes stode still as an heape, and the depe water congeled together in the herte of the see.

The enemye sayde: I will folowe on them: I will ouertake them, I will deuyde the people, I will satysfy my lust vpon them, I will brayn my swerde, myne hande shall destroye them. Thou blewest with thy wynde, the see couered them, they sanke as leade in the myghtye waters. Who is lyke vnto the, O Lorde, amonge goddes: who is lyke the so glorious in holynesse fearfull in prayles, shewinge wonders? Thou stretchedst out thy ryght hande, the earth swallowed lowed them: Thou in thy mercy hast carped this people which thou helpest: and hast brought them in thy strength vnto the holy habitation. The nation herbe and were afraied, for we came vpon the Philistines. Then the dukes of the Gomerites were amazed, and the mygdolites of the Moabites, trembling came vpon them: all the inhabitants of Canaan were fayned: Let feare and drede fall vpon them in the greatnesse of thyne, let the be as flye as a stone, tye the people passe thowme: O Lorde while this people passe thowme which I haue gotten. Then wilt thoue them in, and plant them in the mountayne of thyne inheritance. The place Lorde which I haue made for to dwell in the sanctuary, O Lorde, which thy handes haue prepared. The Lorde shall ragne euer and alwaye. For whatnes sake went in with his charittes and hostmen into the see, and I Lorde brought the waters of the see vpon them.

But the children of Israel went on byre lande in the mydd of the see. And Miriam a prophete the sister of Aaron toke a tymbell in her hand, and all the women came oute after her to tymbell and daunces. And Miriam sang before them. * Wyngye yf vnto the Lorde: for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and his ryder hath be ouerthrowen in the see. And so Moses brought Israel from the red see, & they went out into the wilderness of Shur. And they went thre dayes longe in the wilderness, and founde no waters. And when they came to Hara, they coule not drynke of the waters of Hara: for they were bitter, therfore the name of the place was called Hara: that is to saye bitternesse. And the people murmured agaynst Moses sayinge: what shall we drynke? And he cryed vnto the Lorde: and the Lorde shewed hym a tree, which when he had cast into the water, the waters were made swete. There he made them an ordynance and a lawe, and there he proued hym, and sayde: yf thou wilt hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, and wyle do that which is ryght in his syght, and wyle gyue eare vnto his comaundementes, and kepe all his ordynances: then wil I put none of these diseases vpon the whiche I brought vpon the Egyptians: for I am the Lorde that healeth the.

¶ The xvi. Chapter. ¶

The Israelites come into the desert of Syn. At request quailles and manna. They grudge.

In the * chyliden of Israel came to Elim, where were twelue welles of water, and xij. palme trees, and they abode there by the waters. And they toke theyr iourneys from Elim: and all the whole companye of the chyliden of Israel came to the wilderness of Syn, which is betwene Elim and Sinai: the fyfthene daye of the seconde moneth after they departed out of the lande of Egypt. And the whole multitude of the chyliden of Israel * murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron in the wilderness: and the chyliden of Israel sayd vnto them wolde to God we had dyed by the hande of the Lorde in the lande of Egypt, when we sat by the fresh pottes, and when we dyd eat bread our bellies full: for ye haue brought vs oute into this wilderness, to hyll us with this multitude & hunger.

Then sayde the Lorde vnto Moses: behold, I will rayne bread from heauen to you, and people shall go out, and gather day by day that I maye proue them, whether they wyle walke in my lawe or no. The fyfte daye they shall prepare for them selues that which they shal lye in, and let it be twyse as much as they gather in dayly. And Moses and Aaron sayd vnto all the chyliden of Israel: as euen ye shall knowe, that it is the Lorde which brought you out of the land of Egypt: and in the morninge ye shall see the glory of the Lorde, because he hath herde your grudginges agaynst the Lorde. And what are we that ye haue murmured agaynst vs? And Moses sayd: Ye euen shall the Lorde gyue you flesh to eat, and in the morninge yeed ynough, for the Lorde hath herde your murmurynge, which ye murmur agaynst him: for what are we? your murmurynge are not agaynst vs, but agaynst the Lorde. And Moses spake vnto Aaron: saye vnto all the companye of the chyliden of Israel, come forth before the Lorde: for he hath herde your grudginges. And as Aaron spake vnto the whole multitude of the chyliden of Israel, they looked toward the wilderness, & beholde, the glory of the Lorde appeared in the cloude. ¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: I haue herde the murmurynge of the chyliden of Israel, tell them therfore and saye: as euen ye shall eat flesh, and in the morninge ye shall be fylled with bread, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God. And at euen the quailles came and covered the grounde where they laye. And in the morninge the dew laye rounde about the host. And when the dew was fallen, beholde, it laye vpon the grounde in the wilderness, smal and round, and thynne, as the dowe froost on the grounde. And when the chyliden of Israel sawe it, they sayde euery one to his neyghbour: It is Manna. For they wyl not what it was. And Moses sayd vnto them: this is the bread which the Lorde hath gyuen you to eat. This is the worde which the Lorde hath commaunded, gather it euery man for him selfe to eat: a gomel ful for a man accordyng to the nombre of you, and take euery man for the which are in his tent. And the chyliden of Israel dyd euen so, and gathered, some more, some lesse, and when they dyd meate it was a gomel, * vnto him that had gathered moche, remained nothyng ouer ouer, & vnto hym that had gathered lyffe, was there no lacke: euery man gathered sufficient for his eatynge. And Moses sayde vnto them.

E So that no man let ought cōmāgne of it tyll the moynynge. For wyche dayngye they behered not vnto Moses: but some of them left of it vntill the moynynge, and it waxed full of wormes and stanke, and Moses was angrey wth them. And they ga: gred it all moynynge, euery man for his eatynge. And as soon as the heate of sunne came, it moulte. And the syxe daye they gathered twyfe so muche breade, two gomers for one man: and all the euyls of the multitude came and tolde Moses. He sayde vnto them: thys is that wyche the Lozde hath sayd: to morowe is the reste of the holy Sabboth vnto the Lozde: bake that wyche ye wyll bake, and seth that ye wyll seth, and that wyche remayneth, laye it vntill the moynynge. And they laydett vp tyll the moynynge, as Moses bad, and it stanke not, nether byed there any worme therein. And Moses sayde: that eate thys daye: for it is the Sabboth vnto the Lozde: to daye ye shall not fynde it in the feide. Wyche dayes shall ye gather it, and in the seuen daye wyche is Sabboth, there shall be none. For wyche dayngye, there wente out some of the people in the seuen daye for to gather, and they founde none.

And the Lozde sayde vnto Moses: howe longe refuse ye to kepe my cōmaundementes, and my lawes? Se, the Lozde hath geuen you a Sabboth, therfore he geueth you a syxe day breade for two dayes. Wyche therfore euery man at home and let noman go oute of hys place the seuen daye. And the people rested the seuen daye. And the house of Israel called it Manna.

 And it was lyke vnto Cozandze seide, wyche and the taste of it was lyke vnto wafers made with honny. And Moses sayd: this is that which the Lozde cōmaundeth, sy a gomer of it, wyche maye be kepte for your chyldren after you: that they maye se the bread wherewith I haue fed you in wyldernes, when I brought you out of the lande of Egypte. And Moses spake vnto Aaron: take a cruze and put a gomer full of Manna therein, and laye it vp before the Lozde to be kepte for your chyldren after you, as the Lozde cōmaunded Moses. So Aaron layde it vp before the Lozde to be kepte. * And the chyldren of Israel dydeate Manna fortye yere, vntill they came vnto a lande inhabited. And so they dydeate Manna euen vntill they came vnto the borders of the lande of Canaan. A gomer is the tenth parte of an Epha.

¶ The. xviij. Chapter.

 The Israelites came into Raphidim. They grudge water is geuen them out of the rocke, as Moses badde by hys handes and they overcome the Amalechites.

And at the chynge of a chyldren of Israel thow out they arnyes went fro the wyldernes of Sin, after the cōmaundement of the Lozde, & pyched in Raphidim where was no water for the people to drynke. And the people chode wth Moses, and sayd: geue vs water to drynke. Moses les sayd vnto the: why chode ye wth me, wherfore do ye tempte the Lozde? There the people chafed for water, and the people murmured a gāynst Moses, & said: wherfore hast thou thus brought vs out of Egypte: to kyll vs and oure chyldren and catell wth thyrt.

And Moses cryed vnto the Lozde, sayinge: what shal I do vnto this people: they be almost ready to stōne me. And the Lozde sayde vnto Moses: go before the people, and take wyth the of the elders of Israel, and chy rodde wherewith thou smotest the ryuer, take in thynne hande, and go: Behold, * I stande before the helyde a rocke that is in horeb: and thou shalt smyte the rocke and there shall come water out ther of, that the people maye drynke. * And Moses dyd euen so before the eyes of the elders of Israel. And he called the name of the place * Massa and * Meriba, because of the chydinge of the chyldren of Israel, and because they temptet the Lozde, sayinge: is the Lozde amonge vs or not?

Then came Amalech and fought wth Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayde vnto Josua: chole vs out men, and go fyght wth Amalech, and to morowe I wyll stande on the toppes of the hyl, and the rod of God shalbe in my hande. Josua dyd as Moses badde hym, & fought wth Amalech. And Moses, and Aaron, and hur, wente vp to the toppes of the hyl. And it happened, that when * Moses helde vp hys hande, Israel had the better. And when he let hys hande downe Amalech had the better.

But Moses handes were heuy, and therfore they toke a stone and put it vnder hym, and he satte downe thereon. And Aaron and hur stayed vp hys handes, the one on the one syde, and the other on the other syde. And hys handes remayned stande vntill the goynge downe of the sunne. And Josua dyscomfited Amalech and hys people wth the edge of the swearde.

And the Lozde sayde vnto Moses: wyrt this for a remembraunce in a booke, and comyette it vnto the cares of Josua for: * I wyl vterly put out the remembraunce of Amalech from vnder heauen. And Moses made an auleter and called the name of it: The Lozde is he that worketh myracles for me. For he sayde: the hande is on the seate of God, the Lozde wyl haue war wth Amalech from generation to generation.

 The. xviij. Chapter.

Ethio the breast of Madiam Moyses father in lawe, hearde of all that God hadde done for Moses, and for Israel his people, and that the Lozde had brought Israel out of Egypte.

* Therfore he toke zephora Moyses wyfe. (After he had sente her dache) and her two sounes, of wyche the one was called * Gerson, for he sayd: I haue bene an aliaunt in a straunge lade. The name of the other was Elislar: for the god of my father (sayde he) was myne helpe, and deliuered me from the swearde of Pharao.

And Iethro Moyses father in lawe came with hys two sones, and hys wyfe vnto Moyses into the wilderness: where he abode by the mount of God. And he sayde vnto Moyses: I thy father in lawe Jethro am come to the, and thy wyfe al so and her two sones wyth her. And Moyses went out to mete hys father in lawe & byd obey saunce and kyssed hym, and eche asked other of his healeth, and they came into y tent. And Moyses tolde hys father in lawe al that y Lorde had done vnto Pharaon and to the Egyptians for Israels sake, and all the trouayle that had happened them by the waye, and howe the Lorde deliuered them. And Jethro reioyced ouer al the goodnesse whiche the Lorde had done to Israel and because he had deliuered them out of y hande of the Egyptians. And Jethro sayde: blessed be the Lorde whych hath deliuered you out of the hande of the Egyptians, and oute of the hande of Pharaon, whych hath also deliuered hys people from the captytytie of the Egyptians. Nowe I knowe that the Lorde is greater then all gods, for in the thyng whereby they deale treuely w them, are they them selues perished. And Jethro Moyses father in lawe offered brent offerynges and sacrifices vnto God. And Aaron and al the elders of Israel came to eate breade with Moyses father in lawe before God.

And it chaunced on the morowe, that Moyses sat to iudge the people, and the people stode aboute Moyses from mornynge vnto euen. And when Moyses father in lawe sawe all that he byd vnto the people, he sayd what is this that thou dost vnto the people? why tystest thou thy selfe alone, and all the people stande aboute the from mornynge vnto euen? And Moyses sayd vnto his father in lawe: because the people come vnto me to seke counsell of God. When they haue a matter, they come vnto me, & I iudge betwene euery man and his neighbour, and shewe them the ordinaunces of God and his lawe.

And Moyses father in lawe sayde vnto hym: it is not well that thou dost. Thou doest weyrest thy selfe, and thys people that is wyth y: for this thyng is of more weyght, then thou arte able to persourne thy selfe alone. Heare nowe therfore my voyce, and I wyl geue the counsell, and God shalbe wyth the. Be thou vnto the people to Godwarde, that thou mayst hyng the causes vnto God, and thou shalt teache them ordynances, and lawes, & shewe them the waye wherein they must walke, and the worke y they must do. Moreover, thou shalt seke out amonge all the people, men of actiuite, and such as feare

God: true men, hatynge couetousnes: and make them heydes ouer the people: captaines ouer thou sandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten. And let them iudge the people at al seasons. And excepte a greute matter that happeneth, let them hyng vnto the, but let the iudge all small causes them selues, and so shall it be easer for thy selfe, and they shall beare wyth the. If thou shalt do this thyng, (and God charge the with al) thou shalt be able to endure, and yet the people shal come to they place in peace.

And so Moyses obeyed the voyce of hys father in lawe, and byd all that he had sayde, and chose actiue men oute of all Israel, and made them as heydes ouer the people: namely captaines ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten. And they iudged the people at all seasons, but brought the hard causes vnto Moyses: and iudged all small matters them selues. And Moyses let hys father in lawe departe, and he wente into hys owne lande.

The xix. Chapter.

The chylidren of Israel come to the mount Synay. The people of God are holy and a holy people. He that toucheth the hill dyeth. And appeared vnto Moyses upon the mounte in clowdes and lightynge.

In the thyrde moneth, when the chylidren of Israel were gone out of the lande of Egypt, the same daye came they into the wilderness of Synay. And there Israel abode before y mounte. And there Moyses wente vp vnto God, and the Lorde called to hym out of the mountayne, sayenge: thus shalt thou saye vnto the house of Jacob, and tel the chylidren of Israel: ye haue sene what I byd vnto the Egyptians, and toke you vp vpon Eagles wynges, and haue broughte you vnto my selfe. Nowe therfore yf ye wil heare my voyce in dede, and kepe myne appointment, ye shalbe myne owne, about all nacions, for all the earth is myne. Ye shalbe vnto me also a kyngdome of priests, and an holy people: and these are the wordes which thou shalt saye vnto the chylidren of Israel. Moyses came and called for the elders of the people, and layde before they faces al these wordes, which the Lorde commaunded hym. And the people answered altogether, and sayde: All that the Lorde hath sayde, we wyl do. And Moyses broughte the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Lo, I come come vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people maye heare me talkynge wyth the, and beleue the for euer. Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the lord.

B And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: So vnto the people, and sanctifye them to daye and to morowe, and let them wash theyr clothes: and be redy agaynst the thyrde daye. For the thyrde daye the Lord wyll come downe in the syghte of all the people vpon mount Sinai. And thou shalt set markes rounde aboute the people, and saye: beware that ye go not vp into the mount, or touche the border of it. Whosoener toucheth the * mount, shall surely dye. There shall not an hande touche it. Els he shalbe stoned or shot thorow: whether it be beast or man, it shal not liue: when the trompe bloweth longe, then may they come vp into the mountayne.

C And Moses went downe from the mount vnto the people, and sanctified them, and they washed theyr clothes. And he sayde vnto the people: be ready agaynst the thyrde daye, and come not at your wyues. And the thyrde daye in the morning there was thundre and lychtening and a thicke cloude vpon the mount, & the voyce of the trompe creakynge lowde, so that all the people that was in the hoste was afrayed. And Moses brought the people oute of the tentes to meete with God, and they * stode vnder the hyll. And mount Sinai was altogether on a smoke because the Lord descended downe vpon it in fyre. And the smoke therof ascended vp, as the smoke of a hyne, and all the mount was covered with fearfull. And when the voyce of the trompe blew, and waied lowder and lowder. Moses spake, and God answered hym by a voyce.

D And the Lord came downe vpon mount Sinai, euen in the toppe of the hyll, and when the Lord called Moses vp into the toppe of the hyll, Moses went vpp. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: So downe, charge the people, that they please not vp to se the Lord, and so many of the people dyed. And let the priests also whiche come to the Lord sanctifye them selues, lest the Lord destroy them. And Moses sayd vnto the Lord: the people can not come vp into the mount Sinai, for thou chargest vs, sayinge: set markes aboute the hyll, and sanctifye it. And the Lord sayde vnto him: away, and get the downe: and thou shalt come vp, thou and Aaron thy brother. But let not the priests & the people presume for to come vp vnto the Lord: lest he destroye them. And so Moses wente downe vnto the people, and tolde them.

For in seuen dayes the Lord made heauen and earth, the see, and all that in them is, and rested the seuenth day, wherfore the Lord blessed the Sabbath daye, and hallowe it. * Honour thy father and thy mother, that thy dayes may be longe in the lande, whiche the Lord thy God giveth the.

And when the people sawe it, they remoured, and stode afar of, and sayde vnto Moses, talke * thou with vs, and we wyl heare: but lette not God talke with vs, lest we dye. And Moses sayde vnto the people: feare not, for God is come to proue you, and that his feare may be in your face, that ye synne not. And the people stode a far of: And Moses went into the thicke cloude where God was. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: thus thou shalt saye vnto the children of Israel. Ye haue sene that I haue talked with you from out of heu. Ye shal not make therfore wyth me gods of syluer, neyther shall ye make you goddes of golde. * In an altar of earth thou shalt make vnto me, and thereon offeresthy burnt offerynges, and thy peacc offerynges, thy shepe, and thyne oren. In all places where I shall put the remembraunce of my name I thither I wil come vnto the, and blesse the. And yf thou wilt make me an altar of stone, se thou make it not of hewen stone. But if the owner thereof be by, he shall not make it good: namely, if it be an hyred thyng, and came for his hyre. * If a man enspyle a mayd that is not betrothed, and lye with her, he shall endowe her, and take her to his wyfe. Beware of hym, and heare his voyce, and respyse hym not: for he will not spare poure my dedes, and my name is in hym. But and if thou shalt hearken vnto his voyce, and all that I speake, I will be an enemye vnto thyne enemyes, and an aduersarye vnto thyne aduersaries. For myne angell shall go before the, and bypunge the in vnto the Amorites, and Hittites, and Pherezites and Cananites, heuites, and Jebusites, and I shall destruye them. And it shalbe vpon Aarons fozehead: & Aaron maye beare the synne of the holy thynges whiche the chyldren of Israel halow in al theyr holy gyftes. And it shalbe alwayes vpon his fozehead, for the reconcyllynge of them before the Lord. And thou shalt make a lymen cote, and thou shalt make a mytre of lymen and a gyrdle of needle worke. And thou shalt make for Aarons sonnes also cotes, gyrdels, and bonets, gloryous and bewysfull, and thou shalt put them vpon Aaron thy brother, and on his sonnes with hym: and shalt annoynt the, and fill theyr handes, and sanctifye them, that they maye minystrer vnto me. And thou shalt make them lymen byches to couer theyr priuities, fro the loynes vnto the thyrs shal they reache. And they shalbe vpon Aaron and his sonnes when they come into the tabernacle of wytnes, or when they come vnto the altar to minystrer in holynesse, & they beare no synne, and so dye. And it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto Aaron & his seide after hym.

The xxix. Chapter.

The consecracyon of Aaron and of his sonnes.

In this thing also shalt thou do vnto the when thou shalt halowe them to be my prestres. Thou shalt take a calf, euen a yong ore, and two rammes that are without blemish, and unleuened bread & cakes of swete bread tempoized with oyle, and wafers of swete bread anoynted with oyle (of wheten flower shalt thou make them) and put them in a maunde, and byng them in the maunde with calfe and the two rammes. And byngge Aaron and his sonnes vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnes, and washe them with water, & take the garmentes, & put vpon Aaron: the skyrts cote the tynycle of the Ephod, and the Ephod, & the byestlap: and gyrdle them to him with the boorderd gyrdle whiche is in the Ephod. And putte the myſtre vpon his head: & put the holy crowne vpon the myſtre. Then ſhalte thou take the anoynting oyle, and powre it vpon his head, and anoynte hym. And bynge his ſonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gird them with girdels as well Iarabhis ſonnes. And put the myſters on them, and the Priſtes office ſhalte they for a perpetuall lawe. And thou ſhalte ſpyll the bandes of Aaron and of his ſonnes: and bynge the calfe before the tabernacle of witnes. And Aaron and his ſonnes ſhall put theyr bandes vpon the head of the calfe, & thou ſhalt ſpyll hym before the Lorde, by the doore of the tabernacle of witnes. And take of the blood of the calfe & put it vpon the hornes of the aultar: & thy ſynger: and powre al the blood beſyde the bottome of the aultar, & take all the fat that couered the inwardes, and the kail that is on the lpyer, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is vpon them and burne them vpon the aultar. But the fleſhe of the calfe and his ſkynne, and his donge ſhalt thou burne with fyre without the hoofe. It is a ſynne offering. Thou ſhalt alſo take one ram, & Aaron & his ſonnes ſhall put theyr bandes vpon the head of the ram. And when thou haſt ſlayne the ramme, thou ſhalt take his blood, & ſpyll it rounde about vpon the aultare, and cut the ramme in peces, and waſh the inwardes of him and his legs, and put them vnto the peces and vnto his head: and then burne the holl ram vpon the altar for a burnt offering vnto the Lorde, and for a ſweet ſauour & a ſacrifice vnto the Lorde

And take of other ram, and Aaron and hye sonnes shall put theyr handes vpon hys heade. Then shalt thou kyll him, and take of his blood and put it vpon the tipp of the ryght eare of Aaron and of hys sonnes, and vpon the thumbe of theyr ryght handes, and vpon the greaite too of theyr ryght fote, and spraynkle the bloode vpon the altare rounde about. And thou shalt take of the bloode that is vpon the altare, and of the anoynting oyle, and spraynkle it vpo Aaron and his vestimentes and vpon his sonnes and vpon theyr garmentes with hym. And he shall be halowed and his clothes and his sonnes, and their clothes with hym. * And thou shalt take the fat of the ram and hys rompe, and the fat that cometh the inwardes, and the tial of the lyuer, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is vpon them and the ryght shulder: for the ram is a full offering: and a spinnell of bread, and a cake of offering: and a wafer out of the baskette of sweete bread that is before the Lorde, and put all vpon the handes of Aaron, and on the handes of hys sonnes: and waue them for a waue offering before the Lorde. And agayne, thou shalt take it from of theyr handes, and burne it vpon the altare for a burnt offering, to be a sauour of sweetness before the Lorde. For it is a sacrifice vnto ram of the consecracion of Aaron and of his sonnes. And it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes by a statute for ever, of the children of Israel: for it is an heue offering: Euen an heue offering of the children of Israel, and of theyr peace offerings.

Theyr heue offerings is the Lorde. And the holy garments of Aaron shalbe his sonnes af ter hym, to be anoynted therein: and to fyll theyr handes therein. And that son that is Priest in his stede after hym, shal put the on. viij. dayes whē he cometh into the tabernacle of wytnes, to min ster in the holy place. * And thou shalt take the ram of the consecracion, & seth hym ashe in an holye place. And Aarons his sons shal eate the flesh of the ram, & the bread that is in the basket, eue by the doze of the tabernacle of wytnes: & they shal eate them, because the attonement was made therewith, to fyll theyr handes, and to consecrate them: but a straunger shal not eate therof, be cause they are holy. And yf ought of the flesh of the consecracion of the bread remaine vnto the moynyng, thou shalt burne it with fyre, and it shal not be eaten, because it is holy. Therfore shalte thou do vnto Aaron and his sonnes, euen so, accordyng to all thynges which I haue com maunded. & seuen dayes shalt thou fyll their han des, and offer euery daye a calfe for a synne offer ing, for to reconcile withal: that thou mayest cleme the aultar when thou reconcylest vpon it, and thou shalt anoynte it, to sanctifye it. Se uen dayes thou shalt reconcile vpon the aaltar, and sanctifye it, and it shalbe as an astate most holye. Euery one that toucheth the aaltar, lette hym be holye. * This is that whiche thou shalt offer vpon the aultar: euen two lambes of one yere olde, day by day continually: the one thou shalt offre in the moynyng, and the other at eue.
And wyth the one lambe a tenth deale of flour myngled with the fourth parte of an hyne of be ten oyle, and the fourth part of an hyne of wyne, for a brynke offering. And the other lambe thou shalt offer at euen, and shalt doo thereto accor dyng to the meate offeringe and brynke offer ing in the moynyng, to be an odour of a sweet saoure and a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And let this be a contynual burnt offering among you children after you before the dooze of the taber nacle of wytnesse before the Lorde, where I wil * mete you, so speake there vnto the. There I wil mete with the children of Israel, and wyl be sanctified in myne honoure. And I wyl san ctifye the tabernacle of wytnes and the aultar.
And I wyl sanctifye also both Aaron and his sonnes to be my prestes. And I wyl dwell a monge the children of Israel: and wyl be theyr God. And they shall knowe that I am the Lorde theyr God, that brought them oute of the land of Egypt, for to dwell among them: euen I the Lorde theyr God.

the hornes thereof shall proceede out of it, and thou shalt ouerlape it with fyne golde, both the roffe and the walles rounde aboute and bys hornes also, & shalt make vnto it a crowne of golde rounde about, and two golde rynges on eyther syde: euen vnder the crowne, that they may be as places for the barres to beare it withal. And thou shalt make the barres of sethim wood, and couer them with golde. And thou shalt put it befoze the vayne, that is by the arke of wytnes, befoze the mercyseate that is vpon the wytnes, where I wyll mete the. And Aaron shall burne thereon sweete incense euery moynynge, when he dresseth the lampes, euen then shal he burne it: & lyke wyse at euen, when he setteth vp the lampes he shal burne incense: and thus incensynge shal be perpetually befoze the Lorde, thowout your generacions. Ye shall put no strange incense thereon, burnt sacrifice or meate offering, neither powre any bynke offering thereon.

And Aaron shall reconcyle vpon the hornes of it once in a yere: with the bloude of the spynne offering of reconcylng: euen once in the yere shall he reconcyle it thowout your generacions. It is most holy vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: * If thou takest the summe of the chyldren of Israel after theyr nombre, they shall geue euery man a reconcylng of his soule vnto the Lorde whē thou tellest them, that there be no plague amonge them, when thou tellest them. And thus muche shall euery man geue, and that gorth into the nombre: halfe a sycke, after the sycke * of the sanctuarie: a sycke is twente halfe pence. In halfe sycke shall be the heue offering of the Lorde. All that are nombred from twenty yere old and aboue, shal geue an heue offering vnto the Lorde. Euerche shal not passe, and the poore shal not vnder halfe a sycke. But ye shal geue an heue offering vnto the Lorde, that he maye haue mercie vpon your soules. And thou shalt take the reconcylng money of the chyldren of Israel, and shalt put it vnto the vse of the tabernacle of wytnesse, that it maye be a memoypall vnto the chyldren of Israel befoze the Lorde, that he maye haue mercie vpon your soules. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: * I shalt make a lauer of brasse, and bysfore alio of brasse to washe withal, & shalt put it betwene the tabernacle of wytnes, & the alter, and put water therein. For Aaron & his sons shal wash theyr handes & theyr fete therein: euen when they go into the tabernacle of wytnes, or when they goo vnto the alter to minystrer and to burne the lordes offeringe, they shal washe them selues with water, lest they dye. And it shalbe an ordinaunce vnto them for euer, bothe vnto him and his sede thowout theyr generacions. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses saying: Take vnto the, princypall spyces: of the moste pure myrroure fyue hundred syckes, of sweete cynamon halfe so muche, euen two hundred and fyfthe syckes: of sweete calamus, two hundred & fyfthe, of cassia, fyue hundred, after the holy sycke, and of oyle olyfe an hyen. And thou shalt make of the oyle an holpe oymntment, euen an oymntment compound after the crafter of the apotecary. And thou shalt anoynte the tabernacle of wytnesse therewith, and the arke of wytnesse and the table, and all bys apparell: and the alter of censse, and the alter of burnt sacrifice with all his vessels, and the lauer and his fote. And thou shalt sanctify the, that they may be moste holy: so that no man touche them, but they shal be hallowed. And thou shalt anoynt Aaron and his sonnes, and consecrate them, that they may minystrer vnto me. And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge, thus shal be an holy oymntment oyle vnto me, thowout your generacions. Vpon mans fleshe shal it not be powred: neither shal ye make any other after the makinge of it, for it is holy: and shalbe holpe vnto you, whosoever maketh lyke that, or whosoever putteth any of it vpon a stranger, shal perishe from amonge bys people.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: take vnto the, swete spyces: balme, Onicha, sweete Galbanum, these spyces with pure frankincense, of eache lyke much, & make of them sweete sinelunge incense, after the crafter of the apotecary, myngled together, pure and holy. And beate it to powder and put of it befoze the wytnes in the tabernacle of wytnesse, where I wyll mete the. It shalbe vnto you moste holpe. And se that ye make none after the makinge of that. It shalbe vnto you holy for the Lorde. Whosoever shal make lyke vnto that, to smel therto, shal perishe from amonge bys people.

The xxxi. Chapter.

The callinge of Bezaleel and Aholiab the wotheimen. The Sabbath is commaunded. The tables of stones are geuen Moyses.

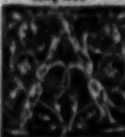

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: beholde, * I haue called by name, Bezaleel, the sonne of Uri, the sonne of Hur of the trybe of Iuda. And I haue fylled hym with the sperte of God, in wysdome, and vnderstandynge in knowledge and in all maner of worke, to fynde out softe feates and to worke in golde, syluer and brasse, and in the crafter to set stones, and to carue in tymber, and to worke in all maner of workmanshipp. And beholde, I haue geuf hym to be bys companion Aholiab the sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, & in the hartes of al that are wise harted, haue I put wysdome to make all that I haue commaunded the, the tabernacle of wytnesse, the Arke of wytnesse, and the mercyseate that is therupon: and all the ornaments of the tabernacle, and the table & his ornaments, and the pure candelsycke with al bys apparell, and the alter of ensence: & the alter of burnt offerings and all bys vessels, and the lauer with his fote. The vestimentes to minystrer in and the holy garmentes for Aaron the Pryest, and the garmentes of bys sonnes to minystrer in, and the annoyntyng oyle: and sweete censse for the sanctuarie, according to all that I haue commaunded the, shal they do.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: * Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: In any

Ex. xxiij. d. In any wyse se that ye kepe my * Sabbathes: for it is a sygne betwene me and you in your generacyons, for to knowe that I the Lord am he that dothe sanctifye you. * Ex. xxiij. d. My Sabbathes therfore: for it is holy vnto you. If ye defileth it, shall be hapne. For whosoever worketh therein, the same soule shall be rote out from amonge his people. Myre dayes shall men worke. And in the seuenth daye is the Sabbath of the holy rest of the Lord. Whosoever doth any worke in the Sabbath daye, shall dye: wherfore let the chyldren of Israel kepe the Sabbath, that they obserue it thowout theyr generacions, that it be an appoyntment for euer. For it is a sygne, betwene me and the chyldren of Israel for euer. * Ex. xxx. d. For in syre dayes the Lord made heauen and earth: and in the seuenth day he rested, and was refreshed. And when the Lord had made an end of comenyng with Moyses vnto the mounte Sinai: he gaue hym two tables of wyrtne: euen tables of stone, wyrtte with the synger of God.

Ex. xxxij. Chapter.

Ex. xxxij. d. The golden calfe. Moyses prayeth for them. He breketh the tables for anger. He charyeth Aaron. The phylanes are layne.

Ex. xxxij. d.  And when the people sawe, that it was longe as Moyses came downe out of the mountayne, they gathered them selues together vnto Aaron, and sayde vnto hym: * Ex. xxxij. d. Alas, make vs goddes to go before vs: for of this Moyses (the felowe that brought vs out of the lande of Egypte) we wote not what is become. And Aaron sayde vnto them: pluche of the golden earpynges which are in the eares of your wyues, your sonnes, and of your daughters: and byng them vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earpynges, which they had in theyr eares: and brought them vnto Aaron. And he receaued them of theyr handes, and fashioned it with a grauer, and made of it a calfe of molten metal. And they sayde: * Ex. xxxij. d. These be thy goddes, O Israel, which brought the out of the lande of Egypte. And when Aaron sawe that, he made an aureole before it. And Aaron cryed, sayinge: to morowe is the holy daye of the Lord. And they rose vp in the moynynge: and offered burnt offerynges, and brought peace offerynges also. And the people sat them downe to eate and dysnye and rose vp agayne to plape.

Ex. xxxij. d. And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: * go, get the downe: thy people whych thou broughtest out of the lande of Egypte, haue marred al, they are turned at once out of the way, which I commaunded them: * for they haue made them a calfe of molten metall, & haue worshypped it, and haue offered therto, sayinge: These be thy goddes, O Israel, which haue brought the out of the lande of Egypte. And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: * I haue sene this people: & beholde it is a styfnecked people, & nowe suffre me, that my wyath maye wate hote agaynst them, and consume them: and I wyll make of the a mygh-tye people. And Moyses besought the Lord his God, and sayde: O Lord, why doesthy wyath wate hote agaynst thy people, which thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte, with great power and with a mygh-tye hande? * Ex. xxxij. d. Wherfore shulde the Egyptians speake and saye: For a mygh-tye god he byng them out, euen for to slep them in the mountayns, and to consume them fro the face of the earth? Turne from thy ferece wyathe: and turne from thy euell (deupsed) agaynst the people. Remembze Abraham, Isaac, and Israel thy seruantes to whome thou swarest by thine owne selfe: and saydest vnto them, * I wyll multiplye your sede, as the starrs of heauen, and al this lande, that I haue spoken of, wyll I geue vnto your sede, and they shal inheret it for euer. And the Lord refrayned hym selfe from the euell: & whiche he sayde he wolde do vnto his people. And Moyses turned his backe and went downe from the hyl, & the two tables of wyrtne were in his hande: & the same tables were wyrtten on both the leaues, & were the worke of God, and the wyrtynge was the wyrtynge of God grauen in the tables. And when Josua hearde the noyle of the people, as they howled, he sayde vnto Moyses: there is a noyle of warre in the host. And he answered: it is not the cry of them that haue the mastery, nor of them that haue the wyse: but I do heare the noyle of them that synge.

Ex. xxxij. d. And it soytuned, as he came nye vnto the hoste, he sawe the calfe and the dauncyng: & Moyses wyath wared hote, & he caste the tables out of his handes, & brake them beneath the hyl. * Ex. xxxij. d. And he toke the calfe whiche they had made, & burned it in the fyre, and stampet it vnto powder, and strowed it in the water, & made the chyldren of Israel dysnye of it. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: what dyd this people vnto, that thou hast brought so great a synne vpon them? And Aaron answered: let not my wyath of my Lord wate ferece, thou knowest the people that they are eue set on myschefe: for they sayd vnto me: make vs gods to go before vs, for we wote not what is become of Moyses the felowe that brought vs out of the lande of Egypte. And I sayde vnto them: let the that haue golde pluche it of, and byngge it me: and I dyd cast it into the fyre: and therof came out this calfe.

Ex. xxxij. d. Moyses therfore saw that the people were naked (and that Aaron had made them naked vnto theyr shame amonge theyr enemyes) and he wente and stode in the gate of the host, and said: If any man pertayne vnto the Lord, lette him come vnto me. And all the sonnes of Levi gathered them selues together, and came vnto hym. And he sayd vnto them. Thus sayth the Lord God of Israel, put euery man his swearde by his syde, and goo in and out, from gate to gate: thowout the hoste, and slep euerye man, his brother and euery man his company, and euery man his neyghbour. And the chyldren of Levi dyd as Moyses had sayde. And there fell of the people the same daye aboute thre thousand men. And Moyses sayd: I pl your handes vnto the Lord this day, euery man vpon his sonne and vpon his brother, and that there may be geuen you a blessinge this daye. And on the morowe it for.

tuned that Moses sayde vnto þe people: ye haue sinned a greete synne. And now I will go vp vnto the Lorde: þe paradiuer I maye purchase an attonement for youre synne. Moses therfore went agayne vnto the Lorde, & sayde: Oh, this people haue sinned a greete synne and haue made them goddes of golde. And now I praye the, either forgive them their synne: or if thou wilt not: wyte me out of thy booke, which thou hast wyrtten. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will putte him out of my booke that hath sinned agaynst me. And now go thou, bynging the people vnto the place whiche I sayd vnto the: be holde, myne angell shal go before the. Reuerthelater in the daye when I visit, I will visit they synne vpon the. And the Lorde plagued the people, because they made the calfe whiche Aaron made.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

The Lorde sendeth an angell before his people. The Lorde becometh to go up with the people. The people launche they synne as also talketh with the Lorde.

Ad the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, departe and go hence: thou and the people, whiche thou hast broughte out of the lande of Egypte, vnto the lande whiche I sweare vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, sayinge: * vnto thy seede wyl I geue it: (and I wyl sende an angell before the and wyl cast out the Canaanites, the Amozites, and the Hethites, the Hivites, the Jebusites) a lande þe floweth with mylke & hony. For I wyl not go amonge you my self: for ye are a stiffnecked people: lest I consume the in the waye. And when the people heard this euell tydinges, they sorowed: and no man put on his best rayment. And the Lord spake vnto Moses: say vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye are a stiffnecked people: I muste come once sodenly vpon you, and make an end of you. Therfore now put thy goodly rayment fro the that I maye wete what to do vnto the. And the chyldren of Israel layde they goodly rayment from them, euen by the mount of horeb.

And Moses toke the tabernacle, and pitched it without the hoste a farrre off from the hoste, & called it the tabernacle of wytnesse. And so it came to passe that euery one which wolde pray vnto the Lorde, went out vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, whiche was without the hoste. And it fortuned, that when Moses went out vnto þe tabernacle, all the people rose vp, and stode euery man at his tent doore: and looked after Moses vntyl he was gone into the tabernacle. And as sone as Moses was entred into the tabernacle, the cloudy pylle descended, & stode at the doore of the tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And all the people sawe the cloudy pylle stand at the tabernacle doore, and they rose vp, and worshypped euery man in his tent doore.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses: * face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende: and he turned agayne into the host. And the chyldre Joshua his seruant the sonne of Nun, departed not out of the tabernacle. And Moses sayd vnto þe Lorde: se, thou sayst vnto me: leade this people furth, and thou hast not shewed me whom thou wylt sende with me. And thou hast sayde more ouer: I knowe the by name, and thou hast also founde grace in my syghte. Nowe therfore if I haue founde fauoure in thy syghte, then shewe me thy waye, that I maye knowe the, and that I maye fynde grace in thy syghte. And consyder also that this naciõ, is thy people. And he sayd: my presence shal go with the, and I wyl geue the reste. He sayde vnto hym: If thy presence go not with me, carpe vs not hence: for howe shall it be knowne here, that I and the people haue founde fauoure in thy syghte, but in that thou goest with vs? If thou go with vs, shal not I and thy people haue preeminence before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth? And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I wyl do this also þe thou hast sayde, for thou hast founde grace in my syghte, and I knowe the by name.

And he sayde, I beseeche the: shewe me thy glory. And he sayde: I wyl make all my good go before the, and I wyl be called in thy name of the Lorde before the: and wyl shewe mercy to whome I wyl shewe mercye, and wyl haue compassion on whome I wyl haue compassion. And he sayd furthermoze: thou mayst not se my face: for there shal no man se me, and lyue. And the Lorde sayde: beholde, there is a place by me, and thou shalt stande vpon a rocke: and whyle my glory goeth furth, I wyl put the in a cleft of the rocke: and wyl put myne hande vpon the whyle I passe by. And I wyl take away myne hande, and thou shalt se my backe partes: but my face shal not be seene.

The xxxiiii. Chapter.

The tables are reuened. The mercy of God. So haue serched they with the Decalyge in tabernacle, and they phalaris at so. At they leade.

Ad the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, * shewe the two tables of stone, lyke vnto the fyrste, and I wyl wyte vpon theym the wordes that were in the fyrste tables whiche thou brahest. And be readye in the moynynge, that thou mayst come vp early vnto the mounte of Sinai: and stande there with me in the top of the mounte. There shal no man come vp with the, neither let anye man be seene thowow out all the mounte, neither lette the shepe nor oxen fede before the hyll. And Moses hewed two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyrste, and rose vp earlye in the moynynge, and went vp vnto the mount of Sinai, as the Lorde had commaunded hym: & toke

And he made fyfte rynges of byasse to couple þe tent togyther that it might be one. And he made a couerynge vpon the tent of rams skynnes red, and yet an other of Carus skynnes aboue that.

Ex. m. c. And he made standynge bozdes (for the tabernacle) of Scedhim wood. The length of a bozde was ten cubytes, the bredth one cubyte, & an halfe: One bozde had twofeet, wherby they were ioyned one to an other. And thus made he for all the bozdes of þe tabernacle: And he made twenty bozdes for the south syde of the habitation, and fourty sockettes of syluer vnder þe. xx bozdes, two sockettes vnder one bozde, for his two feet, and two sockettes vnder an other bozde for his two feet. ^{wher the sockettes of the sydes ende in the corner} And for the other syde of the dwelling which is towarde the north, he made twety bozdes, and they fourty sockettes of syluer two sockettes vnder one bozde, and two sockettes vnder the other. And towarde the west ende of the tabernacle: ^{What is to saye that can be of the tabernacle which extendeth towarde the sea} he made fyve bozdes, and two other bozdes made he in þe corners of the habitation, for eyther syde, and they were ioyned close beneth and aboue wth a clampe and thus they did to both the corners. And there were eyght bozdes and sytene sockettes of syluer vnder euery bozde two sockettes.

D And he made barres of Scedhim wood, fyue for the bozdes of the tabernacle in the one syde: and fyue for the bozdes of the tabernacle in the other syde: and fyue barres for the bozdes of the habitation in the west ende. ^{What is to saye the sea} And he made the myddest barre to shote thozow the bozdes: euen from the one ende to the other, & ouerlaped the bozdes with golde, and made rynges of golde to chynge the barres thozowe, and couered the barres with golde. And he made an hangynge of pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke, euen with pcyures made be it of dyed woike. And made ther vnto iii. pylers of Scedhim wood, and ouerlaped them with golde. They knoppes were also of golde, and he cast for them foure sockettes of syluer. And he made an hangynge for the Tabernacle doore: of pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke of noble woike. And the v. pylers of it with they knoppes, and ouerlaped the knoppes of them & the whopes with golde. They fyue sockettes also were of byasse.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

The ark of testamēt. The mercy seate. The table. The candlestyk. The lyghten. The altare and the incense.

Ex. m. a

Ad Bezaleel made the ark of Scedhim wood, two cubytes & an halfe longe, & a cubyte and an halfe bryde and a cubyte and an halfe hye: and ouerlaped it with fyne golde with in and without, and made a crowne of golde to it rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of golde for the foure corners of it, two rynges for the one syde, and two for the other, & made barres of Scedhim wood, and couered them with golde, and put the barres in the rynges alonge by the syde of the ark, to beare it withall.

And he made the mercy seate ^{What is to saye: the ark and the place} of pure golde: two cubytes & an halfe was the length thereof, and one cubyte and an halfe the bredth: and he made two Cherubyns of thyche golde vpon the two endes of þe mercy seate. One Cherub on the one ende, and an other Cherub on the other ende.

Euen of the mercy seate made he the Cherubyns: namely in the endes thereof. And the Cherubyns spred out they wynges aboue on hye, and couered the mercy seate therewith. And they faces were one to an other: euen to þe mercy seatewarde, were the faces of the Cherubyns. And he made the table of Scedhim wood two cubytes was the length thereof, and a cubyte the bredth, and a cubyte and an halfe the depgth of it. And he ouerlaped it with fyne golde, and made thereto a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and made thereto an whope of an hande bredth round about, & made vpo the whope a crowne of golde rounde about, and cast for it foure rynges of golde, and put the rynges in the four corners that were in the foure feet thereof. And hard by the whope were the rynges, into the whiche the barres were put to beare the table withall.

And he made the barres of Scedhim wood, and couered them with gold to beare the table with all, and made the vessels (for the table) of pure golde: the dysches, spones, hat peces, and pottes to poure withall. And he made the candlestyk of pure gold: euen of one pece made he the candlestyk. For his foot, hye quatre, his cuppes, his knoppes, and his floures, were of one pece. Wyre bryanches pocrabyng oute of the sydes thereof, thre oute of the one syde, and thre out of the other. And in one bryanche thre cuppes made lyke vnto almondes, with knoppes & floures: and in an other bryanche thre cuppes made lyke almondes with knoppes and floures.

And so thozowoute the fyve bryanches that pocraded out of the candlestyk. And vpon the candlestyk selfe were foure cuppes after the fassyon of almondes, with knoppes and floures: vnder euery two bryanches a knoppe. And the knoppes and the bryanches pocraded out of it, and it was all one pece of pure thyche golde. And he made his seven lampes with þe tonges and snofers thereof of pure golde. Euen of an hundred weyghte of pure golde, made he it with all the vessels thereof. And he made the cence auttare of Scedhim wood. The length of it was a cubyte, and the bredth a cubyte, for it was foure square, and two cubytes hye, with doynes pocrabyng out of it. And he couered it with pure gold, both the toppe and the sydes thereof round about, and the doynes of it, and made vnto it a crowne of golde rounde about. And he made two rynges of golde for it, euen vnder the crowne thereof in the two corners of it and in the two sides thereof to put barres in for to beare it withall: & made the barres of Scedhim wood and ouerlaped them with golde. And he made the holy annoyntynge oyle, and the sweete pure incense after the apocaryers craft.

The xxxvii. Chapter.

The altar of burnt offering. The brasen laver. The C summe of that the people offered.

And he made the burnt offering altar of setim wood, five cubites was the length thereof, & five cubites the breadth: and .iii. square and .iii. cubites hie. And he made unto it horns in the four corners of it: & he overlaid it with brass. And he made all the vessels of the altar: the cauldrons, shovels, basins, fleshhooks, & colespans. All these vessels thereof made he of brass. And he made a brasen grebzen of netwoke vnto the altar, round about a lowe benche vnto the foor ends of the grebzen to put barres in. And he made the barres of setim wood, & couered them with brass, & put the barres into the ringes in the foor corners of the altar, to beare it withall: & made the altar holowe with in the boardes. And he made the lauer of brass, & the fote of it also of brass in the sight of them: & he made it at the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And he made the courte on the south syde, and the hangynges of the courte were of whyte twyned sylke, haupnge an hundred cubytes.

The pylers were twenty, and they: brasen lockettes twenty. But the knoppes of the pylers, and they: whopes were of syluer. And on the north syde: the hangynges were an hundred cubytes. They: pylers were twenty, and they: lockettes of brass twenty. But the knoppes and the whopes of the pylers were of syluer.

On the west syde, were hangynges of sylke cubytes, ten pylers and they: ten lockettes. But the knoppes and the whopes of the pylers were of syluer. And towarde the east syde, were hangynges of sylke cubytes: the hangynges of the one syde of the gate, were sylkene cubytes longe, with three pylers, and three lockettes. And of the other syde of the courte gate were hangynges also of sylkene cubytes longe, with three pylers and three lockettes.

At the hangynges of the courte rounde about were of whyte twyned sylke: but the lockettes of the pylers were of brass: and the knoppes, and the whopes of the pylers were of syluer, & coueryng of the heades was of syluer, and all pylers of the courte were whoped aboute with syluer. And the hangyng of the gate of the court was neble woike, of yelow sylke, purple, scarlet and whyte twyned sylke .xx. cubytes longe, and syue in the breadth, ouer agaynst the hangynges of the courte. And they: pylers were foure, and they: foure lockettes of brass: and the knoppes of syluer, and the heades overlaped with syluer, and whoped aboute with syluer, & all the pyennes of the tabernacle and of the courte rounde aboute were of brass. Thys is the sum of the habitation of wytnesse, as it was counted accordyng to the comaundement of Moyses for the offyce of the Leuytes by the hande of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the preast. And Bezaleel & sonne of Ahi the sonne of Ihur of the trybe of Iuda, made all the Lord comaunded Moyses, and with him was Aholiab sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, a cunnyng grauer and a woiker of neble woike in yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. All the golde that was occupied for all the woike of the holy place was the golde of the waucosfyrng, euen .xxx. hundred weyght, and seuen hundred and .xxx. sylcles, accordyng to the scale of the Sanctuarie. And the lamme of syluer that came of the multitude, was syue score hundred weyght, & a thousande seuen hundred and .lxx. sylcles, after the scale of the Sanctuarie.

For every man an halfe weyght, euen halfe a scale after the scale of the Sanctuarie, for all them that wente to be nobyed from .xx. yere olde and aboue, euen for syue hundred thousand, and three thousande and syue hundred and .l. men.

And of the syue score hundred weyght of syluer, were cast the lockettes of the Sanctuarie, & the lockets of the vayne, an hundred lockets of syue score hundred weyght an hundred weyght to every locket. And of the thousande seuen hundred and .lxx. sylcles, he made knoppes to the pylers, and overlaped the heades and whoped the heades. And the brass of the waucosfyrng was .lxx. hundred weyght, and two thousand, & .iii. hundred sylcles. And therewith he made & lockettes to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the brasen aultare and the brasen grebzen for it, withall the vessels of the aultar, and the lockets of the court rounde about, & the lockets for the court gate, and all the pyennes of the habitation, & all the pyennes of the court rounde about.

Chapter. xxxiii.

*The apparel of Aaron and his sonnes. All that the Lord
C* comaunded, was offered.

And of the yelow sylke, purple, and scarlet, they made the vestimetes of ministracion to do seruice in the holy place, & made the holy garments for Aaron, as the Lord comaunded Moyses. And he made the Ephod of gold, yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, & white twyned sylke. And they dyd beate the golde into thynne plates, and cut it into wyers, to woike it in the yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, & in the syue whyte, with bydyng woike. And they made two sydes for it, to close them vp by the two edges. And the bydyng of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe, and after the same woike: of golde yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, and twyned whyte sylke, as the Lord comaunded Moyses.

And they wrought ouer stones closed in onches of golde, and graued as spynettes are garned with the names of the chyldren of Israel, & put them on the shuldres of the Ephod, that they shulde be stones for a remembraunce of the chyldren of Israel, as the Lord comaunded Moyses. And he made the brestlappe of conyng woike and lyke the woike of the Ephod: euen of golde yelow sylke, purple, scarlet and twyned whyte sylke. It was foure square, and they made the brestlappe double, an hande breadth longe, and an hande breadth broad.

And they fylled it with foure rowes of stones. The fyrst rowe, a Sardios, a Topas and toke in his hande the two tables of stone. And the Lord descended in the cloud, and stode with hym there: & he called vpon the name of the Lord. And when the Lord walked before hym, he cryed, Lord: & Lord God, merciful and gracious longe suffering, and abundant in goodness & truth, and keeping mercy in store for thousands: forgetting wickednes, ungodlinesse and synne, and not leauing one innocent, visyting the wickednes of the fathers vpon the chyldre and vpon chylders chyldre, euen vnto the thyrde & fourth generacyon. And Moses bowed hym self to the earth quchly, and worshypped, and sayd: Vnto I haue founde grace in thy syght (O Lord) then let my Lord go wth vs: for it is a stubburne people, and thou shalt haue mercy vpon our wickednes and our synne, & shalt take vs for thyne inheritaunce. And he sayd: beholde, I make an appoyntment before all the people, and I wyl do mercy vnto such as haue not bene done in all the world, neither in all nations. And all the people among which thou arte, shall see the worke of the Lord: for it is a terrible thyng, that I wyl do with the: kepe those thynges that I commaunde the this day. Beholde, I caste out before the, the Amorytes, Cananytes, Hettytes, Pherytyes, Hetytes & Jebusites. Take hede to thy self, that thou make no compacte with inhabitants of the land whither thou goest, lest it because of ruyne among you. But ouerthrow they: alters, and breake their ymages and cut downe they: groues. Thou shalt worshypp no straunge god. For the Lord is called gelous, because he is a gelous God: lest if thou make any agreement with the inhabitants of the land, and they go a whoyring after they: goddesses, and do sacrifice vnto they: gods, they call the, and thou eate of they: sacrifice: & thou take of they: daughters vnto thy sonnes, & they: daughters go a whoyring after they: gods, and make thy sonnes go a whoyring after they: goddesses also.

And he was there with the Lord fourty dayes and fourty nyghtes, and byd neither eate breade or drynke water. And he wrote vpon the tables the wordes of the conuenaunce, euen ten verses. And it fortuned when Moses came down from mount Synai, the two tables of witnesse were in Moses hand, when he came down from the mount. And Moses wyte not the shyne of his face shone in maner of an hoyn whyle he talked with hym. And Aaron and all the chyldren of Israel looked vpon Moses: and beholde, the shyne of his face shone, and they were afraide to come nye hym. And when he had called them. And afterwarde all the chyldren of Israel came nye, and he commaunded them, al that the Lord had sayd vnto hym in mount Synai. And when Moses had made an ende of comenynge with them, he put a couerynge vpon his face. And agayne, when Moses went in before the Lord to speake with hym he toke the couerynge of vntill he came out. And he came out, and spake vnto the chyldre of Israel that which he was commaunded. And the chyldren of Israel sawe the face of Moses, that the shyne of Moses face shone. And Moses put the couerynge vpon his face agayne, vntill he went in to comen with hym.

And all the wyse men that wrought all the holye worke, came euery man from his worke whiche they made, and spake vnto Moyses, sayyng: the people byng to moche, and moze then ynough for the seruyce & worke which the Lozde hath commaunded to be made. And then Moyses gaue a commaundement, and they caused it to be proclaymed thorowout the host, sayyng: se that neither man nor woman prepare any moze worke for the present of the sanctuary: and so the people were forbydden to byng: for if it stuffe they had was sufficient for all the worke, to make it, and to moche. * All the wyse herted men therfore, and they that wrought for the habytacion made ten curtaynes of white twyned sylke, pelowe sylke, purple and scarlet with pectures of byrded worke made by them. The length of one curtayne was .xx. viii. cubytes, and the breadth foure: and the curtaynes were all of one cyste.

The length of a bozde was ten cubytes, the bredth one cubyte, & an halfe: One bozde had two feet, whereby they were ioyned one to an other. And thus made he for all the bozdes of the tabernacle: And he made twenty bozdes for the south syde of the habitation, and fourty sockettes of syluer vnder f. xx bozdes, two sockettes vnder one bozde, for his two feet, and two sockettes vnder an other bozde for his two feet. ^{in the corners} And for the other syde of the dwelling which is toward the north, he made twenty bozdes, and they fourty sockettes of syluer two sockettes vnder one bozde, and two sockettes vnder the other. And toward the west ende of the tabernacle: ^{What is to saye that on be off the tabernacle which eny pte to make the tre} he made fyve bozdes, and two other bozdes made he in f. corners of the habitation, for eyther syde, and they were ioyned close beneth and aboue w a clampe and thus they did to both the corners. E ^{Ex. 37.1}

Ad Bezalel made the ark of Bethim wood, two cubytes & an halfe longe, & a cubite and an halfe hight, and a cubite and an halfe bryde: and overlaped it with fyne golde with in and without, and made a crowne of golde to it rounde about, and cast for it foure rynges of golde for the four corners of it, two rynges for the one syde, and two for the other, & made barres of Bethim wood, and couered them with golde, and put the barres in the rynges alonge by the syde of the arke, to beare it withall.

Euen of the mercy seate made he the Cherubyns: namely in the endes thereof. And the Cherubyns spred out they wynges aboue on hye, and couered the mercy seate therewith. And they faces were one to an other: euen to the mercy seate wards, were the faces of the Cherubyns. * And he made the table of Bethim wood ^{Ex. 37.1} two cubytes was the length thereof, and a cubite the bredth, and a cubite and an halfe the height of it. And he overlaped it with fyne golde, and made thereto a crowne of golde rounde about, and made thereto an whope of an hande bredth round about, & made vpon the whope a crowne of golde rounde about, and cast for it foure rynges of golde, and put the rynges in the four corners that were in the four feet thereof. For his foote, hys shafte, hys cuppes, hys knoppes, and hys floures, were of one peece. ^{Ex. 37.1} Byre bryanches proceeded out of the sydes thereof, thre out of the one syde, and thre out of the other. And in one bryanche thre cuppes made lyke vnto almondes, with knoppes & floures: and in an other bryanche thre cuppes made lyke almondes with knoppes and floures.

And so thowoute the fyve bryanches that proceeded out of the candle stycke. And vpon the candle stycke selfe were foure cuppes after the fassyon of almondes, with knoppes and floures: vnder euery two bryanches a knoppe. And the knoppes and the bryanches proceeded out of it, and it was all one peece of pure thyche golde. And he made his seven lampes with f. conges and knofers thereof of pure golde. Euen of an hundred weyghte of pure golde, made he it with all the vessels thereof. And he made the cence outface of Bethim wood. The length of it was a cubyte, and the bredth a cubyte, for it was square, and two cubytes hight, with hoznes proceeded out of it. And he couered it with pure gold, both the toppe and the sydes thereof round about, and the hoznes of it, and made vnto it a crowne of golde rounde about. And he made two rynges of golde for it, euen vnder the crowne thereof in the two corners of it and in the two sides thereof to put barres in for to beare it withall: & made the barres of Bethim wood and overlaped them with golde. And he made the holy anoyntynge oyle, and the swete pure incense after the apotecarys crafte.

The xxxviii. Chapter.

The

The altar of burnt offerings. The brazen laver. The summe of that the people offered.

And he made the burnt offering altar: of sethim wood, fyue cubites was the length thereof, & fyue cubites the breadth thereof. And he made the laver of braasse in the four corners of it: he placed it out of it & he overlaid it with brasse. And he made all the vessels of the altar: the cauldrons, shovels, basins, fleshhooks, & colespines. All these vessels thereof made he of brasse. And he made a brazen gredgyen of netwoke vnto the altar, round about a lowe beneath vnto the fyve corners of the altar, & cast fyue ringes of brasse for the four endes of the gredgyen to put barres in. And he made the barres of sethim wood, & covered them with brasse, & put the barres into the ringes in the four corners of the altar, to beate it withall: & made the altar holowe with in the boordes. And he made the laver of brasse, & the fote of it also of brasse in the sight of them: byd watch at the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And he made the courte on the south syde, and the hangynges of the courte were of whyte twyned sylke, hangyng an hundred cubytes.

The pylles were twenty, and they: brazen lockettes twenty. But the knoppes of the pylles, and they: whopes were of syluer. And on the north syde: the hangynges were an hundred cubytes. They: pylles were twenty, and they: lockettes of brasse twenty. But the knoppes and the whopes of the pylles were of syluer.

On the west syde, were hangynges of fyfte cubytes, ten pylles and they: ten lockettes. But the knoppes and the whopes of the pylles were of syluer. And towarde the east syde, were hangynges of fyfte cubytes: the hangynges of the one syde of the gate, were fyfene cubytes longe, with the pylles, and the lockettes. And of the other syde of the courte gate were hangynges also of fyfene cubytes longe, with the pylles and the lockettes.

All the hangynges of the courte rounde about were of whyte twyned sylke: but the lockettes of the pylles were of brasse: and the knoppes, and the whopes of the pylles were of syluer, & coueryng of the heades was of syluer, and all pylles of the courte were whoped aboute with syluer. And the hangyng of the gate of the courte was nedle woche, of yelow sylke, purple, scarlet and whyte twyned sylke. xx. cubytes longe, and fyue in the breadth, ouer agaynste the hangynges of the courte. And they: pylles were four, and they: four lockettes of brasse: and the knoppes of syluer, and the heades overlaped with syluer, and whoped aboute with syluer, & all the pyennes of the tabernacle and of the courte rounde aboute were of brasse. This is the sum of the habitation of wytnesse, as it was counted accordyng to the comaundement of Moyses for the offyce of the Leuytes by the hande of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the prest. And Bezalell & sonne of Uri the sonne of Hur of the trybe of Iuda, made all that the Lord comaunded Moyses, and with him was Aholiab sonne of Ihisamach of the trybe of Dan, a cunning grauer and a woche of nedle woche in yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. All the golde that was occupied for all the woche of the holy place was the golde of the waucofferynge, euen. xxx. hundred weyght, and seven hundred and. xxx. sylces, accordyng to the sytle of the Sanctuarie. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude, was fyue scoze hundred weyght, & a thousand seven hundred and. lxxv. sylces, after the sytle of the Sanctuarie.

For every man an halfe weyght, euen halfe a sytle after the sytle of the Sanctuarie, for all them that wente to be nobbed from. xx. yere olde and aboue, euen for fyve hundred thousand, and the thousande and fyue hundred and. l. men.

And of the fyue scoze hundred weyght of syluer, were cast the lockettes of the Sanctuarie, & the lockets of the vayne, an hundred lockets of fyue scoze hundred weyght an hundred weyght to every locket. And of the thousand seven hundred and. lxx. sylces, he made knoppes to the pylles, and overlaped the heades and whoped the. And the brasse of the waucofferynge was. lxx. hundred weyght, and two thousand, & iii. hundred sylces. And therewith he made & lockettes to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the brazen altar and the brazen gredgyen for it, withall the vessels of the altar, and the lockets of the court rounde about, & the lockets for the court gate, and all the pyennes of the habitation, & all the pyennes of the court rounde aboute.

The xxxix. Chapter.

The apparel of Aaron and his sonnes. All that the Lord commaunded, was offered.

And of the yelow sylke, purple, and scarlet, they made the vestimetes of ministracion to do seruice in the holy place, & made the holy garments for Aaron, as the Lord comaunded Moyses. And he made the Ephod of golde, yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, & whyte twyned sylke. And they byd beate the golde into thynne plates, and cut it into wyres, to woche it in the yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, & in the fyne whyte, with bydded woche. And they made two sydes for it, to close them up by the two edges. And the bydding of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe, and after & same woche: of golde yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, and twyned whyte sylke, as the Lord comaunded Moyses.

And they wrought Onix stones closed in on ches of golde, and graued as signettes are grauen with the names of the chyldren of Israel, & put them on the shuldres of the Ephod, that they shulde be stones for a remembraunce of the chyldren of Israel, as the Lord comaunded Moyses. And he made the brestlap of conyng woche and lyke the woche of the Ephod: euen of golde yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, and twyned whyte sylke. It was four square, and they made the brestlapp double, an hande breadth longe, and an hande breadth broade.

And they fylled it with fyue rowes of stones. The first rowe, a Sardios, a Topas and s.i. Smaragdus

And they were cloied in suches of golde in theyr incloiers. And the twelue stones were grauen as signets with the names of the chyldren of Israel: every stone with hys name, accordyng to the twelue trybes. And they made vpon the brestplate two fastenynge cheynes of twerthien woike and pure golde. And they made two hookes of golde, and two gold rynges: and put the two rynges in the two corners of the brestlappye. And they put the two cheynes of golde in the two rynges, in the corners of the brestlappye.

D And the two endes of the two cheynes they fastened in the two hookes, and put them on the shuldres of the Ephod vpon the fore fronte of it. And they made two rynges of golde, and putte them on the two corners of the brestlappye vpon the edge of it, whiche was on the insyde by the Ephod. And they made two golden rynges, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneath on the foyseside of it and ouer agaynst hys selow above vpon the byrdyng of the Ephod, & they strayned the brestlappye by hys rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with a lace of yelow sylke that it myght be vpon the byrdyng of the Ephod, and that the brestlappye shulde not be loosed from of the Ephod: as the Lozde commaunded Moyses. And he made the tynycle vnto the Ephod of women woike, altogether of yelow sylk and there was an hole in the myddeste of the tynycle, as the coler of a partlet, w a bonde rounde aboute the coler, that it shulde not rent.

E And in the tynycle they made hemmes with pomegranates, of yelow sylke, purple scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put them amonge the pomegranates round about vpon the edge of the tynycle: a bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the tynycle to mynister in, as the Lozde commaunded Moyses. And they made cores of fyne whyte of women woike for Aaron and his sonnes, and a mytre of fyne whyte, and goodly banettes of fyne whyte, and lynen breeches of twyned whyte and a gyrdell of twyned whyte, yelow sylke, purple and scarlet: euen of noble woike, as the Lozde commaunded Moyses. And they made the plate for the holpe crowne of fyne golde, & wrote vpon it with grauen woike, the holpnesse of the Lozde: and tyled vnto it a lace of yelow sylke to fasten it an hye vpon the mytre, as the Lozde commaunded Moyses.

F Thus was all the woike of the habitation and of the Tabernacle of wytnesse fynished. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordyng to all that the Lozde had commaunded Moyses: euen so dyd they. And they broughte the habytacion vnto Moyses: the sentr and all hys apparel, buttons, borders, barres, pylers, and lockettes, the couerynge of rammes skynnes redden, and the couerynge of farus skynnes, and the hangynge bayle, the arche of wytnesse and the barres ther of, and the mercey seate: the table, and all the vessels therof, and the Merce bynde: the pure candlestyeke with the lampes therof: euen with the lampes to be purposed, and all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lyght: the golden aulter and the annoyntynge oyle, and the sweet cens, and the hangynge of the Tabernacle dooze, and the brassen aulter with hys greddyn of brasse, hys barres and all hys vessels, the lauer and hys sote: the hangynge of the courte with hys pylers and lockettes: the hangynge to the courte gate, and hys pynnes and coordes, and all the vessel of the scrupce of the habytacion for the Tabernacle of wytnesse: the mynistrynge vestymentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestymentes for Aaron the bycaste, and hys sonnes raymentes to minister in: accordyng to all that the Lozde commaunded Moyses: euen so the chyldren of Israel made all the woike. And Moyses behelde all the woike, and se: they had done it euen as the Lozde commaunded: euen so had they done, and Moyses blessed them.

The xl. Chapter.

The tabernacle is reared up. The glory of the Lozde appeared in a clowde couerynge the tabernacle.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moyses sayenge. In the fyfthe daye of the fyfthe moneth, shalte thou set vp the habytacion and the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and put therein the arche of wytnesse, & couer the arche with the bayle, and byng in the table, and apparell it accordyng to the order therof. And thou shalte bynge in the candlestyeke, and lyght the lampes, and set the cense aulter of golde before the Arche of wytnesse, and put the hangynge at the doze of the habytacion.

And sette the burnt offeringe aulter before the dooze of the habytacion and Tabernacle of wytnesse, and sette the lauer betwene the Tabernacle of wytnesse and the aulter, and put water therein, and make the courte rounde aboute, and hange vpon the hangynge at the courte gate. * And thou shalte take the annoyntynge oyle, and annoynte the habytacion, and all that is therein, and halo we it with all the vessels therof, that it maye be holpe. And thou shalte annoynte the aulter of the burnt offeringe and all hys vessels, and sanctifye the aulter, that it maye be an aulter most holpe.

And thou shalte annoynte also the lauer and hys sote, and sanctifye it. And thou shalte bynge Aaron and hys sonnes vnto the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and washe them with water. And thou shalte put vpon Aaron the holy vestymentes, and annoynte hym, and sanctifye hym that he maye minister vnto me. And thou shalte bynge hys sonnes, and clothe them with garments, and annoynte them as thou biddest annoynte theyr father, that they may minister vnto me. For theyr annoyntynge shall be an encreasynge of thyne house vnto them thowow out theyr generations. * And Moyses dyd accordyng to all that the Lozde commaunded him: euen so did he. Thus was the Tabernacle reared vp by the fyfte daye in the fyfte moneth in ſeconde yere. And Moſes reared vp the tabernacle and faſt-ned by ſockets, and ſet vp the boordes therof, and put in the barres of it and reared vp his pyl-lers, and ſpade abode the tent ouer the habita-cyon, and put the couerynge of the tente on hye aboue it: as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

And he toke the teſtymonye, and put it in the Arke, and ſette the barres to the Arke, and put the interſtate on hye vpon the Arke, & brought the arke into the habitation, and hanged by the vayle, and couered the Arke of wytnelle, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

And put the table in the tabernacle of wytnelle in the ſouthe ſyde of the habitation, (but wythout the vayle) and ſette the breade in order before the Lorde, euen as the Lorde hadde commaunded Moſes. And he put the candleſtyche in the Tabernacle of wytnelle ouer agaynſt the table towarde the ſouth ſyde of the habitation, and ſette vpon the lampes before the Lorde: as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

And he put the golden aultar in the Tabernacle of wytnelle before the vayle, and byente ſweete cenſe thereon, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes. And he hanged by the hangynge at the doore of the habitation, and ſette the burnt offerynge aultar by the entrynge in of the habitation of the Tabernacle of wytnelle, and offered burnt offerynges and meate offerynges thereon, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

170. 377. c. * And he ſette the lauer betwene the Tabernacle of wytnelle and the aultar, and powred water therein to walche wyth all. And Moſes, Aaron and his ſonnes, waſhed theyr handes and theyr feet thereat: when they went into the Tabernacle of wytnelle, and when they wente to the aultar: they waſhed them ſelues, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes. And he reared vp the court rounde about the habitation and the aultar, and ſette vpon a hangynge at the court gate: and ſo Moſes finiſhed the worke.

171. 377. c. * And the cloude couered the Tabernacle of wytnelle, and the gloyre of the Lorde fylled the habitation. And Moſes coude not entre into the tabernacle of wytnelle, becauſe the cloude abode thereon, and the gloyre of the Lorde fylled the habitation. (For the cloude had couered all.)

And when the cloude was taken vp from of the habitation, the chyldren of Iſrael toke theyr iourneys thowoe out theyr armyes. And when the cloude was not taken vp, they iourneyed not till it was taken vp: for the cloude of the Lorde was vpon the habitation by daye, and by nyghte:
in the ſyghte of all the houſe of Iſrael, thowoe out all theyr armyes.

ing: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, & thou ſhalt ſaye vnto them. If a man of you owne voluntary wyll vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnelle before the Lorde. And he ſhall put his hande vpon the head of the byent ſacrifice and it ſhall be accepted for hym, to be his attonement.

And he ſhall lye the caſe of ſynne before the head and the fatte vpon the wood that is on the fyre in the aultar. But the inwardes and the legges thereof he ſhall waſh in water, and the preſt a burnt ſacrifice for a ſweete odour vnto the Lorde.

And if his ſacrifice be of the flockes (namely of the thepe or goates) let hym byng a male wythout blemiſh for a burnt offering. And let him lye it on the north ſyde of the aultar before the Lorde. And the preſtes Aarons ſonnes ſhall ſpynhle the blond round about vpon the aultar.
And it ſhall be cut in peces: euen wyth his brade wood that lyeth vpon the fyre on the aultar. But he ſhall waſh the inwardes, and the legges with water: and the preſt ſhall byng altogether and burne it vpon the aultar for a burnt offeringe of a ſweete ſauour vnto the Lorde. If the burnt offerynge for the ſacrifice of the Lorde be of the fowles, he ſhall byng his ſacrifice of the turtill dowes or of the ponge pygeons. And the preſt ſhall byng it vnto the aultar, and wyng the neche a lunder of it, and burne it on the aultar.

But the bloude thereof ſhall runne oute vpon by the fyde of the altar. And he shall plucke away his crosse with his fingers, and cast them besyde the altar of the east part in the place of ashes. And he shall breake the wynges of it, but plucke them not a sondre. And the breast shall burne it vpon the altar, euen vpon the wood that is vpon the fyre, that it maye be a burnt sacrifice for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

The ii. Chapter.

The order of meate offeringes.

The soule that wyl offer a meate offering vnto the Lorde, the same offering shalbe of fine flour, and he shal pour oyle vpon it, and put frankincense thereon, and shal bynge it vnto Aaron & his sonnes the prestes. And he shal take therout hys handfull of the flour, and of the oyle wth all the frankincense, & the priest shal burne it for a memoiall of hym vpon the altar: to be an offering for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And the remnant of the meate offering shalbe Aaron & his sonnes, a thing most holy of the sacrifices of the Lorde. If thou byng also a meate offering that is in the oven, lette it be a sweete cake of fyne flour myngled wth oyle, or an unleuened wafer anointed wth oyle. If thy meate offering be baken in the fryenge pan, it shalbe of sweete flour mingled wth oyle. And if thalt mince it smal, & powre oyle thereon, that it may be a meate offering. And if thy meate offering be a thinge dyed vpon the greddyn, let it be of flour myngled wth oyle. And thou shalt byng the meate offering (that is made of these thinges) vnto the Lorde, & thalt deliuer it vnto the priest that he may offer it vpon the altar, and the priest shal take of the meate offering a memoiall, and shal burne it vpon the altar that it maye be a burnt offering for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that whiche is left of the meate offering shalbe Aaron and hys sonnes. It is a thinge moost holy of the offeringes of the Lorde. All the meate offeringes whiche ye shal byng vnto the Lorde, shalbe made wthout leuen. For ye shall neyther burne leuen nor hony in any offering of the Lorde.

As touching standing ye shall byng the fyrst-lynges of them vnto the Lorde: but they shal not come vpon the altar for a sweete sauoure. * All the meate offeringes also that shal seasond wth salte: neyther shalte thou suffer the salte of the covenant of thy god to be lacking from thy meate offering: but vpon all thyne offeringes shalt bynge salte. And if thou offer a meate offering of thy fyrryde frutes vnto the Lorde, shalt offer for thy meate offering of thy fyrryde frutes eares of corne dized by the fyre, and corne beaten as meale. And thou shalt put oyle vpon it, and lase frankincense thereon, that it may be a meate offering. And the priest shal burne parte of the beated corne and parte of that oyle wth all the frankincense, for a remembrance. And it shalbe a sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

The iii. Chapter.

The order of peace offeringes.

And if his sacrifice be a peace offering, he take it away frō among the dromes (whether it be male or female) he shal byng such as is without blemish, before the Lorde: and put his hand vpon the head of his offering, & hyl it at the doze of the tabernacle of witness. And Aaron shal take of the fat, & shall offer it as the peace offering to be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: euen the fat, & is about the inwardes: & all the fat that is about the inwardes, & the two kidneys, & the fat that is on them, & vpon the lynes, & the abundance that is on the liuer (that he take away wth the kidneys). And Aaron shal burne them on the altar vpon the burnt sacrifice which is vpon the wood, & is on the fire to be a burnt sacrifice for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde. If he byng a peace offering vnto the Lorde from the flocke: let him offer male or female: but without blemish. And if he offer a shepe for his sacrifice, he shal byng it before the Lorde, & put his hand vpon his offeringes head, & hyl it before the doze of the tabernacle of witness, & Aaron shal take of the fat, & shall burne it vpon the altar. And of the peace offering, let him byng a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: the fat thereof, and the rumpe also together, which they shal take of, harde by the backe bone: & the fat that couereth the inwardes, & all the fat that is vpon the inwardes and the two kidneys, & the fat that is vpon them, & vpon the lynes, and the abundance that is vpon the liuer: shall he take away to the kidneys. And the priest shal burne them vpon the altar, to be the foode of a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. If his offering be a goat, he shal byng it before the Lorde, and put his hand vpon the head of it, & hyl it before the tabernacle of the covenant, and the son of Aaron shal sprinkle the blood thereof vpon the altar round about. And he shal byng thereof his offering euen a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: the fat that couereth the inwardes, and all the fat that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneys, & the fat that is vpon them, and vpon the lynes, and the abundance vpon the liuer: shall he take away to the kidneys. And the priest shal burne them vpon the altar for a foode of the sacrifice, & all the fat may be a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde. Let it be a perpetual statute for your generacions, that without your dwellings, ye eat neither fat nor bloude.

The offering made for synners bene of ignozance

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: If a soule syn thowtow ignozance, and hath done any of those thinges which the Lorde hath forbidden in his commandmentes to be done. And if the priest that is anointed do synne (accor dyng to the syn of the people) let hym byng for hys syn which he hath synned a ponge ore without blemish vnto the Lorde for a syn offering. And he shal byng the ponge ore vnto the doze of the tabernacle of witness before the Lorde, and shal put put his hande vpon the ponge ore heed, and hyl the ponge ore before the Lozde. And the pzeiste that is annoynted * Shall take of the ponge ore blood, and byngg it into the tabernacle of wy-nellesse, and the pzeist shall byppe his synger in the bloode, and spynke therof seuen tymes before the Lozde, euen before the hangyng of the holy place. And he shall put some of the blood before the Lozde, vpon the hoynes of the altar of sweete cens which is in the tabernacle of wyne-nellesse, and shall poure all the bloode of the ponge ore vnto the bottome of the aultare of burnt offeringe, whiche is at the doze of the tabernacle of wy-nellesse. And he shall take away all the fatte of the ore that is for synne, the fatte that couereth the inwardes, and all the fatte that is about the inwardes, and the two kydneyes, and the fat that is vpon them, and vpon the lynes, and the abdaunce of the spuer shall he take away with the kydneyes: as it was taken away in the ore of the peace offeringes, and lette the pzeist burne them vpon the aultare of burnt offeringe. * But the skynne of the ponge ore, and all his flesch, with his heed, and his legges, with his inwardes, & his dungre, shall he beare out, and carpe the ponge ore all together out of the hooste vnto a cleane place, euen where as the ashes are poured out, and burne hym there on wood in the fyre: euen by the place where the ashes are cast out, shall he be bznt. If the whole congregacon of Israel synne thorow ignorance, and the thyng be byd from theyr eyes, so that they haue com-mytted any of those thynges whiche the Lozde hath byd to be done in his commaunde-mentes, and haue offended. When the synne which they haue synned in, is knowen, the con-gregacon shall byngge a ponge ore for the syn, and byngg hym before the tabernacle of wy-nellesse, and the elders of the multitude shall put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ponge ore before the Lozde. And the ponge ore shall be slayn before the Lozde. And the pzeist that is anoynted, shall byngge of his blood into the tabernacle of wyne-nellesse, and the pzeist shall byppe his syn-ger in the blood, and spynke it seuen tymes before the Lozde, euen before the vayle.

And shall put the bloode vpon the hoynes of the aultare, whiche is before the Lozde in the tabernacle of wyne-nellesse, and shall poure al the bloode vnto the bottome of the aultare of burnt offeringe whiche is before the doze of the tabernacle of wyne-nellesse, and shall take all his fatte from hym, and burne it vpon the aultare, and shall do wth this ponge ore, as he dyd with the ponge ore for synne: euen so shall he do wth this. And the pzeist shall make an attonement for them, and it shall be forgyuen them. And he shall carpe this ponge ore without the host: and burne him as he burned the fyrt. For it is an oblation for synne of the congregacon.

When a lozde synneth, and commytteth tho-rowe pgnorance any of these thynges (whiche the Lozde his God hath byd to be done in his commaundementes) and hath offended.
 And if this synne be shewed vnto hym whiche

he hath done, he shall byngge his offeringe: euen an he goote wythoute blemyshe, and lape his hande vpon the heed of the he goote, and hyl it in the place where the burnt offeringe is vnto be kylled before the Lozde. For it is a synne of offeringe. And let the pzeist take of the bloode of the offeringe with his synger, and put it vpon the hoynes of the burnt offeringe aultare, and poure his blood vnto the bottome of the burnt offeringe aultare, and burne all his fatte vpon the aultare, as the fatte of the peace offeringes.
 And the pzeist shall make an attonement for hym, as concernyng his synne, and it shall be forgyuen him. If one of the comen people of the lande, syn thorow ignorance: and comyt any of the thynges whiche the Lozde hath byd in his commaundementes to be done & so hath trespassed. If this synne which he hath synned, comto his knowledge, he shall byngge for his offeringe, a he goot from among the flockes, without blemyshe for his synne whiche he hath synned, and lape his hande vpon the heed of the offeringe, and sle it in the place of burnt offeringe.
 And the pzeist shall take of the bloode thereof with his synger, and putte it vpon the hoynes of the burnt offeringe aultare, and poure al the blood vnto the bottome of the aultare, and shall take away al his fatte, as the fatte of the peace offeringes is taken away. And the pzeist shall burne it vpon the aultare, that it may be a swete sauoure vnto the Lozde, and the pzeist shall make an attonement for hym, and it shall be forgyuen hym. And if he byngge a shepe for a synne offeringe, he shall byngge a female wythout blemyshe, and lape his hande vpon the heed of the offeringe, and sle it for a synne offeringe in the place where they hyl the burnt offeringe.

And the pzeist shall take of the bloode of the offeringe with his synger, and put it vpon
 the hoynes of the burnt offeringe aultare, and shall poure the bloode thereof vnto the botome of the aultare. And he shall take away all the fatte thereof, as the fatte of the shepe of the peace offeringe is wonte to be taken away. And the pzeist shall burne it vpon the aultare: that it may be the Lozdes burnt sacrifice, and the pzeist shall make an attonement for his synne, that he hath commytted, and it shall be forgyuen hym.

¶ The v. Chapter

Of othes. The cleansing of hym that toucheth vncleane thynges. The purgation of an othe, and of synne done by pgnorance.

A soule synne, and heare the voyce of sweryng, and is a wytnes: whether he hath sene or knowen of it, if he haue not vttered it, he shall beare his synne. Either if a soule touche any vncleane thyng: whether it be a carcon of an vncleane beaste, or of vncleane cattel, or vncleane woyme, and is not ware of it: beholde, he is vncleane, and hath offended. Either if he touch any vncleane of man (whatsoeuer vncleness it be that a ma is wont to be defyled with-all) and is not ware of it, and cometh to the knowledge of it, he hath trespassed. Either if a soule sweare, and pronounceth with his lippes was to do euill, or to do good (whatsoever it be that a man vseth to pronounce with an oth) and the thyng be hys from hym, and cometh to the knowledge of it, and hath offended in one of these. And it shall come to passe, that when he hath synned in one of these thynges, he shall confesse that he hath synned in that thyng. Therfore shall he byngne his trespass offering vnto the Lorde, for his synne whiche he hath synned. A female from the flocke, a lambe or a she goote for a synneoffering. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym, concerning his synne.

Leuit. xii. 8

* And if he be not able to byngne such a shepe, he shall byngne for his trespass which he hath synned, two turtle doves, or two yonge pygeons vnto the Lorde, one for a synneoffering, and the other for a burnt offering. And he shall byngne them vnto the priest, whiche shall offer the synne offering first, and wyngne the necke afundze of it, but pluche it not cleane of. And he shall spryde of the blood of the synneoffering vpon the syde of the altar: and the rest of the blood he shall pour by the bottome of the altar: for it is a synneoffering.

C And he shall offer the seconde for a burnt offering as the maner is: and so shall the priest make an attonement for hym (for the syn which he hath synned) & it shall be forgiven hym. And if he be not able to byngne two turtle doves, or two yonge pygeons, then he that hath synned, shall byngne for his offering: the tenth parte of an Ephah of fyne flour for a synneoffering, but put none oyle thereto, neyther put any frankensence thereon, for it is a synneoffering. And let the priest offer it, and the priest shall take his handfull of it, for a remembrance thereof, and burne it vpon the altare, to be a sacrifice for the Lorde, it is a synneoffering. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym as touching his syn that he hath synned in one of these, & it shall be forgiven. And the remnant shall be the priestes, as a meate offering.

Exo. xiii. 1

D And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: If a soule trespass and syn thowowe ignorance in thynges that are consecrated vnto the Lorde, let hym byngne for his trespass vnto the Lorde a ram without blempe out of the flockes, valued in money at two shekels after the shekel of sanctuary, that it may be for a trespass offering. And he shall make amends for the harme that he hath done in the holy thyng, and let hym put the first parte more thereto, and gyue it vnto the priest. And the priest shall make an attonement for him with the ramme that is for the trespass, and it shall be forgiven hym.

If a soule synne and comyt any of these thynges which are forbidden to be done by the commaundmentes of the Lorde, and wythe it not, and hath offended, he shall beare his synne and shall byngne a ram without blempe out of the flocke that is esteemed to be worth a trespass offering, vnto the priest. And the priest shall make an attonement for him concerning his ignorance wherein he erred and was not ware, & it shall be forgiven hym. This is the trespass offering which he offered vnto the Lorde for his trespass.

The vi. Chapter.

The offering for synne which are beare willingly. The lawe of the burnt offerings. The offering of Aaron, and his sonnes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: If a soule synne and trespass agaynst the Lorde, and denye vnto his neyghbour & which was taken him to kepe, or that was put into his handes, or doth violent robbery, or wrong vnto his neyghbour, or if he haue found that which was lost, and denye it, and sweareth falsely, vpon whatsoeuer thyng it be that a man doth, and synneth therein: If he haue so synned or trespassed, he shall restore agayne that he toke violently away, or the wronge whiche he doth, or if whiche was deliuered hym to kepe, or the lost thyng whiche he founde, and all that about which he hath sworn falsely, he shall restore it agayne in the whole summe, & shall adde the first parte more thereto, and gyue it vnto him, to whome it pertaineth, the same daye that he offereth for his trespass, and let hym byngne for his trespass vnto the Lorde a ram without blempe out of the flocke (that is esteemed worth a trespass offering) vnto the priest.

And the priest shall make an attonement for hym, before the Lorde, and it shall be forgiven hym, whatsoeuer thyng it be that he hath done, and trespassed therein. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, sayinge: this is the lawe of the burnt offering. * The burnt offering shall be vpon the part of the altar all nyght vnto the morning, and the fyre shall be hyndled on the altar. And the priest shall put on his linnen albe, and his linnen breeches vpon his fleshe, and take awaye the ashes vpon the which the fyre consumed the burnt sacrifice in the altar, and he shall put them besyde the altare, and put of his raiment, and put on other, and carpe the ashes out without the doore vnto a cleane place. The fyre vpon the altare shall burne continually, and neuer be put oute. But the priest shall lay wood on it euery day in the morning, and put the burnt sacrifice vpon it, and he shall burne thereon the fatte of the peace offerings. The fyre shall neuer burne vpon the altar, and neuer go out. * This is the lawe of the meate offering: whiche Aarons sonnes shall byngne before the Lorde, euen before the altar, and one of them shall take his handfull of flour of the meate offering and of the oyle, and all the frankensence which is vpon the meate offering and shall burne it vnto a remembrance vpon the altar for a sweete sauoure, euen a memoriall of it vnto the Lorde.

And of the rest thereof, shall Aaron and his sonnes eate: vnto the court shall it be eaten in the holy place: euen in the court of the tabernacle of testimony they shall eate it. It shall not be baken with leuen. I haue gyuen it vnto them for the portion of my sacrifices. It is most holy as is the synneoffering and trespass offering.

All the males amonge the children of Aaron shall eat of it: It shall be a statute for euer in your generations concerning the sacrifice of β Lord: let every one that toucheth it, be holpe. And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: this is the offering of Aaron, and of his sones, which they shall offer vnto the Lord in the day when he is anoynted: the tenth parte of an Epha of flour, for a meateoffering perpetual: halfe in β morninge, and halfe at nyght: In the frying pan it shall be made with oyle. And when it is freyd, thou shalt bypne it in, and the baken offeringe of thy oblacon mynsed small, shall thou offer for a swete sauour vnto the Lord. And the priest of his sones that is anoynted in his stede, shall offer it: It is the Lordes butte for euer, it shall be burnt altogether.

D For euer meateoffering that is made for β priest, shall be burnt altogether, and shall not be eat. And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto Aaron, and vnto his sones, and saye: This is the lawe of the synnoffering. In the place where the burnt offering is killed, shall the synnoffering be killed before the Lord, for it is most holy. * The priest that offereth it, shall eat it: In the holy place shall it be eaten: euen in the court of the tabernacle of myneste. No man touche the flesh thereof, saue he that is halowed. And whoso spynketh of the blood thereof vpon any garment, thou shalt wash it in β holy place there as it is spynkled vpon. * But the erthen pot that it is sodden in, shall be broken. And yf it be sodden in a brasen pott, it shall be scoured & rynsed in the water. All the males amonge the priests shall eat thereof, for it is most holy. And no synnoffering: whose blood is brought in to the tabernacle of witness to reconcile with all in the holy place, shall be eaten: but shall be burnt in the fyre.

Of trespassofferings, synnofferings, and peaceofferings: howe far and the blood maye not be eaten.

This is the lawe of trespassofferinge, it is most holye. In the place where they kill the burnt offering, shall they kill the trespassoffering also, and his blood shall be spynkle rounde aboute vpon the altare. All the fatte thereof shall they offer: the rumpe and the fatte thereof that conereth the inwardes, and the two kyndyes, and the fat that is on them and vpon the lynes: and the abundance that is on the liuer shall thou take away with the kyndyes, and the priest shall burne the vpon β altare, to be a burnt sacrifice vnto β Lord: for it is a trespassofferinge. All the males amonge the priests shall eat thereof in the holy place, for it is most holy. As the synnoffering is, so is the trespassofferinge, one lawe strickt for both, and it shall be the priestes that reconcelled therewith. And the priest that offereth any mans burnt offeringe, shall haue the synne of the burnt offeringe whiche he hath offered. And all the meateoffering that is baken in the oven and that is dyed vpon the grebpern, and in the frying pan, shall be the priestes that offereth it. And euer meateofferinge that is myngled with oyle, and that is dyed, shall pertayne vnto all the sones of Aaron, and one shall haue as moche as an other. This is the lawe of the peaceoffering, when it is offered vnto the Lord. Yf he offer it to gyue thankes, he shall bypne vnto his shankoffring, swete cakes mingled with oyle, and swete wafers anoynted with oyle, & cakes myngled with oyle of fyne flour freyd. He shall bypne his offeringe vpon cakes of leuened bread, for his peaceofferings to gyue thankes, and of all the sacrifice he shall offer one for an heauy offeringe vnto the Lord, and it shall be the priestes that spynkled the blood of the peaceofferinge. And the flesh of the thankoffering in his peaceofferinges, shall be eaten the same day that it is offered. And let hym laye vpon nothing of it vntill the morowe. But yf he offer a sacrifice by reason of a vow, or of his owne free will, it shall be eaten the same daye that he offereth his sacrifice.

And yf ought remayne vntill the morowe, it may be eaten: but as moche of the offered as he as remayneth vnto β thyrde daye, shall be burnt with fyre. And yf any of the flesh of his peaceofferings be eaten in the thyrde day, then shall he that offereth it obtayne no sauour, neyther shall it be reckened vnto hym, but shall be an abominacion. Therefore the soule that eateth of it shall beare his synne. And the flesh that toucheth any vncleane thyng, shall not be eaten, but burne with fyre: and all that be cleane shall eat the flesh. But yf any soule eat of the flesh of the peaceoffering that pertayneth vnto the Lord, hauyng his vncleannesse vpon hym, the same soule shall perishe from amonge his people. Whoeuer the soule that doeth touche any vncleane thyng, that is of the vncleannesse of man, or of any vncleane beast: or any abominacion that is vncleane, and then eat of the flesh of the peaceofferinge which pertayneth vnto the Lord, that soule shall perishe from his people. And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye. * Ye shall eat no manner fatte of orne, of shepe, and of gootes: neuer the later the fatte of the beast that dyeth alone, and the fatte of that whiche is tome with wilde beastes, shall be occupied in anye maner of vse, but ye shall in no wyse eat of it. For whosoever eateth the fatte of the beast, of whiche men vse to bypne an offering vnto the Lord, that soule that eateth it, shall perishe from his people. Whoeuer, ye shall eat no manner of bloode, whether it be of soule, or of beast. Whatsoeuer soule it be that eateth any maner of blood, the same soule shall perishe from his people. And the Lord talked with Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: he that bypnerh his peaceofferinge vnto the Lord, let hym bypne his gyfte vnto the Lord of his peaceoffering: let his owne handes bypne the offeringes of β Lord: euen the fat with the best shall be bypne: that the best may be waured for a wauroffering before the Lord.

And

And the priest shall burne the fat vpon the altar, and the best shall be Aarons and his sones.

And the ryght shulder shall ye gyue vnto the priest, for an heuerofferinge, of your peaceofferings. The same that offereth the blood of the peace offerings and the fat, amonge the sones of Aaron, shall haue the ryght shulder for his parte, for the wauebreast and the beneshulder haue I taken of the chyldren of Israel, euen of theyr peaceofferings, and haue gyuen it vnto Aaron and vnto his sones: by a statute for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

This is the anoyntinge of Aaron, and the anoyntinge of his sones, in the sacrifices of the Lord, in the day when he offered them to be priests vnto the Lord. And these be the sacrifices which the Lord commaunded to be gyuent them, (in the day of theyr anoynting) of the chyldren of Israel, by a statute for euer in theyr generations. This is the lawe of the burnt offeringe and of the meate offeringe, and of the sacrifice for synne and trespass, for consecration and for the peace offeringe, whiche the Lord commaunded Moses in the mounte of Synay, when he commaunded the chyldren of Israel to offer their sacrifices vnto the Lord in the wilderness of Synay.

The viii. Chapter.

The anoyntinge of Aaron, and his sones.

As the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: take Aaron and his sones with hym, & the vestures and the anoyntinge oyle, and a ponge ore for synne, and two rammes, & a bakket with sweete byed: and gather thou all the congregation together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses did as the Lord commaunded hym, and the people were gathered together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses sayde vnto the congregation: this is the thyng which the Lord commaunded to be done. And Moses brought Aaron and his sones, and washed them with water, and put vpon him the albe, and girded him with a gyrdle, and putte vpon hym the tunicle, and putte vpon hym the Ephod theron, whiche he girded wth the breastede gyrdell that was in the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therewith. And he put the brestlap theron, and put in the brestlappe Eim and Thumim. And he put the myter vpon his heed, and put vpon the myter, (euen vpon the forefront of his face) the golden plate of the holp crowne, as the Lord commaunded Moses. And Moses toke the anoyntinge oyle, and anoynted the tabernacle, and all that was therein, and sanctified them, and spynkled therof vpon the altar seue tymes, and anoynted the altar and all his vessels, the lauer and his sote, to sanctifye them. And he poured of the anoynting oyle vpon Aarons heed, and anoynted hym, to sanctifye hym. And Moses brought Aarons sones, and put albes vpon them, and girded them with gyrdels, and put bonettes vpon theyr heedes: as the Lord commaunded Moses. And he brought a ponge ore for synne. And Aaron and his sones putte theyr handes vpon the heed of a ponge ore that was for syn. And Moses slewe hym, and toke of the bloode, whiche he put vpon the hornes of the altar rounde aboute with his fynger, and purifyed it, and poured the blood vnto the bottom of the altar, and sanctified it, and reconcyled it. And he toke all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the abundance of the lyuer and the two kidnepes, and theyr fat, and Moses burned it vpon the altar. But the ponge ore and his hyde, his flesshe and his dunge, he burnt with fyre without the hoost as the Lord commaunded Moses. And he brought the ram for the burnt offeringe, and Aaron and his sones put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ram, which Moses kyllid, and spynkled the bloode vpon the altar rounde aboute, and Moses cut the ram in peces, and burnt the heed, the peces, & the fat, and washed the inwardes and the legges in water, and Moses burnt the ram euerye whyle vpon the altar, for a burnt sacrifice that it myght be a swete sauour, and an offering vnto the Lord, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And he brought the other ram, namelye the ramme of consecration, and Aaron and his sones put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ram: which Moses slewe, and toke of the bloode of it, and put it vpon the top of Aarons ryght eare, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the grete toe of his ryght fote. And Moses brought Aarons sones, and put of the bloode on the toppe of the ryght eare of them, and vpon the thumbes of theyr ryght handes, and vpon the grete toes of theyr ryght fete, and Moses spynkled blood vpon the altar rounde about.

And he toke the fatte and the rumpe, and all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the abundance of the lyuer, and the two kidnepes with theyr fat, and the ryght shulder. And oute of the bakket of sweete byed that was before the Lord, he toke one swete cake of oyled byed, & one waser, and put them on the fat, and vpon the right shulder: and put all together vpon Aarons handes, and vpon his sones handes, and waied it a waue offeringe before the Lord. And Moses toke them from of the handes, and burnt them vpon the altar, euen vpon the burnt offeringe altar: for it was the sacrifice of consecration, for a swete sauour and sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moses toke the breest and waied it for a waue offeringe before the Lord, for it was of the ram of the consecracyn, and it was Moses parte, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And Moses toke of the anoyntinge oyle, and of the blood whiche was vpon the altar, and spynkled it vpon Aaron, and vpon his vestmentes, vpon his sones, and on his sones vestmentes with hym, and sanctified Aarons vestures, and his sones, and his sones vestures with hym. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron and his sones: hople the flesshe in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and there eate it wth the byed that is in the bakket of consecracyn, as I commaunded, sayinge: Aaron and his sones shall shall eat it: and that whiche remaineth of the breade, shall ye burne with fyre. And ye shall not departe from the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse seuen dayes, vntill the dayes of your consecration be at an ende. For seuen dayes shall he fyll your hande as he dyd this daye: euen so the Lozde hath commaunded to doo, to reconyle you withall. Therefore shall ye abyde in the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse daye and nyght seuen dayes longe: and kepe the watche of the Lozde, and ye shall not dye: for so I am commaunded. And so Aaron & his sons dyd all thynges which the Lozde commaunded by the hande of Moyses.

The ix. Chapter.

The fynde offerynges of Aaron. Aaron blessed the people the gloze of the Lozde is shewed.

In it is foztuned that in the epyght day Moyses called Aaron and hys sonnes, and the elders of Israel: and sayde vnto Aaron: take the a calfe, a yong one out of the byone, for synne and a ram for a burnt offeryng: bothe without blemyshe, and byryng them before the Lozde. And vnto the chyldzen of Israel thou shalt speake, sayinge: take ye an he goate for syn, & a calf and a lambe both two of a yere old, without blemyshe for a burnt sacrifice, & an ore and a ram for peace offerynges, to offer before the Lozde, & a meate offeryng myngled with oyle: for to day the Lozde wyll appere vnto you.

2 And they brought that (whych Moyses commaunded) before the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the congregacyon came and stode before the Lozde. And Moyses sayde: thys is the thyng, whiche the Lozde commaunded that ye shoulde do: and the gloze of the Lozde shall appere vnto you. * And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: go vnto the aultar and offer thy sacrifice for synne, and thy burnt offeryng, and make an attoument for the and for the people: & thou shalt offer the offeryng of the people: to reconyle them, as the Lozde commaunded.

Aaron therfore wente vnto the aultare, and slewe the calfe which he had for synne. And the sonne of Aaron brought the blood vnto hym, and he dypte hys synger in the blood, and put it vpon the hornes of the aultar, & powred the blood vnto the borome of the aultar. But the fat and the two kydneys and the abundaunce of the lyuer of the synne offeryng, he burnt vpon the aultar as the Lozde commaunded Moyses: The fleshe and the hyde he burnt with fyre wythout the hoste. And he slewe the burnt offeryng, * & Aaron's sons brought vnto hym the blood, whiche he spynkled rounde aboute vpon the aultare.

And they brought the burnt offeryng vnto hym with the peeces therof, and the head: and he burnt it vpon the aultar, and dyde wath the inwardes and the legs, & burnt them vpon the burnt offeryng on the aultar. And then he brought the peoples offeryng takyng the goate that the people had for the sacrifice of synne, & slewe it and offered it for synne, as he dyd the fyrr. And he brought the burnt offeryng, & offered it as the manner was, * and brought the meate offeryng, and fylled hys hande therof, & burnt it vpon the aultar, besyde the burnt sacrifice of the morning

he slewe also the ore and the ram for peace offeryng, that the people had for them selues, & Aaron's sonnes brought vnto hym the blood, whych he spynkled vpon the aultar rounde about, & they toke the fat of the ore & of the ram, the rumpe, and the fat that couereth the inwardes and the kydneys, and the abundaunce of the lyuer: and they put the fat vpon the byestes, and he burnt the fat vpon the aultare: but the byestes and the ryght shuldres Aaron waied for a waue offeryng before the Lozde, as the Lozde commaunded Moyses. And Aaron lyfte up hys hande ouer the people, and blessed them, & came down from offeryng of the synne offeryng, burnt offerynges and peace offerynges. And Moyses and Aaron went into the tabernacle of wytnesse and came out, and blessed the people, and the gloze of the Lozde appeared vnto all the people.

* And ther came a fyre out fro before the Lozde and consumed vpon the aultar the burnt offeryng and the fat. Whiche when all the people sawe, they gaue thanks, and fell on theyr faces.

The x. Chapter.

Nadab and Abihu are slayne. Israel mourneth for them. The priestes are forbydden wyne.

Ad * Nadab & Abihu, the sonnes of Aaron, toke cyther of the hyccensof, & put fyre therein, & putte cens ther vpon, & offered straige fyre before the Lozde, * which he commaunded the not and there wente a fyre out from the Lozde, and consumed them, and they dyed before the Lozde. Then Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: thys is it that the Lozde spake, sayinge: I wyll be sanctified in them that come nye me, and before al the people I wyll be glorified. And Aaron helde hys peace. And Moyses called Mitsael and Elisaph the sonnes of Oziel the vncle of Aaron, & sayde vnto the, come on, carpe your brethren from the holy place out of the hoste. And they went to the and carped them in theyr albes out of the hoste, as Moyses had sayde. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron and vnto Eleazar and Jehamar his sonnes: vncouer not your heades, neither rent your clothes, lest ye dye, and lest wrath come vpon al the people: But let your brethre shole house of Israel bewepe the burning whiche the Lozde hath kyndled. And go not ye out from the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye: for the anointyng oyle of God is vpon you. And they dyd as Moyses sayde. And the Lozde spake vnto Aaron, ron, sayinge: Thou shalt not drinke wyne and stronge drinke, thou and thy sons that are with thee, whē ye go into the tabernacle of witness, lest ye dye. Let it be a lawe for ever throughout your generacions, and that ye maye put difference betwene holy and unholy betwene cleane and uncleane, and that ye maye teach the chyldre of Israel all the statutes which the Lord hath spoken vnto them by the hande of Moyses. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron and vnto Eleazar and Ithamar his sonnes: Take the meate offeringe that remaineth of the sacrifices of the Lord, & eate it without leuen besyde the altar: for it is most holy: ye shall eate it in the holy place, because it is thy duty & thy sonnes duty of the sacrifices of the Lord: for so I am commaunded. And the wauchest & heue shulder shall ye eate in a cleane place: thou & thy sonnes and thy daughters with thee. For they be thy duty and thy sonnes duty, giuen out of the peace offeringes of the chyldren of Israel. The heue shulder and the wauchest shall they bring in with the sacrifices of fat, to waue it before the Lord, and it shall be thyne & thy sons with thee by a lawe for ever, as the Lord hath commaunded.

And Moyses sought the goat that was offered for synne, and se, it was burnt. And he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar the sons of Aaron, whiche were lefte aloue, sayinge: wherfore haue ye not eaten the synne offeringe in the holy place, seynge it is most holy: and God hath giuen it you, to beare the synne of the congregation, to make agreement for the before the Lord. Beholde, the blood of it was not brought in in the holy place: ye shuld haue eaten in the holy place, as I commaunded. And Aaron sayde vnto Moyses: behold, this day haue they offered the synne offeringe & they burnt offeringe before the Lord, & it is chaunced me after this manner. And if I had eaten the sacrifice to day, shuld it haue bene accepted in the sight of the Lord? And when Moyses heard that, he was contente.

Of beastes whiche be cleane, and whiche be uncleane.

Gen. vii. 1.
Deut. xxi. 1.
Leuit. x. 1.

At the Lord spake vnto Moyses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say: these are the beastes whiche ye shall eate, among all the cattell that are on the earth: what soener parteth the hofe, and deuydeth it into two clawes, and chaueith cud amonge the beastes, that shall ye eate. Heuethelisse, these shall ye not eate, of them that chaue cudde, and deuydeth the hooftes: as is the Camell, which chaueith cud, but he deuydeth not the hofe: therefore is he uncleane vnto you, euen so the coney, whiche chaueith the cud but deuydeth not the hofe, he is uncleane to you. And the hare, though he chaueith the cud, yet because he deuydeth not the hofe, he is therefore uncleane to you. And agayne, the swyne though he deuydeth the hofe into two clawes, yet he chaueith not the cud. he is uncleane to you. Of theyr fleshe shall ye not eate, and theyr carcases shall ye not touche but lette them be uncleane to you.

These shall ye eate of all that are in the waters: what soener hath synnes and shales in the waters, fies and cyuers, that shall ye eate. And all that haue not syns and shales in the ser, and cyuers, of all that moue and lyue in the waters, let them be abhominacyon vnto you: Ye shall not eate of theyr fleshe, but abhorre theyr carcases. Let all that haue no synnes nor shales in the waters, be abhominable vnto you.

These are they, whiche ye shall abhorre amonge the foules, and that oughte not to be eaten, for they are an abhominacyon. The eagle, the goshawk, and the comorant, the vulture, and the hye after his hynde, and all rauens after theyr hynde, the estriche, the nyght crowe, the coockowe, and the owle after his hynde, the falcon, the kosh, the grete owle, the backe, the pelican, the pye: the heron, the Jape after his hynde, the lapwinge and the swallowe. Let all foules that crepe and goo vpon all foure, be an abhominacyon vnto you.

Yet these maye ye eate, of euery crepyng thing that hath wynges and go vpon foure fete: euen those that haue liners aboue vpon their fete to leape withal vpon the earth, euen these of theyr maye eat: the Arbe after his hynde: the She laam after his hynde: the Hargol after his hynde and the Hagab after his hynde. All other foules that moue and haue foure fete, shall be abhominacyon vnto you. In suche ye be uncleane, & who soener toucheth the carcase of them, shall be uncleane vnto the euen: and who soener beareth the carcase of them, shall wash his clothes and be uncleane vntill euen.

And euery beaste that hath hooft and deuydeth it not into two clawes, nor chaueith cudde, suche are uncleane vnto you: euery one that toucheth them, shall be uncleane. And what soener goeth vpon his handes amonge all maner beastes that go on all foure fete: suche are uncleane vnto you: and who so doth touche their carcase shall be uncleane vntill the euen. And he that beareth the carcase of them, shall wash his clothes, and be uncleane vntill the euen, for suche are uncleane vnto you. And let these also be uncleane to you amonge the thynges that crepe vpon the earth, the weasel, and the mouse, and the tooke, after theyr hynde, the hedgehog, the skelle, the lacerre, the mayle, and the molle, these are uncleane to you amonge all that crepe: who soener doth touche them when they be deade, shall be uncleane vntill the euen. And what soener any of the dead carcases of them doth fall vpon, shall be uncleane: whether it be vessel of wood, or raiment, or shynne, or bagge, or what soener vessel it be that any woche is wrought in. And it must be plunged in the water and it shall be uncleane vntill the euen, and so shall it be cleansed.

All maner of earthen vessel that cometh into any of them shall be uncleane, with all that ther in is: and it shall be broken. All maner meate also that is used to be eatte if any such water come vpon it, shall be uncleane. And all maner drinke that is used to be dronke in all maner suche vessels shall be uncleane. And euery thyng that theyr they carcase falleth vpon, shall be vncleane. Whether it be ouen or kettel, let it be broken.

For they are vncleane, and shall be vncleane vnto you: Neuer the later, yet the fountaynes and welles and collectyon of waters shall be cleane. And who so toucheth the carcase, shall be vncleane. If the deade carcase of anye such fall vpon anye scde vnto sowe, it shall yet be cleane. But and if any water be powred vpon the scde, and a deade carcase fall thereon, it shall be vncleane vnto you. If any beaste of whyche ye may eate, dye, and any man toucheth the deade carcase therof, he shall be vncleane vntill the euen, he eateth of the deade carcase of it, shall washe his clothes and be vncleane vntill the euen. And he also that deareth the carcase of it, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen.

G Let every creeping thyng that creepeth vpon the earth be an abhominacyon, and not be eaten. What soeuer goeth vpon the beast and what soeuer goeth vpon foure, or that hath moo feet amonge all creeping thynges that crepe vpon the earth, of that ye eate not, for they are abhominable. Ye shall not make your soules abhominable wth nothyng that creepeth, neyther make your selues vncleane wth them: that ye shoulde be defyled therby. For I am the Lord your God. Ye sanctified therfore, and ye shall be holy, for I am holpe: and ye shall not defyle your soules with any maner of creeping thyng, that creepeth vpon the earth. For I am the Lord your God, I brought you out of the lande of Egypt, to be your God, ye shall be holy therfore, for I am holpe. This is the lawe of beastes and foules, and of every lyuynge creature that moueth in the waters, and of every creature that creepeth vpon the earth, where may be a differenc betwene the vncleane and cleane, and betwene the beaste that may be eaten, and the beaste that ought not to be eaten.

Ad the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayynge: speake vnto the chyldre of Israel and saye: if a woman hath conceived, and borne a manchild, she shall be vncleane seven dayes: euen in lyke maner as when she is put a part in tyme of her natural diseale. And in the eighth daye the fleshe of the chyldre shall be cut a waye. And she shall then continue in the bloode of her purgynge thre and thyrty dayes. She shall touche no halowed thyng, nor come into the sanctuary, vntill the tyme of her purgynge be out. If she beare a mayde chyld, she shall be vncleane two weekes, as whē she hath her natural diseale. And she shall continue in the blood of her purgynge thre scoze and fyve dayes.

And whē the dayes of her purgynge are out, whether it be for a sonne or for a daughter, she shall bring a lambe of one yere olde for a burnt offering, and a yonge pygeon or a turtill dove for synne, vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness and vnto the priest: whiche shall offer them before the Lord, and make an attonement for her; and she shall be purged of the pisse of her blood. And this is the lawe for her that hath borne a male or female. But and if she be not able to bring a lambe, she shall bring two turtleys or two yonge pigeons: the one for a burnt offering, and the other for synne. And the priest shall make an attonement for her, and she shall be cleane.

The xij. Chapter.

Ad the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayynge: when there appeareth a risinge in anye mannes fleshe, whether a scabbe, or a glisterynge whyte: and the plage of leprosy be in the skynne of his fleshe, he shall be brought vnto Aaron the priest, or vnto one of his sonnes the priestes, and the priest shall looke on the soze in the skynne of his fleshe.

And when the herre in the soze is turned vnto whyte, and the soze also seme to be lower then the skynne of his fleshe it wyl be a plage of leprosy, and the priestes shall looke on hym, and iudge hym vncleane. If there be but a whyte pliche in the skynne of his fleshe, and seme not to be lower then the skynne, nor the herre therof is turned vnto whyte, the priest shall shut hym vp seven dayes. And the priest shall looke vpon hym agayne the seuenthe daye. And if the plage seme to hym to abyde still, and the plage growe not in the skyn, the priest shall shut hym vp yet seven dayes mo. And the priest shall looke on hym agayne the seuenthe daye. Then if the plage be darker, and not growen in the skynne, the priest shall iudge hym cleane, for it is but a scabbe. And he shall washe his clothes, and be cleane. But and if the scabbe growe in the skynne after that he is sene of the priest, and iudged cleane, he shall be sene of the priest agayne. If the priest se that the scabbe be growen abrode in the skynne, the priest shall make hym vncleane: for it is a leprosy.

When the plage of the leprosy is in a man, he shall be brought vnto the priest, and the priest shall se hym. And if the risinge be whyte in the skynne, and haue made the herre whyte, and there be rawe fleshe in the soze, it wyl be an old leprosy in the skynne of his fleshe. And the priest shall make hym vncleane; and shall not shut hym vp: saynge he is vncleane. If a leprosy breake out abrode in the skynne, and couer all the skynne, from his head to his fote, where soeuer the priest looketh, and the priest looke vpon hym. And if the leprosy haue couered all his fleshe, he shall iudge the plage to be cleane, because it is all turned into whynesse, and he shall be cleane. But and if there be rawe fleshe on hym when he is sene, he shall be vncleane.

And the priest shall se the rawe fleshe, and declare hym to be vncleane. For the rawe fleshe is vncleane, saynge it is a leprosy. If the rawe fleshe departe agayne and chaunge vnto whyte, he shall come to the priest, and the priest shall se hym and beholde. If the soze be chaunged vnto whyte (and couer the whole man) the priest shall iudge the plage cleane, and he shall be cleane. The fleshe also in whose skynne there is a pyle and is healed, and in the place of the pyle there appeare a whyte a whyte rylng. ether a thynng whyte and som-what reddyshe. it shalbe sene of the p̄est.

D And yf when the p̄est seyth hym, it appere lower then the skynne, and the herre therof be chaunged vnto whyte, the p̄est shal iudge hym uncleane: for it is a plage of leproly, broken out of the byle. But and yf the p̄est loke on it and there be no whyte herres therein, and yf it be not lower then the skynne, but be darker, the p̄est shal shute hym vp seuen dayes.

And if it spede abrode in the fleshe, the p̄est shal make hym uncleane, seynge it is the plage.
But and yf the spot stande still, and growe not it is the pynte of an boote byle, and therfore the p̄est shal declare hym to be cleane. If there be any fleshe, in whose skynne there is a hote burnyng, and the fleshe that burneth haue a whyte spotte, somewhat reddyshe or whyte, the p̄est shal loke vpon it. And yf the herre in þe byght spot be chaunged to whyte, and it appere lower then the skynne, it is a leprolye broken out of the burnyng. And therfore the p̄est shal iudge hym uncleane, seynge it is the plage of leproly.
But yf the p̄est loke on it & there be no whyte herre in the byght spot, and be no lower then other skynne, but be darker, the p̄est shal shute hym vp seuen dayes. And the p̄est shal loke on hym the seuen dayes: And yf it be growen abrode in the skynne, the p̄est shal iudge hym uncleane, seynge it is the plage of leprolye. And yf the spot stande still in it, and growe not in the skynne, but is darke, it is a rylng of the burnyng, and the p̄est shal therfore declare hym cleane, seynge it is the pynte of the burnyng.

E If a man or woman hath a soze vpo the head or the bearde, the p̄est shal se it. And yf it ap-peare lower then the skynne, and there be in it a yelow herre: & thyn ^(more then it was wont to be) the p̄est shal iudge hym uncleane, seynge that the same frettyng is a token of leproly vpon the head or beard. And yf the p̄est loke on the soze of the pynte, and it seme not lower then þe skyn and that the herre is not blacke, the p̄est shal shute vp the frettyng soze seuen dayes. And in the seuen daye the p̄est shal loke on the soze and yf the soze be not growen, and there be in it no yelow herre, and the soze seme not lower the the skynne, he shalbe chaunced: but the place of the soze shal be not chaunced: and the p̄est shal shute vp the soze seuen dayes moze. And in the seuen daye the p̄est shal loke on the soze: And yf the soze be not growen in the skynne, nor seme lower then the other skynne, the p̄est shal cense hym, and he shal washe his clothes, & be cleane.
But yf the soze growe in the fleshe after his censelynge, the p̄est shal loke on hym.

F And yf the soze be growen in the skynne, the p̄est shal not seke for yelow herre, for he is vncleane. But yf he se the pynte stande still, and that there is blacke herre growne vpon therin, the soze is healed, and he shalbe cleane, & the p̄est shal declare him to be cleane. Yf there be whyte spottes in the skynne of the fleshe of man or woman, the p̄est shal loke vpon it. And yf the spottes in the skynne of the fleshe be somewhat darke and whyte withall, <sup>(as he maye be sure, that it is no leproly)</sup> it is a frethell growyng in the fleshe.

Therfore is he cleane. And the man whose head is destitute of herre, (whereby he is made bald) is cleane. And he that hath his herre out in hys forehead, is foreheede balde and cleane. If there be in the bauld head or balde forehead, a whyte reddyshe soze scabbe, there is leproly: sponge vp in hys baulde heade or baulde forehead.

And the p̄est shal loke vpon hym, and yf the rylng of the soze be whyte reddyshe in hys baulde heade or bauld forehead, after the maner of leproly which is in the skynne of the fleshe, the he is a leperous man and vncleane. And yf p̄est shal make hym vncleane, for the plage therof is in his heade. The leper in whom the plage is shal haue hys clothes rent, and hys head bare, & shal put a coueryng vpon his lyppe, and shalbe called vncleane and despyed. And as long as the disase lasteth vpon hym, he shalbe despyed and uncleane: he shal dwel alone, euen without the boost shal his habitacyon be. The cloth that the plage of leprolye is in, whither it be linnen or wollen, whither it be in the warpe or woofe of linnen or of wolfe, ether in a skyn or any thyng made of skynne, yf the dysase be pale or somewhat reddyshe in the cloth or skynne: whither it be in the warpe or woofe, or any thyng that is made of skynne, then it is a plage of leprolye and shalbe shewed vnto the p̄est.

The p̄est therfore shal se the plage, and shute it vp seuen dayes, and loke on the plage the seuen day. Which yf it be encreased in þe cloth (whether it be in þe warpe or woofe, or in a skyn) or in any thyng that is made of skynne, it is the leproly of a frettyng soze: it is vncleane: and that cloth shalbe burnt, ether warpe or woofe whether it be wollen or linnen, or any thyng that is made of skynne, wherin the plage is, for it is a frettyng leprolye, it shalbe burnt in the fyre.
If the p̄est se that the plage is not growen in the cloth: ether in the warpe or woofe, or in what soeuer thyng of skynne it be, the p̄est shal comaund them to washe the thyng wherin þe plage is, and he shal shute it vp seuen dayes mo. And the p̄est shal loke on the plage agayne, after that it is washed. And yf the plage haue not chaunged his coloure, and is spred no further abrode, it is vncleane. Thou shalt burne it in the fyre, for it is a frette inwarde: in parte or in all together. And yf the p̄est se that the plage is darker after that it is washed, he shal rente it out of the clothe, or out of the skyn, or out of the warpe, or out of the woofe. And yf it appere any moze in the cloth (ether in þe warpe or in the woofe, or in any thyng made of skynne) it is a warpyng plage. Thou shalt burne the plage that is in it. Wozeouer the cloth, ether warpe or woofe or whatsoeuer thyng of skyn it be whych thou hast washed, if the plage be departed there from, it shalbe washed once agayne: and then shal it be cleane. Thys is the lawe of the plage of leproly in a cloth whether it be wollen or lynnen: ether in the warpe or woofe, or in any thyng of skynnes, to make it cleane or vncleane.

The

The xliii. Chapter.

C The cleansing of the leper: and of the house that he is in.

Ad the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: Thus is the lawe of the leper in the daye of his cleansing: he shall be brought vnto the priest, and the priest shall go out without the holte, and loke vpon hym. And yf the plague of leprosy be healed in the leper, then shall the priest commaunde that he which is to be censed, byng two luyng byrdes and cleane, and cedar wood and purple cloth, and plope. And the priest shall commaunde that one of the byrdes be kylled in an earthen vessel, and vpon runninge water. And he shall take the luyng byrde with the cedar wood, the purple and the plope, and shall dip them and the luyng byrde in the bloude of the slayne byrde, vpon the running water, & spynke vpon hym that must be censed of his leprosy seuen tymes, and cense hym, and shall lette the luyng byrde goe into the felde.

And he that is censed, shall walke bys clothes, and shawe of all his haire, and washe hym selfe in water, that he maye be cleane. And after that shall he come into the holte, and shall tary without his tent seuen dayes, but in the seventh daye he shall shawe of all his haire, namely, bys heade, his braide, and his browes: euen all bys haire shall be shaven of. And he shall walke bys clothes and his flesh in water, & he shall be cleane.

In the eighth daye he shall take two lambs without blemyshe, and an ebe lambe of a yeare olde without blemyshe, and the tenth deales of fyne flour for a meate offering myngled with oyle and a logge of oyle. And the priest that maketh hym cleane, shall byng the man whiche is to be made cleane and those thynges, before the Lorde, euen before the doore of the tabernacle of witness. And the priest shall take one lambe, and offer hym for trespass, and the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And he shall sle the lambe in the place where the synne offering and the burnt offering are slayne: euen in the holpe place. For as the synne offering is, euen so is the trespass offering the priestes: seying it is most holy. And the priest shall take of the bloude of the trespass offering, and put it vpon the tye of the ryght eare of hym that is to be censed, and vpon the thumbe of his ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his ryght foote.

The priest shall take of the logge of oyle, and powze it into the palme of his lefte hande, & dip his ryghte synger in the oyle that is in his lefte hand, and spynke of the oyle with his synger seuen tymes before the Lorde. And of the rest of the oyle that is in his hande, shall the priest put vpon the tye of the ryght eare of hym that is to be censed, & vpon the thumbe of his ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his ryght foote, euen vpon the bloude of the trespass offering. And the remnant of the oyle that is in the priestes hande, he shall powze vpon the head of hym that is to be censed: and the priest shall make an attouement for hym before the Lorde.

And the priest shall offer the synne offering and make an attouement for hym that is to be censed, for bys uncleynesse. And then shall he kyll the burnt offering, and the priest shall offer the burnt offering and the meate offering vpon the altare: and the priest shall make an attouement for hym, and he shall be cleane. * Yf he be poore, and can not get so much, he shall take one lambe for a trespass offering to waue it for his cleansing, and a tenth deale of fyne flour myngled with oyle for a meate offering, and a logge of oyle, and two turtill dones or two ponge pyngons, suche as he is able to get, wherof the one shall be for synne, and the other for a burnt offering. And he shall byng them the eighth daye for his cleansing vnto the priest before the doore of the tabernacle of witness before the Lorde.

And the priest shall take the lambe that is for the trespass, and a logge of oyle, and shall waue them before the Lorde. And he shall kyll a lambe for the trespass, and the priest shall take of the bloude of the trespass offering, and put it vpon the tye of his ryght eare that is to be censed, and vpon the thumbe of his ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his ryght foote. And the priest shall powze of oyle into his ryght hand and the priest shall with his synger spynke of the oyle that is in his lefte hand, seuen tymes before the Lorde. And the priest shall put of oyle that is in his hande vpon the tye of the ryght eare of hym that is to be censed, and vpon the thumbe of his ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his ryght foote: euen in the place where the bloude of the trespass offering was put.

And the rest of the oyle that is in the priestes hande, he shall put vpon the head of hym that is to be censed: that he maye make an attouement for hym before the Lorde. And he shall offer one of the turtill dones: or of the ponge pyngons: suche as he can get: the one for a synne offering, and the other for a burnt offering with the meate offering. And the priest shall make an attouement for hym that is to be censed before the Lorde. This is the lawe of hym in whome is the plague of leprosy, and whole hande is not able to get that whiche pertayneth to his cleansing. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron saying, when ye be come vnto a lande of Canaan which I geue you in possession.

And yf I put the plague of leprosy in a house of the lande of ponce possession, he that oweth the house shall come, and tell the priest, saying: me thynke that there is as it were a leprosy in the house. And the priest shall commaunde them to emptye the house before the priest go into it to se the plague: that all that is in the house be not made uncleane, and then must the priest go into the house. Yf the priest also se that a plague is in the walles of the house, and that there be holowe strakes pale or red which seme to be lower then the wall it selfe, the priest shall go out at the house doores, and shut vp the house seuen dayes. And the priest shall come agayne the seventh daye, and yf he se that the plague be increased in the walles of the house, the priest shall commaunde them to take away the stones in which the the plague is, and let them cast them into a foule place without the cite, and he shal commaunde the house to be scraped within rounde aboute, & poure out the duste (that they scrape of) wythout the cite into a foule place.

And they shall take other stones, and putte them in the places of those stones, & other morter, to plaster the house withall. And if the plague come agayne and breake out in the house, after that he hath taken awaye the stones and scraped the walles of the house, and after that he hath plastered the house a newe: the yraist shal come and se it. And if he perceaue that the plague hath growen further in the house, it is a frettinge leprosy in the house. It is therfore vncleane. And he shall breake downe the house. And the stones of it, and the tymber thereof, and all the morter of the house, shall he carpe oute of the cite into a foule place. Moreover, he that goeth into the house all the while that it is thus, shalbe vncleane vntill the euen. He that sleepeth in the house shal waiche his clothes: he that eateth in the house shal waiche his clothes.

And if the yraist shall come and se, that the plague hath spread no further in the house: after that it is newe plastered: the yraist shall indgethat house cleane, because the plague is healed. And let hym take to cleanse the house wythall: two byrdes, cedar wood, purple cloth and ylope. And he shall kyl one of the byrdes in an earthen vessel, and upon runninge water: and take the cedar wood, and the ylope, and the purple with the lyuynge byrde, and dyppe them in the bloude of the slayne byrde, and in the running water, & spyn hit the house seuen tymes, and cleanse the house w the bloude of the byrde and wyth the runninge water, with the lyuynge byrde, w the cedar wood and the ylope, and the purple cloth. But he shal let the lyuynge byrde flier out of the towne into a byrde felde, and so make an attonement for the house, and it shalbe cleane. This is the lawe for all maner plague of leprosy and bzealyng out, and of the leprosy of cloth and house: for a swel lunge, for a scabbe, and for a whete blister. To teach when it must be made vncleane and cleane. This is the lawe of leprosy.

The manner of purgynge the vncleannesse both of men and women.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, and Aaron saying: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: Who soeuer hath a runninge yllue out of his fleshe, is vncleane by reason of that yllue. And thus shalbe the token of his vncleannesse in his yllue: when he is vncleane. If his fleshe runne, or if his fleshe congele by the reason of his yllue, then it is vncleane. Every couch whereon he lyeth that hath the yllue, is vncleane: and every thyng whereon he lyeth, is vncleane: Who soeuer toucheth his couche, shal waiche his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water and be vncleane vntill the euen.

And he that lyeth on any thyng whereon he hath that hath the yllue, shal waiche his clothes and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vntill the euenynge. He that toucheth the fleshe of hym that hath the yllue, shal waiche his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, & be vncleane vnto the euen. If he also that hath the yllue spit vpon hym that is cleane, he shal waiche his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, & be vncleane vntill euen. And what house soeuer he toucheth vpon that hath the yllue, shalbe vncleane. And who soeuer toucheth any thyng that was vnder hym, shalbe vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any such thynges, shal waiche his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And who soeuer he toucheth that hath the yllue (& haue not spyt waled hym handes in water) shal waiche his clothes and bath hym selfe in water, & be vncleane vnto the euen. * The vessel of earth that he toucheth, whiche hath the yllue, shalbe broken: and all vessels of wood shalbe rymed in water. When he also that hath any yllue, is clenched of his yllue, he shal nombe seuen dayes for his cleansing, and waiche his clothes, and bath hym selfe in running water, and so shal he be cleane.

And the seuen dayes he shal take vnto hym two turtell doves or two ponge pyrgons, and come before the Lorde vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, and geue them vnto a priest. And the priest shal offer them: the one for a syn offering, and the other for burnt offering: and the priest shal make an attonement for hym before the Lorde, as concernynge his yllue. If a ny mans seide departe from hym in his slepe, he shal waiche his fleshe in water, and be vncleane vntill euen. And all his clothes and all the furre: wherein is such seide of slepe, shalbe washed with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. Therfore shall he leuate the chyldren of Israel from theyr vnclennesse, that they dye not in theyr vnclennesse: for they defyle my habitacyon that is amonge them. This is the lawe of hym that hath a running pisse, & of hym whose seede runneth from hym in his slepe, and is defyled therein, and of her that (for her naturall dyscase) is putt aparte, and of who so euer hath a running pisse: whet her it be man or woman, and of hym that lyeth with her which is vnclane.

¶ The xvi. Chapter.

What Aaron shall do. The cleynng of the sanctuary. Of the feast of the cleynng. Aaron consecuteth the synners of the chyldren of Israel.

And the Loyde spake vnto Moses, after the deathe of the two sonnes of Aaron, when they offered before the Loyde, and dyed: And he sayde vnto Moses: speake vnto Aaron thy brother, that he come not at all tymes in to the holy place within the vayne before the mercy seate, which is vpon the arke, that he dye not: for I will appeare in the cloud vpon the mercy seate. But with this chynge shall Aaron come in to the holy place: euen with a bulloche for synne, and with a ram for a burnt offeringe. He shall put the holy linnen albe vpon hym, and shall haue a linnen bynde vpon his floure, and shall be girded with a linnen gyrdell, and put the linnen mytre vpon his head: These are holy garments: therfore shall he walche his fleche in water, when he doth put them on. And he shall take of the myltitude of the chyldren of Israel, two hegoates for synne, and a ram for a burnt offeringe. And Aaron shall offer bys bulloche for synne, and make an attonement for hym, and for his house. And he shall take the two goates, & present them before the Loyde at the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall cast lottes ouer the two goates: one lotte shall be for the Loyde, and the other for the scape goate. And Aaron shall bynyng the goate vpon which the Loydes lot fell, and offer hym for synne. But the goate on which the lotte fell to scape, shall be let alyue before the Loyde, to reconcytle with, & to let hym go (as a scape goate) fre into the wyldernesse. And Aaron shall bynyng bys bulloche for syn, and reconcytle for hym selfe, and for bys house, and shall kyll his bulloche for synne.

spyl his handfull of sweete cens beaten small, and bynyng them within the vayne, and put the cens vpon the fyre before the Loyde: that the cloude of the cens maye couer the mercy seate that is vpon the wytnesse, and that he dye not. And he shall take of the bloude of the bulloche, and spynkle it with his synger vpon the mercy seate eastwarde: and before the mercy seate shall he spynkle of the bloude with his synger seuen tymes. Then shall he kyll the goate that is the peoples synne offeringe, and bynyng his bloud within the vayne, and do with that bloude, as he dyd with the bloude of the bulloche, spynklyng it vpon the mercy seate, and before the mercy seate. And he shall reconcytle the holy place from the vnclennesses of the chyldren of Israel, and from theyr trespasses in all theyr synnes. And so shall he do for the tabernacle of wytnesse that is set amonge them, euen amonge theyr vnclennesse.

¶ And let there be no bodye in the tabernacle of wytnesse, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the holy place, vntill he come out. And lette hym make an attonement for hym selfe, & for his household, and for all the myltitude of Israel. And he shall goo out vnto the aultare that is before the Loyde, and reconcytle vpon it, & shall take of the bloud of the bulloche, and of the bloud of the goate, and put it vpon the hornes of the aultare rounde aboute, and spynkle of the bloude vpon it with his synger seuen tymes, and clense it, and halow it from the vnclennesses of the chyldren of Israel. And when he hath made an ende of reconcylynge the holy place, and the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the aultare, he shall bynyng the lyue goate: and Aaron shall put both his handes vpon the heade of the lyue goate, & confesse ouer hym all the mysdoes of the chyldren of Israel, and all theyr trespasses, in all theyr synnes, puttyng them vpon the head of the goate, and sende hym awaye (by the hande of a conuenient man) into the wyldernesse. And the goate shall beare vpon hym all theyr mysdoes vnto the wyldernesse, and he shall let the goate go fre into the wyldernesse. And Aaron shall come in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, & put of the linnen clothes which he put on (when he went into the holy place) and leane them there. And let hym walche his fleche with water in the holy place, and put on his owne raiment, and then come out, and offer his burnt offeringe, and the burnt offeringe of the people, and make an attonement for hym selfe, and for the people, and the fat of the synne offeringe shall be burne vpon the aultare.

zeil, shall walche his clothes, and bath his fleche in water, and then come into the hoste. And the bulloche which is for synne, and the goate that is for synne, (whose bloude was brought in, to clense the holy place) shall one cary out without the host to be burnt in the fyre, with theyr synnes, theyr fleche, and theyr dunge. And he that burneth them shall walche his clothes, and bath his fleche in water, and then come into the host. And this shall be an ordynance for euer vnto you that in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, ye humble your soules, & do no worke at all, whether it be one of your selues as a stranger that sojourneth amonge you, for that daye shall the Lord make an attonement for you to cleanse you and that ye may be cleane from all your synnes before the Lord. Lette it be a Sabbath of rest vnto you, and ye shall humble your soules, by an obsequy for euer. And the Priest that is appointed, and whose hande was consecrated (to minister in his fathers trade) shall make the attonement, and shall put on the linnen clothes and holy vestimentes, and reconcle the holy sanctuary and the Tabernacle of witness, and shall cleanse the altar, and make an attonement then for the priestes and for all the people of the congregation. And thus shall ean & euerlastyng obsequy vnto you, that he make an attonement for the children of Israel for all their synnes once a yere: and he dyd as the Lord commaunded.

The xvi. Chapter.

¶ All sacrifices must be brought in the doore of the tabernacle. To bring in more they maye offer.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto Aaron thy sonne, and vnto all the children of Israel, & say vnto the: This is the thing which the Lord hath charged, saying: what man soeuer of the house of Israel killeth an ore, or lambe, or goate in the dole, or killeth it out of the dole, & byngeth it not vnto the dole of the tabernacle of witness, to offer an offering vnto the Lord before the dwelling place of the Lord, bloude shall be imputed vnto that man, as though he had shed blood, and that man shall be rote out from amonge his people. Wherefore, when the children of Israel byngeth offerings, that they offer in the wyde felde, they shoulde bynge them vnto the Lord: euen vnto the dole of the tabernacle of witness to the priest, to offer them for peace offerings vnto the Lord. And the Priest must spynke the bloude vpon the altar of the Lord which is before the dole of the tabernacle of witness, and burne the fat for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord. And let them nomore offer theyr offerings vnto deuils, after whom they haue gone a whoringe. This shall be an obsequy for euer vnto them in theyr generacions.

And thou shalt say vnto them: whatsoeuer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers which sojourn amonge you that offereth a burnt offering or sacrifice, and byngeth it not vnto the dole of the tabernacle of witness to offer it vnto the Lord, that man shall perishe from amonge his people. And whatsoeuer man it be of the house of Israel or of the strangers that sojourn amonge you, that eateth any manner of bloude, I will set my face agaynst that soule that eateth bloude, & will destroye him from amonge his people: for the lyfe of the fleshe is in the bloude, and I haue geuen it vnto you vpon the altar, to make an attonement for your soules, for bloude shall make an attonement for the soule. And therefore I sayde vnto the childre of Israel let no soule of you eate bloude. Neether let any stranger that sojourneth amonge you, eate bloude.

And what soeuer man it be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn amonge you, which hunteth & catcheth any beast or foule that maye be eaten, let hym pour out the bloude thereof, and couer it with earth, for the lyfe of all fleshe is in the bloude of it, therefore I sayde vnto the children of Israel, ye shall eat the bloude of no manner of fleshe for the lyfe of all fleshe is the bloude thereof: who so euer eateth it, shall perishe. And euery soule that eateth it whiche dyed alone, or that whiche wasayne to wilde beastes, whether it be one of your selues or a stranger, he shall wash his clothes, & bath hym selfe in water, and be uncleane vnto euen and then shall he be cleane. If he wash him not nor bath his fleshe, he shall beare his synne.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: speake vnto the children of Israel, and say vnto the: I am the Lord your God. After the doynges of the lande of Egypt: where in ye dwelt, shall ye not do: & after the doynges of the lande of Canaan, whither I wyl bring you shall ye not do, neether walke in their ordinaunces, but do after my iudgements and hepe my ceremonies, to walke therein: I am the Lord your God. Ye shall hepe therefore myne ordinaunces, and my iudgements: which if a man do, he shall lyue in them. I am the Lord.

So that none go to his wyfes kynred, for to vncouer theyr secrets. I am the Lord. * The secrettes of thy father, and the secrettes of thy mother shalt thou not vncouer: for he is thy mother, therefore shalt thou not discouer her secrettes. * The secrettes of thy fathers wyfe shalt thou not discouer, for it is thy fathers secrettes. * Thou shalt not discouer the pemyte of thy sister, the daughter of thy father or of thy mother whether she be home at home or without. Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy fathers wyfes daughter, whiche was begotten of thy father, and is thy sister: thou shalt not discouer her secrettes. * Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy fathers sister, for she is thy fathers nexte kynswoman. Thou shalt not discouer the secrettes of thy mothers sister, for she is thy mothers nexte kynswoman. Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy fathers brother: that is, thou shalt not go into his wyfe, whiche is thyne aunty.

Thou shalt not discouer the secrettes of thy daughter in lawe: for she is thy sonnes wyfe: therefore shalt thou not vncouer her secrettes. * Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy brothers wyfe, for that is thy brothers pemyte. Thou shalt not discouer the pemytes of thy wyfe and her daughter, neether shalt thou take her sonnes daughter, or her daughters daughter, to vncouer theyr secrettes: for they are her nexte kyn, and it were wychednes. * Thou shalt not take a wyfe and her sister also, to depe her, that thou woldest

Woldest vncouer her secreten as longe as the lyfyle her wth lye. Thou shalt also not geue of the seide to offer it vnto. * Woloch: neyther shalt

* Thou shalt not lye wth mankynde as wth woman kynde, for it is abhominacyon. * Thou shalt lye wth no maner of beaste to defyle thy selfe ther wth, neyther shall any woman stande before a beaste, to lye downe thereto, for it is abhominacyon. * Thou shalt not defyle pour selues in any of these thynges, wherein also the nacions are defyled wthch I cast out before you: * Where thow the lande is defyled, and I will vylet the wychednesse therof vpon it, yee and the land it selfe hath caste out her inhabytters. * Thou shalt hepe therfore myne ordynaunces, and my iudgementes, and comyt none of these abhominaci-ons: neyther any of you nor anye straunger that solourmeth amonge you (for al these abhominaci-ons haue the men of the land done which were there before you, and the lande is defyled). * What not the lande spewe you out also (yf ye defyle it) as it spued out the people that were before you?
* For who so euer shall comyt any of these abhominacyons, the same soules that comyt them, shall peryshe from amonge the people. * Therfore shall ye kepe my watche, that ye comyt not one of these abhominable customes which were commytted before you: and that ye defyle not pour selues therein I am the Lorde pour God.

These be the preceptes.

As the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses, I speake vnto the preastes the sonnes of Aaron, and saye vnto them. Let none be defiled vpon a soule among his people: but vpon his kinsman y is nye vnto hym: vpon his father, & his mother, vpon some & daughter, and his brother, and on his

his sister & mayde that is nye vnto hym, whom no man hath knowen, vpon her shall he be desyled. But he shall not be desyred vpon hym that hath an wyfe among his people, to polute him selfe for hym. Let them not make boldnes vpon their head, nor shawe of the lockes of their head nor make any markes in their fleche. They shall be holy vnto the Lord, and not polute the name of the Lord God, for the sacrifices of the Lord which are as the breaue of the Lord God they do offer: the fayre they shall be holy. ¶ Let the not take a wyfe that is an aduoutrisse, or poluted, nor put from her husband: for such a one is holy vnto his God.
¶ Thou shalt sanctifye hym therfore, for he offer-eth by the breaue of the Lord God: he shall therfore be holy vnto the Lord. ¶ The Lord whiche sanctifye you and holy. If a daughters daughter fall to playe the whore, she polureth her father, therfore must she be burnt with fyre. He that is the hye priest among his brethren, vpon whose head the anoint-yng oyle was powred, & that consecrated by hande to put the vestimentes, shall not vncouer his head, nor rent his clothes, neither go to any dead body, nor make hym selfe vncleane on his father or his mother, neyther shall he go out of the sanctuary, nor polute the holy place of the Lord for the croune of the anointyng oyle of his god, is vpon hym: I am the Lord. ¶ He shall take a mayde vnto his wyfe: but a widow, a deuorced woman, or an harlot, shall he not marrye. But shall take a mayde of his owne people to wyfe.
Neyther shall he desyle his sede among his people: for I am the Lord whiche sanctifye hym.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayenge: speake vnto Aaron, and saye. ¶ Who so euer of thy sede in the Lord generacions hath any deformation, let him not pcease for to offer breaue vnto the Lord, for whoso euer hath any blemyshe, shall not come nere: as yf he be blynde or lame, or that hath a bused nose, or that hath any murther membze, or is broken footed, or broken handes or haue no heare on his eye browes, or haue a web or other blemyshe in his eyes, or be maunge, or shaued, or haue his stones broken. ¶ So man that hath a blemyshe, and is of the sede of Aaron the prieste, shall come nye to offer the sacrifices of the Lord. ¶ When he hath a deformatyue, let hym not pcease to offer the breaue of the Lord God. Lette him eate the breaue of his God: euen of the moeste holy and of the holy: ¶ Onely lette hym not go in vnto the vayle, nor come nye the aultar, when he is deformed that he polute not my sanctuary, for I am the Lord that sanctifye them. And Moses tolde it vnto Aaron and to his sonnes, & vnto all the chyldren of Israel.

¶ The xxiiij. Chapter.

¶ When ought to aduowse from calyng the thynges that were offered. How, what and when they shal be offered.

3

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayeng: speake vnto Aaron & his sonnes, that they be seperated from the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel, & that they polute not my holy name in those thynges, which they halowe vnto me: I am the Lord. ¶ Saye vnto them:

¶ Who so euer he be of all your seds among your generacions after you, that hath vnto the holy thynges which the chyldren of Israel halowe vnto the Lord, haueinge hym vncleane vpon hym, that soule shall perishe frome oute of my syght. I am the Lord.

¶ ¶ What man so euer of the seds of Aaron is a leaper: or hath a runnyng pisse, he shall not eate of the holy thynges vntill he be cleane.

¶ And who so toucheth any man that is vncleane ouer the soule of the deade, or a man whose sede runneth frome hym in his slepe, or who so euer toucheth any moyme, wherby he maye be made vncleane, or a man, of whome he maye take vn-cleanness (what so euer vncleanness he hath) the same soule that hath touched any suche, shall be vncleane vntill such, and shall not eate of the holye thynges, vntill he haue washed his fleche with water. And when the sunne is downe, he shall be cleane, and shall afterwarde eate of the holye thynges: for as muche as it is in his soule.

¶ ¶ Of a beaste that dyeth alone, or is rente with wyld beastes (wherby he maye be desyled) he shall not eate. I am the Lord. Let them hepe therfore myne ordynances, lest they for the same lade synne vpon them, and dye for it, yf they de-syle it. ¶ The Lord sanctifye them.

¶ There shall no straunger eate of the holy thing neither a giste of the priestes, neither shall any hyed seruaunt eate of the holy thyng. But yf the priest be any soule with money, he shall eate of it, lyke as he that is bozne in his house, shall they eate of his breaue. ¶ If the priestes daughter also be married vnto a straunger, she maye not eate of the halowed bene offeringes nor wythstandyng yf the priestes daughter be a widow or deuorced and haue no chyld, but is returned vnto her fathers house agayne, she shall eate of her fathers breaue, as well as the dyd in her pouth. But there shall no straunger eate thereof. ¶ If a man eate of the holy thyng vnto wythstandyng, he shall put the fyfte parte ther-unto, and geue it vnto the priest with the halowed thyng. And the priestes shall not de-syle the holye thynges of the chyldren of Israel, (whiche they offer vnto the Lord) to lade them selues with mysdoynge and trespass whyle they eate thereof: holye thynges, for I the Lord do ha-lowe them. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayeng: speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: what so euer he be of the house of Israel, or straunger in Israel, that wyl offer his sacri-fyce for al his bowes, and for al his fre wyl offeringes whiche they wyl offer vnto the Lord for a burnt offeringe, ye shall offer (to reconyle your selues) a male wythout blemyshe of the oren, of the shepe, or of the goates. But whatsoeuer hath a blemyshe, that shall ye not offer, for ye shall get no fauoure therewith. And who so e-uer hyngeth a peace offeringe vnto the Lord (accordyng as he is appoynted): or a vowe, or a fre wyl offeringe, in oxe or shepe that is wyth out deformatyue, he shall be accepted. ¶ There shall be also no blemyshe therein: blynde or broken, lii. or wound.

or wounded, or haue a weime, or be maunge, or scabbed. Ye shall not offer such vnto the Lorde, nor put an offering of any such vpon the altar vnto the Lorde. In ore of a shepe that hath any membre out of proportion may it thou offer for a freewill offering, but for a votue it shall not be accepted. Ye shall not offer vnto the Lorde that which is bled, or broken, or plucked out, or cut a waye, neyther shall ye make any such in your lande, neyther of a straungers hande shall ye offer bread vnto your God of any such. Because they corruption is in them, and they haue defiled in them selues, and therefore shall they not be accepted for you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: when an ore, or a shepe, or a goat is brought forth, it shall be seuen dayes vnder the damme. And from the eighth daye forth, it shall be accepted for a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And whether it be ore of shepe, ye shall not hyl it, and her ponge both in one daye. When ye wyl offer a thankoffering vnto the Lorde, offer it that ye maye be accepted. And the same daye it must be eaten vp, so that ye leaue none of it vntill the morowe. I am the Lorde. Therefore shall ye kepe my commandementes and do them. I am the Lorde. Neyerther shall ye polute my holy name, but I wyl be halowed among the chyldren of Israel. I am the Lorde whiche halowe you, and that brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am the Lorde.

¶ The .xxiii. Chapter.

Of the holy dayes: that they shal kepe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying, speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: These are my feastes: euen the feastes of the Lorde, whiche ye shall call holy conuocations. * Sure dayes ye shall worke, but the seuenth daye is the Sabbath of rest, an holy conuocation: so that ye do no worke therein, it is the Sabbath of the Lorde, in all your dwellings. These are the feastes of the Lorde, euen holpe conuocations, whiche ye shall proclayme in theyr seasons. In the .xxiii. daye of the fyfthe moneth at euen is the Lorde. * Pascheuer. And on the fyfteenth daye of the same moneth the feaste of sweete breade vnto the Lorde: seuen dayes ye must eate vnturned bread. * In the fyfthe daye ye shall haue an holy conuocation: on ye shall do no laboryous worke therein. But ye shall offer sacrifices vnto the Lorde thowout these seuen dayes, and in the seuenth daye is an holpe conuocation: ye shall do no laboryous worke therein. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying, speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ye be come into the lande (whiche I geue vnto you) & reape downe the barne thereof, ye shall bringe a sheaf of the fyfthe frutes of your barne vnto the Psealte, whiche shal haue the sheaf before the Lorde to be accepted for you: and euen the morowe after the Sabbath, the Psealte shall waue it. And ye shall offer that daye when ye haue the sheaf, an helambe without blempe of a yere olde, for a burnt offering vnto the Lorde: and the meatofferynge thereof, shalbe made of twotenth deales of fyne flour mingled wyth oyle, to be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde for a sweete sauour: & the brynne offering thereof shalbe of wyne, euen the fourth deale of an hin. And ye shall eate neyther breade, nor parched corne, nor symment, nor newe corne vntill the selfe same daye that ye haue brought an offering vnto your God. Let this be a lawe for euer in your generation and in all your dwellings. And ye shall count from the morowe after the Sabbath: euen from the daye that ye broughte the sheaf of the waueoffering seuen Sabbathes complete: euen vnto the morowe after the seuenth Sabbath shall ye numbrye fyfthe dayes. And ye shall bringe a newe meatoffe ryng vnto the Lorde. And ye shall bringe out of your habitacions two waue loues made of twotenth deales of fyne flour, & that are made with leuen for fyfthe frutes vnto the Lorde. And ye shall bringe wyth the breade & seuen lambes without deformitye of one yere of age, and one ponge ore and two rammes, whiche shall serue for a burnt offering vnto the Lorde, with meat offerings and theyr brynne offerings, to be a sacrifice for a sweete sauour vnto the Lorde.

¶ Then ye shall offer an hegoate for a synoffe- ryng: & two lambes of one yere olde for a peace offering. And the psealte shall waue them with the breade of the fyfthe frutes before the Lorde, and with the two lambes. And these holy thynges of the Lorde, shalbe the Psealtes. And ye shall proclayme the same day, that it may be an holy conuocation vnto you: ye shall do no laboryous worke therein: lette it be a lawe for euer in all your dwellings, and in all your generations. * And when you reape downe your barne, thou shalt not make cleane ryddance of the feld neyther shalte thou make anye aftergathering of thy heruest: but shalte leaue it vnto the poore and the straunger. I am the Lorde your God. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: In the seuenth moneth, in the fyfthe daye of the moneth shall ye haue rest, * euen the remembrance of blowingge, an holy conuocation: ye shall do no laboryous worke therein, but offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. * And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: the .x. tenth daye also of the selfe seuenth moneth is a daye of reconcylng, therefore shal it be an holpe conuocation vnto you, and ye shall humble your soules, and offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Ye shall do no worke the same day, for it is a daye of reconcylng, to make an attouement for you before the Lorde your God.

For what so euer soule it be that humblyeth not himselfe that daye, he shalbe destroyed from amonge his people. And what so euer soule do any worke that daye, the same soule wyl I destroye from amonge his people. Ye shall do no maner worke therefore: Let it be a lawe for euer in your generations, and in all your dwellings. Lette it be vnto you a Sabbath of rest, and ye shall humble your soules in the nyth day of the moneth at euen: from euen to euen shal ye rest in your Sabbath. ¶

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say: * The fiftenth daye of the same seventh moneth is the feaste of tabernacles, seven dayes vnto the Lord. The fiftenth daye is an holy comocacion: ye shall do no laboryous worke. Seven dayes ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lord, and in the egypte daye shall be an holy comocacion vnto you, and ye shall offer sacrifices vnto the Lord. It is the collection, and ye shall do no laboryous worke therein. These are the feastes of the Lord, which ye shall call holpe conuocacions, for to offer sacrifice vnto the Lord, burnt offering, meat offering, peace offering, and bynch offerings, euer daye bynch sacrifice besyde the Sabbathes of the Lord, and besyde your gyften, besyde your houses, and all your frewill offerings, whiche ye geue vnto the Lord.

¶ Moreover, in the fiftenth daye of the seventh moneth, when ye haue gathered in the frute of the lande, ye shall kepe holpe daye vnto the Lord seven dayes. The fiftenth daye shall be as a Sabbath: yhe daye in the egypte daye shall be the rest of the Sabbath. And ye shall take pou in the fiftenth daye, the frutes of goodly trees, boughes and Palme trees, and the bowes of thiche trees, and willowes of the brooke, and shall reioyce before the Lord your God seven dayes. And ye shall kepe this feaste vnto the Lord viij. dayes in the pere. It shall be a lawe for euer in your generacions, that ye kepe it in the seventh moneth. Ye shall dwell in bothes. viij. dayes eue al ye are Israelites boine, that dwell in bothes, y your chyldren after you maye knowe how that I made the chyldren of Israel to dwell in bothes, when I brought them out of the land of Egypte: I am the Lord your God. ¶ And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, concerning the feastes of the Lord.

The xxxij. Chapter.

The oyle for the lampes. He that curseth must be Routh. He that killeth shall be hanged.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: * comande the chyldren of Israel that they bynche vnto the, puer oyle olyue beaten for lightes to cause the lampes to burne away: without the vyle of wytnesse: in the tabernacle of witness that Aaron dysse them both enen y morning before the Lord alwaies. Let it be a lawe for euer in your generacions. Ye shall dysse the lampes vpon the pure candlestiche before the Lord perpetually. And thou shalt take fyne flour, and bake twelue walleis thereof, two tenth deales shall be in one walleis. And thou shalt set them in two rowes fyve on a rowe vpon the pure table before the Lord, and put pur frankensence vpon the rowes, that they may be breade of remembraunce, and an offering to the Lord. Euer Sabbath he shall put them in rowes before the Lord euermore: of the chyldren of Israel that they be offered for an euerlastyng couenunt. * And they shall be Aarons y his sonnes, which shall eate them in the holy place. For they are most holy vnto him of the offerings of the Lordes by a perpetuall statute. And the son of an Israelitish wyfe, whose father was an Egyptian, went out among the chyldren of Israel. And this sonne of the Exaltitish wyfe, and a man of Israel stroue together in the hoste.

And the Israelitish womans sonne * blasphemed the name of the Lord: and cursed, and they brought hym vnto Moses. Hys mothers name was Salomith, which was the daughter of Dibzi: of the trybe of Dan: y they put hym in ward, that the mynde of the Lord myght be shewed them. And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: bynche the cursed speaker wythout the hoste, and let all that heard hym, put theyr handes vpon his head, y let al the multitude stoune hym. And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, saying: Who soeuer curseth his God shall beare hys synne. And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lord, let hym be slayne, and all the multitude shall stoune hym to death. Whether he be boine in the land of a stranger, when he blasphemeth the name of the Lord, let hym be slayne. And he that killeth any man, let hym dye the death. And he that killeth a beaste, let hym make hym good, soule for soule. And yf a man mayme hys neygghbour, as he hath done, so shall it be done to hym: y bryke for bryke: eye for eye and toth for toth: euen as he hath maymed a man, so shall he be maymed agayne. And he that killeth a beaste let hym paye for it: and he that killeth a man, let hym dye. Ye shall haue one maner of lawe: euen for the stranger aswell as for one of your selues, for I am the Lord your God. And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel, and they brought hym (that had cursed) out of the hoste, and stoune hym with stones. And the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lord commaunded Moses.

The xxxij. Chapter.

The Sabbath of the seven peres: and of the pere of the lande: the, otherwyle called the fiftenth pere.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses in Mount Sinai, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: wher ye come into the lande whiche I geue you, the lande shall rest, and kepe Sabbath vnto the Lord. * Syre peres thou shalt sowe thy felde and syre yere thou shalt cut the vyneyard, and gather in the frute thereof. But the seventh pere shall be a Sabbath of reste vnto the lande. The Lordes Sabbath it shall be: thou shalt neither sowe the felde, nor cut thy vyneyard. That whiche groweth of theowne accord he thou shalt not reape, nyether gather the grapes that thou hast lefte behynde, for it is a pere of rest vnto the lande. And the reste of the lande shall be meate for you: euen for the, for thy seruaunt: and for thy mayde for thy byrded seruaunt, and for the stranger that sojourneth wyth the: and for thy cattell, and for the beastes that are in the lande, shall all the increase thereof be meate.

And thou shalt nombr leue Sabbathes of peres vnto the, euen seuentymes seven yere: and the space of the seven Sabbathes of peres: wyl be vnto the nyne and fortye yere.

And when thou shalt make a trumpe blowe: in the tenth daye of the seventh moneth, euen in the daye of attonement shall ye make a trumpe blowe, & shalowe out all your lande. And thou shalte halowe that yere: euen the fiftieth yere, and proclaim lyberte for thowse out the lande: vnto all the inhabytens thereof, for it shall be a yere of iudelye vnto you, and ye shall retourne euery man vnto hys possession, and euery man vnto hys hynned agayne. A yere of iudelye that fiftieth yere be vnto you. Ye shal not some neyther reape that whiche groweth of it selfe, neyther gather the grapes that are lefte.

For that yere of iudelye shal be holpe vnto you: but ye shall eate of the increase thereof of the felde. In the yere of thys iudelye ye shall retourne euery man vnto his possession agayne. If thou selleste oughte to thy neyghboure, or byest of thy neyghbours hande, ye shall not dis- craue one another: but accordynge to the number of yeres after the iudelye yeare thou shalte bye of thy neyghboure, and accordynge vnto the nombre of yeres and of the frutes, he shall sell vnto the.

Accordynge vnto the multitude of yeres, he shall encrease the pryce thereof, and accordynge to the fewnesse of yeres, he shall mynyshe the pryce of it: for the nombre of frutes doeth he sell vnto the. * And shalowe not ye therfore euery man his neyghboure, but thou shalt feare thy God. For I am the Lord your God: whether for ye shall do after myne ordynances: & hepe my lawes, and do them, and ye shall dwell in the lande in lastye.

And the lande shall geue her frute, and ye shall eate your frute: and dwell therein in lastye. And if ye shal say: what shal we eate the seventh yere, for we shall not sow, nor gather in our increase? I wyl sende my blessinge vpon you in the syxe yere, and it shall byynge forth the frute for thye yeres, and ye shal sowe the egght yere, and eate yet of olde corne vntill the nyynth yere: euen vntill her frutes come, ye shall eate of olde store. In all the lande of your possession, ye shall graunte a redemption for the lande. If thy brother be waxed poore, and hath solde awaye of hys possession, and if any of hys kynne come to redeme it, lette hym by out that whiche his brother solde. And if he haue no man to redeme it, let hys hande get so muche as may be sufficient to bye it out agayne, and lette hym counse howe longe it hath bene solde, and deliuer the rest vnto the man to whom he solde it, that he maye retourne to hys possession agayne. But and if his hande can not get sufficient to restore to the other agayne, then that whiche is solde shall remaine in the hande of hym that hath bought it, vntill the yere of iudelye: and in the iudelye it shal come out, and he shall retourne vnto his possession agayne. And if a man sell a house of a dwellinge wythin the walles of a cite, he may bye it out agayne wythin a whole yere after it is solde: euen any daye of the yere shall he redeme it agayne. But and if he bye it not oute agayne wythin the space of a full yere, then the house that is in the walled cite, shalbe stablyshed, and be hys owne that boughte it, and hys successours after hym, and shall not go oute in the iudelye. But the houses of villages, whiche haue no walles rounde aboute them, are counted as the felde of the countrey, and therefore they maye be boughte out agayne, and shal retourne in the iudelye. Soe wythstandynge, the Cities of the Leuitres, and the houses of the cities of thys possession, maye the Leuitres redeme at all seasons. And if a man purchase oughte of the Leuitres, the house that was solde and the cite of thys possession shall goo oute in the yere of iudelye: for the houses of the cities of the Leuitres, are thys possession amonge the chyldren of Israel. But the felde of the suburbs that is by the cite, maye not be solde: but is thys perpetuall possession.

If thy brother be waxed poore, and fallen in decaye with the, thou shalt releeue hym, both the straunger and sojourner, that he maye liue with the. * And thou shalt take no vsurpe of hym, or vantage, but thou shalt feare the God, that thy brother maye lyue wyth the. Thou shalt not geue hym thy money vpon vsurpe, nor lende hym thy corne for increase. I am the Lord your God, whiche broughte you out of the lande of Egypte: to geue you the lande of Canaan, and to be your God. * If thy brother that dwelleth by the, be waxen poore, and he solde vnto the, thou shalt not compell hym to the bondage of seruantes, but as an hyred seruante, and as a sojourner he shal be wyth the, and shal serue the vnto the yere of iudelye, and then shal he departe from the, bothe he and hys chyldren wyth hym, and shall retourne vnto hys owne kynned agayne: and vnto the possession of hys fathers, for they are my seruantes, whiche I broughte out of the lande of Egypte, and shall not therfore be solde as bonde men. These shal be your possession, and ye shall take them as indertanner for your chyldren after you, to possesse them, they shall be your bonde men for ever. And ye shal chase your enemies, and they shal fall before you vpon the swearde. * And tye of you shal chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shal putten thousande to flyght, and your enemyes shal fall before you vpon the swearde. For I will haue respect vnto you, and make you increase and multiplye you, and sette vp my couenaunte wryth you. And ye shal eate olde store, and carpe out olde for the newe. * And I will make my dwelling place amonge you, and my soule shal not loth you. And when I haue broken the staffe of your bzeade: ten wyues shal bake your bzeade in one oven, and they shal deliuer you your bzeade agayne by weighte: ye shal eate, and not be satisfied. And if ye wyl not yet for al this, hearken vnto me, but shal walke agaynst me, I wyl walke contrary vnto you also in indignacion, and wyl chastice you seuen times for your synnes. * And ye shal eate the fleshe of your sonnes and the fleshe of your daughters shal ye deuoure.

Dnt. 3. a

III. Cor. vi. a

I wyl destroye your hie places, and rote out your ymages, and cast your carthasses vpon the bodies of your ydols, and my soule shal abhorre you. And I wyl make your cities desolate, and bynne your Sanctuary vnto nought, and wyl not smell the swetnesse of your odours. I wyl bynne the lande vnto a wyldernesse, and your enemyes whiche dwell therein, shal wonder at it. And I wyl strow you amonge the heathen, and wyl drawe out a swearde after you, and your lande shalbe waste, and your cities desolate. Then shal the lande enioye her Sabbothes, as longe as it lyeth voyde, & ye shalbe in your enemyes lande: euen then shal the lande reste, and reioyce in her Sabbothes. As longe as it lyeth voyde, it shal reste, because it dyd not rest in your Sabbothes, when ye dwelt vpon it.

And vpon them that are left a lye of you, I wyl sende a saputenesse into they: hartes in the lande of they: enemyes: and the sounde of a shakynge leafe, shal chase them, and when they see the swearde, they shal say: no man folowynge vpon them. They shal say one vpon another, as it were before a swearde, euen no man folowynge vpon them, and ye shal haue no power to stande before your enemyes: And ye shal perishe amonge the heathen, & the lande of your enemyes shal eate you vp.

I. iii. shal

And they that are left of you, shall ynn awaye in theyr brightnes, euen in theyr enemies lande, and in the midde of theyr fathers that they consume. And they shall confesse theyr misdeedes and the midde of theyr fathers for their trespass, whiche they haue trespassed agaynst me, and for that also that they haue walked contrary vnto me. Therefore, I also will walke contrary vnto them, and will bypunge them into the lande of theyr enemies. And then at the last waye theyr uncircumcised hartes shall be rained, & they shall make attonement for theyr misdeedes.

Deu. xiii.

And * I will remembre my couenant with Jacob, and my bonde with Isaac, and myne appoyntment with Abraham will I remember, and will thynke on the lande. The lande shall be left of them, & shall enioye her sabbothes while the spere waste without them.

Deu. xiii.

And they shall make an attonement for theyr misdeedes, because they despised my lawes, and because theyr soules refused myne ordinaunces: And yet for al that when they be in the lande of theyr enemies: * I will not cast them away, neither will I abhorre them, to destroye them utterly, and breake myne appoyntment with them: for I am the Lord thy God. I will for theyr sakes remembre the couenante made vnto their fathers when I broughte them out of the lande of Egypte in the syght of the heathen, & I might be theyr God: I am the Lord. These are my ordinaunces, and iudgements, and lawes: whiche the Lord made betwene him and the children of Israel in mount Sinaï, by the hande of Moses.

Of howe's bolles, and of theyr set.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the children of Israel, and say vnto them: If any mā will geue a singuler bolle vnto the Lord, accordyng to the value of the soules, the value of the male from twenty yere olde vnto syttee shall be syttee * sycles of siluer, after the weyght of the sanctuary. And if it be a female: the value shall be thyttee sycles. And from fyue yeres to twentye, the male shall be set at twentye sycles, and the female at x. sycles. And fro a moneth vnto fyue yere, the male shall be set at fyue sycles of syluer, and the female at thre. And he that is sixty yere olde, and aboue shall be valued at syttee sycles, and the woman at ten. But if he be to pooze so to be set he shall present hym selfe before the prest: and the prest shall value hym accordyng to the hande of hym that vowed is able to get, euen so shall the prest value hym. If it be a beast of whiche men byng an offering vnto the Lord: all that any man geueth of such vnto the Lord shall be counted holy. he shall not aulter it nor chaunge it a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. And if he chaunge beest for beest, the both the same beest and it also wher with it was chaunged shall be holpe. If it be any manner of vnclean beest, of wher men do not offer a sacrifice vnto the Lord, he shall set the beeste before the prest, and the prest shall value it, whether it be good or bad. And as the prest seteth it, so shall it be. But if he will byre it a gayne, he shall geue the fyfte parte more aboue that it was set at. If any man dedicate his house to be holy vnto the Lord: the prest shall set it, whether it be good or bad, and as the prest hath set it, so shall they value be. And wher he that sanctified it will redeme his house: let him geue the fyfte parte of the money that it was indged at therto, and it shall be his.

If a man buy a pece of his enherited lande vnto the Lord: it shall be set accordyng to the seide therof. If it beare an homer of barley it shall be set at fyfty sicles of siluer. If he buy his felde immediatlye from the pere of iudelye, it shall be worth accordyng to as it is esteemed. But and if he buye his felde after the iudelye, the prest shall rehen the money accordyng to the nombe of the yeres that remaine vnto the yeres of iudelye foloweng and thereafter it shall be lower set.

If he that consecrated the felde, will redeme it againe, let him put the fyfte parte of the price that it was set at therto, and it shall be his.

And if he will not redeme the felde, but selleth it to another mā, he (that buyeth) may redeme it nomore. But when the felde goeth out in that yere of iudelye, it shall be holy vnto the Lord: eue as a felde that is utterly put away, and it shall be the prestes possession. If a mā sanctify vnto the Lord a felde which he hath bought, and is not of his enheritaunce, the prest shall rehen vnto hym what it is worth vnto the pere of iudelye, & he shall geue the price that it is set at, the same daye, as a thyng consecrated vnto the Lord.

And in the yere of iudelye, the felde shall retorne vnto hym whose enheritaunce of land it is. And all setyng shall be accordyng to the sytle * of the sanctuary. One sytle contynerth twenty halfe pens.

* But the fyft bozne of sy beastes that is appoynted vnto the Lord, may no man sanctify: whether it be ore or shepe, for it is sy Lordes already. If it be an vnclean beest, he shall redeme it, as it is set at, and geue the fyfte parte more therto: Or if it be not redemed, it shall be solde, accordyng to the value. For withstanding, no damned thyng that a man putreth from hym & dedicateth vnto the Lord of all his good (whether it be mā or beest or land of his enheritaunce) may be solde or redemed: for euery thyng so put away is most holy vnto the Lord. Let no damned thyng that a man separateth: be redemed, but by the death. Euery tyth of the lande which is of the seide of the land, or of the frute of sy trees is the Lordes: and is sanctified vnto the Lord.

And if a man will redeme ought of his tythes: let hym ad the fyfte part therto. And euery tyth of ore and of shepe and of euery beest sy goeth vnder the rod, euen euery tenth shall be holy vnto sy Lord. he shall not loke if it be good or bad, nor chaunge it. Els if he chaunge it, both it and that it was chaunged withall, shall be halowed vnto the Lord, & may not be redemed. These are the comandementes which sy lord comanded by Moses vnto the chyldre of Israel in mount Sinaï.

The

The xiiij. Chapter.

The Levites go out to pasture, but minister in the sanctuary. They pitch their tent next to the habitation.

These are the generacions of Aaron and Moses, in the daye that the Lord spake with Moses in mounte Sinai, & these are the names of the sonnes of Aaron: Abiab the eldest son, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. * These are the names of the sonnes of Aaron which were priestes appointed, & whose hande was consecrated to minister. * And Abiab and Abihu dyed before the Lord: when they offered strange fyre before the Lord in the wyldernes of Sinai, & had no chyldren. And Eleazar and Ithamar ministered in the syght of Aaron theyr father.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: hyng the trybe of Levi, and sette them before Aaron the priest: that they maye serue hym, & wayte vpon hym and vpon all the multitude, before the tabernacle of wytnesse, to do the seruyce of the habitation. They shall kepe all the apparel of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and wayte vpon the chyldren of Israel to do the seruyce of the habitation. And thou shalt geue the Levites vnto Aaron and his sonnes, for they are geuen: and deliuered vnto hym of the chyldren of Israel. And thou shalt appoynt Aaron and his sonnes to wayte on theyr priestes offyce: and the stranger that commeth nye, shall be slayne.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: beholde, I haue taken the Levites from among the chyldren of Israel: for all the fyrst borne, that openeth the matrix among the chyldren of Israel, and the Levites shall be myne: because all the fyrst borne are myne: for the same daye that I smote all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypt, I halowed vnto me all the fyrst borne in Israel, both man and beaste, and myne they shall be: I am the Lord. And the Lord spake vnto Moses in the wyldernes of Sinai: saying: Nombze the chyldren of Levi after theyr houses of theyr fathers in theyr kynredes. All that are males, from a moneth olde and aboue shalt thou nombze. And Moses nombzed them accordyng to the commaundement of the Lord, and as he had commaunded. * And these were the chyldren of Levi in theyr names: Gerson and Cabath, and Merari. And these are the names of the chyldren of Gerson in theyr kynredes: Libni and Semel. The sonnes of Cabath in theyr kynredes: Amram, Jechar, Hebzon and Ouel. And the sonnes of Merari in theyr kynredes, Gabel and Gusi. These are the kynredes of Levites, accordyng to the houses of theyr fathers. Of Gerson came the kynred of the Libnites and the kynred of the Semelites. These are the kynredes of the Gersonites.

And the sum of them (after the number of all the males from a moneth olde and aboue) was seven thousande and fyue hundred. And the kynredes of the Gersonites that pitched beynde the habitation westward. The captayne and most auntyent of the house of the Gersonites, was Eliafah the sonne of Lael. And vnder the keepinge of the chyldren of Gerson in the tabernacle of wytnesse was the habitation and the tent the couerynge thereof, and the hangynge of the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse and the hangynge of the court, and the curtayne of the doore of the court: whiche is rounde aboute the Tabernacle, and the aultar, and the cordes of it for all the seruyce thereof. And of Cabath came the kynred of the Amramites, and the kynred of the Jecharites: the kynred of the Hebzonites, and the kynred of the Ouelites. These are the kynredes of the Cabathites. And the nombre of all the males from a moneth olde and aboue, was eight thousande and fyue hundred, & these shall kepe the thynges that are to be kepte in the holy place. And the kynred of the chyldren of Cabath shall pitch on the southsyde of the Tabernacle. The captayne and most auntyent of the house of the kynred of the Cabathites, was Eliafah the sonne of Ouel, & vnder theyr keepinge was the arke, the table, the candelltyche, and the aultar, and all the vessels of the sanctuary that they minister in, and the vapie, and what soeuer belonged to the ministracion thereof. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the priest, was captayne ouer all the captaynes of the Levites, and had the ouersyght of them that wayted vpon the sanctuary. And of Merari came the kynred of the Gabelites, and the kynred of the Gusites.

These are the kynredes of Merari. And the summe of them accordyng to the nombre of all the males, from a moneth olde and aboue was fyue thousande and two hundred. The captayne and the most auntyent of theyr house that were of the kynred of Merari, was Juriel the sonne of Abihail: and these shall pitch on the northsyde of the tabernacle. And vnder the custody of the sonnes of Merari shall be the boordes of the dwelling, and the barres, pylles and lockettes thereof, all the vessel thereof, and all that serueth thereto: and the pylles of the court rounde aboute, with theyr lockets, theyr pyennes and theyr cordes. But on the fore front of the habitation before the tabernacle of wytnesse eastward shall Moses and Aaron and theyr sonnes pitch and wayte to kepe the sanctuary, and to kepe the chyldren of Israel. And the stranger that commeth nye, shall be slayne. And the whole summe of the Levites whiche Moses and Aaron nombzed, at the commaundement of the Lord the rowout theyr kynredes: euen all the males from a moneth olde and aboue was xxiij. thousand. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: Nombze all the fyrst borne that are males among the chyldren dyn of Israel (from a moneth olde and aboue) and take the nombze of theyr names. And thou shalt appoynte the Levites to me (for I am the Lorde) for all the fyrste borne of the chyldzen of Israel, and the cattell of the Levites, for all the fyrste greded of the cattell of the chyldzen of Israel. And Moses nombzed as the Lord commaunded hym, all the fyrste borne of the chyldzen of Israel. And all the fyrste borne males rehered by theyr names (from a moneth olde and aboue, accordyng to theyr nombze) were. xxii. thousand two hundred and. lxviii. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: take the Levites for al the fyrste borne of the chyldzen of Israel, and the cattell of the Levites for theyr cattell, and the Levites shall be myne. I am the Lorde. And for the redempcyng of the two hundred & lxviii. (whych are mo then the Levites in the fyrste borne of the chyldzen of Israel) take fyve sheles of every head after the weyght of the Sanctuary, & the shele contaynynge twenty halfpenny. And geue the money wherewith the olde nombze of them is redeemed vnto Aaron and his sonnes. And Moses toke the redempcyon money, of & ouerplus that were mo then the Levites: of the fyrste borne of the chyldzen of Israel toke he this money: euen a thousande thre hundred and. lxx. sheles, after the shele of the Sanctuary. And Moses gaue the money of them that were redeemed, vnto Aaron and his sonnes, accordyng to the woide of the Lorde, euen as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

The. liii. Chapter.

Of the offyce of the Levites.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, and Aaron sayinge: Take the sum of the chyldzen of Caphth frome amonge & sonnes of Levi, after their hundredes & houses of theyr fathers (from thysse yere and aboue vntyll fyfthe) all that are able to go furth to the warre: for to doo the worke in the tabernacle of wytnesse. The offyce of the chyldzen of Caphth in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, is most holy. And when the host remourth, Aaron and his sonnes shall come and take downe the vayle, that hangeth betwene & wyappe the arke of wytnesse in it: and shall put thereon a couerpyng of tarus shynnes, and shall spede vpon it a clothe that is altogether of pelowe sylke, and put in the barres thereof. And vpon the wywe table, they shall spede abzode a clothe of pelowe sylke, and put thereon the dyshes, spones, flatpates, and pots to powze wyth and there shall be bread thereon continually: and they shall spede vpon them a couerpyng of purple, and couer the same with a couerpyng of tarus shynnes and putte in the barres thereof. And this is the seruyce of the hyndred of the chyldzen of Gerson in the tabernacle of wytnesse, and theyr watche shall be vnder the hande of Ichamar the sonne of Aaron the High Priest. And thou shalt nombze the sonnes of Merari after theyr hundredes, and after the houses of theyr fathers: from thysse yeres and aboue vnto fyfthe shalt thou nombze them, euery one that is able

And the nombres of them thowowe out theyr hyndredes were two thousande, seven hundred and fyftee. This is the nombze of the hyndredes of Caphath: namely, all that myght do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, which Moses and Aaron did nombze accordyng to the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses. These are the nombzes of the sonnes of Gerari thowowe out theyr hyndredes and houses of theyr fathers, from thirtie yere vnto fyfty all that were able to go forth to the warre, for to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombzes of them thowowe out theyr hyndredes, and houses of theyr fathers, were two thousande syxe hundred and thirtie. This is the nombze of the hyndredes of the sonnes of Gerari of all that dyd seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, whiche Moses and Aaron dyd nombze accordyng to the commaundement of the Lorde. And these are the nombzes of the hyndredes of the sonnes of Gerari thowowe out theyr hyndredes and houses of theyr fathers from thirtie yere vnto fyfty: all that wente forth to the warre, and serued in the tabernacle of wytnesse. ¶ The. v. Chapter.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayng: I commaunde the chyldren of Israel, that they put out of the hoste, euery leper and eu-ery one that hath an yllne, and whosover is defiled vpon a soule. Both male and female shall be put out: euery one of the hoste that I put them, that they despyle not the tentes amonge which I dwel. And the chyldren of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the hoste, euery as the Lorde spake vnto Moses, so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayng: I speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: whether it be a man or woman. If they haue comytted any synne that a man doth, I haue trespassed agaynst the Lorde, that soule hath done amysse: Therefore they shall knowe theyr synne whiche they haue done, and let hym restore agayne the hurte that he hath done in the hole, and putte the fyfte parte of it more thereto, and geue it vnto hym, whome he hath trespassed agaynst.

But and yf there be not a man to restore the hurte vnto, nor a kynsman of hym, lette the trespass be made good vnto the Lorde, and it shalbe the prestes, besyde the ram of the attonement, wherby an attonement shalbe made for hym. And euery heue offering that is made of the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel whiche they byng vnto the prest, shalbe his, and euery mans halowed thynges shal be his: and what so euer any man geueth the prest, it shalbe his. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayng: I speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them. If any mans wyfe go asyde & trespace agaynst hym, so that another man lye with her secretly, & it be hyd from the eyes of her husbande, & is not come to lyght that she is defyled, and there is no wytnesse agaynst her, neyther she taken with any manner, and the spete of gealousye cometh vpon hym, so that he is gealous ouer his wyfe, whiche is defyled: or yf the spete of gealousye come vpon hym, so that he is gealous ouer his wyfe whiche is yet vndefyled: then let the man byng his wyfe vnto the prest, and byng with her an offering for her: the tenth part of an Ephah of barley meale but let hym put none oyle vpon it, nor put frankincense thereon: for it is an offering of gealousye an offering for a remembrance, causyng the synne to be thought vpon.

And the prest shal byng her: and set her before the Lorde, and let hym take holy water in an earthen vessel, and of the dust that is in the floore of the habitacion, and put it into the water. And let the prest set the woman before the Lorde, and vncouer the womans heade, and put the memoiall of the offering in her handes which is the gealous offering, and the prest shal haue bytter and cursed water in his hande, & the prest shal charge her, and saye vnto the woman. If no man haue lye with the, neyther haue she gone asyde to vncleanness without thy husbande, then haue thou no harme of this bitter and cursed waters. But and yf thou haue gone asyde behynde thyne husbande, and art defyled, and some other man hath lye with the besyde thyne husbande, (and the prest shal charge the woman with an horrible curse, and the prest shal saye vnto the woman) the Lorde make the to be an abhominacion and a curse amonge the people: when the Lorde Lorde hee make thy thy taste, and thy belly swell: These cursed waters go into the bowels of the, that they maye make thy belly swell, and thy thy rot, and let the woman saye, Amen, Amen. And let the priest waite these curses.

D And when they be cleued, let hym cast the in to bitter waters, and geue the woman those bitter and cursed waters to drynke, that those cursed and bitter waters maye enter into her. And then the priest shall take the gellousye offering out of the womans hand, and waite it before the Lord, and drynke it unto the altar and the priest shall take an handfull of the offering for a memoriall, and burne it upon the altar, and then make the woman drynke the water: and when he hath made the woman drynke the waters, (if she be defyled and haue trespassed agaynst her husbande:) then shall the cursed and bitter waters go into her, and her belly shall swell, and her thy shall rot, and the woman shall be a curse amonge her people. And if the woman be not defyled, but is cleane, she shall haue no harme but shall conceaue and bare. This is the lawe of gellousye, when a wyfe goeth asyde beynd her husband, and is defyled, or when the sperte of gellousye cometh vpon a man and he drynke gellousye ouer his wyfe, both drynke her before the Lord. And the priest shall do accordyng vnto al this lawe, and the man shall be gyltlesse, and the woman shall beare her synne.

The vi. Chapter.

The lawe of abstinence. The blessing of the people.

And if the Lord speake vnto Moyses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when either man or woman dothe seperate them selues to vowe a vowe of an abstinence, & appoynt them selues vnto the Lord, he shall seperate hym selfe from wine & strong drynke, and shall drynke no vneage of wyne or of stronge drynke, nor shall drynke whatsoeuer is pressed out of grapes: & shall eate no fete the grapes, neether yet dryed. As longe as his abstinence endureth, shall he eate no thyng that is made of the vyne tre, or of the carnels, or of the huske of the grape. And as longe as he voweth, & is seperated, there shall no rasure come vpon his heade: but vntill his dayes be oute, in the which he seperated hym selfe vnto the Lord, he shall be holy, and shall let the lockes of his heare growe.

As longe as he consecrateth him selfe vnto the Lord, he shall come at no dead body: he shall not make hym selfe vncleane at the deathe of his father, mother, brother, or sister: because that the vowe of the abstinence of his God is vpon his heade. All the dayes of his abstinence he is holy vnto the Lord. And if it fortune that any man by chaunce dye suddenly before hym, the heade of his abstinence shall be defyled, and he shall haue his heade the dayes of his cleynsinge: euen the seventh daye he shall haue it. And the eyght daye he shall drynke two turtles or two yonge pygeons to the priest, before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the priest shall offer the one for synne, and the other for a burnt offering, and make an attonement for hym as concerninge the synne whiche he hath committed. And he shall be synned vpon a scape, & shall be borne the same daye, and he shall consecrate hym selfe vnto the Lord the tyme of his abstinence) and shall drynke a lambe of a yere olde for trespass: but the dayes that were before are lost, because his abstinence was defyled. This is the lawe of the abstinence, when the tyme of his abstinence is out, he shall be brought vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall drynke his offering vnto the Lord: on he lambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for a burnt offering, and a she lambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for synne, a ram without blemyshe also for a peace offering, and a basket of sweete breade, euen cakes of fyne flour mingled wyth oyle, and bakers of sweete breade anoynted wyth oyle, wyth theyr meate offerings and drynke offerings.

And the priest shall drynke hym before the Lord, and offer his syn offering and his burnt offering and shall offer the ram for a peace offering vnto the Lord, wyth the basket of sweete breade, and the priest shall offer also his meate offering and his drynke offering. And he shall haue the heade of the abstinence in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse: euen the head of his abstinence, and shall take the heare of his lockes heare and put it in the fyre, whiche is vnder the peace offering. And the priest shall take the loden quilder of the ram, and one sweete cake out of the basket, and one sweete water also, and put them vpon the handes of the abstinence (after he hath shawen his abstinence of) and the priest shall waite them before the Lord. And these holy thynges shall be the priestes wyth the wauchbet and beare quilder, and then the abstinence maye drynke wyne. This is the lawe of the abstinence whiche hath vowed his offering vnto the Lord for his consecracyon: Wely desethese thynges that his hande can get, accordyng to the vowe whiche he vowed, euen so he muste do after the lawe of his abstinence. And if the Lord speake vnto Moyses, saying: speake vnto Aaron and his sons, sayinge: of this wyse ye shall blesse the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them.

The Lord blesse the, and kepe the.

The Lord make his face shyne vpon the and be merciful vnto the. The Lord lyft vp his countenance vpon the, and geue the peace. And they shall put my name vpon the chyldren of Israel, and I will blesse them.

unto them. And the Leuites were purified and washed they: clothes. And Aaron waued them before the Lozde, and made an attonement for them, and benedicted them. After that went the Leuites in to be they: seruice in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, before Aaron and his sonnes: as the Lozde had commaunded Moses concerning the Leuites, euen so they dyd vnto them.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: these is it that belongeth vnto the Leuites: * fro xxv. yere vppwarde they shall go in, to waite vpon the seruice of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and from the age of fiftye yere, they shall cease waitynge vpon the seruice thereof, and shall serue no more: but shall minystrer vnto they: brethren in the tabernacle of wytnesse, to waite, but shall do no more seruice. Thus therefore shalt thou do vnto the Leuites in they: watche.

The ii. Chapter.

The departure of the people.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses in the wyldernesse of Synai, in the first moneth of the seconde yere, after they were come out of the land of Egypt sayenge: lette the chyldren of Israel offer passeouer in they: season: euen the fourtene daye of they: moneth at euen lette hye it in they: season, accordyng to all the ceremonyes of it, and accordyng to all the maners thereof. And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, that they shoulde offer passeouer, & they offered passeouer the fourtene daye of the fyfthe moneth at euen in the wyldernesse of Synai, accordyng to all that the Lozde commaunded Moses, euen so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

And certayne men were defiled vpon the soule of a man, that they myghte not offer passeouer the same daye. And they came before Moses and Aaron the same daye. And the men sayde vnto hym: We are defiled vpon the soule of man, wherefore are we kepte backe that we maye not offer an offering vnto the Lozde in the due season, amonge the chyldren of Israel? And Moses sayd vnto them: Stande styll, and I wyll heare what the Lozde wyll commaunde concernyng you.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses sayenge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: Ye any man amonge you or your chyldren after you be uncleane by the reason of a cosse, or is in the waye farre from you, and wyll offer passeouer vnto the Lozde: the fourtene daye of the seconde moneth at eue let them offer it, and eate it with swete hynde and lowe herbes: lette them leane none of it vnto the moynynge: nor breake anye boue of it: But accordyng to all the ordynaunce of the passeouer, let them offer it.

But the man that is cleane & is not in a journey, and yet was negligent to offer passeouer: the same soule shall perpe from his people, because he brought not the offeringe of the Lozde in his due season, that man shall beare his synne. And if a stranger dwel amonge you, and wyll offer passeouer vnto the Lozde, accordyng to the ordynaunce of passeouer and maner thereof, he shall offer it thus. Ye shall haue one lawe both for the straunger, and for hym that was bozne at home in the lande.

At the same daye that the Tabernacle was created by, a cloude covered the habitacon, which was a tabernacle of the wytnesse: and at euen there was vpon the habitacon, as it were the sympletyude of fyre vntill the moynynge.

So it was alwaye, the cloude covered it by day and the sympletyude of fyre by nyght. And when the cloude was taken vpon from of the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Israel iourneyed: and where the cloude abode, there the chyldren of Israel pitched they: tentes. At the mouth of the Lozde the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, and at the mouth of the Lozde they pitched. And as longe as the cloude abode vpon the habitacon they laye styll: and when the cloude taried styll vpon the habitacion longe tyme, the chyldren of Israel kepte the watche of the Lozde, and iourneyed not. And it chaunced that when the cloude abode a fewe dayes vpon the habitacon, they abode in they: tentes, accordyng to the commaundement of the Lozde: and they iourneyed also at the commaundement of the Lozde.

And it happened that when the cloude abode vpon the habitacon from euen vnto the moynynge, & was taken vpon in the moynynge, then they iourneyed. Whether it was by day or by nyght the cloude was takē vpon they iourneyed. Or if the cloude taried two dayes or a moneth, or a longe season vpon the habitacion, and remayned thereon, the chyldren of Israel abode styll, and iourneyed not. And as soone as the cloude was taken vpon, they iourneyed. At the mouth of the Lozde they rested in the tentes, and at the commaundement of the Lozde, they iourneyed, keepyng the watch of the Lozde, at the commaundement of the Lozde by the hande of Moses.

The i. Chapter.

The trumpettes of synay. The Israelites departe from synay. The captaynes of the hostes are named. Godab is: tuler to go with moles.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Make the two trumpettes of silyer: of an whole pece shalt thou make them, that thou mayst vse them to call the congregacion together, and when the hoste shall iourney. Therefore shall they blowe with them, that all the multitude maye reioyce to the before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And if they blowe but one trumpette, then the prynces whiche are heabes ouer the thousandes of Israel shall come vnto the. But if ye trumpe, & hostes shal lyve on the east partes that go forwarde. And if ye trumpe the seconde tyme, the hoste that lyeth on the south syde shall take they: iourney: for they shall trompe whē they take they: iourneys. But when the congregacion is to be gathered together, they shall blowe only, and not trompe. And the sonnes of Aaron the prestes shall blowe with they: trumpettes, & ye shall haue them as a lawe for euer in your generacions.

And if ye go to warre in your lande agaynst your enemies that hate you, pe shal blow with the trompetts, and ye shal be remembered before the Lorde your God to be saved from your enemies. Also in the daye of your gladnes, and in your feast dayes, and in the begynnyngs of your monethes, ye shall blowe the trompettes over your burnt sacrifices and peaceofferings, that they may be a remembrance for you before your God. I am the Lorde your God.

And it came to passe the twentieth daye of the seconde month in the second yere, that the cloude was taken up from the habitation of wieners. And the chyldren of Israel toke theyr journey out of the deserte of Sinai, and the cloude rested in the wyldernes of Iheraan. And the fyrst toke theyr journey at the mouth of the Lorde, by the hand of Moyses. In the fyrst place went the standarde of the hoste of Iuda, according to theyr armyes: whose captayne was Nabalson the son of Aminadab. And over the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Iasachar, was Nathanael the sonne of Iuar. And over the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Iabulon, was Eliah the sonne of Ierion. And the habitation was taken downe: and the sonnes of Gerson and merari wente forthe bearyng the habitation.

And the hoste of Ruben went forth with theyr standarde and armyes, whose captayne was Elisur the sonne of Bedeur. And over the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Simeon was Salamiel the sonne of Suri Saddai. And over the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Gad was Eliasaph the sonne of Weguell. The Caphathites also went forward and bare the sanctuary, & the other byd set by the habitation against they cam. And the standarde of the hoste of the chyldren of Ephraim went forth according to theyr armyes whose captayne was Elisama the sonne of Amind. And over the hoste of the tribes of the sonnes of Manasse, was Samael the sonne of Bedazur. And over the hoste of the tribe of the sonnes of Ben Jamin was Ithidan the sonne of Gedeoni.

And the standarde of the hoste of the chyldren of Dan came forth bearyng all the hostes together: thowout theyr armyes: whose captayne was Abizer the sonne of Ammi Saddai. And over the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Isser, was Dagiel the sonne of Oehiam. And over the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Asephthalp, was Abira the sonne of Eni. These are the journeyes of the chyldren of Israel thowout theyr armyes: and thus the hostes remoured.

And Moyses sayde unto hobab the sonne of Raguell the Madianite: whych was Moyses father in lawe: we go into the place of whych the Lorde sayde: I wyl geue it you. Come thou ther fore with us, & we wyl do the good for the Lorde hath promysed good unto Israel. And he answered him: I wyl not go: but wyl depart to myne owne lande & to my kynred. He sayde: Oh naye, leane vs not: for thou knowest our mansions in the wyldernesse: & thou hast bene to vs in steade of eyes. And if thou go with us loke what good wylle the Lorde sheweth unto us: the same wyl we shewe unto the.

And they departed from the mount of the Lorde the daies journey: & the arche of the testament of the Lorde went before the in the thir dayes journey, to searche out a resting place for them. And the Lorde made a habitation for them thowout the cloude by day, wher they went out of the tentes.

And it fortuned, that when the arche wente forthe Moyses sayde: Rise up Lorde, and lette thine enemies be scattered: and lette them that hate the, flye before the. And when the arche rested, he sayde: Returne O Lorde unto the many thousandes of Israel.

The xi. Chapter.

The people murmured. They sayd: We have taken the journey of the Lorde out of Egypt, and we have come into this wilderness, and the Lorde hath sayd unto us: Rise up and lette thine enemies be scattered: and lette them that hate the, flye before the. And when the arche rested, he sayde: Returne O Lorde unto the many thousandes of Israel.

And it fortuned, that when the people byd wechede, it was a dyspleasure in the eyes of the Lorde. And when the Lorde herde the dyspleasure was prouoked to wrath, and the fyre of the Lorde burnt amonge the, and consumed them & were uttermost of the hoste. And the people cryed unto Moyses. And Moyses made intercession unto the Lorde, the fyre quench. And the name of the place was called Thaberah, because the fyre of the Lorde burnt amonge the.

And the rascal people was amonge them, fell a lustynge, and turned the stony and werpe (euen as byd also the chyldren of Israel) & sayd: who shall geue us fleshe to eate? we remember the fyre whiche we byd eate in Egypt for naught and the cucumbers and melons, leeks, onions & garliche. But now our soule is dyed awaye, for we can se nothinge els save Manna.

The Manna was as coriander seede, & (to se to) lyke Bedellis. And the people went about and gathered it, & ground it in myles, & bet it in morters, & baked it in pannes, & made cakes of it. And the taste of it was lyke unto the taste of an oyle cake. And wher the dew fel downe vpon the hoste in the nyght, the Manna fell vpon it.

And when Moyses herde the people wepe thowout theyr householdes, every man in the doore of his tente, the face of the Lorde was prouoked unto wrath exceedingly: and it grieved Moyses also. And Moyses said unto the Lorde: wherfore hast thou dealt cruelly with thy seruantes? And wherfore haue I not founde fauour in thy sight, seeing that thou puttest the weyghe of all this people vpon me: haue I conceyued all this people? Or haue I begotten them: that I shuldest saye unto me: carry them in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the suckynge chyld) vnto the lande, whych thou swarest vnto theyr fathers: where shuld I haue fleshe, to geue vnto all this people, whych wepe before me, sayeng: geue us fleshe & we maye eate? I am not able to beare all this people alone, saying it is to heuy for me. If thou deale thus with me, kyl me, I praye the. If I haue founde fauour in thy sight, that I be not my wretchidnes.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses, & gather vnto me lxx. men of the chyldren of Israel, whych I knowest, & they are the elders of the people & officers ouer oute them and thou shalt hyunge them vnto the Tabernacle of Testymonye, that they maye stande there vnto the: And I wyll come downe, and talke with the chere, & take of the sperte which is vpon the, and put vpon them, and they shall beate the burthen of the people with þe, lest thou be constrained to beare it alone.

And sape thou vnto the people be halowed agaynst to morowe, and ye shall eate fleshe: for your whynnyng is in the eares of the Lorde, seynge ye sayde: who shall geue vs fleshe to eate we were happye in Egypte: therefore the Lorde wyll geue you fleshe, and ye shall eate. Ye shall not eate one daye nor two, nor fyue dayes, neyther ten, nor twenty dayes: but euen a moneth longe vntill it come out as the nostrils of you: and make you to verbaue, because that ye haue caste the Lorde alowe which is amonge you: and haue wepte before hym, sayinge, why came we thus out of Egypte? And Moyses sayde: I speke hundred thousande foremen are there of the people, amonge whiche I am. And thou hast sayde I wyll geue them fleshe, that they maye eate a moneth longe. Shall the shepe and the oxen be slayne for them, to fynde them: ether shall all the fysh of the see be gathered together for them to serue them? And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Shall the Lorde hande be warded? Thou shalt se now whether my worde shall come to passe vnto the, or not.

And Moyses wente out, and tolde the people the sayinge of the Lorde, and gathered the lxx. elders of the people, and set them rounde aboute the tabernacle. And the Lorde came downe in a cloude, and spake vnto him, and toke of þe sperte that was vpon hym and gaue it vnto the lxx. elders. And it fortuned, that when the sperte rested vpon them, they prophesied, and byd not cease. But there remayned two of the me in the hoste: the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of the other Medad. And the sperte, rested vpon them, and they were of them þe were wynten, and wente not out vnto the tabernacle, but prophesied in the hoste. And there ranne a ponge man, and tolde Moyses and sayde: Eldad & Medad do prophesy in the hoste. And Joshua the son of Nun the seruant of Moyses one of hyr ponge men, answered and sayde: master Moyses, & forbyd them. And Moyses sayde vnto hym, enuyest thou for my sake? wolde God that all the Lorde's people coulde prophesy, and that the Lorde wolde put hyr sperte vpon them. And Moyses gat hym into the hoste, he and the elders of Israel. And there went forthe a wynde from the Lorde: and he broughte quayles from the see: and let them fall aboute the hoste, euen a dayes iourney rounde about on euery syde of the hoste, and as it were two cubites hie ouer the earthe. And the people stode vp, and all that daye and all that nyght, and on the morow they gathered quayles. And he that gathered a lytie, gathered ten homers full. And they layed them abrode rounde aboute the hoste:

And whyle the fleshe was yet betwene theyr teth, and yet it was shewed vp: beholde the condemnation of the Lorde was moued agaynst the people, and the Lorde sent the people with an exceeding great plague. And the name of þe place was called, the graues of luste, because they buried the people that lusted there. And the people toke theyr iourney from the graues of lust vnto Hazereth, and hode at Hazereth.

¶ The xiiij. Chapter.

And Miriam and Aaron spake agaynst Moyses, because of the woman of Inde whiche he had taken: for he had take to wyfe one of Inde. And they sayde: hathe the Lorde mured spoken only thow we Moyses? hathe he not spoken also by vs? And the Lorde hard it. But Moyses was a very meke man, aboue all men of the earthe. And the Lorde spake at once vnto Moyses vnto Aaron and to Miriam, come out ye thre vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, & they came out all thre. And the Lorde came downe in the pillar of the cloude, and stode in the dore of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Miriam. And they went out both of them. And he sayd heare my wordes. If there be a prophet of þe Lorde amonge you, I wyll be knowen of hym in a visyon: and wyll speake vnto hym in slepe. My seruant Moyses is not so, whiche is sayd full in al myne house. Vnto hym wyl I speake & moue to mouth in a visyon: but in rypeis and simplytides doth not he se the Lorde. Wherefore then were ye not afrayed to speake agaynst my seruant Moyses? And the Lorde was moued vnto wrath agaynst them, and he went hyr way: and the cloude departed from the tabernacle. And he hold Miriam was become leprous, as it were snowe. And Aaron looked vpon Miriam & beholde, she was leprous, and Aaron sayde vnto Moyses: I beseeche the my Lorde, put not the syn vpon vs, which we haue folyshly comitted and dmed. Oh, let her not be as one that cometh out of his mothers wombe, and whose halfe flesch is eaten a waye. And Moyses cryed vnto the Lorde sayinge: Heale her O God, I beseeche the.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses: If her father had spyt in her face, shulde she not be ashamyd seven dayes: let her be shut out of the hoste seven dayes, and after that let her be receyued in agayne. And Miriam was shut out of the hoste seven dayes, and the people remoued not, tyl she was brought in agayne. And afterwarde the people remoued from Hazereth, and pitched in the wyldernesse of Paran.

¶ The xliij. Chapter.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayng: Send men out to searche the land of Canaan whiche I geue vnto þe children of Israel: of euery trybe of theyr fathers shal I sende a man, and let them all be such as are rulers amonge them. And Moyses at the commaundement of þe Lord sent forth one of the wyldernesse of Paran such men as were at heade of þe children of Israel: theyr names are these. Of the trybe of Ruben, Samuua the sonne of Zacur.

Of the trybe of Simeon, Gaddai the sonne of Hosi. Of the trybe of Iuda, Caleb the sonne of Iephune, of scribe of Iachar Igeal the sonne of Ioseph. Of the trybe of Ephraim, Osea the sonne of Nun. Of the trybe of Ben Iamin, Balai the sonne of Rappu. Of the trybe of Zabulon, Gadiell the sonne of Gadi. Of the trybe of Ioseph, namely of the trybe of Manasse, Gadthi the sonne of Gusi. Of the trybe of Dan, Amiel the sonne of Gemali. Of the trybe of Aser, Bethur the sonne of Michael. Of the trybe of Reubeni, Rabebi the sonne of Rappu. Of the trybe of Gad, Gueli the sonne of Gachi. These are the names of the men, whiche Moyses sent to spye out the lande. And Moyses called the name of Osea the sonne of Nun, Iosua.

And Moyses sent them forth to spye out the lande of Canaan, and sayde vnto them: get you by this waye southwarde, that ye maye go by into the hie countrey, and se the lande what maner thinge it is, and the people dwelleth therein: whether they be stronge or weake, ether few or manye, and what the lande is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad: and what maner of cities they be, that they dwell in whether they dwell in tentes or walled townes: and what maner of lande it is: whether it be fat or leane, and whether there be trees therein or not. Be of a good courage, and bring of the fruite of the lande. And it was about the tyme that grapes are first ripe. And so they went up, and searched out the lande from the wilderness of sin vnto Rehob, as men come to hemarh, and they ascended vnto the south, and came vnto hebzon, where Himan was and Belai and Calmai, the sonnes of Enach. Hebzon was buylte seven yere before joan in Egypte. And they came vnto the ryuer of Escoll, and cut downe there a brynche with one clouster of grapes and twayne bare it vpon a staffe: and they brought also of the pomegranates and of the fygges. And the place was called the ryuer Escoll, because of the clouster of grapes whiche the chyldren of Israel cut downe thence. And they turned backe againe from searching of the lande after fourty dayes. And they wente and came to Moyses and Aaron and vnto all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel in the wilderness of Shara: which is cades, & brought them worde, and also vnto all the congregacion, and shewed them the fruite of the lande. And they tolde hym, and sayde: we came vnto the lande whither thou sendest vs, and surely it floweth with mylke and honye: and here is of the fruite of it. Nevertheless, the people be stronge that dwell in the lande, and the cyties are walled and exceedingly greate: and moreover, we sawe the chyldren of Enach there. The Amalechites dwell in the south countrey, and the heathens, Jebusites, and the Amorites dwell in the mountaynes, and the Cananites dwell by the see and by the coste of Iordan.

And Caleb stilled the murmure that was raised by the people before Moyses, saying: we will go by, and conquer it: for we be able to overcome it. But the men that wente by with hym, sayde

We be not able to go by agaynst the people: for they are stronger then we. And they brought by an enel repoite of the lande which they had searched, sayinge vnto the chyldren of Israel: the lande whiche we haue gone thowre to searche it oute, is a lande that eateth up the inhabytors therof: and the people that we sawe in it, are men of a greate stature. And there we sawe also gyantes, the chyldren of Enach, whiche come of the gyantes. And we sowed in oure syght as it were grethoppers, and so we byd in theyr syght.

The xiiii. Chapter.

The people murmure agaynst God, and by the howe stones Caleb and Iosua. The searchers of the lande speake Amalechites belied the Israelites.

At all the multitude of the people cryed out, and wepte thowout that nyght, and all the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynst Moyses and Aaron. And the whole congregacion sayd vnto them: Wold God that we had dyed in the lande of Egypt, ether that we had dyed in this wilderness. Wherefore hath the Lord brought vs vnto this lande: to fall vpon the swearde: and that our wyues, & our chyldren shulde be a praye: Were it not better that we returne vnto Egypte agayne? And they sayd one to another: We will make a captayne and returne vnto Egypte agayne.

But Moyses and Aaron fell on theyr faces before all the congregacion and multitude of the chyldren of Israel: And Iosua the sonne of Nun, and Caleb the sonne of Iephune (whych were of them that searched the lande) rent theyr clothes, and spake vnto all the compaigne of the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: The lande whiche we walked thowre to searche, it is a very good lande. If the Lord haue lust to vs, he will bring vs into his lande and geue it vs, which is such a lande as floweth with mylke and honye. But in any wyse rebel not ye agaynst the Lord.

Neither nede ye to feare the people of the land: for they are but breade for vs. Theyr shadowe is departed from them, and the Lord is with vs: feare them not therfore.

But all they whiche were in that multitude had stoned them with stones. And the gloze of the Lord appeared in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, before all the chyldren of Israel. And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: howe longe do this people prouoke me, and howe longe will ye be per they beleue me: for all the signes whiche I haue shewed amonge them: I will smyte them with the pestilence and destroye them: and will make of the a greater nacyon and myghtyer then they.

And Moyses sayde vnto the Lord: then the Egyptians shall heare it, for thou broughtest this people in thy myght from amonge them. And it will be tolde to the inhabytors of this lande also: for they haue harde the wyse, that the Lord arte amonge this people: and that thou Lord arte sene face to face, and that thy cloude standeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them by daye tyme in a pylle of a cloude, and in a pylle of fyre by nyght.

If thou

And when all this people as they were but women, then I say: The Lord is not able to bring in this people into the land, whiche he swore unto them: but hath slain them in the wilderness. And now I beseech thee, let the power of my Lord be great, according as thou hast spoken: saying: the Lord is long per be angry, and full of mercy, and suffereth iniquity, and sinne, and leauech no man innocent, and visiteth the iniquitousness of the fathers vpon the children, in the thyrde and fourth generation: be mercifull I beseech the vnto the synne of this people, according vnto thy great mercy, as thou hast forgiven this people from Egypte, vntill now. And the Lord sayde:
 I have forgiven it, according to thy request.
 But as truly as I lyue, al the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord. But all those men whiche haue sene my glory and my myra-cles whiche I dyd in Egypt and in the wildernesse, and haue tempted me now this ten times and will not hearken vnto my voyce, shall not se the land whiche I swore vnto thy fathers: nether shall any of them that prouoked me se it.

But my seruante * Caleb: with whome there was another man of sperte: & because he hath folowed me vnto the vtmost, hym will I bring into the lande whiche he hath walked in, and his seide shall inherite it, and also the Amalechites & Cananites whiche dwell in the playne countrey.
 To morrow turne you, and get you into the wyl-dernesse: euen by the waye of the red see.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aron, sayinge: howe longe both this euell multitude murmur agaynst me? I haue heard & murmurings of the children of Israel, with the whiche they murmure agaynst me: Tell them therefore: As truly as I lyue (saith the Lord) I will doe vnto you euen as ye haue spoken in mine eares. Your carhailes shall lye in this wyl-dernesse. And all you that were tolde this: woute your nombres, frant wente peere & adoue, (whiche haue murmured agaynst me) shall not come into the lande, oute whiche I sware vnto your fathers, to make you dwell therein, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune, and Iosua the sonne of Nun.

But your children, whiche ye saye shall be a people, them will I bring in, and they shall knowe the lande whiche ye haue refused, and your carhailes shall lye in this wilderness. And your children shall wander in this wilderness, fortye yeres, and suffer for your whoredome, vntill your carhailes be wasted in the wilderness, after the nombre of the dayes in whiche ye serched out the lande, euen forty dayes. & euery daye for a yere shall ye beate your vnrightrousnesse euen forty yeres, and ye shall knowe my displeasure: I the Lord haue sayde, that I will do it vnto all this euell congregation that are gathered together agaynst me. For in this wilderness they shall be consumed, and here they shall dye.

And the men whiche Moses sente to searche the lande, and whiche when they came agayne made all the people to murmur befoe hym and brought vp a slander vpon the land, then those men that had been vnto that slander vpon it, as though it had bene euill, dyed in a great plague befoe the Lord. But Iosua the sonne of Nun and Caleb the sonne of Iephune whiche were of the men that wente to searche the lande, liued still. And Moses tolde these sayings vnto all the children of Israel, & the people toke great sor-rowe. And they rose vp early in the morninge, & gatte them vp into the toppe of the mountayne, sayinge: * lo, we be here, and will go vnto the place of whiche the Lord sayde vnto vs, for we haue synned. And Moses sayde: wherfore will ye go on this maner, beyonde the word of the Lord: it will not come well to passe: go not vp this foze: (for the Lord is not amonge you) that ye be not slain befoe your enemies. For the Amalechites and the Cananites are there befoe you, and ye will fall vpon the sword because ye are turned a waye from the Lord, and the Lord will not be with you.

But they presumed obstynately to go vnto the hill topye. Afterwards, the Arche of the testamente of the Lord, and Moses departed not out of the hoste. Then the Amalechites and the Cananites, whiche dwelte in that hill came downe and smote them, and beset them, euen vnto Hozma.

The xv. Chapter.

The synne of offeringe of them that enter into the lande.
 The punishment of the synne of offeringe of a synne.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the children of Israel, & saye vnto them: * when ye be come into the lande of your habitacions, whiche I geue vnto you, and will offer an offering vnto the Lord: namely a burnt offeringe or a wheyall sacrifice, ether of a boue or of a wyllyng mynde, and in your principall feastes, to make a sweete sauour vnto the Lord of the oren of the flocke.

Then * let hym that offereth his offeringe vnto the Lord, bringe also a meate offeringe of a tenth deale of flour myngled with the fourth parte of an hyne of oyle, and the fourth parte of an hyne of wyne for a bynnhe offeringe, and offer with the burnt offeringe or any other offering when it is a lambe. & if it be a ram, thou shalt offer for a meate offeringe, two tenth deales of flour myngled with the thyrde parte of an hyne of oyle: and for a bynnhe offeringe, thou shalt offer the thyrde part of an hyne of wyne for a sweete sauour vnto the Lord.

And when thou offerest a bulloche for a burnt offeringe or for a special boue or peace offering vnto the Lord, let hym bringe with a bulloche a meate offeringe of thre tenth deales of flour myngled with halfe an hyne of oyle. And thou shalt bringe for a bynnhe offeringe: euen halfe an hyne of wyne, for an offering of a sweete sauour vnto the Lord. After this maner shall it be done for an ore, or for a ram, or for a lambe or a kyb.
 Loke what nombre thou makest in these, such a nombre shalt thou make in them also.

And according to the nombre of such offerings to death.

Then shalt thou offer the meat offering and the drink offering. All that are of your seed shall do these things after this manner, to offer an offering of sweet savour unto the Lord. And if a stranger sojourn with you, or who soever be amongst you in your generations, and he will offer an offering of a sweet savour unto the Lord, even as ye do, so he shall do. One ordinance shall be both for you of the congregation, and also for the stranger. It shall be an ordinance for ever in your generations, both unto you and to the stranger before the Lord. One lawe and one manner shall there be, both for you and for the stranger that sojourneth with you. And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them: When ye be come into the lande to which I bring you, then when ye will eat of the bread of the lande, ye shall take up an heave offering unto the Lord.

Ye shall take up a cake of the fruite of your doore for an heave offering, as ye do the heave offering of the barne, even so ye shall heave it. Of the fruite of your doore ye shall give unto the Lord an heave offering in your generations. And if ye ouersee your selves, and observe not all these commandements, which the Lord hath spoken unto Moses, even all that the Lord hath commanded you by the hande of Moses from the fruite dape that the Lord commanded Moses, and hence forth among your generations. If it happen that ought is committed ignorantly of the congregation, or the multitude shall offer a bullocke for a burnt offering, to be a sweet savour unto the Lord, with the meat offering and drink offering thereto, according to the manner, and as he goeth for synne. And the priest shall make an atonement for all the multitude of the children of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them: for it is ignorance. And they shall bring their offering for a sacrifice unto the Lord: and they shall synoffering before the Lord for their ignorance. And it shall be forgiven unto all the multitude of the children of Israel, and unto the stranger that dwelleth among you: saying all the people were in ignorance.

And if any one soule synne thowome ignorantly he shall bring a she goat of a year olde for syn. And the priest shall make atonement for the soule that synned ignorantly, with the synoffering before the Lord to reconcile hym: so that it may be forgiven hym. And bothe thou that arte bozne of the children of Israel, or the stranger that dwelleth among you, shall have bothe one lawe, who so doth synne thowome ignorantly. But the soule that doeth ought presumptuously, whether he be an Israelite or a stranger, the same blasphemeth the Lord. And that soule shall be rated out from among your people, because he hath despised the worde of the Lord, or hath broken your commandements, that soule therefore shall perishe, or his synne shall be upon hym. And while the children of Israel were in the wilderness, they founde a man that gathered sycles upon the Sabbath daye.

And they that founde hym gathering sycles, brought hym unto Moses and Aaron, and unto all the congregation: and they put hym in ward, saying it was not declared what should be done unto hym. And the Lord spake unto Moses: Let the man live: and let all the multitude stone hym with stones without the campe. And all the multitude brought hym without the campe, and stoned hym with stones, and he dyed as the Lord commanded Moses. And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them that they shall make them gardens in the quarters of their garments thowout they generations, and put upon the garde of the quarters a rybande of yellowe sylke. And the garde shall be unto you to looke upon it, that ye may remember all the commandements of the Lord, and doo them: and that ye seeke not after your owne hearts, or your owne eyes after the which ye be to go a whoring: but ye shall remember rather and doo all my commandements, and be holy unto your God: I am the Lord your God, which brought you out of the lande of Egypt, for to be your God: I am the Lord your God.

The rebellion of Corah, Dathan and Abiram.

And Corah the sonne of Jezhar, the sonne of Corah, the sonne of Levi, and Dathan, and Abiram the sonne of Eliab and On the sonne of Belial, the sonne of Ruben rose up before Moses, with other men of the children of Israel, two hundred and fifty, which were Captaynes of the multitude, great and famous men in the congregation: and they gathered them selves together, against Moses and Aaron, and sayde unto them: ye make much to doo, saying all the multitude are holy: every one of them, and the Lord is among them. Why heave ye your selves up above the congregation of the Lord? And when Moses heard it, he fell upon his face, and spake unto Corah and unto all his company, saying: tomorrow the Lord will shewe who are his, who are holy, and who ought to appoche nre unto hym, and who he hath chosen to come to hym. Thus do the toze, take you sympens, both Corah and all his company and do sye therein, and put cens in them before the Lord tomorrow.

And the man which the Lord doth chose, the same shall be holy. Ye make much to do, ye children of Levi. And Moses said unto Corah: hear ye children of Levi: It is but a small thing unto you the;

that the God of Israel hath separated you from the multitude of Israel: and brought you to him selfe, to do the seruice of the dwelling place of the Lorde, and to stande before the multitude and to minister vnto hym: he hath taken the to hym and all thy brethren the sons of Levi with the, and sette ye the office of the priest also: For whiche cause both thou and all thy company are gathered together agaynst the Lorde. And what is Airon, that ye murmur agaynst hym?

And Moses sente, and called Dathan, and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, whiche sayde: We will not come vp. Is it a small thyng that thou hast brought vs out of a lande that floweth with mylke and honye, to kylle vs in the wyldernesse, and to ragnye ouer vs also? hadde thou brought vs vnto a lande that floweth with mylke and honye, and geuen vs inheritaunce of felde and vnyuerses? Wylt thou pull out yeyes of these men? we will not come vp. And Moses waxed very angrie, and sayde vnto the Lorde. Turne not thou vnto theyr offeringe. I haue not taken so muche as an alle from them, neyther haue I hurt any of them. And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Be thou and all thy company before the Lorde: both thou, they, and Airon to morowe. And take every man his censler, and put cens in them, that ye maye offer before the Lorde: every man of the two hundred and fyfthe take his censour, thou also Airon, that every one maye haue his censler. And they toke every man his censler, and put fyre in them, and layed cens thereon, and stode in the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse with Moses and Airon. And Corah gathered all the congregacion agaynst them vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And the glorie of the Lorde appeared vnto all the congregacion. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Airon saying: separte poure selues from amonge this congregacion, that I maye consume them at once. And they fell vpon theyr faces and sayde. O moost myghty God of the spytres of all flesh, if one man hath sinned, wylt thou be wroth with all the multitude? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the congregacion and say: Set you a way from aboute the dwellinge of Corah, Dathan, and Abiram. And Moses rose vp, and wente vnto Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel folowed hym. And he spake vnto the congregacion, saying: departe frome the tentes of these wycked men, and touche nothyng of theyr: lest ye perishe in all theyr synnes. And so they gate them from the dwellinge of Corah, Dathan and Abiram on every syde. And Dathan and Abiram came out and stode in the doore of theyr tentes with theyr wyues, theyr sonnes, and theyr lytle chyldren. And Moses sayde: here by ye shall knowe that the Lorde hath sente me to do all these wordes, and that I haue not done them of myne owne mynde. If these men dye the comel death of all men, or yf they be vspred after the vspyracion of all men, then the Lorde hath not sente me. But and yf the Lorde make a newe thyng, and the earth open her mouth, and swa-lowe them by wyth all that they haue: and they go downe quychly into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, that these men haue prouoked the Lorde.

And it fortuned that as lone as he had made an ende of speaking all these wordes, the ground clove a sunder that was vnder them: and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them vp, and theyr houses, and all the men that were with Corah, and all theyr goodes. And they and all that they had, went downe a lyue vnto hell, and the earth closed vpon them: and they perished from amonge the congregacion. And all Israel that were aboute them fled at the crye of them.

And they sayde: lest the earth swallowe vs vp also. And there came out a fyre from the Lorde, and consumed the two hundred and fyfthe men that offered cens.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: speake vnto Eleazar, the sone of Airon the priest that he take vp the censers out of the burnyng and shatter the fyre here and there, for the censers of these synners are halowed in theyr beathen: and lette them make of them thynne beaten plates for a couerpyng of the altare. For they offered thym before the Lorde, and therefore they are halowed, & they shal be a sygne vnto the chyldren of Israel. And Eleazar the priest toke the brasen censers whiche they that were burnte had offered, and beate them thynne for a couerpyng of the altare, to be a remembraunce vnto the chyldren of Israel, that no straunger whiche is not of the seide of Airon, come nere to offer cens before the Lorde, that it happen not vnto hym: lyke as vnto Corah and his companye, as the Lorde sayde of hym by the hande of Moses. But on the morowe all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Airon, saying: ye haue kyled the people of the Lorde. And it fortuned that when the multitude was gathered agaynst Moses and Airon, they looked towards the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And beholde, when they were entred in to it: the cloude couered it, and the glorie of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Airon came before the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Lorde spake vnto moles, saying: Set you from amonge this congregacion, that I may consume them quychly. And they fell vpon theyr faces. And Moses sayd vnto Airon take a censler, and put fyre therein out of the altare, and poure on cens, and go quychly vnto the congregacion, that thou mayest obtayne the forgiveness for the. For there is wrath gone out from the Lorde, and there is a plague begonne.

And Airon toke as Moses commaunded hym and ranne into the myddes of the congregacion and behold, the plague was begonne amonge the people, and he put on cens, and made an attone-ment for the people. And when he stode betwene the deade and them that were alyue, the plague ceased. They that dyed in the plague were fourtene thousande and seven hundred: besyde them that dyed aboute the vspyracion of Corah. And Airon went agayne vnto Moses before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, & the plague ceased.

Ad the Lord spake unto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: and take of euery pynce of the a rodde, after the houses of theyr fathers, cut twelue rodde: and wyte euery mans name vpon hys rodde. And wyte Aarons name vpon the rodde of Leui: for euery rodde is for an house of theyr fathers. And put them in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, euen in the place where I mete you. And the mans rod wher I chuse, shall blossom. And I wyll make cease from me the grudging of the chyldren of Israel wherby they grudge agaynst you.

And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and all the pynces gaue hym euery pynce ouer theyr fathers houses, a rodde, euen twelue rodde: and the rod of Aaron was amonge the rodde. And Moses put the rodde before the Lord, in the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And on the morowe, Moses went into the Tabernacle of wytnesse: and beholde, the rod of Aaron for the house of Leui was budded, & bare blossoms and almondes. And Moses broughte out all the rodde from before the Lord vnto all the chyldren of Israel: and they looked vpon them, & toke euery man hys rod. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: byynge Aarons rod agayne before the wytnesse to be kepte for a token of the chyldrens rebellion, and that they murmuring may cease from me, and that they dye not. And Moses byd as the Lord commaunded hym, euen so byd he.
And the chyldren of Israel spake vnto Moses sayinge: beholde, we are wasted awaye and consumed: we all come to nought, who so euer commeth nye the dwellinge of the Lord, dyeth.
Shall we vterly consume a waye?

¶ The xviii. Chapter.

¶ The office of the Leuytes. The ythes and thysse trutes must be geuen them. Aarons heritage.

Ad the Lord sayde vnto Aaron, & and thy sonnes and thy fathers house with the, shall beate the faulte of that whiche is done amysse in the holpe place. And thou and thy sonnes with the shall beate the faulte of that whiche is done amysse in your pearchode. And the byethren of the trybe of Leui and of theyr fathers house-holde thou shalt take vnto the, that they maye be toynd vnto the and mynysse vnto the: euen vnto the and thy sonnes with the before the tabernacle of wytnesse. They shall wayte vpon the and vpon all the tabernacle: onely let them not come nye the vessels of the sanctuary and the altar, that they and ye also dye not. And they shall be by the, and wayte on the Tabernacle of wytnesse for all the scrupce of the tabernacle, and let no straunger come nye vnto you.

Therefore shall ye kepe the holy place and the altar, that there fall no moze wrath vpon the chyldren of Israel: beholde, I haue taken your byethren the Leuytes from amonge the chyldren of Israel, whiche as a gyfte of poures are geuen vnto the Lord, to do the scrupce of the tabernacle of wytnesse. Therefore shalt thou and thy son-nes with the take hede vnto your pearches office for all thynges that pertaine vnto the altar, and for al that are within the vayle. And se that ye serue for I haue geuen your pearches office vnto you as a gyfte: and therefore the straunger that cometh nye, must be slayne. And the Lord spake vnto Aaron: beholde, I haue geuen the the keepinge of myne heue offerynges, of all the ba-lowed thynges of the chyldren of Israel. Euen vnto the, I haue geuen them for the anoynting and to thy sonnes, for a dutie for euer. And thou shalt be thyn of most holy from the fyre of the altar.

All theyr sacrifices for all theyr meate offerynges, synofferings of trespassofferings, which they byynge vnto me, are most holy. It is thyn and thy sonnes. In the most holy place shalt thou eate it: and all that are males shall eate of it, let it be holy vnto the. And thys also is thyn the heue offerynges of theyr gyftes, thowowe out all the waueofferings of the chyldren of Israel: I haue geuen them vnto the and thy sonnes and thy daughters with the, to be a butte for e-uer, and all that are cleane in thy house, shall eate of it, all the fat of the oyle, and all the fat of the wyne and of the corne, which they shall offer vnto the Lord for fyre frutes, the same haue I geuen vnto the. And what so euer is fyre nye in theyr lande whiche they byynge vnto the Lord shall be thyn, & all that are cleane in thyn house shall eate of it. All dedicate thynges in Israel, shall be thyn. All that breaketh the materce in all fleshe that men byynge vnto the Lord, whether it be of men or beastes, shall be thyn. Neuer the later the fyre bozne of man shalt thou redeme and the fyre bozne of vncleane beastes shalt thou rede me lyke wyse. Those that are to be rede med, shalt thou rede me from the age of a mo-neth, for the value of p moneth, namely for fyue speces after the spele of the Sanctuarie. A spele maketh twentye halfpens. But the fyre bozne of oxen, shepe and goates shalt thou not rede me.
For they are holy: therefore thou shalt spyynkle theyr bloude vpon the altar, and shalt burne theyr fat vpon the sacrifice for a swete sauoure vnto the Lord. And the fleshe of them is thyn as the wauebest and the ryght quider. These are thyn. All p holy heue offerynges whiche the chyldren of Israel offer vnto the Lord, haue I geuen the, and thy sonnes and thy daughters w-the, to be a butte for euer, let it be a salted connaunte for euer: before the Lord, both vnto the and to thy se de with the. And the Lord spake vnto Aaron: thou shalt haue none inheritaunce in theyr lande, ne yether shalt thou haue any part amonge them. I am thy parte and thy enheritaunce amonge the chyldren of Israel. Beholde I haue geuen the chyldren of Leui all the centhe in Israel to inheret, for the scrupce whiche they serue in the tabernacle of wytnesse. Neither must the chyldren of Israel henceforth come nye the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest they beare synne, and dye. But the Leuytes shall do the scrupce in the tabernacle of wytnesse and beare theyr synne.
It shall be a lawe for euer in youre generacions that amonge the chyldren of Israel, they pos-seesse none enheritaunce. But the trybes of the chyldren

chylidren of Israel, whiche they paye as an heue offering vnto the Lorde, I haue geuen the Leuites to inheryte. And therfore I haue sayde vnto them. Amonge the chylidren of Israel ye shall possesse none inheritaunce. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the Leuites: and saye vnto them, when ye take of the chylidren of Israel the tythes whiche I haue geuen you of them for your inheritaunce, ye shall take an heue offeringe of that same for the Lorde: euen the tenth parte of the tyth. And thys your heue offeringe shalbe rekened vnto you, eue as though it were of the coine of the barne, or out of the fulnesse of the wyne presse. Of thys maner ye shall therfore separte an heue offeringe vnto the Lorde of all your tythes whiche ye receyue of the chylidren of Israel, and ye shall geue therof vnto the Lorde an heue offeringe, whiche shall belonge to Aaron the prest. Of all your gyses, ye shall take out all the Lordes heue offeringes, euen the fatte of the holowed thynges. Therfore thou shalt saye vnto them: when ye haue taken away the fat of it from it it shalbe counted vnto the Leuites, as if it were the increase of the coine hoze, or the increase of the wyne presse. And ye shall rate it in all places, both ye and your householdes for: it is your rewarde for your seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And ye shall beare no syn by the reason of it, when ye haue taken frome it the fat of it: neyther shall ye vnhalowe the holy thynges of the chylidren of Israel, lest ye dye.

¶ The. xix. Chapter.

Of the red kowe. The lawe of hym that dyeth in the tabernacle, & of hym also that toucheth any vncleane thyng.

Ad the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, and Aaron sayinge: thys is the ordynance of the lawe: whiche the Lorde hath commaunded, sayinge: speake vnto the chylidren of Israel that they bynge the a red kowe wythout spot, and wherein is no blemyshe, and vpon which neuer came yoke. And ye shall geue her vnto Eleazar the preaste, that he make bynging: & her wythout the holte, and cause her to be slayne before his face. And let Eleazar the preaste take of her bloude wyth his fynger, and spynkle it before the Tabernacle of wytnesse seuen tymes. And cause the kowe to be burnt in his syght with her skynne, fleshe and bloude. And the dunge of her shall be burne also. And let the preaste take Cedre wood, and ysope and purple clothe, and cast it vpon the kowe as she burneth. Then let the preaste washe his clothes, and he shall bath his fleshe in water, and then come into the holte and the preaste shalbe vncleane vnto the euen.

25 And he that burneth her, shall washe his clothes in water, and bath his fleshe in water, and he vncleane vntill euen. And a man if he cleane shall take vp the ashes of the kowe, and put the without the holte in a cleane place. And it shalbe kepte for the multitude of the chylidren of Israel: for a spynklynge water and for an attonement offsyne. Therfore he that gathereth the ashes of the kowe, shall washe his clothes, and remayne vncleane vntill euen. And this shalbe vnto the chylidren of Israel and vnto the stranger that dwelleth amonge theym, a statute for euer. * He that toucheth the dead bodye of any man, shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. And he shall purifye hym selfe with this water & thys daye and the seuenth daye, and he shalbe cleane.

But if he purifye not hym selfe the thys daye and the seuenth daye, he shall not be cleane. Who so euer toucheth the coze of any man that is deade, and spynklyth not hym selfe, despyeth the dwellinge of the Lorde, and that soule shalbe oted out of Israel, because the spynklynge water was not spynkyled vpon hym. He shalbe therfore vncleane, and his vncleanness shall remayne vpon hym. This is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a tente: all that come into the tent, and all that is in the tente shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. And all the vesselles that be open whiche haue no lye nor couerynge vpon them shalbe vncleane.

And who so euer toucheth one that is slayne with a sword in the felde, or a dead persone, or a bone of a deade man, or a grane shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. Therfore, for an vncleane persone they shall take of the burnt ashes of the synofferynge, and runnyng water shall be put thereto in a vessel. And let a cleane person take ysope and dippe it in the water, and spynkle it vpon the tent, and vpon all the vesselles, and on the soules that were therein, and vpon hym that touched a bone, or a slayne persone, or a dead bodye, or grane. And a cleane person shal spynkle vpon a vncleane the thys day & the seuenth day & the seuenth day he shal purifye hym selfe, & wash his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, & shalbe cleane at euen. But the man that is vncleane and spynklyth not hym selfe, & same soule shalbe destroyed from amonge a congregacion: because he hath despyled the holy place of the Lorde and the spynklynge water hath not bene spynkyled vpon hym, therfore shall he remayne vncleane. And this shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto them. And he that spynklyth the spynklynge water, shall washe his clothes. And he that toucheth the spynklynge water, shall be vncleane vntill euen. And what so euer the vncleane persone toucheth: shall be vncleane. And the soule that toucheth it, shalbe vncleane vntill the euen.

¶ The. xx. Chapter.

Of the death of Miriam. The people murmure. They haue water sent out of the rocke. Whom benyeth the Israelites passage thys kowe bys exaunt. The death of Aaron in whose coloure Eleazar succeedeth.

Md the chylidren of Israel came with the whole multitude into the deserte of Syn in the fyfte moneth, and the people abode at Cadis. And there died Miriam, and was buried there. But there was no water for the multitude, and they gathered themselves together agaynst Moyses and Aaron. And the people chode wyth Moyses, and spake, sayinge: wolde God that we had perished, when oure brythern dyed before the Lorde. Why haue ye brought the congregacion of the Lorde vnto thys wyldernesse: that both we and our catell shulde dye in it. * Wherfore haue ye made vs to goo oute of Egypte, to

byngge vs into this byngacions place, which is no place of lide nor of frys, nor bynes, nor of p^rgranates, nether is there any water to bynke.

And Moyses and Aaron went from the congregacyon, vnto the doze of the Tabernacle of wyntesse, and set vpon theys faces. And they cryed vnto the Lorde and sayde, O Lorde God, heare the crye of this people, and open them the rocke, euen a founteyne of lyuynge water, that they may be sanctified, and that theye maye murmurage maye cease. And the gloze of the Lorde appeared vnto them. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: take the rodde, and gather thou and thy brother Aaron the congregacyon together, and speake vnto the rocke before their eyes, and it shall geue forth his water. And thou shalt bynke them water out of the rocke, to geue the company bynke, and theye drasse also. And Moyses toke the rodde from before the Lorde, as he commaunded hym. And Moyses and Aaron gathered the congregacyon together before the rocke, and Moyses sayde vnto them: heare ye rebellious: must we let you water out of this rocke? And Moyses lyfte vp his hande, & with his rodde he smote the rocke two tymes, & the water came out abundantly, and the myltitude bynke and theye drasse also. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron: because ye beleued me not, to sanctifie me in the eyes of the chyldren of Israel, therefore ye shall not bynke this congregacyon into the lande which I haue geuen them.

This is the water of stryfe, because the chyldren of Israel stroue wyth the Lorde, and he was sanctified in them. And Moyses sent messengers from Cades vnto the kynge of Edom. Thus sayth thy brother Israel: Thou knowest all the trouble that hath happened vs. Our fathers wente downe in to Egypte, and we haue dwelte in Egypte a longe tyme, and the Egyptians vexed vs and our fathers. And when we cryed vnto the Lorde, he hearde oure voyce, and sent an aungel, and hath set vs vp out of Egypte. And beholde we are in Cades, euen in the uttermost cite of thy border. We will go nowe thowre thy countrey: but we will not go thowre the felde of bynnyng, nether will we bynke of the water of the founteynes: we will go by the waye of the wynde, and nether tourne vnto the ryghte hande nor to the lefte, vntill we be past thy countrey. And Edom answered hym.

Thou shalt not go by me: lest I come out agaynst the wyth the swerde. The chyldren of Israel sayde vnto hym: we will go by the beaten waye: and if I and my cattell bynke of thy water, I will paye for it, I will but only (with out any harme) go thowre on my fete. He answered: Thou shalt not go thowre. And Edom came out agaynst hym with muche people, and with a myghty power. And thus Edom denyed to geue Israel passage thowre his countrey wherfore Israel turned awaye from hym. And the chyldren of Israel departed from Cades, & came vnto mount Horeb with all the congregacyon. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron in mount Horeb, by the coste of the lande of Edom, saying: Aaron shall be gathered vnto his people, for he shall not come in to the lande, wher I haue geuen vnto the chyldren of Israel, because ye byschoyed my mouth at the water of stryfe. Take Aaron and Eleazar his son, and bringe them vp into mount Horeb, and thou shalt stryppen Aaron out of his vestimentes and put them vpon Eleazar his sonne, and Aaron shall be gathered vnto his people, and shall dye there. And Moyses dyd as the Lorde commaunded and they went vp into mount Horeb in the syght of all the myltitude. And Moyses toke of Aarons clothes, and putte them vpon Eleazar his son, & Aaron dyed there in the top of the mozt. And Moyses and Eleazar came downe out of the mount. When all the myltitude sawe that Aaron was dead, they mourned for Aaron thyspe dayes, thowout all the howsholdes of Israel.

The xxi. Chapter.

At this time Moyses and Aaron were in the top of the mount Horeb, and they were looking down upon the people of Israel, who were gathered together in the valley below.

And when bynke * Arab the Candanite whiche dwelleth toward the south hearde tell that Israel came by the waye that the spies had founde out he soughte agaynst Israel, and toke some of them prissoners. And Israel vowed a vow vnto the Lorde, and sayde: If thou wilt deliuer this people into my hande, I will utterly destroye theye cities. And the Lorde hearde the voyce of Israel, and deliuered them the Cananites. And they destroyed them and theye cyties, and called the name of the place: Horeb.

And they departed from mount Horeb by the waye of the red see: to compass the lande of Edom. And the soule of the people saynted by the waye. And the people spake agaynst God and agaynst Moyses: wherfore hast thou broughte vs out of Egypte, for to dye in the wyldernesse, for here is nether breade nor water, and oure soule lotheth this lyght breade. Wherfore the Lorde sent fyrry serpentes amonge the people whiche stonge them: and muche people of Israel dyed. Therfore the people came to Moyses and sayde: we haue synned, for we haue spoken agaynst the Lorde and agaynst the, & make intercession to the Lorde, that he take awaye the serpentes from vs. And Moyses made intercession for the people. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: make the a fyrry serpente, and set it vp for a sygne, that as many as are bytten, maye loke vpon it, and lyue. And Moyses made a serpente of brasse, and set it vp for a sygne. And when the serpentes had bitten any man, he behelde the serpente of brasse, and was healed. And the chyldren of Israel departed thence, and pricked in Oboth. And they departed from Oboth, & pitched at the heapes of Abarim: even in the wilderness which is by the plaine of Moab on the east syde. And they remoued thence, and pitched upon the river of Iarad. And they departed thence and pitched on the other syde of Arnon, which is in the wilderness, and cometh out of the coles of the Amozites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, betwene Moab and the Amozites.

Wherfore it is spoken in the booke of the war of the Lorde, what thyng he dyd in the red see, and in the river of Arnon. And the heade of the ryuer that goeth downe to the dwelling of Ar, and stretcheth vnto the border of Moab, from thence it cometh vnto Beer. The same is Beer of well wherof the Lorde spake vnto Moyses: gather the people together, and I will geue them water. Then Israel sang this songe. Arise vp well, synge ye vnto hym. The pynnes dygged thys well, the captaynes of the people dygged it, with the reacher, and with theyr haues.

And from the wilderness they went to Yafan, and from Yafan to Nabaliet, and from Nabaliet to Bamoth, and from Bamoth to the valley that is in the felde of Moab, vnto the top of the hill that apereth before Iesunon. And Israel sent messengers vnto Sihon, kynge of the Amozites, sayinge: * I will go thorow thy lande: we will not turne into the felde of bynnyardes, neyther bynne of the waters of the wel, but we will go alonge by the kynges hye waye, vntill we be passe thy countrey. * But Sihon wolde geue Israel no licence to passe thorow his countrey, but gathered all his people together and went out agaynst Israel into the wilderness. And he came to Iadaya, and fought agaynst Israel. * And Israel smote hym in the edge of the sword, and conquered his lande fro Arnon vnto Iabok, and vnto the chylidren of Ammon. For the border of the chylidren of Ammon was stronger. And Israel toke all these cities and dwelt in all the cities of the Amozites: in Ieshon and in all the townes that long therto. For Ieshon was the Citie of Sihon the kynge of the Amozites which fought before agaynst the kynge of the Moabites, and toke all his lande out of his hande, euen vnto Arnon. Wherfore they saie in the prouerbe: come to Ieshon, and let the cite of Sihon be duple and repaired: for there is a fyre gone out of Ieshon, and a flame from the cite of Sihon, and hath consumed it in Moab, and the caryages of the hye places in Arnon. He be to the Moab: o people of Chamos, ye are vndone, he hath put his sonnes to synge, and his daughters to captiuite vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amozites. Their empyre is is losse from Ieshon vnto Iabon, and we made a wilderness euen vnto Aroba, which reacheth vnto Mediba. And thus Israel dwelt in the lande of the Amozites. And Moyses sent to search out Iazer, and they toke the townes belonging thereto, and roted out the Amozites that were therein.

And they turned and wente up toward Balan. And Og the kynge of Balan came out agaynst them, he and all his people to fyghte at Iazer. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses, feare hym not, for I haue deliuered hym in thy hande and all his people, and his land. And thou shalt do to hym as thou dydest vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amozites which dwelt at Ieshon. They smote hym therfore, and his sonnes, and all his people, vntill there was nothyng left hym. And they conquered his lande.

The xxiij. Chapter.

The xxiij. Chapter. Balac sentech for Balaam (whose name is the hebrewe to sayen Balaam) Balaams alle speakeh.

And the chylidren of Israel departed and pitched in the felde of Moab on the other syde of Iordane, ouer agaynst Jericho. And Balac the sonne of ziphor sawe all that Israel had done to the Amozites: and the Moabites were soe afrayde of the people, because they were many, and stode in feare of the chylidren of Israel. And Moab sayde vnto the elders of Moabian: now shall this company lyeke vnto that are rounde aboute vs, as an ore lycheth vnto the grasse of the felde. And Balac the sonne of ziphor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.

He sente messengers therfore vnto Balaam the sonne of Beor in Bethor (whiche is by the ryuer of the land of the chylidren of his foie) to call hym, sayinge: beholde, there is a people come out of Egypte, and beholde, they couer the face of the earth, and dwell ouer agaynst me. Come nowe therfore, and curse thys people for my sake. For they are to myghtye for me, yf so peradventure I myght be able to synge them & to dyspue them out of the lande. For I wote that he whome thou blestest, is blessed, and whome thou cursed, is cursed. And the elders of Moab and the elders of Moabian departed, hauynge the rewarde of the southsayinge in theyr hande. And they came vnto Balaam, and tolde hym the wordes of Balac. He answered them: tary here this nyght, and I will saynge you wordes, euen as the Lorde shall saye vnto me. And the Lordes of Moab abode with Balaam.

And God came vnto Balaam: and sayde, What men are these with thee? And Balaam sayde vnto God: Balac the sonne of ziphor, kynge of Moab hath sent vnto me, sayng: behold, there is a people come out of Egypte and couereth the face of the earth: come nowe therfore, and curse them for my sake, yf so peradventure I maye be able to overcome them in battell, and to dyspue them oute. And God sayde vnto Balaam. So not thou with them, neither curse the people, for they are blessed. And Balaam rose vp in the morning, and sayde vnto the Lordes of Balac: get you vnto your lande: for the Lorde wyl not suffer me to go with you. And the lordes of Moab rose vp, and went vnto Balac and sayde: Balaam wolde not come with vs. And Balac sente agayne a greater company of Lordes and more honorable then they: whiche came to Balaam, and tolde hym: Thus sayth Balac the sonne of ziphor: oh, lette nothyng let the, but come vnto me, for I will greatly promote the vnto greate honour, and wyl doo what so euer thou sayest vnto unto me, come I praye the, ande thes people for my sake. And Balaam answered and sayde vnto the seruantes of Balac: * If Balac wolde geue me his house full of silver and golde, I can not go beyonde the wynde of the Lorde my god, to dolede of moyse. Howe thesore saye ye here this nyght: that I maye wete, what the Lorde wyll saye vnto me moyse. And God came vnto Balaam by nyght, and sayde vnto hym: If the men come to call the, ryse vp and go with them, but loke what I saye vnto the, that shalte thou do. And Balaam rose up early, and sated hym selfe, and went with the Lordes of Moab.

And the countenance of God was angry, because he turned. And the aungell of the Lorde stode in the waye agaynst hym, as he rode vpon his ass, and his two seruantes were with him. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde stande in the waye, and haunge a sword drawen in his hande, the asse turned asyde oute of the waye, and went out into the felde. And Balaam smote the asse, to turne her into the waye.

But the aungell of the Lorde stode in a path betwene the byepardes, and there was a wall on the one syde, and another on the other. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde, he wrenched vnto the wall, and thusse Balaams fore vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. And the aungell of the Lorde went further and stode in a narrowe place, where was no waye to turne, eyther to the ryght hande or to the lyfte. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde he fell downe vnder Balaam: & Balaam was wroth, and smote the asse with a staffe. And the Lorde opened the mouth of the asse, and he sayde vnto Balaam: what haue I done vnto the, that thou halte smytten me nowe the tymes? And Balaam sayde vnto the asse: because thou halte mocked me: I wolde also there were a sworde in myne hande, for euen nowe wolde I kyll the. And the asse sayde vnto Balaam: am not I thine asse which thou hast rydden vpon since I walke bozne vnto this daye? Was I euer went to doo so vnto the? he sayde: nay.

And the Lorde opened the eyes of Balaam: and he sawe the aungell of the Lorde standyng in the waye, haunge a sworde drawen in his hande. He bowed hym selfe thereto, and fell flatte on his face. And the aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto hym: Wherfore haue thou smytten thine asse this tymes? beholde, I cam out as an aduersaie, because thou makest the waye contrary vnto me, and the asse sawe me, and went backe from me this tymes: or elles yf he had not turned from me.

I had surely slayne the, and slayed her alysse. Balaam sayde vnto the aungell of the Lorde: I haue synned: for I wist not that thou standest in the waye agaynst me. Howe thesore yf it displeaseth the I will turne home agayne. The aungell sayde vnto Balaam, go with the men: but what I saye vnto the, that shalte thou speake. And so Balaam went with the Lordes of Balac. And when Balac heard that Balaam was come, he went out to meete hym vnto a cite of Moab, which is in the border of Arnan, euen in the utmost coast.

And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: yd I not send for the, to call the? And wherfore camest thou not vnto me? because I am not able to pemyt the vnto honoure? And Balaam made answer vnto Balac: Lo, I am come vnto the. And can I thinke saye any thing at all? The wordes that God putteth in my mouth, that shall I speake. And Balaam went with Balac, and they came vnto a cite of Moab.

And Balac offered oxen and shepe, and sente for Balaam and for the Lordes that were with hym. And on the morow Balac toke Balaam, and brought hym vnto a place of Moab, that thence he myght see the uttermost parte of the people.

The xliiij. Chapter.
Balaam bethynge to synne.

And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: buyde me here seven aultars, and prepare me here seven oxen, and seven rammes. And Balac bydded Balaam saie. And Balac and Balaam offered on euery aultar, one ox and a ram. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: stande by the sacrifice, and I will go, yf happie the Lorde wyll meete me: and what so euer he sheweth me, I will tell the, and he wente forth alone. But God met Balaam, & Balaam sayde vnto hym, I haue prepared seven aultars, and haue offered vpon euery aultar, an ox and a ramme. And the Lorde put a saying in Balaams mouth, & sayde go agayne to Balac and saye on this wyse. And when he went agayne vnto hym, lo, he stode by his sacrifice, he and all the lordes of Moab.

And he toke vp his parable and sayde, Balac the kynge of Moab hath set me from Mesopotamia out of the mountaynes of the east (say- ing) come curse Jacob for my sake: come and de- fyre Israel. Howe shall I curse hym, whom God hath not cursed? or howe shall I de fyre hym, whome God hath not de fyred? from the top of the rockes I se hym, and from the hylls I beholde hym: lo the people shall dwell by them sturges, and shall not be reckened amonge the nacions. Who can tel the dust of Jacob, and the number of the fourth parte of Israel? I praye God, that my soule maye bte the deathe of the wyghteous, and that my last ende maye be lyke his. And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: what hast thou done vnto me? I see the to curse myne enemyes, & beholde, thou hast blessed them. He answered and sayde: must I not hepe that and speake it, whiche the Lorde hath put in my mouth? And Balac sayde vnto hym: come I praye the with me vnto an other place, whence thou mayst se them, and thou shalt see but the utmost parte of them, and shalt not se them all: curse them out of a place for my sake.

And he brought hym into a feide (where men myght se farre off) euen to the toppes of an hill, and buyde seven aultars, and offered an ox and a ram on euery aultar. And he sayde vnto Balac stande here by the sacrifice, while I go ponder. And the Lorde met Balaam, and put a word in his mouth, and sayde: go agayne vnto Ba- lac: and lar, and sape thus. And when he came to hym: beholde, he stode by hys sacrifice, and the Lozdes of Moab with hym. And Balac sayde vnto hym: what hath the Lozde sayde?

And he toke vp hys parable and answered: cyle vp Balac and heare, and hearken vnto me: I sonne of syphoz. * God is not a man: he shulde lye, neyther the sonne of a man: that he shulde repent: shulde he saie: I not do: or shulde he speake and not make it good? beholde I haue taken vpon me to blesse, for he hath blessed, and it is not in my power to alter it. he behelde no vanytie in Jacob, nor sawe traunple in Israel. The Lozde his God is with him, and the presence of shynge is amonge them. * God broughte them out of Egypte, he hath strength as an vncome. There is no sorcery in Jacob, nor sorcery in Israel. It is nowetolde vnto Jacob and Israel, what God hath wrought. Beholde, the people shall cyle vp as a lyoness, and heue vp hym selfe as a Lyon. he shall not lye downe, vntill he eat of the praye, and drynke the blood of them that are slayne. And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: neyther curse them nor blesse them.

But Balaam answered and sayde vnto Balac: tolde not I the saying, all the Lozde speake, that I must do: And Balac sayd vnto Balaam: come I praye the, and I will bryng the yet vnto another place, yf peradventure it will please God, that thou mayst thence curse them for my sake. And Balac brought Balaam vnto the toppe of Beor, that boweth toward the wyldernes of Ierimmon. And Balaam sayd vnto Balac: make me here seven alters, and prepare me here seven oxen, and seven rammes. And Balac dyd as Balaam had sayde, and offered an ox and a ram on every altare.

¶ The xxiij. Chapter.

¶ Balaam propheseth of the heugdomes of Israel and of the coming of Christ. Balac is angry with Balaam. The destruction of the Amalathites, and of the Amurites.

AD when Balaam sawe that it pleased the Lozde, that he shulde blesse Israel, he went not as he dyd wise before to fet southesayinge: but set hys face toward the wyldernes. And Balaam lyfte vp his eyes, and looked vpon Israel, as he sape accordynge to his trybes, and the spier of God came vpon hym. * And he toke vp his parable and sayde. Balaam the son of Beor hath sayde, and the man whose eye is open hath sayde: he hath sayde, whyche heareth the wordes of God, and seyth the visions of the almyghyte: and falleth downe with open eyes.

How goodly are thy tentes, O Jacob, and thine habitacions, O Israel: Euen as the valleys are they layd abode, and as gardenes by ryuers: as the tentes which the Lozde hath pyched, and as cyppers trees beyde the waters. The water bryppeth oute of hys bocker, and hys sede shalbe many waters: and his kyng shalbe hyer then Agag. And his kyngdome shalbe exalted. * God brought hym out of Egypt: as the strength of an Unicorne is he vnto hym. he shal eate the nacpous his enemyes, and gnawe they:

bones, and pearce them thorow with hys arrowes. * he couched hym selfe, and layde downe as a Lyon, and as a lynes, who shal stre hym vp: blessed is he that blesseth the, and cursed is he that curseth. And Balac was wroth with Balaam, and smote his handes together: * Balac sayde vnto Balaam: I sente for the to curse myne enemyes, and beholde, thou hast blessed them thise thy tynes. Therfore nowe get the quickly vnto thy place. I thoughte that I wolde promote the vnto honoure, but loo, the Lozde hath kepte the backe from worshipp.

Balaam answered vnto Balac: tolde I not the messengers which thou sentest vnto me, sayinge: * If Balac wolde geue me hys house full of syluer and golde, I can not passe the worde of the Lozde, to do either good or bad of myne owne mynde. But what the Lozde sayth: I am I compelled to speake. And nowe beholde, I go vnto my people: come therfore, and I will aduertise the what this people shal do to thy folke in the later dayes. And he toke vp his parable: * Balac the son of Beor hath sayde the man whose eye is open, hath sayde. he hath sayde that heareth the wordes of God, and hath knowledg of the most hygh, and beholde the vision of the almyghyte, and that falleth with open eyes: I shall se hym, but not nowe. I shal beholde hym, but not nigh. * There shal come a starre of Jacob, and cyle a scepter of Israel, and shal smyte the costes of Moab and vndermyne all the chyldren of Beth. * And Edom shalbe possessed, and Seir shal fall to the possession of theyr enemyes and Israel shal do manfully.

Out of Jacob shal come he that shal haue domynon, and shal destroye the remnaunte of the Ciste. And when he looked on Amelech, he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Amelech is the fyrste of the nacpous: but hys latter ende shal peryshe utterly. And he looked on the Kenites, & toke vp hys parable, and sayde: stronge is thy dwellinge place, and thou puttest thy neste in a rocke. Nevertheless, the Kenite shal be roted out, vntill Assur take the prisoner. And he toke vp his parable: * Alas, who shal lye vnto God doth this. The Assyres also shal come out of the coastes of Italy, & subdue Assur, and subdue Eber, and he hym selfe shal perysh at last. And Balaam rose vp, and wente and returned to his place: and Balac also went his waye.

AD Israel dwelt in Shittim and the people beganne to commyt whozdom with the daughters of Moab which called the people vnto the sacrifice of theyr gods. * And the people dyd eate, and worshipped theyr goddesses, and Israel coupled hym selfe vnto Baal Beor. And the indignacyon of the Lozde was prouoked agaynst Israel, and the Lozde sayde vnto Moses: take all the heades of the people, & hang them vp before the Lozde agaynst the sonne, that the

The chyldrenne of Bala were Heber of whome cometh the kynred of the Heberites: & Walchiel, of whome came the kynred of the Walchielites. And the daughters of Aser were called Marah. These are the kynredes of Aser after their nombres. lxxi. thousande & four hundred. The chyldren of Asyphail, after their kynredes were Jabezail, of whome came the kynred of the Jabezailites, & Gunt, of whome came the kynred of the Guntites: & Jeser, of whome came the kynred of the Jeserites: & Belim, of whome came the kynred of the Belimites. These are the kynredes of Asyphail according to their householdes, whose number is. xlv. thousande and four hundred. These are the nombres of the chyldren of Israel: fyue hundred thousande, & a thousand seuen hundred, and thretye.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge vnto these the lande shall be deuptyd to inheret, according to the number of names. * To many thou shalt geue the more inherytance, and to seue the lesse: to euery trybe shall the inherytance be geuen according to the number thereof. & according to the lande shall be deuptyd by lotte, and according to the names of the trybes of their fathers, they shall inheret, according to the lot shall the possession thereof be deuptyd betwene many and fewe.

* These are the nombres of the Leuites, after their kynredes: Gerson of whome came the kynred of the Gersonites: & Cabath of whom came the kynred of the Cabathites: & Merari of whom came the kynred of the Merarites. These are the kynredes of the Leuites, the kynred of the Libnites the kynred of the Hebronites: the kynred of the Mahalites: the kynred of the Gushites: the kynred of the Marathites. Cabath begat Amram & Amrams wyfe was called * Jochebed a daughter of Levi, whiche was bozne vnto Levi in Egypte. And she bare vnto Amram Aaron, Moyses and Miriam their sistyr. And vnto Aaron were bozne Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar & Ithamar. * And Nadab and Abihu dyed when they offered strange fyre before the Lord. And after their nombres, there were * thye and twen-tye thousand, all males from a moneth olde and aboue. For they were not nombred amonge the chyldren of Israel, because there was no inherytance geuen the amonge the chyldren of Israel.

These are the nombres, when Moses and Eleazar the pyncle nombred the chyldren of Israel in the playne of Moab, fast by Jordan, ouer agaynst Jericho. And amonge these there was not a man of them, whome Moses and Aaron nombred, when they tolde the chyldren of Israel, in the wyldernesse of Synay. For the Lord sayde of them: they shall dye in the wyldernesse, and there was not left a man of them: save Caleb the son of Iephunne, & Josua the son of Nun.

The xxvii. Chapter.

The lawe of the heritage of the daughters of Zelaphead The land of gyftes is geuen vnto Moyses, in whose name is appointed Josua.

And the daughters of * Zelaphead & Aziel the sonne of Heber, the sonne of Gilead the sonne of Nachir, the son of Manasse: of the kynred of Manasse the sonne of Joseph (whose names were Mahla, Noa, Hogla, Melcha, and Thirza) came, and stode before Moses, and Eleazar the pyncle, and before the Lordes, and all the multitude by the doore of the tabernacle of wyrtell, sayinge: our father dyed in the wyldernesse: and * was not in the compaigne of them that gathered them selues together agaynst the Lord in the congregacion of Cozab. But dyed in his owne synne, and had no sonnes. Wherefore then is the name of our father taken awaye from amonge his kynred, because he hath no sonne?

* Geue vnto vs therefore a possession amonge the brethren of our father. And Moses brought their cause before the Lord. And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: The daughters of Zelaphead spake ryght: thou shalt geue them a possession to inheret amonge their fathers by trybe: and shalt turne the inherytance of their father vnto

If he haue no daughter, ye shall geue hym enheritaunce vnto his brethren. If he haue also no brethren, ye shall geue his inheritance vnto his father's brethren. And if his father haue no brethren, ye shall geue his inheritance vnto hym that is nexte to hym of his house, and he shall possesse it. And this shall be vnto the chyldren of Israel a lawe of iudgement, as the Lord hath commaunded Moyses.

And when thou hast seene it, thou shalt be gathered vnto thy people also, as Aaron thy brother was gathered. For ye were disobeient vnto my word in the desert of Syn, in the daye of the congregacyon. Wherfore the Lord hath sworn in the waters before thy eyes. * That in the water of Syn in the desert of Syn, in the wilderness of Syn. And Moyses spake vnto the Lord, saying: let the Lord God of the spertes of al heales a man ouer the congregacyon, wherfore maye he go out and in before them, and leade them out of the congregacyon of the Lord be not as they whiche haue not a shepe herde.

Exo. 32. 1.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: take Joshua the sonne of Nun, in whom is the sperte, and put thyne handes vpon hym, and set hym before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregacyon: and geue hym a charge in their syght. And put of thy people vpon hym, that all the company of the chyldren of Israel maye be obedyente. And he shall stande before Eleazar the priest, whiche shall also counsel for hym: after the iudgement of Urim before the Lord. And accordyng vnto his worde shall they go out and in, both he and all the chyldren of Israel with hym and all the congregacyon. And Moyses did as the Lord commaunded hym: and he toke Joshua, and set hym before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregacyon: and geue hym a charge, as the Lord commaunded thow the hande of Moyses.

The xxx. Chapter.

Of vowers when they shal be kept, and when not.

Ad Moses spake vnto the heades of the trybe of the chyldren of Israell sayinge: this is the thyng whiche the Lorde hath commaunded. * If a man ow a vow vnto the Lorde, or swere an othe to bynde hys soule: he shall not go backe wth hys worde: but shall fulfill al that is proceded out of hys mouth.

If a woman also vowe a vowe vnto f Lorde and bynde her selfe beyng in her fathers house: in the tyme of her yowth, and her father hear her vowe and bonde whiche she hath made vpon her soule, and holde his peace thereto: then all her vower and bondes whiche she hath made upon her soule, shall stande in effecte. But and if her father forbad her the same daye that he heareth it, none other vower nor bondes which she hath made upon her soule shall be of value: and the Lorde shall forgive her, because her father forbade her. If she had an husbande when she vowed or pronounced ought out of her lippes, wherewith she bounde her soule, and her husband heard it and bride his peace there at the same daye he hearde it, then her vower and her bondes wherewith she bounde her soule shall stande in effecte. And if her husbande forbade her the same daye that he heard it: and made her vower which she hath upon her of none effecte, and released the opening of her lippes, wherewith she bounde her soule, the Lorde shall forgive her.

C But every vower of a wydowe, and of her that is deuorced (that they haue bounde theyr soule bythall) shall stande in effecte with them. If she vowed in her husbandes house, or bounde her soule with an othe, and her husbande heard it, and bride his peace, and forbade her not, then all her vower and bondes wherewith she bounde her soule, shall stande. But if her husbande dysannulled them, the same daye that he heard them then nothinge that proceedeth out of her lippes in vower and bondes wherewith she bounde her soule shall stande in effecte for her husbande hath loosed them. And the Lorde shall forgive her. All vower and othes that bynde to humble the soule, make her husbande stablyshe or brenke. But if her husbande holde his peace frome one daye vnto another, then he stablysheth all the vower and bondes whiche she had upon her, because he held his peace the same day that he hearde them. But if he brenke them, after that he hath hearde them, he shall beare her synne hym selfe. These are the ordynances which the Lorde commanded Moses, betwene a man and his wyfe: and betwene the father and his daughter, beyng yet a damsell in her fathers house.

The .xxi. Chapter.

C The Madianites and Balaam are slayne. The story is equally deuyded. A present given of Israel.

Ad the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: * auenge the chyldren of Israel of the Medyanites, and afterward shalt thou be gathered vnto thy people. And Moses spake vnto the folke, sayinge: Harnesse some of you vnto warre, and let them go vnto the Medyanites, and auenge the Lorde of the Madianites. Let there be chosen a thousand out of every tribe of Israel, that out of all the trybes ye maye sende some to the warre. And there were taken out of the thousands of Israel, twelue thousande prepared vnto warre, of every trybe a thousande.

And Moses sente them to the warre, euen a thousande of every trybe, and with them, Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the Priest, and the holie vesselles: and the * trompets to blowe were in his hande. And they warred against the Medyanites, as the Lorde commanded Moses, and slue all the males. And they slue the kynnes of Madian amonge other that were slayne: name-ly, Eni and Rekem, Sur and Hur and Reba slue kynnes of Madian with Balaam, the sonne of Beor, whom they slue with the sword: And the chyldren of Israel toke al the worme of Madian prisoners, and theyr chyldren, and spoyled all theyr cattel, and al theyr flockes, and al their goodes. And they burnt all theyr cyties wher- in they dwelte, and all theyr castels with fyre.

And they toke all the spoyles and all that they could catche both of men and beastes. And they brought the captaynes and that which they had taken and the spoyles vnto Moses and Eleazar the Priest, and vnto the company of the chyldren of Israel, euen vnto the hoste that were in the feldes of Abarim by Iordā, ouer agaynst Jericho. And Moses and Eleazar the Priest, and all the lordes of the congregacion went out of the host agaynst them. And Moses was angry with the officers of the hoste, with the captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, whiche came from the warre and battayle: and Moses sayde vnto them: haue ye saved all the women alvys? behold, these caused the chyldren of Israel to rowe the counsell of Balaam, to commyt treason agaynst the Lorde, in the busynesse of Beor, and there folowed a plague amonge the congregacion of the Lorde. Nowe therefore, * slaye al the men chyldren, and the women that haue lyen with men fleschly. But all the women chyldren that haue not lien with men, kepe alvys for your selues. And ye shall remayne without the hoste seven dayes, all that haue kyled anye persone: * and all that haue touched anye deade bodye, and purifie both your selues and your prisoners the thyrde daye and the seventh. And synnise all your raymentes and all that is made of linnen and all woche of goates heare, and all thynges made of wood.

And Eleazar the Priest sayde vnto the men of warre, whiche came from the battayle: this is the ordynance of the lawe whiche the Lorde commanded Moses, golde, syluer, brasse, and yron, tynne, and leade, and all that maye abyde the fyre, ye shall make it goo thowme the fyre, and it shall be cleane. Reuerthelesse, it shall be synnised with synnyslyng water. And all that suffereth not the fyre ye shall make go thowme the water. And washe your clothes the seventh daye, and ye shall be cleane.

And afterwarde come into the host. And the Lorde

Lozde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: take þe summe of the piapre that was taken both of the women and of cattel, thou and Eleazar the priesse, and the auncient fathers of the congregacyon. And deuyde it into two partes betwene them that toke the warre vpon them, and went out to battayle and all the congregacyon. And take a porcyon vnto the Lozde of the me of warre, which wente out to battayle: one soule of fyue hundred, both of the women, and of the oren, and of the asses, and of the shepe: and ye shal take it of theyr halfe and geue it vnto Eleazar the priesse, as an heue-offerynge of the Lozde.

E And of the halfe of the chyldren of Israell, thou shalt take one porcyon of fyfte, of the women, of the oren, of the asses, and of þe shepe, and of all maner of bestes: and geue them vnto the Leuites, whiche waite vpon the habitation of the Lozde. And Moyses and Eleazar the priesse dyd as the Lozde commaunded Moyses. And the boeye, and the piapre whiche the men of warre had caught, was fyue hundred thousande, and lxxv. thousande shepe, and lxxii. thousande oren lxi thousande asses: and xxxii. thousande soules of women, that had lye by no man. And the halfe whiche was the parte of them that wente out to warre was thre hundred thousande and seven and therty thousande fyue hundred shepe. And the Lozdes part of the shepe was fyue hundred and lxxv. And the oren were xxxvi. thousande, of whiche the Lozdes parte was lxxii.

A And the asses were xxx. thousande and fyue hundred, of whiche the Lozdes parte was lxi. And the soules of women were xvi. thousande, of whiche the Lozdes parte was xxxii. soules. And Moyses gaue that summe whiche was the Lozdes heue-offerynge, vnto Eleazar the priesse as the Lozde commaunded Moyses. And the other halfe of the chyldren of Israell whiche Moyses seperated from the men of warre, (that is to wete the halfe that pertayned vnto the congregacyon) was thre hundred thousande, and xxxvi. thousande and fyue hundred shepe: and xxxvi. thousande oren: and xxx. thousande asses, and fyue hundred and xvi. thousande soules of women. And Moyses toke of thys halfe that pertayned vnto the chyldren of Israell, one porcyon of fyfte, both of the women and of the cattell, and gaue them vnto the Leuites, whiche waite vpon the habitacon of the Lozde, as the Lozde commaunded Moyses. And the officers of thousandes of the hoite, the captaynes ouer the thousandes, and the captaynes ouer the hundredes came foithe, and sayde vnto Moyses: Thy seruantes haue taken the sum of the men of warre whiche are vnder our auctorite, and there lacketh not one man of vs.

E We haue therfore brought a presente vnto the Lozde what euerye man founde of iewelless of golde, cheynes, bracelettes, rynges, eare rynges, and spangylles, to make an attonement for oure soules before the Lozde. And Moyses and Eleazar toke the golde of them, iewelless of all maner fashyons. And all the golde of the heue-offerynge that they deuied vnto the Lozde, (of the captaynes ouer thousandes and hundredes) was fyfene thousande seven hundred and fyfty sycken, for the men of warre had spoyled, euerye man for hym selfe. And Moyses and Eleazar the priesse, toke the golde of the captaynes ouer the thousandes, and of the captaynes ouer the hundredes, and broughte it in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, for a memoriall of the chyldren of Israell before the Lozde.

¶ The xxxiiij. Chapter.

To Ruben and Gad and to half the tribe of manasse, to promysse the possession beyonde Jordan.
Calu. 1. 1.

The chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad had an exceeding great multitude of cattel. And when they sawe the lande of Jazer, and flande of Gilead, that it was an apte place for cattell, the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad came and spake vnto Moyses and Eleazar the priesse, and vnto the Lozdes of the congregacyon, sayinge: The lande of Astaroth and Dibon Jazer, and Remrah, hesbon and Elealeh, Sabam and Arbo and Beon: whiche countrey the Lozde smote before the congregacyon of Israell: is a lande mete for cattell, and we thy seruantes haue cattell: wherfore (sayd they) geue we haue founde grace in thy syghte, let thys lande be geuen vnto thy seruantes to possesse, and bypnye vs not ouer Jordan.

A And Moyses sayde vnto the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben: Shall yowre brethren go to warre and ye shall sytte here? Wherfore opicozage ye the hart of the chyldren of Israell: þe shulde not go ouer into the lande, which the Lozde hath geuen them: * Thus dyd yowre fathers when I sente them from Cadis Barne to se the lande. For when they wente vpon enen vnto the ryuer of Escoll, and sawe the lande: they dycozaged the hartes of the chyldren of Israell, that they shulde not goo into the lande, whiche the Lozde hath geuen them.

A And the Lozde was wrothe the same tyme, and swaere, sayinge: * None of the men that cam out of Egypte from twentye yere olde and about, shall se the lande whiche I swaere vnto Abraham, Isahar, and Jacob, because they haue not wholye folowed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune the Kenesite, and Josua the sonne of Nun: for they haue folowed the Lozde. And the Lozde was angrie wyth Israell, and made them wander in the wyldernesse fortye yere, vntill all the generacyon that had done euill in the syght of the Lozde were consumed.

A And beholde, ye are rylen vp in your fathers stede, as an encrease of synful men, to augment the scarce wyache of the Lozde, towarde Israell. For ye turne away fro after hym, he wyll yet agayne leaue the people in the wyldernesse, and ye shall destroye all thys folke. And they wente nere hym and sayde: we wyll buyde shepe foldes here for our shepe and for our cattell, and wyll cytyen for oure chyldren. But we ouer selues wyll go ready armed before the chyldren of Israell, vntill we haue broughte the into their place.

h. u. And

And once chyldren shall dwell in the fenced cytyes, because of the inhabitants of the lande. They will not returne vnto our houses, vntyl the chyldren of Iſrael haue enbattered, euery man his enbattering. They ther will we enbatter with them on yonder ſyde Jordan forward, because our enbattering is fallen to vs on this ſyde Jordan caſtwarde.

And Moſes ſayde vnto them: yf ye will do this thinge, and go harnessed before the Lorde to warre, and will go all of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before the Lorde, vntyl ye haue caſte oute his enemies before hym: and vntyl the lande be subdued before the Lorde, then ye shall returne and be without ſpynne before the Lorde, and before Iſrael: and this lande ſhall be your poſſeſſion before the Lorde. But and yf ye will not do ſo, beholde: ye haue ſpynned agaynſt the Lorde: be ſure your ſpynne will ſpynde you out.

Howe therfore, buyde cytyes for your chyldren, and foldes for your ſhepe, and doo that ye haue ſpoken. The chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben ſpoke vnto Moſes, ſayinge: thy ſeruauntes will do as my Lorde commaundeth. Our chyldren, our wyues, our ſhepe, and our cattell ſhall remayne here in the cytyes of Gilead, But * thy ſeruauntes will goo all harnessed to warre, and vnto battayle before the Lorde, as my Lorde ſaith. And for theyr labes Moſes commaunded Eleazar the ſonne of Aun, and the auncyentes ſachens of the trybes of the chyldren of Iſrael: Moſes ſayde vnto them: If the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben will go wyth you ouer Jordan, all prepared to fight before the Lorde, then wyl the lande be subdued before you, ye ſhall grue them the lande of Gilead to poſſeſſe: but and yf they will not go ouer with you in harnesse, they ſhall haue theyr poſſeſſions amonge you in the lande of Canaan.

And the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben answered, ſayinge: as the Lorde hath ſayde vnto thy ſeruauntes, ſo will we do.

* We will goo harnessed before the Lorde into the lande of Canaan: that the poſſeſſion of our enbatteringe maye be on this ſyde Jordan.

And Moſes gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad, and to the chyldren of Ruben, & vnto halfe the trybe of Manasse the ſonne of Joſeph, the kyngdome of Shebon kyng of the Amoytes, and the kyngdome of Og: kyng of Baſan, the lande wyth the cytyes therof in the coſtes and Cyties of the countrey rounde aboute. And the chyldren of Gad buyit Dibon, and Aſtaroth, and Aroer, and Aſtroth, Hophan, Jaſer, and Jegabee, Bethnumra, and Berharan, fenced Cyties, and they buyit foldes for the ſhepe.

And the chyldren of Ruben buyit Heſdon, Eriale, Kiryathaim, Arbo, Baali, Weon, and turned theyr names, and Sibama alſo: & gaue other names vnto the cytyes whiche they buyided. And the chyldren of Gad: the ſonne of Manasse went to Gilead, & toke it and put oute the Amoytes that dwelte therein. And Moſes gaue Gilead vnto Gad: the ſonne of Manasse

And Aaron was an hundred and. xxiii. yere olde when he dyed in mount Hoj. And the Lojde spake vnto Moses in the feldes of Moab, by Jozdan ouer agaynst Jericho saying: I speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: * when ye are come ouer Jozdan to entre into the lande of Canaan, ye shall dyscuss out all the inhabyters of the lande before you, and destrope all theyr petyces, and breake a sunder all theyr ymages of metall, and plucke downe all theyr altars. And possesse the lande and dwel therein, for I haue geuen you the lande to enioye it. And ye shall deuyde the enberptaunce of the lande by lot amonge youre kynredes, * and geue to many, the more enberptaunce and to the fewer the lesse enberptaunce. And youre enberptaunce shalbe in the trybes of your fathers, euerye mans enberptaunce in the place where bys lot falleth. * But and ye shall not dyscuss out the inhabyters of the land before you, then those whych ye let remayne of them, shall be pycked in youre eyes, and dartes in youre sydes, and shall vex you in the lande wherein ye dwell. Wozouer, it will come to passe, that I shall do vnto you, as I thought to do vnto the.

The. xxxiii. Chapter.

The castles and borders of the lande of promysse. Certeayne men are assigned to deuyde the lande.

And the Lojde spake vnto Moses, I sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them, when ye come into the land of Canaan, this is the lande that shall fall vnto youre enberptaunce, the lande of Canaan wyth her coastes. * And your southquarter shalbe fro the wyldernesse of Sin: a longe by the coaste of Edom, so that youre southquarter reache vpon the syde of the salte see eastwarde: and set a compassse from the southe vp to Acrabim: and reache to zinna. And go out from the southe to Cades Barne, and go out also to hazar Adar, and goo alonge to Zymon, and set a compassse agayn fro Zymon vnto the ryuer of Egypte, and shall goo out at the see.

And let youre westquarter be the greates see. * let the same see be your westcoste. And this shal be your northquarter: ye shall compassse your bojder from the greates see vnto mounte Hoj. And from mount Hoj, ye shall descrybe your bojder, tyll it come vnto Hemath, & the ende of the coste shalbe at zedaba, and the coost shal reache out to ziphion, and goo oute at hazar Enan. This shal be youre northquarter.

And ye shall compassse your eastquarter from Hazerenan to Sephan. And the coaste shal go downe from Sephan to Ribla on the easte syde of Ain. And the same bojder shal descende and goo out at the syde of the see of Cenereth eastwarde. And then go downe alonge by Jozdan, and leaue at the salte see. And this shalbe youre lande with the coastes therof rounde about.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel, saying: this is the lande whiche ye shall inherite by lot, and whych the Lojde commaunded to geue vnto wyne tribes and an halfe: * for the trybe of the chyldren of Ruben, accordyng to the householdes of their fathers, and the trybe of the chyldren of Gad, accordyng to theyr fathers householdes, and halfe the trybe of Manasse, haue receyued theyr enberptaunce: two tribes & an half haue receyued theyr enberptaunce on the other syde of Jozdan, ouer agaynst Jericho eastward. And the Lojde spake to Moses, saying: these are the names of the men whiche shall deuyde the land vnto you: Eleazar the sonne of Aaron. And ye shall take also a lojde of euerye trybe when ye deuyde the lande. The names of the men are these: Of the tribe of Iuda, Caled the sonne of Iephune. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Simeon, Nemuel the sonne of Amiad. Of the trybe of Ben Jamin, Elidad: the sonne of Cisson. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Dan, the lojde Bucki, the sonne of Jagli.

From amonge the chyldren of Joseph for the tribe of the chyldren of Manasse, the lojde Haniel, the sonne of Ephod. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Ephraim, the lojde Camuel, the sonne of Guphtan. Of the trybe of the sonnes of Zabulon, the lojde Elizaphan: the sonne of Barnache. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Issachar, the lojde Balsiel: the sonne of Han. Of the trybe of the sonnes of Aser, the lojde Abihud the sonne of Dalouit.

h. iii. Of the

Of the trybe of the chyldren of Reuben, the lord Bedael, the sonne of Amihud. These are they whome the Lorde commanded to beuyde the enteritaunce vnto the chyldren of Israel in the lande of Canaan.

The xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Unto the Leuites are giuen cyties and suburbs, the cyties of refuge, the lawe of manslaying. For out mannes wythout shall no man be condemned.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses in the feildes of Moab by Iordā, ouer agaynst Iericho, saying: commaund the chyldren of Israel, & theye giue vnto the Leuites of the enteritaunce of theyr possession, & cyties to dwell in. And ye shall giue also vnto the cyties of the Leuites, suburbs harde by theyr cyties rounde aboute them. The cyties that they haue to dwell in, and the suburbs for theyr cattell, and for theyr possession and all maner of beastes of theyr. And the suburbs of the cyties whiche ye shall giue vnto the Leuites, shall reache from the wall of the citie outwarde, a thousande cubites rounde about. And ye shall measure wythout the ctye of the east syde, two thousande cubytes. And of the south syde, two thousande cubytes. And of the west syde two thousand cubites. And of the north syde two thousande cubytes also: and the citie shall be in the myddes. And these shall be the suburbs of theyr cyties.

And from amonge the cyties which ye shall giue vnto the Leuites, there shall be syre cyties for refuge, whych ye shall appoynt to that effect, that he whych killeth, may fye thither: And to them ye shall adde xlii. cities more: so that all the cyties whych ye shall giue the Leuites, may be xliiii. wyth theyr suburbs. And the cyties whiche ye shall giue, shall be out of the possession of the chyldren of Israel. They that haue many, shall giue many. But of them that haue fewe, ye shall take fewe. Every one shall giue of his cyties vnto the Leuites, accordyng to the enteritaunce whych he enteriteth. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: whē ye be come ouer Iordane into the lande of Canaan, ye shall appoynte you cyties to be cyties of refuge, for you: that he whych sleeth a soule vnwares, maye fye thither. And the ctye shall be to fye from the auenger of blood, that he whych killeth, dye not, vntill he stande before the congregation in iudgement.

And of these syre free cyties whych ye shall giue, ye shall giue thre on this syde Iordan, and thre in the lande of Canaan. And these syre free cyties shall be a refuge bothe for the chyldren of Israel, and for the stranger, and for hym that dwelleth amonge you, that all they whych kill any personne vnwares, maye fye thither.

And if any man smyte an other w an instrument of yron that he dye, then is he a murderer, and shall dye for it. If he smyte hym with a throwyng stone that a man may dye with, and if he dye, he that smote hym is a murderer, let the same murderer be slayne therfore. Or if he smyte hym with a hande weapon of wood that a man dye wyth: then if he dye, he is a murderer. Let the murderer be slayne therfore.

The Justyce of blood shall slaye the murderer: when he meteth hym, he may slay hym. But if he thrust at hym: of hate, or burle at hym w laynge of wyte, that he dye, or smyte hym w hym hande of enuye, that he dye, he that smote hym shall dye, for he is a murderer. The Justyce of blood shall slaye the murderer alsoone as he fyndeth hym.

But and if he pushed hym by chaunce, and not of hate, or cast at hym with anye maner of thynge, and not of laynge of wyte: or cast any maner of stone at hym (that a man may dye wyth) and save hym not. And he caste it vpon hym and he dye, and was not his enemye, neyther soughte hym anye harme. Then the congregation shall iudge betwene the sleper and the executer of blood in suche cases. And the congregation shall deliuer the sleper out of the hande of the auenger of blood, and the congregation shall restore hym agayne vnto the ctye of his refuge, whycher he was fled.

And he shall hyde there vnto the deathe of the hye priesst, whych was anoynted with holy oyle. But and if the sleper come wythoute the borders of his privileged ctye whycher he was fledde, if the auenger of blood fynde hym without the borders of his free towne, and slepe the murderer, he shall be gyltlesse, because he shoulde haue hydden in his free towne, vntill the deathe of the hye priesst, and after the deathe of the hye priesst: to retorne agayne vnto the lande of his possession.

These Commandementes shall be a lawe vnto you, for your generacions in all your dwellynge. Whoso euer killeth a soule, the same manslayer muste be slayne hym selfe, thorow wytnesses. Neether shall one wytnesse answer to put a man to deathe. Wozeouer ye shall take none amendes for the lyfe of the murderer, whych is wythtyme to dye: But he shall be put to deathe.

Also ye shall take no monye of hym that is fledde to a free ctye, that he shoulde come agayne, and dwell in the lande, before the deathe of the hye priesst. And se that ye pollute not the lande whych ye shall dwell in: for blood defyleth the lande. And the lande can none otherwyse be clenched of the blood that is shedde therein, but by the blood of hym that shedde blood. Despit not therfore the lande whych ye shall inhabit, for I am in the myddes therof: Euen I the Lorde dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

And the auncient fathers of the chyldren of Israel, the sonne of Machir, the son of Manasse, of the kynrede of the chyldren of Joseph came forth & spake before Moyses, & the pynces and auncient fathers of the chyldren of Israel and and sayde: * The Lorde commaunded my lorde to gyue the lande to inheryte by lot to the chyldren of Israel. And my lorde commaunded in Gods behalfe, to gyue the inheritaunce of * zelaphead our brother vnto his daughters. Whoso of any of the sonnes of the other tribes of Israel take to wyues, then shall they inheritaunce be taken from the inheritaunce of our fathers, and shall be put vnto the inheritaunce of the tribe whych they are receyued into: and shall be taken from the lotte of our inheritaunce. And when the pere of Iubelpe of the chyldren of Israel commeth, then shall they inheritaunce be put vnto the inheritaunce of the tribe wherein to they are receyued: and so shall they inheritaunce be taken awaye from the inheritaunce of the tribe of our fathers.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, saying: the chyldren of the tribe of Joseph haue sayde well. This therfore doth the Lorde commaunde the daughters of zelaphead, sayinge: * let them be wyues, to whome they them selfe thinke best, onely to the kynrede and tribe of theyr father: shall they mary, so shall not the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Israel remoue fro tribe to tribe, when the chyldren of Israel abyde euery man in the inheritaunce of the tribe of his fathers.

And euery daughter that possesseth anye inheritaunce in any tribe of the chyldren of Israel, shall be wyfe vnto one whiche is of the kynrede of the tribe of her father, that the chyldren of Israel maye enioye euery man the inheritaunce of his father. Nether ought the inheritaunce to goo from one tribe to an other: but euery one of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel must abyde in his owne inheritaunce.

And as the Lorde commaunded Moses: euen so dyde the daughters of zelaphead. And Habel, Thirza, Hagla, Milcha, & Noa were maryed vnto theyr fathers brothers sonnes, whiche were of the kynrede of the chyldren of Manasse: the sonne of Joseph, and so they inheritaunce remayned in the tribe of the kynrede of theyr father.

These are the commaundementes and lawes whiche the Lorde commaunded by the hande of Moses, vnto the chyldren of Israel in the felde of Moab: by Iordane ouer agaynst Jericho.

The ende of the fourth booke of Moses, called in the hebreue Vaiebadder: and in the Latyn Numeri.

The fyfth booke of Moses, called in the hebreue Ellebadder, and in the Latyn, Deuteronomium.

The fyfth Chapter.

It shal be the first of thynges thou shalt do.

Hese be the wordes which Moses spake vnto all Israel, on the other syde Iordane in the wyl-dernesse: in the playne ouer agaynst the red see, betwene Pharaun and Chophel, Laban, Hazerot, & Disabab, eleuen dayes iourney fro Hozeb vnto Cades barne, by mount Seir. And it fortuned the fyfthe daye of the eleuenth moneth in the .xl. pere: Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel accordyng vnto all that the Lorde had gyuen him in commaundement vnto them, after that he had synnethen * Hithon the kynge of the Amozites which dwelt in Heseon, and Og kynge of Basan, which dwelt at Asaroth in Edrai. On the other syde Iordane in the lande of Moab beganne Moses to declare this lawe, saying: the Lorde our God spake vnto vs in Hozeb, sayinge: ye haue dwelt longe ynough in this mount, departe therfore and take youre iourney, and go vnto the hyll of the Amozites, and vnto all places nye therunto: both vnto the playne and hylls and dales: to the south, to the lees syde, to the lande of Canaan, and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the great ryuer Euphrates.

Beholde, I haue set that lande before you: go in and * possesse the lande whiche the Lorde swore vnto your fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to gyue vnto them and theyr seed after them. And I spake vnto you the same season, sayinge: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde your God hath multiplied you: and beholde, ye are this daye as the starres of heuen in nombre (the Lorde God of your fathers make you a thousand tymes so many more as ye are, & blesse you, as he hath promysed you) how can * I my self alone beare the charge, charge and tryfe that is amonge you: byng (from amonge you) men of wysdom and of vnderstandyng, and experte, accordyng to youre trybes, and I wyl make them rulers ouer you. And ye answered me and sayde: that whiche thou hast spoken is good for vs to do. And so out of your trybes I toke the captaynes, (men of wysdome: and that were experte) and made them rulers ouer you, captayned ouer thousandes, and des and ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer x. and offsprings amonge your trybes.

C And I charged your Iudges that same tyme, sayinge: heare the cause of your brethren, and iudge righteously betwene euery man and his brother, and the straunger that is with hym. So that ye knowe no faces in iudgement: but heare the small as well as the greates, and be afrayde of no man, for the iudgement is Gods. And the cause that is to: haue for you, dyspunge vnto me, and I will heare it. And I commaunded you the same season, all the thynges whiche ye shulde do. And when we departed from Horeb, we wente thowse all that greates and terrible wilderness, as ye haue sene alonge by the way of the hyl of the Amoytes, as I Lord our God commaunded vs, and came to Cades barme.

D And I sayde vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hyl of the Amoytes, which the Lord our God wyl grue vnto vs. Beholde, the Lord thy God hath let the lande before the: go vp and conquer it, as the Lord God of thy fathers hath sayde vnto the: feare not, neither be discouraged. But ye came vnto me euery one and sayde: we wyl sende men before vs, to seache vs out the lande and to dyspunge vs worde agayne, what way we must go vp by, and vnto what cyties we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well, and I toke twelue men of you, of euery trybe one.

Which departed, and went vp into the hye coast trey, and came vnto the ryuer Eskol, & searched it out, and toke of the frute of the lande: in theyr handes, and brought it vnto vs, and brought vs worde agayne, and sayde: it is a good lande, whiche the Lord our God doth grue vs.

E Notwithstanding, ye wolde not consent to go vp, but were disobedient vnto the mouth of the Lord your God, and murmured in your tentes, and sayd: because the Lord hated vs, therfore hath he brought vs oute of the lande of Egypte, to deliuer vs into the hande of the Amoytes, and to destroye vs. how shall we go vpr? Our brethren haue discouraged our hertes, sayinge: the people is greater and taller then we, and haue cyties great and walled, euen vnto brauen, and moreover we haue sene the sonnes of the Enahims there. And I sayde vnto you: vnde not, no: be afrayd of the. The Lord your God whiche goeth before you, he shal fyght for you, accordyng to all that he dyd vnto you in Egypt before your eyes. In the wilderness also thou hast sene howe that the Lord thy God bare the, euen as a man doth beare his sonne in all the waye whiche ye haue gone by, vntill ye came vnto this place. And yet in this thyng ye dyd not beleue the Lord your God. he went in the waye before you, to seache you out a place to pitche your tentes in, in fytte by nyght, & ye myght se what way to go, & in a cloude by day.

F And the Lord hearde the voyce of your woed, and was wroth, and sware, sayinge: where shal not one of these me and of this froward generation, se that good lande whiche I sware to grue vnto your fathers, save Caleb the son of

Yephune, he shal se it, and to hym wyl I grue the lande that he hath troden vpon, and to his chyldren, because he hath followed the Lord:

G The Lord was angry with me, & he wyl for your sakes, sayinge: thou shalt not go in thither. But Josua the sonne of Nun whiche standed before the, shal go in thither. Golden him therfore, for he shal cause Israel to inheret the lande. Moreover, your chyldren which ye said shulde be a pray, and your sonnes which in that day had no knowledge betwene good and euyl, they shal goo in thither, and vnto them wyl I grue it, and they shal enioye it. But as for you: turne your faces, and take your iourneys into the wilderness: euen by the waye of the red see. Then ye answered & sayde vnto me: we haue synned agaynst the Lord: we wyl go vp, and fyghte, accordyng to all that the Lord our God commaunded vs.

H And when ye had gyde on euery man hys weapons of warre, beholde, ye were redy to go vnto the hyl. And the Lord sayde vnto me: saye vnto them that they go not vp, & that they fyght not, for I am not amonge you: lest ye fall before your enemyes. I tolde you therfore, and ye wolde not heare, but disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, and went presumptuously vp into the hyl. And the Amoytes which dwelt in that hyl came out agaynst you, and chased you (as bees vse to do) and smot you in Seir, euen vnto Hozma. And ye came agayne, and wepte before the Lord: but I Lord wolde not heare your voyce, nor grue you audience. And so ye abode in Cades a longe season, accordyng vnto the tyme ye remayned in other places.

That which was done from the tyme they departed from Cades barme, vnto the daye they agaynst the hyes Seir and Esau.

I And we turned our face, and toke our iourney into the wilderness, euen by the waye of the redde see, as the Lord spake vnto me. And we compassed mount Seir a longe tyme. And the Lord spake vnto me, sayinge: ye haue compassed this mountayne longe ynough, turne you northwarde. And warne thou the people, sayinge: ye shall go thowse the coast of your brethren the chyldren of Esau which dwell in Seir, and they shall be afrayde of you: take ye good heed vnto your selues therfore. Ye shal not prouoke them, for I wyl not grue you of theyr land, no not so much as a fote byedeb, because I haue gyuen mount Seir vnto Esau to possesse, ye shal be meat of them for money to eate, and ye shal procure water of them for money to dyspynke. For the Lord thy God hath blessed the in all thy workes of thy hande. he knewe thy entryng into this great wilderness this fouretye yeres, and I Lord thy God hath be with the, so that thou hast lacked nothinge. And when we were departed from our brethren the chyldren of Esau which dwell in Seir, the playne way from Elath, and from Eion Gaber, we turned and went by the way of the wilderness of Moab. And the Lord sayd vnto unto me: * Thou shalt not fyght agaynst the Moabites, neyther prouoke them to batell, for I wyl not geue the of the land to possesse, because I haue geuen it vnto þe chyldren of Loth to possesse. The terrible people the * Emims dwelt therein in tymes past, a people great, many and tall, as the Enahims whiche also were taken for gyauntes as the Enahims: whom the Moabites call Emims. The Hojims dwelt in Seir befoze tyme, whose possession the chyldren of Esau occupied, and destroyed them befoze them, and dwelt in thei steade: as Israel dyde vnto the lande of hys possession, whiche the Loyde gaue them.

C Nowe tyme vp sayde I and get you ouer the ryuer zared: and we went ouer the ryuer zared. The space in which we came from Eades barne vntyll we were come ouer the ryuer zared was: xxxviij. yerres, vntyll all the generacyon of the men of warre were wasted out from among the holte, as the Loyde swaie vnto them. * For in dede the hande of the Loyde was agaynst them, to destroy them from among the holte, tyl they were consumed. And so it came to passe, that all the men of war were consumed and deade from amonge the people. And the Loyde spake vnto me, saying: Thou shalt go thowowe Ar the cost of Moab thys dape: and when thou comest nye vnto the chyldren of Ammon, thou shalt not lay sege vnto them, nor moue warre agaynst them.

D For I wyl not geue the of the lande of the chyldren of Ammon a possession: but I haue geuen it vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. That also is taken for a lande of gyauntes, and gyauntes dwelt therein in olde tyme whom the Ammonites call zanzumims. * A people that was great, many and tall, as the Enahims.

But the Loyd destroyed them befoze them, and they succeeded them in the inheritaunce & dwelt in thei steade: as he dyd for þe chyldren of Esau which dwel in Seir, when he destroyed þe hojims befoze them: they conquered they: possession, and dwelt in thei steade vnto thys dape. And the Anims which dwelt in Hazarim enen vnto Aza, the Capthozims which came out of Capthoz destroyed them & dwelt in their stead.

E Ryle vphetherfoze, and take your iouney ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, * I haue geuen into thy hande Sehon þe Amozite kyng of Ihesbon, and his lande. Go to therfoze and conquer, and prouoke hym to batell. Thys dape wyl I begynne to send the feare and drede of the, vpon all nacjons that are vnder all the heuen: so that they whiche here speake of the shal tremble and quake befoze þe. And so I sent messengers out of the wyldernes of Redemoth vnto Sehon kyng of Ihesbon, with wordes of peace, sayinge: * I wyl go thowowe thy lande I wyl go alonge by the hye waye: I wyl neyther turne vnto þe right hande nor to the left. Thou shalt sell me meate for money for to eat, and geue me water for money for to drynke: Only graunt me, that I may go thowowe on my foote (as the chyldren of Esau whiche dwel in Seir, and the Moabites which dwel in Ar, dyd vnto me) vntyl I be come ouer Jordane, into the lande whiche the Loyde oure God geueth vs. But Sehon the kyng of Ihesbon wolde not let vs passe by hym, for the Loyd thy God hardened his spere, and made his hert tounge, because he wolde deliuer hym into thy hande, as it is come to passe thys dape.

And the Loyde sayde vnto me: beholde, I haue begonne to set Sehon and his land befoze the: go to and conquere, and possesse hys lande. * Then both Sehon and al his people came out agaynst vs to fyght at Iaza. And the Loyde set hym befoze vs, and we smote hym, and his sons and all hys people. And we toke all hys cytyes, the same reason and slewe the men, women, and chyldren of al the cities, & let nothing remayne, save the catell only we caught vnto our selues, and the spoyle of the cytyes which we toke from Aron which is by the bynke of the ryuer of Arnon, and from the cytye that is in the ryuer, vnto Gilead: there was not one cytye so strong for vs. The Loyde our God deliuered all vnto vs: only vnto the land of the chyldren of Amm thou camst not, nor vnto euery place of the ryuer Iabok, nor vnto the cities in the mountaynes, nor vnto whatsoeuer the Loyde oure God forbad vs.

The iij. Chapter.

C Thrasos & chaunted from the bynke of the ryuer Arnon, Sehon and Og vnto the iustitacion of Iaza in Moab.

I When we turned & went by the way to Basan. * And Og the kyng of Basan came out agaynst vs, he and all his people to batell at Edrai. And þe Loyde layd vnto me: feare hym not, for I wyl deliuer hym, and all hys people, and his lande into thy hande, and thou shalt do vnto hym, as thou dydest vnto Sehon kyng of the Amozites, whiche dwelt at Ihesbon. And so the Loyde our God deliuered into our handes, Og also the kyng of Basan and all his folke. And we smote hym, vntyl none was left him alive. And he toke all his cytyes the same reason: neyther was there a cytye which we toke not from them (euene thei sege cytyes thowowe out all the regyon of Argob, the kyngdome of Og in Basan. All thei cytyes also were made stronge wth hye walles, gates and barres, besyde vnwalloed towncs a gret meany. And we vterly destroyed them, as we dyd vnto Sehon kyng of Ihesbon, byngynge to noughte all the cytyes, wth men, women, and chyldre. But all the catell and the spoyle of þe cytyes, we caught for our selues.

And thus we toke the same reason, out of the hande of two kynges of the Amozites, the lande that was on the oþer syde Jordan from the riuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (which Hermon the Sidons cal Sirion, and the Amozites call it Senir) all the cytyes that laye in þe playne and all Gilead and all Basan vnto Salecha & Edrai, cytyes of the kyngdome of Og in Basan. For onely Og kyng of Basan remayned of the remnaunte of þe gyauntes, whose bed was a bed of yron. And is it not yet at Rabah amonge the chyldren of Ammon: ix. cubytes dothe þe length therof conteyne, and foure cubites the bredth of

þ v it, after

it after the cubite of a mil. And so we conquered this lande the same tyme, from Arnon whych is by the ryuer of Arnon, vnto halfe mount Gilead, and the ctyes therof gaue I vnto the Rubenites and Gaddites. And the rest of Gilead, and all Basan of the kyngdome of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe tribbe of Manasse: euen all the regyon of Argob with all Basan: whiche is called the lande of giants. Iair the sonne of Manasse toke all the regyon of Argob, vnto the coast of Gesuri and Maachati, and called them after his owne name: Basan haue Iair vnto this daye. And I gaue Gilead vnto Machir.

C And vnto the Rubenites & Gaddites I gaue halfe Gilead vnto the ryuer of Arnon, halfe the valey and beyond, euen vnto the ryuer Iabock, whiche is the border of the chyldren of Amud: the playne also (of the warrenne) and Jordan & the coast therof, from Ceneroth euen vnto the see whiche is in the playne, euen the salt see vnder the springes of the byll, eastwarde. * And I commaunded you the same tyme sayinge: the Lorde your God hath geuen you this lande to enioye it: ye shal go barnessed before you hether the chyldren of Israel that are mete for the war. Your wyues onely, your chyldren, and your cattell (for I wrote that ye haue muche cattell) shall abyde in your ctyes, whiche I haue geuen you, vntill the Lorde haue geuen rest vnto your brethren as well as vnto you, and vntill they also haue conquered the lande, whiche the Lorde your God hath geuen them beyonde Jordan: and the shal ye retourne agayne, euery man vnto his possession whiche I haue geuen you.

D * And I warned Josua the same tyme, sayinge: thine eyes haue sene al that the Lorde your God hath done vnto these two kynges, euen so shal he do vnto all kyngdoms whither thou goest. Ye shall not feare them, for the Lorde your God, he shall fyght for you. And I besoughe the Lorde the same tyme, sayinge: O Lorde God, thou haste begonne to shewe thy seruauit thy greatnesse and thy myghty hande, for elles where is there a God in heuen or in earth, that can do after thy workes, and after thy power: let me go ouer and se the good lande that is beyonde Jordan that goodly mountayne, and Libanon.

* But the Lorde was angrey wth me for your sakes, and wolde not heare me. And the Lorde sayd vnto me: be content, speake nomore vnto me of this matter. * Set the vp into the top of the byll, and lyfte vp thine eyes westwarde, northwarde, southwarde, and eastwarde, and behold it with thine eyes, for thou shalt not go ouer this Jordan. But charge Josua: and courage hym, and bolden hym. * For he shall go before this people, and he shall deuoyde vnto them the lande whiche thou shalt se. And so we abode in the valley ouer agaynst the house of Moab.

The. iiii. Chapter.

In rethorayon to geue vnto the Lorde. Images may not be made to worship. The thre ctyes of refuge.

A And nowe herken O Israel vnto the ordynances and lawes whiche I teache you for to do them, that so ye maye lyue and go in and conquer the lande, whiche the Lorde God of your fathers geueth you. * Ye shall put nothyng vnto the worde whiche I commaund you, neyther do oughte therefrom, that ye maye kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde your God whiche I commaunde you. Your eyes haue sene what the Lorde dyd vnto Baal Peor: for all the men that folowed Baal Peor, the Lorde your God hath destroyed from amonge you.

But ye that cleaue vnto the Lorde your God, as alwaye euerie one of you this day. Behold, I haue taught you ordynances and lawes, such as the Lorde my God commaunded me, that ye shoulde do euens in the lande, whither ye go to possesse it. Kepe them therfore and do them, for that is your wysdome and vnderstandyng in the syght of the nacyns: that they maye heare all these ordynances, and saye: Surely it is a wyse and vnderstandyng people: it is a great nacyn.

For what other nacyn is so great, that God sende come so nye vnto: as the Lorde our God is nye vnto vs, in all thynges: as ofte as we call vnto hym: Ye and what nacyn is so great, that hath ordynances and lawes so ryghteous, as all this lawe whiche I set before you this daye. Take hede to the selfe therfore, & kepe thy soule diligently, that thou forget not the thynges which thine eyes haue sene, and that they departe not out of thyne herte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but teache them thy sonnes and thy sonnes sonnes. Specially the daye that thou standest before the Lorde thy God in hoied, when the Lorde sayde vnto me: gather me the people together, & I will make them heare my wordes, that they maye learne to feare me al the dayes that they shall lyue vpon the earth: and that they maye teach the chyldren: ye came: and stode also vnder the byll and the hyl burnt with fyre: euen vnto the myddes of heuen, and there was darkynesse, cloudes and myst. And the Lorde spake vnto you out of the myddes of the fyre, and ye heard the voyce of the wordes: but sawe no Image, saue heard a voyce onely. And he declared vnto you his couenaunt which he commaunded you to do, euen ten verses which he wrote vpon two tables of stone. And the Lorde commaunded me that same reason, that I shoulde teache you ordynances and lawes, whiche ye ought to do in the lande whither ye go to possesse it.

Take therfore good hede vnto your selues, as pertainyng vnto your soules, for ye sawe no maner of ymage in the day that the Lorde spake vnto you in hoied out of the myddes of the fyre: lest ye make your selues and make you a graue ymage and picture of any maner of figure: the lykenesse of man or woman, the lykenesse of any maner of beast that is on earth, or the lykenesse of any maner feathered soule that flieth in the ayre: or the lykenesse of anye maner wyrm that creepeth on the earth, or the lykenesse of any maner fyre that is in the waters beneath the earth.

* Ye and lest thou lyfte vp thine eyes vnto heuen, and when thou seest the lone the mone and starres with all the hoste of heauen, shouldest be decyued, and shouldest worship & serue the thynges, gen, whiche the Lorde thy God hath made to serue all nacjons vnder the whole heauen.

But the Lorde hath taken you and broughte you out of the yson foynace: euen out of Egypte to be vnto hym a people and inheritaunce as he be thys daye. Furthermoze, the Lorde was angrie with me for your wordes, and swaie that I shulde not go ouer Iordane, and that I shuld not go in vnto that good lande, which the Lord thy God geueth the to inheritaunce. * But I must dye in this lande, and shal not go ouer Iordan. But ye shall go ouer, & conquer that good lande. Take heede vnto your selues, that ye forget not the appointment of the Lord your God which he made with you, and that ye make you no graue ymage, nor any picture that the Lord thy God hath forbydden the: For the Lord thy God is a consuming fyre, and a gelous God.

If thou dost beget chyldren and chyldrens chyldren, and when ye haue dwelt in the lande, ye do wickedly, and make any ymage of grauen ymage, & worke euell in the syghte of the Lorde thy God, to prouoke hym to anger, I call heauen and earth to recozde agaynste you this daye, that ye shal shortly perishe from of the lande, whither ye go ouer Iordan to possesse it: ye shal not prolonge your dayes therein, but shal vterly be destroyed. And the Lorde shall scatter you amonge the nations, and ye shalbe lefte seue in nombze amonge the people, whither the Lorde shal bypnyng you: and there ye shall serue goddes whiche are the worke of mans hand, wood and stone, whiche neyther se, nor heare, nor eate, nor smell. And there thou shalt seeke the Lorde thy God: and shalt fynd him, yf thou seeke hym with all thine herte, and with all thy soule. When thou arte in tribulation, & when all these thynges (that be here spoken of) are come vpon the, euen in the later dayes, & shalt retourne agayne to the Lorde thy God, and be obedyent vnto his voyce. For the Lorde thy God is a mercifull God: he wyl not forsake the, neither destroye the: nor forgette the appoyntment of thy fathers, whiche he swaie vnto them.

For aske of the dayes that are past, whiche were before the, since the daye that God created man vpon the earth, and aske of the onelyde of heauen vnto the other, yf euer there came to passe suche a great thyng, or whether any suche lyke thyng hath bene heard. Yp euer a nacjon heare the voyce of God speakynge out of the myddes of a fyre, as thou hast heard, and yet lynd: yfther whether God assayed to go & take hym a people from amonge nacjons thozowe temptacions, sygnes, wonders, warre, a mygdyr hande, & stretched out arme, & thozowe great syghtes, accordyng vnto al that the Lord your God byd vnto you in Egypt before your eyes.

Vnto the it was shewed, that thou mightest knowe, howe that the Lorde he is God, and that there is none other but he. Out of heauen he made the heare his voyce, that he myght nourture the, & vpon earth he shewed the his great fyre, and thou heardest his voyce out of the myddes of fyre. And because he loued thy fathers, he chose they: sede after the in, and broughte the out in his syghte, and with his myghty power out of Egypt: to thrust out nacjons great and myghty then thou, before the, & to bypnyng the in, and to gyue the theyr lande to inheritaunce: as it is come to passe thys daye.

Understande therfore thys daye, and tourne it into thine harte, that the Lorde, he is God in heuen aboue, and vpon the earth beneath: neither is there any other. Thou shalt hepe therfore his ordynaunces, and his comāndementes whiche I commaund the this daye, that it may go well with the and with thy chyldren after the, & that thou mayst prolonge thy dayes vpon the erth, whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the thy lyfe longe. * Then Moses scuered the cyties on the other syde Iordan toward the sonne risinge: & he shoulde syle thither, whiche had kyled his neyghboure vntowares, & hated hym not in tyme passe, & therfore shuld syle vnto one of the same cyties, and lyur: Ramely Sejer in the wylder-nesse: euen in the playne countrey of the trybe of Ruben, & Ramoth in Gilead of the trybe of Gad and Golan in Basan of the trybe of Manasse.

And so this is the lawe which Moses set before the chyldren of Israel. These are the wyntnesses, Raturs, and ordynaunces, which Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel after they came out of Egypt, on the other syde Iordan, in the valley ouer agaynst the house of Deor, in the lande of Sechon kynge of the Amozites whiche dwelt at Hesbon: whom Moses and the chyldren of Israel smote, after they were come out of Egypt and conquered his lande, and the lande of Og, kynge of Basan, two kynges of the Amozites, whiche were on the other syde Iordan toward the sonne risinge: from Aroer whiche is by the banke of the ryuer Arnon, vnto mount Syon: whiche is Hermon, and all the playne on the other syde Iordan estward, eue vnto Jec, which is in the playne vnder the springes of the byll.

The v. Chapter.

The ten commandmentes.

As Moses called all Israel, & sayde vnto them. Heare O Israel the ordynaunces & lawes whiche I speake in your eares this daye, that ye may learne them, and fulfyll them in dede.

The Lorde our God made an appoyntment w vs in Hozeb. The Lorde made not thys bonde with oure fathers, but with vs: euen with vs, whiche are all here alpye this daye. The Lorde talked with you face to face in the moite, out of the myddes of the fyre. And I stode betwene the Lorde and you the same tyme, & shewed you the worde of the Lorde. For ye were as trayde at the syghte of the fyre, & went not vp into the mount, and he sayde: I am the Lorde thy God, which broughte the out of the lande of Egypt from the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue none other goddes in my presence.

* Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage of any maner of lykenesse that is in heuen aboue, & that is in the earth beneath, and that is in the waters beneath the earth. Thou shalt neyther bowe thy thy self vnto them, nor serue them, for I the Lord thy God, am a gelouise God, vispytyng the wyckednesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen in the thirde and fourth generacion amonge the that hate me: and shewe mercy vpon thowlands amonge them that loue me, and kepe my Commaundementes.

Exod. xii. 1. Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vayne: for the Lord wyl not holde hym guiltlesse, that taketh his name in vayne. Kepe the Sabbath day, that thou can estifie it, as the Lord thy God hath commaunded
the.

Exod. xxi. 1. Exod. xxi. 2. Six dayes thou shalt labour and do all that thou hast to do, but the seventh daye is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God: thou shalt not do any worke, thou and thy sonne, thy dought-er, thy seruante, and thy mayde, thyne ore and thyne asse, and all thy catel, and the stranger that is within thy gates, that thy seruante and thy mayde maye reke as well as thou. Remember that thou wast a seruante in the lande of Egypt and howe that the Lord thy God broughte the out thence thowolde: a myghty hande & stretched out arme. For whiche cause the Lord thy God commaunded the to kepe the Sabbath daye.

Exod. xxi. 3. Honour thy father and thy mother, as the Lord thy God hath commaunded the: that thy dayes maye be prolonged, and that it maye goe well with the in the lande, whiche the Lord thy God geueth the.

Exod. xxi. 4. Thou shalt not slaye.
Exod. xxi. 5. Thou shalt not bryake wedlocke.
Exod. xxi. 6. Thou shalt not steale.
Exod. xxi. 7. Thou shalt not beare false wytnesse a-gaynst thy neyghboure.

Exod. xxi. 8. Thou shalt not lust after thy neyghbours wyfe, thou shalt not couet thy neyghbours house, his feild, his seruante, or his mayde, his ore, his asse, or ought that thy neyghboure hath. These wordes the Lord spake vnto al your multitude in the mount out of the myddes of the fyre, cloud and darkenesse, with a grete voyce, and added nomore thereto, and wrote them in two tables of stone, and deliuered them vnto me.

Exod. xxi. 9. And it fortuned, when ye heard the voyce out of the myddes of the darkenesse, and sawe, that the hyll dyd burne with fyre, ye came vnto me with the captaynes of your trybes and your elders, and ye sayde: beholde, the Lord our God hath shewed vs his glory and his greatnes, and we haue hearde his voyce out of the myddes of the fyre: we haue sene this daye that God dothe talke with a man, and he yet lyueth. Nowe therfore, why shoulde we dye? this great fyre shoulde consume vs: For we heare the voyce of the Lord our God any moze, we shall dye. For what shall we saye, that euer hearde the voyce of the lyuynge God speakynge out of the myddes of the fyre (as we haue done) and yet did lyue? So thou and heare all that the Lord our God sayth, and tell thou vnto vs al that the Lord our God sayeth vnto the: and we wyl heare it and do it.

Exod. xxi. 10. And the Lord heard the voyce of your wodes, when ye spake vnto me, and the Lord sayd vnto me: I haue hearde the voyce of the wordes of this people, which they haue spoken vnto the

they haue well sayde all that they haue spoken.

* Ob that there were such an hart in them that they wolde feare me, and kepe all my commaundementes alwaye, that it myght go well wyth them, and with theyr chyldren for euer. So and say vnto them: get you into your tentes agayn but stande thou here by me, and I wyl tell the al the commaundementes, ordinaunces, and lawes, whiche thou shalt teache them, that they may do them in the lande whiche I geue them to pos-seste. Take heede therfore, that ye do in dede as the Lord your God hath commaunded you, and turne not aside eithre to the ryght hand or to the left, but walke in all the wayes whiche the Lord your God hath commaunded you, that ye maye lyue, and that it maye go well wyth you, and that ye maye prolonge your dayes in the land whiche ye shall possesse.

The vi. Chapter.

The lawe of God maye not be forgotten.

Deut. 1. These are the commaundementes, ordynaunces, and lawes, whiche the Lord your God commaunded me to teache you, that ye myght do the in the lande: whither ye go to pos-seste it: namely, that thou myghtest feare the Lord thy God, and kepe all his ordinaunces, and commaundementes whiche I commaunde the: thou and thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne al dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes maye be prolonged. Heare therfore, O Israel, and take heed that thou do thereafter, that it may go well with the, and that ye maye encrease mightely, euen as the Lord God of thy fathers hath promysed the a lande, that floweth wyth mylke and hony.

* Heare O Israel, the Lord our God is Lord onely, and thou shalt loue the Lord thy God with all thyne harte, and with al thy soule, and with all thy myght: And these wordes whiche I commaunde the this day, shalt thou in thyne hart and thou shalt shewe them vnto thy chyldren, & shalt thou talke of them when thou arte at home in thyne house, and as thou walkest by the waye, and when thou lyest downe, and when thou risest vp: and thou shalt bynde them for a sygne vnto thyne hande. And they shalt be warnynges, betwene thyne eyes, and thou shalt wyte them vnto the postes of thy house, & vpon thy gates.

And when the Lord thy God hath brought the into the lande, whiche he swaie vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isahac, and Jacob, and geueth the, grete and goodly cittyes whiche thou buildest not, houses ful of al maner of goods whiche thou fyllest not, and weis dygged whiche thou diggest not, vineyardes and olyue trees whiche thou plantest not, and when thou hast eaten and arte full: Then beware lest thou forget the Lord, whiche brought the out of the lande of Egypt, from the house of bondage.

* Thou shalt feare the Lord thy God, and serue hym, and sweare by his name. So that ye walke not after straunge goddes: the goddes of the nacjons whiche are aboute you. For the Lord thy God is a gelouise God amonge you: lest the countenance of the Lord thy God be moued to wroth

what he agaynst the, and destroye the frame of the earth. ¶ He shall not tempte the Lorde your God, as ye dyd in the temptacyon. But hepe the commandementes of the Lorde your God, and his wytnesses and his ordynances: whiche he hath commaunded the, and thou shalt doo that which is ryght and good in the syght of the Lorde that thou mayst prosper, and that thou mayst go in, and conquer that good lande whiche the Lorde swaie vnto thy fathers, to caste oute all thyne enemyes before the as the Lorde hath sayde.

¶ And when thy soune aske the in tyme to come, sayinge: What meaneth these wytnesses, ordynances, and lawes, whiche the Lorde our God hath commaunded you? Then thou shalt say vnto thy sonne: We were Pharaos bondmen in Egypt, and the Lorde brought vs out of Egypt with a myghty hande. And the Lorde shewed signes and wonders great & euill vpon Egypt vpon Pharaos and vpon all his household, before our eyes, but brought vs oute from thence: to bringe vs in, and to geue vs the lande which he swaie vnto our fathers. And the Lorde hath commaunded vs, to do all these ordynances, and to feare the Lorde our God, for oure welth all the dayes of our lyfe, as it is come to passe this day. Moreover, thou shalt be our ryghteousnesse before the Lorde our God, if we take heede & hepe al these commaundementes, as he hath commaunded vs.

¶ The vii. Chapter.

¶ The Israelites may make no couenaunt with the Gentiles. They must destroye theyr idols. Idolaters must be slayne.

When the Lorde thy God hath brought thee into the lande whither thou goest to possesse it, and hath caste oute many nacions before the: namely the Hethtites, the Gergesites, the Amorites, the Cananites, the Pherezites, the Heuites and the Jebusites, seven nacions greater and myghtier then thou, * and when the Lorde thy God hath set them before the, & shalt smyte them, and utterly destroye them, and make no couenaunt with them, nor haue compassion on the. Thou shalt make no marriages with them, neyther geue thy daughter vnto his sonne, nor take his daughter vnto thy sonne. For they wyl deceyue thy sonne that he shalde not feare me, and they shal serue straunge goddes, and then wyl the wrath of the Lorde beare witness against you and destroye you shortly.

¶ But thus ye shal deale with them: * Ye shal overthrowe theyr altars, & breake downe theyr pylars, cut downe theyr groves, and burne theyr grauen ymages with fyre. * For thou arte an holy nacyon vnto the Lorde thy God: the Lorde thy God hath chosen the, to be a seuerall people vnto hym selfe, aboue all nacions that are vpon the earth. It was not because of the multitude of you aboue al nacions, that the Lorde had luff vnto you and chose you, for ye were fewest of all nacions. But because the Lorde loved you and because he wolde haue the * acce whiche he had sworne vnto your fathers, therefore hath the Lorde brought you oute thence with a myghty hande and deliuered you oute of the house of bondage:

from the hande of Pharaos kynge of Egypt.

¶ Understande therefore, the Lorde thy God he is God, and that a trewe God: which kepeth appoyntment and merce vnto them that loue hym and hepe his commandementes, euen thow oute a thousande generacions, and rewardeth them that hate hym before his face, so that he bringeth them to naught, and doth not deface the tyme, but rewardeth hym that hateth hym, before his face. Hepe thou therefore the commandementes, and ordynances and lawes, whiche I commaunde the this daye that thou do them.

¶ If ye hearken vnto these lawes, and obserue and do them, the Lorde thy God also shall hepe vnto the the apoyntment, and the merce which he swaie vnto thy fathers. He wyl loue the, and blesse the, and multiplye the: he wyl also blesse the frute of thy wombe, and the frute of thy land thy corne, thy wyne, and thyne oyle, and the increase of thine oren, and the flockes of thy shepe in the lande, whiche he swaie vnto thy fathers to geue the. Thou shalt be blessed vnto all nacions: there shall be neither man nor woman vnfertile amonge you, nor any thyng vnfertile amonge your cattell. Moreover, the Lorde wyl take awaye from the all maner infirmities, and wyl put none of the euill displeases of Egypt (whiche thou knowest) vpon the, but wyl sende them vpon all them that hate the.

¶ Thou shalt consume all nacions whiche the Lorde thy God shall deliuer the: thyne eye shall haue no pitye vpon them, neither shalt thou reue theyr gods, for that shal be thy decaye. If thou saye in thyne harte: these nacions are mo then I howe can I caste them oute? * Thou shalt not feare theym, but remember what the Lorde thy God dyd vnto Pharaos and vnto all Egypt: the great temptacions whiche thyne eyes sawe, & the signes and wonders, and the myghty hande and stretched out arme, wherewith the Lorde thy God brought thee oute, euen so shall the Lorde thy God do vnto all the nacions, of whom thou arte afraide. * Moreover, the Lorde thy God wyl sende hoznettes amonge them vntill they that are lesse, and hyde them selues from the, be destroyed. Thou shalt not feare them, for the Lorde thy God is amonge you a myghty God: and a terrible. For the Lorde thy God wyl put out these nacions before the by a lytle and a lytle: thou mayst not consume them at once, lest the bestes of the felde increase vpon the.

¶ But the Lorde thy God shall geue them ouer before the, and shall destroye them with a myghty tempeste, vntill he haue brought them to nought. * And he shal deliuer their kyn ges in to thyne hande, and thou shalt destroye theyr name from vnder heauen. There shall no man be able to stande before the, vntill thou haue destroyed them. The grauen ymages of theyr goddes shalt thou burne with fyre and coner not the golde & syluer that is on them, nor take it vnto the, lest thou be shamed therein. For it is an abhominacyon before the Lorde thy God.

¶ Bynge not therefore abhominacyon in to thyne house: lest thou be a damned thyng, as it is: but utterly utterly delere it & addo it, for it is a dāned thig.

¶ The viii. Chapter.

¶ Canst thou p̄s̄erue the p̄mises in remembrance what God hath done to them in the wilderness.

I like the commandementes whiche I commaunde the this daye, that ye kepe for to do them & ye maye lyue: and multiplie & go in, and possesse the lande whiche the Lorde swaure vnto your fathers. And thou shalt thinke on all the waye whiche the Lorde thy God led the thyse fortye yeres in the wilderness, for to humble the and to proue the, and to wete what was in thine herte, whether thou woldest kepe his commandementes or no. He & humbled the, and suffered the to hunger, and fed the with manna, whiche neither thou nor thy fathers knewe of, to make the to knowe, & a man doeth not lyue by bread only: but by euerie word that proceedeth oute of the mouth of the Lorde, both a man lyue.

* The payement was not olde vpon the: neither had the fote swell those fortye yeres.

This also shalt thou consider in thine herte that as a man nurtereth his son, euen so & Lorde thy God nourtereth the. Therefore shalt thou kepe the commandementes of the Lorde thy God: that thou walke in his wayes, and feare hym. For the Lorde thy God bringeth the into a good lande, a lande in the which are ryuers of water and fontaynes and springes that springe out of valeys and hylls: a lande wherein is wheate and barley, vnyuaydes, fygtrees, and pomgranates: a lande wherein is oyle olpue and honey: a lande wherein thou shalt eate bread about scarcenes, neither shalt thou lacke any thyng: a lande whose stones are p̄on, and oute of whose hylls thou shalt digge brasie. When thou hast eaten therfoze and fylled thy self, thou shalt blesse the Lorde thy God in that good lande, which he hath geuen the.

Job. xvi. 2.

Beware that thou forget not the Lorde thy God, that thou woldest not kepe his commandementes, his lawes & his ordynances whiche I commaunde the this daye: & see, and when thou hast eaten and fylled thy self, and hast buylde goodly houses and dwelt therein, and when thy beastes, and thy shepe are waxed many, and thy siluer and golde is multiplied, and all that thou hast is increased, then beware lest thyne harte ryle and thou forget the Lorde thy God, whiche broughte the out of the lande of Egypte, & from the house of bondage, and which was thy guide in the greete and terrible wilderness (wherein were) fyre serpentes, scorpions, and brontes: without any water. But he broughte out water for the, euen out of the rocke of synte: he fed the in the wilderness with manna, whiche thy fathers knewe not, euen for to humble the, and to proue the, and that he myght so doo the good at thy latter ende. Lest thou shouldest saye in thine herte: my power and the myghte of myne owne hande hath prepared me this aboundance: But remember the Lorde thy God, howe that it is he whiche geueth the power to get the substance for to make good the promise whiche he swaure

As the nacions whiche the Lorde destroyed before you, euen so ye shall perishe because ye wolde not be obedyente vnto the voyce of the Lorde your God.

¶ The ix. Chapter.

¶ They are to be p̄s̄erued to trust in theyr owne strength.

Care O Israhell, thou passedst ouer Jordan this daye, to go in, and conquer nacions greater and myghtier then thy selfe: Cityes greete and walled vp to heuē, & a people great and tall, euen the chyldren of Enahim, which thou knowest of, and of whom thou hast heard saye, who wyll stande before the chyldren of Enahim: Understande therfoze this daye, that the Lorde thy God is euen he whiche goeth ouer before the as a god (conquerour and) a consuming fyre he shall destroye them and he shall bringe them downe before thy face. He shall cast them out and bringe them to nought quickly, as the Lorde hath sayde vnto the. Speake not thou in thine harte (after that the Lorde thy God hath caste them out before the) sayinge: for my ryghteousnesse the Lorde hath broughte me in, to possesse this lande. Saye: but for the wychednesse of these nacions the Lorde hath caste them out before the. It is not for thy ryghteousnesse sake, or for thy ryghte harte, that thou goest to possesse theyr lande. * But for the wychednesse of these nacions, the Lorde thy God doth cast them out before the, euen to performe the woide whiche the Lorde thy God swaure vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isahar, and Jacob.

Gen. xvi. 2.

Gen. xvi. 2.

Understande therfoze, that it is not for thy ryghteousnesse sake, that the Lorde thy God doth geue the this good lande to possesse it, sayinge thou art a synnecke people. Remember, and forget not, howe thou prouokedst the Lorde thy God in the wilderness, sence the daye that thou dydest departe out of the lande of Egypte vntill ye came vnto this place: ye haue rebelled against the Lorde. * Also in Horeb ye angered the Lorde so that the Lorde was wroth with you: euen to haue destroyed you, when I was gone vp in to the mounte, to receaue the tables of stone, the tables of appoyntment, whiche the Lorde made with you. And I abode in the hyll fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes, when I neither dyd eat bread nor drinke water. * And the Lorde deliuered me two tables of stone, wyrtten with the synger of God, and in them was accordyng to all the wordes whiche the Lorde sayde vnto you in the mounte out of the myddest of the fyre in the daye of the gatheringe together.

Exo. xvi. 2.

And when the forty dayes and forty nyghtes were ended, the Lorde gaue me two tables of stone, the tables of the couenaunt and the Lorde sayde vnto me. * Clip, and get the downe quicklye from hence, for thy people whiche thou hast broughte out of Egypte, haue mared all.

Exo. xvi. 2.

They are touned attonce out of the waye, which I com.

I commaunde them, and haue made them a molten image. Furthermore, the Lord spake vnto me, saying: I haue sene this people, and beholde it is a stiffnecked people, let me alone, that I may destroye them, and put out the name of them fro vnder heauen, and I will make of thee a myghty nation: and greater then they be.

And I turned me, and came downe from the hill (euen from the hill that burneth with fyre, & the two tables of the appoyntment were in my handes). And I looked, and beholde: ye had synned agaynst the Lord your God, and had made you a molten calfe, and had turned assonce out of the waye whiche the Lord had commaunded you. And I toke the two tables and cast them out of my two handes, and brake them before your eyes. And I fell downe flatter before the Lord: euen as at the fyfthe tyme, & forty dayes, and forty nyghtes I dyd neither eate bread nor drinke water, because of all your synnes, which ye synned: in doyng wyckedly in the syghte of the Lord in that ye prouoked hym vnto wrath. For I was afrayd that for the wrath and fearnesse wherewith the Lord was moued agaynst you, he wolde haue destroyed you. But the Lord hearde me at that tyme also.

The Lord was very angry with Aaron also euen to haue destroyed him, & I made intercesse on for Aaron also the same tyme. And I toke your synne: the calfe whiche ye had made, and burnt him with fyre, and stamped him & grounde hym a good, euen vnto small dust. And I caste the dust thereof in to the brooke, that descended out of the mount. Also at the burnynge at the temptacion, and at the sepulchres of luste ye angered the Lord, ykewise when the Lord sente you from Cadis Barne, saying: go vp, and conquer the lande whiche I haue geuen you: ye disobeyed the mouth of the Lord your God, and neyther beleued hym, nor hardenied vnto his voyce. Ye haue bene disobedient vnto the Lord, sence the daye that I knewe you.

And I fell downe flat before the Lord forty dayes and forty nyghtes which I laye there for the Lord sayde, that he wolde destroye you. I made intercesse ontherfore vnto the Lord, & sayde: O Lord God, destroye not thy people and thyne inheritaunce, whiche thou haste beleyned thou wast thy gractelle and whiche thou haste brought out of Egypte thou wast a myghty hand. Remember thy seruantes Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and loke not to the stubbornesse of this people, nor to theyr wyckednes and sinne: lest the lande whence thou broughtest the saye: The Lord is not able to byngne them in to the lande whiche he promysed them: and because he hated them, therfore hath he carryed the oute, to slaye them in the wyldernesse. Beholde, they are thy people, & thyne inheritaunce which thou broughtest oute in thy myghty power and in thy stretched oute arme.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

¶ The remynge of the tables. An exhortacion to graue the lawe.

In the same reason the Lord sayd vnto me, & heve the two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyfthe, and come vp vnto me into the mounte, and make the an arke of wood, and I will wyte in the tables, the wordes that were in the fyfthe tables whiche thou brakest, and thou shalt put the in the arke. And I made an arke of sethe wood, and heved two tables of stone & lyke vnto the fyfthe, and went vp into the mountaine, hanting the two tables in myne hande.

And he wrote in the tables: accordyng to the fyfthe wytyng (the ten verses whiche the Lord spake vnto you in the mount out of the myddes of the fyre, in the daye of the gatherynge together) and the Lord gaue them vnto me. And I departed, and came downe from the hill, and put the tables in the arke whiche I had made: & there they be, as the Lord commaunded me.

And the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iourney from Beroth of the chyldren of Jakan to Mosera, where Aaron dyed, and was buried, and Eleazar his sonne became priest in his strade. From thence they departed vnto Gadgad: and from Gadgad to Jashbath a lande whiche hath ryuers of water. The same reason the Lord seprated the tribe of Levi to beare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord, and to stande before the Lord, and to minystrer vnto hym, & to blesse in his name vnto this daye. Wherfore the Levites haue no parte nor inheritaunce with the other chyldren. But the Lord is theyr inheritaunce as the Lord thy God hath promysed them.

And I taried in the mount, euen as at the fyfthe tyme forty dayes and forty nyghtes, and the Lord herkened vnto me at that tyme also, and the Lord wolde not destroye the. And the Lord sayde vnto me: vp, and go forth in the iourneys before the people, that they maye go in and conquer the lande whiche I swaie vnto theyr fathers, to geue vnto the. And nowe Israel, what doeth the Lord thy God requyre of the: but to feare the Lord thy God, and to walke in all his wayes, to loue hym, and to serue the Lord thy God with all thyne harte and with all thy soule. Namely, that thou kepe the commaundmentes of the Lord, and his ordynaunces whiche I commaunde the this daye, for thy welth.

Beholde, heauen and the heauen of heauens is the Lordes thy God, and the earth with all therein is: Not withstandyng, the Lord had a lust vnto thy fathers to loue them, & chose theyr sede after them, euen you, about all nacpons, as thou seyst this daye.

¶ Circumspice therfore the forshyn of your herte: and be homoge synnecked: For the Lord your God, is God of goddes, and Lord of lordes, a great God a myghty & a terribil: which regardeth no mans personne nor taketh gyfte. He doth ryght vnto the fatherlesse and wydow and loueth the stranger, to geue hym fode and rayment. Loue ye therfore the stranger also: for ye were strangers youre selues in the lande of Egypte. Thou shalt feare the Lord thy God, and hym (only) shalt thou serue, to hym shalt Swalle thou cleue, and sweare by hys name: be to thy people and thy God, that hath done for the people great and terrible thynges, whiche thyne eyes haue seene. Thy fathers wente downe into Egypte with lxx. soules, and nowe the Lozde thy God hath made the and multiplied the, as the starres of heauen.

C The. xi. Chapter.

Can a possessor of a house be a slave.

1

herfore, thou shalt loue the Lozde thy God and kepe his obseruances his odyngaunces, his lawes, and hys commaundementes alwaye. Call to your mynde this daie that whiche your chyldren haue neyther knowen nor seene: euen the nurtour of the Lozde your God, his great name, his myghty hande, and hys stretched out arme, his myracles, and his actes whiche he dyd in the myddes of Egypte, euen vnto pharaon the kynge of Egypte and vnto all his lande: what he dyd vnto the hoste of Egypte, vnto theyr houses and charettes: howe he broughte the water of the red see vpon them: as they chased you beynde, and howe the Lozde hath broughte them to noughe vnto this daie, and what he dyd vnto you in the wyldernesse, vntyll ye came vnto this place: and what he dyd vnto Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab the son of Ruben, howe the earth opened her mouth, & swallowed them with theyr householders and theyr tentes, and all theyr substance that was in theyr possession, in the myddes of Israel.

Doutlesse, your eyes haue seene all the great actes of the Lozde whiche he dyd. Therfore shall ye kepe all the commaundementes, whiche I commaunde you this daie, that ye maye be stronge: and go in and conquer the lande whither ye go to possesse it, and ye maye pprolonge your dayes in the lande whiche the Lozde swaue vnto your fathers, to geue vnto them and to theyr seide, a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. For the lande whither thou goest to possesse it, is not as the lande of Egypte that ye came out of, where thou sowdest thy seide: and waterdest it wth thy fete as a garden of hearbes: but the lande whither ye go ouer to possesse it, is a lande that hath hylles and valleyes, and dryneth water of the raine of heauen. This lande doth the Lozde thy God care for, and the eyes of the Lozde thy God are alwayes vpon it, from the begynnyng of the yere, vnto the ende of the yere.

If ye shall hearken therfore vnto my Commaundementes, whiche I commaunde you this daie, that ye loue the Lozde your God and serue hym with all your hart, and with all your soule: I also wyll geue rayne vnto your lande in due season: the firste rayne and the latter, that thou mayest gather in thy corne, thy wyne, and thine oyle. And I wyll sende grasse in thy felde for thy catel: that thou mayest eate, and fyll thy selfe. But beware that your harte deceaue you not: ye returne ashyde, and serue strange goddes, and worship them, and then the Lozde being wroth agaynst you, & wroth wth the heauen, that there be no raine, and that your lande pride not her fruite and lesse ye perswade yourselues frome of the good lande, whiche the Lozde geueth you.

Therfore shall ye putte vpon these my wordes in your hart and in your soule, and bynd them for a sygne vpon your hande, that they maye be as a warnyng betwene your eyes, and ye shall teach them your chyldren that they maye talke of them, when thou sittest in thine house: & when thou walkest by the waye: when thou lighest downe, and when thou rystest vp: yet, and thou shalt wyte them vpon the doore postes of thine house, and vpon thy gates, that your dayes maye be multiplied, and the dayes of your chyldren in the lande whiche the Lozde swaue vnto your fathers to geue them, as longe as the dayes of heauen laste vpon the earth. For ye kepe all these commaundementes, whiche I commaunde you so that ye do them: Namely, that ye loue the Lozde your God: and walke in all his wayes and cleue vnto hym. Then wyll the Lozde caste out all these nacions before you, and ye shall be the heyres of great nacions and of them that are myghty eren your selues. All the places whereon the soles of your fete shall treade, shall be yours: euen from the wyldernesse and from Libanon, & from the ryuer Euphrates, euen vnto the uttermost see, shall your coste be. There shall no man be able to stande before you: for the Lozde your God shall caste the feare and drede of you vpon all the lande that ye shall tread vpon, as he hath sayde vnto you.

Beholde, I set before you this daie a blessinge and a curse: a blessinge: if ye obey the commaundementes of the Lozde your God whiche I commaunde you this daie. And a curse: if ye wyll not obey the commaundementes of the Lozde your God: but turne out of the waye, whiche I commaunde you this daie, to go after strange goddes, whiche ye haue not knowen. When the Lozde thy God therfore hath broughte the in to the lande, whither thou goest to possesse it, thou shalt put the blessinge vpon mount Garizim, and the curse vpon mount Ebal, whiche mountaynes are on the other syde Jordan on the backe syde of the waye towards the goinge downe of the sunne, in the lande of the Canaanites whiche dwell in the playnes ouer agaynst Gilgal beynde the groue of Moab. For ye shall passe ouer Jordan, to go in, and possesse the lande, whiche the Lozde your God geueth you, & ye shall conquer it, and dwell therein. Take heede therfore that ye doo all the commaundementes and lawes, whiche I sette before you this daie.

C The. xii. Chapter.

Wholtype must the Israelites be to the Lozde, and to the lawe. They must only do that thing whiche the Lozde commaundeth.

These are the odyngaunces and lawes, whiche ye shall obserue and doo in the lande whiche the Lozde God of thy fathers geueth the to possesse it as longe as ye lyue vpon the earth. p grauen ymages of the goddes that they haue, and bypyng the names of them to nought out of that place. Ye shal not so do vnto the Lord your God, but ye shal seke the place which the Lord your God shall haue chosen out of all your trybes, to put his name there, and there to dwell.
And thither thou shalt come, and thither ye shal bypyng your burnt sacrifices, your offerin-ges, your tithes, and beneofferings of your hande, your vowes, your freewill offerings and the first gender of your oxen & of your shepe.
And there ye shall eate before the Lord your God, and ye shall reioyce in all that ye put your hand vnto both ye and your householdes, wher-in the Lord thy God hath blessed the.

B Ye shall not do after all these thynges that we do here this daye, euery man what semeth hym good in his owne eyes. For ye are not yet come to rest, & to the inheritaunce which the Lord your God giveth you. But whē ye go ouer Iordan, and dwell in the lande which the Lord your God hath giuen you to inheret, & when he hath giuen you rest from all your enemies round about, so that ye dwell in safetie, thā vnto a place which the Lord your God hath chosen, to put his name there, ye shal bring al that I commaund you: Namely your burnt sacrifices, your offerings, your tithes, the beneofferinge of your hande, & al your special vowes which ye vow vnto the Lord. And ye shal reioyce before the Lord your God, ye and your sones & your daughters, your seruautes, and your maydens, and the Leuite is within your gates: & forasmuch as he hath no parte nor inheritaunce with you. Take hede thou offer not thy burnt offerings in euery place that thou seest: but in the place which the Lord shal haue chosen in one of thy tribes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt offerings, and there thou shalt do al that I commaund the. Notwithstanding thou mayst kyll & eat flesh in al thy cities, what soeuer thy soule lusteth after, accordyng to the blessyng of the Lord thy God which he hath ge-ue the. Both the vncleane & the cleane may eate therof, eue as the roo, or a hart: only ye shal not eat blood, but poure it vpon the earth as water.

C Thou mayest not eat within thy gates the tythe of thy corne, of thy wine & of thy oyle, & the first gender of thyne oxen, & of thy shepe, neither any of thy vowes which thou vowest, nor thy freewill-offerings or beneofferinge of thyne hande: but thou must eate them before the Lord thy God, in the place which the Lord thy God hath chosen, thou and thy son, & thy daughter, thy seruaunt, and thy mayde, & the Leuite that is within thy gates, & thou shalt reioyce: (and be refreshed) before the Lord thy God, in all that thou puttest thyne hande to. Beware, that thou forsake not the Leuit, as long as thou lyest vpon the earth.

thy border, as he hath promysed the, thou say, I wyl eat flesh, because thy soule longeth to eate flesh: thou mayst eat flesh whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth. If the place whiche the Lord thy God hath chose to put his name there, be so far from the, then thou shalt kyll of thy oxen, and of thy shepe which the Lord hath giuen the, as I haue commaunded the, and thou shalt eate in thyne owne cytye, whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth.

And as the roo and the harte is eaten, euen so thou shalt eat them: both the cleane and the vncleane shall eate of them. But be stronge & thou eate not the blood. For the blood, that is lyfe, & thou mayst not eat the lyfe with the flesh: & thou shalt not eate it: but poure it vpon the earth as water. Be thou eat it not, that it maye go well with the and with thy chyldren after the: But thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the Lord. But thy holy thynges which thou hast, and thy vowes thou shalt take, and come vnto the place whiche the Lord hath chose, and thou shalt offer thy burnt offerings both flesh and blood vpon the altar of the Lord thy God, and the blood of thyne offerings shall be poured out vpon the altar of the Lord thy God, & thou shalt eate the flesh. Take hede and heare al in the sight of the Lord thy God.

quere them, and thou succeedest in their inheritaunce and dwellest in theyr lande: Beware, that thou be not taken in a snare after them, after they be destroyed before the, and thou aske not after theyr goddes, saying: howe dyd these nacions serue theyr goddes? I wyl do so lyke wyse. Say thou shalt not so do vnto the Lord thy God: for all abhominacions, and that which the Lord hateth, & same done theyr done vnto theyr god-des: & they burne both theyr sones and theyr daughters with fyre before theyr goddes. Therfore whatsoeuer I commaund you, that take hede thereto, nor take ought therfrom.

And they be of the goddes of the people which are rounde about you, whether they be nye vnto the or far of from the, from the one ende of the earth vnto the other. Thou shalt not consent vnto him, nor herthen vnto hym: thyne eye shall not pitye hym, neither shalt thou haue compassion on him, nor kepe hym secretly, *but cause hym to be slayne.

Deut. 32.1

Thyne harte shall be fyrst vnto hym to kill hym, and then the handes of all the people. And thou shalt stone hym with stones that be nye, because he hath gone aboute to thruste the awaye from the Lorde thy God, which broughte the oute of the lande of Egypt, and from the house of bondage. And it shall be an heape for euer, and shall not be buylt agayn. *And ther shall cleaue nought of the damed thyng in thyne hand, that thy Lorde maye turne from the fearenes of his wrath, and shewe the mercy, & haue compassion on the, and multiplye it, as he hath swoyne vnto thy fathers. *Therefore shalt thou heare vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe al his commaundmentes which I commaunde the this day, that thou do it which is ryght in the eyes of the Lorde thy God.

The maners of the Gentyles maye not be folowed. What beastes are cleane to be eaten, and what not.

YE are the children of the Lorde your God. *Ye shall not cut your selues, nor make you any baldnesse betwene your eyes for any deed man. *For thou arte an holpe people vnto the Lorde thy God, & the Lorde hath chosen the to be a seueral people vnto hym selfe, aboue all the nacjons that are vpon the earth.

Deut. 10.16

Thou shalt *eate no maner of abominaciō. These are the beastes which ye shall eate, oxen, shepe, and gootes, hart, roe & bue, wilde goate, vnicorne, wyld beere, and camelion. And all the beastes that cleaue the hofe, and sitte it in two clawes, and chewe the cud, them ye shall eate. Neuerthelesse, these ye shall not eate: of them that chew cud, and of them that deuide & cleaue the hofe: the camell, the hare, & the cony: whiche chewe cud, but deuide not the hofe: therefore are they vncleane vnto you: & also the swyne, though he deuide the hofe, yet he cheweth not cud, therefore is he vncleane vnto you: ye shall not eate of the flesh of suche, nor touch the deede carcase of them. *These ye shall eate, of all that are in the waters: All that haue fynnes and scales shall ye eat. And whatsoeuer haue no fynne & scales, of ye shall not eate, but let it be vncleane vnto you.

Leuit. 11.4

Leuit. 11.10

Of all cleane byrdes ye shall eate: but these are they of which ye shall not eate: the Eagle, the goshawke, the comeraunt, the Trion, the vulture, the hyte, after her kynde, & all kynde of rauens, the estrich, the nyghtrowe, the huchowe and the sparowhawke. after her kynde, the lytle owle, the great owle, the bache, the bistrice, the pye, the stoake, the heron, the iay in his kynd the lapwing, the swallowe. And let all creyng foules be vncleane vnto you, and not be eate of: but of al cleane foules ye maye eate.

Deut. 14.1

Ye shall eate of nothyng that dyeth alone: But thou shalt gyue it vnto the straunger that is in the ctye, that he eate it, as thou mayest sell it vnto an aliaunt. For thou art an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God. Thou shalt not *seeke a hyd in his mothers mylke. Thou shalt eate of al the increase of thy frend, that yeelde bringeth forth yere by yere. And thou shalt eate before the Lorde thy God (in the place which he hath chosen, and where he hath put his name) the fythe of thy corne, of thy wyne, and of thyne oyle, and the first genndes of thyne oren and of thy shepe, & thou mayest learne to feare the Lorde thy God alwaye. *If the waye be to longe for the, so that thou art not able to cary it, and if the place be far from the, which the Lorde thy God hath chosen to set his name there (and the Lorde thy God hath blessed the) thou shalt make it in money, and take the money in thyne hande, and go vnto the place which the Lorde thy God hath chosen, and bestowe the money for whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth after: for ore, and shepe, wyne and strong drynke, and for whatsoeuer thy soule desireth, and eate there before the Lorde thy God, and be merie: both thou & thyne household, and the Leuite that is within thy gates. Shalte thou not forsake, *for he hath neither parte nor inheritance with the. *At the ende of thye yere thou shalt bring forth al the tythes of thyne increase the same yere, and lay it vnto within thyne owne gates: And the Leuite which hath no parte nor inheritance with the, shall come, & the straunger, the fatherlesse, and the wydowe, which are within thy gates, shall eate, and be fylled: that the Lorde thy God maye blesse the in al the wayes of thyne hande which thou doest.

But be that is thy brother, hym shall thynne hand remyt. Reuert heisse there shall be no begger amonge you. For the Lorde shall blesse the in the lande, whiche the Lorde thy God gyueth the, an inheritaunce to possesse it: so that thou herben vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God to obserue and do al these commaundementes, whiche I commaunde the this daye. For the Lorde thy God hath blessed the as he hath promysed the, and thou shalt lende vnto many nacions, but thou thy selfe shalt not borrowe: And thou shalt raygne ouer many nacions, & they shall not raygne ouer the. If one of thy brethren amonge you be poore win any of thy gates in thy lande, whiche the Lorde thy God gyueth the: thou shalt not harden thy herte, nor shut thyne hand from thy poore brother: But open thyne hand vnto him and lend hym sufficient for his neede whiche he hath. Beware that there be not a wicked popnt in thyne hert, that thou woldest saye.

The seventh yere, the yere of freedom is at hand, and therefore it greueth the to loke on thy poore brother, and gyuest hym nought, and he then crye vnto the Lorde agaynst the, and it be speme vnto the: But gyue him, & let it not greue thyne hert to gyue vnto hym. Because that for thy thyng, the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in all thy wothes, and in all that thou putteste thyne hande to. The lande shall neuer be with out poore: And therefore I commaunde the, saying: Thou shalt open thyne hande vnto thy brother that is needy and poore in thy lande.

If thy brother an hebrue sell hym selfe to the, or an hebrue, and serue the fyve yeres, in the seventh yere thou shalt let hym go free from the. And when thou sendest hym oute free from the, thou shalt not let hym go away empty, but shalt gyue hym of thy shepe, of thy corne, and of thy wyne, and gyue him of that, wherewith the Lorde thy God hath blessed the. And remember that thou wast a seruaunt in the land of Egypt, and the Lorde thy God deliuered the thence: and therefore I commaunde the this thyng to daye.

And yf he saye vnto the: I wil not go away from the, because he loueth the & thy house and is well at ease wth the. Then shalt thou take a naule, & naye his eare to the doore therewith, and let hym be thy seruaunt for euer: And vnto thy maydeseruaunte thou shalt do lyke wyse. And let it not greue thyne eye, when thou lettest hym go out free from the, for he hath ben wothe a double byed seruaunt to the in bys seruyce fyve yeres. And the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in all that thou doest.

All the fyrste genyred that come of thyne ore, and of thy shepe that are males, thou shalt halowe vnto the Lorde thy God. Thou shalt do no worke wth the fyrst genyred of thyne oren, nor weare & first genyred of thy shepe. Thou shalt eate it before the Lorde thy God yere by yere, in the place whiche the Lorde hath chosen, both & thyne household. If there be any deformitie therein, as if it be lame or blind, or haue any other euylfauourdynes, thou shalt not offer it vnto the Lorde thy God. But shalt eate it wth thyne owne & gates, & vnelene, & the cleane indifferet, as the ro & the herte. Only eate not the blood therof, but poure it vpon the ground as water.

The xvi. Chapter.

Of offer, whysompe, and the feast of tabernacles, what offeryngs ought to be offered.

Seven & moneth of newe corne that thou shalt offer: passouer vnto the Lorde thy God. For in & moneth when corne beynneth to ryse, the Lorde thy God broughe the out of Egypt by night. Thou shalt therfore offer passouer vnto the Lorde thy God (and there & oxen) in the place whiche the Lorde shall chose to put his name there. Thou shalt eat no leuened byed wth it: but seven dayes shalt thou eate vnelened byed therewith: euen the byed of tribulatio (for thou camest out of the land of Egypt in haste) & thou mayest remembre the day when thou camest out of the lande of Egypt, al dayes of thy lyfe. And there shall be no leuened byed sene in al thy costes seven dayes long, nei ther shall there remayne any thyng of the fleth whiche thou offeredst the fyrst day at euen, vntill the moynynge. Thou mayest not offer passouer wth in any of thy gates, whiche the Lorde thy God gyueth the: but in the place whiche the Lorde thy God shall chose to set his name in, there shalt thou offer passouer at euen about the goynge downe of the sunne, euen in the season that thou camest out of Egypt. And thou shalt seeth and eate it, in the place whiche the Lorde thy God hath chosen, and depart on the moynow, and get the vnto thy tent. Sixe dayes shalt thou eat swete byed and the seventh day is a gathering together before the Lorde thy God: thou shalt do no worke therein. Seven weekes shalt thou nymbe vnto the and begyn to nymbe the vii. weekes, when thou shalt gynt to put thy shekel to the corne, & hepe the frast of weekes vnto the Lorde thy God, as a free wylofferyng of thyne hande, whiche thou shalt gyue vnto the Lorde thy God, accordyng as the Lorde thy God hath blessed the. And reioyce before the Lorde thy God, & and thy son, thy daughter, thy seruaunt, & thy mayde, and the Leuite & is wth in thy gates, & the straunger, & fatherlesse, & the widow, & are amonge you, in the place whiche the Lorde thy God hath chose to put his name there. And remember that thou wast a seruaunt in Egypt & thou shalt obserue and do these ordinaunces.

Thou shalt also obserue the feast of tabernacles. vii. dayes, after that thou shalt gathered in thy corne and thy wyne. And thou shalt reioyce in thy frast: thou & thy son, thy daughter, thy seruaunt, and thy mayde, the Leuite, the straunger, and fatherlesse, & the wydow, that are wth in thy gates. Seven dayes shalt thou hepe holy day vnto the Lorde thy God, in & place whiche the Lorde shall chose: for the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in all thy frutes, & in al the wothes of thyne handes, therefore shalt thou be glad. These tymes in the yere shall al the males apere before the Lorde thy God in & place whiche he shall chose: in & fraste of swete byed, in the fraste of weekes, and in the fraste of tabernacles. And they shall not appere before the Lorde empty, but every man accordyng

to the gyfte of his hande, and accordyng to the blessinge of the Lorde thy God, whiche he hath gyuen the. Judges and officers shalt thou make the in all thy ctyes, whiche the Lorde thy God gyueth the thowout thy triben: and they shall iudge the people ryghteously. * Wylt thou the lawe, nor knowe anye person, neyther take anye rewarde: for gyftes blynde the wyse, and peruerter the wordes of the ryghteous. That which is iust and ryght, shalt thou folowe, that thou mayest lyue, and enioye the lande whiche the Lorde thy God gyueth the.

Thou shalt plant the no groue, of whatsoeuer trees it be, nre vnto the altar of the Lorde thy God, whiche thou shalt make the. Thou shalt set the vp no pylle, which the Lorde thy God hateth.

The xviii. Chapter.

The punishment for idolatrie. The punishment of a rebell. The institution of a hyng.

Thou shalt offer vnto the Lorde thy God no oxe nor shepe: wherein is blemish or any defoimtie, for that is an abominacion vnto the Lorde thy God. * If there be sold among you win any of thy gates, whiche the Lorde thy God gyueth the, ma or woma: hath wrought wychednes in the syght of the Lorde thy God, so that they haue gone beyonde his appoyntment, and gone and serued strange goddes, and worshipped them, * the sunne or moone, or anye of the host of heauen, whiche I haue not commaunded, and it is tolde the, and thou haste heard of it: then shalt thou enquire diligently. And if it be true, and the thyng of a suretie, that suche abhominacion is wrought in Israel, then shalt thou hyng forth that man or woman (which haue committed that wicked thyng) vnto the gates, & shalt stone them with stones, tyll they dye. * At the mouth of two or thre wytnesses shall he that is worthy of death, dye: and at the mouth of one wytnes, let no man dye. The handes of the wytnesses shall be fynde vpon hym, to kill hym, and afterwarde the handes of all the people, and thou shalt put the wyched awaye from the. If there ryse a matter to harde for the in iudgement betwene bloode and bloode, bytwene ple and ple, bytwene place and place, & the matters come to styffe within thy gates.

Then shalt thou aryse, and get the vp vnto the place whiche the Lorde thy God hath chosyn, and come vnto the prestes the Leuites, and vnto a iudge that shalbe in those dayes, and aske, and they shall shewe the, the sentence of iudgement, & thou must do accordyng to that whiche they of that place (whiche the Lorde hath chosyn) shewe the, & thou shalt obserue to do, accordyng to all that they enfourme the. Accordyng to the sentence of lawes which they teach the, and accordyng to the iudgement which they tel the shalt thou do, and howe not from that which they shewe the, neyther to the ryght hande, nor to the left. And that man that wyl do presumptuously, & wyl not hearken vnto the prest (that standeth before the Lorde thy God to mynister)

or vnto the iudge, that ma shal dye, & thou shalt put awaye enyll from Israel. And all the people shall heare: they maye feare, and do nomore presume. When thou art come vnto a lande whiche the Lorde thy God gyueth the, & enioyest it, and dwellest therein: and if thou shalt saye: * I wyl set a hyng ouer me: lyke as all the nacyns that are about me, then thou shalt make hym hyng ouer the, whom the Lorde thy God shal chosse, enen one from amonge thy brethren shalt thou make hyng ouer the, and I maye not set a stranger ouer the, whiche is not of thy byrthen. * But he shal not multiply bowes to hym self, nor byng the people agayne to Egypte thowout the multitude of bowes, forasmuch as the Lorde hath sayd vnto you: ye shal benioyered go nomore agayne that way. Also he ought not to multiply wyues to hym self, lest his heart turne awaye, neither shal he gather him syluer & gold to moche. And when he is set vpon the seate of his hyngdome, he shal wyte hym out a copp of this lawe in a booke before the prestes the Leuites. And it shalbe with hym, and he ought to reade therein all dayes of his lyfe, that he maye learne to feare the Lorde his God, & to kepe all the wordes of this lawe, and these ordinaunces, for to do them: and that his heart arise not aboue his brethren, and that he turne not from the commaundement, to the ryght hande or to the left, but that he maye prolong his dayes in his hyngdome: he and his chyldren in Israel.

The xiiii. Chapter.

The Leuites had no possessions. Idolatrie must be fled. The prophet shal be promysed. The false prophet must be slayne, and howe he maye be knowen.

The prestes the Leuites, and all a tribe of Leui: must haue no parte nor inheritaunce with Israel: but shall eate offeringes of the Lorde, and bys inheritaunce: Therfore shall they haue no inheritaunce amonge thy brethren: but the Lorde, he is the inheritaunce, as he hath sayd vnto the. And this is the prestes butte of the people, and of them that offer sacrifice, whether it be oxe or shepe: They must gyue vnto the prest, the shulder, and the two chekes, and the mawe, the fyist frutes also of thy corne, wyne, and oyle, and the fyist of the wolle of thy shepe shalt thou gyue hym: for the Lorde thy God hath chosyn hym out of all thy trybes, to stande and to mynister in the name of the Lorde: he and his sonnes for euer. If a Leuite come out of any of thy ctyes of all Israel, where he is a sojourner, and come with al the lust of his heart vnto the place whiche the Lorde hath chosyn: he shall mynister in the name of the Lorde his God, as his other brethren the Leuites do, which remaine there before the Lorde. And they shal haue lyke porcions to eate besyde that whiche cometh to hym of the patrimonie of his eldres.

* When thou arte come into the lande whiche the Lorde thy God gyueth the, se that I learne not to do after the abhominacions of those nacyns. Let there not be founde amonge you any one that maketh his son or daughter to go thowout a fyre, or that useth witchcraft, or a choicer out out of dapes: * of that regardeth the flyinge of soules, of a sojourn, of a charmer, of that coun-seleth with spirites, of a soothsayer, of that as-keth * (the truth) at them that be dead.

C For all that do suche thynges, are abhomination vnto the Lorde, and because of these ab-hominacions the Lorde thy God doth cast them out before the. Thou shalt be perfecte therfore *(and without blemish) in the sight of the Lorde thy God. For these nacions whych thou shalt conquer, herken vnto thosers out of dapes, and vnto sojourners: But the Lorde thy God hath not suffered the so to do. The Lorde God wyl * sterc vp vnto the a prophet amonge you: euen of thy brethren, lyke vnto me: vnto hym ye shal hearken, accordyng to all that thou desyrest of the Lorde thy God in hoised, in the day of the gatheryng together, when thou saydest: * Let me heare the voyce of my Lorde God nomore, no le this great tye any more, that I dye not.

D And the Lorde sayd vnto me, they haue wel spoken, I wyl rase them vp a prophete from amonge they: brethren lyke vnto the, and wyl put my wordes in his mouth, and he shal speake vnto the all that I shal commaunde hym. * And whosoever wyl not hearken vnto the wordes, whiche he shal speake in my name, I wyl requere it of hym. * But the prophete whiche shal presume to speake a worde in my name, whiche I haue not commaunded hym to speake, of that speked in the name of strange goddes, the same prophet shal dye. And yf thou say in thine heart, how shall we knowe the worde which the Lorde hath not spoken? * (This token shalt thou haue) Euen when a prophet speaketh in the name of the Lorde yf the thyng folowe not, no come to passe, that is the thyng which the Lorde hath not spoken.
But the prophet hath spokē it presumptuously.
Thou shalt not therfore be afrayed of hym.

De. xix. Chapter.

The feawereded toynes. The punishment of hym that beareth false wytnesse.

When the Lorde thy God * bathe rooted out the nacions, whose lande the Lorde thy God gawe: hebe, and thou succedest in they: encreptance, and dwellest in they: cy-ties, and in they: houses: thou shalt appoynt
* thy cyties for the in the myddes of the lande whych the Lorde thy God gaweth the to possesse it: thou shalt prepare the waye, and deny the cookes of the lande, whiche the Lorde thy God giueth the to inheret, into thre partes, that who soeuer comyteth murder, make lye thyther.

* For this cause muste the slayer lye thyther, that he make lye. Whoso killeth his neygh-bour (knowably, & hated hym not in tyme passed: As when a man goeth vnto the wood to his neyghboure to hewe wood, or (thyngs no harme.)

B and as hym hande fethereth a stroke with the axe to cut downe the tree, the heed slippeth fro the helme, and smyteth hym neyghbour that he dyeth the same shall lye vnto one of the same cyties, and lye. Lest the executer of blood folowe after the slayer whyle hym herre is doer, and onertake hym, because the waye is longe: and slay hym, and yet ther is no cause worthy of death in hym, inasmuche as he hated hym not in tyme past. d.

Wherfore I commaunde the, saying: thou shalt appoynt out thre cyties for the.

And yf the Lorde thy God enlarge thy coostes (as he bathe swoyne vnto thy fathers) and gawe the all the lande whiche he sayde he wolde gawe vnto thy fathers, thou shalt kepe all these commandementes to do them, whiche I commaunde the this daye, that thou loue the Lorde thy God: and walke in his wayes euer, & adde the cyties mo for the vnto those thre, that innocent blood be not shed in thy land, whiche the Lorde thy God gaweth the to inheret, & so blood come vpon the. * But and yf a man hate his neygh-bour, and laye waite for hym, and rase agaynst him, and smyte him that he dye, and then flyeth vnto any of these cyties: the elders of his cytye shal sende and fetch hym thence, & deliuer hym into the handes of the Iustyce of blood, that he make dye. Thyne eye shal not spare hym, but thou shalt put awaye innocent blood from Israel, that it may go well with the. * Thou shalt not remoue thy neyghbours marke, whiche thre of olde tyme haue set in thine inheritaunce, that thou shalt inheret in the lande, whiche the Lorde thy God gaweth the to enioye it.

* One wytnesse shal not rase agaynst a man for any maner trespass, of for any maner synne, of for any maner faute, that he offender in.

* But at the mouth of two wytnesses or of thre wytnesses shal the matter be stablyshed. Yf an vnrightheous wytnesse rase vp agaynst a ma-to accuse hym of trespass: then bothe the men whiche steyue together, shall stande before the Lorde, before the prestes and iudges, whiche shal be in those dayes, and the iudges shal make diligent inquisition. And yf the wytnes be found faile, and that he bathe gauen false wytnesse a-gaynst his brother, then shal ye do vnto hym as he had thought to doo vnto his brother, & thou shalt put euill awaye from the. And other shall heare, and feare: and shall henceforth comyt no more any suche wychednesse amonge you. And thyne eye shal haue no compassion, but * lye for lye, eye for eye, toth for toth, hand for hand fote for fote, shalt thou requyte.

De. xx. Chapter.

Who ought to go to battayl. The lawe of armes. The Canaytes must they kill.

When thou goest out to battell agaynst thyne enemyes, and sette hoyses and charettes, and people mo then thou, be not * afrayd of them, for the Lorde thy God is with the, whiche brought the out of the lande of Egypt. And when ye are come nye vnto the battayle, the prest shal come forth to speake vnto the people, and shal say vnto them heare O Israel, ye are come vnto batell agaynst your enemyes: let not your hertes fayne, neyther feare, no be amased nor adzed of them. For the * Lorde your God goeth with you, to fight for you agaynst your enemyes, and to saue you.
And let the officers speake vnto the people, saying: Yf any man haue buyt a new house, & haue not dedicate it, let hym go & returne to his house

lest he dye in the battell, and an other man dedicate it. And if any man haue placed a vineyard, and haue not made it comen (and lawfull the surety man to care of) let hym go and returne agayne vnto his house, lest he dye in the battell, and another make it comen. * And if any man be betrothed vnto a wyfe, and haue not taken her, let him go and returne agayne vnto his house, lest he dye in the battell, and an other man take her.

And let the officers speake further vnto the people, and say: * If any man feare and be saynt heretofore, let hym go & returne vnto his house, lest he make his brothers heart saynt as well as his. And when officers haue made an ende of speaking vnto the people, they shall make captaynes of warre ouer them. When thou comest nye vnto a cite to fyghte agaynst it * offre the peace. And if they answer the agayne peaceablye, and open vnto the, then let all the people & is founde therein, be tributaries vnto the, and serue the. And if they wyll make no peace with the, but make warre agaynst the, thou shalt besiege it. And when the Lord thy God hath deliuered it into thyne handes, thou shalt smyte all the males therof with the edge of the sword. But the women and the chyldren, & and the cattell, and all that is in the cite, and al the spoyle therof shalt thou take vnto thy selfe, and eate the spoyle of thyne enemyes whiche the Lord thy God hath gyuen the. Thus shalt thou do vnto all the cyties whiche are a greafe waye of from the, and not of the cyties of these nations.

But of the cyties of these nations, which the Lord thy God shall gyue the to enherite, thou shalt saue alpine northynge that bzyeth. * But shalt destroye them without redemption, nameley the hetyres, the Amozites, the Canaanites, the Hethites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, as the Lord thy God hath commaunded the, that they teache you not to do after all theyr abominations, which they haue done vnto theyr goddes, and so prouoke synne agaynst the Lord your God. When thou hast besieged a cite longe tyme, and made warre agaynst it to take it, destroye not the trees thereof, that thou woldest thrust an ax vnto them. But eat of the and cut them not downe, for the trees of the feldest are no men, to come agaynst the, & to beseege the. Only those trees whiche thou knowest that they are not frutefull, (but sayde a fyr for other uses) those shalt thou destroye and cut downe, & make bulwokes agaynst the cite that maketh war with the, vntill thou subdue it.

The xxi. Chapter.

Transgression for murder. Punishment for children that disobey father and mother.

If one be founde slayne in the land, which the Lord thy God gyueth to possess it, & lyeth in the felde: and it is not known who hath slayn him, Then thyne elders and thy iudges shall come forth and mete vnto the cities that are rounde about the slayne. And let the elders of that cite whiche is nexte vnto the slayne man, take oute of the dyne, an dyffer that is not laboured with, nor hath dywen in the yoke, and let the elders of that cite byynge the dyffer vnto an harde valley, which is neyther cared nor sowed, and styke of the dyffers necke there in the valley.

* And the priestes the sonnes of Levi whome the Lord thy God hath chosen to minister, and to blesse in the name of the Lord shall come forth and at theyr mouth shall all styke and plage be tryed. And all the elders of the cite that come forth to the slayne man, shall walke theyr handes ouer the dyffer that is beched in the valley, and shall answer and saye: our handes haue not shed this blood, neither haue our eyes sene it. Be mercifull Lord, vnto thy people Israel, whiche thou hast deliuered, & lape no innocent blood vnto thy people of Israels charge: and the blood shall be forgiven the. And so shalt thou put innocent blood from the, when thou shalt haue done that which is right in the sight of the Lord. When thou goest to war agaynst thyne enemyes, and the Lord thy God hath deliuered them into thyne handes, and thou hast taken the captiue, and seest amonge the captiues a beautifull woman, and haste a desyre vnto her, that thou woldest haue her to thy wyfe.

Thou shalt byynge her home to thyne house, & let her haue her heed, & let her nayles growe, and put her raimet that she was taken in from her, and let her remayne in thyne house, and bewepe her father and her mother a moneth long and after that shalt thou go in vnto her, & marrye her, and she shall be thy wyfe. And if thou haue no sauouer vnto her, then let her go whither she lusteth, and sell her not for monye, nor make chevisaunee of her, because thou hast dyblyd her. If a man haue two wyues, one loued and an other hated, & they haue bozne him chyldren, both the loued & also the hated: If the fyrste bozne be the sonne of the hated, then when the tyme cometh, he shall be dealeth hym goodes amonge hym chyldren, he may not make the sonne of the beloued fyrst bozne, before the son of the hated, which is in dede fyrst bozne: But he shall knowe the sonne of the hated for the fyrst bozne, & gyue hym double porcyon of all that he hath. For he is the fyrste of hym strength, and to hym belongeth the ryght of the fyrst bozne.

* If any man haue a sonne that is stubburne and disobedient, that he wyl not hearken vnto the voyce of hym father, & voyce of hym mother, and they haue chastened hym, and he wolde not hearken vnto them: Then shall hym father and hym mother take hym, and byynge hym out vnto the elders of that cite, and vnto the gate of that same place, and say vnto the elders of the cite: This our sonne is stubburne and disobedient, and wyl not hearken vnto our voyce: he is a riotour, and a dyonharde: And all the men of that cite shall stone hym with stones vnto death. And thou shalt put euyl a wape from the, that al Israel maye heare and feare. * If a man haue commytted a trespasse woorthye of death, and is put to death for it, and thou hangeest hym on tre, hym body shall not remayne all nyght vpon the tre, but thou shalt burye hym the same daye.

The xxii. Chapter.

Calila What thou oughtest to do, when thou findest thy neyghbour's heade goinge astray. If man shall not weare women's clothyng, as a woman weares clothyng. He weare a cote of wool and of flaxe as also fustyan. The punishment of hym of hym that sweareth a mayde.

Calila Thou shalt not se thy brothers ore or syrpe go astray, & withdraw thy selfe from them: But shalt bynge them a-gayne unto thy brother. And yf thy brother be not nere unto the, or if thou know him not, then bynge it unto thyne owne house, & it shall remaine to the, until thy brother aske after them, & then deliver hym them agayne. In lyke manner shalt thou do with his ass, and so shalt do with his rayment, and with all lost thynges of thy brother which he hath lost, and thou hast found, shalt thou do lyke wyse, for I mayest not hyde it. * Thou shalt not se thy brothers alle or ore fal down by the way, and whoso thy selfe fro them: but shalt helpe hym to heve hym up a-gayne. * The woman that not weare yf whyche percepteth unto the ma, neither shall a man put on woman's rayment. For all that do so, ar abhominacion unto the Lorde thy God. Yf I chaunce upon a byrdes nest in the waye, in whatsover tree it be, or on y ground, whether they be ponge or egges, and the dam syting upon y ponge, or upon the egges: Thou shalt not take the dam w the pong. But shalt in any wyse let the dam go and take the ponge to the, that thou mayest prosper and prolonge thy dayes. When I buydest a newe house: thou shalt make a batelmēt on the roof, that I lade not blood upon thyne house, yf any man fall therof. * Thou shalt not sowe thy bynepard with byners seedes: lest the frute of y seed which thou hast sown, and the frute of thy bynepard be defyled. Thou shalt not plowe w an ore & an ass together. Thou shalt not weare a garment made of woll and flaxe together.

Calila Thou shalt make the gardes upon the iiii. quarters of thy vesture, wherew thou courest thy selfe. Yf a man take a wyfe, & when he hath lye wth her, hate her, and laye shameful thynges unto her charge, & bringe up an euil name upon her, & saye: I toke this wyfe, and whē I came to her I found her not a mayd.
Then shall the father of the dāsell and y mother bynge forth the tokens of the dāsell's virginite unto the elders of the cytie in the gate. And the damselfs father shall say unto the elders: I gaue my daughter unto this man to wyfe, and he ha-teth her: and lo: he layeth shameful thynges unto her charge, saying: I found not thy daughter a mayd. And yet these are y tokens of my doughters virginite. And they shall spyde the vesture before the elders of the cytie. And the elders of y cytie shall take that man and chastice hym, and merce hym in an hundred syles of syluer, and gyue them unto the father of the dāsell, because he hath brought up an euil name upon a mayd of Israel. And he shall be his wyfe, and he maye not put her awaye all his dayes. But and yf the thing be of a surety, that the damselfe be not found a virgin, they shall bynge the damselfe to the dore of her fathers house, & the men of that cytie shall stone her with stones to death, because she hath wrought follye in Israel, to playe the whoze in her fathers house. And so thou shalt put euill away from the.

* Yf a man be found lying with a woman that hath a wedded husband, they shall dye eynher o. Y ther of them: dothe the man that laye wth the wyfe, and also the wyfe: and so thou shalt put awaye euill from Israel. Yf a mayde be handfasted unto an husband, and then a man fynde her in the towne and lye wth her, ye shall bynge the booth out unto the gates of the same cytie, & shall stone them with stones to death. The dāsell by-cause she cryed not, beinge in the cytie. And the man, because he hath humbled hya neyghbour's wyfe, and I shall put away euill from the. But yf a man fynde a betrothed damselfe in the felde, & force her, and lye w her: Then the man that laye with her shall dye alone: but unto the damselfe I shall do no harme: because there is in the damselfe no cause of death. For as when a man ryseth a-gaynst his neyghbour and sleeth him, euē so is this matter. For he sold her in the felde, & the betrothed damselfe cryed: and there was no man to succour her. * Yf a man fynde a mayde that is not betrothed, and take her, and lye wth her, & they be founde: Then the man that lay wth her shall gyue unto the damselfs father fyfetye syles of syluer. And she shall be his wyfe, because he hath humbled her: and he may not put her awaye all his dayes. * No man shall take hya fathers wyfe, nor vnbele hya fathers concyngne.

gregation of the Lorde. And he that is

If there be among you any man that is uncleane by the craft of unclennes that chaunceth by any way, let hym go out of the doore, & not come in againe into the doore, but as euen let hym wash him selfe with water, and then when the son is downe, let hym come into the doore againe. Thou shalt haue a place also without the doore, whether thou shalt resort to, and thou shalt haue a charge ponit vpon thy weapon, and when thou wilt ease thy selfe, thy wife, and turne and couer thy wife, which is departed from the. For the Lord thy God walketh in the midst of thyne host, to see the, & to see thyne enemies before the. Therefore shall the place of thyne host be pure, that he se no vncleane thing in the, and so turne hym selfe from the. Thou shalt not deliuer vnto his master a seruant which is escaped from his master vnto the. He shall dwell with thee, euen among you in what place he hym selfe liketh best, in one of thy cities where it is good for him, and thou shalt not vex him. There shall be no whose of the daughters of Israel, nor whose deper of the sonnes of Israel. Thou shalt neither bring a byre of an whose, nor the price of a dog into the house of the Lord thy God in any manner of vowe: for euen both of them are abhominable vnto the Lord thy God. Thou shalt not hurt thy brother by vsury of monye, nor by vsury of coine, nor by vsury of any thing that he may be hurt withal. Vnto a stranger thou mayest lend vpon vsury, but not vnto thy brother: for the Lord thy God may blesse the in al that thou doest, in the land whither thou goest to conquer it. When thou hast vowed a vow vnto the Lord thy God, thou shalt not slacke to paye it. For the Lord thy God will surely requyre it of the, and it shall be syn in the. If thou shalt leaue vowing, it shall be no syn in the, but thy wife is ones gone out of thy lippes, thou must hepe and do, according as thou hast vowed vnto the Lord thy God of a freewill: and as thou hast spoken with thy mouth. And thou shalt not commit vnto thy neyghbours vncertaintye, thou mayest eate grapes thy belly full at thyne owne pleasure: but thou shalt put none in thy vessel: euen so when thou comest into thy neyghbours coine, thou mayest plucke the eares with thyne hande, but thou shalt not moue a speckle vnto thy neyghbours coine.

The. xliii. Chapter.

Conuincement is promysed. He that is newly married shall not be compelled to go to warre.

3 When a man hath taken a wife and married her, if she fynde no fauour in his eyes, because he hath chipped some vncleannes in her. The let him write her a vphil of diuorcement, and put it in her hande, & send her out of his house. And when she is departed out of his house, let her go, and be an other mans wyfe. And if the seconde husband hate her, let him write her also a letter of diuorcement, and put it in her hand, & send her out of his house as if the first man dyed which took her to wyfe, her first man which sent her away, may not take her againe to be his wife, after she is defyled. For it is abhominable in the sight of the Lord, And thou shalt not cause the land to syn, whiche the Lord thy God shall gyue thee to inheret.

* When a man taketh a newe wyfe, he shall not go to warre, neither shall he be charged with any business: but shall be free at home one yere, and reioyce with his wyfe which he hath taken. A man shall take the nether nor the upper millstone to pledge, for then he shall hurt a mans life. If any man be found stealing any of his brethren the chyldren of Israel, & abused hym, or selled hym, the thefe shall dye. And thou shalt put euyl away from the, take heed to thy selfe as concerning the plague of leprosy, that thou observe diligently. And ye shall do according to al the preceptes of the Lewites that teach you. Cut as I commaunded the, so ye shall observe to do. Remember what the Lord thy God dyd vnto: Ouer Iam by the way after ye were come out of Egypt. When thou dost lende thy brother any thing: thou shalt not go into his house to fetch a pledge from thence: but thou shalt stand without, and the man that borrowed it of the, shall bring the pledge out vnto the: If he thermore if it be a poore bodye, thou shalt not sleepe with his pledge: but thou shalt deliver him his pledge againe when the sun goeth downe, & he may sleepe in his owne raiment, and blesse the. And it shall be righteousnesse vnto the, before the Lord thy God.

* Thou shalt not defraude an hyred seruant that is neygh and poore, whether he be of thy bretheren, or of the strangers that are in thy lande within thy gates. But thou shalt gyue him his hire the same day, & let not the sun go downe thereon. For he is neygh, and therewith susteyneth his life, lest he crye agaynst the vnto the Lord, and it be syn vnto the. The fathers shall not dye for the chyldren, nor the chyldren for the fathers: but euery man shall dye for his owne syn. Thou shalt not hynder the ryghte of the stranger nor of the fatherles, nor take a widows raiment to pledge. But remember that I was a seruant in Egypt, and how the Lord thy God deliuered the thence. And therefore I commaunde the to do this thing.

* When thou cuttest downe thyne harvest in the feld, and hast forgotten a sheaf in the feld, thou shalt not go againe to get it. But it shall be for the stranger, the fatherlesse, & the wydow, that the Lord thy God maye blesse the in all the wayes of thyne hande. When thou beatest downe thyne olyue tree, thou shalt not turne againe to gather vp that thou leftest behynde the, but it shall be for the stranger, the fatherlesse, and the wydow. When thou gatherest thy vyneyard, thou shalt not gather the grapes cleane after, but leaue them for the stranger, the fatherlesse and the wydow. And remember that thou also wast a seruant in the lande of Egypt: and therefore I commaunde the to do this thing.

The xxvi. Chapter.

The first frutes and tythes to the Levites, fatherles, wy-dowes, and straungers.

When y art come into the land whiche the Lord thy god geueth y to enheret, and haste entoped it & dwellest therein.
Take of the frute of all the frute of the earthe, and bryng it out of the lande that the Lord thy God geueth the, and put it in a maunde, & go vnto the place whiche y Lord thy God shal chose to set his name in it. And y shalte come vnto the preist, that shalbe in those dayes, & say vnto him I knowlege this day vnto the Lord thy God, y am come vnto the colletry whiche the Lord swore vnto our fathers soz to geue vs. And the preist shal take the maund out of thyne hande, & let it doune before the altar of y Lord thy God & thou shalt answer & saye before the Lord thy

God: The Hebrayes went about to destroy my father, & he went downe into Egypt, & sojour-ned there with a fewe folke, & grew there vnto a nation great, mighty, and ful of people. And the Egyptians vexed vs, and troubled vs, & laded vs in most cruel bondage. And whē we cry-ed vnto the Lord God of our fathers, & the Lord heard our voyce, and lohed on our aduersyte, labour and oppresyō. And the Lord brought vs out of Egypt in a myghty hande, & stretched out arme, and in great terriblenesse, and signes and wonders. And he hath brought vs into this place, and hath geuen vs this land that flo-wereth with milke and hony. And now y lo, I haue brought the frist frutes of the land whiche thou (O Lord) hast geuen me. And y shal set it before the Lord thy God, & worship before the Lord thy God, & receyue in all the good thynges whiche the Lord thy God hath geuen vnto the to thyne house, thou and the Leuite, & the stranger that is amonge you. When y haste made an ende of tithyng all the tythes of thyne increase: the third yere, whiche is the yere of tithyng: thou shalt geue it vnto the Leuite, the straungers, the fatherles and the wydowes, that they may eat within thy gates, and fynd the felicity. And thou shalt say before y Lord thy god: y haue brougt the halowed thynges out of myne house, & haue geuen the vnto the Levites, the straungers, the fatherles and the wydowes, according to al thy comandementes whiche thou hast comaunded me: I haue not overshypped thy comaunden-tes, nor soz gotten the. I haue not eaten therof in my mourning, nor suffered ought to perishe the roto vncleynesse, nor geuen ought therof for the dead, but haue berkened vnto y voyce of y Lord my god, & haue done after al that thou hast comaunded me. y. y. Lohe downe therefore fro thy holy habitation, euen from heuen and blesse thy people Israel, & the lande whiche the y haue geuen vs (as thou swarest vnto our fathers) a lande that flowereth with milke and hony. This day the Lord thy god hath comaunded the to do these ordinaunces, and lawes, kepe thou the, & do the with al thyne heart, & al thy soule. Thou hast set vp the Lord this day to be thy God, and to walke in his wayes, & to kepe his ordinaun-ces, his comaundementes, and his lawes, and to berken vnto his voyce. And the Lord hath set the vp this day, to be a sentrall people vnto him (as he hath promysed the) & that thou kepe his comandementes, & to make the hygh above al nacions, whiche he hath made in praisie, in name and honour: & that thou mayst be an holy people vnto the Lord thy God, as he hath sayd. y.

The xxvii. Chapter.

Every man shalde an altar, & the blesynges in the byll Gargyn.
The curies in the byll Gargyn.

Ald Moyses with the elders of Israel commaunded the people, saying, kepe al the comaundementes, whiche I comaunde you this daye. And when ye be come ouer Jordan vnto the lande whiche the Lord thy God geueth the, thou shalt set the vp great stones, & plaster them with plaster, and wyte vpon them al the wordes of this lawe, whē thou art come ouer: be cuse them are come into the land which I sware by sayinge unto thee: A lande that floweth with milk & honey. As the Lord god of thy fathers hath promised thee. Therefore when ye become over Jordan, ye shall set up these stones, which I commande you this day in mount Ebal, & thou shalt plaster them with plaster. And thou shalt then build vnto the Lord thy God, an altar of stones, & offer vpon it upon them: Thou shalt make the altar of the Lord thy God of whole stones, and offer burnt offerings thereon vnto the Lord thy God. And thou shalt offer peace offerings, and shalt eat thereof. Priores before the Lord thy God. And thou shalt write vpon the stones all the words of this lawe, manifestly and well. And Moses and the priests the Leuites spake vnto all Israel, sayinge: take heede & heare O Israel! This daye thou arte become the people of the Lord thy God. Then shalt thou therefore vnto the word of the Lord thy God, & do his commandementes, and his ordinances which I commaund thee this day. And Moses charged the people the same day, saying: These shall stand vpon a moor Garizim, to disesse people when ye are come ouer Jordan. Simeon, Levi, Iuda, Issachar, Joseph, & Benjamin. And these shall stand vpon mount Ebal to curse: Kanaan, Gad, Isser, Zabulon, Dan, and Reubrai. And Josephus shall answerre and saue vnto al the men of Israel with a loude voyce.

shalt thou be in the towne, & blessed in the felde blessed shal be the frute of thy body, & frute of thy ground, & the frute of thy catel, the entrecalls of thyne orne, and the flockes of thy shepe: blessed shal be thy basket & thy store. Blessed shalt thou be, when thou goest out, and blessed when thou comest in. * The Loide shal grue ouer thyne ene-myes that crye agaynst thee, for they may not be-face thy face. They shal come out agaynst thee on way, and dye before the sea waves. The Loide shal put the dirding vpon the in thy strange houses and in al that thou leitest thyne hande to, & wyl bless the in all the lande whiche the Loide thy God greeeth the. The Loide shal make the an holy people vnto hym selfe, as he hath sworne vnto the: yf thou shalt heare the commaundementes of the Loide thy God, and walke in his wayes.

And all nacjons of the earth shall see that the name of the Lord, is called upon ouer the, & they shall be afrayde of the. And the Lord shall make the plenteous in goodes, in f fruite of thy body, in the fruite of thy catrell, and in the fruite of thy grounde, in the lande which the Lord swaue vnto thy fathers, to geue the. The Lord shall open vnto the his good treasure, & euery f beate f geue rayne vnto thy land in due season, & so blesse all thy labours of thy hand. * And thou shalt lende vnto many nacjons, but shall not borrowe thy selfe. And the Lord shall set the before & not behynde, and thou shalt be aboue only, and not beneath: yf that I hearken vnto the commaundement of the Lord thy God, which I commaunde the this day, to kepe and to do the. And if that thou * boldest alyde fro any of these wordes, which I commaunde the this day, ether to the right hand or to the left, that thou woldest go after braggie gods to serue them. * But and yf thou wilt not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to kepe and to do all his commaundementes and his ordinaunces which I commaunde I thys day: al these curses shall come vpon the, and ouertake the. Cursed shalt thou be in the towne, & cursed in the felde: cursed shall thy basket be, & thy sowe. Cursed shall be the fruite of thy bodye, & the fruite of thy lande, and the fruite of thyne oxen, and the flocke of thy shep. Cursed shalt thou be when I goest in, and cursed when I goest out. The Lord shall sende vpon the cursyng, destruction, and rebuke, in all that thou settest thy hande to, & that thou doest, vntill I be destroye the, & bring the to noughte quickly: because of the wickednesse of thyne inueryens, and because thou hast forsaken me. The Lord shall make the perfyfece cleue vnto the, vntill he haue consumed the from of the lande, whither I goest to enioy it. * The Lord shall drye I with swell yng, with fevers, heate burning burning, & with the sword, with withering and with blasting. And they shall follow the until thou perishest. * And the heaven that is over the head shall be waste, and the earth that is under the, yson. The Lord shall turne the rayne of the land into powder and dust: even from heven shall they come downe upon the, until thou be brought to nought. And the Lord shall plague before thine enemies: Thou shalt come out one daye agaynst them, and aye sent wayes before them, and shalt be scattered amonge all the hyng domes of the earth. And thy carthall shall be meate unto all maner foules of the ayre, and vnto the bestes of the earth, and no man shall fray them away. * The Lord will smyte the with borch of Egypt, and the Emmerolde, scalle, and maungynes, that thou mayst not be healed ther of. * And the Lord shall smyte with madness, & blindnes, and dafing of heere. Thou shalt grope at none dayes, as the bynd gropeth in darlines and shalt not prosper in thy wayes. Thou shalt be oppressed with wrong, & be polled enermore and no man shall succour the. * Thou shalt be de-trouged unto a wyfe, & another man shall lye with her. Thou shalt buyde an house, and not dwell therein. Thou shalt also plant a vineyarde & shalt not gather the grapes. Thyne ore shall be layne before thine eyes, & thou shalt not cate therof. Thyne ass shall be violently take away even before thy face, and shall not be restored to the agayne. Thy shepe shall be geue unto thine enemies, and no man shall rescue them.

D Thy sonnes and thy daughters shall be geuen unto another nacy, and thine eyes shall se, & dase upon them al the day longe, and there shall be no myghte in thine hande. The frute of the lande and all thy labours shall a nacyon which thou knowest not, cate, and thou shalt consyn-ually suffre violence only, & be oppressed alwaye so that thou shalt be cleane desyre thy selfe, for the syght of thine eyes whiche thou shalt se.
The Lord shall smyte the in the knees and legges, with a mischeuous borch that can not be healed: even from the sole of thy fote unto the top of thy head. * The Lord shall byng the & thy hyng (which I shall set over the) unto a nacy, which neither thou nor thy fathers haue knowe, & there thou shalt serue strange gods: even wood and stone. And thou shalt be wonderd at, spoken of,
and tested at amonge all nacys, whyther the Lord shall cary the. * Thou shalt cary much seide into the seide: and shalt gather but litle in, for gredhoppers shall destroy it. Thou shalt plant a vineyard and dresse it, but shalt neither bynke of the wyne, neither gather grapes, for wormes shall cate it. Thou shalt haue olyue trees thowout all thy coltes, but shalt not anoynte thy selfe with the oyle, for thine olyue trees shall be roted out. Thou shalt beget sons, and doughters, but shalt not haue them: for they shall be carried away captyue. All thy trees & frute of thy lande shall be marred with blasting. The straunger that is among yon, shall cline aboute the vp on hye, and thou shalt come downe beneath alow.
He shall lende the, and thou shalt not lende hym:

he shall be before, and thou behynde. Moreover, all these curses shall come upon the, and shall follow the and carthake the, until thou be destroyed because thou herkenest not unto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to kepe his commandementes, & his ordinaunces, which he commaunded the, and they shall be upon the as myracles and wonders & upon thy seide for cure, because thou seruest not the Lord thy God with ioyfullnesse & with a good hert, when thou hadst abundaunce of all thynges, therfore thou shalt serue thine enemy which the Lord shall sende upon the: in hunger and thirst, in nakednes, and in neede of al thyng and he shall put a poke of yson vpo thy necke untill he haue brought the to nought. And the Lord shall byng a nacyon upon the from far, and fro the ende of the world as wyffe as an Eagle fly-eth: a nacyon whose tonge thou shalt not vnderstande: a harde fauoured nacyon, which shall not regarde the person of the olde, nor haue compassion of the yonge. The same shall cate the frute of thy cattell, and the frute of thy lande until he haue destroyed the: & shall leane the nether corne, wyne, nor oyle, neither the increase of thine ore nor flocks of thy shepe: until he haue brought the to nought. And he shall kepe the in all thy cites, until he haue cast downe thy hye walls & stronge holdes, wherein thou trustest, thowout all the lande. And he shall besage the in al thy cites thowout all thy lande, which the Lord thy God hath geuen the. * And thou shalt eat frute of thine own body: the flesh of thy sonnes and of thy daughters, which the Lord thy God hath geuen the in that straitnes and sege wherwith thine enemy shall besage the: so that it shall greue the man (that is tender and exceeding delycate amonge you,) to loke on his brother and vpon his wyfe that lyeth in his bosome, and on remnaunt of his chyldren, which he hath yet left for feare of geuyng: vnto any of them) of his chyldren, whiche shall eat, because he hath nothyng left hym in that strait nesse and sege, wherewith thine enemy shall besage the in al thy cites. Yee, and the woman that is so tender and delicate, she dare not aduenture to set the sole of her fote vpon the ground, (for softnes and ten-dernes) shall be greued to loke on her husbnde lyeth in her bosome, and on her sonne and on her doughter: and on her after byrth (that is to com-out from betwene her legges,) and her chyldren which she shall beare: For whel al thynges lacke she shall cate them secretly, in the sege and strait-nes, wherewith thine enemy shall besage the in thy ctyes. If thou wilt not hepe and do al the wordes of this lawe (I are wyrtten in this boke) and feare this glorious and fearful name of the Lord thy God: the Lord will sende vnto the and thy seide, great plagis and of longe continaunce, euell synelles and of longe duraunce.

Moreover, he will byng vpon the all the diseases of Egypt, and those which thou wast a-frayd of, shall cleane vnto the. And al maner synnelles, and al maner plagis which are not wyrt-ten in the boke of this lawe, will the Lord byng vpon the, until he byng the to nought. And ye

Lxx. xxv. d.

When al these wordes are come vpon the, * I blessing & the curse whiche I haue set before thee, thou shalt turne vnto thine heart, amonge all the nations whither the Lorde thy God hath brought thee, * & come agayne vnto the Lorde thy God, and hearken vnto his voyce in al these thynges that I commaunde the this day: thou and thy chyldren with all thine heart and all thy soule. * And the Lorde thy God wyl turne thy captiuitie, and haue compassyon vpon the, and wyl turne, and set the agayne from all the nations, among which the Lorde thy God hal haue scattered the. Though thou were caste vnto the extreme partes of heauen, euen fro thence wyl the Lorde thy God gather the, and from thence wyl he set the, and the Lorde thy God wyl bringe the into the lande whiche thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt enioye it.

And he wyl shewe the his mercie, and multiplye the aboute thy fathers. * And the Lorde thy God wyl circumsyde thine heart, and the herte of thy seide, that thou mayst loue the Lorde thy God with all thine herte, and all thy soule that thou mayst loue. And the Lorde thy God wyl putte all these curses vpon thine enemyes, and on them that hate the, and that persecute the. But thou shalt turne, and hearken vnto his voyce of the Lorde, and do al his commandementes, which I commaunde the this day. And the Lorde thy God wyl make the plenteous in all the wayes of thine hande, in the frute of thy body, and in the frute of thy cattell, and in the frute of thy lande for thy welth. * For the Lorde wyl turne agayne and reioyce ouer the to do good, as he reioyced ouer thy fathers. If thou hearken onely vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God to kepe his commandementes and his ordinaunces which are wyrted in the booke of this lawe, & if thou turne vnto the Lorde thy God with al thine heart and all thy soule. * For the commandement which I commaunde the this day, is not seperated from the, neyther faile of.

It is not in heuen, that thou nedest to praye and saye: who shall go vnto heauen, and set it vs, that we maye heare it, and do it? Neether is it beyonde the see, that thou shouldest saye: who shall go ouer the see for vs, and set it vs, that we maye heare it, and doo it? But the worde is very nye vnto the: euen in thy mouth and in thine herte, that thou do it. * Beholde I haue set before thee this day lyfe and good, death and euill: For where as I commaunde the this daye, to loue the Lorde thy God, to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commandementes, his ordinaunces, and his lawes (if thou so do) thou shalt lyue and multiply, and the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in the lande, whither thou goest to possesse it. But and if thine heart turne away so that thou wylst not heare: but shalt go astray and worshyp strange goddes, and serue them, I pronouce vnto you all this day that ye shall surely perishe, & that ye shall not prolonge your dayes vnto the lande whither thou passest ouer Jordan to possesse it. * I call heauen and earth to recorde this daye agaynst you, that I haue set before you lyfe and death, blessing and cursynge. Therefore chose lyfe, that both thou & thy seide maye lyue, that thou mayst loue the Lorde thy God, and be obedyent to his voyce, & cleaue vnto hym. For he is thy lyfe, and the lengthe of thy dayes, that thou mayst dwell vnto the earth which the Lorde swaue vnto thy fathers: Abraham, Isaac and Jacob to geue them.

The xxxi. Chapter.

¶ Moses beganne to speake, vnto the people in the synagoge. ¶ Moses beganne Deuteronomie is written and layde in the Tabernacle before the Arke. The Leuites are charged to reade it to the people.

And Moses went & spake these wordes vnto all Israel, and sayde vnto them, I am an hundred and twentie yere olde this daye, and can nomore go out and in. Also the Lorde hath sayde vnto me: thou shalt not go ouer this Jordan. The Lorde thy God he wyl go ouer before the, and he wyl destroy these nations before the, and thou shalt conquer them. * And Joshua, he shall go before the, as the Lorde hath sayde. And the Lorde shall do vnto them, as he byd to * Gehon and Og hynges of the Amozites and vnto the lande of them: whome he destroyed. And the Lorde shall geue them ouer before your face that ye maye do vnto them accordynge vnto all the commandementes which I haue commaunded you. Plucke vp your hartes therefore, and be stronge, drede not, nor be afraid of them for the Lorde thy God hym selfe doth go with the. He shall not faile the, nor forsake the.

And Moses called vnto Joshua, and sayd vnto hym in the syght of all Israel. * Be stronge & bolde, for thou must go with this people vnto the lande which the Lorde hath sworne vnto thy fathers, to geue them, and thou shalt geue it the to inheret. And the Lorde he doth go before the: he shall not faile the, neyther forsake the: feare not therefore, nor be dyscomforted: And Moses wrote this lawe, and deliuered it vnto the preistres the sonnes of Leuy (whiche bare the Arke of the testament of the Lorde) and vnto al the elders of Israel, and Moses commaunded them, sayinge: * At the poynt of seuen yeres in the solemnitie of the free yere, euen in the feast of tabernacles, when all Israel is come to appere before the Lorde thy God, in the place whiche he hath chosen: thou shalt reade this lawe before all Israel in theyr eares. Gather the people together: men women, and chyldren, & the straunger that is within thy gates, & they may heare, and learne and feare the Lorde your God, and hepe, and obserue all the wordes of this lawe, and that theyr chyldren which knowe nothyng maye heare, and learne to feare the Lorde your God, as long as ye lyue in the lande: whither ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Beholde thy dayes are come, that thou must dye. Cal Joshua therefore, and stande ye in the tabernacle of wytnesse that I maye geue hym a charge. And Moses, and Joshua went, and stode in the tabernacle Josua is chosen Deuteronomium. in Moses steade.

And the Lord appeared in the tabernacle, even in the pillar of the cloud. And the pillar of the cloud stood over the door of the tabernacle. And the Lord sayde unto Moses: behold thou shalt see with thy father, and this people will see thee, and go a whoring after strange gods of the lande (whither they go) * I will forsake me, & breake the appoyntment, whiche I have made with them.

And the my wrath wyl warre agaynst them, and I wyl forsake them, and wyl hyde my face from them, and they shalbe consumed. And muche adversitee and tribulacions shal come upon them, so that then they wyl say: we are not these troubles come upon me, because God is not with me: And I also wyl surely hyde away my face in that daye, for all the evill sake which they shal have wrought, in that they are turned unto strange goddes. Nowe therefore wyte ye this songe for you, & teache it the chyldren of Israel, and put it in theyr mouthes, that this songe may be my wytnes agaynst the chyldren of Israel. For I wyl bring them into the lande whiche I swaie unto theyr fathers that I would give them, a flowery lande with mylke and honye, and they shal eat, and fyll them selves, and waxe fat, & turne unto strange goddes, and serve them, & blaspheme me, and breake my covenante. And the when muche myschefe and tribulacion is come upon them, this songe shal answeere them as a wytnesse. For it shal not be forgotten out of thy mouthes of theyr seed: for I knowe theyr imagination, whych they go aboute even now, because I have brought them into the lande whych I swaie. * Moses therefore wrote this songe & taught it the chyldren of Israel.

And he gaue Josua the sonne of Nun a charge, & sayde: be bolde & stronge, for thou shalt bring the chyldren of Israel into the lande, whych I swaie unto them, and I wyl be with thee. And when Moses had made an ende of wytyng out of the wordes of this lawe in a booke unto the ende of the, Moses commaunded the Levites, whych bare the arke of the testament of the Lord saying: take ye this booke of this lawe, & put it in the syde of thy arke of the testament of the Lord your God, & it may be there for a wytnes agaynst the: For I knowe thy stubbornnes, & thy stiff necke: whyle I am yet alive w you this daye, ye have bene disobedient unto the Lord: and howe muche more after my death.

Gather unto me al the elders of your trybes and your officers, that I may speake these wordes in theyr eares, & cal heaven, & earth to receyve agaynst the. For I am sure that after my death ye wyl utterly be corrupt: & turne fro the way whych I have commaunded you: and tribulacion wyl come upon you in the latter dayes, because ye shal have wrought wyckednesse in the syght of the Lord, to prouoke hym thowhe the wordes of your handes. And Moses spake in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel: the wordes of this songe, untill he had ended them.

The xxxij. Chapter.
The songe of Moses.

For I shall I praye, and lette the earth heare the wordes of my mouthes: My doctrine shal droppe as dothe the raine, and my speache shal flowe as dothe the stream, as the shower upon the herbes, & as the droppe upon the grasse. For I wyl call on the name of the Lord: & scribe ye honour unto our God. * Perfection is the worke of the most myghty God: for all his wayes are iudgemente. He is a God of truthe, without wyckednesse: righteous, and iust is he.

Forwardly have they done agaynst hym the rowe theyr defonities: not his owne chyld, but a wycked and frowarde generacion. Do ye so rewarde the Lord, O foolyshe nacion and unwise: Is not he thy father, and thyne owner? hath he not made the, and ordeyned the? Remember the dayes of the world that is past: consider the yeres fro tyme to tyme. * I sue thy father, and he wyl shewe the: thy elders, & they wyl tell the. * Was he the most hyghest deuyd? nacions, and when he separete the sonnes of Adam, he put the borders of the nations fast by the multitude of the chyldren of Israel.

For the Lordes parte is his folow, and Jacob is the porcion of his encreasance.

He founde hym in a deserte lande, in a voyde grounde, and in a roaring wyldernes. He led hym aboute, he gaue hym vnderstandyng, and kepte hym as the apple of his eye.

As an Eagle that stretcheth up her nest and floreteth ouer her yong, & stretcheth out her wynges, so doth he take them up, and beareth them on his quiderns. The Lord alone was his guide and there was no strange god with hym.

He caried hym vnto an hye lande, that he myght eate the increase of the felde. * And he led hym with honye out of the rocke, and with oyle out of the most harde stone. With butter of hyne, and mylke of the shepe, with fat of the lambs and of fat rammes and he goates, with the fat of most plenteous wheate, and that I mightest drynke the most pure bloode of the grape.

But he that shulde haue bene vpright, when he waxed fatte, spurned with his heile.

Thou art wel fed, thou arte growen thycke, thou art laden with fatnesse.

And he forsoke God his maker, and regarded not the God of his saluacion. They prouoked hym to anger with strange goddes: euen w abhominacions prouoked they hym. * They offered vnto deuils, and not to God, euen to goddes whom they knewe not: to newe goddes that came newly up, whom theyr fathers feared not. Of God that begate the thou arte vnnynful, & hast forgotten God that made the: The Lord therefore lawe it, and was angry, because of the prouokynge of his sonnes and of his daughters.

And he sayd: I wyl hyde my face from them, and wyl se what theyr ende shal be. For they are a verie frowarde generacion, chyldren in whom is no fayth. They haue angered me with that which is no god, & prouoked me with their vanities. * And I also wyl prouoke them with those Whose whiche are no people, I will anger them with a foolyshe nation. * For fyre is kyndled in my wrath, and burneth vnto the botome of hel.

And hath consumed the earth with her increase,
and set a fyre the doctomes of the mountaynes.
I will heape myscheues vpon them, and will destroie them with myne arrowes.

They shalbe burnt with hunger, and consumed with heate, and with bitter destruction. * I will also sende the teeth of beastes vpon them, with the furpousnesse of serpentes in the duste.
Without foote, shall the sword robbe them of theyr chyldre: and within in the chambre leare, both yonge men and yonge women, and the suc-kelinges with the men of graye beades. I haue sayde: I will scatter them abrode: and make the remembraunce of them to craze frome amonge men. Where is not that I feared the wrath of the enemy, lest theyr aduersaries shulde utterly de-stroye them selues, and lest they shulde saye: our eye hande hath done all this and not the Lorde.

For it is a nacyon without foresight, neyther is there any vnderstandyng in the: O that they were wyse, & vnderstode thys, that they wolde consyder theyr latter ende.

Howe shulde one chase a thousand, & two put ten thousande to flyght: except theyr maker had solde them, & except the Lord had qut them vp?

For theyr God is not as our God, oure enemies also them selues are Judges.

For theyr wyne is of the vncyarde of Sodome, and of the felde of Somoira: Theyr grapes are grapes of Sal, & theyr clusters be bitter.

Theyr wyne is the poyson of asaggon, and the cruel gall of aspes. Is not this sayde in store with me, and sealed vp amonge my treasures?
* Vengeance is myne, & I wyl reward, theyr fete shal lyde in due tyme: For the dape of theyr destruction is at hande, and the thynges I shall come vpon them, make haste.

* For the Lorde shal iudge his people, & haue compassyon on his seruantes, when he seyth I theyr power is gone, & that they be in a maner qut vp, or brought to nought and forsaken.

And he shall saye: where are they? g:ddes?
I theyr God in whom they trusted.

The fat of whole sacrifices they byd eat, and dranke the wyne of theyr dynke offerynges: let them rlye vp and helpe pou, and be pour protection. (in necessitye.)

De nowe howe that I, * I alone am God, & there is none but I: I wil, & wyl make alpye: I wounde, and I wyl heale: * neyther is there a ny that can deliuer oute of my hande,

For I wyl lyfte vp myne hande to heauen, and wyl saye: I lyue euer.

If I whet the edge of my swerde, and myne hande take holde to do iustyce, I wyl receyve vengeaunce on myne enemies, and wyl reward them that hate me.

I wyl make myne arrowes bronke with blood, & my swerde shall cate fleete, & that for the blood of the slayne, and for theyr captiuitie, sens the begynnyng of the wrath of the enemy.

* Drape yethen hys people, for he wyl avenge the blood of hys seruantes, and wyl avenge hym of his aduersaries, and wyl be mercyfull vnto hys lande, and to hys people.

And Moses came and spake all the wordes of this songe in the eares of the people, he & Josua the sunne of Sun. And Moses spake at these wordes vnto the ende to all the people of Israel and sayd vnto them: * Set your hartes vnto all the wordes which I testifie vnto you this day:
and ye shal commaunde them vnto your chyldre, that they maye obserue and do al the wordes of this lawe. And let it not be a vayne worde vnto you: for in it is your lyfe, & thowowe thys worde ye shall prolonge your dapes in the lande why-ther ye go ouer Jordan to conquere it.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses the selfe same dape, sayyng, get the vp into thys mountayne Abarim, (that is to saye a passage) vnto the mounte Rebo, whiche is in the lande of Moab: ouer agaynst Jericho. And beholde the lande of Canaan, whiche I geue vnto the chyldren of Israel to possesse: And dye in the mounte whiche thou goest vp vnto, & thou shalt be gathered vnto thy people. * As Aaron thy brother dyed in mount Hor, and was gathered vnto hys people, because ye trespassed agaynst me among the chyldren of Israel, * at the waters of stryfe, at Cades in the wyldernes of zin: for ye sanctified me not amonge the chyldren of Israel. Thou shalt therfore se the lande before the, and shalt not go thither, vnto the lande whiche I geue the chyldren of Israel.

ses the man of God blessed the chyldre of Israel before his death, & said
* The Lorde came from Sinat, and bestowed his benemes: fro Sene vnto them, and appeared from mounte Pharan, and he came with thousandes of sayntes, and in hys ryghte hande a lawe of fyre for them. And he loued the people. * All hys sayntes also are in thy handes. They were smyttt to go after thy fete, and to receyue of thy wordes. Moyses gaue vs a lawe to be an enherytaunce of the congregacyn of Jacob. And he was in Israel lyng when the heades of the people, and the trybes of Israel were gathered together.

Let Ruben lyue, and not dye: and be setwe in nobyte. Thys same also happen to Juda. And he sayde: heare Lorde, the voyce of Juda, and byngre hym vnto hys people: hys handes shal-be good ynough for hym, yf thou dealpe hym a-gaynst hys enemies.

And vnto Levi he sayde: Thoum and Arim shalbe with the, & with euery one that is godly in the. Thou byddest proue hym also in the ten-tacion, and stryuedest with hym at the waters of stryfe. He that hath sayd vnto his father and to his mother: I haue not sene him. And he that knewe not hys brethren, nor knewe hys owne chyldren, those are they that haue obserued thy lawe. They shall put cens before thy nose, and the burnt sacrifice upon thyne Altare. Blesse Lozde thy frutes, and accepte the worke of thy handes, vnto the lopnes of the that ryle agaynst hym, and of them that hate hym, that they ryle not agayne.

C And of Ben Jamin he sayde. The Lozde desirng that dwell in safety vpon hym, and the Lozde shall couer hym all the daye longe, and he shall dwell betwene thy shoulders.

And of Joseph he sayde: blessed of the Lozde is thy lande for the frutes of heuen, theowe the dewe and springes that lye beneath, and for the sweete frutes of the encrease of the sunne, & type frutes of the Moone: for the frutes of the principall mountaynes, and for the frutes that the hilles bringe forth for ever and for the frutes of the earth, and fulnesse therof: and for the good wyl of hym that dwelt in the bush, that the blessing come vpon the head of Joseph, and vpon the toppes of the head of hym that was separated from amonge his brethren: thy frutes shall be as the frutes of an Olive tree, and his thornes as the thornes of an Olive tree. And with them he shall trouble the nations together, euen vnto the endes of the world. These are also the many thousandes of Ephraim, and the thousandes of Manasse. And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Reioyce Zabulon in thy goyng oute, and thou Isacker in thy tentes.

They shall call the people vnto the hill, and there they shall offer offeringes of righteousness. For they shall seeke of the abundance of the see, and of treasure hid in the lande.

D And vnto Gad he sayde: blessed be the name maker Gad: he dwelleth as a Lyon, that catcheth the arme with the head. he sawe therfore thy begynnyng, and that there was a porcyon there to hyde the lawe geuer, and he came wth the heades of the people, and executed the righteousnesse of the Lozde, and thy Judgementes wth Israel.

And vnto Dan he sayde: Dan is a Lyons whelp, he shall flowe from Bala.

And vnto Asephali he sayde: Asephali hath abundance of Gods good pleasure, and is fylled with the blessing of the Lozde, and shall haue thy possessions towards the south west.

And vnto Isser he sayde: Isser shall be blessed with chyldren: he shall be acceptable vnto his brethren, and shall byppe his fote in oyle. Thy dwellinge be pson and vasse, and thyne age be as thy youth.

There is none lyke vnto the God of Israel: whiche though he sit vpon the heauen as vpon a horse, yet is he thy helpe, whose gloz is in the celestiall places. The eternal God is thy refuge and vnder the armes of the everlasting God: wait thou lyue. He shall cast out the enemy before the, and saye: destroye. Israel then shall dwell in safety, and alone. And the eye of Jacob shall be vpon a lande of corne and wyne, and his heauens shall droppe the dewe. happy art thou O Israel, who is lyke vnto the people that art laued in the Lozde, whiche is the hyde of thy helpe, and swarde of thy gloz. Thyne enemies haue lost thy strength to the warde, and thou shalt treade vpon the height of them.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

Moyses spake vnto the people, sayinge thus.

A And Moyses went from the playne of Moab vnto mount Abarim, and vnto the toppe of the hill that is ouer agaynst Jericho. And the Lozde shewed hym all the lande of Gilead, euen vnto Dan, and al Asephali and the lande of Ephraim and Manasse, and all the lande of Iuda: euen vnto the vtmost see, and the South and the region of the playne of Jericho the Citye of palm trees, euen vnto Ior. And Moyses sayde vnto hym. * This is the lande whiche I swore vnto Abraham, Isacar and Jacob sayinge: I wyl geue it vnto thy seide. I haue caused the also to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go ouer thither.

So Moyses the seruante of the Lozde dyed there in the lande of Moab, accordyng to the worde of the Lozde. And he buried hym in a valley in the land of Moab ouer agaynst the house of Deoz, but no man knoweth of his sepulchre vnto this daye. Moyses was an hundred and twentie yere olde when he dyed: his eye was not dimmed, nor his naturall colour abated. And the chyldren of Israel wepte for Moyses in the playne of Moab thretye dayes. And the dayes of wepyng and mourninge for Moyses, were ended.

And Joshua the sonne of Nun was ful of the spyrte of wysdome: for Moyses had put his handes vpon hym. And the chyldren of Israel were obedient vnto hym, and dyd as the Lozde commaunded Moyses. And there arose not a prophet sence in Israel lyke vnto Moyses, whom the LOZDE knewe face to face, accordyng vnto all the myracles and wonders whiche the Lozde sent hym to do in the lande of Egypt, vnto Pharaos and all his seruantes and before all thy lande and accordyng to all that myghty hand and all the greates wysdoms, whiche Moyses shewed in the syght of all Israel.

The booke of Josua

whome the Hebrewes call Jehosua.

The first Chapter.

The Lord encourgeth Josua to invade the land of promise, and commaundeth hym continually to treade Deuteronomie.

After the death of Moses the servant of the Lord, it happened also that the Lord spake unto Josua the son of Nun, Moses minister saying: Moses my servant is dead.

Now therefore up, & go over Jordan, thou & all this people unto the lande which I gve unto the chyldren of Israel. * All the places that f footes of your feet shall treade upon, have I gyven you, as I sayd unto Moses. And the wilderness and this Libanon unto the greete river Euphrates: all the lande of the Hethites: even unto the greete see towarde the going downe of the sunne, shal be your cooste. There shall not a man be able to withstande the all the dayes of thy lyfe. * For as I was wth Moses, so wyl I be wth the,
and wyl not faile the, nor forsake the. * Be stronge therfore and bolde: for unto this people shalt thou deuyde the lande which I swaie unto theyr fathers to gve them. Onely be thou stronge, and as bolde as thou canst, that thou mayst observe and do accordyng to all the law, which Moses my servaunte commaunded the.
* Turne therefrom neyther to the ryght hande, nor to the left: that thou mayest do wysely in all that thou takest in hande: * let not the booke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth. But recorde therein daye and nyght, that thou mayest observe, and do accordyng to all that is wyrt-ten therein. For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperous, & then shalt thou do wysely. Have not I commaunded the, that thou shouldest be stronge and hardye, and not feare nor be faynte dertyd? For I the Lord thy God am wth the, whither soever thou goest.

Then Josua commaunded the officers of the people, sayinge: So thow we the myddes of the booke, and commaunde the people, sayinge: prepare you wyttayles: for after thre dayes ye shall passe over this Jordan, to go in & enioye f lande, which f Lord your god giueth you for possesse.

And unto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the trybe of Manasses, spake Josua, sayinge:

* Remembre the worde, whiche Moses the ser-uaunt of the Lord commaunded you, sayinge:

the Lord your God hath gyven you rest, and hath gyven you this lande: Your wyues, your chyldren, and your cattell shall remaine in the lande which Moses gave you on this syde Jordane: but ye shall go before your brethren, armed al f be men of warre, and helpe them until the Lord have gyven your brethren rest, as he hath you, and until they also have obtayned f lande, which the Lord your God giueth them.
And then shall ye returne unto the lande of your possession and enioy it, whych lande Moses the Lords servaunt gave you on this syde Jordan towards the sunne settinge. And they answered Josua, sayinge: * All that thou hast commaunded us, we wyl do, and whither soever thou se-dest us, we wyl go. Accordyng as we obeyed Moses in all thynges, so wyl we obey the, one-ly the Lord thy God be wth the as he was w Moses. And whosoever he be that doth disobey thy mouth, and wyl not hearken unto thy wor-des in all that thou commaundest him, let him dye.
Only be stronge and of good courage.

The ii. Chapter.

Josua sendeth spies to Jericho, which were hyd of Rahab.

As Josua the sonne of Nun sent oute of two men to spy secretly, saying:

go and viewe the lande, and also Jericho.
And they wente, and came into an harlots house, named Rahab, and lodged there. And it was tolde the kynge of Jericho, and sayde: Be-holde, there came men in hyder to nyght, of the chyldren of Israel, to spy out the countrey.

And the kynge of Jericho sent unto Rahab, sayinge: bringe forth the men that are come to the, and whiche are entred into thyne house, for they be come to seache out all the lande.

And the woman toke the two men, & hyd them. And sayde thus: indeede there came men unto me, but I wylte not whence they were. *
And about the tyme of the shutting of the gate when it was darke, the men went oute, whither the men went I wote not: folowe ye after them quychlye, for ye shall overtake them. But she brought them up to the rofe of the house, & hyd them with the stalkes of flaxe, whych she hadde lyinge abroad upon the rofe. And the men of the cite pursued after the, f way to Jordan, even unto the ferry, & as sone as they whiche pursued after them were gone out, they shut the gate.

And as euer they were a slepe, she came up unto them upon the rofe, and sayd unto the men: I knowe f the Lord hath gyven you the lande,
* for the feare of you is fallen upon us, and the inhabiters of the lande saynte at the presence of you. For we have heard, how the Lord dyed up the water of the reed see before you, when you came out of Egypt, and what you dyd unto the two kynges of the Amorites, that were on the other syde Jordan, * Achon & Og, whom ye vtterly destroyed. And as soone as we had hearde these thynges, (the men were fast asayed, &) our hartes dyd saynte. And there remayned nomore courage in any man at the presence of you. For the Lord your God, he is the God in heauen above, and in earth beneath.

J. ii. Now

Now therefore (I pray you) swear unto me by the Lord, that as I have theed you mercy, ye shall also shewe mercy unto my fathers house, & gyue me a true token. And that ye shall save alive, both my father and my mother, my brethren and my sisters, and all that they have. And ye shall deliuer our soules from death.

And the men answered her: our lues for you to dye, yf ye utter not thys our busynesse. And when the Lord hath gyuen vs the lande: we will deale mercifully and truly wth the. And then she let the downe by a coorde, & thowse a wyndow: for her house was by the towne wall. And she dwelt by the towne wal. And she sayde unto them: get you into the mountayne, leeste the pursuers mete you, and hyde youre selues there thre dayes, vntill the pursuers be retourned, and then shall ye go your owne waye.

And the men sayd vnto her: we wyl be blamelesse of this thynge oth, which thou hast made vs swear. Beholde, when we come into the lande thou shalt hynde this purple coorde in the wyndowe, which thou hast made vs downe by. And thou shalt bring thy father & thy mother, thy brethren & al thy fathers household, euen into thy house.

And then whosoever doeth go out at the dores of thy house, into the streete, his blood shall be vpon his owne heed, and we wyl be gyltlesse. And whosoever shall be wth the in the house, his blood shall be on our heed, yf any mannes hande touche hym: And yf thou vter these our wordes, we wyl be quyte of thy oth which thou hast made vs swear. And she sayde: As ye comynge vnto your wordes, so be it: and she sent them awaye to departe. And she bounde the purple coorde in the wyndowe.

And they departed, and came into the mountayne, and there abode thre dayes, vntill the pursuers were returned. And the pursuers sought them thowowout all the waye, but founde them not. And the two menne returned, and descended from the mountayne, and passed ouer, and came to Josua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that had chaunced them. And they sayde vnto Josua: the Lord trulye hath deliuered into our handes all the lande, and all the inhabitants of the countrey saynte at the presence of vs.

The.iii. Chapter.

Josua with the people passeth ouer Jordan.

And Josua rose earlye: & they removed from Bethun, and came to Jordan, he and all the chyldren of Israel, and lodged there, before they went ouer.

And after thre dayes it fortuned, that the officers wente thowowout the hoolle, and commaunded the people, saying: when ye se the arke of the testament of the Lord your God, and the prestes that are Leuites bearynge it: ye shall depart from your place, and go after it. So yet that there shalbe a space betwene you and it, about a thousand cubites by measure. And ye shall not come nye vnto it, that ye maye knowe the waye, by which ye must go: for ye haue not gone thys waye in tymes paste, and betweene, that ye are ye are not nye vnto the arke. And Josua sayd vnto the people: Sanctifie your selues, for tomorrow the Lord shall do wonders amonge you.

And Josua spake vnto the prestes, saying: Take vnto the arke of the couenaunte, and go before the people. And they toke vp the arke of the testament, and went before the people.

And the Lord sayde vnto Josua: thys daye wyl I begynne to magnifie the in the syghte of all Israel, that they maye knowe howe that as I was with Moyses, so wyl I be with the. And thou shalt commande the prestes that beare the arke of the couenaunt, sayinge: when ye are come to the edge of the waters of Jordan, ye shall stande still in it.

And Josua sayd vnto the chyldren of Israel: come hyther, and heare the wordes of the Lord your God. And Josua sayde: hereby ye shall knowe that the lypunge God is amonge you, and that he wyl wythout faile cast out before you, the Cananites, and the Hethites, the Hittites, the Iherosolimites, the Gergesites, the Amorites, and the Jebusites: Beholde, the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord of all the worldes goeth before you into Jordan. Nowe therefore take from amonge you twelue men out of the trybes of Israel out of euery trybe a man.

And as soone as the sooles of the feete of the prestes (that beare the arke of the Lord the gouernoure of all the worldes) treade in the waters of Jordan, the waters of Jordan shall be dryed, and the waters that come from above, shall stande still vpon an heape. And it fortuned, that when the people were departed fro their tentes to go ouer Jordan, the prestes bearynge the arke of the appoyntment, went before the people. And as sone as they that bare the arke came vnto Jordan, and the feete of the prestes that bare the arke were dryed in the bym of the water. (For Jordan vseth to fyl all his banks all the tyme of harnesse,) the waters also that came downe from above, dryed vnto vpon an heape, and appeared as great as a mountayne. And departed far from the cytie of Adai, that was besyde Jarchan. And the waters that were beneth towarde the see of the Egiptenes, fel a waye and departed into the salt see, & the people went ryght ouer agaynst Jericho. And the prestes that bare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord, stode drye within Jordan ready prepared, and all the Israelites went ouer thowowe the drye, vntill all the people were gone cleane ouer thowowe Jordan.

The.iiii. Chapter.

Josua lettereth vnto the stones in Jordan.

And it fortuned, that whil the people were all gone ouer Jordan, the Lord spake vnto Josua, sayinge: Take you twelue men out of the people, out of euery trybe a man. And commande you them, saying: take you stee out of the middes of Jordan (eue out of the place where the prestes stode in a tyme paste) twelue stones, wherby ye shall take a waye vnto you, and leaue them in the place, where you shall lodge thys nyght.

And

And Josua called the xii. men whiche he had prepared of the chyldren of Israel, oute of euery trybe a man. & Josua sayde vnto them: get you before the arke of the Lorde your God, euen thow the myddes of Jordan: and take vp euery man of you a stone vpon his shulder accordyng vnto the nombze of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, that this maye be a signe amonge you. That when your chyldren aske their fathers in tyme to come, saying: what meane these stones vpon you? ye maye answere them howe the waters of Jordan deuyded at the ptesence of the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde. For whē it went ouer Jordan, the waters of Jordan deuyded. And these stones are become a memorial vnto the chyldren of Israel for euer.

B And the chyldren of Israel dyd euen so as Josua commaunded, and toke vp xii. stones oute of the myddes of Jordan, as the Lorde sayd vnto Josua, accordyng to the nombze of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, and carryed them awaye wth them, vnto the place where they lodged, and layed them downe there. And Josua sette vp twelue stones also in the myddes of Jordan, in the place where the feete of the priestes which bare the arke of the testament, stode.

And there haue they continued vnto this day. For the priestes which bare the arke stode in the myddes of Jordan, vntill all was finished that the Lorde commaunded Josua to saye vnto the people, accordyng to al that Moses charged Josua. And the people hastened and went ouer. It fortuned also, that when all the people were cleane ouer, the arke of the Lorde wente ouer also, and the priestes before the people. And the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad, and halfe the trybe of Manasse wet before the chyldren of Israel armed, as Moses charged the. Euen fourty thousand prepared for war, went before the Lorde vnto batel, thowse playne of Jericho. That day the Lorde magnified Josua in the syght of al Israel, & they feared hym, as they feared Moses all dayes of his lyfe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Josua, sayinge: commaunde the priestes that bare the arke of wytnesse, to come vp out of Jordan. Josua therfore commaunded the priestes, sayinge: Come ye vp out of Jordan. And whē the priestes that bare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde were come vp out of the myddes of Jordan, and as soone as the sooles of the priestes feete were set on the drye lande, the waters of Jordan returned agayne vnto theyr place, and went ouer al theyr bankes as they dyd before. And the people came vp out of Jordan the tenth daye of the first moneth, and pitched in Gilgal, euen in the easie border of the citty Jericho.

And the twelue stones whiche they toke out of Jordan, dyd Josua pytche in Gilgal. And he spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: * Ye poure chyldren aske theyr fathers in tyme to come & saye: what meane these stones? & ye shall answer: we poure chyldren, and saye: Israel came ouer this Jordan on drye lande. For the Lorde your God dyed vp the water of Jordan before you, vntill ye were gone ouer, as the Lorde your God dyd the red see: which he dyed vp before vs, tyll we were gone ouer, & al the people of the world may knowe the hand of the Lorde, how mightie it is, & ye maye feare the Lorde your God for euer.

The v. Chapter

The Canaanites are slayed.

And it fortuned that whē al the kinges of the Amorites which are before Jordan west ward, & all the kinges of the Canaanites which were by the see, herde how the Lorde had dyed vp the waters of Jordan before the chyldren of Israel vntill they were gone ouer, & they were dismayed for feare. And ther was no spirit in the any more for the ptesence of the chyldren of Israel. That same tyme the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: * Make the harpe knyues (of stone) & to go agayne & circumsise the chyldren of Israel & the stone.

And Josua made him harpe knyues (of stone) and circumsised the chyldren of Israel in the top of the four saynes. And this is the cause why Josua circumsised al the people that came out of Egypt: namelye such as were males, because all the men of warre dyed in the wyldernes by the waye after they came out of Egypt. For al the people that came out were circumsised. But all the people that were borne in the wyldernes by the waye after they came out of Egypt were not circumsised. For the chyldren of Israel walked fourty yeres in the wyldernes, tyll all the people of the men of warre that came out of Egypt were consumed because they hearened not vnto the voyce of the Lorde.

Wherfore the Lorde sware, that he wolde not shewe them the lande: whiche the Lorde sware vnto theyr fathers, that he wolde geue vs, eue a lande: that floweth wth mylke & honny. And the chyldren whō he set vp in theyr stede, them Josua circumsised: for they were uncircumsised, because they circumsised them not by the waye.

And when they had circumsised al the people they abode stil together in the host tyll they were hole. And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: this daye I haue take awaye the name of Egypt fro you: wherfore the name of the same place is called Gilgal vnto this day. And the chyldren of Israel abode in Gilgal & held the feast of passeouer the xiiii. daye of the moneth at eue in the playne of Jericho. And they dyd eate of the coine of the lande, on the morow after passeouer sweete cakes & parched coine in the selfe same day. For the Manasse ceased on the morow after they had begone to eate of the coine of the land, neyther had the chyldren of Israel Manna anye more, but dyd eate of the coine of the lande of Canaan that yere.

And it fortuned, that when Josua was nye to Jericho, he lyft vp his eyes and looked: and beholde, there stode a man agaynst hym, havyng a swerde drawen in his hande. And Josua went vnto hym, and sayde vnto hym: art thou on our syde, or on our aduersaries?

And he sayd: Aye, but as a captayne of the host of the Lorde am I now come. And Josua fel on his face to the earth, & dyd reuerence, & sayd: A. iii. vnto

The. vi. Chapter.

The wall of Jericho fall, and it is destroyed.

3 And Jericho was shut vp, & locked, because of the chyldren of Israel, neyther myght any man go out or in. And the Lord sayd vnto Josua: behold, I haue gyven into thy hand Jericho & her kyng, & the strong men of warre.

And ye shall compass the cite, all ye that be men of warre, & go rounde about it ones, and so shall you do syre dayes. And seven prestes shall beare before the arke, seven trompettes of rammes hoines ^(that be used in the Jubyle.) And the seuen dayes, ye shall compass the cite. vii. tymes, & the prestes shall blowe with the trompettes.

And when they make a longe blast with the rammes hoine, & ye heare the sounde of the hoine, all the people shall shoute wyth a great shoute. And when that the wall of the cite shal downe, & the people shal ascende vp, euery man streyght before him. And Josua the son of Nun called the prestes & sayd vnto them: take vp the arke of appoyntment, & let. vii. prestes beare. vii. trompettes of rammes hoines before the arke of the Lorde. And he sayd vnto the people, go and compass the cite: and let him þ is harnessed, go before the arke of the Lorde. And when Josua had spok: n vnto the people, the seven prestes bare the seven trompettes of rammes hoines, & wet forth before the arke of the Lorde, and blew wyth the trompettes, and the arke of the covenant of the Lorde folowed them.

25 And all the men of armes wet before the prestes, that blew wyth the trompettes, and the comen people came after the arke: & the prestes that went blew wyth trompettes. And Josua commaunded the people, saying: Ye shal not shoute, nee make any noyse wyth your voyce, neyther shall anye word proceede oute of your mouth, vntill the daye I byd you shoute, then shall ye shoute. And so the arke of the Lorde compassed the cite, and went about it ones: & they returned into the host, and lodged there.

And Josua rose early in the morning, and the prestes toke the arke of the Lorde, and vii. prestes bare. vii. trompettes of rammes hoines, and went before the arke of the Lorde, and blew wyth the trompettes. And all the men of armes went before them, but the comen people came after the arke of the Lorde, whiche went before wyth the blowing of the trompettes. And the second day they compassed the cite ones, and returned agayne into the host, and so they byd syre dayes.

And whē the seuen day came, they rose early: even to the dawning of the daye, and compassed the cite after the same maner seven tymes: only that daye they compassed the cite seven tymes.

C And at the seuenthytyme, when the prestes blew wyth the trompettes, Josua sayde vnto the people, shoute, for the Lorde hath gyven you the cite. And the cite shalbe damned both it and al that are therein, vnto the Lord, only Rahab the harlot shall lyue, and al that are with her in the house, because she ^{had} the messengers that we sent. And in any wyse be ye ware of the excommunicate thynges, lest ye make your selues excommunicate, and take of the excommunicate thynges, and make the host of Israel excommunicate and trouble it. But all the syluer, golde, vesselles of brasse, and ydols shal be consecrate vnto the Lorde, and shall come into hye treasure.

And the people shouted, and blew wyth trompettes. And when the people heard the sounde of the trompe, they shouted with a greater shoute: and the wall fel downe, so that the people wet vp into the cite, euery man streyght before him and toke the cite. And they utterly destroyed all that was in the cite, bothe man and womā younge, and olde, ore, shepe, and asse, wyth the edge of the swerde.

Then Josua sayde vnto the two men that had spyed out the countrey: goe into the harlottes house, and bying out thence the woman, and al that she hath, as ye swaie to her. And the yonge men that were spyed, went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father and mother, and her brethren, and all that she had. And they brought out all her kynrede, and put them wythoute the host of Israel.

And they burnt the cite wyth fyre, and all that was therein. Only the syluer and the golde, the vesselles of brasse and yron, they put vnto the treasure of the house of the Lorde. And Josua laud Rahab the harlotte, and her fathers householde, and all that she had, and she dwelt in Israel euen vnto this day, because she had spyed messengers, whiche Josua sent to spy out Jericho.

And Josua swaie at that tyme, saying: cursed be the man before the Lord, that ryseth vp, and buyldeth this cite Jericho: he shal laye the foundation in his eldest sonne, and in his yongest sonne shall he set by the gates of it. And so the Lorde was wyth Josua, and his fame was noyed thowout all landes.

The. vii. Chapter.

That is spyed out. Acan is bound.

But yet the chyldren of Israel trespassed in þ excommunicate thynges. And Acan the sonne of Carmy, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareth of þ tribe of Juda toke of the excommunicate thynges. And the wrath of the Lorde waxed wyth agaynst the chyldren of Israel.

And Josua sent men fro Jericho to Hai, whiche is besyde Bethhaie, on the east syde of Bethel, & spake vnto the, saying: get you up, & view þ countrey. And þ me wet vp, & spyed out Hai. And returned to Josua, & sayd vnto hym: let not al the people go vp, but lette as it were a two or thre thousand me go vp, & smyte Hai, & make not al þ people to labour thither, for they are but fewe.

And so there went wythether of the people, about a thre thousande men, & they led before þ men of Hai. And the men of Hai smote of them vpon a thyrte and syre men: for they chased them from before þ gate euen vnto Bebarim, & smote

Jos. iiii.

B smote them in the going downe. Wherfore the bestes of the people * for feare, melted awaye lyke water. And Josua rente hys clothes, and fell to the earth upon his face before the arke of the Lord, vntyl the euentyde, he and the elders of Israel, and put earth vpon theyr herdes.

And Josua sayde: * Alas, O Lord God, wherfore haste thou broughte this people ouer Jordan, to deliuer vs into y^e hande of the Amorites, and to destroye vs: wolde to God we had bene content, & dwelt on the other syde Jordan. O Lord what shal I saye, when Israel turne theyr backs before theyr enemyes. Surely the Canaanites, and all the inhabitants of the lande shall heare of it, and shall conspyre agaynst vs, and destroye the name of vs out of the worlde. And what wyl I do vnto thy myghty name?

And the Lord sayde vnto Josua: get the vp: wherfore lyest thou thus vpon the face? Israel haue synned, and they haue transgressed myne appoyntmente, whiche I commaunded them: for they haue taken of the excommunicate thinges, & haue stolen, and dissembled, and put them vnto theyr owne stuffe. And wherfore is it that the chyldren of Israel cannot stande before theyr enemyes, but shall tourne theyr backs before their enemyes because they be excommunicate. Fel ther wyl I be with you any more, except ye rote out the excommunicate from amonge you.

C * Up therfore, and sanctifye the people, and saye: sanctifye youre selues agaynst tomorowe for so sayde the Lord God of Israel. There is a damned thyng amonge you (O Israel) & therfore ye cannot stande agaynst your enemyes, vntyl ye haue put the dāned thyng fro amonge you. Tomorowe morynge therfore ye shall be brought accordyng to your trybes. And y^e tribe whych the Lord taketh, shall come accordyng to the kindreds thereof. And the kindred whiche the Lord shall fynde gylty, shall come by householdes. And the household whiche the Lord shall fynde faulty, shall come man by man. And he y^e is founde in y^e excommunication, shalbe burnt wth fyre he & al y^e be hath, because he hath trasgressed y^e couenaunt of y^e Lord & broughte foly in Israel.

And so Josua rose vperly in the morynge and broughte Israel by theyr trybes: & the trybe of Juda was caught. And he broughte y^e kindredes of Juda, and toke the kynrede of the zarchytes. And he broughte the kindred of y^e zarchytes, man by man, and zabdi was caught. And he broughte hys household man by man, and Acan the sonne of Carmy, the sonne of zabdi, the sonne of jareth in the trybe of Juda was caught.

And Josua sayd vnto Acan: my sonne: I beseeche the, gyue gloire to the Lord God of Israel, and gyue hym prayse, and shewe me what thou hast done, hyde is not from me.

D And Acan answered Josua, and sayde: of a truthe: I haue synned agaynst the Lord God of Israel, & thus and thus haue I done. I saue amonge the spoyle a goodly Babylonish garment, & two hundred sicles of syluer, & a tonge of golde of fyttie syles wryght, and I couered them, and toke them. And behold they lye hys in the earth in my tent, & the syluer is there vnder.

And so Josua sent messengers: whych when they ranne vnto hys tent, beholde, they were hys in hys tent, and the syluer ther vnder.

Wherfore they tooke them out of the myddest of his tent, and broughte them vnto Josua, and vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and laped them out before the Lord.

And Josua toke Acan the sonne of jareth and the syluer, and the garment & the tonge of golde and hys sonnes and hys daughters, hys oten, & hys asses, his shepe, and hys tent, and all that he had: and all Israel wryth hym broughte them vnto the valleye of Acoz.

And Josua sayde: In as moche as thou hast troubled vs, the Lord shal trouble the this day. And all Israel stoned hym with stones, and burned them wryth fyre, and ouerwhelmed them wth stones. And they cast vpon hym a greate heape of stones vnto this daye. And so the Lord turned from the wrath of his indignacion. And the name of th^e place is called the valleye of Acoz vnto this daye.

The viii. Chapter.

The siege & burning of Hai. The kynge thereof is hanged. Josua setteth vp an altare. He blesteth the people.

And the Lord sayde vnto Josua: * feare not, neyther be thou saynte derted. Take all the men of warre wryth the and vp, and gette the to Hai. Beholde, I haue gyuen into thynne hande the kynge of Hai, and hys people, hys ctyte, and hys lande.

And thou shalt do to Hai and her kynge, as thou dydest vnto Jericho and her kynge. Reuer thelesse, the spoyle and cartell thereof shal ye take vnto your selues. And laye a watche vnto the towne, on the backsyde thereof.

And so Josua arose, and all the men of warre to go vp agaynst Hai. And Josua chose out. x. thousande stronge men of warre, and sent them awaye by nyght. And he commaunded them sayinge: beholde, ye shall laye a wayte vnto the towne on the backsyde thereof. So not very far from the ctyte, but be all readye.

And I and all the people that are wryth me, wyl appoche vnto the ctyte. And when they come out agaynst vs, as they byd at the fyrtie tyme, then wyl we lye before the. For they wyl come out after vs, and we wyl byynge them out of the ctyte: For they wyl saye: they lye before vs as at y^e fyrtie tyme, & we wyl lye before the. In the meane tyme shal ye rylse vp from lpyng a wayte and destroye the ctyte. For the Lord your God wyl deliuer it into your hande. And whē ye haue taken the ctyte, ye shall set it on fyre.

Accordyng to the commaundement of the Lord shal ye do: beholde, I haue charged you. Josua therfore sent them forth, and they went to lye a wayte, and abode betwene Bethel and Hai, on the west syde of the citty of Hai. But Josua lodged that nyght amonge the people.

And Josua rose vperly in the morning, and nombred the people and went vp. he & the elders of Israel before the people agaynst Hai. And al

A.iii. the men

the men of warre that were with hym went vp and dur nye, and came agaynst the cytie, & pitched on the north syde of Hai. And there was a valley betwene them & Hai. And he toke vpon a fyue thousand men, & put them to lye awayte, betwene Bethel and Hai, on the weste syde of the citie. And they put the people (cut all & hoste that were on the north syde) agaynst the cytye & the lynes awayte on the west. And Josua walhed the same nyght in the myddes of the valley. And it fortuned, that whē the kyng of Hai saw it, they hastid & rose vp early, and the men of & cytye went out agaynst Israel to battaile, he and al his people at a tyme appoynted, euen before the playne, and wythe not that there were lynes awayte on the backsyde of the cytye.

And Josua and all Israel sayned them selues to be put to the worse before them, and fled towarde the wyldernesse. And all the people of the towne were called together, to folowe after them. And they folowed after Josua, and were drawen awaye from the cytye. And there was not a man left in Hai and in Bethel, that went not out after Israel. And they leste the cytie open, and folowed after Israel.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: stretche out the spere & is in thynne hande toward Hai, for I wil geue it vnto thy hand. And Josua stretched out the spere that he had in hys hande, toward the cytie. And the lynes awayte arose quychly out of theyr place, and ran allone as Josua had stretched oute hys hande, and they entered into & cytye, and toke it, and halsted, and let the citie on fyre. And when & men of Hai looked backe after them, they sawe the smoke of the citie ascend vnto heauē. And they had no lye sure to flye, eyther this way or &, & the people & fled to the wyldernesse, turned backe agayne vpon the folowers.

And when Josua and all Israel sawe that the lynes awayte had taken the cytie, and that the smoke of it ascended, they turned agayne & layed on the men of Hai. And the other ensued oute of the citie agaynst them. And so were they in the myddest of Israel: for these were on the one side of them, and the rest on the other syde. And they layed vpon them, so that they let none of them escape, nor remayne. And the kyng of Hai they toke alque, & brought him to Josua. And when Israel had made an ende of slayinge all the inhabitants of Hai in the feilde of the wyldernesse, where they chased them, & when they were all fallen on the edge of the swerde, vntill they were wasted, all the Israelites returned vnto Hai, & smote it in the edge of the swerde. And all that fell that daye, bothe of men and women, were twelue thousande, euen all the men of Hai.

For Josua plucked not his hande backe agayne which he stretched out vnto & spere, vntill he had betwixte destroyed all the enbaptours of Hai.

De. xxi. 1
Josua. vii.

Onely the cattell & the spoyle of the cytye, Israel toke vnto the selues, accordyng vnto the worde of the Lorde, whiche he commaunded Josua. And Josua let Hai on fyre, and made it an hepe for euer, and a wyldernesse, euen vnto this daye. And the kyng of Hai he hanged on a tree, vntill eue. And as soon as the sunne was downe, Josua commaunded & that they shoulde take the carcase downe of the tree, & cast it at & entryng of the gate of the citie, and & laye thereon a great heape of stones, that remayneth vnto this day.

Then Josua & built an altare vnto the Lorde God of Israel, in mounte Ebal, as & Moses the seruant of the Lorde commaunded the chyldren of Israel, and as it is written in the & booke of & lawe of Moses: an altare of whole stones, ouer which no man hath lye any tole of yron. And they sacrificed thereon burnt sacrifices vnto the Lorde, & offered peace offerings. And he wrot ther vpon & stones, a rehersal of the lawe of Moses, & wrot it in & presence of the chyldren of Israel.

And all Israel and the elders therof, and theyr officers & Judges stode, parte on this syde the arke, and parte on that syde, before the prestes that were Leuytes, whiche bare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde: as well the stranger, as they that were borne amonge them: halfe of them on the forefront of mount Garazin, & halfe of them on & foirthe of mounte Ebal: as & Moses the seruant of the Lorde had commaunded before that they shoulde blesse the people Israel.

Afterwarde, he red all the wordes of the lawe, the blessinges and cursynges, accordyng to all that is writte in & booke of the lawe: And there was not one worde of all & Moses commaunded, which Josua red not before al the congregation of Israel: The women and chyldren (& the strangers that were come) standyng amonge them.

The ix. Chapter

The Gibeonites obayne peace of Josua.

As it fortuned, that when all the kynges that dwell on this syde Jordan, in the hylls and valleyes, and alonge by al the & coastes of the great see once agaynst Libanon. (Namely the Hethites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Pherezites, the Hittites, and the Jebusites) hearde therof, they gathered them selues together, to fyght agaynst Josua, & agaynst Israel with one accord.

And the enbaptours of Gibeon herd what Josua had done vnto Jericho, and to Hai. And they dyd wyllyngly, and went, and made them selues embassadours, and toke & (them vnto & sayles, and) olde saches vpon theyr asses and wyne bottles olde, and rent and woyned, and old clouted shoen vpon theyr feete, and theyr raymente was olde, and all theyr prouision of beed was dyed vnto, and boozed. And they came vnto Josua in to the host, to Gilgal, and sayd vnto hym and vnto al the men of Israel: We be come from a farre countrey, and now we make agreement wth vs. And the men of Israel sayde vnto the Hethites: per aduenture thou dwellest among vs, and then howe can I make peace with the?

And they sayde vnto Josua: We are thy seruantes. And Josua sayde vnto them agayne: what are ye, and whence come ye? They answered hym. We be a very farre countrey thy seruantes are come, for the name of the Lorde thy God: for we haue herde the same & (of the power) of him, & all that he dyd in Egypte, & all that he dyd to the two

C And the men toke of theyr vitayles, and conn-made peace wpyth them, and made couenat wpyth them, that they shulde be suffered to lyue:

& theyr cyties were Gibeon, & Ephraim, Beroth & Mariath Jarim. And schilde of Israel sawe the not, because the Loides of schregatid had sworne vnto them by the Loide God of Israel.
And al schilde murmured agaynst sch Lo-des. But al sch Loides sayd vnto all the schrega-cyon: we haue sworne vnto them by the Loide God of Israel, and therfore we maye not hurte them. But this we will do to them. We wyl let them lyue, lest wrath be vpon vs because of the othe which we sware vnto the. And the Loides sayde vnto them agayne: Let them lyue, & and hewe wood, & dya w water vnto al the schrega-cyon & they dyd as the Loides sayd vnto them.

D And Iosua sent for them, and talhed wpyth them, and sayde: wherfore haue ye begyled vs sayinge: We dwell farre from you, wha ye dwell amonge vs? & now we are percurd, and there shal not lease to be of you, bondmen and hewers of wood & dya wers of water for sch house of my god

And they answered Iosua and sayde: it was tolde thy seruauntes, howe that the Loide thy gyue you all the land, and to destroye all the enhabitoures therof out of youre syght, and therfore we were excedyng soze afrayde. (& dyd pte they sette them not. And Iosua made the that same daie hewers of wood, & dya wers of water for the schregacyon & for sch aultar of God vnto thys daie, in the place which God shulde chole.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

*¶ The Amozites are overcome of Iosua. It sayeth howe.
The sunne standeth still. The fyue kynges are hangd.*

Ad it fortuned, that when Adonise-dech kyng of Ierusalem had hearde howe Iosua had taken Hai and had destroyed it, and howe that: as he had done to Jericho and her kyng, euen so he had done to Hai & her kyng, and how the enhabitoures of Gibeon had made peace wpyth Israel, and were amonge them, they feared excedynglye, for Gibeon was a greute cytye, as any cytye of that kyngdome, and was greater then Hai, and all the men therof were very myghtye.

Wherfore Adonisedech kyng of Ierusalem sent vnto Hoham kyng of Hebron, and vnto Piria kyng of Jarmuth, & vnto Japhia kyng of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kyng of Eglon, sayinge: Come vp vnto me, & helpe me, for we maye synge Gibeon: for they haue made peace wpyth Iosua & with the chyldren of Israel. Therfore the fyue kynges of the Amozites, the kyng of Ierusalem, the kyng of Hebron, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, and the kyng of Eglon gathered the felues togpyther: thei with al their hostes and besieged Gibeon, & made warre agaynst it.

And the men of Gibeon sent vnto Iosua, and to the hoste of Gilgal, sayinge: wpythdawe not thy hande from thy seruauntes, come vp to vs, to saue vs: & to helpe vs. For all the kynges of the Amozites which dwell in the mountaynes, are gathered togpyther agaynst vs.

And so Iosua ascended from Gilgal, he and all the people of warre wpyth hym, and all the men of myght, and the Loide sayd vnto Iosua: fearre them not, for I haue deliuered them into thyne hande. Neptier shall any of them stande agaynst the. Iosua therfore came vnto them sodeynly, and went vp from Gilgal all nyghte.
And the Loide troubled the before Israel, and sette them wpyth a greute slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them alonge the way that goeth vp to Bethozon, and smote them to Elah & Wa-heda. And it fortuned, that as they fled from Israel, and were in the goynge downe to Berhoron, the Loide caste downe greute stones from heuen vpon them, vntyl Elah. And ther were more dead with the hayle stones, then they were whom the chyldre of Israel slew w the swerde

Then spake Iosua before the Loide, in the daye when the Loide deliuered the Amozites before the chyldren of Israel, and he sayde in the syght of Israel. & Sunne stand thou stil vnto Gibeon, and thou Moone, in Aialon. And the Sunne abode, and the Moone stode still, vntyl sch people auaged them felues vnto theyr enemies
Is not this wyrtten in sch boke of the ryghteous
The sunne (I say) abode in the meddel of heauen, and halted not to go downe by the space of an hole daie. And there was no daie lyke that before it, or after it, that the Loide hearde the voyce of a man. For the Loide fought for Israel.

And Iosua retourned, and al Israel with him vnto the host of Gilgal: but sch fyue kynges fled and were dyd in a caue at Waheda. And it was told Iosua of one, sayinge: the fyue kynges are foude dyd in a caue which is at Waheda. And

I v Iosua

The.v. Kynges whom Josua. Josua destroyed

Josua sayde: roule great stones vpon the mouth of the cane, and let men by it, for to hepe them.

And stande ye not still, but folowe after your enemyes, and smyte all the hyndemost: And suffer them not to entre into theyr cities for the Lord your God hath deliuered them into your hand. And it fortuned when Josua and the chyldren of Israel had made an ende of slepyng them wyth an exceeding great slaughter tyll they were wasted, the residue that remayned of them, entred into walled cyties.

And all the people returned to the hoste, to Josua at Wakeba in peace, neyther byd any man more bys tonge agaynst the chyldren of Israel. Then sayd Josua: open the mouth of the cane, and byngte out these fyue kynges vnto me out of the cane. And they byd so, and broughte those fyue kynges vnto hym out of the cane, euen the kyng of Jerusalem, the kyng of Hebron, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachys, and the kyng of Egion.

And it fortuned, that when they broughte out those kynges vnto Josua: Josua called for all the men of Israel, and sayde vnto the chefe of the men of warre, whyche went wyth hym: come nere, and put youre fete vpon the neckes of these kynges. And they came nere and putte theyr fete vpon the neckes of them. And Josua sayde vnto them: Ye shall not feare nor be saynt hereto: But be stronge and pluche vp your betters, for thus shall the Lord do to all your enemyes agaynst whom ye fyghte.

And then Josua smote them, and slewe them, and hanged them on fyue trees. And they hanged still vpon the trees vntill the eueninge. And at the going downe of the sunne, it fortuned that Josua gaue commaundement, and they toke them downe of the trees, and caste them into the cane, (where in they had bene byd) and layed stones in the canes mouth, whyche remayne vntill this daye.

And that same day Josua toke Wakeba and smote it wyth the edge of the swearde, and the kyng thereof also: destroyed he vterly, wyth all the soules that were therein, and let noughte remayne. And he byd to the kyng of Wakeba: as he byd vnto the kyng of Jericho.

Then Josua went from Wakeba, and all Israel wyth hym vnto Libna, and foughte agaynst Libna. And the Lord deliuered it and the kyng thereof into the bande of Israel: and he smote it wyth the edge of the swearde, and all the soules that were therein. He let noughte remayne in it, but byd vnto the kyng thereof as he byd vnto the kyng of Jericho.

And Josua departed from Libna, and all Israel wyth hym vnto Lachys, and besieged it, & assaulted it. And the Lord deliuered Lachys into the bande of Israel, which toke it the seconde daye, and smote it wyth the edge of the swearde, and all the soules that were therein, doyng accordyng to al, as he had done to the cite of Libna. Then the kyng of Gether came vp to helpe Lachys: And Josua smote hym and his people, vntill noughte remayned of hym.

And fro Lachys Josua departed, vnto Egion, and all Israel wyth hym, and they besieged it, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, and smote it wyth the edge of the swearde, and all the soules that were therein he vterly destroyed the same daye, accordyng to all that he had done to Lachys.

And Josua departed by from Egion and all Israel wyth hym, vnto Hebron. And they foughte agaynst it, and when they had taken it, they smote it wyth the edge of the swearde, and the kyng thereof, and all the towncs that perteyned to it, and all the soules that were therein, and he lette noughte remayne: but byd accordyng to all as he had done to Egion, and destroyed it vterly, and all the soules that were therein.

And Josua returned, and all Israel wyth hym to Dabir, and foughte agaynst it. And when he had taken it, and the kyng thereof, and all the towncs that perteyned thereto, they smote them wyth the edge of the swearde, and vterly destroyed all the soules that were therein, neyther lette he oughte remayne. Euen as he byd to Hebron, so he byd to Dabir and the kyng thereof, as he had done also to Libna and her kyng.

Josua therfore smote all the hyll countreys, and the southe countreys, and the valleyes, and the hyll sydes, & al theyr kynges, and let noughte remayne of them, but vterly destroyed all that was left, as the Lord God of Israel commaunded. And Josua smote them from Cades barne vnto Ashdod, and all the countreys of Gossan, euen vnto Gibeon. And those kynges and their lande byd Josua take at one tyme: because the Lord God of Israel foughte for Israel. And Josua and all Israel returned vnto the hoste that was in Sugai.

The xi. Chapter.

The battayle of Josua wyth syue kynges.

And it fortuned, that when Jabin kyng of Hazor had herde those thynges: he sent to Jobab kyng of Gadd, & to the kyng of Shimron, & to the kyng of Achish, & vnto the kynges of the south in the mountaynes, & playnes toward the south syde of Cencroth, & in the lowe countreys: & in the borders of Dor westwarde, & vnto the Cananites, both by east and west and vnto the Amorites, Hetites, Hivites, & Jebusites in the mountaynes: & vnto the Hittites & were vnder Hermon in the lande of Byssa. And they came out & all theyr hostes with them, a multitude of folke, eue as the lande that is on the see wythe in a greete nombre wyth hostes & charettes exceeding many. And al these kynges met together, and came and pyched together at the waters of Meron, for to fyghte agaynst Israel.

And the Lord sayd vnto Josua: be not afrayde at the presence of these: for to morowe about this tyme will I deliuer them all slayne before thee: thou shalt hough theyr hostes, and burne their charettes with fyre. And so Josua came, and all the men of warre wyth hym agaynst them by the waters of Meron, and sodenly fell vpon upon them. And the Lorde deliuered them into the bande of Israel: and they smote them, and chased them vnto greete Sidon, and vnto the whot waters, and vnto the valeye of Euphrate whiche is Eastwarde: and smote them vntill they had none remaining of the. And Josua did vnto the, as the Lorde had him: he houghed their horses, and burnt they charrettes with fyre.

And Josua at that tyme turned backe, & toke Hazor, & smote the kyng therof with the swerde. And Hazor before tyme was the head of al those kyngdomes. And they smote all the soules that were therein with the edge of the swerde, vnterly destroyeng all: & nothyng that breatheth, was let remain. And he burnt Hazor with fyre. And all the cityes of those kynges, and all the kynges of the dyd Josua take, & smote the with the edge of the swerde, & vnterly destroyed the: as Moses the seruaut of the Lorde commaunded.

But Israel burnt none of the cyties that stode by in their strength, save Hazor only that Josua burnt. And all the spople of the sayd cyties and the catel, the chyldren of Israel caught vnto them selues. But the men onely they smote with the edge of the swerde vntill they had destroyed the, neyther left they ought that had breath. As the Lorde commaunded Moses his seruaut, so dyd Moses commaunde Josua, and euen so dyd Josua so that he mynyshed no word of all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And so Josua toke all the lande, the hylls and all the south countrey, and all the lande of Goshan, and the lowe countrey, and the playne, & the mountayne of Israel, and the lowe countrey of the same, euen from the mounte of partynge, that goeth vp to Seir vnto the playne of Gad in the valeye of Libanon, vnder mount Hermon. And al the kynges of the same he toke, and smote them. And he dwelt there.

Josua made warre longe tyme with those kynges: neyther was there any cite that made peace with the chyldren of Israel, save those heathenes that inhabited Gibeon, and therfore all other they toke with battayle, for it came of the Lorde, whych dyd harden theyr hartes that they shulde come agaynst Israel in battayle: & that they shulde destroye them vnterly, & leue them no merce, but to byngne them to nought: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And that same season came Josua, and destroyed the Enakites out of the mountaynes: namely out of Hebron, Dabir, Anab, and out of al the mountaynes of Iuda, and out of al the mountaynes of Israel. And Josua destroyed them vnterly, with their cyties. There was not one Enakite left in the lande of the chyldren of Israel, onely in Asab, & Seth, and Aloth, there remayned of them.

And Josua toke the hole lande, accordyng to all that the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, & Josua gaue it for a posselsion vnto Israel: accordyng to theyr partes & tribes: & the lande rested from warre.

Howe therfore deuyde thys lande to inherite, vnto the nyne trybes and the halfe tribe of Manasses. For wyth the other halfe the Rubenites and the Gadites haue receyued theyr inheritance, * which Moles gaue the beyonde Jordan eastwarde: eue as Moles the seruant of & Lozde gaue them, from Aroer that lyeth on the bym of the ryuer Arnon, & from the cite that is in the myddest of the ryuer. And all the playn of Medeba vnto Dibon, and all the ctytes of Sehon kynge of the Amoytes, whiche raygned in Helbon, euen vnto the border of the chyldren of Ammon: and Gilead, and the border of Geshur and Machati, and all mounte Hermon, wyth all Balan vnto Balcah: eue al the kyngdome of Og in Balan, which reigned in Aithareth and Edrai: whiche same remayned yet of the reste of the Gyauntes. ¶ The xliij. Chapter.

And these are the countreys whiche the chyldren of Israel inherited in the lande of Canaan, * which Eleazer the pryest, and Josua the sonne of Nun and the aunyent brades of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, distributed to them.

* By lotte they receyued theyr possessions, as the Lozde commaunded, by the hande of Moles, to gyue vnto the nyne trybes, and vnto the halfe trybe. For Moles had gyue inheritance vnto two trybes and an halfe, on the other syde Jordan. But vnto the Lewites he gaue none inheritance amonge them. * For the chyldren of Joseph were two trybes. Manasses and Ephraim. And therfore they gaue no parte vnto the Lewytes in the lande, saue ctytes to dwell in, with the suburbs of the same, for theyr bestes and cattell. * As the Lozde commaunded Moles: euen so the chyldren of Israel dyd whiche they deuoyded the land.

And the chyldren of Iuda came vnto Josua in Gilgal.

in Sigal. * And caled the sonne of Iephune the Benesite sayde vnto hym: thou wottest what s^t Loide sayd vnto Moses the ma^t of God, about my matter & thine in Cades Barne. * Fourtye yere olde was I when Moses the seruau^t of s^t Loide sent me from Cades barne to spy out the lande: And I brought hym word agayne cut as it was in myne herte. Neuerthelesse my bzethen that went vp with me, dyscourage^d the herte of the people. And I folowed the Loide God.

And Moses warr the same day: saying * the lande wheron thy fete haue trode, shal be thine enheritaunce & thy chyldrens for euer, by cause thou hast folowed the Loide God. And beholde, the Loide hath kepte me alpye (as he sayd): this fourtye & fyue yeres euen syns the Loide spake thys woide vnto Moses, while the chyldren of Israel wandred in the wyldernesse. And nowe lo I am thys daye fourtye and fyue yere olde: and yet am as stronge at thys tyme, as I was when Moses sent me: loke howe strong I was then, so stronge am I nowe, whether to go to warre, or to come agayne.

Now therfore gyue me this mo^taine wherof the Loide spake in that day, for thou hardest in that daie, howe the Enahims are there, and the cityes great and walled. Peradventure s^t Loide wyll be wyth me, & I shall be able to dyspue them out, as the Loide sayde. And Josua blessed him, and gaue vnto Caleb the sonne of Iephune, Hebzon to inherit: And Hebzon therfore became s^t enheritaunce of Caleb the sonne of Iephune the Benesite, vnto this day: by cause he folowed the Loide God of Israel. And the name of * Hebzon was called in old tyme, Kariath Arbe. For the same was a great man amonge the Enahims. And the lande ceased from warre.

The. xv. Chaptre.

The lotte of the chyldren of Iuda, and the names of the cytyes and vyllages of the same.

Thys was the lotte of the trybe of the chyldren of Iuda by theyr kynredes. Namely, toward the border of Edom in the wyldernesse of zin, southward, runn from the vtmost parte of the southe coaste. * And theyr south coaste was from the byrke of s^t salt see, fro a rocke that leaneth southward. And it wente out to the south syde towarde the cryng vp to Acrabim & went a long to zinna, and ascended vp on the south syde vnto Cades barne: and went along to hebron, and went vp to Adar, and fer a copasse to Karea. Fro thence went it a longe to zymon, and reached vnto the ryuer of Egypte and the ende of that coaste was on the weste syde. And this is theyr south coaste.

Theyr east coaste is the salt see, euen vnto the edge of Iordan. And theyr border in the north quarter was from the rocke of the see and from the edge of Iordan. And the same border went vp to Bethbagla, and went a long by the north syde of Betharabah, and vp from thence to the stene of Bohen the sonne of Rubi. And agayn, the same border went vp to Dabir from the valepe of Jez, and sonorthwarde, turnynge towarde Sigall, that lyeth befoze the goyng vp

And vnto Caleb the sonne of Iephune byd Josua gawe a parte amonge the chyldren of Iuda, accordynge to the mowth of the Loide, euen Kiriatharbe of the father of Enach, whiche cytye is hebron. And Caleb dyone there the thre sonnes of Enach, Serai, and Armai, and Chelamai, whiche were, the sonnes of Enach. And he went vp thence, to the inhabitaunces of Dabir. And the name of Dabir in s^t olde tyme was Kariathsephar. (That is a cytye of letters.) And Caleb sayde: * he that smyteth Kariathsephar, and taketh it: to hym wyll I gawe Asah my donghter to wyfe. And Othniel, the sonne of Henes, the brotper of Calid toke it. And he gaue hym Asah his donghter to wife: And as he wet in vnto him, he was moned of hi, to ask of her father a fride. And she a lyghted of her ass. And Caleb sayde vnto her, what ayleth the? Who answered: gyue me a bledynge: for thou hast geuen me a south (and drye) lande: geue me also spynges of water. And he gaue her spynges of water, both aboue & beneth. This is s^t enheritaunce of the trybe of s^t chyldren of Iuda by thei kynredes.

And the vtmost cities of the trybe of the chyldren of Iuda, toward s^t coastes of Edom southwarde were: Rahel, Eder, and Jagur: Kinah, Dimonah, and Adada: Kedesh, Hazor, and Iephnan: zeph, Telem & Baloth, Hazor, Hadarvay, Kariath hebron (whiche is Hazor) Eman, Sami, and Moladah: Hazargadah, Hasmon and Bethphreth: Hasar suai, Berseba, and Bazothab: Baalah, Jim, and Izen: Etcholah, Ecail, & Horma: zethlag Gede menah and Benfenah: Labaoth, Belhum, Ain and Rimou: al these cytyes are twentye and nyne with theyr vyllages. And in s^t lowe co^trye they had Ethpaol, Zartab & Atnah: zoneah, Engani, Thaphuah & Eni: Jarimuth, Adula, Bocoh, and Izhah: Daarem, Adithaim, Gederah, and Gederohaim: Fourtene cytyes wyth theyr vyllages.

Juda cast out. But the Jebusites dwell wyth

C The .xvi. Chapter.

C The lotte of parte of Ephraim.

And the lotte of the chyldren of Joseph selle from Jordan by Jericho, vnto the water of Jericho Enke-warde, and to the wyldernesse that goeth vp from Jericho thowowe out mounthe Bethel: and goeth out from Bethel to Lus, and runneth a longe vnto the borders of Arcimataroth: and goeth downe agayne westwarde euen to the coaste of Japhlethi, and vnto the coaste of Bethozon the nether, and to Saloj, and the endes of theyr coastes leaue at the west see. And so the chyldren of Joseph Wanal-les and Ephraim toke theyr inheritaunce.

And the border of the chyldren of Ephraim was by theyr kynred. Theyr border on the east syde, was: Ataroth, Idor, euen vnto Bethhoz the vpper, and went out westwarde to Wachmathah on the Northsyde, and returneth east-warde vnto Chaanath Selo, and pass it on the Eastsyde vnto Jonoah, & went downe from Jo-noah to Atharoth and Aaarath, & came to Jericho, & went oute at Jordan. And theyr border went from Thaphuah westwarde vnto the ryuer hanah, & the endes were of west see. Thys is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Ephraim by theyr kynredes. And the separate cyties for the chyldren of Ephraim, were among D of inheritaunce of the chyldren of Wanalles: eue the cyties wyth theyr byllages. And they haue not out the Cananites that dwell in Saloj: but the Cananites dwell among the Ephraimites vnto this daye, and serue vnder tribute.

C The .xvii. Chapter.

C The lotte of portyon of the halfe trybe of Manasses. The Ca-nanites are become tributaries to the Israelites. Manasses and Ephraim requyre a greater portyon of heritage.

And the lotte of the halfe trybe of Manasses, whych was the eldest sonne of Joseph. And Nachir the eldest sonne of Ma-nasses whych was the father of Gilead, who was a man of warre had Gilead and Basan.
Thys was the possession of the rest of the chyldren of Manasses by theyr kynredes: Namely, of the chyldren of Abiezzer: the chyldre of Helck the chyldren of Azriel: the chyldren of Sichem, the chyldren of Hepher: the chyldre of Semida:
for these were the male chyldren of Manasses, the sonnes of Joseph by theyr kynredes. * But Zelaphead the sonne of Hepher, the sonne of Gilead: sonne of Nachir, the sonne of Manasses, had no sonnes but daughters whose names are these: Ophela, Noa, Hagla, Melcha & Thirza: whych came befoze Eleazar the prest and be-foze Josua the sonne of Nun, and befoze the Lo-des saying: * the Lorde commaunded Moses to geue vs an inheritaunce amonge our byethren.
And therfore accordyng to the commaundement of the Lorde, he gaue the an inheritaunce among the byethren of theyr father. And there selle ten portions to Manasses, besyde the lande of Gilead and Basan, which is on the other syde Jo-dan, because the daughters of Manasses dyd enheret among his sonnes. And Manasses other sonnes, had the lande of Gilead.

And the coaste of Manasses was from Aser to Wachmathah that lyeth befoze Sichem & went a longe on the ryght hande, euen vnto the enhabiters of Entaphuah, & the lande of Thaphuah beloged to Manasses, which Thaphuah is besyde the border of Manasses, & besyde the bo-der of the chyldre of Ephraim. And the coast descended fro thence vnto the ryuer Canah southward eue to the ryuer of the cyties of Ephraim, & be-twene the cyties of Manasses. The coaste of Manasses went also on the northsyde to the ryuer, and the endes of it go out at the see, so that the south pertayned to Ephraim, and the north to Manasses, and the see is his border. And they mette together in Aser northwarde, and in Ila-car eastwarde. And Manasses had in Ilacar and in Aser, Bethsean, and her towne: Jibela, and hyr towne: and the inhabitours of Dor, wyth the towne pertaynyng to the same: and the inhabitours of Endor wyth the towne of the same: and the inhabitours of Chaanath wyth her towne: and the inhabitours of Wagedo wyth the towne of the same, euen the cy-ties. Yet the chyldren of Manasses coulde not ouercome those cyties. But the Cananites presumed to dwell in the same lande. Neuertheles, as lone as the chyldren of Israel were wared stronge, they put the Cananites vnder tribute, but expelled them not.

And the chyldre of Joseph spake vnto Josua sayinge:

layinge: why hast thou giuen me but one lotte and one porcyon to inherite, seing I am a great people, and for as moche as the Loyde hath blessed me by thyng. And Josua answered them: yf thou be moche people, then get the vp to the wood countrie, and prepare for thy selfe there in the lande of the phereyses and of the gyauntes, yf mount Ephraim be to narrowe for the. And the chyldre of Joseph sayd: The hill is not ynough for vs: and all the Cananites that dwell in the lower countrie haue charettes of yron, & so haue they that inhabite Bethlean, and the townes of the same, and they also that dwell in the valley of Jezrael. And Josua sayde vnto the house of Joseph, Ephraim, and Manasses: ye be moche people, and haue great power, and shall not therfore haue one lot. Therfore the hyl shall be yours and ye shall cut downe the wood that is in it: and the endes of it shall be yours, yf ye cast out the Cananites which haue yron charettes, and are very stronge.

The. viii. Chapter.

Certayne are sent to deuysen the lande to the other twen tybes. The lot of the chyldren of Ben Jamin.

AD the whole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israel came together at Silo and set vp the tabernacle of wytnesse there, & the lande was in subiection before them. And there remayned amonge the chyldren of Israel seuen tybes, which had not yet receyued theyr inheritaunce. And Josua sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: howe longe are ye so slacke to come & possesse the land which the Loyde God of your fathers hath giuen you? Spur out fro among you for euery tybe the men, that I maye send them And that they maye ryle and walke thowre the lande, and distribute it accordyng to the inheritaunce thereof, and come agayne to me.

B And let them deuysen it, vnto them into seuen partes. And Juda shall abyde in theyr coost on the south, and the house of Joseph shall stande in theyr coostes on the north. Describe ye the lande therfore into seuen partes, and byngye ye the description hyther to me & I shall cast lottes for you here before the Loyde our God. * But the Levites haue no part among you, for the priesthod of the Loyde is their inheritaunce. * And Gad & Ruben & halfe the tribe of Manasses haue receyued theyr inheritaunce beyonde Jordan eastwarde, which Moses the seruauit of the Loyde gaue them.

And the men arose, and went theyr waye. And Josua charged them & went to describe the land saying: departe, and go thowre the lande, and describe it, and come agayne to me, that I may here cast lottes for you before the Loyde in Silo.

And the men departed, & walked thowre the lande, and described it by cyties into seuen partes in a booke, and returned to Josua into the host at Silo. And Josua caste lottes for them in Silo before the Loyde, and there Josua deuysed the lande vnto the chyldren of Israel, to eche theyr porcyon: And the lotte of the tybe of the chyldren of Ben Jamin came vp accordyng to theyr kynredes. And the coost of theyr lotte came betwene the chyldren of Juda and the chyldren of Joseph. And theyr north coost was from Jordan, and went vp to the syde of Jericho on the northsyde, and went by thowre the mountaynes westwarde, and they ended at the wyldernesse of Bethauen: and went thence: toward Lus, euen to the south syde of Lus (the same is Bethel) and descended agayne to Artorbabar, vnto the hyl that lyeth on the south syde of the nether Bethozon. And the coost turneth thence and compasseth the corner of the see southward, euen from the hyl that lyeth before Bethozon southwarde, & goeth out at Kiriatbaal which is Kiriat Jarim a cite of the chyldren of Juda, this is the least quarter: and the south coost goeth from the edge of Kiriat Jarim, and goeth out westwarde, and thence it turneth to the water well of Sephedoah, and cometh downe agayne to the edge of the hyl, that lyeth before the valley of the sonne of Heunou, euen in the valley of the gyauntes northwarde and descended into the valley of Heunon besyde Jebus southwarde, and goeth downe to the well of Rogel, and compasseth from the Rogel, and goeth to the well of the sonne, and departed thence to the places of Gethse, which are toward the goinge vp vnto Adomin: and goeth downe to the stone of Bohan the sonne of Reuben: and then goeth alonge toward the syde of the playne northwarde: and goeth downe into the feldes: and goeth alonge to the syde of Bethbaglah northwarde, and endureth at the popnt of the salt see north therefrom, euen at the south ende of Jordan. This is the south coost.

And Jordan hepereth in this coost on the eastsyde, and this is the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Ben Jamin by theyr coostes rounde aboute thowout the kynredes. These were the cyties of the tybes of the chyldren of Ben Jamin thowout theyr kynredes: Jericho, Bethbaglah, and the playne of Hazzi: Betharabah, zamartin, & Bethel: Tim, Ibarah, and Ophrah: Chepar, Annuma, Ophni and Gabai, twelue cyties with theyr villages. Sibeon, Ramah, & Beeroth. Gazyphah, Caphtairah, & Hozah, Rehen, Jarephel, and Tharlah, zila, Eleph, and Jebus, which is Jerusalem, Gibeath, and Kiriat fourtene cyties with theyr villages. This is the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Ben Jamin thowout theyr kynredes.

The. xix. Chapter.

The lottes of partes of Zabulon, Issachar and Aser, Naphtali, Dan, and Josua.

AD the seconde lot came out for the tribe of the chyldre of Simeon by theyr kynredes. And theyr inheritaunce was in the middes of the inheritaunce of the chyldre of Juda. And they had in their inheritaunce, Bersabee, Beber, Holoah, Hazorhual, Balah & Izem, Eltholad, Bethul & Hozma, zikelag, Bethmaraboth & Hattulnah, Berthebooth, and Haruden. xiii. cyties with theyr villages. Tim, Remon, Ether, and Alan, foure cyties with theyr villages, and then to all the villages that were rounde aboute these cyties, euen vnto Balaath, Beoz, and Ramath southward.

southward. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Simeon who went out they hundred. Out of the lot of the children of Simeon, came the inheritance of the children of Simeon. For the parts of the children of Simeon was to much for them: therefore the children of Simeon had their inheritance in the inheritance of them.

15 And the eighth lot came out for the children of Zabulon who went out they hundred. And the coast of their inheritance came to Warid, and went up westward, and to Marialah, and reached to Dabath, and came thence to the river that lyeth before Johnen: and turned from Warid eastward towards the sunne rising into the border of a hill called Chabor: and then goeth out to Dabath, and goeth up to Japhia: and from thence goeth along eastward, to Bethab, Jepper, Jthab and Jasin, and goeth to Remo, Westward, and Neob. And compasseth it on the north side to Harthan, and endeth in the valley of Jephthabel. And Jorash, Rahol, Hermon, Jedalah, and Berheh: twelve cities with they villages. This is the inheritance of the children of Zabulon who went out they hundred, and these are the cities with they villages.

And the fourth lot came out for the children of Issachar by they hundred. And their coast was Jezarab, Caluloch, and Muen. Hapharaim, Hion, and Anaparath: Harabith Hylon, and Abey: Rameth, Euganim, Enbadah, and Bethphaz. And his coast reacheth to Chabor, and Sabazimah and Bethlames, and endeth at Jordan: twelve cities with they villages. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Issachar by they hundred. And these are the cities with they villages.

And the fifth lot came out for the tribe of the children of Aser by they hundred. And their coast was: Helath, Hali, Beten, and Achlap: Hamelach, Amad and Hiseal: and came to Carmel westward, and to Shihoy, Labanath, and turned towards the sunne rising to Bethdagon, and cometh to zabulon and to the vale of Jephthabel, toward the north side of Berhemeh and Segel, and goeth out on the fifth side of Gabul: and to Hebron, Rohob, Ramon, and Hanah, even unto great Sidon. And then the coast turneth to Ramah and to the stronge citie of Joz, and turneth to Hozab, and endeth at the sea, by the possession of Achizab: A mah also and Aphel and Rohob: Twenty and two cities with they villages. This is the inheritance of the children of Aser by they hundred: These are the cities with they villages.

And the sixth lot came out for the children of Reuben by they hundred. And their coast was from Heleph and from Elom to Jaanaim: Idami, Beheb and Jabner, even to Lahum, and doth go out at Jordan. And then the coast turneth westward to Manoth Chabor, and then goeth out from thence to Hukohab, and reacheth to zabulon on the south side, and goeth to Aser on the west side, and to Juda upon Jordan towards the sunne rising. And their stronge cities are Zibin, zer, Hamath, Karah and Cenereth, Idamab, Hermah and Hazor, Kedesh, Edrai, and Endazor: Jeron, Magdel, Beorn, Bethanah and Bethlames, twelve cities with they villages. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Reuben by they hundred: these also are the cities and they villages.

And the seventh lot came out for the tribe of the children of Dan by they hundred. And the coast of their inheritance was: sarah, Esdai, and Israhel, and Bethlabin, Aial, Jethlah, Egion, and Chénathab, and Aharon, Eltharab, Gibeth, and Baalath, Jethub, Banebarah, and Sathermon, Weiricon and Tarcon, to the border that lyeth before Japho. And the coast of the children of Dan went out from thence. And the children of Dan went up to fight against Leshan, and took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and conquered it, and dwelt therein, and called it *Dan after the name of Dan they father.

This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Dan in their hundred: these also are the cities with they villages. When they had made an end of drudging land by her coast the children of Israel gave an inheritance unto Iosua the son of Nun among them, according to the worde of the Lord they gave him the citie which he asked, and *Chénah Serah in mount Ephraim. And he buile the citie and dwelt therein. These are the inheritances whiche Eleazar the priest, and Iosua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel drugged by lot in Siloh before the Lord in the doze of the tabernacle of testimony, and so they made an end of drudging the countrey.

Chapter xx.

The cities of refuge as Iosua sayeth.

1 The Lord also spake unto Iosua, saying: speake to the children of Israel, and saye: Appoynt out from among you cities of refuge, wherof I spake unto you by the hande of Moses, that the hear that killeth any person unwares and unwytingly, maye flye thither. And those cities shal be your refuge from the auenger of bloude. And he shal flye unto one of those cities. And he shal stand at the entryng of the gate of the citie, and shall shewe his cause in the eares of the elders of the citie. And they shal take hym into the citie unto them, and geue hym a place, that he maye dwell amonge them.

And if the auenger of bloude followe after him, they shal not deliuer the hear into his hand because he smote his frende ignorantly, and hated hym not before tyme.

And he shal dwell in the sayde citie vntill he stande before the congregacion in iudgement, and vntill the death of the dyer. And he shal be in those dayes: for then shal the hear retouerne, and come vnto his owne cuntry, and vnto his owne house, and vnto the citie from whence he fled. And they sanctified Kedesh in Galile in mounte Reuben, and Sichem in mount Ephraim, and Hebron in Iuda. And on the other side Jordan ouer against Jericho eastward, they appointed Bozoz in the wyldernesse vpon the playne, oute of the trybe of Ruben: and Ramoth in Gilead, oute of the trybe of Gad: and Solan in Basan, oute of the trybe of Manasses. These were f cyties appoynted for al the chyldre of Israel, and for the straungers that sojourned amonge them, that whosoeuer kyled any person ignorantly, the same myght slye thither, and shidenot dye by the hande of the auenger of blood, vntill he rode before the congregacion.

The xxi Chapter.

The cyties gauen to the Leuites, in number, cyties.

And then came the principall fathers of f Leuites vnto Eleazar the prest and vnto Josua the son of Nun, and vnto the auenger of blood, and they spake vnto them at Shiloh the land of Canaan, saying: the Lord commaunded by Moses, to geue vs cyties to dwell in, with suburbs therof, for our cattell. And the chyldre of Israel gaue vnto the Leuites, oute of theyr inheritaunce at the byddyng of the Lorde these cyties folowynge with theyr suburbs.

And the lotte came out for f hyndred of the Cabathites: and the chyldren of Aaron the prest, which were of the Leuites, had gauen them by lotte, oute of the trybe of Juda, oute of the tribe of Simeon, and oute of f tribe of Ben Jamin. xii. cyties. And the rest of the chyldren of Cabath had by lot, oute of f hyndredes of f trybe of Ephraim oute of the trybe of Dan, and oute of the halfe trybe of Manasses: ten cyties. And f chyldre of Gerson had by lotte oute of the hyndredes of the trybe of Machar, and oute of the trybe of Aser, oute of the tribe of Asephthal, and oute of the other halfe tribe of Manasses in Basan: thretyene cyties. And the chyldren of Merari theyr hyndredes, had oute of the trybe of Ruben, and oute of the trybe of Gad and oute of the trybe of Zabulon, twelue cyties. And the chyldren of Israel gaue by lotte vnto the Leuites these cyties with theyr suburbs, as the Lorde commaunded by Moses.

And they gaue oute of the tribe of the chyldren of Juda, and oute of the trybe of the chyldren of Simeon, these cyties by name whiche the chyldren of Aaron being of the hyndredes of the Cabathites, and of the chyldren of Levi, obteyned for theyr was the first lotte.

And they gaue them Kariatih Arbe of f father of Enah (which is Hebzon) in the hyl countrey of Juda, with the suburbs of the same rounde aboute it. But the lande that pertayned to the cite, and the byllages therof, gaue they to Caleb the sonne of Jephune to be his possession.

And thus they gaue to the chyldren of Aaron the prest, a cytie to the wyche the slayer myght slye: euen Hebzon with her suburbs: Libna with her suburbs, and Jathir with her suburbs, and Estimon and her suburbs, Holon with her suburbs, Dabir with her suburbs, Am with her suburbs: Iudah with her suburbs: Bethsamah with her suburbs, nyne cyties oute of those two trybes. And oute of the trybe of Ben Jamin they gaue Gibeon with her suburbs: Gaba with her suburbs, Anathoth with her suburbs: Almon with her suburbs: fourte cyties. All these cyties of the chyldren of Aaron prestes, were thretyene cyties with theyr suburbs. And the hyndredes of the chyldren of Cabath that were Leuites: that is to saye, the other chyldren of Cabath, had cyties gauen for theyr lotte, oute of the trybe of Ephraim. For they gaue them the cytie that the slayer myght slye vnto: Sichem with her suburbs, in mount Ephraim: and Gazer with her suburbs: and Kithaim with her suburbs: and Bethoron with her suburbs: fourte cyties.

And vnto the chyldren of Gerson which were of f hyndredes of the Leuites, they gaue oute of f other halfe tribe of Manasses, f cytie of refuge for the slayer: Solan in Basan with her suburbs, and Beitherah with her suburbs: two cyties. And oute of the trybe of Machar, Kysyon with her suburbs: and Daberah with her suburbs, and Jarimoth with her suburbs: Engannim with her suburbs, fourte cyties. And oute of the trybe of Aser, Qisai with her suburbs, Abob with her suburbs, Holahash with her suburbs, and Robob with her suburbs, fourte cyties. And oute of the trybe of Asephthal, the cytie for the slayer to slye vnto: Kedesh in Galile with her suburbs: and Hamothdoy with her suburbs: and Carthan with her suburbs: thre cyties. All the cyties of the Gersonites thretye without their hyndredes, were. xiii. cyties with theyr suburbs.

And vnto the other hyndredes of the chyldren of Merari, the rest of the Leuites, they gaue oute of the trybe of Zabulon: Iecnam with her suburbs: and Carthah with her suburbs: Danna with her suburbs, and Mahalal with her suburbs: fourte cyties. And oute of the trybe of Dan, Bozoz with her suburbs, and Jabelah with her suburbs: Iedimoth with her suburbs, and Napthaath with her suburbs: fourte cyties.

And oute of the trybe of Gad they gaue the cytie for the slayer to slye vnto: Ramoth in Gilead with her suburbs, and Mahanaim with her suburbs, Hesbon with her suburbs: and Jaser with her suburbs, fourte cyties in all, so that all the cyties of the chyldren of Merari thretye without their hyndredes (whiche were the rest of the hyndredes of the Leuites) were by theyr lotte, twelue cyties. And all the cyties that the Leuites had amonge the possession of the chyldren of Israel were. xlviii. with theyr suburbs. And these cyties laye euery one severallye, haunginge theyr suburbs rounde about them thretye without all the sayde cyties. And the Lorde gaue vnto Israel al the lande which he swore to geue vnto theyr fathers. And they conquered it, and dwelt therein. And the Lorde gaue them rest rounde about accordynge to all that he swore vnto theyr fathers: and there stode not a man of all they: en-mies before them. The Lorde also deliuered al they: enemyes into they: handes. * There sca-ped nothyng of all the good chynges, whiche the Lorde had sayde vnto the house of Israel.

But all came to passe.

The xxii. Chapter.

Ruben, Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasse are sent agayne to they: possessions. They buyde an aulter for a memoriall.

3 Then Josua called vnto the Ruben-ites, the Gaddites, and to y^e halfe tribe of Manasses, and sayd vnto them: * ye haue kept alle that Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded you, & haue obeyed my voyce in al that I commaunded you, ye haue not left your brethren of a longe season vnto this daye, but haue kept the commaundment of the Lorde your God.

And now that the Lorde hath gyuen rest vnto your brethren as he p^romysed them, therfore returne ye and go to youre tentes, and vnto the land of your possession, which Moses & seruaunt of the Lorde gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

But in anye wyse take diligent heed, and do the commaundment and lawe, whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde charged you: * that ye loue the Lorde your God, and walke in al his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, and cleaue vnto hym, and serue hym with all youre vertes and all your soules. And so Josua blessed them and sent them awaye. And they went vnto they: tentes.

25 Vnto the one halfe of the tribe of Manasses Moses gaue the possession in Basan: and vnto the other halfe therof gaue Josua amonge their brethren on this syde Jordan westwarde. And Josua sent them a waye also vnto they: tentes, and blessed them, and sayde vnto them: returne with moche riches vnto your tentes, and wyth a greate multitude of cattell, with syluer and golde, with brasse and yron, and with moch rap-ment, and * deuyde the spoyle of your enemyes, wyth your brethren.

And the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, returned and departed from the chyldren of Israel out of Siloh: whych is in the lande of Canaan) to go vnto the countrie of Gilead to the lande of they:
possession whych they had obteyned, accordyng to the word of the Lord by the hande of Moses.
And whē they came vnto the place of Geliloth besyde Jordan (that is in the lande of Canaan) there the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses, buyde an aultare fast by Jordane, and that a great altare to se to. Whiche whē the chyldren of Israel hearde of, they sayde: beholde, the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Ma-nasses haue buyde an aulter in the forefront of y^e lande of Canaan euē in Geliloth besyde Jordan on the syde of y^e chyldren of Israel. And whē the chyldren of Israel hearde of it, the whole cogregacyon of the chyldren of Israel gathered them togyther at Siloh to make battell agaynst them. And the chyldren of Israel sent vnto the chyldren of Ruben and to the chyldren of Gad, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses into the land of Gilead, whiche the sonne of Elazar the prieist, and wyth hym ten laydes, of euery chiefe house a layde, they rownt all the trybes of Israel, which were heedes of they: fathers householdes amonge the thousandes of Israel. And they wente vnto the chyldren of Ruben, and to the chyldren of Gad, and to the chyldren of the halfe tribe of Manasses, vnto the lande of Gilead, and they spake wyth them, sayinge.

Thus sape the hole congregacyon of the Lorde
* what transgression is this that ye haue transgressed agaynst y^e God of Israel, to turne away this daye from the Lorde, in that ye haue buy-de an aulter for to rebel this daye agaynst the Lorde. Is the * wyched dede of Deor to lytle for vs, whereof we are not yet cleansed vnto this daye, and for the whych there was in the congregacyon of the people a plague of the Lorde ye also are touned awaye this daye from the Lorde. And seinge ye rebel todaye agaynst the Lorde, it wyll come to passe, that tomorrow he shalbe wyth wyth alle the congregacyon of Israel. Notwithstandyng if ye thynke, that the lande of your possession is vncleane, then come ouer vnto the lande of the possession of the Lord wherē the Lordes Tabernacle dwelleth, and take possession amonge vs. But transgresse not agaynst the Lord, nor prouche vs to buyde you any other aulter, save the aulter of the Lord oure God. * Wd not Acan the sonne of Zareth trespasse in the excommunicate thyng, & watsh fell on all the congregacyon of Israel, whych notwithstandyng that he was but one man, yet he alone perished not for his wychednesse.

Then the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses answered, and sayd vnto the heedes ouer the thousandes of Israel: The God of goddes, the Lorde God of Goddes, euen the Lord he knoweth, and also shal Israel knowe. If it be to rebell, or to transgresse agaynst the Lorde, that thou Lorde saue vs not this daye. Or els yf we haue buyde vs an aulter to returne fro solowynge y^e Lorde, or to offere thereon burnt offerynges, or meate offerynges, or to offere peace offerynges thereon: let the Lorde requyre it, & (and iudge). And yf we haue not rather done it of a carelesnesse & of a sure occasyn, sayinge: In tyme to come your chyldren myght sape vnto oures: what haue ye to doo wyth the Lorde God of Israel: the Lorde hath made Jordan a baryere betwene vs and you (ye chyldren of Ruben and of Gad) ye haue no part therfore in the Lorde: and so shal your chyldren make oure chyldren reasse from fearyng the Lorde.

Therefore we & (take better aduysment and) sayde:
We wyll make vs an aulter, not for burnt offerynges, nor for sacrificies, but for a * wytnesse be-twene us & you, & oure generacions after vs, & we shoulde serue the Lorde, wyth our offerynges, sacrificies and peace offerynges before hym: & that your chyldren shoulde not sape to oures in tyme

time to come: ye haue no parte in the Loyde.

Therefore sayde we, that ye shoulde so saye to vs: as to ouer generacions in time to come, y we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the falspon of the aulter of the Loyde, which our fathers made not for burnt offerings, but for a witness betwene vs and you, God forsyd, that we shoulde rebell agaynst the Loyde, and turne this daye from after hym, and buyde any other aulter for burnt offerings, oblations, or sacrifices, save the aulter of the Loyde our God, that is before vs tabernacle.

And when Phinehes the priest, and the lordes of the congregacyon & herdes ouer the thousandes of Israel which were with hym, heard these wordes that the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Manasses spake, they were wel content. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the priest sayde vnto the chyldren of Ruben and to the chyldren of Gad, and to the chyldren of Manasses, this daye we perceyue, that the Loyde is amonge vs, because ye haue not done this trespass agaynst the Loyde: Howe ye haue rydde the chyldren of Israel out of the hande of the Loyde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the priest with the lordes returned from the chyldren of Ruben, and from the chyldren of Gad out of the lande of Gilead, vnto the lande of Canaan, to the chyldren of Israel, and brought them this word agayne. And the saying pleased the chyldren of Israel, and they blessed God, & yd not entende to go agaynst them in battell, and to destroy the lande whiche the chyldren of Ruben and Gad dwelt in. And the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad called the aulter: Our witness that the Loyde is God.

The xxiii. Chapter.

Josua exhorteth the people, that they shoulde not turne from the Lawe.

After that the Loyde had gyuen rest vnto Israel from all theyr enemies rounde aboute, that Josua waxed olde, and was strycken in age. And Josua called for al Israel, and for theyr elders, theyr herdes, theyr iudges and officers, & sayde vnto them: I am olde and strycken in age.

And ye haue seene all that the Loyd your God hath done vnto all these nacjons before you, howe the Loyde your God hath fought for you. Beholde, I haue subdued vnto you these nacjons that remaine, to be an inheritaunce for your tribes: euen from Jordan, & from the lande of all the nacjons that I haue destroyed, euen vnto the great see westwarde. (And there remaine yet many nacjons.) And the Loyde your God shall expel them before you, and cast the from out of your syde, and ye shall conquere theyr lande, as the Loyde your God hath sayd vnto you.

So to therfore as strongly as ye may, that ye take hede & do all that is wyrtten in the booke of the lawe of Moyses, & that ye do not aspyde therefrom, to the ryght hande or to the left: and lest that when ye come amonge these nacjons, (euen among these that are left to you) ye make mencion or sweare by the names of theyr goddes: & that ye neither letue them nor bowe your selues vnto them. But that ye stycke fast vnto the Loyde your God, as ye haue done vnto this daye. So shall the Loyde caste out before you greute nacjons and myghtye, as no man hath bene able to stande before you hitherto.

* One man of you shal chase a thousand: for the Loyd your God be syghthe for you, as he hath promysed you. Take good hede therfore vnto your selues, that ye loue the Loyde your God.

Elis, if ye go backe and cleaue vnto the rest of these nacjons that remaine with you, and shal make maryages with the, and go vnto them, and they to you: be ye sure, that the Loyde your God wyl nomore caste out all these nacjons from before you. * But they shal be snares and trappes vnto you, and scourges in youre sydes, and thornes in youre eyes, vntill ye persythe from of this good lande, whiche the Loyd your God hath gyuen you.

And beholde, this day do I enter into the way of all the world, and ye knowe in all your herites and in all your soules, that nothynge hath sayled of all the good thynges which the Loyde your God promysed you: But all are come to passe, and nothynge hath sayled therof. Therefore as all good thynges are come vpon you, whiche the Loyde your God promysed you, so shall the Loyde hyng vpon you all euyl, vntill he haue destroyed you fro of this good lande, whiche the Loyde your God hath gyuen you, when ye haue transgressed the appoyntment of the Loyde your God, whiche he commaunded you: & haue gone, & serued straunge goddes, and bowed your selues to them. Then shal the wrath of the Loyd waxe whore vpon you, and ye shall persythe quike liue from of the good land which he hath gyuen you.

The xxiiii. Chapter.

Josua exhorteth the people to the keeping of the lawe. He dyeth. The bones of Joseph are buryed.

And Josua gathered all the tribes of Israel to Sichem, and called for the elders of Israel, and for theyr herdes, iudges and officers, & they presented them selues before God.

And Josua sayd vnto all the people: thus sayeth the Loyde God of Israel: * your fathers dwelt on the other syde of the floude in olde tyme: euen Thareth the father of Abrahams, and of Nachor, and serued straunge goddes.

And I toke your father Abrahams from the other syde of the floude, and brought hym thoroughout all the lande of Canaan, and multiplied his seed, and gaue hym Isaac.

And I gaue vnto Isaac, Jacob & Esau: And I gaue vnto Esau mounte Seir, to possesse it. But Jacob & his chyldren went down into Egypt.

I sent Moyses also & Aaron. And I plagued Egypt: & when I had so done amonge them, I brought you out, & I brought your fathers out of Egypt. And as they came vnto the see, the Egyptians folowed after your fathers with charrettes & horsemen vnto the Red see. * And when they cried

erped vnto f Lozbe, the Lozbe put darkness betweene you and the Egyprians, and broughte the set vnto them, and covered them. And your eyes haue seene what I haue done to the Egyprians.
And ye dwelt in the wilderness a longe season.
And I broughte you into f land of the Amoi-tes, which dwelt on f other syde Jordan. And they fought with you: I gaue them into your hand, that ye might requere they couerite. And I destroyed them from out of your syght.

* Then Balak the sonne of Zipho: kynge of Moab arose and warred agaynst Israel, & sent and called Balak the sonne of Beor: for to curse you. But I wolde not hearken vnto Balak, and therfore he rather blessed you: And so I deliuerred you out of his hand. And ye went ouer Jordane, and came vnto Jericho, and the men of Jericho fought agaynst you: the Amozites, where sires, Cananites, hethtes, Girsomites, Henites and Jebusites, and I deliuered them into your hande. And I sent x hoynettes before you, which cast them out of your syght: euen the two kynges of the Amozites: but not with your owne swearde or with your owne bowe. And I haue gyuen you a lande, in whiche ye dyd not labour, and cyties whiche ye buylte not, and whiche ye dwel in: vineyardes also and oliue trees which ye planted not, and wherof ye do eate.

* Now therfore feare the Lozbe, and serue him in perfectnesse and truthe: And put awaye the goddess, which your fathers serued on the other syde of the floude, and in Egypte, and serue ye f Lozbe. And yf it seme euyl vnto you to serue the Lozbe, then chofe you this daye whome ye wyl serue, whether the goddess whiche your fathers serued (that were on the other syde of the floude) eyther the goddess of the Amozites, in whose lande ye dwell. As for me and my house, we wyl serue the Lozbe.

D

The people answered and sayde: God forsyd, that we shulde forsake the Lozbe, & serue strange goddess. For f Lozbe our God, he it is f brought vs and our fathers out of the lande of Egypte, and from the house of bandage, and whiche dyd those greete myracles in our syght, & preserued vs in all the waye that we went, and among al the nacjons whiche we came thowre. And the Lozbe dyd caste oute before vs all the nacjons, specially the Amozites which dwelt in the land.
And therfore wyl we also serue the Lozbe, for he is our God.

And Josua sayde vnto the people. Ye can not serue f Lozbe: for he is an holpe God, & a gelous God, & can not beare your iniquitie & synne. Yf ye forsake the Lozbe & serue strange goddess, * he wyl turne & do you euyl, & consume you, after vnto Josua: naye, but we wyl serue the Lozbe:

And Josua sayde vnto the people: ye are wytnesses your selues, that ye haue chosen you the Lozbe, to serue him: and they sayde: we are wytnesses. Then put a waye (sayd he) the strange goddess which are amonge you, and bowe your bettes vnto the Lozbe God of Israel. The people sayde vnto Josua: the Lozbe oure God wyl we serue, and his voyce wyl we obeye. And so Josua * made a couenaunte with the people the same daye, and set an ozydynaunce and lawe be-foze them in Sichem.

And Josua wrote these wordes in the booke f of the lawe of God, and toke a great stone, and pyched it on ende in the sayde place, euen vnder an oke that was in the sanctuarie of the Lozbe.
And Josua sayd vnto the people: behold: * this stone shalbe a wytnesse vnto vs, for it hath herd all the wordes of the Lozbe which he spake with vs. It shalbe therfore a wytnesse vnto you, lest ye deny: * (and dytchable word) your God. And so Josua let the people departe, euerye man vnto hys enherytance.

The first Chapter.

After Joshua was dead, Juda was conditute layde ouer the armye.

After the death of Joshua, it came to passe, that the chyldren of Israel asked of the Lorde saying: who shall go vp for vs agaynst the Cananites, and who shall fyght agaynst them? And the Lorde sayd: Juda shall go vp, & behold. I haue deliuered the land into his handes. And Juda sayd vnto Simeon his brother: come vp with me in my lot, & we may fyght agaynst the Cananites: And I wyll go with you into thy lotte. And so Simeon went with him.

And Juda went vp, and the Lorde deliuered the Cananites and Hiriites into their handes. And they slew of them in Bezek ten thousand men. And they founde Adonibezek in Bezek. And they fought agaynst him, and slew the Cananites, and Hiriites. But Adonibezek fled, and they folowed after hym, & caught him, & cut of his thymbes and his greate toes. And Adonibezek sayd: the thorne and ten hynges haueynge they thymbes and greate toes cut of, gathered they meat vnder my table: & as I haue done, so God hath done to me agayne. And they brought hym to Ierusalem, and there he dyed.

The chyldren of Juda fought agaynst Ierusalem, and toke it: and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and set the cytie on fyre. Afterwarde the chyldren of Juda went to fyght agaynst the Cananites, that dwelt in the mountayne, & towarde the south, & in the lowe countrey. And Juda went agaynst the Cananites that dwelt in Hebron, whiche before tyme was called Cariath Arbe. And slewe Safai. Thiman & Chalmat. And from thence they went to the inhabitants of Dabie, whose name in old tyme was called Cariathsepher, (that is a cytie of letters.)

And Caleb sayde: he that smyth Cariathsepher, and taketh it, to hym wyll I gyue Asaph my daughter to wyfe. And Orhomiel the sonne of Kenes Calebs yonger brother toke it, to whome he gave Asaph his daughter to wyfe, & as they went, he counseled hym to aske of her father a feide. And then he lyghted of her asse: and Caleb sayde vnto her: What ayleth thee? she answered vnto hym, gyue me a blessing: for thou hast gyuen me a southwarde (or dyne) land: gyue me also springes of water. And Caleb gave her springes both aboue and beneth. And the chyldren of the Beniamite, Moses father in lawe went vp out of the cytie of palmertrees, with the chyldren of Juda into the wyldernesse of Juda, that lyeth in the south of Ierad, and they went and dwelt amonge the people.

And Juda went with Simeon his brother, and they slewe the Cananites that inhabited Zephath, and vnto the d: dropedit, & called the name of the cytie Hoima. And at the laste Juda toke Ierad with the coostes therof, and Ierhalon with the coostes therof. And Ierhalon with the coostes therof. And the Lorde was w Juda, & he conquered the mountaynes, but coulde not dryue out the inhabitants of the valeys, because they had charettres of yb. And they gave Hebron vnto Caleb, as Moses sayd. And he expelled thence the thre sonnes of Enak.

And the chyldren of Beniamin dyd not cast out the Jebusites, that inhabited Ierusalem, but the Jebusites dwell with the chyldren of Beniamin in Ierusalem vnto this daye.

And in lyke maner they that were of the house of Joseph went vp to Bethel, & the Lorde was with the, & the house of Joseph searched out Bethel which before tyme was called Lus. And the spyessawe a man come out of the cytie, and they sayd vnto hym: the we vs the way into the cytie, & we wyll shewe the mercepe. And wher he had shewed them the waye into the citie, they smote it with the edge of the swerde, but let the man and all his household go free. And the man went into the landes of the Hethites, and buyt a cytie, and called the name therof Lus, whych is the name therof vnto this daye.

Reppher dyd Danasse expell Bethseam with her townes. Chaanach with her townes, the inhabitants of Doi with her townes, the inhabitants of Iebalaam with her townes, neppher the inhabitants of Mazedo with her townes: but the Cananites were bolde to dwell in the lande. But it came to passe, that assoone as Israel was waxed myghtye, they put the Cananites to tribute, and expelled them not.

In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not the Cananites that dwelt in Gazer, but the Cananites dwelt still in Gazer amonge them.

Reppher dyd Zabulon expell the inhabitants of Ictron, neppher the inhabitants of Rabalol: But the Cananites dwelt amonge them, and became tributaries.

Reppher dyd Isser cast out the inhabitants of Icho, neppher the inhabitants of Zidon, and Ihalab, Iezib, and Halbah, Aphek, Aze of Robob, but the Herytes dwelt amonge the Cananites the inhabitants of the lande, for they myght not dryue them out.

Reppher dyd Repphalim dryue out the inhabitants of Bethseam, not the inhabitants of Bethseam.

Bethanath, but dwelt amongst the Canaanites the enbaptours of the lande. Neuerthelesse the enbaptours of Bethanath and of Bethanath became tributaries vnto them.

And the Amozites troubled the chyldren of Dan in the mountayne, and suffered them not to come downe to the vallepe. And the Amozites were content to dwell in mount heres ^(which is by interpretyng, a byrmyng) in hailon and in Dalabim. And the bande of Joseph persuaded, so that they became tributaries: and the cooste of the Amozites was from the goinge up to Arahim, and from the rocke ywarde.

The .ii. Chapter.

The angell rebuketh the people, because they had made peace with the Canaanites, yea: as they are punished.

Ad the angell of the Lorde came up from Sugil to Bochim, & sayd: I made you to go out of Egypte: & have brought you vnto the lande which I swate vnto your fathers.

* And I sayd: I wyl not breake myne appoyntment that I made vnto you. And ye also shal make no couenaunt wth the enbaptours of this land, but shal breake downe their altiers. Neuerthelesse, ye haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, why haue ye this done? Wherefore, I haue yher wyse determined, that I wyl not cast the out before you: but they shal be thornes vnto you, and their goddes shal be a snare vnto you. And when the angell of the Lorde spake these wordes vnto al the chyldren of Israel, the people cryed oute, and wepte: And called the name of the place place:

In a place of faste as Iuda.

* Bochim, and offered sacrifices vnto the Lorde.

And when Josua had sene the people at wape, the chyldren of Israel went euery man into his enperisaunce to possesse the lande. * And the people serued the Lorde all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the eldres that outliued Josua, and had sene all the great workes of the Lorde that he dyd for Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun the seruante of the Lorde & dyed, when he was an hundred and ten yeres olde: whome they buryed in the coostes of his enperisaunce: euen in Chamath hares in mounte Ephraim on the northsyde of the hill Gaas. And euen so at that generacyon were put vnto they fathers, and there arose an other generacio after them which neyther knewe the Lorde, nor yet the workes, whiche he had done for Israel.

And then the chyldren of Israel dyd wychehly in the syght of the Lorde, and serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lorde God of they fathers, which brought them out of the land of Egypt, and folowed straunge goddes, euen of the goddes of the nacyons that were rounde about the, and bowed them selues vnto them, and angered the Lorde. They forsoke the Lorde, and serued Baal and Astaroth, and the wyath of the Lorde waxed whor agaynst Israel, and he deliuered them into the handes of raueners: that spoyled them, and solde them into the handes of they enemyes rounde aboute them, so that they had no power any longer to stande before they enemyes. But whither soeuer they wente oute, the bande of the Lorde was agaynst them with euyl lucke, euen as the Lorde promysed them, & as he swate vnto them. And he punished them soze.

Neuerthelesse, the Lorde raised up Judges, whiche deliuered them out of the handes of they oppressers, & yet for all that they wolde not herken vnto their Judges: But rather tolt a whozyng after straunge goddes, and bowed them selues vnto them, and turned quychly out of the wape which their fathers walked in, obeying the commaundementes of the Lorde: But they did not so.

And when the Lorde raised them up Judges, he was with the Judge, and deliuered them out of the bande of they enemyes all the dayes of the Judge: for the Lorde had compassion ouer they sorrownges, whiche they had, by the reason of them that oppressed them and deryed the: yet for all that as lone as the iudge was deed, they turned, & dyd worse then they fathers, in folowynge straunge goddes, and in scrupnge them, and creald not from they owne inuencyons, nor from they malicious wape.

And the wyath of the Lorde was moued agaynst Israel, and he sayd: because this people harthe transgressed myne appoyntment which I commaunded they fathers, and haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, I wyl henceforth not cast oute before the one man of the nacyons, whiche Josua leste when he dyed, that thoughte them I wape * proue Israel, whether they wyl hepe the wape of the Lorde, and walke therein, as they fathers dyd or not. And so the Lorde leste those nacyons, and dyone them not oute immediately, neyther deliuered them into the bande of Josua.

The .iii. Chapter.

Othniel deliuereth Israel. Alhud syneth byngs agayn. Samgar syneth the Philistines.

These are the nacyons which the Lorde left, that he myght proue Israel by the: euen as many of Israel as had not knowen all the warres of Canaan. Onely for the lernynge of the generacion of the chyldren of Israel: that he also myght teache them warre, in asmoche as they that were before them, knewe nothing thereof. Of those whom he left, there were syue lordes of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, and the Sodomites, and the heuites & dwelt in mount Libanon: euen from mount Baal Hermon vnto Hemath. Those remayned to proue Israel by, & to wete, whether they wolde hearken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde, whiche he commaunded they fathers by the bande of Moses.

And the chyldren of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, hebytes, Amozites, wherehytes, heuites, & Jebusites, & toke the daughters of the tobe their wyues, & gaue they owne daughters to they sonnes, & serued they goddes. And the chyldren of Israel dyd wickedly in the syght of the Lorde, & forgoat the Lorde they God, and serued Baalim and Astaroth. Therefore the Lorde was angrey wth Israel, and deliuered the into the handes of Chusan Rishathaim kynge of Mesopotamia.

of Mesopotamia, and the children of Israel learned Chusan Rishaim. viii. peres.

And when the child of Israel cried vnto the Lord, the Lord stirred up a saviour, to the child of Israel, & saved them: one Othniel the sonne of Kenes, Gileads younger brother. And the spirit of the Lord came vpon hym. And he iudged Israel & went out to war. And the Lord deliuered Chusan Rishaim kynge of Mesopotamia into his hand, & his hand preuailed agaynst Chusan Rishaim. And the lande had rest forty peres, & Othniel the sonne of Kenes dyed. And the children of Israel went to agayne, and committed wickednes in the sight of the Lord. And the Lord strengthened Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, agaynst the children of Israel, because they had committed wickednes before the Lord. And this Eglon gathered vnto the him children of Ammon, and the Amalechites, and went and smote Israel, and conquered the cite of palmestrees. And so the children of Israel serued Eglon the kynge of Moab egypten peres. But whē they cried vnto the Lord, the Lord stirred them up a saviour. I had the sonne of Gera the sonne of Serim, a man that coulde do nothyng handsomly with his right hande.

And by him the children of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kynge of Moab: but Ihud made hym a dagger wth two edges, of a cubyte length, and he dyd gyde it vnto disarayment vpon his right thigh, and caried the present vnto Eglon the kynge of Moab. And Eglon was a deepe fatte man. And it fortuned that whē he had presented the present, he sent the people that bare it awaye, but he hym selfe turned agayne from the place of grauen ymages, that was by Gulgul, and sayde: I haue a secret errande vnto the, O kynge. Whiche sayde hepe sylene. And all that stood before hym, went out from hym.

And Ihud came vnto hym, & in a somer parler, whiche he had, sat he hym selfe alone, & Ihud sayde: I haue a message vnto the from God: he arose oute of his seate. And Ihud put forth his left hande, & toke the dagger fro his right thigh, and thrust it into his bely, and the harte wet in after the blade. And the harte closed the harte, so that he myght not drawe the dagger out of his bely, but the dyr came out. Ihud gat hym oute at a posterne doore, and shut the doores of the parlour about hym, and locked them.

When he was gone out, his seruantes came, and when they sawe that the doores of the parlour were locked, they sayd: peradventure he covered his feet in his somer chambr. And they caried tyll they were ashamed, & beholde: seinge he opened not the doores of the parlour, they toke a keye, and opened them. And beholde, they: lo, he was fallen downe dead on the earth. And Ihud escaped (whyle they caried) & was gone beyonde, to the place of the grauen ymages, and escaped vnto Beerath.

And when he was come, he blew a trompet in mount Ephraim. And the children of Israel went downe with him from the hyl, and he wnt before them. And he sayd vnto them: follow me:

for the Lord hath deliuered your enemyes the Moabites into your hand. And they descended after hym, and toke the passages of Jordan, towarde Moab, & suffered not a man to passe ouer. And they slew of the Moabites the same tyme, vpon a ten thousande men, which were all fatte and me of war, and they escaped not a ma. Moab was subdued that daye, vnder the hande of Israel, and the lande had rest lxxx. peres.

After hym was Samgar the sonne of Anath, whiche slew of the Philistines, v. hundred men with an ore goode, and deliuered Israel also.

The. iiii. Chapter.

Deborah and Barak deliuer Israel. Deborah is called of Iud.

And the children of Israel began agayne to do wychedly in the sight of the Lord when Ihud was dead. And the Lord solde them into the hande of Jabin kynge of Canaan, that ragned in Hazor, whose captayne of warre was called Sisara, whiche dwelt in haroloth of the Gentiles. And the children of Israel cried vnto the Lord: for he hadde nyne hundred charrettes of yron, and twenty peres he troubled the children of Israel very sore.

And Deborah a prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israel the same tyme, and the same Deborah dwelt vnder a paulme tree, betwene Ramath and Bethel, in mount Ephraim.

And the children of Israel came vp to her for iudgement. And she sent and called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, oute of Kedesh Nephtalim, and sayd vnto hym: hath not the Lord God of Israel commaunded the, to leade wyth thy wyfe, men to mount Thabor, and take wyth the ten thousande men, of the children of Reubyn and of the child of Zabulon? And I wyl lye vnto the to the ryuer Kison, Sisara, the captayne of warre vnto Jabin, wyth his charrettes, and his people, and wyl deliuer hym into thyne handes. And Barak sayd vnto her: if thou wilt go wyth me, I wyl go: But if thou wilt not come with me, I wyl not go. She sayde: I wyl surely go wyth the, but thy iouney that thou takest, shall not be for thyne honour, for the Lord shall sell Sisara into the hande of a woman. Deborah went with Barak to Kedesh. And Barak called Zabulon & Nephtalim to Kedesh, & led after hym ten thousande men: and Deborah went wyth hym.

But Haber the Kenite (which was of the child of Hobab the father in law of Moyses) removed from the other Kenites, and pitched his tent vntyl the playne of Aanaim, whiche is by Kedesh.

And they shewd Sisara, that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mount Thabor. And Sisara gathered together all his charrettes euen ix. hundred charrettes of yron, and all the people that were wth hym from of haroloth of the Gentiles, vnto the ryuer of Kison. And Deborah sayd vnto Barak: vp, for this is the day in which the Lord hath deliuered Sisara into thyne hand: is not the Lord gone oute before the? And so Barak went downe from mount Thabor, and tenthousande men after hym.

But the Lord destroyed Sisara and all his charrettes, charrettes, and al his booste with the edge of the swerde, before Barak: so that Sisara lighted downe of his charret, and fled away on his feet. But Barak folowed after the charrettes & after the host, even vnto Harosheth of Gittiles. And all the host of Sisara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, and there was not a man left. Howbeit, Sisara fled away on hys feet to the tente of Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenyete: for there was peace betwene Jabin the kynge of Hazor, and the household of Haber the Kenyete.

And Jael wente out to mete Sisara, and said vnto him: turne in my lorde, turne into me, feare not. And when he had turned in vnto her into her tent, she couered hym with a mantell.

And he sayde vnto her: gyue me a lytle water to drynke, for I am thyrstye. And she opened a bottle of mylke, and gaue hym drynke, and couered hym. And agayne, he sayd vnto her: stide in the doore of the tent, and when any man doeth come and enquire of the, whether there be anye man here, thou shalt saye naye.

Then Jael Habers wyfe toke a naye of the tent, & an hamer in her hand, and went softly vnto hym, and smote the naye into the temples of his heed, and fastened it into the grounde, for he slombred soze, and was werye. And so he dyed.

And beholde, as Barak folowed after Sisara, Jael came out to mete hym, and sayde vnto him: come, and I wil shewe the the man, whom thou sekest. And when he came into her tente: Beholde, Sisara laye dead, and the naye was in hys temples. And so God brought Jabin the kynge of Canaan into subiection that daye before the children of Israel. And the bande of the children of Israel prospered, and prenapled agaynst Jabin the kynge of Canaan, vntyl they had brought hym to nought.

The. v. Chapter.

The songe and thanksgyving of Deboza and Barak after the victorye.

In the dayes of Deboza and Barak the sonne of Abinoam sang the same day, saying: Praise ye the Lorde, for the quengnyng of Israel, & for the people that became lowlyng. Heare O ye kynghes, heathen O ye prynces: I, even I, will synge vnto the Lorde. I will praise the Lorde God of Israel.

Lorde, * when thou wentest out of Seir, when thou departest oute of the felde of Edom, the earth trembled, and the heauens rayned: the cloudes also dropped water. * The moystaynes melted before the Lorde, euen as dyd Dynal, before the Lorde God of Israel.

In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anath, in the dayes of Jael the hye wayes wer vnuccupped: And the runners of the pathes walhed & howe by wayes.

The inhabytours of the townes were gone, they were gone in Israel, vntyl J Deboza came vp, which came vp a mother in Israel.

They chose newe goddes, and then had they (the enemy) in gates, though there were wyld and spere. There was not a wyld or spere sene amonge fourtye thousande of Israel.

My heart longeth the gouernours of Israel, and them that are wplyng amonge the people. O praise ye the Lorde.

Speake ye that ryde on saye asses, & that syt bypermost in iudgement, & walke by wayes.

At the cryng of the archers amonge the drawers of water, there shal they speake of the ryghteousnesse of the Lorde, his ryghteousnesse in the vnfenced places of Israel: then shal the people of the Lorde go downe to the gates.

Up Deboza vp, get the vp, and synge a songe * I pray Barak, and leade the captiue captiue thou sonne of Abinoam.

Then shal they that remaine, haue dominion of the proudest of the people (of Jabin): The Lorde shal for my sake haue dominion ouer the mightie. Out of Ephraim was there a rote of them agaynst Amalek, and after the Ben Jamin amonge the people. Oute of Gachir came rulers, and out of Zabul they that gouerne the penne of the wynter.

And of Issachar, there were prynces in Deboza, Issachar also & Barak were sent on their feet in to the valley, when in the departing awaye of Ruben there were great men, and wyse of heart.

Why abodest thou amonge the shepfoldes, to heare & bleatynge of flockes, & to separate thy selfe awaye with great men & wyse of heart?

Gilead also obode beyonde Jordan: and why doth Dan remaine in byppes?

And continued on the seer hoze, and tarped in hys decaped places.

But the people of Zabulon haue leoparde they: lyues euen vnto the deathe, lyke as dyd Asycholim in the hye places of the felde.

The kynghes came and fought, then fought the kynghes of Canaan in Thannab, by the waters of Hagiddo, and wanne no moneye.

They fought from heauen, euen the starres in they; courtes fought agaynst Sisara.

The ryuer of Euphrat remoued them, that asscient ryuer, the ryuer Euphrat: My soule shal tread (hym) downe myghtely.

Then were the doore houses smytten asondze by the means of the prauynghes that they; myghtye men made.

Curse ye the cytie of Meros (sayd the aungell of the Lorde) curse the inhabytours thereof, because they came not to helpe the Lorde, to helpe the Lorde with the myghtye.

Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenyete shal be blessed aboute other women, blessed shal she be aboute other women in the tent.

* He asked water, and she gaue hym mylke, she brought forth butter in a lordly wyse.

* She put her hande to a naye, and her ryght hande to the smythes hammer: with the hammer smote she Sisara, & smote hys heed, wounded hym, and pearced hys temples.

He bowed hym downe at her feet, he fell downe: and laye styll: At her feet he bowed hym downe, & fell. And when he hand sonke downe, he laye styll desolate.

The mother of Sisara looked out at a window, & cryed howe the latter! Why is his charret so longe so longe a comynge / Why tary the wheles of hys carters?

At the wyse labres answered her. yea. & her owne wordes answered her selfe.

Surelye they haue founde, they deuyde the spoyles: euerie man hath a damsell or two: Wi-sers hath a praye of dyuers coloured garnytes euen a praye of rayment dyed woth sundrye colours, and that are made of noble wothe: ray-ment of dyuers colours & of noble wothe which is mete for hym that is chiefe in distributyng of the spoyles. And perswade all thynne enemyes: O Lorde: but they that loue hym, let them be as the sunne when he is set in hys myght.
And the lande had rest fortye yeres.

¶ The vi. Chapter.

¶ Israel is oppressed of the Madianites: Geddon is sent of God to be thery deliuerer.

And the chyldren of Israhel * comytted wickednes in the syght of the Lorde.

And the Lord deliuered them into the hades of Madian yere after yere. And the bande of Madian preyed agaynst Israhel, and by-cause of the Madianites, the chyldren of Israhel made them denmes in the mountaynes and ca-ues and strong holdes. And when Israhel hadde sowen, the Madianites, the Amalechites, and they of y east cōstrey came vp together agaynst them: and pched they: tentes agaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the earth, euentyl thou come vnto Azah: and leste no sustynance for Israhel, neyther shepe, or ox, or asse: for they went vp, they and they: cattel, and came woth they: tentes as a multitude of grechoppers: so that both they and also they: camels were with out nombre. And they entered into the lande to destroye it. And so was Israhel exceedingly impo-uerished in the syght of the Madianites, & cryed vnto the Lorde. And wote the chyldren of Israhel cryed vnto the Lorde because of the Madianites, the Lorde sente vnto them a prophete, whych sayd vnto them: Thus sayeth the Lord God of Israhel: I set you fro Egypt & brought you out of y house of bondage, and I ryd you out of the bande of the Egyptians, and oute of the bande of all that oppressed you and cast the oute before you, and gaur you they: lande. And I sayd vnto you: I am y Lorde your God, & feare not the goddes of the Amoytes in whose lande you dwell. But you haue not obeyed my voyce And the angell of the Lorde came, and late vnder an Oke whych was in Ephrah, that pertayned vnto Joas the father of the Eserites. And his sonne Geddon pressed out wheate out of the eares in a presse, to hyde it from the Madiani-tes: and the Angell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym, & sayd: the Lorde is with the, thou myghttye man of warre. And Geddon answered hym: O my lorde, yf the Lorde be woth vs, whye is all this come vpon vs? yea, and where be al his myracles whych our fathers tolde vs of, & sayd vnto the Lorde hyng vs out of Egypte?

¶ But now the Lorde hath forsaken vs, and de-liuered vs into the bandes of the Madianites.
And the Lorde looked vpon hym, and sayd: So hence in thys thy myght, and thou shalt deliuer Israhel out of the bandes of the madianites:

haue not I sent the? And he answered hym: O Lorde, wher woth that I saue Israhel? Beholde, my hyndred is pooze in Canalles, & I am lytle in my fathers house. The Lorde sayd vnto hym I will be woth the: and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he answered hym: O, yf I haue founde grace in thy syght, & en thewe me a signe, that it is thou that talkest woth me. Depart not hence, vntyl I come agayne vnto the, & tyl I hyng myne offryng, and haue set it before the.

And he sayd: I will tarye vntyl thou come agayne. And Geddon went in, and made ready a kyd, and swete cakes of an Ephra of flour, & putte it woth the flethe in a basket, and put the broth in a pot, and brought it out vnto hym vnder the Oke, and presented it. And the angell of God sayd vnto hym: take the flethe & the swete cakes, and laye them vpon thys roche, & poure out the broth. And he dyd so. Then the angell of the Lorde put forth the ende of the staffe that he helde in his hande, and touched the flethe and the swete cakes. And there arose vp fire out of the roche, and consumed the flethe and the swete cakes. But the angell of the Lorde vanysht out of his syght. And when Geddon perceyued that it was an angell of the Lorde, he sayd: Alas, O Lorde God, & haue I therfore sente an angell of the Lorde face to face, that I shoulde dye? And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: praebe vnto the, feare not, thou shalt not dye. The Geddon made an autare there vnto the Lorde, and called it:

The Lorde of peace. And vnto thys daye it is yet in Ephrah, that pertayneth vnto y father of the Eserites. And it fortuneth that the same nyght the Lorde sayd vnto hym: take a ponge bulloche out of thy fathers house, and another of vii. yeres olde, and destroye the autare of Baal that thy father hath, and cutte downe the groue that is by it, and make an autare vnto the Lorde thy God vpon the top of thys roche, in a conuenient place. And take the seconde bul-loche, and offre burnte sacrifice vpon the wood of the groue, whych thou shalt cut downe. The Geddon toke ten men of hys seruautes, and dyd as the Lorde had hym. But because he durst not do it by daye for feare of hys fathers householde and of the men of the cytie, he dyd it by nyght.

And when the men of the cytie were by eyle in the moynynge: Beholde, the autare of Baal was broken, and the groue cut downe that was by it, and the seconde bulloche offered vpon the autare that was made. And they sayde one to another: who hath done thys thyng? & when they enquired and asked, they sayd: Geddon the sonne of Joas hath done thys thyng. The men of the cytie sayde vnto Joas: hyng oute thy sonne, that he may dye, because he hath destroyed the autare of Baal, and cut downe the groue that was by it. And Joas sayd vnto all that stode by hym: Wyl ye piraide Baals cause? or wyl ye be hys defenders? he that hath medled agaynst hym, let hym dye of the moynynge.

Yf he be a God let hym be auenged of hym that cast doth his aulter. And from that day was Gedeon called Jerobaal, because his father had sayde: Let Baal be auenged of hym, that hath broken downe his aulter.

¶ All the Madianites therefore and the Amalekites and they of the east, were gathered togother, and went and pitched in the valey of Israel: but the spirit of the Lorde came vpon Gedeon. * And he blew a trompet, & called: This yet to solow him, & sent messengers thowout al Manassers, & called the, which also byd solow hym. And he sent messengers vnto Herabul and Arphadulim, and they came to mete him.

Jud. 11.

And Gedeon sayde vnto God: wyle thou save Israel in my hande, as thou hast sayd? Behold I wil put a fleece of wolle in f chyrching place. And yf the dew come on the fleece onely, and it be drye vpon all the earth besyde, then shall I be sure, that thou wyle save Israel by my hande, as thou saydest. And it came so to passe. For he rose up early on the morow, and thrust the fleece together, and wong the dew thereout, & filled a bosome of water: and Gedeon sayd againe vnto God: be not angry wth me, that I speake ones more. For I wyl proue ones agayn by the fleece. Let it be drye only vpd the fleece, and be drye vpon all f grounde. And God byd so that same nyght: For it was drye vpon the fleece only and there was dewe on all the grounde.

Gedeon wth. 30. hundred men ouercometh the Madianites. Gedeon and 300 are slayne.

Jud. viii.

¶ Then Jerobaal (otherwise called Gedeon) & all the people that were wth him rose up early, and pitched beside the wel of Harab, so that the hoste of f Madianites were on f f northsyde of f Ro. he sayd howebeit towarde the valley. And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: the people that are wth f are to many for me to gve the Madianites into thes handes, lest Israel make thes vanite agaynst me and saye: myne owne hande hath slayned me. Howe therefore make a proclamation in the eares of f people, & saye: * yf any ma be afeard, let him retorne. And f people arose earlye. And there departed and returned of the people whiche were at mounte Silead twenty and two. M. and there abode ten thousande.

Deut. 32.
1. Cor. 13. 11.

¶ And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: the people are yet to many, bying them downe vnto f water, and I wil tepe them vnto the three. And of whom I saye vnto the, thus shall go wth the, f same shall go wth the. And of whom soeuer I saye vnto the, thus shall not go wth the, f same shall not go. So he brought downe f people vnto the water, and the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon: as many as lappe the water wth thes tonges as a dogge doth, them put by the selues, and so do them that knel downe vpon thes knees to drynke. And the nombre of them that put thes handes to thes mowthes and lapped, were. 300. hundred men. But al the remnaie of the people knel downe vpon their knees to drynke water. And the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon: By thes the 300 men I flapped water, wil I save you: & deliuer f Madianites into thine hande. And let al f other people go euery ma vnto his place.

They therfore of the people toke vitayles to them, and theys trompetes. And he sent all the rest of Israel, euery ma vnto his tene, & comforted those that handes wth him. And f host of Madian was beneath him in a valeye. And it fortuned that the same nyght the Lorde sayde vnto hym: Arise, get the downe vnto the hoste for I haue deliuered the into thine hande. But yf thou feare to go downe, then go thou & pharaph thy ladde downe to the host, and thou shalt bracken what they saye, and so shall thine handes be stronge, to go downe vnto the hoste.

Then went he downe and pharaph his ladde, euen harde vnto the men of armes that were in the host. And the Madianites, the Amalekites and all they of the East, lay along in the valey, lyke a multitude of gra hoppers, and thes camellen were without nombre, euen as the lande by the see syde in multitude. And when Gedeon was come: Behold, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his neyghbour, and sayde: Behold, I dreamed a dreame, & me thought that a losse of barley bryde, tumbled into the booke of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and smote it f it fell, and ouertourned it, that the tente laye alonge. And his felowe answered and sayde: this is nothing elles save the sword of Gedeon the sonne of Ioas a man of Israel: for into his hande hath God deliuered Madian and all the hoste.

When Gedeon herde the telling of f dreame, and the interpretation of the same, he was wppressed, and returned vnto the host of Israel: & said vp, for the Lorde hath deliuered into your hand the hoste of Madian. And he deuyded f the 300. hundred men into thre companies, and gaue euery ma a trompet in his hand, & an empty pytcher, & lampes therein, & sayde vnto the: loke on me, & do like wyle, that wyl I come to the syde of the hoste, euen as I do, so do you: When I blowe w a trompet and all that are w me, blowe ye wth trompettes also on euery syde of the hoste, & saye: Is the sword of the Lorde & of Gedeon.

And so Gedeon and the thre hundred men that were wth hym, came vnto the syde of the hoste in the begynnyng of the myddle watche, & raysed up the watchmen. And they blew w thes trompettes, and brake the pytchers that wer in their handes. And al the thre companies blew: wth trompettes & brake the pytchers, & held f lampes in thes lefte handes, & the trompettes in thes righte to blowe wthal. And they cryed the sword of the Lorde & of Gedeon. And they rode styl, euery man in his place rounde about the hoste: And they wth in the hoste came, and cryed and fled. And f thre hundred blew wth trompettes, & the Lorde let euery manes sword vpon his neyghbour, thowout our all the hoste. And the host fled to Bethitah, to zerath, and to the edge of the playne of Gholah vnto Cabath. And the men of Israel beyng gathered together out of the trybe of Arphadulim, of Isser & of al Manassers followed after f Madianites.

And

And Sedeon sente messengers vnto all mount Ephraim, saying: come down agaynst the Madianites, and take before the waters vnto Bethbarath and to Jordan. Then all the men of Ephraim gathered together & took the waters vnto Bethbarath, and to Jordan. And they took two captaynes of the Madianites, Oreb, and Zeb, and slew Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and Zeb at the presse Zeb, and folowed after Madian. And brought the heades of Oreb and Zeb to Sedeon on the other syde Jordan.

¶ The viii. Chapter.

Ephraim maketh insurrection agaynst Sedeon, but is lome payed.

And the men of Ephraim sayde vnto him: why hast thou serued vs thus, & thou calledst vs not, when thou wentest to fight with the Madianites: and they chose with hym a good. ¶ And he sayde vnto them: What dede haue I done lyke vnto yours: is not a cluster of Ephraim better, then the wyne harvest of Abiezer? God hath deliuered into your handes & lordes of Madia, Oreb & Zeb. And what was I able to do lyke as you haue done? And the thep's spirit was abated from of hym, when he had sayde that. And Sedeon came to Jordan to passe ouer, & he and & thir hundred men that were with him, very saynte, and yet folowed the chace. And he sayde vnto the me of Socoth: geue I pray you cakes of bread vnto the people that folow me: for they be sayntie, that I maye folowe after Zebath, and Zalmona kinges of Madian. And the lordes of Socoth, sayd: are the handes of Zebath & Zalmona now in thyne handes, that we shulde geue bread vnto thyne armye? Sedeon sayd, therefore when I Lord hath deliuered Zebath and Zalmona into myne hande, I wil teare the fleshe of you with the thornes of the wyldernes and with breeers. And he wente vnto the men of Phaneel, and spake vnto them lyke wyse. And the men of Phaneel answered him, as did the men of Socoth. And he sayde also vnto the men of Phaneel: when I come agayne in peace, I wil bryake downe this towre. Zebath & Zalmona were in Carhar, and they holtes with them, vpon a xv. thousand men, which were all & were leste of all & holtes of the of & East: for there was layne a hundred & twenty thousand me, that drew swerdes.

And Sedeon went thowre the & dwelt in tabernacles on & East syde of Aobah & Jebabab, & smote the host: for & hoste dyd cast no perilles. And when Zebath, & Zalmona fled, he folowed after them, & took & two kynges of Madia, Zebath and Zalmona, & discomforted all the hoste.

And Sedeon the sonne of Joas returned fro battell, afore the sunne was downe, and caught a ladde of the men of Socoth, & enquired of him. And he wote of hym, the lordes and elders, of Socoth, lxxvii. men. And he came vnto the men of Socoth, and sayde: Beholde, here I haue Zebath & Zalmona, with whiche ye dyd calte me in the treth, saying: are the handes of Zebath and Zalmona alredye in thyne hande, that we shulde geue breade vnto thy sayntie men? And he took the elders of the ctyte, and thornes of the wyldernes and breeers, and made the men of Socoth to fele the. And he bryake downe the towre of Phaneel, and slew the men of the ctyte.

And then sayde he vnto Zebath and Zalmona, what maner of me were they whom ye slew at Chabor? and they answered: the lykenesse of the and them is all one, euen after the fashyon of the chyldren of a hyngre. And he sayd: they were my brethren, euen my mothers chyldren. As truly as I Lord lyue, if ye had saued they lyues, I wolde not slep you. And he sayde vnto Jether his eldest sonne: vp and slep them: But he had doted on his swerde, for he feared, because he was per pong. Then Zebath & Zalmona sayde: Wylle thou, and saile vpon vs: for as the man is, so is his strength. And Sedeon arose and slew Zebath and Zalmona, and took awaye the ornaments, that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel sayde vnto Sedeon: Regne thou ouer vs, bothe & thy sonne & thy sonnes sonne, for thou hast deliuered vs out of & hande of Madia. And Sedeon sayd vnto the: I will not raygne ouer you, neither shall my chyldre regne ouer you, but the Lorde shall regne ouer you.

And agayne Sedeon sayd vnto them: I wolde desyre a certayne request of you, and & you wolde geue me euery man the & earpynges of his praye. For they had golde earpynges because they were Ismaelites: and they answered: We wyl geue the. And they spred a mantel, and did cast there in euery man the earpynges of his praye: and the weyght of the golde earpynges that he required was a thousande & seuen hundred cycles of gold, besyde cheynes, pommanders & a purple raiment that was on the kynges of Madian, & besyde the cheynes, that were about they camels neckes. And Sedeon made an Ephod therof, & put it in his ctyte Ephraim. And all Israel went a whoyng after it, in the same place, whiche thinge became a ruyne vnto Sedeon and to his house. Thus was Madian brought low before the chyldre of Israel, so that they lyfte vp they heades nomore. And & countrey was in quietnes forty yeres in the dayes of Sedeon.

And Jerabaal & sonne of Joas went, & dwelt in his owne house. And Sedeon had & lxx. sonnes of his body begotten, for he had in my wyues. And his concubine that was in Sich, bare him a sonne also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Sedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, in a good age, & was buryed in the sepulchre of Joas his father, euen in Ephraim, that pertaineth vnto the father of the Ezytes.

But it fortuneth, that as sone as Sedeon was dead, the chyldren of Israel turned adaye and wente a whoyng after Baalim, and made a coneuant with Baal to be they god, and the chyldren of Israel thought not on the Lorde they god, whiche had deliuered them out of the handes of all they enemyes on euery syde. And ther thewed they mercy on & house of Jerabaal, other wyse called Sedeon, accordyng to all the goodnes whiche he had shewed vnto Israel.

Abimelech is made kynge.

Abimelech the sonne Jerobaal wente to Sychem: vnto hys mothers bryethen, & comuned wryth them & wryth al his mothers fathers hired, sayig say I praye you, in the eares of all the enbaptoured of Sychem: whether is better for you, & all the sonnes of Jerobaal (whiche are lxx. personnes) reigne ouer you, eyther that one reigne ouer you: Remembrye, that I am of your bone, and of your flesh. And hys mothers bryethen spake of hym in the audience of the men of Sychem all these wordes, & they: heretes were moued to folowe Abimelech. For they sayd, he is our brother. And they gaue him lxx. peces of siluer out of y^e temple of Baal Berith, wherewith Abimelech byed vayne & lyght personns which went wryth hym. And he went vnto his fathers house at Ephrah: and slew all his bryethen, the sonnes of Jerobaal: euen lxx. personns wryth one stone. Notwithstanding, yet Joathā s^{on} of Joathā s^{on} of Jerobaal escaped, for he byd hym leife. And all y^e mē of Syche gathered togyther, & al y^e house of Wello, & came & made Abimelech king in y^e playne, where y^e great stone was by Syche.

And when they tolde it to Joatham, he went and stode in the toppre of mount Garizim, & spake by hys voyce, and cryed, and sayde vnto them: Herken vnto me you men of Sychem, that god make herken vnto you. * The trees went forth to anoynte a kynge ouer them, & sayde vnto the Olive tree: raigne thou ouer vs. But the olive tree sayde vnto the: Shoulde I leaue my fatnesse, whych bothe goddes and men prayse in me, & go to be promoted ouer y^e trees? And y^e trees sayde to the figge tree: come thou and be kynge ouer vs. The figge tree answered the: Shoulde I forsake my swetnes, and my good frute, & go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the vyne: come thou and be kynge ouer vs. The vyne sayde vnto them: Shoulde I leaue my wyne wherby I cheare both goddes and men, & go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayd al the trees vnto y^e fyxe bushe: come y^e and reigne ouer vs. And y^e fyxe bushe said vnto the trees: yf it be true that ye wyll anoynt me kynge ouer you, then come, and put your trust vnder my shadowe. Yf no, the fyxe come oute of the fyxe bushe, and waste the Cedre trees of Libanon.

Nowe therefore, yf ye do truly & vncorruptly to make Abimelech kynge: and yf ye haue deale well wryth Jerobaal and hys house, & haue done vnto hym accordyng to the destruyng of hys handes, iudge ye. For eue he (my father) sought for you, and aduynured hys lyfe, and rydde you out of the hand of Gadian. And ye are rylen vp agaynst my fathers house thys daye, and haue slayne hys chyldren, euen lxx. personnes wryth one stone, & haue made Abimelech s^{on} of his mayde seruante, kynge ouer the men of Sychem because he is your brother: yf ye then haue deale truly & purely wryth Jerobaal & wryth his house thys daye then reioyce ye wryth Abimelech, & let hym reioyce wryth you. But yf you haue not dealt truly, then I praye God a fyxe may come out of Abimelech, and consume the men of Sychem & the house of Wello. And that there may come a fyxe frome amonge the men of Sychem, and oute of y^e house of Wello, and consume Abimelech. And Joatham canne away, and fledde, and went to Beer and dwelte there, for feare of Abimelech hys brother. When Abimelech had raigned thre yere, God sent a spirite of hate betwene Abimelech, and the mē of Sychem. And the citizens of Sychem rayled vpon Abimelech, and wrythed that the wrychadnes done to y^e lxx. sonnes of Jerobaal myght come on hym, & that God wolde lay the blood of them vnto Abimelech they: brother whych slewe them, and vpon the other men of Sychem whych ayded him in y^e kylling of hys bryethen. And the citizens of Sychem let mē to lay a wayte for hym in the toppre of the mountaynes: whych men (whych they taryed for hys comyng) robbed all that came a longe the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimelech.

And Gaal the sonne of Abed came wryth hys bryethen, and they gat them to Syche. And the men of Sychem put their confidence in him. And they went out into y^e felde, & gathered in they: grapes and trode them, and made mery: & went into the house of they: goddes, and did rate and drinke, & cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the son of Abed sayd: what is Abimelech, and what is Sychem, that we shoulde serue hym? Is he not y^e sonne of Jerobaal? & zebul is his officer: Serue such as come of * Hemo: the father of Sychem, for what reason is it that we shoulde serue hym? wolde God thys people were vnder my hande, thā wolde I take Abimelech oute of the waye, And he spake agaynst Abimelech: make thynne hoste greater: and go once. And when zebul the ruler of the cite hadde y^e wordes of Gaal s^{on} of Abed, he was wrothe, & sent messengers vnto Abimelech pryncipally, sayng: Behold, Gaal y^e sonne of Abed and hys bryethen be come to Sychem: and beholde, they set the cite agaynst the. Now therfore vp by nyght, thou & al the people that is wryth y^e, and lye in wayte in y^e felde. And ryse early in the moynyng as soone as the sonne is vp, and fall vpon the cite. And yf he and the people that is wryth hym, come out agaynst the, do to hym what thynne handes shalbe able. And Abimelech rose vp, and all the people that were wryth hym by nyght. And they layd a wayte agaynst Sychem in foure companies. And Gaal s^{on} of Abed went oute, and stode in the entryngre of the gate of the cite. And Abimelech rose vp, & the folke y^e were wryth him, from luyng a wayte. And when Gaal sawe the people, he sayde to zebul beholde they come people downe from y^e top of the mountaynes. And zebul sayde vnto hym: the shadowe of y^e hylls seme men vnto y^e. (y^e cryed out y^e distance.) & Gaal answered agayne, and sayd: se, they come folke downe by the myddel of the land, & an other company come a long by the playne of the charmers. Then sayd zebul vnto hym: where is now thy mouth that sayde what folowe is Abimelech, that we shoulde serue him? Is not this the people that y^e haue despised

Go out now & fight wth the. And Gaal went out before & cithins of Becht, & fought wth Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him, & he fled before hym. (so he drove hym into the citty) and many were overthrowen & wounded, even unto entering of the gate. And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah.

And Jehul thrust out Gaal and his brethren & they wold not dwell in Sichem. (so he drove them out to tarry there.) And on the morrow, it happened & the people wth out into the feld. And they told Abimelech. And he took & people, & beset the into the copanies & layd awayt in the feldes & lohed, & he holde, the people were come out of the citty, and he rann upon them, and smote them.

And Abimelech, & the copanies & were wth hym, reached further, & stode in the enterpyng of the gate of the citty. And & two other copanies, ranne upon all the people that were in the feldes & slue them. And when Abimelech had foughte agaynst the citty all that daye, he toke it, & slue the people that was therein, & destroyed the citty and lowed fait thowow it. And when all the me of the towne of Sichem heard that, they entered into a strong hold of the house of the god Baal Berith. (where they made a bonde wth hym; therof the place take the name, whiche place was exceeding strong.)

And it was tolde Abimelech, that all the me of the tower of Sichem were gathered togyther, and Abimelech gat hym to mounte zelmo, betwixt he and all the people that were wth him, & toke axes wth him & cut downe bowes of trees and toke the and bare them on his shulder, & sayd vnto the folke that were wth hym: what ye haue sent me do, speke your selues, and do lyer wyle as I haue done. And all the men & were among the people, cut downe bowes, & folowed Abimelech, & put them into the holde, and set the holde a fyre by the: so that (wth smoke and fyre) al the me of the tower of Sichem were flayne, vpon a thousande men and women.

Then went Abimelech to Thebez, and beset it, & toke it. But there was a stronge towne wthin the citty, & they ther rann all the me and womē & all the chefe that were in the citty, and wth it to the, & got them vnto (by the bulwarkes) to the toppe of the towne. And Abimelech cam vnto the towne and foughte agaynst it, & went hard vnto the doze of the towne to set it on fyre. And a certayne woman & caste a peece of a mylstone vpon his heade, and all to brast his harnesse. Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto a young man that bare his harnesse, and sayd vnto hym: drawe thy swerde & slay me, that men say not of me: a woman slewe hym. And his lad thrust hym thowowe, and he dyed.

And when the men of Israel sawe that Abimelech was dead, they departed euery ma vnto his owne house. And thus & the wyckednesse of Abimelech whiche he dyde vnto his father, in sleynge his seuentye brethren and therof al the wyckednesse of the men of Sichem, didde God byynge vnto their heades. And vpon them came the curse of Joathan the sonne of Isebaal.

The .x. Chapter.

Edola and Jait are Judges of Israel.

After Abimelech there arose, to defend Israel, one Thola (the sonne of Phuah) his vnticē sonne, a ma of Ashkar which dwelt in Samir in mounte Ephraim. And he iudged Israel .xxii. yere and dyed, and was buried in Samir. And after hym arose Jait a Gileadite, and iudged Israel .xii. yere. And he had thyrtye sonnes that & rode on thyrtye Asses coltes, & they had thyrtye cities, which are called the townes of Jait vnto this daye, & are the land of Gilead. And Jait dyed & was buried in Ramon.

And the Lorde was wroth wth Israel, & sold them into the handes of the Philistines, & into the handes of the children of Ammon: which sed that yere forth, vnto the children of Israel .xviii. yere, all that were on the other syde Jordan: in the landes of the Amorites whiche is in Gilead. Mozeouer & children of Ammon went ouer Jordan to fight agaynst Juda, Ben Jamin, & the house of Ephraim: so Israel was sore cōbyed. And the children of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde, saying: we haue synned against the: for we haue forsaken our owne God, & haue serued Baalim. And the Lorde said vnto the children of Israel: dyd not Egyptias the Amorites, the children of Ammon, the Philistines, the Sidonites, the Amalekites, and the Moabites oppresse you: And ye cryed to me & I deliuered you out of theyr handes. And for all ye haue forsaken me, & serued strange goddesses wherfore I wyl helpe you no more. So and crye vnto the goddesses whiche ye haue cholen, and let them saue you in the tyme of your tribulacion. And the children of Israel sayd vnto the Lorde: we haue sinned: do p vnto vs whatsoeuer please, & deliuer vs onely this day. And they put away strange goddesses from them & serued the Lorde. And his soule had pitie on the myserye of Israel.

Then the children of Ammon gathered togyther, and pyched in Gilead. And the children of Israel gathered them togyther, and pyched in Mizpa. And the lordes of Gilead sayde eche to other: whosoever wyl begynne the battayl agaynst the children of Ammon, the same shal be heade ouer all the inhabyters of Gilead.

of Ammon made warre agaynst Israel. And when the child of Ammon fought thus agaynst Israel, the elders of Gilead went to see Jephthah out of the lande of Tob (to see him) and sayd vnto him: come & be our capteyn, & we maye fight wth the chyldren of Ammon. Jephthah answered the elders of Gilead: yd not ye hate me & expel me out of my fathers house? howe happeneth it then, that you come vnto me nowe in tyme of your tribulacyon? And the elders of Gilead sayd vnto Jephthah: Therefore we turne agayne to the nowre, that thou mayest go with vs, & fight agaynst the chyldren of Ammon and be our head ouer all the inhabitants of Gilead. And Jephthah sayd vnto the elders of Gilead: If ye hyng me home agayne to fight wth the child of Ammon, then if the Lorde deliuer them before me, shall I be your head? And the elders of Gilead sayd to Jephthah: The Lorde be witness betwene vs if we do not accordyng to thy wordes. The Jephthah wente wth the elders of Gilead.

And the people made hym head and ruler ouer them. And Jephthah reuered all his wordes before the Lorde in Gilya.

And Jephthah sent messengers vnto the king of the chyldren of Ammon saying: what hast thou to do wth me, & thou arte come agaynst me, to fight in my lande? The kyng of the chyldren of Ammon answered vnto the messengers of Jephthah: Because Israel toke awaye my land, wher they came out of Egypt: euen from Arnon vnto Iabok, & vnto Iordā. Now therefore restore those lades agayne wth sayre meanes. And Jephthah sent messengers agayne vnto the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon: & sayd vnto him: thus sayeth Jephthah: Israel toke not awaye the lande of Moab, nor the lande of the chyldren of Ammon.

But when Israel came out of Egypt, & walked thowre the wyldernesse, euen vnto the reade they came to Cades: and sent messengers vnto the kyng of Edom, saying: let me (I praye) go thowre thy lande. But the kyng of Edom wolde not agre thereto. And in like maner they sent vnto the kyng of Moab, but he wolde not consent. And so Israel abode styl in Cades. And the they went a long thowre the wyldernesse, & chpassed the lande of Edom, & the land of Moab, & came alonge by the east syde of the lande of Moab, and pitched on the other syde of Arnon, & wolde not come within the coost of Moab: for Arnon was the vtmost border of Moab. And then Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon, kyng of the Amorites, & kyng of Hesdon, & sayd vnto him: Let vs passe thowre thy land vnto our owne countrey. But Sehon consented not to Israel, he wolde go thowre his coost: but gathered all his people together, & pitched in Jazah & fought wth Israel. And the Lorde God of Israel deliuered Sehon and all his folke into the handes of Israel. And so Israel smote them & conquered all the land of the Amorites, the inhabitants of the land countrey: And they conquered all the coostes of the Amorites, from Arnon vnto Iabok, & from the wyldernesse vnto Iordan. So now, sayng the Lorde God of Israel hath cast out the Amorites before thy people Israel, shuldest thou possesse the lande Moab, but what people Camon the god dyspurch out, & lande possesse thou? Ene so what souer narys the Lorde our God expelleth, that lande ought we to enioye.

And art thou better then Balac the sonne of ypho: kyng of Moab? yd he styue w Israel as fight agaynst them, all the wyde Israel dwelt in Hesdon & her townes, in Arers & her townes & in all the cyties that be a longe by the coostes of Arnon, this bidded yeres: why bydest thou not recoure them in all that space? Wherefore, I haue not sinned agaynst thee. But thou doste me wjonge to warre agaynst me. The Lorde therefore wyche is a Judge, be Judge thys daye betwene the chyldren of Israel, and the chyldren of Ammon. Howbeit, the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon, hearkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah, wyche he sent hym.

Then the sperte of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer to Gilead and to Gassan, and came to Mazyphah that lyeth in Gilead, and from thence vnto the chyldren of Ammon. And Jephthah vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayde: If thou shalt deliuer the chyldren of Ammon into my handes, then that thyng that cometh out of the doores of my house agaynst me, when I com home in peace, from the chyldren of Ammon, shall be the Lorde, and I wyl offer it vnto the Lorde as a burnt offeryng: And so Jephthah went vnto the chyldren of Ammon to fight wth the. And the Lorde deliuered them into his handes. And he smote the from Arer tyll they came to Gernith, euen xx. cyties: & so forth to the playne of the vneyardes, wth an excepyng greete slaughter. And thus the chyldren of Ammon were brought vnder before the chyldren of Israel.

When Jephthah came to Mazyphah vnto his house, his daughter came out agaynst him, w symberelles and daucers, wher was his onely childe: so that besyde her, he had nether sonne, nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rente his clothes, and sayd: Alas my daughter, thou hast brought me low, and art one of them that trouble me. For I haue opened my mouthe vnto the Lorde and cannot go backe. And she sayd vnto hym: my father if thou haue opened thy mouth vnto the Lorde then do wth me accordyng to it that proceded out of thy mouth, for as much as the Lorde hath auenged the (as thou the vtmost) of thine enemyes the chyldren of Ammon. And she sayd vnto her father: do thys much for me: let me alone two monethes, & I maye go downe to the mountaynes, and bewaile my virginitee I and my felowes. And he sayd go, and he sent her awaye two monethes. And so she went wth her companions, and lamented her mayden hed vnto the mountaynes. And after the end of two monethes she turned agayne vnto her father, wyche yd wth her accordyng to his vowe wyche he had vowed, and she had knowne no man. And it grew to a custome in Israel. The daughters of Israel came yeres by yere to lament the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite, fourte dayes in a yere.

The battell of Jephthah against Ammon. After the death of Jephthah.

And the me of Ephraim gathered the felues together, & went northwarde and sayd vnto Jephthah: wherfore wiled thou to fyght with chylde of Ammon, & dydest not call vs to go with the? we wyl thetose burne thine house vpon the stye: and Jephthah sayde vnto them: I and my people were at great streyfe with the chylzen of Ammon. And when I callid you, ye deliuered me not out of theys handes. And when I sawe that ye deliuered me not, I put my lyfe in my handes, & went vpon the chylzen of Ammon. And the Lozde deliuered the into my handes. Wherfore then are ye come vpon me nowe, to fight w me? Jephthah therfore gathered together al the men of Gilead, and fought with the Ephraimites. And the me of Gilead smote the Ephraimites because they sayde: Ye Gileadites are but rinea-gates of Ephraim amonge the Ephraimites & the Manassites. Whereouer, the me of Gilead to he the passages of Joridan before the Ephraimites. And when thole Ephraimites that were escaped, sayd: let vs go ouer, then the me of Gilead sayd vnto them: Art thou an Ephraimite? they sayde: nay. The sayd they vnto him: the sape: Schibboleth. And he sayd: Schibboleth: for he coulde not so pronounce. And then they tooke hym, and strowe hym at the passages of Joridan. And ther wer ouerthrowe at that tyme of the Ephraimites xlii. And Jephthah iudged Israel. vi. yeare & dyed & was buried in one of the cyties of Gilead. After this man iudged Israel one Abiezar of Bethlehef, and he had. xxx. sonnes & xxx. daughters, who he sente oute, and toke. xxx. other in, for his sonnes. After hym, Elon a zabalonite iudged Israel ten yeare, & Elon the zabalonite dyed, and was buried in Aialon, in the countre of zabalon. After hym, Abdon the sonne of heliel a pharathonite iudged Israel. And he had. xl. sonnes and thirtynenewes, that rode on. lxx. asse coltes. And when Abdon the sonne of heliel the pharathonite had iudged Israel egypte prre he died and was buried in pharathon in the lande of Ephraim, in the mounte of the Amalekites.

Michal being an adulteress in opposition of the phylitines, the death of Samson. The Carriage of Samson's bones.

And the chylzen of Israel bega againe to commyt wychednes in the syghte of the Lozde. And the Lozde deliuered them into the handes of the philistines. xl. yere. And there was a man in zaraah of the kynrede of Dan, named Manoah, whose wyfe was baref, and bare not. And the Angel of the Lozde appeared vnto the woman: and said vnto her: Beholde, thou art baref, and bearest not: But thou shalt conceive, and beare a sonne. And now be ware: that thou dypne no wyne, nor stronge dypne, neyther eat anye vncleane thyng: for se, thou shalt conceive & beare a sone. And ther may no raso: come on thys hed. For if lab shalbe an abstayner vnto God euef sed hys

Then the wyfe came, and tolde her husbände, sayinge: a man of God came vnto me, & I fastid of hum was lyke the fastion of an angel of God exceedinge fearful, but I asked hym not whence he was, neyther tolde he me hys name, but sayde vnto me: beholde, thou shalt be wpth chylde & beare a sone, & nowre dypne no wyne nor stronge dypne, neyther eat anye vncleane thyng: for I lab shall be an abstayner to God euen from hys

Then Manoah made intercession to the Lozde and sayde: I praye the my Lozde, let the man of God whycher thou sentest, come once more vnto vs, and teache vs what we shal do vnto the lad when he is boyne. And God hearde the voyce of Manoah, and the Angell of God came agayne vnto the wyfe as he sat in the felde. But Manoah her husbände was not wpth her. And the wyfe made hast and ranne, and shewed her husbände and sayde vnto hym: Beholde, the man appeared vnto me that came vnto me to daye.

And Manoah arose and went after his wyfe, and came to the man, and sayde vnto hym, arte thou the man that spakest vnto my wyfe? And he sayd: I am. Manoah sayde: nowe when thy sayenge is come to passe: what shalbe the maner of the chylde, and what shal he dor? And the Angell of the Lozde sayd vnto Manoah: thy wyfe must absteyne from al that I sayd vnto her, she maye eat of nothyng that cometh of the vyne tre, nor dypne wyne or stronge dypne, nor eat anye vncleane thyng: But must obserue all that I had her. Manoah sayde vnto an angel of the Lozde we wyl kepe the til, vntyl we haue made redy a lpd, and haue set it before the. And the Angell of the Lozde sayde vnto Manoah: though thou make me abyde, I wyl not eate of thy bryade. And if thou wylte offer a burnt offeringe, thou must offer it vnto the Lozde. For Manoah wylt not that it was an angell of the Lozde. And Manoah sayde agayne vnto the angell of the Lozde what is thy name, that whi thy sayenge is come to passe we maye do the some wo: they ppe. And the angell of the Lozde sayde vnto hym: why askest thou after my name, whycher is secrete.

And so Manoah toke a lpd wth a meat offeringe and offered it vpon a rocke vnto the Lozde. And the Angell dyd wonderous ppe. Manoah and his wyfe looking vpon. And when flame came vnto warde heauen from the altare, the angel of the Lozde ascended vp in the flame of the altare. And Manoah and hys wyfe looked vpon it, and fell flat on theys faces vnto the ground. But the angel of the Lozde dyd nomore appare vnto Manoah and hys wyfe. And then Manoah knewe that it was an angell of the Lozde, and sayde vnto hys wyfe: we shall surely dye, because we haue sene God. But his wyfe sayd vnto him: If the Lozde wolde kyll vs, he wolde not haue receaued a burnt offeringe & a meat offeringe of oure of our babies, neyther wolde he haue shewed us all these thinges, nor wolde nothe haue told us any such. And the wyfe bare a sonne, and called his name Samson. And the lad grew, and the Loide blessed hym. And the spere of the Loide begane to moue hym in the boosle of Dan, betweene Zarah and Ethanol.

And now geue me her to wyfe. Then his father and mother sayde vnto hym: Is ther neuer a woman among the doughters of the breshien, and amonge all my people, but that thou must go, and take a wyfe of the uncircumcised philistines? And Samson sayd vnto his father: geue me this woman for she please me wel. But his father and mother sought an occasion agaynst f philistines, for as f tyme f philistines reigned ouer Israel.

Dist. vii. a

25 Then wile Samson & his father & his mother downe to Thannath, & came to the vineyardes of Thannath. And behold, a yong-^(was) lyon roared vpon hym. And the spere of f Lord came vpon hym. And he tare hym, as he wolde haue rent a kybbe, and yet had nothyng in his hand, neyther tolde his father & mother what he had done. And he wile downe, & talked w the woman which seemed well lanozed in f syght of Samson. And wythin a thote space after as he wente thither agayn to take her to wyfe, he turned out of the waye, to le f carhulle of f lio. And behold ther was a swarme of bees and honny in the carhulle of the lion. And he toke of the honny in his handes, and wente eatyng, & came to his father and mother, and gaue them also. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honny out of the carhulle of the lyon.

And so his father came vnto the woman and Samson made ther a feast, for so wiled the yong men to do. And wile they ^(the cherys of that place) sa we hym, they brought xxx. companions to be wyth hym. And Samson sayd vnto the: I wyl now put forth a ryddle vnto you: And yf you can declare it me wythin. vii. dayes of the feast, and fynd it out, I wyl gyue you xxx. vertes, & xxx. chaunge of garnytes. But and yf you can not declare it me, then shal ye geue me xxx. vertes and xxx. chaunge of garnytes. And they answered hym: put forth thy ryddle, that we may heare it. And he sayde vnto them: Out of the eater came meate: & out of the stronge came sweetnes. And they coude not in. iii. dayes expounde the ryddle. And when the seuench day was come they sayd vnto Samsons wyfe: fatter thyne hande, & ^(and geue me hym) that he maye declare vnto the ryddle, least we burne f and the fasters house to fyre. Hane ye called vs hither, to make vs beggers? And Samsons wyfe wept before hym-^(comptayn) and sayd: Surely thou hast tell me and I haue told me: for thou hast put forth a ryddle: vnto the cherys of my folke and hast not tolde it me. And he sayde vnto her: Behold I haue not tolde it my father, and my mother & shall I tell it the?

And Samsons wyfe wept before hym. vii. dayes, wyle the feast lasted. And the. vii. daye he tolde her, because she sape so sape vpon hym. And she tolde it the cherys of her folke. And f men of the cytie sayd vnto hym f seuench daye, before the sonne went downe. What is sweeter then honie, & what is stronger then a lyb? Then sayde he vnto them: Yf ye had not plowed wyth mynawse, ye had not tolde out my ryddle. And the spere of f Lord cam vnto hym. And he went downe to Achah, & fewe thyt men of them and spoiled them, & gaue chaunge of garnytes vnto them wyth expounde the ryddle. And he was wioth, and went vp to his fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was gyuen to one of his companions, that he had taken vnto hym.

C The xv. Chapter.

C Samson is lict a lyon, he is lict a ryddle, he is lict a ryddle, he is lict a ryddle, he is lict a ryddle.

But it chaunced wythin a whyle after-^(in the tyme of) when Samson visited his wyfe with a kid sayenge: I wyl go into my wyfe into the chamber: but her father woulde not suffer hym to go in. And her father sayde: I thought that thou haddest hated her, and therfore gaue I her vnto one of thy companions. Is not her yonger siter siter then she? Take her in stead of the other. Samson sayde vnto the: Now am I more blameles the the philistines, & therfore wyl I do them dyspleasure.

And Samson went out, and caught thre hundred fores, & toke fye handes, and fastened the tayle to tayle, & put a fye hande in the myddes betwene two tayles. And when he had set the handes of fyer, he sent the out, ^(that they myght runne abrode, wher they went immediately) into f standyng corne of the philistines, and burnt vp bothe the reped corne and also the standyng, with the by nepardes and olynas. Then f philistines sayd who hath done this? And it was tolde them f Samson the sonne in la we of f Thannath, because he had taken his wyfe, and gyuen her to his companion. And the philistines came vp and burnt her and her father wyth fyre.

And Samson sayde vnto them: Though ye haue done this, yet wyl I be auenged of you & then I wyl cease. And he smote them legge and thyrgh with a myghty plage. And then he went and dwelt in the cave of the rocke Etam.

Then the philistines came vp, and pitched in Iuda, & lape in-^(a place, that was aduerselye called) a lapp-^(that is a lapp, where they built their houses). And the men of Iuda sayde, wher are ye com vp vnto vs? They answered to bynd Samson are we come vp, and to do to hym as he hath done to vs. Then the thousand men of Iuda went downe to the cave of the rocke Etam, and sayd to Samson: wotest f not f the philistines are are rulers ouer vs: Wherefore then haste thou done thus vnto vs: he answered the, * as they dyd vnto me, so haue I done vnto them.

And they sayd vnto him agayne: we are come downe to bynde the, and deliuer the into the handes of the Philistines. And Samson sayd vnto the: sweare vnto me, * (that is to saye) that ye shall not fall vpon me your selves. They answered hym saying: No, but we wyl bynde the & deliuer the vnto they: handes. But we wil not kyle the. And they bounde hym with two newe coorbes, and brought him from the roche. And whē he came to Lehi, the Philistines shouted against him. And the spyrite of the Lord came vpon him, and he coorbes that were vpon his armes, became as flaxe that was burnt wth fyre, for the bandes loosed fro of his handes. And he founde a rotten iawbone of an asse, and put to the his hande, and caught it, and slue a thousande men therewith.

And Samson sayd: wth the iawbone of an asse haue I made heapes of them: wth the iaw of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And whē he had left sp: aking: he cast away the iawbone out of his hande, and called: the place: Ramath Lehi.

And he was soe a thysit, and called on the Lord, and sayde: thou hast giuen this great victorie, in the hande of thy seruante. And nowe I must dye for thysit, and fall into the handes of vncircumcised. But God brake a great toth^e was in the iaw, and there came water theroute. And when he had dronke his spyrite came agayne, & he was refreshed, wherfore the name therof is called vnto this daye, the well of the caller on, which came of the iaw. And he iudged Israel in the dayes of the Philistines twentye yeres.

¶ The xvi. Chapter.

Samson lyeth by the gates of Gaza. He was deceyved by Dalila. He putted downe the haire vpon the Philistines, and dyeth with them.

When went Samson to Azah, * & sawe there an harlot, and went in vnto her. And it was tolde the Azarhites: sayyng: Dalson is come hither. And they went about, and layed wayte for hym there all nyght in the gate of the cytie, and were styll all the nyght, sayyng: in the mornynge when it is day we shal kyle hym. And Dalson toke his rest tyll midnight, & arose at mydnyght, and toke the doores of the gates of the cytie, & the two side pooles, and rent them of, wth the barre and al, and put them vpon his shoulders, and carryed them vnto the toppe of an hyl that is before Hebzon.

And after this it fortuned, that by the request of Bozeth, he loued a woman called Dalila: vnto whome came the lordes of the Philistines, and sayd vnto her: perswade hym, and se where in his great strength lyeth, and by what meane we maye overcome hym, that we maye bynde him, to bynge hym vnder: and enerye one of vs shal gyue the a leuen hundred spynnynges.

And Dalila sayde to Samson: O tell me where thy great strength lyeth, and howe thou myghtest be bounde, and brought vnder. Samson answered vnto her: If they bynde me wth seven greene wythes that were neuer dyled, I shalbe weake as other men.

And thā the lordes of the Philistines brought her seven wythes that were yetterne, and neuer dyled, and she bounde him therewith. For withstanding he had men lyinge in wayte with her in the chamber. And she sayde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And immediatly he brake the wythes as a strynge of towne (that is to saye) breaketh, when it feeleth fyre. And so his strength was not known.

And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: Se, thou hast mocked me & tolde me lyes. Nowe therfore tel me wherwth thou mightest be bound. He answered her: If they bynde me wth newe ropes & neuer were occupied, I shalbe weake, and as another man. Dalila therfore toke newe ropes, & bound him therewith, & sayd vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyes of wayte in the chamber, & he brake them from of his armes, as they had bene but a threde. And Dalila sayd to Samson: hys herte thou hast begyled me & tolde me lyes: yet tel me howe thou mightest be bound. He sayde vnto her: If thou plattedest p. vii. lockes of my heed wth an herre lace. And she fastened them wth a naple, and sayde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of hys slepe, and plucked awaye the naple that was in the platting wth the herre lace. And she sayde vnto him agayne: howe canst thou saye that thou louest me: when thynne heed is not with me? Beholde, thou hast mocked me this thye tymes, and haste not tolde me wherwth thy great strength lyeth.

And as she laye vpon hym wth her woordes continually bering of him, his soule was enebied euen vnto the death. And so he tolde her all his herte, and sayde vnto her: there neuer came rasour vpon myne heed, for I haue bene an vstrapper: (that is to saye, consecrate) vnto God, euen from my mothers wombe: therfore when I am shauen, my strength wyl goe from me, & I shal be weake, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalila sawe that he had tolde her all hys herte, she sente, and called for the lordes of the Philistines, sayyng: come by yet this once, for he hath shewed me all hys herte.

Thā the lordes of the Philistines came by vnto her, & brought the money in they: handes. And she made him slepe vpon her lynes: (that is to saye, layed downe in her lap,) and she sent for a man, and he dyd shawe of the seven lockes of his heed, and began to berre him, & his strength was gone from him. And she sayd: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, and sayde: I wyl go out now as at other tymes, and make my selfe, and he wyl not see the Lord was departed from hym. But the Philistines toke hym, & put out hys eyes, and brought hym downe to Azah, and bound hym wth two fetters of brasse. And he dyd grynde in the pyson house: howbeit the heed of his heed began to grow agayne after that he was shauen.

Then the lordes of the Philistines gathered the together for to offer a soleymne offering vnto Dagon their God, and to reioyse: for they sayd: our our God hath deliuered Samson out of our enemy into our handes. And when the people saw him they prayed they: god for they sayde: our god hath deliuered into our handes our enemy and destroyer of our country, whiche slue manye of vs. And when they: vertes were merke, it fortuned, that they sayde: sende for Samson, that he maye make vs laugh.

6 And they set Samson out of the prison house, and he played before them, and they set hym betweene the pylers. And Samson sayd vnto the ladde that led hym by the hande: set me that I maye touche the pylers that the house standeth vpon, and that I maye leane to them. And the house was full of men and women. And there were al the lordes of the Philistines. And there were vpon the roofo a thre thousande men and women that behelde whyle Samson played.

And Samson called vpon the Lorde, & sayd: O Lorde God thyne vpon me, and strengthen me, at this tyme onely: O God that I maye be auenged of the Philistines for my eyes. And Samson caught the two midle pylers on which the house stood, and on whiche it was borne vpon the one in his right hand, & the other in his left, and sayde: my soule shall bye to the Philistines, and bowed them to all his myght. And he boult fell vpon the lordes, & vpon all the people that were therein. And so the deed whiche he did at his death was mo then they which he lue in his lyfe. And then his brethren & al the house of his father came dohome and toke him vp, & brought him and buried him betweene zarah and Estahol, in the burying place of Manoah his father. And he iudged Israel twentye yeres.

The xvii. Chapter.

Col michah, whose mother made hym an idol of syle.

3 There was a man in mount Ephraim named Michah, and he sayd vnto his mother: the leue hundred siluerlinges that were taken fro the about which thou cursedst and spakest it in myne eares. Behold, the siluer is to me, I toke it away. And his mother sayd: blessed be thou my son in the Lorde. And wher he had restozed the leuen hundred siluerlinges to his mother agayne, his mother said: I would I might to the Lorde of myne hand for my son, & thou shouldest make a grauen ymage and an ymage of metall. Nowe therfore I will gyue it to agayne. And wher he restozed I moupe vnto his mother, his mother toke two hundred siluerlinges, & gaue the to a goldsmith, whiche made therof a grauen ymage, and an ymage of metall, and it was in the house of Michah. And the man Michah hadde a temple of goddes, and made an Ephod and Theraphim: (that is to saye a garment for the priest, and photo.) And fylled the hande of one of his sones which became his priest. In those dayes there was no kynge in Israel, but euery man did what which was good in his own eyes.

And there was a ponge man oute of Bethlehem Juda, of the kyned of Juda: which ponge man was a Leuite, and sojourned there. And he departed out of the cytie of Bethlehe Juda, to goo dwel where he coulde fynde a comenient place. And he came to mount Ephraim to the house of Michah as he iourned. And Michah sayd vnto hym: whence comest thou? The Leuite answered hym: I am of Bethlehem Juda, and go to dwell where I may fynde a place, (and wher I maye chuse it to be for my pietyte.) And Michah sayde agayne vnto hym: dwel with me, and be vnto me a father and a priest. And I will gyue the ten siluerlinges by yere, two garmentes, and thy meate and drynke.

And the Leuite was content to dwell with the man, and was vnto him as one of his owne sonnes. And Michah consecrated the hand of the Leuite, and the younge man became his priest, and was in the house of Michah. Then sayd Michah: now I am sure that the Lorde will be good vnto me: for I haue a Leuite to my priest.

The xviii. Chapter.

The children of Dan take the goddes and the priest of michah away. They destroye Laia, and after burye it agayne.

In those dayes & there was no kynge in Israel. And in those dayes the trybe of Dan sought the an enheritaunce to dwell in: for vnto that tyme there fel none inheritaunce vnto them amonge the trybe of Israel.

And the children of Dan sent of they: hymned, & actiue me in leates of warre out of their cootes, out of zarah & Estahol, to vne land & searche it out, & sayde vnto them: go & searche out a lande. Which when they came to mount Ephraim eue to the house of Michah they lodged there. And wher they were in the house of Michah, they knewe the voyce of a yonge man the Leuite: and wher they turned in thither, they sayd vnto him: who broughte the hyder: what makest thou in this place: and what hast thou here? And he answered the: thus & thus dealeth Michah to me, & hath hired me, and I am become his priest. And they sayde vnto hym agayne: The counsaile now of God, that we may knowe whether the waye whiche we go shall be prosperous or no. And the priest sayde vnto them: go in peace, for the Lorde guydeth your waye whiche ye go.

And the hye men departed and came to Laia and saue the people that were therein, howe they dwelt carelesse, after the maner of the Sidons, styll and without castynge of parples, and no man made any trouble in the lande, or vsurped any dominio, but were far from the Sidons, & had no busynesse w other men. And they came vnto they: brethren to zarah & Estahol. And they: brethren sayde vnto them: what haue ye done? And they answered: Arple, that we maye go vpon agaynst the, for we haue sene the lande, surely a very good one. And do ye sit styll: be not slouthfull to depart. But come to conqurre the lande: (it hath no labour.) If ye will goo, ye shall come vnto a people that casteth no parples, and it is a very large countrie: which God hath gyuen into your handes. It is also a place whiche doeth lacke nothing that is in the worlde.

And there departed thence of the hymned of the Danites, out of zarah and Estahol, vi hundred men appoynted with instrumentes of warre warre. And they went vp and pitched in Hariath Jarim which is in Iuda. Wherefore they call the place, the host of Dan vnto this day: and it is on the backeside of Hariath Jarim. And they went thence vnto mounte Ephraim, and came to the house of Micah. This answered the fyue men þ went to spyre out the coultrie of Laiz and sayd vnto they: brethren: wot ye not, that there is in these houses an Ephod, Cheraphim, a grauen ymage and an ymage of metall. Now therfore consyde what ye haue to do.

And they turned eicherwarde & came to the house of þ sponge man the Leuite, euen vnto the house of Micah, & saluted hym peaceably. And the vi. hundred men gyrded w weapons of war which were of the chyldren of Dan, stode by the entrynge of the gate. And the fyue men þ went to spyre out the lande, went in ecyther and toke þ harned ymage and the Ephod, Cheraphim, & the ymage of metall. And the priesse stode in the entrynge of the gate w the fyre hundred men þ were armed vnto battayl, whyle the other wote into Micahs house, and for the harned ymage, the Ephod, Cheraphim and the ymage of metall. Then sayd þ priesse vnto the: what do ye? They answered hym: holde thy pece, laye thyne hand vpo thy mouth, and come w vs to be our father and priesse. Is it better for the to be a priesse vnto the house of one man, than to be a priesse vnto a trybe of hymned in Israel? And the priesse was glad and toke the Ephod and Cheraphim, and the grauen ymage, and wente with the people. And they turned & departed, & put the chyldren the catel and their other substancer before them.

And when they were a good waye from the house of Micah, the men þ were in the houses, & in Micahs house, made oute crye, & folowed after the chyldren of Dan, and called vnto them. And they turned theys faces, & sayde vnto Micah: what ayleth the, that thou makest an outecrye? And he sayde haue taken away my goddes which I made, and also the priesse, and goo poure wayes wyth them. And what haue I moze? howe then saye ye vnto me: what ayleth the? And the chyldren of Dan sayde vnto hym: let not thy voce be hearde amonge vs, lest angre felowes runne vpon the, and thou lese thy lyfe with the lyues of thyne household. And so the chyldren of Dan went theys wayes.

And whē Micah saw þ they wer to strong for h, he turned, & wot back vnto his house agayne. And they toke the thynge which Micah had made, and the priesse which he had, and cam vnto Laiz, euen vnto a people that were at rest and without mistrust, and smote them with the edge of the sword, and burnte the ctyte wyth fyre. And there was no man to helpe, because Laiz was farre from Sidon, and they had no meddylng wyth any other man. And the ctyte stode in the valleye that lyeth by Bethrean.

And they buylt them there a ctyte, and dwelt therein. * And called it Dan after the name of Dan theys father whiche was borne vnto Israel. howbeit in verye dede the name of the ctyte was Laiz at the begynnyng.

And the chyldren of Dan set them vp the grauen ymage. And Jonathan the son of Gelson, the son of Manasse, & dyssonnes were the priesstes in þ trybe of Dan: vntyll they were carped a way out of þ lande captiue. And they set them vp the harned ymage which Micah made, all þ whyle the house of God was in Silo.

¶ The xix Chapter.

¶ Of the Leuite, whose wyfe was bylawfullye applyed in Gibea.

¶ Chaunced in those dayes, whē there was no kyng in Israel, þ a certayne Leuite sojourning on þ syde of mount Ephraim: toke to wyfe a concubine out of Bethlehe Iuda, & dys concubine played the whoze by hym, & went a waye from hym vnto her fathers house to Bethlehe Iuda, and there cōtynued foure monethes. And her husbandre arose and went after her, to speake frendly vnto her, and to buyng her home agayne, ha-uyng his ladde with hym: and a couple of asses. And she brought hym vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damsel sawe hym, he reioysed of his comynge. And his father in lawe the damels father kepte hym: And the Leuite abode with him thes dayes, and so they dyd eate and drynke, and lodged there.

The fourth daye when they arose early in the moynng, the man stode vp, to departe. And the damels father sayd vnto his sonne in lawe: ch-fozt thyne hert with a morsell of bzeed, & then go pour way. And they sat downe, & dyd eate & drynke bothe of them toggyther. And the damels father sayde vnto the man: Be contente I praye the, and tary al nyght, and let thyne herte be mery. And when the man stode readye to depart, his father in lawe compelled him to turne agayne, and tarye all nyght there. And he arose vp early the fift daye to departe, and the damels father sayde: comfort thyne herte: and they taryed vntyll after mydday. And they dyd eate bothe of them toggyther.

And when the man arose to depart w his concubine and his lad, his father in lawe the damels father sayd vnto him: beholde, the daye goeth fast a waye and draweth towarde euen, tary al nyght: at þ leest waye tary this day here, þ thyne hert may be mery. And tomorrow get you earlye vpon poure waye, that thou mayest get the to thy tente. Aunthelater, the man wolde not tary, but arose & departed, & came as far as Jebus (which is at Ierusalem) and his two asses laden, and his concubine and his lad with hym. And whē they were fast by Jebus the day was soze spent, and the poung man sayde vnto his master: come I praye the, & let vs turne in, into thes ctyte of the Jebusites, and lodge all nyght there. His master answered hym: we wyll not tounne into a straunge ctyte that are not of the chyldren of Israel: we wyll go forth to Gibea. And he sayde vnto dys lad: goo fozward, and we shall come to one of these places, to lodge al nyght ecyther in Gibea, or in Rama. And they went fozward vpon theys waye, and the sun went downe vpo them, when they were fast by

And when he came, he satte hym downe in a strete of the cite, for there was nom¹ that toke them to lodgyng. And be holde there came an old man from his wyche, out of the cite at even, which was also of mount Ephraim, and dwelte as a stranger in Sibea. But the men of the place were the chyldren of Jemini.

And when he had lyfte up his eyes, he sawe a wayfaryng man in the stretes of Egypte. And the olde man sayd: whither goest thou? And whither camest thou? he answered hym: we came from Bethlehe Juda, towa: be the syde of mount Ephraim: fro thence am I, and I wente to Bethlehem Juda, & go now to the house of the Lord. And there is no ma that receyvethe me to house. We have strawe & psonandye for our asses, and beere & wyne for me & the handmayde, and for the lad that is wth the struait: & we lack nothing.

The olde man sayde: praye be wth the, all the night. I shall lacke the thou synde wth me: onelye a byde not in the strete all nyght, and so be brought hym in to his house, and gaue lodde vnto his asses. And they walched they: feet, & byd care & drinke. And as they were making they: beddes merpe, beholde, the men of the cite which were wicked briefe the house rounde aboute, and thrust at the doore, and spake to the man of the house, the olde man, saying: bringe forth the man that came in to thyne house that we maye knowe hym.

And the man of the house, the olde ma went out, and sayde vnto them: Oh naye my byerdes do not so wickedly, seeing that this man is come into myne house: do not so vnniceate a chynge.

Beholde, here is my daughter, a mayden, and this mans concubine, them wil I hung out now vnto you, and hable them, and do wth them what seemeth you good: but to this man do not so abominable a thyng. But the m¹ wolde not hearken to him. And the m¹ toke his concubine, and broughte her out vnto the, which knewe her and abused her all the nyght, vnto the morning. And when the daye began to spyng, they let her go.

And she came the woman in the dawnyng of the daye, and fell downe at the doore of the mans house where her lord was tyll it was daye. And her lord arose vp in the morning, & opened the doores of the house & wote out to go his way. And beholde, the woman, euen his concubine laye a lunge before the doore of the house, and her handes stretched out vpon the thersholde. And he

on (thyng) sayde vnto her: up and let vs be going. But she answered not. The the man (perceyvinge that she was dead) toke her up vpon an asse, and stode up, and gate hym vnto his owne home. And when he was come to his house, he toke a knyfe and caught his concubine, and divided her with the bones into twelve peeces, and set her vnto all quarters of Israel. And all that sawe it sayde: there was no suche dede done o: tene syns the chyldren of Israel came out of Egypte vnto this daye, conspyde the matter, take a dupment and saye: pour in pndes.

The .xx. Chapter

The battayle of the Ephraimites against the tribes of Beniamin, for the Levites wyfe which was killed.

Then all the chyldren of Israel went out: and the congregacion was gathered together as it hadde bene but one man, euen fro Dan to Berseba, and vnto the lande of Gilead vnto the Lorde in Wispa, and there stode folke out of all quarters and of all the trybes of Israel in the congregacion of the people of God. iiii. hundred thousande footmen that dreywe swordes. And when the chyldren of Beniamin herde that the chyldren of Israel were gone up to Wispa, and had sayde: O ye chyldren of Israel, tell vs howe this wychednesse happened. And the Levite the womans husbnde & was slayne, answered and sayd: I came vnto Sibea that is in Beniamin & my concubine to lodge all nyght, and the m¹ of Sibea arose agaynst me, & beset the house round about vpon me by nyght, and thought to have slayne me, & my concubine have so forced & he is deed: And I toke my concubine, and cutte her in peeces, and sent her thoroughout all quarters of the inheritaunce of Israel. For they have committed abhominacion & toly in Israel. Behold, ye are all chyldren of Israel. Donde this matter, & gyve your aduys in the case.

And all the people arose as it had ben one m¹, saying: there shal not a man of vs go to his tent neether turne into his house. But this shalbe it & we will do to Sibea. We wyl go up by lorde agaynst it. And we wyl take ten men of the hundred thousande out of all the trybes of Israel, and an hundred of the thousande, and wyl. out of .x. wyl. to set v: twayne for the people to make that they may go agaynst Sibea Beniamin, because of all the abhominacion, that they have wrought in Israel. And so all the men of Israel gathered together agaynst the cite, knyt together, as it had bene but one man. And the tribes of Israel sent men thorow all the trybe of Beniamin, saying: what wickednesse is this that is happened among you? Nowe therfore deliuer vs the m¹, those chyldren of Belial which are in Sibea, & we may slay the, & put away euil from Israel.

Reuerthelater, the chyldren of Beniamin wolde not hearken vnto the voyce of they: byerdes the chyldren of Israel, but gathered the selues together out of the cities vnto Sibea, to come out and fyght agaynst the chyldren of Israel. And the chyldren of Beniamin were nombred at that tyme out of the cities. .xxvi. thousand m¹ that dreywe swordes, besyde the inhabitours of Sibea, which were nombred seven hundred chofte men. And amonge all these folke were seven hundred lefte handed men, which euery one coulde synge stones at an hert byrabeth, and not myse. And the chyldren of Israel besyde Beniamin, were nombred foure hundred thousande men that dreywe swordes, and were all men of warre.

And the chyldren of Israel arose, & went up to Bethel. & asked counsayl of God who shoulde begyn the battayl agaynst the chyldren of Beniamin. And the Lord sayd: Juda shal begyn. And the chyldren of Israel stode up early and besieged Sibea.

Gibea. And the men of Israel went out to battaye agaynst Ben Jamin. And the men of Israel put them selues in aray to fyghte agaynst them, besyde Gibea. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out of Gibea, and destroyed of the Israelites that daye. xxii. thousande men, and brought them to the earth.

And the folke of the chyldren of Israel placed vp theyr hertes, and went to agayn, & made battell in the same place where they dyd the first daye. And the chyldren of Israel went vp and wept before the Lorde vnto euen, and asked of the Lorde, sayinge: Shall we go agayne to battaye agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin oure brethren? And the Lorde sayde: go vp agaynst them. And the chyldren of Israel came oute a-gaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin the seconde daye. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin went agaynst them out of Gibea the second day, and destroyed to the earth of the chyldren of Israel ones a-gayne. xviii. thousande men that dyd we swea-red euery man of them. Then the chyldren of Israel and all the people went vp, and came vnto Bethel, and wept and sat there before the Lorde and fasted the same daye vnto euen, and offered burntofferinges and peaceofferynges before the Lorde. And the chyldren of Israel asked the Lorde: for there was the arke of the appoyntement of God in those dayes. And whynches the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron waytyng vpon it at that tyme, sayde: What I get me vp to go out any more to battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin my brethren, or shall I cease?

The Lorde sayd: go, for to morowe I will de-liuer them into your handes. And Israel set theyr wayte round about Gibea. And the chyldren of Israel went vp agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin the thyrde tyme, and put them selues in aray agaynst Gibea, as they were before. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came oute agaynst the people, and were daren a way from the cypse.
And they began to smyte of the people deed (as they were before, by two hye wayes, of whiche one goth vp to Bethel & the other to Gibea thowow the feilde) vpon a thyrde tyme men of Israel. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin sayde: They are fallen before vs, as at the fyrst. But the chyldren of Israel sayde: let vs lye and plucke them away from the cypse, vnto the hye wayes.

And all the men of Israel rose vp out of theyr place, & put the selues in aray at Baal Thamar.
And likewise the Iyers in wayte of Israel came forth out of theyr places, out of the medowes & were about Gibea, & came agaynst Gibea: ten thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and there was a soxe battell. But the other wyse not that so greafe euill was to npe them. And the Lorde plaged Ben Jamin before Israel, and the chyldren of Israel destroyed of the Ben Jamites the same daye. xxv. thousande & an hundred men, & dye swerdes euery one of them. And when the chyldren of Ben Jamin sawe that they were put to the worste, the men of Israel gaue rounne to the Ben Jamites, because they trusted to the Iyers in wayte which they had layde besyde Gi-

bea. And the Iyers in wayte hasted, and ranne vpon Gibea, & went and smote all the cite with the edge of the sword. And an appoyntment had the men of Israel fro the Iyers in wayte, & they shulde make a great smoke rise vp out of the ci-tie. And when the men of Israel fled in the battelle: Ben Jamin began to smyte deed of the chyldren of Israel about a. xxx. personnes, and sayd the other are put to the worste before vs, as in the fyrst battell. But when there began to arise out of the cypse a pyllet of smoke, the Ben Jamites loked backe, and beholde, the waytyngs of the hole cypse began to ascende vp to heauen.

Wher the men of Israel also turned agayne, the men of Ben Jamin were abashed, for they saw the euill approached the. And therefore they turned theyr backs before the men of Israel, vnto the way that leadech to the wilderness, but the me of war overtoke the. And besyde that, they which came out of the cite destroyed them in the mydle of the. And thus they cōsped the Ben Jamites about, & chased the to Demutha, & ouertan them to Gibea on the east syde: & there were slayne of Ben Jamin. xviii. thousand, which were all men of war. And they turned & fled to the wilderness warde, & vnto the roche of Rimmon. And the other lye by the way of the rest of them. v. thousand men, & they came vnto them, vntyl they cam to Gibea, & slue two thousande men of them.
So that all that were slayne that same daye of Ben Jamin were. xxv. thousand men that dyd swedes, which were all men of war: onely. vi. hundred men turned & fled to the wilderness, vnto the roche of Rimmon, & abode there foure monethes. And the me of Israel turned back agayne vnto the chyldren of Ben Jamin, & smote the with the edge of the swerde in the cypses, both man and beast and all that came to hande, and set on fyr all the cypses that they coude come by.

The. xxi. Chapter.

The inhabitants of Gilead are utterly destroyed.

And euery man of Israel swore in Mizpa, & sayinge: there shall none of vs geue his daughter vnto any of Ben Jamin to wife.
And the people came to Bethel, and abode there tyll euen before God, and lye vp theyr voyces, and wept soxe, and sayd. O Lord God of Israel why is this chaunced in Israel, that there shoulde be thys daye one trybe lacking in Israel? And on the morowe the people rose vp by tyme, and made there an altare, and offered burntofferynges and peaceofferynges.

And the chyldren of Israel asked, who are they among all the trybes of Israel, that came not vp to the cōgregation vnto the Lorde, for they had made a great oth concerninge him that came not vp to the Lorde to Mizpa, sayinge: he shall surely dye. And the chyldren of Israel had pytie on Ben Jamin theyr brethren, & sayde: there is one trybe cut of fro Israel this daye: what shall we do vnto the remnant of them, that they may haue wyues? we haue sworne by the Lorde: that we wyl not geue them of oure daughters to wyues. And they sayde: Is there any of the trybes of Israel

The booke of Ruth.

The first Chapter.

Elimelech went with his wyfe and chyldren in to the lande of Moab.

As it is written that on (in the dayes of a certayne Judge.) when the iudges iudged there fell a darth in the lande, and a certayne man of Bethlehem Juda wente for to sojourne in the countrey of Moab: he and his wyfe, and his two sonnes. The name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of his wyfe, Raomi: and the names of his two sonnes were, Mahlon, and Chilion, and they were Ephraimites, out of Bethlehem Juda. And when they came into the lande of Moab, they continued there. And Elimelech Raomies husbande dyed, and she remayned with her two son-nes which toke them wyues of the nations of Moabites: the ones name was Orpha, and the others Ruth: And they dwelled there aboute a ten yere. And Mahlon & Chilion dyed also euen both of them, and the woman was left desolate of her two sonnes & of her husband: Then she drew vp with her daughters in lawe, and returned from the countrey of Moab: for she had herd say in the countrey of Moab, how that the Lorde had visited his people, and gyven them bread.

Wherfore she departed out of the place where she was, & her two daughters w her. And they went on theyr way to retorne vnto the lande of Juda. And Raomi sayde vnto her two dought-ters in lawe: go & retorne eche of you vnto your mothers house: & the Lorde deale as kindly w you as ye haue dealt w the deede: and wyth me. And the Lorde gyue you, & you may fynde rest, either of you in the house of her husbände. And when she kyssed the, they lyft vp theyr voyce, & wept, and sayde vnto her: we wyll go w the vnto thy folke. And Raomi sayde: tourne agayne my doughters: for what cause wil you go with me?
Are there any mo chyldren in my wombe, to be your husbandes? Turne agayne my doughters & go: for I am to olde to haue an husbände. And yt I sayd: I haue hope, yt I take a mā also this nyght: yea & though I had alreadye bozne son-nes, wolde ye tary after them, tyll they were of age: or wolde ye for them so longe retrayne frō takyng of husbādes? Not so my doughters: for it greueth me moche for your sake that the bande of the Lorde is gone out agaynst me.

And they lyfte vp theyr voyces, and wepte agayne, and Orpha kyssed her mother in lawe, but Ruth abode still by her. And Raomi sayd: se, thy syster in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people and vnto her goodes: retourne thou after her. And Ruth answered, entreate me not to leaue the, and to retourne from after the: for whether thou goest, I wyll go also, and where thou dwellest, there I wyll dwell: thy people shalbe my people, and thy God my God. Where thou dyest there wyll I dye, and there wyll I be buried. The Lorde do so & so to me, as ought but that came not vp to Gitya to the Lorde: And behold, there came none of the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead vnto the hooste and congregacion.

For the people were deuoyd, and beholde, there were none of the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead there: And they set theyder a multitude, eue fiftithousande men of the strongest of them, and commaunded them, sayinge: go and smyte the inhabitours of Jabes Gilead with the edge of the swearde, both women and chyldren. And this is it that ye shal do, vnto the destructione of all the males and all the women that haue lyeuen by men.
And they founde among the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead foure hundred damselfs, virgins, & had knowen no man, by lyinge wyth any male.
And they brought them vnto the hoost to Silo, whych is in the lande of Canaan.

And the hole congregacion set and spake with the chyldren of Ben Jamin & were in the rock of Epimmon, and called peaceably vnto them: and Ben Jamin came againe at that time, and they gaue them wyues wyche they had saved alyue of the womē of Jabes Gilead. But they suffred them not. And the people had compassion on Ben Jamin, because that God had made a gappe in the trybes of Israel. And then the elders of the congregacion, sayd: what shal we do to the remnant of them, to get them wyues, seeing all the wyues of Ben Jamin are destroyed: And they sayde: there muste be an inheritaunce for them that be escaped of Ben Jamin, that a trybe be not destroyed out of Israel, howbeit, we maye not gyue them wyues of oure doughters. For the chyldren of Israel had swoyne, sayinge: cursed be he, that gyueth a wyfe to Ben Jamin.

Then they sayde: beholde, there is a feaste of the Lorde perly in Silo, which is on the northsyde of Bethel, and on the east syde of the waye that goeth from Bethel to Sichem, & south from Libanon. Therfore they commaunded the chyldren of Ben Jamin, sayinge: go & lye in waye in the vineyardes. And when ye se the dought-ters of Silo come out to daunce in a rowe, then come ye out of the vineyardes, and catche you euery mā a wyfe of the doughters of Silo, and go into the land of Ben Jamin. And whē they fathers or brethren come vnto vs to rebplayne, we wyll saye vnto them: haue ppytie on vs for theyr sake, because we refused not to eche mā his wyfe in tyme of war. Neither haue ye gyuen vnto them, that ye shoulde synne at this tyme.

And the chyldren of Ben Jamin dyd euen so:
and toke them wyues accordyng to the nombre of them that daunced, whome they caught.
And they went, and returned vnto theyr inheritaunce, & repayred the cities and dwelt in them.

And the chyldren of Israel departed thence at that tyme, and went euery man to his trybe, & to his kynred, and went out from thence euery man to his inheritaunce. In those dayes there was no kynge in Israel: but euery man dyd that which seemed right in his owne eyes.

When she saw that she was steadfastly mynded to go with her, she left speaking unto her. And so they went both vntyl they came to Bethlehem. And whē they were come to Bethlehem it was noyſed of them thorow all the cite, and the womē ſayd: is not this Naomi? And she answered them: call me not Naomi: ^{••• (that is to ſaye, beautyfull) but call me Mara, ^{••• (that is to ſaye, bitter.)}} for the almyghty hath made me very bitter. I went out full, & the Lord hath brought me home agayne emptye. Why then call ye me Naomi: ſeing the Lord hath humbled me, & the almyghty hath brought me vnto aduerſitie? And ſo Naomi with Ruth the Moabitiffe her daughter in law returned out of the countrey of Moab, & came to Bethlehe in the begynnyng of barley harueſt.

Chr. ii. Chapter.

Church gathereth come in the felde of Booz.

Ad Naomiſ dulbande had a kynſman of ſtrength and myght (whiche was of the kynred of Elimelech) named Booz. And Ruth the Moabitiffe ſayd vnto Naomi: let me go to the felde, and gather eares of cozne: ^{••• (ſuch as the reapers leaue)} after any man, in whoſe ſpyght I fynd grace. And ſhe ſayd vnto her: go my daughter. And ſhe went, and came to the felde, and gathered after the reapers, and her chaunce was, that the ſame felde perteyned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelech. And beholde, Booz came from Bethlehem, & ſayde vnto the reapers: the Lord be wyth you. And they answered hym: the Lord bleſſe the. Then ſayde Booz vnto his ponge man that ſtoode by the reapers: whole damſel is this? And the pongeman that ſtoode by the reapers answered, & ſayde: it is the Moabitiffe damſel, that came with Naomi out of the countrey of Moab, & ſhe ſaid vnto vs: Oh let me leaſe and gather after the reapers the eares that remaine: and ſo ſhe came, and hath continued euē from the moynyng vnto now, ſaue that ſhe tarped a litle in the houſe.

Then ſayd Booz vnto Ruth: heareſt thou my daughter: go to nonother felde to gather, neither go from hence: but abyde here by my maydens. Let thine eyes be on the felde: & they maye reape, & go thou after my maydens. haue I not charged the ponge men, that they ſhall do the no hurt? Mozeouer when thou arte a thyſt, go vnto the veſſels & dypke of ſ which the laddes haue drauen. Then ſhe fel on her face, & bowed her ſelf to the ground, and ſayd vnto him: how is it? I haue founde grace in thine eyes, and that thou ſhuldeſt knowe me, ſeing I am an aliaunt.

And Booz answered and ſayd vnto her: al is told & ſhewed me & thou haſt done vnto thy mother in law ſyns the death of thine huſband, how thou haſt left thy father and thy mother, and the lande where thou waſt borne, & art come vnto a nation which thou kneweſt not in tyme paſſed. The Lord quyte thy wozke, and a full reward be gyven the of the Lord God of Iſrael: vnder whole wynges thou arte come to abyde. Then ſhe ſayde: let me fynde fauoure in thy ſpyght my lord, thou that haſte comforted me, and ſpoken partely vnto thy mayde, which yet am not lyke vnto one of thy maydens. Booz ſayde vnto her agayne: in tyme of reſection come thou byt her, and eate of the bread, and dyp thy ſop in the vynegre. And ſhe ſatte downe by the reapers, & he reached her parched cozne: of the whiche ſhe dyd eate, and was ſufficed, and leſte part. And when ſhe was tyen vp to gather, Booz commaunded his pong men, ſaying: let her gather euē among the heapes, & ſozbyd her not. And leue her ſome of the ſheues for the nones, and let it lye, that ſhe may gather it by. ^{••• (withour blame)} and rebuke her not. And ſo ſhe gathered in the felde, vntyl euē, and theſſhed that ſhe had gathered, & it was in meaſure vpon an Ephah, ^{••• (that is, the buſhels)} of barley. And ſhe toke it by, and went into the cite and when her mother in law had ſene what ſhe had gathered, ſhe plucked out alſo, and gaue to her that ſhe hadde reſerued, when ſhe had eaten ynough. And her mother in law ſaid vnto her: where haſte thou gathered todaye? and where wroughteſt thou: bleſſed be he, that knewe the. And ſhe ſhewed her mother in law how ſhe had wrought with hym, and ſayd: the mans name wyth whome I wrought todaye is Booz. And Naomi ſayd vnto her daughter in lawe: bleſſed be he of the Lord, for he ceaſeth not to do good to the lyping and to the dead. And Naomi ſayd agayne vnto her: the man is nye vnto vs, & of our nexte kynne. And Ruth the Moabite ſayd: he ſayde vnto me alſo. Thou ſhalt be wyth my pong men, vntyl they haue ended al my harueſt. And Naomi answered vnto Ruth her daughter in lawe: it is beſt my daughter: & thou go out wyth my maydens, that they fall not vpon the in anye other felde. And ſo ſhe kepte her by the maydens of Booz, to gather, vnto the ende of barley harueſt: and of wheate harueſt alſo: and dwelt wyth her mother in lawe.

Church cleareth at Booz ſecte, and to knowen his kynſman.

When Naomi her mother in lawe ſayde vnto her: my daughter, ſhal I not ſeke iſt for the, that thou mayeſt proſper? And is not Booz our kynſman, wyth whole maydens & waite: beholde, he wynneth barley tonyght in the theſſyng flooze: waite the thy ſelfe therfoze, and anoynte the, and put thy raymet vpon the, & get ſ downe to ſ barne. And when Booz had eaten and djonken, and made hym mery, & was gone in, to ſlepe downe by ſyde the heape of cozne, ſhe came ſoftely, & lyft vp the clothes of his ſete, & layed her downe. Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe. of whom he begeth Obed.

When went Booz vnto I gate & sat him downe there. & behold the kynsman of which Booz spake. cam by. Vnto whiche he sayde: come and Ipe downe here. and called hym by his name. And he turned in. & sat downe. And he toke. x. men of the elders of the cite. and sayde: Ipe ye downe here. And they late downe. And he sayd vnto the kynsman. I wyl purchase it.

Exod. xxi. 3. Ruth. i. 15.

Then sayd Booz: what daye I byest the felde of the hande of Naomi. I muste take also Ruth the Moabite. the wyfe of the deed. to stee vp the name of the deed vpd his enheritaunce. The kynsman answered: I can not purchase it. for marryng of myne owne enheritaunce: sake I my ryght to the. for I ca not purchase it. Now this was the maner of olde tyme in Israel concerning purchesse & chaiging. for to stablysh al thyng: I a man must plucke of hys woo. and gyue it hys neighbour. & this was a sure witnesse in Israel. Therefore the kynsman sayd to Booz: Bye it thou: & so dyne of his woo. And Booz sayd vnto the elders & vnto al the people: ye are witnesses this day. I haue bought al I was Elimelech.

al that was Elimech & Moablon. of the hande of Naomi. And mozeouer. Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of Moablon. haue I purchased to be my wyfe. to stee vp the name of the deed vpon his enheritaunce. and that this name be not put out from amonge hys brethren. and from the gate of hys place: ye are witnesses this daye.

And all the people that were in the gate. & the elders sayde: we are witnesses: the Loyde make the woman that is come into thynne house. Thy house be lyke the house of Moab: whom Chamar bare vnto Iuda. euen of the seede whiche the Loyde shall gyue the of this ponge woman.

And so Booz toke Ruth. & the was his wyfe. And when he went in vnto her. the Loyd gaue. I he conceived. & bare a sonne. And the womf sayd vnto Naomi: blessed be I Loyd. the which hath not left the without a kynsman. to haue a name in Israel. and that shall byng the Ipe agayne. & cherysh thynne old age. For thy daughter in lawe wyppeth loweth the. darthe boare vnto him: & he is better to the than seven sonnes. And Naomi toke the chyld. and layed it in her lappe. & became nource vnto it. And her neyghbours gaue it a name. saying: there is a chyld boare to Naomi. & called it Obed: the same is the father of Iai. the father of Dauid. These are the gene rations of Moab: Moab begat Bezy: Bezy ron begat Ram. Ram begat Aminadab. Aminadab begat Abilon. Abilon begat Salmon. Salmon begat Booz. Booz begat Obed. Obed begat Iai. praye & to offer vnto the Lord of holtes in Silo, where were the two sonnes of Eli (Hophni & Phinehas) the Lordes priestes. And it fell on a solempne daie, that Elikana offered, and gaue to Phinehas his wyfe and to all her sonnes and daughters porcions. But vnto Hanna he gaue a porcion with a deuy chere, for he loued hana, & the lord had made her barren. And her enemy (Phinehas) vexed her sore continually, to moue her, because the lord had made her barren. And so byd the year by year as ofte as she wēt vnto the house of the Lord. And so chafed her, whyche wept & byd not eat. The sayd Elikana her husband to her, hana why wepest thou? and why eatest thou not? why is thine herte troubled? am not I better to the, the ten sonnes? So Hanna rose vp after they had eaten & dronke in Silo. And Eli the prieste sat vpon a skole by one of the hyde postes of the temple of the Lord. And she was troubled in her mynde, & prayd vnto the Lord, & wept sore, & vowed a vowe, & sayd O Lord of holtes, if I wilt loke on the trouble of thy handmayd & remembre me, & not forget thyne handmayd but gyue vnto thy handmayd a mā child: I wil gyue hym vnto the lord al the days of his lyfe: & ther shall no raster come vpon hys head: and as she continued prayinge before the lord, it fortuned that Eli marked her mouth for hana spake in her herte, & her lippes byd but moue onely, but her voyce was not herd: and therfore Eli thought she had ben dronke, and Eli sayde vnto her: howe longe wilt thou be dronke? put away from the, the wyne thou hast. Hanna answered and sayd: not so my lord, I am a woman of a sorrowful herte: I haue dronke neyther wyne nor stronge drynke, but haue powred out my soule before the Lord. Count not thyne handmayd to be lyke a daughter of Belial, for out of the aboundaunce of my dreines and greife haue I spoken hye herto.

Eli answered her agayne: and sayde, go in peace: the God of Israel graunt the thy petition that thou hast asked of hym. She said, let thine handmayd fynde grace in thy syght. And so the woman went her waye, and byd cat, and loked no more so sad. And they rose vp early, & worshipped before the Lord, and then returned, & came to the house to Ramath. And when Elikana knewe Hanna his wyfe, the Lord remembred her, for in processe of tyme it came to passe that she conceived and bare a sonne, and called his name Samuel (sayng) because I haue asked hym of the Lord. And Elikana and all hys house wente vp to offer vnto the Lord, the offerynge due for the feast, and also hys vowe: Nevertheless, Hanna wēt not vp but sayd vnto her husband: I wil tary vntill the lad be weyned: & then I wil bring hym that he maye apreate before the lord, and there abyde for euer. Elikana her husbände answered her: do what semeth the best: tary at home, vntill thou hast weyned hym, and I beseeche the lord, to make good his saying. And so the woman abode, & gaue her sonne sucke vntill she weyned hym. And when she had weyned hym she toke him w her, with iii. bullockes and an Ephra of flour and a bottle of wyne, and brought hym vnto the house of the Lord in Silo, & the chyld was yet but tendre of age. And they slue a bullocke, & brought in the lad to Eli and the sayd: Oh my lord as truly as thy soule liueth my lord, I am the womā I stode before the here praying vnto the lord. For this lad I prayd, and the Lord hath geuen me my desire which I asked of hym, & therfore I haue grauen hym vnto the Lord, as long as he is mete for the Lord. And he worshipped the Lord there.

¶ The ii. Chapter.

The house of Hanna. The office of the sonnes of Eli.

As Hanna prayed & sayd myne herte reioyseth in the Lord, & myne toynge is exalted in the Lord. My mouth is opene ouer myne enemyes, for I reioyce in thy saluatiō. There is none so bold as the Lord, for without the, is nothyng. Neither is there any of strength as is our god. Take not to muche proudly, lette olde thinges depart out of youre mouthes for the Lord is a God of knowledge, & hys purposes come to passe. The bowe with the myghty men are broken, & they that were wreake, haue gyde them selues with strength. They that were full, haue byrd oute them selues for hys sake, and they that were hongry, cease so to be, tpe the baren hath boyn sent: and she that had many chyldre, is wared feble. The Lord killeth & maketh a lyue: byngreth downe to the graue & fetcheth vp agayne. The Lord maketh poze and maketh ryche: byngreth lowe, and deneth vp on hye. He repleth vnto the poze out of the duste, and lyfeth vnto the begger from the donghyll: to set them among prynces, and to enheret them with the seat of glory. For the pillars of the earth are the Lordes, & he hath set the rounde world vpon the. He wyl hepe the fete of hys sayntes, & the wicked shal hepe spylence in darknesse, and in hys owne myghte shall no man be stronge. The Lordes aduersaries shal be destroyed of hym, and out of heauē shall he thunder vpon every one of them: The Lord shall indge the endes of the world, and shall gyue myghte vnto hys kynge: and exalte the doyme of hys anoynted. And Elikana went to Ramath to hys house, and the ladde byd my nister vnto the Lord before Eli the priest.

But the sonnes of Eli were chyldren of Belial and knewe not the Lord. And the priestes made a law for the people, & whensoever any man offered any offerynge, the priestes lad came, whyle the fleshe was a seething & a fleshoie with thre teeth in his handes and thrust it into the panne, kettle, caldren or pottle. And al the fleshe boke brought vp, that the prieste toke away. And so they byd vnto all the Israelites, that came thither to Silo. Pea and thereto, before they burnt the fatte, the priestes lad came and sayde to the man that offered: giue fleshe that I maye dyesse it for the prieste, for he wille not haue sodden fleshe of the, but raw. And if any man sayd vnto hym: let them burne the fat accordyng to the daie, and then take as muche as thyne herte desireth: The ladde wolde answere hym, yea thou

¶ The iii. Chapter.

Wilt thou it me now: and yet thou wilt not, I will take it with violence. And the spirit of the young men was very great before the Lord. For men abhorred the offering of the Lord.

But the child Samuel ministered before the Lord, guided about with a linen Ephod. Moreover, his mother made him a little coat, and brought it to him from year to year, when he came up with her husband, to offer the offering in the solemn feasts: and Eli blessed Elisha and his wife, and said: the Lord give thee seed of this woman, for the priest that she asked of the Lord. And they went unto their own home. And the Lord visited Hanna, so that she conceived, and bare three sons, and two daughters. And the child Samuel grew before the Lord.

Eli was very old, and heard all that his sons did unto all Israel, and how they lay with the women that waited at the door of the tabernacle of witness, and he said unto them: why do ye such things? For of all these people, I hear evil reports of you. Oh, nape, my sonnes: for it is no good report that I hear howe that ye make the Lordes people to trespass. If one man synne agaynst another, mayes me may be iudges: * but if a man synne against the Lord, who will be his daylman? For with standinge, they beacheden not unto the voyce of the father, by cause the Lord wolde slaye them. The child Samuel propheted * & grewe and was in fauour both with the Lord, and also with men.

And there came a man of God unto Eli, and said unto him: thus saith the Lord: I have not appeared unto the house of thy father while they were in Egypt, subiecte unto Pharaons house: And I chose thy father out of all the tribes of Israel to be my priest, to offer up myne altar, and to burne incense, * & to wear an Ephod before me. And I gave unto the house of thy father all the burnt offerings of the children of Israel. Wherefore tread thou downe my sacrifice and myne offering, which I commanded to be made in my tabernacle, and honourst thy children about me, to make your selves fat of the best frutes of all the offerings of Israel my people? Wherefore, the Lord God of Israel sayeth: I sayde, that thy house and the house of thy father should waite before me for ever.

But now the Lord sayeth: that be farre from me: for them that worship me, I will worship, and they that despise me, shall come to shame. Beholde, the dayes come, that I will cutte off thine arme, & the arme of thy fathers house that shal be an olde man in thine house. And I will be to thine enemye in the tabernacle (of the Lord) & in all the wealth which (God) shall give Israel, and there shall not be an elder in thine house for ever hereafter. I will not destroy all the males & com. of the from myne altar. But to make thine eyes dark, & to make thine hearte melt. And all they that be multiplied in thine house shall dye, yet they be men.

And this shal be a signe unto thee, that shall come up thy two sonnes Hophny and Phinehas: euen in one daye they shall dye both. And I will see me up a faithful priest, that shall do according to my hearte and mynd. * And I will buyde him a sure house. And he shall walke before myne appointed for ever. And they that are left in thine house, shall come and bowe to him for a litle peece of silver & a cake of bread, & shall saye: put me (I praye thee) in one office or other among the priests, & I may eat a morsell of bread.

The. iii. Chapter.

How Eli called Samuel three tymes.

And the child Samuel ministered unto the Lord before Eli: and the word of the Lord was precious in those dayes, neither was there any open vision. And it chaunced at that tyme, & Eli laye in his place, and his eyes beganne to waxe dymme that he coulde not se. And yet the lampe of God wente out, Samuel layd hym downe to slepe in the temple of the Lord, where the ark of God was. And the Lord called Samuel, and he sayde: here I am, & he ran unto Eli, and sayde: here am I, for thou calledst me. And he sayde: I called thee not: go agayne and slepe. And he went and layd hym downe to slepe. And the Lord called once agayne Samuel, and Samuel arose and went to Eli, & sayde: I am here: for thou didest call me. And he answered: I called thee not my sonne. So againe he take the rest: Samuel knewe not yet the Lord nether was the word of the Lord yet opened unto hym. And the Lord wente to and called Samuel the thyrde tyme. And he arose and went to Eli, and sayd: I am here for thou hast called me. And Eli perceaued that the Lord had called the child. Wherefore Eli sayd unto Samuel: go, and lye downe: & yet he call the agayne, then saye: speake on Lord, for thy seruant heareth. So Samuel went, and layd hym downe in his place. And the Lord came, and stode, and called as before Samuel Samuel. Samuel answered: speake on for thy seruant heareth. And the Lord sayde to Samuel: beholde, I will do a thyng in Israel, & both the eares of as many as heare it, shall tingle. In that daye I will raise up agaynst Eli, all thinges which I haue spoken concerninge thy house from the beginninge to the endinge. I haue tolde hym that I will iudge thy house for ever. For the wickednes which he knoweth. For while the people cursed his sonnes for the same wickednes, he hath not corrected them. And therefore I haue sworn unto the house of Eli, that the wickednesse of Elies house, shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offering for ever. Samuel laye till the morninge, & opened his doores of the house of the Lord. And Samuel feared to shewe Eli the vision. Then Eli called Samuel, & sayd: Samuel my sonne, And he answered: here I am. He sayde: what is it that the Lord hath sayd unto thee? I praye the hide it not from me. God do so, and lo to thee, yet thou hide any thyng from me, of all that he sayde unto thee. And Samuel tolde him every whit, & he did nothinge to him. And he sayd it to the Lord, let hym do what semeth hym best.

And

And Samuel grewe, and the Lord was with hym, & lefte none of hys wordes unperfourmed. And all Israel from Dan to Beerfabe, wyfte that faythfull Samuel was made the Lordes prophete. And the Lord appeared agayne in Silo, for the Lord opened him selfe to Samuel in Silo, & howe the worde of the Lord.

The. iiii. Chapter.

The arke of the Lord is taken. Eli & his chylde dy.

And Samuel spake vnto all Israel. (And it fortuned that in those dayes the philistines came to grette to fight.) And Israel went out against the philistines to battaile & pitched beside the helpe stone. And the philistines pitched in Aphek. And put the helpe stone against Israel. And when they fought, Israel was put to a worse before the philistines. And the philistines slue an aray along by the felde about a foure thousande men.

And when the people were come into the tentes, the elders of Israel said: wherfore hath the Lord caste vs downe this daye before the philistines? let vs fetch the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord out of Silo vnto vs, that whyle it commeth amonge vs, it maye saue vs, out of the hande of our enemy. And so the people sent to Silo, & fet from thens the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord of hostes, which dwelleth betwene the cherubyns. And there were the two sonnes of Eli, Hophni and Phinehes with the arke of the appoyntment of God. And it fortuned, that when the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord came into the host, al Israel shewed a mygdety howte, so that the earth range agayne.

And when the philistines herde the noyse of the howte they said: what meaneth the sounde of this mygdety howte in the host of the egiptians? And they understode, howe that the arke of the Lord was come into the host. And the philistines were afrayd, and sayde, God is come into the hoste. And they sayde agayne: wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before this: wo vnto vs who shall deliuer vs out of the hande of these mygdety Goddes: these are the Goddes which smote the egiptians with so manye plagis in the wyldernes. Be stronge and quyte your selues like men, O ye philistines, that ye be not seruantes vnto the egiptians, as they haue bene to you. Be of a manly corage therfore and fyght. And the philistines fought, and Israel was put to the worse & fled euery man into his tent. And there was an exceeding great slaughter, for ther were ouerthrowen of Israel. xxx. thousande. And the arke of God was taken, & the two sonnes of Eli, Hophni, & Phinehes were dead. And there ran a man of Ben Iamin oute of the aray, & came to Silo the same daye with his clothes rent and earth vpon hys heade. And when he came, Eli satte vpon a stole, & looked forward & waite for his beere frayed for the arke of God. And when the man came into the cytie, & tolde it, all the cytie cryed.

And when Eli herde the noyse of the crying he sayd: what meaneth this noyse of ymoyr? And the man came in hastily, and tolde Eli. Eli was. xlviii. yere olde, & his sighte failed him

& he coulde not se. And the man sayde vnto Eli I am he that came oute of the aray, & fled this daye out of the host. And he sayd, what thyng is fortuned my sonne? The messenger answered and sayde Israel is fled before the philistines, and there is a great slaughter chaunced amonge the people, and the two sonnes, Hophni & Phinehes are dead, & the arke of god is taken. And it fortuned that when he made mencyon of the arke of God, Eli fell fro of his stole backward vpon the thresholde of the gate, & hys necke brake, and he dyed, for he was an olde man and heuie, and indged Israel fourtye yeres.

And his daughter in law Phinehes wyfe was withchylde and nye the byrthe. And when she hearde the tydynges that the arke of God was taken, and that her father in lawe, and her husband were dead, she bowed her selfe, & tranced, for her paynes came vpon her. And about the tyme of her death, the women shode about her sayde vnto her, feare not, for thou passest home a lone: but she answered not, nor regarded it. And she named the child Achabod sayng. The glory is departed fro Israel: because the arke of God was raken, & because of her father in lawe & her husband. And she sayd agayne. The glory is gone from Israel, for the arke of God is taken.

The. v. Chapter.

Dagon the God of the philistines is cast flat before the arke.

And the philistines toke the arke of God, and caried it fro the helpe stone vnto Asdod, agayne the philistines toke the arke of God, & brought it into the house of Dagon, & set it by Dagon. And when they of Asdod were vpon the next daye in the moorning, beholde Dagon laye vpon the earthe before the arke of the Lord. And they toke vpon Dagon, & set hym in hys place agayne. And when they were vpon early in the nexte moorning, beholde Dagon lay vpon the grounde before the arke of the lord, and hys head, and hys two handes cut of vpon the thresholde, & only the shape of a fysh was left on hym. And therfore is it, & the priestes of Dagon (nether any man that cometh into Dagon's house) treade not on the thresholde of Dagon in Asdod, vnto this daye. But the hand of the lord was heuy vpon the of Asdod, and he destroyed them, and smote them with emerodes, both Asdod & in all the coastes therof. (The villages also & the felde in the myddes of the countre were full, and there came up murr, and ther was a confusyon of greete death in the cytie.)

And when the me of Asdod sawe that it was so they sayd: the arke of the god of Israel shal not abyde here with vs, for his hand is sore vpon vs and vpon Dagon our God. They sent therfore & gathered all the lordes of the philistines vnto them, & sayde: what shal we do wth the arke of the God of Israel? They answered, let the arke of the God of Israel be carped about vnto Gath. And they carped the arke of the God of Israel aboute. And it fortuned that when they had carped it aboute, there was by the hande of the lord a mygdety greete noyse in the cytie, & he smote the men of the cytie both the small & great & they had secrete diseases. (And the Getherites toke counsell, & made the felde payre steeles of Asper.) Therfore they sent sent the arke of God to Aharon. And allone as the arke of God, came to Aharon, the Aharonites cryed out sayinge: they haue brought ark of God of Israel to vs to slee vs & our people. And so they sent, and gathered together all the lordes of the Philistines and sayde: send awaye the arke of God of Israel, to go agayne to his owne place, that it sle vs not and our people. For there was great lamtation ouer the dead thowowe out all the cypre, and the hande of God was exceedinge soe there. And the men that dyed not, were smitten with the Emerodes: and the cype of the cypre went vnto heauen.

The vi. Chapter.

The hyne byng home the arke with the rewarde.

The arke of the Lorde was in the countrey of the Philistines iuen more then and the Philistines called for prestes & soothsayers, saying: what shall we do wth the arke of the Lorde: tell vs where wth we shal sende it home agayne. They sayde: If you send the arke of the God of Israel home agayne, sende it not emptye: But rewarde it wth trespass offering: & the ye shalbe whole, and it shalbe knowne to you, why his hande be parteth not from you.

Then sayde they: And what shalbe the trespass offering, whiche we shal rewarde him w? They answered: fyue golden arses and v. golden myce, according to the nombre of the lordes of Philistines. For it is one maner of plage on you al, gon your lordes. Wherefore ye shal make ymages like to your arses, and ymages lyke to your myce & corrupt land & ye shal geue glory vnto God of Israel: & he may take his bad frd of you, & frd of your goddes, & frd of your lande.

Exod. xii.

Wherefore do ye harden youre hertes as the Egyptians and Pharaos hardened they: hertes: whych when he toke on agaynst the, & did they not let the people go, and they departed? Howe therfore, make a newe carre. & take two milche kine: on whose neckes there hath come no yoke. And tye the hyne to the carre, and byng the calves home from them. And take the arke of the Lorde, & laie it vpon the carre, & put the iewels of golde (whych ye rewarde him with for a syn offering) in a coffe by the side therof: and send it awaye, that it maye go. And if ye se that he go vnto the waye of his owne coaste to Bethsames: then it is he that byd vs thys great rupll. If no, we shal knowe then, & it is not his hand that smote vs: but it was a chaunce that happened vs. And the men byd euen so, and toke two hyne that gaue mylke, and tyled them to the carre and kepte the calves at home, and they layd the arke of the Lorde vpon the carre and the coffe: wth the myce of golde, & wth the ymages of their arses. And the hyne toke the streyght waye to Bethsames, & went on the streyght waye: & as they wnt, loked, & turned nether to the right hader nor to the left. And the lordes of Philistines went after the, vnto the borders of Bethsames.

And they of Bethsames were reappynge they: wheate harvest in the valey. And they lyfte vp they: eyes, & spied the arch. And reioyced when they saw it. And the carre came into the felde of one Jehosua a Bethsamite, and stode styll there. There was also a great stone. And they claue the wode of the carre & offered the hyne a burnt offering vnto the Lorde. And the Leuites toke downe the arke of the Lorde and the coffe that was with it, wherin the iewels of golde were: and put them on the great stone. And the men of Bethsames sacrificed burnt sacrifice, and offered offeringes that same daye vnto the Lorde. And when the fyue lordes of the Philistines had sene it, they returned to Aharon the same day. And these are the golden arses whiche the Philistines gaue to amende for a trespass offering, to the Lorde: for Ashdod one: for Gaza one: for Ashalon one: for Gath one: & for Aharon one: And golden myce, according to the nombre of all the cypres of Philistines, euen according to the fyue lordes, both of walled townes & of townes vnto walled: euen vnto the great stone of lamentaciō, wher they set downe the arke of the Lorde: which stone remaineth vnto this daye in the felde of Jehosua the Bethsamite. And he plagued the men of Bethsames, because they had sene the arke of the Lorde. And he slue amonge the people fyfte thou sande and thye scoze and ten men. And the other people lamented, because the Lorde had slayne the people wth so great a slaughter. Wherefore the men of Bethsames sayde: who is able to stande before the Lorde so holy a God: & to whom shal he go from vs? And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Mariath Jarim saying: The Philistines haue brought agayne the arke of the Lorde: come ye downe therfore, and set it vnto you.

The vii. Chapter.

The arke is brought to Mariath Jarim.

And so the ark of Mariath Jarim came, and set vnto the arke of the Lorde: and brought it into the house of Amīnadab in Gibeā, & sanctified Eleazar his sonne, to kepe the arch of the Lorde: & while the arke abode in Mariath Jarim the dayes multiplied, and there passed ouer. xx. yeres, & al the house of Israel lamented after the Lorde. And Samuel spake vnto al the house of Israel sayinge: if ye be come agayne vnto the Lorde wth all your hertes, then put awaye the straunge goddes and Asharoth frd among you: and prepare you hertes vnto the Lorde, & serue hym only: for he shall ryd you out of the hande of the Philistines. Then the chyldren of Israel byd put awaye Baalim and Asharoth, & serued the Lorde onely. And Samuel sayde: gather all Israel to Mizpa, and I wyll praye for you vnto the Lorde. And they gathered together to Mizpa, and drw water: and powred it oute before the Lorde, & fasted the same daye & sayde there: we haue synned agaynst the Lorde. And Samuel iudged the chyldren of Israel in Mizpa. When the Philistines heard that the chyldren of Israel were gathered together to Mizpa, the lordes of the Philistines went vnto agaynst Israel. And when the chyldren of Israel heard that they were assayed of the Philistines, & the chyldren of Israel sayde to Samuel: craue not to crye came vnto the Lord our God for that he may save vs out of the hand of the Philistines. And Samuel toke a suckynge lambe, and offered it al together for a burnt offering vnto the Lord and cryed vnto the Lord for Israel, and the Lord hearde hym. And as Samuel offered the burnt offering, the Philistines came to fight a gaynst Israel. But the Lord thondred a great thondre that same daye amonge the Philistines, and scattered them, that they fell before Israel. And the men of Israel went out to Gilpa and pursued the Philistines, and folowed vpon them vntill the place that is vnder Bethcar.

And then Samuel toke a stone and pitched it betwene Gilpa and the marke of the roche, and called the name thereof, the stone of helpe sayinge: hyther to hath the Lord helped vs.
 And to the Philistines were brought vnder, & they came nomore into the costes of Israel: and the hande of the Lord was agaynst the Philistines all the dayes of Samuel. Therto the cy-ties whiche the Philistines had taken from Israel, were restored agayne to Israel, euen from Beoron to Gath: with the costes of the same. & Israel plucked them out of the handes of the Philistines. And there was peace betwene Israel and the Amozites. Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and went about yere by yere to Bethel, Gilgal and Gilpa, and iudged Israel in all those places, & came agayne to Rama: for there was his house, & ther he iudged Israel also, & there he builde an altar vnto the Lord.

The viii. Chapter.

The people requyre a kynge.

When Samuel was old, he made his sons iudges ouer Israel. The name of his eldest sonne was Joel, and the name of the seconde Abia, and they were iudges in Beersaba. And hye sonnes walked not in his wayes: but turned asyde after lucre, and toke rewardes, and peruerted the ryghte. Then all the elders of Israel gathered them together, and came to Samuel vnto Rama, and sayd vnto hym: beholde thou art olde, and thy sonnes walke not in thy wayes.
 Nowe therfore make vs a kynge to iudge vs as all other nations haue. But the thyng displeased Samuel, when they sayde: gyue vs a kynge to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the Lord. And the Lord sayde vnto Samuel: heare the voyce of the people in al that they say vnto the. For they haue not cast the awaye, but me: that I shoulde not raigne ouer them. And as they haue euer done (sins I brought the out of Egypt vnto this daye: and haue forsaken me, & serued other goddes) euen so do they vnto the.
 Nowe therfore hearken vnto the voyce: how beit, yet testifie vnto them and shewe the the authoritie of the kynge that shall raygne ouer them. And Samuel tolde all the wordes of the Lord vnto the people that asked a kynge of him.
 & he sayd: this shalbe the authoritie of the kynge that shall raygne ouer you: he wyl take your sonnes and put them to his charettes and make his hoysines of them, to runne before his charet and wyl make hym of them, captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer spyties, and wyl set them to eare his grounde, and to gather in his bar-nest, and to make instrumentes of warre, and apparel for his charettes. And he wyl take your dongheers and make them apotecaries, cookes and bakers. And he shall take the best of youre felbes, & of youre vyneyardes, and of youre olyue trees, and gyue them to his seruauntes.

 And he shall take the tenth of youre seede, and of youre vyneyardes, and gyue it to his chambre-laines: and to his seruauntes. And he shal take the best of youre men seruauntes and mayde seruauntes and ponge men, and of youre asses, and put them to his worke. And he shall take the tenth of youre shepe, and ye shalbe his seruauntes. And ye shall crye out at that tyme vpon your kynge, which ye shall haue chosen you, and the Lord wyl not heare you at that daye.

Nevertheless, the people wold not heare the voyce of Samuel, but oyd saye: naye not so.
 But there shalbe a kynge ouer vs, that we may be lyke other nations, and that our kynge maye iudge vs, and go out before vs, and fight oure battayles. Therfore, when Samuel hearde al the wordes of the people, he recheard them in the eares of the Lord. And the Lord sayd to Samuel: hearken vnto the voyce, and make them a kynge: And Samuel sayde vnto the men of Israel: go euery man vnto his cite.

Chapter ix.

Howe the sonne of Cis is chosen kynge.

There was a man of the tribe of Benjamin named Cis the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of Jeroh, the sonne of Bechorath, the sonne of Appiah, the sonne of a man was a Jeminite, a man of strenght and myght, and the same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly yonge man and a sayre: so that among the chyldren of Israel there was none goodlyer then he. For from the wouldest upward, he was hyer than al the other people.
 And the asses of this Cis, Sauls father were lost: and Cis sayde to Saul his sonne: take one of the laddes with the, and goo vp, and seke the asses. And he went thowowe mounte Ephraim and thowowe the lande of Salisa, but they found them not. Then they went thowowe the land of Saul, and there they were not. Wher they went also thowowe the lande of Jemini, they founde them not: At the last when they were come to the lande of zuph, Saul sayd vnto his lad that was with him: come let vs retorne, lest my father leue caring for the asses, and take thought for vs. He sayde vnto hym: beholde, there is in this cytie a man of God, and he is a woorthy full man: all that he sayeth cometh surely to passe. Nowe then let vs go thither: peraduen-ture he shall shewe vs what waye we maye go.
 Then sayd Saul to his lad: yf we wil go, what shall we bypaye the man? For our bread is all spent out of our vessels, and there is none other present to byting the man of god: what haue we?
 And the lad answered Saul agayne, & sayde:
 I haue found about me the fourth parte of a sicke that that will I give you of God, to tell us our way

Before tyme in Israel when a man wente to seeke an answer of God, thus wylde he spake come & let us go to the sear. For he that is now called a p[ro]phete was in the olde tyme called a sear. Then sayde Saul to hys ladde: wel sayd of the: come, let us go. And so they went unto the c[ite] where the man of God was: And as they were goinge up into the c[ite], they mette with damels that came out to drawe water, and sayde unto them: is there here a sear? And the maydens answered them yea, and (here is one) Beholde, he is before you. Make haste now, for he came this daye to the c[ite], for there is an offeringe of the people this daye in the h[ill]. When ye be come into the c[ite] ye shal finde him straight waye yee be come up to the h[ill] to cate: for the people wyl not cate until he come, because he both blesse the offeringe. And then cate they that be bydden to the feast. Nowe therfore get you up, for this daye shal ye fynde hym. And they wente up into the c[ite]. And when they were come into the myddes of the c[ite], beholde Samuel came out agaynst them, for to go up to the h[ill]. But the Lorde had tolde Samuel in his care (a daye before Saul came) sayinge: to morowe this tyme I will sende the a man oute of the lande of Ben Jamin, hym shal I anoynte to be capitayne over my people Israel, that he maye save my people out of the handes of the Philistines, for I have looked up my people, and they are come unto me. When Samuel therfore sawe Saul, the Lorde answered him: se this is the man whom I spake to the of, This same shal raygne over my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the myddle of the gate, and sayd: tell me I praye the where the sears house is. Samuel answered Saul and sayde: I am the sear, go up before me unto the h[ill], for ye shal cate with me to daye. And to morowe I will let the go, and will tell the all that is in thine hert. And as for thine asses that were lost thre dayes ago, care not for them, for they are founde. And moreover whose shal the beautiful chynge of Israel be? Belonge they not to the & to al thy fathers house? But Saul answered and sayd: am not I the sonne of a Jaminite of the smallest trybe of Israel? and my kynred is the lest of all the kynredes of the trybe of Ben Jamin. Wherefore then speakest thou so to me? And Samuel toke Saul and his lad, & brought them into the parlour, and made them sit in the chiefe place amonge them that were bydden: which were upon a thyrtye personnes. And Samuel layd unto the cooke, bring forth the portion whiche I gave the, and of whiche I sayde unto the, kepe it with the. And the cooke toke up the shoulde, and that which was up it: and let it before Saul. And Samuel sayde: beholde, that whiche is left: put it before the & cate, for it hath ben kept for the of pur pose: whi I called the people. And so Saul byd cate with Samuel that daye. And when they were come downe from the h[ill] into the c[ite], Samuel communed with Saul upon the toppe of the house: and when they arose early about the sup[er]age of the daye Samuel called Saul upon the toppe of the house, sayinge: up, that I maye sende the awaye. And Saul arose. And they went oute at the doores, both he & Samuel. And when they were come almoste oute of the towne, Samuel sayde to Saul: byd the lad go before us (he went before) but stand thou styll a whyle, that I maye shewe the what God sayth

The .x. Chapter.

Saul is anoynte kynge, and p[ro]phesie.

And the Samuel toke a vessel of oyle and poured it upon his head and kissed hym, & sayde: hath not the Lorde annointed the to be capitayne over his people Israel? (And thou shalt departe his people oute of the handes of theyr enemies which are rounde aboute them. And also thou shalt have, that the Lorde hath annointed the to be p[ro]phete.) When thou arte departed frome this day, thou shalt fynde two me by the sepulchre in the bozde of Ben Jamin, euen at zaleph. And they will saye unto the: the asses which thou wentest to seke, are founde. And lo thy father hath left the care of the asses, and so roweth for you, sayinge: What shal I do for my sonner? Then shalt thou go forth from thence and shalte come to the playne of Thabor. And there shal mete the thre men goinge up to God to Bethel: one carryinge thre hyddes: & an other carryinge thre lounes of byed, and an other carryinge a bottell of wyne. And they wyl salute the and give the, the two lounes of byed: whiche thou shalt receyue of theyr handes. After that shalte thou come to the h[ill] of God, where the Philistines kepe their watch. And whi I art com thither to the c[ite], thou shalt mete a company of p[ro]phetes cōpyng downe from the h[ill] with a psalter, a tymbrell, a pype and an harpe before them, and they shal p[ro]phesie. And the sp[irit] of the Lorde wyl come upon the also, and thou shalt p[ro]phesie with them, and shalt be turned into an other man. Therfore whi these signes are chaunced the, do what thou hast to doo, for God is with the. And thou shalt go before me to Gilgal: and I also will come downe unto the to sacrifice burnt sacrifices, and to offer peace offerings. * Carpe for me seven dayes, tyl I come to the and shewe the what thou shalt do. And as lone as he had turned his shoulde to go fram Samuel, God gaue hym an other maner of herte: and al those tokens came to passe that same daye. And when they came to the h[ill], beholde, the company of p[ro]phetes met hym: and the sp[irit] of the spirit of God came upon him also, and he prophesied amonge the. And all that knew him before, when they sawe that he prophesied amonge the prophetes, they sayde the to other: how is this? it happened vnto the son of Cis.

And Saul also amonge the prophetes. And one of the same place answered & sayd: who is their father? And therof came the pauerbe: what is Saul also amonge the prophetes? And whē he had made an ende of prophesying, he came to syl. And Sauls father brought him vnto him and to his lab: whether wylper: he sayd: to seke the asses: and when we sawe that they were no where, we came to Samuel. And Sauls vncle sayde: tell me what Samuel sayde vnto you. Saul answered his vncle: he tolde vs playnely that the asses were found. But of the kyngdom wherof Samuel spake, tolde he hym not. And Samuel called ̃ people together vnto ̃ Lord to Gilga, and sayd vnto the chyldren of Israel thus sayth ̃ Lord God of Israel: I brought Israel out of Egypt, and deliuered you out of the hande of the Egyptians, and out of the hande of all kyngdomes that troubled you. And ye haue this daye cast awaye your God that helpe you out of al your aduersities and tribulations. And ye haue sayde vnto hym: * make a kyng ouer vs. Now therfore stande ye before the Lord by your tribes and your thousandes. And when Samuel had brought all the tribes of Israel, the tribe of Ben Iamin was caught: when he had brought the tribe of Ben Iamin by the ̃ hundredes, the hundred of Matri was caught: and at the last Saul the sonne of Cis was caught. And whē they sought him he could not be founde. Therfore they asked the Lord further, if that man shoulde come thither. And the Lord answered: beholde, he hath hydd himselfe amonge the stuffe. And they ranne and set hym thence. And when he stode amonge ̃ people, he was hyer the any of the people, from the shoulders vpwarde. And Samuel sayde to all the people: Se ye not him, whom ̃ Lord hath chosen: and howe there is none lyke him amonge all the people? And al the people shouted & said * God lende the kyng lyfe.

Then Samuel tolde the people & the dury of the kyngdome, and wrote it in a booke, & layed it vnder the ̃ Lord, and set all the people a waye every man to his house: And Saul also wente home to Gibea. whom the elders of Iabes sayd: give vs tenen dayes respyte, that we maye sende messengers, vnto all the coostes of Israel. And then if there be noman to helpe vs: we wyl come out to the. Then came the messengers to gibea vnto Saul, and tolde this tydynge in the eares of the people. And al the people lyft vnder voyces and wept. And beholde, Saul came folowynge the cattel out of the felde, and Saul sayd: what ayleth this people, that they wepe? And they told him the tydynge of the men of Iabes. And the spirit of God came vpon Saul, when he herd those tydynge and he was exceedingly angrie, and toke a yoke of oxen, and hewed them in peeces, and sent them thowout all the coostes of Israel by the handes of messengers sayenge: whosoever commeth not forth after Saul, and after Samuel, so shall his oxen be serued. And the feare of the Lord fell on the people, & they came out as it had ben but one man. And when he * numbred them in Bezek, the chyldren of Israel were three hundred thousande men: and the men of Iuda thretyne thousande. And they sayd vnto the messengers that came, so saye vnto the men of Iabes in Gilead, to morowe by ̃ tyme the sonne be hote, ye shall haue helpe. And the messengers came and shewed the men of Iabes, which were glad. Therfore the men of Iabes sayde, to morowe we wyl come oute vnto you, and ye shall doo with vs all that pleasech you. And on the morowe it fortuned, that Saul putte the people in thre partes, and they came in vpon the host in the morning watch, and slue the Ammonites vntill the heate of the daye. The xlii. Chapter.

Samuel declared hym selfe to be an innocent Judge.

Samuel sayd vnto al Israel: beholde I haue hearkened vnto your voyce in all that ye sayd vnto me, and haue made you a kyng. Now therfore, your kyng walketh before you. And I am olde and graced, and behold my sonnes are with you, and I haue walked before you from my chyldhode, vnto this day. Behold here I am: beare record of me before the Lord and before his annointed. * Whose ore haue I taken? or whose asse haue I taken? whom haue I done wronge to? Whom haue I hurt? or of whose hande haue I receyued any bypbe, to blinde myne eyes therewith, & I wil restore it you agayne. They sayd thou hast done vs no wronge, nor hurt vs: neyther ther hast thou take ought of any mans hande. He sayde vnto them agayne: the Lorde is witnesse agaynst you, & his annointed is witnesse this day. If ye haue foude nought in my handes And they answered: he is witnesse. And samuel sayd vnto the people: it is the Lorde that made Moyses & Aaron, & that brought your fathers out of the lande of Egypt. Now therefore stand hyl, that I maye reason with you before the Lorde according to all the rightousnesse of the Lorde, whiche he shewed both you and your fathers.

25 After that Jacob was come into Egypt, and your fathers cryed vnto the Lorde: & Lorde sent Moyses and Aaron which brought your fathers out of Egypt, & made them dwell in this place. * And when they forgot the Lorde their God, he deliuered them into the hande of Sisea captain of the host of phara: & into the hande of the Philistines, and into the hande of the kynge of Moab, and they fought agaynst them. And they cryed vnto the Lorde, and sayd we haue sinned, because we haue forsaken the Lorde, and haue serued Baalim and Ashtaroth. Now therefore deliuer vs out of the handes of our enemies, and we wyl serue the. And Lorde sent Jerobaal * Sadan: Jerphthah, and Samu-26 el, and deliuerd you out of the handes of your enemies on euery syde and ye dwelled safe.

And for al that, wher you saw, that Nabath the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon came agaynst you, ye sayde vnto me: * not so, but a kynge that raygne ouer vs: wher yet the Lorde your God was your kynge. Now therefore beholde, the kynge whom ye haue chosen, and whom ye haue desired, lo, the Lorde hath set a kynge ouer you. If ye wyl feare the Lorde and serue hym, and heare his voyce, and not disobey the woide of the Lorde: both ye and the kynge that raygneth ouer you, shall folowe the Lorde your God: If ye wyl not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde, but disobey the Lordes mouth, then shall the hande of the Lorde be vpon you, and on your fathers.

27 Now also stande and se this great thing which the Lorde wyl do before your eyes: is it not now wheate harvest? I wyl cal vnto the Lorde, and he shall sende thundre and rayne: that ye maye perceyue and se, how that your wickednesse is greet, which ye haue done in the sight of the Lorde in asking you a kynge. And so Samu-28 el called vnto the Lorde, and the Lorde sent thundre and rayne the same daye. And all the people feared the Lorde and Samu-29 el exceedingly. And all the people sayde vnto Samu-30 el: praye for thy seruantes vnto the Lorde thy God, that we be not: for we haue sinned in asking vs a king beyde all the synnes that euer we dyd.

And Samu-
31 el sayde vnto the people: feare not. Ye haue in dede done al this wickednesse, yet be parte not from folowynge the Lorde. But serue hym euen with all your hartes. Repente to-32 uerne ye after daye thynges whiche are not able to profyte you, for they are but vanitie. For the Lorde wyl not forsake his people, because of his great names sake: because it hath pleased the Lorde to make you his people. Wherefore, God forsyd, that I shulde synne agaynst the Lorde, and cease prayinge for you, but to shewe you the good and right waye. Therefore feare you the Lorde, and serue him in the trueth, and with all your hartes, and obseye how great thynges he hath done for you. But and if ye do wyched ly, then shall ye perishe, both ye and your kynge.

The xiii. Chapter.

The Philistines are smitten of Saul and Jonathas, Saul being disobedient to Goddes commandment in the name of Samu-1 el that he shal not reigne.

Saul had bene kynge one yere (when these thynges came to passe:) and he raygned ii. yerres, ouer Israel. And Saul chose hym three thousande men of Israel. Two thousande were with Saul in Michmas and mount Bethel, and a thousande with Jonathas in Gibea Ben Jamin. And the rest of the people he sent euery man to his owne house agayne. And Jonathas smote the hold of the Philistines, that was in Bethel: and it came to the Philistines eares. And Saul blew the trumpet thorowout all the lande, saying: let the hebrues heare. And all Israel herde say, howe that Saul had destroyed an hold of the Philistines, wherfore Israel stode before the Philistines. And the people gathered togyther after Saul to Gilgal. The Philistines also gathered them selues togyther to fight with Israel, threty thousande chariots, and thre thousande horsemen, & other people lyke the sand by the seeside in multitude, and came by, and pitched in Michmas eastwarde from Bethauen. And when the men of Israel sawe it, they were in a strait. & feare came vpon the people, and they hyde them selues in caues, and in pyss holes, and in rocks, and in hye places, and in pyttes. And some of the hebrues went ouer Jordan to go vnto the land of Gad and Gilead. And Saul was yet in Gilgal, and all the people that folowed hym, were astonnyed. And he tarped seuen dayes, euen vnto the tyme that Samu-
2 el had appoynted. But Samu-
3 el came not to Gilgal, and the people were therefore scattered from him. And Saul sayde: byynge a burnt sacrifice to me and peace offryn-
4 ges. And he offered burnt sacrifice. And as soone as he had made an ende of offryng the burnt sa-5 crifice, beholde Samu-
6 el came. And Saul went agaynst hym, to blesse hym. And Samu-
7 el sayd: what hast thou done? Saul said: because I saw that the people scattered from me, and that thou camest not within the dayes appoynted, & that the Philistines gathered them selues togyther to Michmas, therefore sayde I: the Philistines shall come downe nowe vpon me to Gilgal, & I haue not made supplication vnto the Lorde. And when I had overcome my selfe, at the last I offered a burnt offryng. And Samu-8 el said to Saul. Thou arte become a foole, thou hast not kept the commaundement of the Lorde thy God, whiche he commaunded the. For at this tyme wolde the Lorde haue stablished thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. But nowe thy kyngdome shall not continue. * The Lorde hath soughte hym a man after his owne herte, & the Lorde hath commaunded hym to be captain ouer his people by

Jonathas his sone, & the people that were founde

And there came out of þe host of the philistines thre companyes to destroy: one company turned euery man his spere, his mattoche, his axe & his necessary tooles. And then the edges of the spa-

& also the forkes were to be set in. And so tyme of battayle there was neyther swerde nor spere founde in the handes of anye of the people that were with Saul and Jonathas. But w Saul and Jonathas his sonne was there some what found. And the watche of the philistines came out, to go ouer vnto Michmas.

nathas the sonne of Saul said vnto his pongman that bare his barnesse: come and let vs goo ouer to the philistines watche, that are ponder on the other syde, and he tolde not his father. And Saul tarried in þe vntermost parte of Gibea vnder Rimmo, which is in Bigron, and the people that were wyth hym were vpon. vi. c. men. And Abia the sone of Abieob, Jehabods brother, the son of phinehas, the sone of Eli, was the Lordes preste in Silo, & ware an Ephod. And the people wyske not that Jonathas was gone.

² And in the myddes of the passage (by which Jonathas sought to go ouer to the philistines on the one syde, & the other on the other syde: the one called Boiez, and the other Benne, the foze frounte of the one leane northwarde toward Michmas, & the other was southward toward Gibea: And Jonathas sayd to the pongman þe styll in our place & not go vp to them. But yf brues come out of the holes where they had hyd the selues in. And þe men of the watche answered Jonathas & his barnesbeare & sayd: com vp to vs, & we wyl shewe you a thing. And Jonathas sayde vnto his barnesbeare: come vp after me, for þe Lorde hath deliuered them into þe hande of selve vnto all þe people þe were with hym, & they came to þe battayle. And beholde, * euery mans swerde was agaynst his felowe, & there was a very great rumor. Moreover þe hebrues þe were with the philistines before þe tyme, & were com-

so God holpe Israel that daye. And the battayl

Then sayd Jonathas my father hath troubled the land: for we myne eyes haue receyued sight, because I tasted a lytle of this beny, how much more then todaye if the people had eaten of the spoyle of their enemies which they founde. And had ther not bene the a much greater slaughter amonge the Philistines. And they layde on the Philistines that daye, from Michmas to Aialb. And the people were excedyng saynte.

and 27. 13

E And the people gat them to the spoyle, and toke shepe, oxen, & calues, & slue them on the ground & the people byd ate them & in the blood. Then men tolde Saul, sayinge: Beholde, the people synne agaynst the Lord, in that they ate with the blood. And he sayd: ye haue trespassed. Roule a great stone vnto me this day. & Saul sayd agayne: So abyde among the people, & byd the hyng me curry man his oxe, and curry man his shepe, and slaye them here, & synne not agaynst the Lord in eating of the blood. And the people brought curry man his oxe in his hand by night and slue them there. And Saul made an altare vnto the Lord. And it was the fyrst altare that he made vnto the Lord. And Saul sayd: let vs go downe after the Philistines by nyght, and spoyle them vntill it be day in the morninge, & let vs not leaue one ma of them. And they sayd downe whatsoeuer thou thyngest best. Then sayd the priest: let vs come hither vnto God. And Saul asked of God, shall I go downe after the Philistines? Wylte thou deliuer them into the handes of Israel? But he answered hym not at that tyme. And Saul sayd: let the people come by ther out of all quarters, and know and se by whom this synne is chaunced this daye: for as truly as the Lord lyueth which sauerh Israel, though it be in Jonathas my sonne, he shall dye the deathe. But there was no man amonge all the people, that answered hym.

Then he sayde vnto all Israel: be ye on one syde, and I and Jonathas my sonne wyll be on the other sid. And the people said vnto Saul: what thou thyngest best, do. Therfore Saul sayde vnto the Lord God of Israel: gyue a perfect lot.

¶ The Lord God gyue thou the iudgement. Howe happeneth it, if thou graunt thy seruaut no answer to daye, & if this synne be in me or in Jonathas my sonne, let me it, as if I saye iniquyte be in my people. And Saul & Jonathas were caught, but the people escaped fre. And Saul sayd: cast lottes betwene me and Jonathas my son. And Jonathas was caught. Then Saul sayde to Jonathas: tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathas tolde hym, and sayde: I tasted a lytle honye with the ende of the rodde that was in myne hande: and lo, I must dye.

Saul answered: God do so and so to me, if halt by the deathe Jonathas. And the people said vnto Saul: shall Jonathas dye whiche hath so myghtely helped Israel? God sayd: yea. As truly as the Lord lyueth here shall not one heere of his heed fall to the ground, for he hath wrought us God this day. And so the people deliuered Jona thas, & he dyed not. And the Saul departed by from folowynge the Philistines. And the Philistines went to theyr owne place. And so Saul helde the hyngdom ouer Israel, & fought agaynst all his enemies on every syde, agaynst Moab: agaynst the chyldren of Amm: agaynst Edom: agaynst the hynges of Ioba, & agaynst the Philistines. And whethersoever he turned hym self there he wan, and he gathered his host together and smote the Amalekites, and ryd Israel out of the handes of them that spoiled them. The song of Saul were Jonathas, Iesul, & Michas. And his two daughters were thus named: the elder was called Merob, & the yonger Michol. And the name of Sauls wyfe was Abinoa the daughter of Ahimaaz. And the name of his chiefe captaine was Abner the sonne of Ner, Sauls vncle. And Cis was Sauls father. And Ner the father of Abner was the sonne of Abiel. And there was soze warre agaynst the Philistines all the dayes of Saul. And whome soeuer Saule sawe to be a strong man, and mete for the war he toke hym vnto hym.

Chapter.

Saul is commaunded to slay Amalek, he is disobedient to the worde of God. Samuel mouerh for Saul.

SAmuel sayde vnto Saul: the Lord sent me to annoynte the, to be hynged ouer his people Israel. Howe therfore bearken thou vnto the voyce, of the woordes of the Lord. Thus saythe the Lord of hostes, I remember that whiche Amaleche dyd to Israel, & howe they layed wait for them in the waye, as they came out of Egypte. Howe therfore go, and smyte Amalek and destroye ye all that pertyneth vnto them, and se thou haue no compassion on them. (And couer nothinge that they haue) slaye both man and woman, infante and suckelyng, oxe, and shepe, camel, and asse.

And Saul gathered the people to gyther, & annoynted them in Telaim, ii. hundred thousand souldiers, and ten thousand men of Iuda. And Saul came to a citty of Amalek, & set watch in the valleye. And Saul sayde vnto the Kenites: go, & departe, & get you downe fro amonge the Amalekites, lest I destroye you with them: for ye the wedd mercy to all the chyldren of Israel, whil they came out of Egypte. And so the Kenites departed from amonge the Amalekites.

And Saul smote the Amalekites fro heuilla as thou comest to Sur, & lyeth before Egypt, & toke Agag the hyng of the Amalekites alpye & utterly destroyed all the people to the edge of the swerde. But Saul and the people spared Agag, and the better shepe and the fatter oxen, & the lambes and all that was good, & wolde not destroye them. But all that was foule & nought worth, that they destroyed utterly. Then came the woide of the Lord vnto Samuel, saying: I repenteth me that I haue made Saul hyng. For he is turned from me, and hath not persoumed my commaundementes. And Samuel was euell apayed, and cryed vnto the Lord al nyght. And when Samuel arose earlye to mete Saul in the

in the moynynge. it was tolde Samuel, & Saul was come to Carmel, and behold, he hath made hym there a place, and is turned, and departed, and gone downe to Gilgal.

D And Samuel came to Saul, and ^{he} Saul offered burnt sacrifice vnto the Lord of the spoiles which he had brought from Amalek, & wher Samuel was come vnto Saul. Saul sayd vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lord. I haue fulfilled the commandment of the Lord. Samuel sayd: what meanest thou the bleating of the shepe in myne eares, and the noise of the oren which I heare? Saul answered: they haue brought them fro the Amalekites. For the people spared the best of the shepe and of the oren to sacrifice them vnto the Lord thy God. And the remnant haue we destroyed utterly.

Samuel sayd to Saul: let me tell the what the Lord hath sayde to me this nyght. And he sayd vnto hym: saye on. Samuel sayde: when thou wast lytle in thyne owne syght, wast thou not made the herd of the trybes of Israel? And the Lord anoynted the kyng ouer Israel. And the Lord sent the on a tourney, and sayd: Go, and utterly destroye those spynners the Amalekites, and syght agaynst them, vntill thou utterly destroye them. And wherfore hast thou not hearkened vnto the voyce of the Lord, but haste returned to the praye, and hast done that wherby is wycked in the syght of the Lord.

E And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: yea, I haue hearkened vnto the voyce of the Lord: and haue gone the way which the Lord sent me vnto, and haue brought Agag the kyng of Amalek, and haue utterly destroyed the Amalekites. But the people toke of the spoyle, shepe, oren, and the cheffest of the thynges which shoulde haue bene destroyed, to offre vnto the Lord thy God in Gilgal. And Samuel sayd: hath the Lord as great pleasure in burnt sacrifices & offrynges, as wher the voyce of the Lord is obeyed? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, & to hearken is better than the fat of rammes. For rebellion is as the synne of witchcraft, and stubbornnesse is as the wickednesse of idolatry. Because thou hast cast away the worde of the Lord, therefore hath the Lord cast awaye the also from beinge kyng.

F And Saul sayd vnto Samuel: I haue synned, for I haue gone further then the sayinge of the Lord and thy wordes, because I feared the people, and obeyed theyr voyce. Nowe therefore take awaye my synne, and turne agayne wyth me, that I maye worshippe the Lord. And Samuel sayd vnto Saul: I wyll not retorne wyth thee: for thou haste caste awaye the worde of the Lord, and the Lord hath cast awaye thee, that thou shalt not be kyng ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned hym selfe to go awaye, he caught the lappe of his cote, and it rent. And Samuel sayd vnto hym: the Lord hath rent the kyngdome of Israel from the this day, & hath giuen it to a neyghbour of thynne, & is better than thou. The strength of Israel wyll not begyle noy repent: for he is not a man that can repent.

G He sayde: I haue synned. But nowe honour me before the elders of my people, & before Israel and turne agayne vnto me, that I maye worshippe the Lord thy God. And so Samuel turned agayne, & folowed Saul. And Saul worshipped the Lord. Then sayde Samuel: Wyngye wyth me Agag the kyng of the Amalekites. And Agag came vnto hym delicately. And Agag sayd: truly the better death cometh on. And Samuel sayd: as thy swerde hath made womē childlesse, so shall thy mother be childlesse aboue other womē. And Samuel bewed Agag in peeces before the Lord in Gilgal. And thus Samuel departed to Rama. And Saul wēt home to his house to Gibea Saul. And Samuel came nomore to se Saul vntill the day of his death. Nevertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, & the Lord repented, & he had made Saul kyng ouer Israel.

Chapter.

Saul is anoynted kyng. An euill synne cometh vpon Saul.

H The Lord sayde vnto Samuel: howe longe wilt thou moune for Saul, seinge I haue cast him awaye fro rayngynge ouer Israel? Al thyne doynce wyth oyle come, & I may sende thee to Isai the Betlehe- mite, for I haue prouyded me a kyng among hyr sonnes. And Samuel sayde: howe can I go? For yf Saul heare it, he wyll kyl me. The Lord answered: Take an heyfer wyth thee, & saye: I am come to offre to the Lord. And cal Isai to the offering, and I wyll shewe the what thou shalt do, & thou shalt annoynt vnto me, hym whome I name vnto thee. And so Samuel dyd as the Lord badde hym, and came to Betlehem, & the elders of the towne were astonysed at his coming, and sayde: * Comest thou peaceably? he answered: yea, I am come to offre vnto the Lord. * Sanctifye your selues, & come wyth me to the offering. And he sanctified Isai and his sonnes, and had them to the offering. And when they were come, he lohed on Eliab, and sayd: Surely the Lordes anoynted is before hym. But the Lord sayd vnto Samuel: loke not on his stature, or on the height of his stature, because I haue refused hym. For God seeth not as man seeth. For man looketh on the outwarde apperance: but God beholdeth the heart. Thus Isai called Abinadab, and made him come before Samuel. And he sayd: neither hath the Lord chosen this. Then Isai made Samsa come, and he sayde: neyther yet hath the Lord chosen him. Agayne Isai made seuen of hyr sonnes to come before Samuel: and Samuel sayde vnto Isai: the Lord hath chosen none of these.

And Samuel sayd vnto Isai: are here all thy chyldren? He sayde: there is yet a lytle one be- hynde that keepeth the shepe. And Samuel sayd vnto Isai: sende and fet him, for we wyll not syt downe, tyll he be come hyther. And he sent, and brought hym in. And he was ruddy, & of an excellent beauty, & well fauoured in sight. And the Lord sayd: Arise, and anoynt him, for this is he. Therefore Samuel toke the hoine wyth the opyntment, and annoynted hym in the myddes of his brethren. And the spyrte of the Lord came vpon Dauid, from that daye forwarde. And Samuel rose vp, and went to Rama.

D. ii. 31

But the spirit of the Lord departed from Saul, and an evil spirit sent of the Lord vexed him. And Sauls seruantes sayd vnto him: Beholde, an euil spirit sent of God vexeth thee, let our lord therefore commaund his seruantes (that are before thee) to seke a ma. & is a coning player with an harpe: that when the euil spirit sent of God cometh vpon thee, he maye playe with his hande, and thou shalt be eased. Saul sayd vnto his seruantes: prouide me a man then that can play wel, and bynge byn to me. Then answered one of his seruantes, and sayde: Beholde, I haue sene a sonne of Isai, a Betlehemite, that can playe vpon instrumentes, and is an actiue felowe, and a man of war and prudent in doing of feates, & well made, and the Lord is w hym. Wherefore Saul sent messengers vnto Isai, and sayd: sende me David thy sonne, whyche is with the shepe. And Isai toke an asse laden with bread and a flagon of wyne, and a hyd, and sent them by David his son vnto Saul. And David came to Saul, & stode before hym, & he loued him very well, & he was made his barnes bearer. And Saul set to Isai, saying: let David remaine w me, for he hath found fauour in my sight. And so it fortuned, & when the euil spirit sent of God came vpon Saul, David toke an harpe & played with his hand, & so Saul was refreshed, & dyd amend, and the euil spirit departed from hym.

The .vii. Chapter.

David ouercometh great Goliath.

The Philistines gathered theyr hooste to battayl, and came togyther to Socoth whiche is in Iuda, and pitched betwene Socoth and Azecab: in the coast of Dammin. And Saul and the me of Israel came togyther, and pitched in the oke valley, and put them selues in aray to fight against the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyll on the one syde, and Israel stode on an hyll on the other syde, and there was a valleie betwene them. And there came a man betwene them both out of the tress of the Philistines, named Goliath of Gath. vi. cubites & an half byrdth lōg, & had an helmet of brasse vpon his heed, & a cote of maple about him. And the weyght of his cote of maille was v. & sicles of brasse. And he had bootes of brasse vpon his legges, & a shield of brasse vpon his shoulders. And the shafte of his speare was lyke a weaues beame. And his speare heed weyed syxe hundred sycles of yron. And one bearinge a shilde went before hym.

And he stode and cryed agaynst þe hoost of Israel, and sayd vnto them: Why are ye come out in aray to battayle: am not I a Philistine, and you seruantes to Saul: chose you a man from amonge you, and lette hym come downe to me. And yf he be dable to fyght with me, & to beate me: then wyl we be your seruantes. But if I can ouercome him & beate hym, then shall ye be oure seruantes, and serue vs. And þe Philistine sayd I desyre the hoost of Israel this daye, gyue me a man, that we may fight togyther. When Saul and all Israel hearde those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged, & greatly afrayed. David was the son of an Ephrathite (of whom mencyon is made afore) of Betlehem Iuda, named Isai, which had eynge sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul, & came to age among me. And the thre eldest sonnes of Isai wnt and followed Saul to þe battayle. And þe names of þys thre sonnes þe wnt to battayl were: Eliab the eldest & the next Abinadab, & the thirde Samma, & David was þe leest. And the thre eldest went after Saul. David also wnt, & departed fro Saul to fede his fathers shepe at Betlehem. And the Philistine came forth in the moynynge, and euenynge, and contynued fourtye dayes.

And Isai sayd vnto David his sonne: take for thy brethren an Ephe of thys parched corne, & these ten loaves, & byng it to the hoost to thy brethren. And carry these. x. fresh chekes vnto the capitayne, and loke howe thy brethren fare, and let out theyr pledge. And Saul and they, and all the men of Israel were in the oke valley, fyghtynge with the Philistines. And David rose vp early in the moynynge, and left the shepe wth a herper, & toke and went as Isai had commaunded hym, and came within the compasse of the hoost. And the hooste went out in a raye, and shouted in the battell: for Israel and the Philistines had put them selues in aray, the one agaynst the other. And David put downe the gere from hym and put them vnder the handes of the herper of the vessels, and ran into the host, and came, and saluted his brethren. And as he talked with the: Beholde, there stode a man in the myddes (Goliath by name, the Philistine of Gath) out of the aray of the Philistines, and spake of the maner aboue rehered, & David herde it. And al the me of Israel, whē they sawe the mā, ran away fro hym, and were soze afrayed. And euery man of Israel sayd: Shall we yet not this man come forth: euen to reuyle Israel is he come. * And to hym that beate hym wyl the kyng gyue great rychesse, and wyl gyue hym his daughter thereto pea, and make his fathers house free in Israel.

And David spake to the men that stode by, and sayd: What shalbe done to the mā that beate this Philistine, & taketh awaye the shame from Israel? And what is this vncircumcised Philistine, & he shulde reuyle the hoost of the lyuynge God? And þe people answered hym (after this maner) saying: thus shal it be done to þe mā that beate hym. And Eliab his eldest brother hearde when he spake vnto the men, and Eliab was angrye wth David, & sayde: Why comest thou downe hyther: and wth whome hast thou left those few shepe in the wilderness? I know thy pryde and the

And Saul was exceeding wrath, and the saying displeased him: and he said: they haue ascribed vnto David. 2. And to me but a thousande, & what can he more haue saue the kyngdom. Wherefore Saul looked aside on David from that day forthwarde. And it happened on the morowe, & the euyl spirit sent of God came vpon Saul, & he prophesied in f middes of the house. And David played w his hand like as at other tymes, & there was a tauling in Sauls bdd. And Saul toke f tauling, & sayd: I will naye David to f wall w it. And David anoyded oute of his presence. ii. tymes. And Saul was afrayd of David because the Lord was w hym, & was departed from Saul. Therefore Saul put hym fnd hym, and made him a capta yne ouer a thousande, & he wet out & in before f the people. And David beghned hym self to vske in al his dayes, & the Lord was w hym. Wherefore wdt Saul sawe that he was so exceeding wys, he was afrayed of hym. But all Israel & Iuda loued David, because he went out & in before the. And Saul sayd to David: Beholde my eldest daughter Merob, her I wyl gyue the to wyfe. Only play the m & me & fight the Lordes battels. For Saul thought: myne bdd shal not be vnd hym: but the hand of f Philistines. And David answered Saul: what am I? what is my lyfe, or the hired of my father in Israel? I shuld be son in law to f kyng: howbeit wdt f time was comf Merob Sauls daughter shulde haue bene gyuen to David, he was gyuen vnto Achis a Gheborite, to wyfe. howbeit, Michol Sauls daughter loued David. And they shewed Saul: & the thing displeased hym not. And Saul sayd: I wyl gyue hym her: & the may be a share to him: & that f hand of the Philistines may be agaynst him. Wherefore Saul sayd to David: thou shalt this day be my sonne in lawe in the other daughter. And Saul comised his seruantes to comen with David secretly, and to saye: Beholde, the kyng hath a fauour to the, and al his seruantes loue the, be nowe therefore the kynges sonne in lawe.

And Sauls seruantes spake thes wordes in the eares of David. And David sayd: semeth it to you a light thing to be a kynges son in law? But I am a poore m & of smal reputatid. And the seruantes brought Saul wyde agayne, saying: of this maner spake David. And Saul sayd: this wyfe shal ye sape to David: the kyng careth for none other dowrye, but for an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines to be auenged of f kynges enemies. But Saul thought to make David fall into f hndes of the Philistines. And when his seruantes tolde David thes wordes it pleased David well, to be the kynges sonne in lawe. And of the dayes were expired, David arose with his men, and went and slue of the Philistines, two hundred men: and David brought thes foreskynnes, and satisfied the kyng therof, to be his son in law. Wherefore Saul gaue hym Michol his daughter to wyfe. And Saul saue and vnderstode how that the Lord was w David, and that Michol hys daughter loued hym, and he was the more afrayed of David, &

Saul became alwaye Davids enemy. The lordes of the Philistines vied to go forthe. And it fortuned, that when they went forth, David be dained hym selfe w f skyr then all the seruantes of Saul: so that his name was more set by.

The xix. Chapter

Saul commandeth to slay David, Michol hys wyfe saue hym.

Saul spake to Ionathas his sonne, and to al his seruantes, & they shulde kyll David. But Ionathas Sauls sonne had a great fauour to David, and Ionathas tolde David, sayinge: Saul my father goeth aboute to slay the. Nowe therefore, take hede vnto thy selfe vnto the morowing, and abide in some secreete place, and hyde thy selfe. And I wyl go out and stande by my father in the feilde where thou arte, and wyl commune wth my father of the, and whatsoeuer I se, I wyl tel the.

And Ionathas spake good of David, vnto Saul his father, & sayd vnto him: let not f thing syn agaynst his seruant David, for he hath not synned against the, and his wyke haue ben to thewarde very good. For he dyd & put his lyfe in his hand, & slue the Philistine, and the Lord brought to passe a greates health for all Israel. Thou sawest it, and thou reioydest: wherefore then wylt f synne agaynst innocent bloode, and slay David without a cause? And Saul hearkened vnto the voyce of Ionathas, and sware: as trulye as the Lord syneth, he shall not dye. And Ionathas called David, and shewed hym all those wordes, and brought David to Saul. And he was in his presence as in tymes past.

And the warre began agayne, & David went out & fought w the Philistines, and slue them w a great slaughter, & they fled from him. And the euyl spirit sent of the Lord was vpon Saul as he sat in his house haupng a taulyn in his hand & David played wth his hand. And Saul entred to naye David to the wall wth the taulin. But he ryd hym selfe out of Sauls presence, as he smote the speare on (with a wayne shoke) into the wall. And David fled, and was saued the same nyght. Saul alsoft messengers vnto Davids house, to wathe hym, and to slay hym in the morynge. And Michol Davids wyfe tolde it him, saying: If thou saue not thy self this nyght, to morow thou wilt be slayne. And so Michol let David downe thowowe a wyndowe: and he went and fled, and was saued. And thd he toke an ymage and layed it in the bed, and put a pylowe stuffed with gootes heere, vnder the heed of it, and couered it wth a clothe. And when Saul sent messengers to fetch David, he sayd: he is sycke. And Saul sente the messengers agayne to se David, sayinge: byynge hym to me, bed and all, that I maye slay hym. And when the messengers were come in: beholde, there laye an ymage in the bed, with a pylowe of gootes heere vnder the heed of it. And Saul sayd vnto Michol: Why hast thou mocked me so, and sent away myne enemy, that he is escaped? Michol answered Saul: For he sayd vnto me: let me go, or els I wyl kyll the. And so David fled, and and escaped, and came to Samuel to Rama, and tolde hym all that Saul had done to hym. And he and Samuel went & dwelt in Bairoth.

D And one tolde Saul, saying: Beholde, David is at Bairoth in Rama. And Saul set messengers to let David. And whē they sawe a company of prophetes prophesyinge, and Samuel standing fast by them, & spirit of God sei vpo the messengers of Saul, and they prophesied to And when it was told Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied lyke wyse. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the third time and they prophesied also. The went he him self to Rama, & came to a great well that is in Bechem, & he asked and sayde: Where are Samuel & David? And one said: beholde, they be at Bairoth in Rama, and he went thither, even to Bairoth in Rama, and the spirit of God came vpo him also, and he went prophesyinge vntyl he came to Bairoth in Rama. And he strepper of his clothes, and prophesied before Samuel in lyke manner, and fell naked all that daye and all that nyght. And therof it is, that they say: is Saul also amonge the prophetes?

David complayneth vnto Jonathas.

A And David fleo frome Bairoth whiche is in Rama, and came and sayd before Jonathas: What haue I done? Wherein am I faultie? What is the synne that I haue committed before thy father, that he seeketh my lyfe? he sayd vnto him. God forbyd, thou shalt not dye. Beholde my father wyl do nothing either greate or small, but he wyl shewe it me. And how shulde my father hyde this thinge frome he wyl not do it. And David swaie agayne and sayde: thy father knoweth I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, and therefore he sayth: Jonathas shall not knowe it, lest he be soyy. And in verie dede, even as truly as I Loyde lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, there is but a step betwene me and death. Then sayd Jonathas vnto David: what soener thy soule despyeth, that I wyl do vnto the. And David sayde vnto Jonathas: Beholde, to morowe is the begynnyng of the moneth, & I wuld sit w the kyng at meate. But let me go, that I may hyde my selfe in the felde vnto the thyrde daye at euen. If thy father speake of me, then saye: David asked leaue of me, & he myght go to Bethlehe to his own cytye, for there is holden a perry feast for al þin red. And if he saye: it is well done, then thy seruante shall haue peace. But and if he be angry the be sure, & wychednesse is vnterly concluded of him. And the þ thale shew mercy vnto thy seruante: for thou hast made w me thy seruante a bonde in the Loyd. For withstanding if there be in me any trespass: then slape me thy selfe, & byynge me not to thy father.

And Jonathas answered God hepe þ frō the wickednes were concluded of my father to come vpon & thyneth þ I should not tel it fr. Then said David to Jonathas: who shal tel me if thy father answer cruelly? And Jonathas sayd vnto to David, come & let vs go out into the felde. And they went out both of them into þ felde.

And Jonathas sayd vnto David: þ lord God of Israel loke on it, when I haue troged my fathers mbe, one time or other thin this. in. daies þ it shal wel w David. þ I the shd not vnto the & shewe it the, þ Loyd do so & so vnto Jonathas. But if my father haue any pleasure to do þ enyl, I wil shew þ also, & send þ a way þ thou mayest go in peace. And þ Loyd be w the as he hath ben with my father. And thou shalt perforce vnto me the merce of the Loyde, not onely whyle I lyue, but euen whē I am dead, and pluck not thy merce awaye from my house for euer. So not when the Loyde hath destroyed the enemies of David, enter one from the face of the earth.

And so Jonathas made a bonde wth the house of David, desyryng that the Loyde shuld seke it out by the handes of Dauids enemies. (þ if it were broken.) And with other woordes, byd Jonathas swaie vnto David, bycause he loued him. For he loued him as his owne soule.

Then sayd Jonathas to David: to morowe is þ first day of fmoone. And thou shalt be missed, bycause the place where þ wast wont to sit shal be emptye. Therefore this daye the dayes, come downe in anye wyse vnto þ place where þ bydest hyde thy selfe, when þ busynesse was in hand: enl þ þ stone Esel. And I wil shew the arowes by þ one syde therof, as though I shot the at a marke, & wyl sende a lad, & byd hym go seke þ arowes. And if I say vnto þ lad: se the arowes are on this syde þ: bying them, then come thou: for it is peace & no hurt, as sure as I Loyd lyueth. But & if I saye vnto the lad: beholde, þ arowes are beyonde the, then go (in peace) for þ Loyde hath sent the awaye. And as touchyng this which thou and I haue spoken: beholde, þ Loyde be betwene the & me for euer. And so David hyd hym selfe in the felde. And when þ new moone was come, the kyng sat hym downe to eate meate. And the kyng sat hym downe after the olde maner, in his seate by the wall. And Jonathas arose, and Abner sat by Dauides syde, & Dauides place was empty. Heuerthelesse, Saul sayde nothyng at all that daye. For he thought some thyng hath chaunced him, þ he is not cleue. But on the morowe which was the second day of the newe moone, it happened, that Dauides place was emptye agayne. And Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his sonne: wherefore cometh not þ sonne of Iai to meate, neyther yesterdaye nor todaye? And Jonathas answered vnto Saul. Dauid asked licke of me to go to Bethlehe, for he sayd: let me go, I praye the, for our hynder doth hold an offering i þ cytye, & my brother hath sent for me. And therefore I haue toid fauour in thyne eyes: let me go, & se my byerbern. This is the cause that he cometh not vnto the kynges table. Then was Saul angrye with Jonathas, and sayd vnto him: Thou wyched rebell, do not I knowe, that thou hast chosen the syne of Iai vnto thyne owne rebuke and vnto the rebuke & shame of thy mother? For as longe as the sonne of Iai lyueth vpon the earth, thou shalt not be D.iii. stablys.

Established, not yet by kingdom, wherefore now (I see for him but one) for he is a child of both.

And Jonathan answered vnto Saul his father, and sayde vnto hym: Wherfore shuld he dye / what harme he done / And Saul lyfte vp a spere to hit him, wherby Jonathan was so well that it was vtterly determined of his father to slaye Dauid: And so Jonathan arose from þe table in a great angre, and dyde eate no meate at þe seconde daye of the month, for he was loyfe for Dauid, because his father had done him shame. On the next morning Jonathan went out into the fildes, at the tyme appoynted with Dauid, & a lytle lad with hym. And he sayd vnto his boy: runne, and leue out myne arrowes which I shot and as þe boy ran he shot an arrowe beyond him And when the lad was come to the place, whyther Jonathan had wrotte the arrowe, Jonathan cryed after the lad, and sayd: Is not the arrowe beyonde the? And Jonathan cryed after the lad agayne make speede, and stand not styll. And Jonathan had gathered vp the arrowes, and came to his master. But the lad wist nothing of the matter. Onely Jonathan and Dauid wist it. And Jonathan gaue his weapons vnto the lad that was with him, and sayd vnto him: go & carye them to the towne. And as soone as þe lad was gone, Dauid arose oute of a place that was to ward the south, and fell on his face to þe ground and worshypped thre tymes. And they kyssed ei ther other, and wept together so longe, tyl Dauid excended in wepyng. And Jonathan sayde to Dauid: go in peace. And þe thynges which we haue swoyne both of vs in the name of the Lord saying: þe Lord be betwene the & me, & betwene thy selfe & myne, let the Lord be our curer. And he arose & departed. And Jonathan wist litle of town.

The .xxii. Chapter.

They betrayeth David. Achimelech is accused of treason and flaine, and Ithuriel picketh me with him, because they betrayed David. Now is destroyed of Saul: Abiathar flyeth to David.

Duid therfore departed thence, and escaped, and came vnto the caue. Odolla. When his brethren also and al his fathers house herbe it, they went downe together to hym: And ther gathered vnto hym al meⁿ that were in obsequie & det, & troubled in theyr myndes, and he became a captayne ouer them.

And there were with him upon a foure hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Githa in the la. de of Moab: and sayd vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father and my mother (I praye the) come foorth vnto you, tyll I knowe what God wyll do for me. And he brought the before the kynge of Moab. And they dwelt with hym al the whyle that Dauid kept hym selfe in hold. And the prophet Gad sayd vnto Dauid: abyde not in holde, but depart and go into the lande of Iuda. Then Dauid departed and came into the forest of Harith. And Saul herde that Dauid was come abyde, and also the me that were w him. And Saul sat in Getha vnder a tre in Rama, haunging t. spear in his hande, and all his men rode about him. And Saul sayd vnto his seruantes that rode about hym: heare I praye you, ye sonnes of Iemini: vpi the sonne of Isai giue euery one of you selues and vnpardes & make make you all captaynes ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes / that ye haue also conspyred agaynst me, and there is none that telleth it me in myne eare. * And where as my sonne hadde made a bond wpyth the son of Iai, there is none of you that mourneth for me, as sheweth it in myne eare: beholde, my son hath spyred vp my seruante to lye awayt against me this same day.

Then answered Doeg the Edompte whyche also stode by the seruantes of Saul, and sayd: I sawe the sonne of Iai when he came to Rob, to Ahimelech the sonne of Ahitob, which asked counsaile of the Lozde for hym, and gaue hym bytayles, and the swerde of Goliath the Philistine also. Then the kyng sent and called for Ahimelech the priest the sonne of Ahitob, and all his fathers house, that is to saye: the priestes that were in Rob.

And they came all to the kyng. And Saul sayde: heare now thou sonne of Ahitob. He answered: here I am my lozde. And Saul sayd vnto him: why haue ye conspyred agaynst me, thou and the son of Iai: in that thou hast giuen him vitayle, & a swerde, and hast asked counsaile of God for hym, that he shoulde aryse agaynst me, and lye awayt for me this day? Ahimelech answered the kyng, and sayd: who is so fapthfull amonge al thy seruantes as Dauid, and thereto the kynges sonne in lawe, & goeth at thy bidding, and is had in honour in thyne house: haue I this day fyrst begon to aske counsaile at God for him: that he shoulde be far fro me (if I had knowe it) let not the kyng put suche a thyng vnto his seruant, in all the house of my father. For thy seruant knowe nothyng of all this, eyther lesse, or moze. The kyng sayde: thou shalt surely dye Ahimelech, thou and all thy fathers house. And the kyng sayde vnto the foremen that stode aboute hym: tourne, and slaye the priestes of the Lozde, both because they hand is with Dauid, and because they lye we when Dauid fled, and shewed it not to me. But the seruantes of the kyng wolde not moue theyr handes to fall vpo the priestes of the Lozde.

And the kyng sayde to Doeg: tourne thou, and fall vpon the priestes. And Doeg the Edompte tourned, and ranne vpon the priestes, and slue that same daye foure score and fyue persones that vpo weare a linnen Ephod. And Rob the cytie of the priestes smote he with the edge of the swerde, bothe men and women, chyliden and suchlynges, ozen, asses, and shepe.

And one of the sonnes of Ahimelech the sonne of Ahitob (named Abiathar) escaped and fledde to Dauid. And Abiathar shewed Dauid, howe that Saul had slayne the Lozdes priestes. And Dauid sayd vnto Abiathar: I wylt it the same daye, when Doeg the Edompte was there, that he wolde tell Saul.

And I am cause of the death of all the soules of thy fathers house. / Thyde thou wpyth me, and feare not. For yf anpe man like my soule, he shall seke thyne also, with me thou shalt be in sauegarde.

¶ The xxiii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid flyeth into the wyldernesse of yeph.

¶ Then they tolde Dauid, saying: Behold, the Philistines fight agaynst Keilah, and spoyle the barnes. Therfore Dauid asked the Lozde aduyce, sayinge, Shall I go and smyte the Philistines? And the Lozde answered vnto Dauid: goo and smyte the Philistines, and saue Keilah. And Dauids men that were wpyth hym sayd vnto hym: se, we be afrayed here in Iuda: howe moche moze then yf we come to Keilah agaynst the hoost of the Philistines? Then Dauid asked the Lozde agayne.

And the Lozde answered hym, and sayde: Arise, and go downe to Keila, for I wyl deliuer the Philistines into thyne hande.

And so Dauid and his men went to Keilah, & fought with the Philistines, and dyone awaye theyr cattel, and smote the with a great slaughter. And so Dauid saued the inhabytours of Keila. And it chanced whil Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech fledde to Dauid to Keila, that he brought an Ephod with hym in his hande.

And it was told Saul that Dauid was come to Keila. And Saul sayde: God hath deliuered hym into myne hande. For he is shut in nowe, & he is come into a towne that hath gates & barres. And Saul called all the people togyther, to warre, for to goo downe to Keila, and to besiege Dauid and his men. And Dauid hauyng knowledge that Saul ymagyned myschete agaynst him, said to Abiathar the priest. * Singe the Ephod. Then sayd Dauid: O Loyd God of Israel, thy seruant hath herd, that Saul is about to come agaynd Keila to destrope the cytie for my sake: wylt the mt of Keila deliuer me into his hande? And wyl Saul come downe, as thy seruant hath hearde saye? O Lozde God of Israel, tel thy seruant. And the Lozde sayd: he wyl come downe. Then sayd Dauid: wylt the men of Keila deliuer me and the men, that are with me into the hande of Saul? and the Lozde sayde: they wyl betraye you.

¶ Then Dauid and his men, which were vpon a syre hundred arose, and departed out of Keila and wente whither they coulede. And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was fled from Keila, and he let the tourneye alone. Dauid abode in the wyldernes in stronge holdes, and remayned in a moystayne in the wyldernesse of yeph. And Saul sought him euery daye, but God deliuered hym not into his hand. And Dauid sawe that Saul was come out to seke his lyfe. And Dauid was in the wyldernesse of yeph in a thicket. And Jo-

And Saul's son arose & wet to David into the thicket, and comforted his hande in God, & sayde vnto hym: feare not, for the hande of Saul my father shal not synde the, and thou shalt be king ouer Israel. & I must be next vnto the. And that doth Saul my father knowe. * And they made a bonde both of them together before the Lord. And David tarped styl in the thicket, and Jonathan went to his house. Then came the ziphites to Saul to Gilbea, sayinge: doth not David hyde hym selfe fast by vnto stronge holdes, in a thicket that is by the hill of Machila, on the ryghte syde of the wyldernesse? Nowe therefore hyngre, thou mayest come downe accordyng to all the luste of thy soule: come downe, and oure part shalbe to deliuer him into the hyngers had. And Saul sayd: Blessed are ye in the Lord: for ye haue compassion on me. Go, I pray you, and orde the matter wel, knowe and se his haunte, where his fote hath ben, and who hath sene him there, for it is tolde me he is very subyle, and worketh craftely. For therfore, & knowe all the lurking places where he hydeth hym selfe, and come ye agayne to me wth the certentie, & I will go wth you. And if he be in the land, I will seache hym out thowout at the thousandes of Iuda.

And they arose and went to ziph before Saul. But David and his me were in the wyldernesse of Maon, in the playne that is on the ryghte had of Iesimon. Saul also and his men wer to seke and they tolde David. Wherefore he went vnto a rocke, and abode in the wyldernesse of Maon. And when Saul hearde that, he followed after David in the wyldernesse of Maon. And Saul and his men went on the one syde of the mountayne, and David and his me on the other syde. And David toke thought, how to get fro Saul. For Saul and his men compassed David and his men, rounde about, to take them. But there came a messenger to Saul, saying: haste the: and come: for the Philistines are come into the land. Wherefore Saul returned from persecutinge David, and went agaynst the Philistines. And therefore is it, that they called the place: the rock of deuision. And David went thence, and dwelt in stronge holdes at Engaddi.

¶ The xxxiii. Chapter.

David flieth vnto Engaddi, and there hydeth hym in a cave. Saul cometh in thither to do his cattell.

When Saul was come agayne from followinge after the Philistines, it fortuned that there were which told him saying: beholde, David is in the wyldernesse of Engaddi. Then Saul toke the thousande chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seke David and his me in the begyth of the rockes, where wilde gootes remaine.

And he came to the flockes of shepe in the way. And Saul went into a cave to cover his fete. And David and his men remayned in inward partes of the cave.

And the men of David sayd vnto him: se, the daye is come, of which the Lord sayd vnto the: Beholde, I will deliuer thine enemyes into thine hand, and thou shalt do to hym as it shall seme good in thy syght. Then David arose and cut of a lappe of Sauls garment priuilye. And immediatelye Davids heart smote hym because he had cut of a lapp of Sauls garment. And he sayde vnto his men: the Lord hepe me from doinge that thyng vnto my master the Lordes annointed, to laye myne hande vpon him, seeinge he is the annointed of the Lord. (For as truly as the Lord is true, except the Lord smyte hym, or except his daye come, as yet he go not downe to water and prey: the Lord be mercifull vnto me, that I laye not myne hande vpon the Lordes annointed.) And so David kept of his seruantes with these wordes, and suffered them not to asple agaynst Saul.

But Saul rose by out of the cave, and went awaye: David also arose, and wente out of the cave, and cryed after Saul, saying: O Lord hyngre. And when Saul looked behynde hym, David stouped to the erth, and bowed hym selfe and said to Saul: wherefore gyrest thou an eare to mens wordes that saye: David sekerh euill agaynst the? Beholde, this daye thine eyes hath sene, how that the Lord hath deliuered the this day into myne hande in the cave. And some had me kyll the, but I had compassion on the, and sayde: I will not laye myne handes on my master, for he is the Lordes annointed. And moreouer my father: beholde, and se yet the lappe of thy garment in my hande, in as moche as I kyled the not, when I cut of the lapp of thy garment. Understande therfore and se, that there is neither euill nor wychednesse in me, and I haue not synned agaynst the. And yet thou huntest after my soule to take it. The Lord be iudge betwene the and me, and the Lord auenge me of the. But myne hande be not vpon the. Accordyng as the olde prouerbe sayth: wychednesse procedeth from the wyched. But myne hande be not vpon the. After whome is the kynge of Israel come out? And whome doest thou moue persecutio, after a deed dogge, and after a shep? The Lord be iudge, and iudge betwene the and me, and se, and pleate my cause, and auenge me of thine hande.

When David had made an ende of speakinge these wordes to Saul, Saul sayd: * is this thy voyce my sonne David? and Dauidyste vpon hye voyce, and wepte, and sayde to David: thou art ryghteouer then I, for thou hast rewarded me with good, where as I haue rewarded the with euill. And thou hast shewed this day, how that thou hast dealt louynglye with me, forasmuche as when the Lord had locked me in thine handes, thou kyledst me not. For who shall synde his enemy, and let hym depart into a good way? Wherefore the Lord rewardes the with good for that thou hast done vnto me this day. And now beholde, I wot well that thou shalt be hyngre, and that the kyngdome of Israel shalbe stablished in thine hande.

So were now therfore vnto me by the Lord that thou shalt not destroe my seede after me, and that thou shalt not put my name out of my fathers house. And David swaie vnto Saul: and Saul went home. But David and his men gat them vp vnto an holde.

¶ The

The xxv. Chapter.

Samuel dyed. David thynge into the wyld-ernes of Paran.

And Samuel dyed, and all the Israelites gathered together, and lamented hym, and buried him in his owne house at Rama. And David arose and gat hym to the wyldernes of Paran. Ther was a man in Paran whose possellid was in Carmel, and the man was exceeding mightie, & had thye thousand shepe, & a thousand gootes. And he was therynge his shepe in Carmel.

The name of the man was Abai, and the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and she was a woman of synguler wysedome, and beautiful. But the man was churlysh, and of grende condicions, and was of the kyned of Caleb. And David herd in the wilderness that Abai did ther bys shepe. And David sent oute ten yonge men and said vnto them: Get you vnto Carmel and go to Abai, and grete him in my name. And thus shal ye saye: peace be to the, peace be to thy house, and peace be vnto all that thou hast. Beholde, I haue herde saye, that thou hast sheeres. Now thy sheperdes were with vs (in the wilderness), and we dyd them no spye, neither was there ought (of the flocke) myslyng vnto them all the while they were in Carmel: althe thy laddes and they wyl thewe y. Wherefore let these yonge men synde lauous in thine eyes, for we come in a good reason, and y. I praye the, what so euer cometh to thine hande vnto thy seruantes, and to thy sonne David.

And when Davids yonge men came, they tolde Abai al those wordes in the name of David, & then helde they peace. And Abai answered Davids seruantes, & sayd: what is David? and what is the sonne of Iai? there is plenepe of seruantes nowe a dayes, that breake away euery ma from his master. Abai I then sahe my byerd, my water & my fleshe that I haue tyllid for my sheeres, & y. I vnto me whom I wot not wden they be? And so Davids seruantes turned they way, and went agayne, and came and tolde hym all those thynges. And David sayd vnto his men: gyde euery man his swerde about hym. And they girded euery ma his swerde aboute hym: and David was gyrded with his swerde. And there folowed David vnto a four hundred men, and two hundred abode by the fluffe. But one of the laddes tolde Abigail Abais wyfe, sayinge: Beholde, David sent messengers vnto our master out of the wilderness to salute hym, and he rayled on them. And yet y men are very good vnto vs, and dyd vs no displeasure, nryder mysled we any thyng as longe as we were conuersaunte with them, when we were in the fildes. They were a wall of defence vnto vs both by nyght and daye, all the while we were with them lappinge there: Nowe therefore take hede, and se what thou hast to doo, for there is an occasion of euill gynn agaynst our master and al his householde, linge he is a sonne of Belial vngyratious to speake to. Then Abi gail made haste, and toke two hundred lounes, & two bottels of wyne, and fyue shepe redy dyed, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundred clusters of reysynges, and two hundred weight of fygges, and laded them on asses, and sayd vnto her yonge men: go ye befoze me. Beholde, I come after you. But she tolde her husbande Abai nothyng of therof. And as she rode on her asse, she came pynlye downe the hyde of the hyll, and beholde, David and his men came downe agaynst her, and she met them.

And David sayde: in daye haue I kepte all that this felowe hath in the wilderness, so that nought was mysled of all that perteyned vnto hym. And he hath quit me euyl for good. So y so do God vnto the enemyes of David, if I leue of all that perteyneth to hym, by the dawninge of the daye, any thyng that ysseth agaynst the wal. And when Abigail saw David, she basted and lyghted of her asse, and fel befoze David on her face, & bowed her selfe to the grounde, & fell at his fete, and sayd: Let this vnhappye dede be counted myne, my lord, & let thine hande speake in thine audience, and heare the word of thine handmayde. Let not my lord (the kyng) regarde this vnhappye man Abai: for as bys name is, so is he: Abai is his name, and folys with hym. But I thine handmayde sawe n of the yonge men of my lord: whom thou sentest. Now therefore my lord, as sure as the Lord lyueth, & as thy soule lyueth, the Lord hath withholden the from coming to these bloodes, & with drawe thou thine hand from bloodshed. Nowe I praye God, that thine enemies & they that intende to do my lord euyl, maye be as Abai. And now this is the blessing which thine handmayde hath brought vnto my lord, & let it be gyren vnto the yongemen, that folowe my lord. Forgyue the trespass of thine handmayde, for the Lord wyl make my lord a surer house, because my lord sighted the battayles of y Lord and there coude none euyl be founde in the, in all the dayes. And yf any man ryse to persecute the, and to seke thy soule, the soule of my lord shal be bounde as in the bondell of the lynnyng to the Lord thy God. And the soules of thine enemyes shal God cast out, out as out of the myble of a syng. And when the Lord shal haue done to my lord al the good y he hath promysed the, and shall haue made the ruler ouer Israel: then shall it be no decaye vnto the, nor discouraige of herte vnto my lord, that thou hast not gradde bloode causelesse, nor auenged thy selfe.

But when the Lord shal haue dealt wel w my lord, then thynke on thine handmayde. And David said to Abigail blessed be the Lord God of Israel, whych sent the this daye to mete me. Blessed is thy sayinge, and blessed arte thou, whiche hast kept me this daye from commynge to shed blood, and from auengynge my selfe with myne owne hande. For in very dede, as sure as the Lord God of Israel liueth, which hath kept me backe from buryng the, excepte thou haddest basted and met me, chynkest thou, there had ben left vnto Abai by the dawninge of the of the daye, a pyller agaynst the wall. And so Dauid receyued of her hand that which he had brought hym, and sayde to her: goo vp in peace to thyne house. Beholde, I haue herd thy voyce and haue accepted thy person.

E And Abigail came to Abal: and beholde he helde a feast in his house, lyke the feast of a king and Abals hert was mery wythin hym, for he was very dyonhen. Wherfore he tolde hym no thyng, neyther lesse nor moze, vntill the morrowe daye. But in the moynynge whē the wyne was goone oute of Abal, his wyfe tolde hym those wordes, and his herte dyed wythin hym, & he became as a stone. And vpon a ten dayes after, the Lorde smote Abal, that he dyed. And when Dauid hearde, that Abal was dead, he sayd: Blessed be the Lorde that hath iudged the cause of my rebuke of the hande of Abal, and hath kept his seruante from euill, and hath recompensed the wickednes of Abal, vpon his owne heed. And Dauid sente to comene wyth Abigail: to thynke to take her to his wyfe. And when the seruantes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel they spake vnto her saying: Dauid sent vs to the, to take y to his wife. And she arose, & bowed her selfe on her face to the earth, and sayd: beholde, let thy hande mayde be a seruant, to walke y feet of the seruantes of my lord. And Abigail hastened, and arose, and gat her vp vpon an asse, wyth fyue damels of hers, that went at her feet, and she went after the messengers of Dauid, and became his wife. Dauid also toke Achinoah of Jezrael, and they were both his wyues. But Saul gaue Michol his daughter Dauids wyfe, to Phalti the sonne of Laish, whiche was of Gallim.

The xxvi. Chapter.

Dauid slepyth in his tent, and Dauid taketh away his speare and a cruell of water that stode at his heed.

The zippites came vnto Saul to Gibea, saying: Dost not Dauid hyde hym selfe in y hil of Achila which is before Ieshimon? Saul arose, and wente downe to the wildernesse of ziph, hauyng thye thousande cholen men of Israel wyth hym for to seke Dauid, in the wyldernesse of ziph. And Saul pitched in the hyl of Achila which lyeth before Ieshimon by the wayes syde: But Dauid dwelt in the wildernesse. And he sawe that Saul came after him into the wildernesse. Dauid therfore sent out spyes, and vnderstode, that Saul was come in very dede.

And Dauid arose & came to the place where Saul had pitched, and Dauid beheld the place where Saul laye, and Abner the sonne of Ner which was his cheft captayne. Saul lay wythin, and the people & the host round about hym. The answered Dauid, and spake to Abimelech the Bethite, and to Abisai the sonne of Zaruia & brother to Joab, sayinge: Who wyll go downe wyth me to Saul to the host? And Abisai sayde: I wyll go downe wyth the.

S And so Dauid and Abisai came downe to y people by nyght. And beholde, Saul laye slepyng wythin the host, and his speare stakke in the ground at his heed. But Abner and the people lay rounde about hym. Then said Abisai to Dauid, God hath deliuered thyne enemy into thyne hande this daye. Nowe therfore, let me smite hym ones wyth my speare to the erth, and I wyll not smyte hym the seconde tyme. And Dauid sayde to Abisai, destroye hym not. For who can laye his hande on the Lordes annointed, and be gylelesse? And Dauid sayde further moze: as sure as the Lorde lyueth: y Lorde shall smyte hym o2 hys daye shall come to dye: o2 he shall descende into battayle, and there perishe.

The Lorde kepe me from laying myne hand vpon y Lordes annointed. But take thou nowe the speare that is at his head, & the cruell of water, & let vs go. And so Dauid toke the speare & the cruell of water from Sauls heed, & they gat them awaye, and noman sawe it, o2 marked it, o2 awaked. For they were all a slepe, because y Lorde had sent a dead slepe vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer into the other syde, and stode on the toppe of an hyl a far of (a great space being betwene them) and Dauid cried to the people, and to Abner the sonne of Ner, saying: hearest thou not Abner? Abner answered and said: What arte thou that cryest to the kynge? And Dauid sayd to Abner: art not thou a ma? & who is lyke the in Israel? Wherfore then haste thou not kept thy lord the kynge? For there came one of the folke in to destroye the kynge thy lord. It is not good that y hast done. As truly as y lord lyueth, ye are worthy to dye, because ye haue not kepte poure master the Lordes annointed. And now se where the kynges speare is, & the cruell of water that was at his head.

And Saul knewe Dauids voyce, and sayde: is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? & Dauid sayd: it is my voyce, my lord, O kynge. And he sayd: wherfore dost thou thus persecute his seruant? for what haue I done? o2 what euill is in myne hande? Nowe therfore let my lord the kynge heare the wordes of his seruant. For the Lorde haue spured the vp agaynst me, let him smel the sauour of a sacrifice. But and yf they be the children of men, cursed be they before the Lorde. For they haue cast me out this daye fro abydyng in the inheritaunce of the Lorde, saying: heuill: and go serue other goddes. Now therfore let not my bloode fall to the earth before y face of the Lorde. For the king of Israel is come out to hunt a flye, as when one doth hunt a partryge in the mountaynes. Then sayde Saul: I haue synned: come agayne my sonne Dauid, for I wyll do the nomoze harme, because my soule was precious in thyne eyes this daye. Behold, I haue played the foole, & haue erred exceedingly. And Dauid answered, and sayde: Beholde the kynges speare, let one of y yongmen come ouer and fet it. The Lorde rewarde euery man accordyng to hys ryghteousnesse and sayd: for the Lorde hath deliuered the into my hande this daye, but I wolde not laye myne hande vpon y Lordes annointed. And beholde, lyke as thy lyfe was moche set by thys daye in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lorde, that he deliuer me lyuer me oute of all tribulation. Then Saul sayde to David: Blessed art thou my sonne David for thou shalt be a doer, and p̄uaple.

And so David went his way, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

¶ The xxvii. Chapter.

David flyeth to Achis kynge of Geth.

And David sayd in his hert: I shall perishe one daye or other, by the hande of Saul. Therefore is there nothing better for me then to flye and save my selfe, in the land of the Philistines, and Saul shall cease, and seke me no more in all the coostes of Israel, and so shall I escape oute of his hande.

And David arose, and he and the syre hundred men that were with hym went vnto Achis the sonne of Gath, kynge of Geth. And David dwelt with Achis at Geth, both he and his me every man with his household, and David with his two wyues: Abinoam the Jezrabelite, and Abigail Nabals wyfe of Carmel.

And it was told Saul that David was fled to Geth, and he sought nomore for hym. And David sayd vnto Achis: If I haue now found grace in thyne eyes, let them gyue me a place in some towne in the feldes, for I may dwell there.

For why shoulde thy seruauent dwell in the heed eyrie of the kyngdome with thee? Then Achis gaue him iakleg that same day, for which cause iakleg p̄terp̄neth vnto the kynges of Iuda vnto this day. And the tyme that David dwelt in the countrey of the Philistines, was four moones and certayne dayes. And David and his men went vp, and ranne vpon the Securites, for Geryites and the Amalekites: for those nations were from the beginning the enhabitours of the land, as men go to Sur, vnto the land of Egypt. And David smote the land, and left nei ther man nor woman alyue, and droue awaye the shepe, the oxen, the asses, camels, and clothes, and returned & came to Achis. And Achis sayd where haue ye bene a couynge this daye? And David answered: Towarde the south of Iuda, and towarde the south of the Jerachmeites, & towarde the southe of the Kenites. And David slaued neither mā nor woman alyue, nor suffered them to come to Geth, for feare (sayeth he) lest they shulde tel on vs, saying: so dyd David and so wyl be his maner al the while he dwelleth in the coostre of the Philistines. And Achis beloued David, saying: he abhorreth his people of Israel, & therefore he shalbe my seruauent for ever.

¶ The xxviii. Chapter.

The Philistines moue warre agaynst Saul which seeketh after an encounter.

It chaunced in those dayes, for the Philistines gathered theyr host together to war, to fyght with Israel. And Achis sayd to David: Be sure, thou shalt go out with me to the battayle, thou and the men that are with the. And David said to Achis: then thou shalt knowe what thy seruauent can do. And Achis sayde agayne to David: Then I wyl make the keeper of my bed for euer. * Samuel was then dead, and all Israel had lamented hym, and buried hym in Rama his owne cytie. * And Saul had put the womē that had spyrites of prophecie, & the sorclayers out of the lande. And the Philistines gathered together, and came, and pitched in Samē: And Saul gathered al Israel together, and they pitched in Gilboa: And when Saul sawe the hoste of the Philistines, he was afrayed, and his hert was soze astonied. And when Saul asked counsaile of the Lord, the Lord answered hym not, neither by dreames nor by Urim, nor yet by prophetes. Then sayd Saul vnto his seruantes: seke me a woman that hath a spyrite of prophecie, that I may go to her, & aske of her. And his seruantes sayd to hym: Behold, there is a woman that hath a spyrite of prophecie at Endor.

And Saul chaunged hym selfe, and put on other rayment, and then went he and two women with him, and they came to the womā by night. And he sayd: prophecie vnto me by the spyrite, and bynge me hym vpon whom I shall name vnto the. And the womā sayd vnto hym: Behold, thou knowest what Saul hath done, howe he hath destroyed the women that had propheyinge spyrites, & the sorcerers out of the lande. Therefore then sekest thou an occasion agaynst my soule, that he may kil me? And Saul swore to her by the Loyde, saying: As surely as I loyd lyueth, there shal no harme chaunce the for this thyng. Then sayd the womā: whome shal I fet vnto the? he answered: Bynge me vpon Samuel. Wyl the womā sawe Samuel, he cryed with a loude voyce, and spake to Saul: saying why hast thou disceyued me? for thou art Saul. And the kynge sayde vnto her: be not afrayed. What seekest thou? The womā sayd vnto Saul: I see goddes ascendynge vpon out of the earth. he sayde vnto her agayne: what fashion is he of? she answered, there cometh vpon an olde man w a mantel vpon hym. And Saul perceyued that it was Samuel, & he stouped with his face to the ground, and bowed hym selfe. And Samuel sayd to Saul: why hast thou disquyeted me, to make me be brought vpon? Saul answered: I am soze encombred. For the Philistines make war agaynst me, & God is departed from me, and answereth me no more, neyther by prophetes neyther by dreames. And therefore I haue called the, that thou mayest tell me what I shal do. Then sayd Samuel: Wherefore dost thou aske of me, whyle the Loyde is gone fro the, and is become thyne enemye? Truly the Loyde hath done for hym selfe, euen as he spake by my hande. * For the Loyde hath rent the kyngdome out of thyne hande, & gyuen it thy nedyghbour David. By cause thou obeydest not the voyce of the Loyde, nor executedst his seuerce wrath vpon the Amalekites, therefore hath the Loyde done this vnto the this daye. And moreover the Loyde wyl deliuer Israel with the into the handes of the Philistines. * Comowoe shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me, and the Loyde shal gyue the hoste of Israel into the handes of the Philistines. Then Saul fell streight waye flat on the earth as longe as he was, and was soze adreadd

because of the woordes of Samuel:

And there was no strengthe in hym, for he had eaten no bread al the daye and the nyght be fore. And the woman came vnto Saul, & sawe that he was sore troubled, and sayde vnto hym: He thyne handmayde hath obeyed thy voyce, and * haue put my soule in myne hande, & haue derkened vnto thy woordes which thou saydest vnto me: Howe therfore bearken thou also vnto the voyce of thyne handmayd, and let me let a morsell of bread be fore the, that thou mayest eate and get the strengthe, and then goo on thy iourneys. he refused and sayde: I wyl not eate. But hys seruantes and the woman togyther compelled hym, and he bearkened vnto theyr voyce. And so he arose from the earth, and late hym on a bedde. The woman had a lot cake in the house, and she baked, and kyled it, & tooke flour and kneaded it, and byd bake sweete cakes thereof, and brought them be fore Saul and be fore his seruantes. And when they had eaten, they stode vp, and went awaye the same nyght

David goeth with hyngre Achis to fyght agaynst Saul.

The Philistynes were gathered togyther wyth all theyr atmyes vnto Aphec: And the Israelites pytched in Ain, whiche is in Ierabel. And the lordes of the Philistynes went south with the hundreds and thousandes. But David and his men came behinde with Achis. Then sayde the lordes of the Philistynes: what are ponder hebrewes? Achis sayd vnto the lordes of the Philistynes: Is not this David the seruante of Saul the hyngre of Israel, whiche hath ben with me these dayes or yeres? I haue founde no fault in hym, syns he fled vnto me vnto this daye. And the lordes of the Philistynes were wroth wyth hym, and sayde vnto hym:

Make this felowe retorne, that he maye go agayne to his place whiche thou hast appoynted hym, and let hym not go downe with vs to battayle, lest in the battayle he be an aduersarye to vs. For wherwith coulde he better obtayne the fauoure of his master, then with the heades of these men? Is not this David, to whome they singe in daunces: * Saul slue his thousand, and David his ten thousande? Then Achis called David, and sayd vnto hym: As sure as I Lozde lyueth, thou hast ben honest & good in my sight, when thou wentest oute and in with me, in the doost, neyther haue I founde euill with the syns thou comest to me vnto this daye. Nevertheless the lordes of the Philistynes fauoure the not. Wherfore nowe retourne, and go in peace, that thou displease not the lordes of the Philistynes. And David sayd vnto Achis: And what haue I done? what hast thou founde in thy seruant as longe as I haue bene with the vnto this day that I maye not go fyght agaynst the enemies of my lozde the hyngre?

Achis answered, and sayd to David: I know that thou art good, and art in my fyghte, as an Yungell of God. Notwithstandyng, the lordes of the Philistynes haue sayd: Let hym not go vp wyth vs to battayle. Wherfore nowe, tyle vp earlye in the moynyng wyth thy masters seruantes that are come to the: and wherpe be vp earlye (as sone as ye haue lycht) departe. And so David and his men rose vp earlye to departe in the moynyng, and to retourne into the lande of the Philistynes. And the Philistynes wente vnto Ierabel.

The. xxi. Chapter.

David retourneth from hyngre Achis, and becometh a syleg burne.

It when David and hys men were come to syleg the thyrde daye, the Amalechites had rusthed in vpon the south, and vpon syleg, and had smytten syleg, and burnte it wyth fyre, and had taken the women (that were therein) prisoners, both small and great: but slue not a man, saue carryed them with them, and wente theyr wayes. So David and his men came to the cytie: and beholde, it was burnte wyth fyre, and theyr wyues, theyr sonnes and theyr daughters were carryed awaye. Then David and the people that was with hym, lyfte vp theyr voyces and wept, vntyll they could wepe nomore. And Davids two wyues were taken prisoners also: Abimod the Jezrabelite, & Abigail the wyfe of Nabal of Carmelite. And David was in a green be comaunce: for the people entred to stone hym, because the hartes of al the people were vexed for theyr sonnes & theyr daughters.

But David toke a good counsaile to hym in the Lozde his God, and * sayd to Abiathar the prest: Abimelechies sonne: I praye the bynyng me the Cyphod. And Abiathar broughte the Cyphod to David. And David asked counsaile at the Lozde, sayinge: Shall I folowe after thys companie? and shall I ouer take them? And he answered hym: folowe, for thou shalt ouer take them, and recouer the praye.

So David and the fyve hundred men that were wyth hym, wente, and came to the ryuer Besor, where a parte of them abode. But David and foure hundred men folowed: For two hundred abode behynde, beyng to weye to go ouer the ryuer Besor. And they founde an Egyptian in the felde, and broughte hym to David, * and gaue hym breade to eate, and water to drynke, and gaue hym a fewe fygges, and two clusters of reysynges. And when he had eaten his spyte came agayne to hym: for he had eate no bread, nor dronke anye water in thye dayes, and thye nyghtes. And David sayd vnto hym: To whom belongeth thou? whence art thou? he sayde: I am a ponge man of Egypt, and seruant to an Amalechite and my master left me behynde, because it is thye dayes agone that I fell fycke: we came aroynge vpon the south of Chetuz, and agaynst Iuda, and toward the south of Caleb. And we burnte syleg with fyre. And David sayde to hym: canst thou bynyng me to thys companie? And he sayde: sweare vnto me by me by God, that thou wilt neither kyl me, nor deliuer me into the handes of my master, and I will byynge the to the compaigne. And when he had brought him thither, beholde, they lay scattered abrode vpon the earth, eatynge and drynkyng, & dauncynge, because of the plenteous & great praye they had carped away out of the land of the Philistines, and out of the land of Iuda.

And Dauid layed vpon them from the euen, vntill the twylyght on the morowe: so there escaped not a man of them, save foure hundred yonge men, whiche rode away vpon camels, and hedde. And Dauid recovered all that the Amalechites had carped away, and Dauid rescued his two wyues: so that there was no person of them lackynge, small or greates, sonne or daughter, or of the spoyle of all that they had taken away: Dauid recovered them all agayne. And Dauid toke all the shepe, and the oxen, and they brake them before his cattel, and said: this is Dauids praye. And Dauid came to the two hundred men that were to werpe for to followe Dauid, whome they had made also to abyde at the ryuer Besor. And they came to meete Dauid, and the people that were with hym. And when Dauid came to the people, he saluted the. Then answered all the wicked and the vnchurched (of the men that wente with Dauid,) and sayde: because they went not with vs, therfore will we gyue them none of the praye, that we haue recovered. But let euery man take his wife and his chyldren: Those let them carpe awaye and be walkynge.

Then sayde Dauid: ye shall not doo so (my brethren) with that whiche the Lorde hath gyuen vs, and hath preserved vs, and deliuered the compaigne that came agaynst vs, into oure handes. For who shoulde hearken vnto you in this matter? But as bys parte is that goeth downe and fyghteth, so shall bys parte be that tarpereth by flusse, that it may be parted alphe. And so from that day forward was that made a statute and a lawe in Israel, vntill this daye. When Dauid therfore came to zibleg, he sente (of the praye) vnto the elders of Iuda, and to his frendes, sayynge: se there is a blessing for you, of the spoyle of the enemies of the Lord he sent to them of Bethel: to them of south Ramoth: to the of Jathir: to them of Aroer: to the of Sephamoth, to them of Esthema, to them of Rachel, to them of the cyrie of Jerahmeel, to them of the cyries of the Kenyites: to the of Bozama, to them of Bozasan, to them of Athach, to them that are in hebzon, and in all places where Dauid and bys men were wonte to haunte.

he Philistines fought agaynst Israel, and the men of Israel fled awaye from the Philistines, and fell downe wounded in mount Gilboa. And the Philistines pleased soze vpon Saul and his sonne, and slue Jonathan, and Abinadab and Melchisua Sauls sonnes. And when the battayle was soze agaynst Saul, the archers with bowes founde him, and he was soze astrayed of the archers. Then sayde Saul vnto his harnessbearer: drawe out thy swerd, and thrust me thorow the with, lest the vncircumcised come and thrust me thorow and make a mockynge stoche of me. But his harnessbearer wolde not, for he was soze astrayed. And Saul toke a swerd and fel vpon it. And when his harnessbearer sawe that Saul was deed, he fel by the swerd vpon his swerde, and dyed with hym.

And so Saul dyed, and his thre sonnes, and his harnessbearer, and all his men, that same daye together.

And when the men of Israel that were on the other syde of the valleie, and they of the other syde Jordan herde that the men of Israel were put to flight, and that Saul and his sonnes were deed, they left the cyties, and ranne awaye: and the Philistines came and dwelte in them. On the morowe when the Philistines were come, to spoyle them that were slayne, they founde Saul and his thre sonnes lying in mount Gilboa. And they cut of his hebd, and strypped hym out of his harness, and sent into the lande of the Philistines on euery syde, that they shoulde publish it in the temple of theyr ydols, and amonge the people, and they layed vpon his harness in the house of Ashtaroth, but they hanged vpon bys bodie on the wall of Bethsan. When the inhabytours of Iabes in Gilead hearde thereof, what the Philistines hadde done to Saul, they arose (as many as were stronge men) and went al night and toke the bodie of Saul, and the bodyes of his sonnes, from the wall of Bethsan, and came to Iabes, and burnt them there, and toke theyr bones & buried the vnder a tree at Iabes, and fasted seuen dayes.

The first Chapter.

The lamentation of David for Saul and Jonathan.

489.172.1

After the deeth of Saul, whē David was returned fro the slaughter of the Amalekites, he had ben two dayes in yihleg. Behold, ther came a mā the thyrde day out of the wood fro Saul, with his clothes rent, & earth upon his heed.

And whē he came to David, he fell to the earth, and did obsequies. David said vnto him: whēce comest thou? he sayd vnto hym: Out of the host of Israel I am escaped. And David sayd vnto hym: And what is chaunced? tell me. He sayde: the people is fled from the battayle, and manye of the people are ouerthrowen, and deeth, and Saul and Jonathan his sonne are deeth also.

And David sayde vnto the yonge man, that tolde hym these thynges: howe knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan his sonne be deeth? The yonge man answered: I came by chaunce to moule Gilboa. And behold, Saul leaned vpon his speare. For the charrettes and charnyes of horsemen folowed hard after him: And whē he looked backe he sawe me, and called me. And I answered: here am I. And he said vnto me: what art thou? I answered hym: I am an Amalekite. He sayde vnto me agayne: Stande vpon me, and slaye me. For angrys he is come vpon me, though he my lyfe be yet all in me. And so I stode vpon hym, and slew hym, for I was sure that he coulde not lyue, after that he had fallen. And I toke the crowne that was vpon his heed, and the bracelet that was on his arme and haue broughte them hyther vnto my lord.

489.174.1
489.174.1

Then David toke holde on his clothes, & rent them and so dyd al the men that were with hym. And they mourned and wepte, and fasted vntill euen, for Saul and Jonathan his sonne, and for the people of the Lord, and for the house of Israel, because they were ouerthrowen with the swerde.

And David sayde vnto the yonge man that brought him these thynges. Whēce arte thou? And he answered: I am the sonne of an aleaunt an Amalekite. And David said vnto hym: howe is it that thou wast not ascaied, to laye thyne hande on the Lordes anoynted, to destroy hym?

And David called one of his yonge men, & sayd Go so, and eunne vpon hym. And he smote hym that he dyed. Then sayd David vnto hym: thy bloode be vpon thyne owne heed. For thyne owne mouth hath testified agaynst the, saying I haue slayne the Lordes anoynted.

And David mourned with this lamentation ouer Saul and ouer Jonathan his sonne, & had teache the children of Israel the vse of the bowe. And behold, it is wyrtten in the booke of the ryghteous. (And he sayd: Confesse, O Israel, these that be deeth and wounded vpon the hye hylls.) O noble Israel the wounded are slayne vpon the hylls: Oh, howe are the myghtye ouerthrowen? Tell it not in Gath, nor publyshe it in the stretes of Ihalon: lest the daughters of the Philistines reioyse, and lest the daughters of the vncircumcised triumph. Ye mountaynes of Gilboa, vpon you be neyther dewe nor rayne, nor vpon the felde of offspriges. For there the byld of strength is cast downe: the hyde of Saul, as though he had not ben anoynted with oyle. The bowe of Jonathan and the swerde of Saul turned neuer backe agayne emptye, from the blood of the slayne, and fro the fear of the myghtye warriours.

Saul and Jonathan were louelye and pleasures in theyr lyues, and in theyr deathtes they were not deuyded. They were swyfter then Eagles, and stronger then Lyons: ye daughters of Israel wepe ouer Saul, whiche clothed you in purple, with pleasures, and banded oymettes of golde vpon your apparel. How were strength slayne in battayle? Jonathan is deeth on the hye hylls. Who is me for the? my brother Jonathan verie kynde hast thou ben vnto me. Thy loue to me was wonderfull, passing the loue of women. (As a mother loued her onely chylde, euen so dyd I loue the.) O howe are the myghtye ouerthrowen, and the weapons of warre destroyed.

The ii. Chapter

David is anoynted in Hebron. The battayle of the seruantes of David and Achish.

After this it fortuneth, that David asked counsaile at the Lord, saying: shall I go vnto anye of the cyties of Iuda? And the Lord sayde vnto hym: goo. And David sayde agayne. Whither shall I go? he answered: vnto Hebron. And so David went thither with his two wyues, Abinoam the Iesraelite, and Abigail Rabais wyfe the Caemelite. And the men that were with hym, dyd David carie vpon also, euerye man with his household.

And they dwelte in the towne of Hebron. And the men of Iuda came, and there they annoynted David kyng ouer the house of Iuda. And they tolde David, saying: It is the men of Iabes in Gilead that buried Saul. And David sent messengers vnto the men of Iabes in Gilead, and sayde vnto them: blessed are ye vnto the Lord, that ye haue shewed suche kyndnesse vnto your lord Saul, and haue buried hym. And now the Lord shewe mercye and trueth vnto you. And I wyll do you also suche kyndnesse as ye haue done in this thyng: Therefore now let your your handes be stronge, and playe ye the men: For your master Saul is dead. And they that are of the house of Juda haue anoynted me kyng ouer them. But Abner the sonne of Ner was captaine of Sauls host toke Absoloth the son of Saul, and brought hym to Mahanaim, and made hym kyng ouer Gilead, and ouer the Assurites, and ouer Israhel, Ephraim, Ben Iamin, and ouer all Israhel. And Absoloth Sauls sonne was fouertye yere olde when he began to raygne ouer Israhel, and reigned two yere. But the house of Juda folowed Dauid.

And the tyme which Dauid raygned in Hebron ouer the house of Juda was seue yere and syxe monethes. And Abner the sonne of Ner, and the seruantes of Absoloth the sonne of Saul went out of Mahanaim, to Gibeon. And Joab the sonne of Jaaria, and the seruantes of Dauid went out, and met them by the poole of Gibeon. And they late downe, the one on the one syde of the poole, and the other on the other syde. And Abner sayde to Joab: let the yonge men aryle, and playe befoze vs: And Joab sayde: Let them aryle. Then there arose and wente ouer, twelue of Ben Iamin by nombre, which pertayned to Absoloth the sonne of Saul, and twelue of the seruantes of Dauid. And euery one caught his felowe that cam agaynst hym by the heed, and thrust his swerde in his syde, and so they fell downe togyther.

Wherefoze the place was called: The felde of the myghtye. And it is in Gibeon. And there began an exceeding cruel battaile that same daye. For Abner and the men of Israhel fell befoze the seruantes of Dauid.

And there were thre sonnes of Iariah there: Joab, Abisai, and Abiath. And Abiath was as lyght on foot as a wynde roob, and Abiath folowed after Abner, and * tourned nyether to the ryght hande nor to the lefte, from Abner: Then Abner lohed behynde hym, and sayde: arte thou Abiath? he answered: yea, that I am. Abner sayde: turne the ether to the ryght hande or to the lefte, and cathe one of the yonge men, & take the his weapons. But Abiath wolde not depart from hym. And Abner sayde agayne to Abiath: departe fro me. Wherefoze shulde I synne the to the grounde, and not be hable to holde up my face to Joab thy brother? Howbeit, when he wolde in nowye departe, Abner with the dyn-die ende of the speare smote hym vnder * the hooste ryddes: that the speare came out behynde hym: that he fell downe in the same place, and dyed there. And as manye as came to the place where Abiath fell downe and dyed, stode still. Joab also and Abisai folowed Abner. And the same wente downe, when they were come to the hyl Imma that lyeth befoze Giath, by the wape that goeth thowowe the wyldernesse of Gibeon. And the chyldren of Ben Iamin gathered them selues togyther on an heape, to Abner, and stode on the toppes of an hyl. Then Abner called to Joab, and sayde: what the swerde deuoure thy felowes? knowest thou not, that it wyll be hytter- nesse in the latter ende, howe longe shall it be, or thou bydde the people retorne from folowynge thei brethren? And Joab sayde: as trulpe as God lyueth, if thou haddest not spoken in the morning, the people had ben departed euery one from persecutynge his brother. And so * Joab blew a trompet, and all the people stode still, & pursued after Israhel nomore, neyther fought they any more. And Abner and his men waliked all that nyght thowowe the playne: and went ouer Iordan, and past thowowe al Bethazon tyll they came to Mahanaim.

And Joab returned from persecutynge Abner. And when he had gathered all the people togyther, there lacked of Dauids seruantes, nyne- tene men, and Abiath. But the seruantes of Dauid had slayn of Ben Iamin, and of Abners men, thre hundred and thre score men. And they toke vp Abiath, and buried him in the sepulchre of his father in Berseheem. And Joab and his men went all nyght, vntill the dawnyng of the daye, and came to Hebron.

The. iii. Chapter.

Abner cometh to Dauid, and bringeth hym to Hebron. Joab kylleth Abner.

There was longe warre betwene the house of Saul and the house of Dauid. But Dauid waxed stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul waxed weaker and weaker. And vnto Dauid were * chylidren borne in Hebron: his eldest sonne also was Amnon, of Abinoam the Jerabelite: & seconde Chisai of Hagail the wyfe of Abai the Carmelite: the thyrde Absalom, sonne of Maachab the daughter of Chisai, the kyng of Gethur: the fourth Adonia the sonne of Hagith, the syth. Merphatia the sonne of Abiath: the syth, Iechiam, by Eglia Dauids wyfe. These were borne to Dauid in Hebron. And it fortuned, that whyle there was warre betwene the house of Saul and the house of Dauid, Abner helde by the house of Saul. And Saul had a concubine named Risha, the daughter of Abia. And Absoloth sayd to Abner: wherefore hast thou gone into my fathers concubine? Then was Abner verpe wroth for the wordes of Absoloth, & sayd: Am I not a * dogges heed, which agaynst Juda do thewe mercye this day vnto the house of Saul thy father, and to his brethren and frendes, and haue not deliuered the into the hande of Dauid: and thou fyndest a fault in me this daye for this woma? * So and so do God to Abner. For as the Loyde hath sworn to Dauid, so wyll I be on his syde, to bringe the kyngdome from the house of Saul, that the throne of Dauid maye be stablyshed ouer Israhel, and ouer Juda, euen from Dan to Berseheem. And he coulde gyue Abner neuer a word to answer, because he feared hym.

And Abner sent messengers to Dauid secretly, sayinge: Whose is the lande? Make a bonde with me, and behold, myne hande is with the, to bringe all Israhel vnto the. He sayde: It is good, that I make a bonde with the. But one thing I requyre of the, that thou le not my face except thou lyest bringe Michol Sauls daughter when thou comest to se me.

And

Aug. ii. aduersities: When one tolde me, and sayd that Saul was deed, thynkyng to haue brought good tydings, I caught hym and slue hym in whyle: whiche thought that I wolde haue gyfte hym a reward for his tydings bypynge. How much more wyl wyched men haue slayne a ryghteous person, in his owne house, and vpon his bedde. Shall I not requyte his blood of your hande, and take you from the earth? And David commaunded his younge men, and they slue them, and cut of theyr handes and fete, and hanged them vpon the poole in Hebzon. But they toke the head of Ishobeth, and buryed it in the sepulchre of Abner in Hebzon.

The v. Chapter.

David is yet agayne annoynted kyng: and taketh the arke from Gyr.

When came all the trybes of Israel to David vnto Hebzon, and sayde: Beholde, we are of thy bone & of thy flesh. And in tyme past whil Saul was our kyng, thou leddest Israel in and oute. And the Lorde hath sayde to the: thou shalt fede my people Israel, and thou shalt be a captayne ouer Israel. And so al the elders of Israel came to the kyng to Hebzon. And kyng David made a covenannt with them in Hebzon before the Lorde. And they annoynted David kyng ouer Israel. David was thyrty yere olde when he began to raigne, and he raigned fortye yere: In Hebzon he raigned ouer Iuda seven yere, and hys monethes. And in Ierusalem he raigned thyrtye and thre yeres ouer all Israel and Iuda.

The kyng also and his men wente to Ierusalem vnto the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the lande. Whiche spake vnto David, saying: except thou take awaye the blynde and the lame, thou shalt not come in hyther. For they sayde: Thou arte not hable to come in hyther. Nevertheless, David toke the stronge hold of Sydo. The same is the cytie of David. And David sayd the same day: whosoever smiteth the Jebusites, and getteth vp to the gutters of the houses and smiteth the lame & blynde & hate Davids soule. Wherefore, they sayd: the blynde and the lame shal not come into the house. And so David dwelt in the towne, & called it the cytie of David, & buylt round about it fro Wylo in ward. And David prospered & grewe, & the Lorde God of hostes was wth hym. And hiram kyng of Tyre sent messengers to David, & cedartrees, and carpters, and masons for walles: and they buylt David an house. And David perceyved, that the Lorde had stablyshed hym kyng ouer Israel, and that he had exalted his highdom for his people Israels sake. And David toke hym mo concubynes and wyues oute of Ierusalem, after he was come from Hebzon, and molones and daughters were yet borne to David. And these be the names of the sones that were borne vnto hym in Ierusalem: Samma, Hobab, Nathan, and Salom, Jibbar also, and Elia, Nepheg, and Iaphia, Elisama, Elida, and Eliaphel.

But when the Philistines herde that they had annoynted David kyng ouer Israel, they came all vnto seke David. And as soone as David hearde of it, he gate hym to an holde. And when the Philistines came, they layed them alonge in the valley of Rephaim. And David asked counsaile of the Lorde, saying: Shall I goo vnto the Philistines: wylte thou deliuer them into myne handes? And the Lorde answered vnto David: go vp, for I wyl doubtesse deliuer the Philistines into thyne handes. And David came to the playne of Berazim, and smote them there, and sayde: the Lorde hath deuyded myne enemyes a sondre before me, as waters be deuyded a sondre. And therefore the name of the place was called: The playne of Berazim. And there they left theyr ymages, & David and his men toke them vp. And the Philistines cam yet agayne, and layed them selues in the valley of Rephaim. And when David asked at the Lorde, Aug. ii. (shall I goo vnto the Philistines: and wylte thou deliuer them into myne handes?) he answered: Thou shalt not goo vp, but compasse them on the backeside, and come vpon them ouer agaynst the peretrees. And when thou hearest the noyse of a thynge going in the toppes of the peretrees, then remoue: for then shall the Lorde go oute before the, to smyte the hostes of the Philistines. And David dyd as the Lorde had commaunded hym, and smote the Philistines from Gibe, vntyll they come to Gazer.

The vi. Chapter.

The arke is brought forth of the house of Abinadab. Uza is stricken, and dyeth. David dancceth before it, and is therfore deliuyed of his trespach.

Agayne, David gathered together all the cholen men of Israel, euen thyrtye thousande, & arose and went with al the folke that were with him of the men of Iuda to fet a way from thence the arke of God, whose name is called the name of the Lorde of hostes, that dwelleth vpon it betwene the cherubins. And they put the arke of God vpon a new cart, and brought it out of the house of Abinadab that was at Gibe. And Uza and Ahio the sonnes of Abinadab draue the new cart. And whil they brought it out of the house of Abinadab it was at Gibe with the arke of God: Ahio went before the arke, and David and all the house of Israel played before the Lorde in sondry instrumentes made of Cedar wood, wyth harpes, of psalterres, tymbrels, sydes, and cymbals.

And when they came to Nachons thersyng floore, Uza put his hande to the arke of God, & helde it, for the oxen stumbled. And the Lorde was wrooth with Uza, and God smote hym in the same place for his fault, and there he dyed before the arke of God: And David was displeased, because the Lorde had smytten Uza. And the name of the place was called Peres: The renyng of Uza vntyll this daye. And David was then afrayed of the Lorde, and sayde: how shall the arke of the Lorde come to me? And so David wolde not bypynge the arke of the Lorde vnto hym into the cytie of David. But David carryed it into the house of Obed Edom, a Gethyter. And the arke of the Lorde continued in the house of Obed Edom the Gethyter, thre monethes, and the Lorde blessed Obeth Edom, and all his household. And one tolde hyng David how the Lorde had blessed Obeth Edom & all that pertayned vnto hym, because of the arke of God, and David went and brought the arke of God from the house of Obeth Edom, into the cytye of Dauid with gladnesse. ¹⁰ And there were in Dauid seven thousand of hammer, and sixteen thousand of silver. ¹¹ And when they that bare the arke of the Lorde had gone fyve spaces, he offered an ox, and a fat shepe. ¹² And Dauid ¹³ (played on harpe strings, and) daunced before the Lorde with all his myght, and was gyrded with a tymbre Ephod. ¹⁴ So Dauid and all the house of Israel, brought the arke ¹⁵ (of the covenant) of the Lorde with shouting, and trompet blowing.

¹⁷ Then Dauid returned to blese his household, and Michol the daughter of Saul came out to meete Dauid, and sayde: O howe glorious was the kyng of Israel this daye, which was vncouered todaye, in the eyes of the maydens of his seruantes, as yf it had bene a lyght byayned fellowe vncouered. And Dauid sayde vnto Michol: I thought to dance before the Lorde, which chose me rather then thy father, and al his kyn, and commaunded me to be ruler ouer all the people of the Lorde, euen ouer Israel. And therfore wyl I play before the Lorde. And wyl yet be moze vyle then so, and wyl be lowe in myne owne syght, and of the very same maydeseruautes, which thou hast spoken of, shall I be had in honour. Therfore Michol the daughter of Saul had no chyld, vnto the daye of her death.

The vii. Chapter.

¹ Dauid wolde buyde God an house, but is forbyden of God.

² It fortuned, that as the kyng sate in his house (after the Lorde had gyuen hym rest rounde about fro all his enemyes) he sayd vnto Nathan a prophet: behold, I dwel now in an house of Cedar trees: but the arke of God dwelleth within a curtayne. And Nathan sayd vnto the kyng: go, and do all that is in thine herte, for the Lorde is with the.

And it fortuned the same nyghte, that the worde of the Lorde came vnto Nathan, saying: go, and tell my seruant Dauid, thus sayeth the Lorde: Wilt thou buyde me an house to dwell in?

For I haue not dwelt in any house syns I tyme that I brought the chyld of Israel out of Egypt vnto this daye: but haue dwelt in a tent & tabernacle. In all the places wherin I haue walked with all the chyldren of Israel, I haue I one worde with anye of the trybes of Israel (syns I commaunded the iudges to fede my people Israel) saying: why buyde ye not me an house of Cedar trees? Howe therfore so saye vnto my seruant Dauid: thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes. * I toke the from the shepheard (as thou wast folowynge shepe) that thou myghtest be ruler ouer my people Israel. And I was with the in al that thou wentest to, & haue destroyed all thine enemyes oute of thy syght, and haue made the a greate name, lyke vnto the name of the greates men that are in the earth. And therfore I wyl appoynte a place for my people Israel, and wyl plant it, that they maye dwell in a place of theyr owne, and moue nomore, neyther shall wyched people trouble them anye moze as they dyd at the begynnyng: syns the tyme that I set iudges ouer my people of Israel. And I wyl gyue the rest from all thine enemyes. And the Lorde telleth the, & he wyl make for an house.

And when thy dayes be fulfilled, thou shalt slepe with thy fathers, and I wyl sette vp thy seed after the, which shall procede out of thy body, and wyl stablish his kyngdome. * He shall buyde an house for my name, and I wyl stablish the seate of his kyngdome for euer: & I will be his father, and he shall be my sonne: & yf the syn I wyl chasten hym with such a rodde as men be chastened with, and with suche plagis as the chyldren of men be plagued with. But my mercy shall not departe a waye from him, as I toke it fro Saul, whom I put downe before the. And thine house and thy kyngdome shall endure with out ende after the, & thy seate shall be stablished for euer. Accordynge to all these wordes, and accordynge to all this vpsion, dyd Nathan speake vnto Dauid. Then wente Dauid in, and set hym downe before the Lorde, and sayd: what am I, O lord God, and what is my house: that thou shouldest haue brought me this far forth? And this was yet a small thyng in thy syght, O Lorde God, but thou hast spoken al of thy seruantes house for a greate whylle to come: for this is the yle of man, O Lorde God. And what can Dauid saye moze vnto the: for thou, Lorde God knowest thy seruant. Euen for thy wordes sake, and accordynge to thine owne herte hast thou done all these great thynges, to make them knowne vnto thy seruant.

Wherefore thou art grete, O Lorde God: for there is none lyke the: & neither is there any god like the, accordynge to all that we haue heard with our eares. * And what one people in the earth is like thy people Israel: whose God went & deliuered them, & they myght be his people, and I demygde make hym a name, & to thewe great & terrible thynges in the earth, for thy people: which thou redemest to the out of Egypt: euen the people with thy goddes. For thou hast ordeyned thy people Israel to be thy people for euer.

And

And thou Lorde arte become thy God. And now (Lorde God) the word that thou hast spoken concerning thy seruante and his house, make it good for ever, and do as thou hast sayd. For so shall thy name be magnified for ever of men that shall say: the Lord of hostes is the God of Israel: and the house of thy seruante shall be stablished before the. For thou O Lorde of hostes God of Israel, haste to lorde in the care of thy seruante. sayinge: I will buyde the an house.

And therefore hath thy seruante founde in his heart, to pray this prayer vnto the. * Therefore now Lorde God, thou art God, & thy wordes must be true, that thou hast tolde this goodnesse vnto thy seruant. And now go to & blesse the house of thy seruant, that it maye continue for ever before the. for thou Lorde God hast spoken it: and with thy blessinge shall the house of thy seruant be blessed for ever.

The viii. Chapter
David ouercometh the Philistines.

After this it is foxtuned, & David smote the Philistines, & subdued them, & take the byble of bondage out of the hande of the Philistines. * And he smote the Goliathites, & measured the wall byne, & call them downe to the ground. Euf with two bynes measured he them who he slue, and the length of one byne laued he aloue. And so became the Goliathites Davids seruantes, and payed tribute. David smote also hadadazer the sonne of Rehob kyng of zoba as he went to recover his bozore at the ryuer Eberath. And David toke a thousande and six hundred men of his host, and twenty thousand foemen, & cut of the hofe of all his charethozes, reseruing only one hundred charettres. And when the Syrians of Damascus came to succour hadadazer kyng of zoba, David slue of the Syrians two and twenty thousande men, and put souldyers in Siria Damascus. And the Syrians became seruantes to David, payinge tribute. And thus the Lorde laued David, in all that he went vnto.

And David toke the sheldes of golde that beloged to the seruantes of hadadazer, & brought them to Jerusalem. And out of Beta, and Berothai (cytyes of hadadazer) byd David bypnyng exceedinge moche byasse: (whereof Salomon made all the brasen vessel in the temple, and the brasen lanternes, and the pyllers and the outers.)

When Chai kyng of Hamath herde howe David had smytten alle the host of hadadazer, he sent Joabam his sonne vnto kyng David, to entreat hym for peace, and to blesse him because he had fought agaynst hadadazer, and beaten him (for Chai had great war with hadadazer) which (Joabam) broughte with him vessels of silver, vessels of golde, & vessels of bras. Whych byasse kyng David byd dedicate vnto the Lorde with the silver and golde that he had consecrated of all nations, whych he subdued: of Siria, of the Goliathites, and of the children of Ammō, of the Philistines, and of Hamath, and of the spoule of hadadazer sonne of Rehob, kyng of zoba. And David gat hym a name after that he returned, and had smitten of the Syrians in the vallepe of Salt, eightene thousand men. * And he put keepers in Edom: even thowout all Edom put he souldiers, and all they of Edom became Davids seruantes. And the Lorde kepte David whatsoeuer he toke in hande. And David raygned ouer all Israel, and executed ryghte and iustyce vnto all his people. And Joab the sonne of Zaruia was ouer the host, and Jehoiaphat the sonne of Achis was recorder. And Bada the sonne of Achis, and Achimelech the son of Abiathar wer the prestes, and Sarai was the scribe. And Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Cretchites and the Philestines and Davids sonnes were chiefe rulers.

The ix. Chapter.

David reduceth all the felde of Saul, to Michah, holery the sonne of Jonathan.

As David sayde: is there yet anye man left of the house of Saul? For I wyl geue hym mercy for Jonathan say. And ther was of the house of Saul, a seruante whose name was iiba, & when they had called hym vnto David, & kyng sayd vnto him, art thou iiba? he sayd: Thy seruante is he. And the kyng said: remaineth there yet anye man of the house of Saul, whome I may geue the mercede of God? iiba answered the kyng: * Jonathan hath byt a sonne which is lame of his fete. The kyng sayde vnto hym: where is he? iiba sayd vnto the kyng: behold, he is in the house of Achish the sonne of Amiel of Lodeber. Then kyng David sent, and fet hym out of the house of Achish the sonne of Amiel out of Lodeber. Now when Achisholoth the sonne of Jonathan, the sonne of Saul was come vnto David, he fell on his face, and byd reuerence. And the kyng sayde: Achisholoth he answered. Beholde thy seruant. David sayde vnto hym: feare not, for I wyl surely geue the thyndesse, for Jonathan thy fathers sake, and wyl restore the all the felde of Saul thy father, and thou shalt eat byed on myne owne table continuallye. And he bowed hym selfe, and sayde: What is thy seruant? that thou shouldeste voucheface to looke vpon suche a deed dogge as I am?

Then the kyng called vnto iiba Davids yong man, and sayde vnto hym: I haue giuen vnto thy masters sonne, all that pertayned to Saul, and to all his house. So therefore that thou and thy sonnes and thy seruantes tye the land, and bynge in, that thy masters sonne maye haue foode to eat. But Achisholoth thy masters sonne shall eat byed alwaye vpon my table.

For iſba had ſixtene ſonnes, and twenty ſer-uantes. Then ſayd iſba vnto the kyng: Accord-yng to all þy my lord the kyng hath commaunded his ſeruante, ſo ſhal thy ſeruante do. Well (ſayd the kyng) Whiche ſhall eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges ſonnes. Whiche-ſeth had a ſonne that was yonge named Michaand all that dwelled in the houſe of iſba wer ſer-uantes vnto Whicheſeth. And Whicheſeth dwelte in Jeruſalem, for he dyd eate euer at the kynges table: and was lame on both his feete.

The .x. Chapter.

The meſſengers of Dauid are ſylapouſly murthered of the kyng of Ammon.

IT happened after this, þat the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, and hath his ſonne reigned in his ſtede.
Then ſayd Dauid: I wil ſhew kindneſſe vnto hath þe ſonne of Nabas, as his father ſhewed kindneſſe vnto me. And Da-uid ſent to comfort him by the hande of his ſerutes ouer ^{the death of} his father. And Dauids ſeruantes came into þe land of the chyldren of Ammon, and the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon ſayde vnto hath the kyng: thyneſt þe that Dauid doth honour thy father, that he hath ſent comfortours to the? hath not Dauid rather ſent his ſeruantes vnto the, to ſearche the cy-pre, and to ſpye it out, and to ouerthrowe it?

Wherfore hath he ſent Dauids ſeruantes, and ſhaued of the halfe of euery mannes beerde, and cut of the garments in the myddle, euen harde to the buttockes of them, and ſente them a waye. When they tolde it vnto Dauid, he ſent to mete them (for they were men exceedingly aſhamed) and the kyng ſayde: tarpe at Jericho, vntill your beerdes be grown, & then returne.
And when the chyldren of Ammon ſawe, that they ſtande in the ſpyght of Dauid, they ſent and hired the Syrians of the houſe of Rehob, and the Syrians of Joba twenty thouſand ſouldiers, and of kyng Maacha a thouſande men, and of Joba twelue thouſand men. And when Dauid hearde of it, he ſent Joab & all the hoſt of ſtrong men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out, and waged battayle at the entrynge in of the gate, and the Syrians of Joba, of Rehob, Joba, & Maacha were by them ſelues in the felde.

When Joab ſawe that the fronte of the bat-tayle was agaynſt hym, before & after, he choſe of all the ſtrength ponge men of Iſrael, and put the in aray agaynſt the Syrians. And the reſt of þe people he deliuered into the hande of Abiſai his brother, þe myght put them in aray agaynſt the chyldren of Ammon. And he ſayd: yf the Syrians be ſtronger then I, thou ſhalte helpe me.
But yf the chyldren of Ammon be to ſtrong for the, I wyll come and ſuccoure the. Therefore quyte the lyke a man, and let vs ſtand ſtyll for our people, and for the cyties of oure God. And the Lord do that whiche is good in his owne eyes. And Joab proceeded forth, and the people that was with hym to fyght with the Syrians.
But they fled before hym. And when the chyldren of Ammon ſawe that þe Syrians were fled, then fled they alſo before Abiſai, and entered into the cype. And ſo Joab returned fro the chyldren of Ammon, and came to Jeruſalem. And when þe Syrians ſawe that they were put to the worſe before Iſrael, they gathered them together.

And Hadarezer ſent, and brought out the Syrians that were beyonde the ryuer. And they came with the army, and Joba þe capteyne of the hoſt of Hadarezer, went before them.

And when it was ſhewed Dauid, he gathered all Iſrael together, and paſſed ouer Jordan and came to Helam: And the Syrians ſet them ſelues in aray agaynſt Dauid, and fought with him: & the Syrians fled before Iſrael. And Da-uid deſtroyed ſeuene hundred charrettes of the Syrians, & fourtye thouſande hoſtemen, and more.
Joba the capteyne of the hoſt, whiche alſo dyed there. And when all the kynges (that were ſeruantes to Hadarezer, ſawe þe they were put to the worſe before Iſrael, they made peace w them, and ſerued them. And ſo the Syrians feared to helpe the chyldren of Ammon any moze.

The .xi. Chapter.

The ſubornage of Dauid with Bethſabe the wyfe of Urias.

As it came to paſſe, that (after the peace was crypyed in the tyme whiche kynges uſe to go forth to battayle, Dauid ſent Joab and his ſeruantes with hym, & all Iſrael, whiche deſtroyed the chyldren of Ammon, and beſieged Raba. But Dauid tarped ſtyll at Jeruſalem. And it chaunced in an eueninge, that Da-uid aroſe out of his bed, and walked vpon the rooſe of the kynges palace, and from the rooſe, he ſawe a woman waſhyng her ſelfe: and the woman was very beautifull to loke vpon. And he ſente to enquire what woman it ſhoulde be, ſayinge: is it not Bethſabe the daughter of E-liam, and wyfe to Urias the Hethite? And Da-uid ſent meſſengers, & ſet her. And ſhe came in vnto him: he laye w her. And ſhe came in vnto her houſe. And ſhe was puriſed from her vncleannes, and returned vnto her houſe. And ſhe was conceyued, and ſet & told Dauid, & ſayd: I am w chyld. And Dauid ſent to Joab ſayinge: ſende me Urias the Hethite. And Joab ſet Urias to Dauid. And when Urias was come vnto him, Dauid demaunded of him how Joab dyd, and how the people fared and how the men of warre prospered. And Da-uid ſayde to Urias: goo downe to thine houſe, and waſh thy ſelfe. And Urias departed oute of the kynges palace, and there folowed him a ſer-uante fro þe kynges table. But Urias ſlept at the doze of

doze of the kynges palace: with all the seruantes of his lord, and wet not downe to his house.

C Which when they had tolde Dauid (sayinge: Elias went not downe into his house) Dauid sayd vnto Elias: Camest thou not fro thy tourney? why dydest thou not go downe then vnto thyne house? Elias answered Dauid. The arche of Israel and Iuda dwell in paulions: & my lord Joab and the seruantes of my lord lye vpon the flat earth, and shall I then go into myne house, to eate and drynke, and lye with my wyfe? By thy lyfe, and by the lyfe of thy soule, I will not do this thyng. And Dauid sayde vnto Elias: *tarye here thyng nychte also, and tomozowe I will let the departe. And so Elias abode in Ierusalem that daye, and the mozowe. And when Dauid had called hym, he dyd eate and drynke before hym, & he made hym dyonke. And at euene he went out to lye on his couch with the seruantes of his lord, but wet not downe to his house. On the mozowe Dauid wrote a letter to Joab, and sent it by the hande of Elias. And he wrote thus in the letter, sayinge: put Elias in the forefront of the sharpest battayle, and come ye backe from hym, that he may be smytten, and dye. So when Joab besieged the cite, he assigned Elias vnto a place, where he wrote, that stronge men were. And the men of the cite came out, and fought with Joab. And there were certayn ouerthrowen of the people, and of the seruantes of Dauid: and Elias the hethite dyed also.

D Then Joab sente, and tolde Dauid all the thynges concerning the warre, and charged the messenger, sayinge: when thou hast made an ende of telling the matters of this warre vnto the kyng, yf he begynne to fume, and say vnto the: wherfore approached ye so nye vnto the cite, when ye dyd fight? wylt ye not that they wold hurle and shote from the walls? Who smote Abimelech sonne of Jeroboam? Dyd not a woman cast a ptre of a mylstone vpon hym fro of the wall, and he dyed in Thers? Why wente you nye the wall? Then saie thou: thy seruant Elias the hethite is deed also.

So the messenger went, & came and the wed Dauid all. Joab had sent hym for: and the messenger sayd vnto Dauid: the men preyayled agaynst vs, & came out vnto vs into the felde, & we ^(with violence) smote vnto them, euen vnto the entring of the gate. And the shoters shot fro the walles vpon thy seruantes, and some of thynges seruantes be deed. And thy seruant Elias the hethite is deed also. And Dauid sayde vnto the messengers: thus shalte thou say vnto Joab: let not the thing trouble the. For ^(the thynge of) the sword deuoureth one as well as another: make thy battayle moze stronge, agaynst the cite to ouerthrowe it, and let that thou courage Joab. And when the wyfe of Elias herde that her husband was deed, she mourned for hym. And when the mourninge was past, Dauid sent & fet her to his house, and she became his wyfe, and bare him a sonne. But this thing that Dauid dyd, displeased the Lorde.

C The. xii. Chapter.

C Dauid is reproued for the slayng of Nabal.
The childe conceived in adultery, dyeth.
After it is shewen howe.

A And the Lorde sent Nathan vnto Dauid. And he came vnto hym, and tolde hym: there were two men in one cite, the one ryche and the other poore: the ryche man had exceeding many shepe and oxen. But the poore had nothinge, save one lyele shepe which he hadde bought, and nourished vp. And it grew: vp with hym and with his chyldren also, and dyd eat of his owne meate, and drank of his owne cyppe and slept in his bosome, and was vnto hym as his daughter. And there came a stranger vnto the ryche man. And he coule not fynde in his herde to take of his owne shepe, and of his owne oxen to dresse for the stranger that was come vnto hym. But toke the poore mans shepe, and dresse it for the man that was come to hym. And Dauid was exceedingly wroth with the man and sayde to Nathan: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, the man that hath done this thyng *is the childe of death. He shal restore the lambe: fourfold, because he dyd this thinge, and had no pte. And Nathan sayde to Dauid: thou arte the man. Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: *I annoynted the kyng ouer Israel, and eke the out of the hand of Saul, I gaue the thy masters house, and thy masters wyues into thy bosom, and gaue the the house of Israel, and of Iuda, and myghte (yft that had bene to lyle) haue gyuen the so moche moze. Wherfore then haste thou despyed the commaundement of the Lorde, to do wickednesse in his syght: thou hast killed Elias the hethite with the swerde, and hast taken his wyfe to thy wyfe, and haste slayne hym with the swerde of the chyldren of Ammon.

Now therfore the swerde shall neuer departe fro thyne house, because thou hast despyed me, and taken the wyfe of Elias the hethite to be thy wyfe. Wherfore thus sayth the Lorde: beholde, I will styre vp euill agaynst the, euen out of thyne owne house, & wil take thy wyues before thyne eyes, & gyue the vnto thy neighbour, & he shal lye with thy wyues in the syght of the sunne. For thou dydest it secretly. But I wil do this thing before all Israel, & in the open sunne lycht.

And Dauid sayd vnto Nathan: *I haue synned agaynst the Lorde. And Nathan sayd vnto Dauid: the Lorde also hath put away thy syn, thou shalt not dye. howbeit, because in doinge this dede, thou hast gyued the enemies of the Lorde a cause to rayle, the childe that is borne vnto the shal surely dye. And Nathan departed vnto his house. And the Lorde stroke the childe that Elias wyfe bare vnto Dauid, and it sychened saie. Dauid therfore besought God for the childe, and fasted and went in, and laye all nyght vpon the earth. And the elders of his house arose, and went to hym, to take him vp from the earth. But he wold not, neyther dyd he eate meate with them.

And it happened the seuen daye, that the childe dyed. And the seruantes of Dauid durst not tell hym that the childe was deed. For they sayde: beholde, whyle the childe was yet alyue, we spake vnto hym, and he wolde not hearken vnto oure

And David layd vnto his seruantes: is the chylder deed? They sayde: yea. And David arose from the earth, and washed and annoynted hym selfe, and chaunged his apparel, and came into the house of the Lorde, and worshipped, and afterwarde came to his owne house, and bad that they shoulde set before hym, and he dyd eate. Then sayd his seruantes vnto hym, what thyng is this, that thou hast done? Thou dydest fast and wepte for y^e chylder, whyle it was aloue, and as soone as it was deed thou dydest eate vp, and eate meate. He sayde: whyle the chylder was yet aloue, I fasted, and wept: for thus I thought, who can tell whether God will haue mercye on me, that the chylder maye lyue. But now I seeinge he is deed, wherefore shoulde I fast? Can I linge hym agayne any moze? I shall go to hym, rather then he shal come agayne to me. And David comforted Bethsabe his wyfe, and wente in vnto her, and laye with her, & he bare a sonne, and called his name Salomon, and the Lorde loued hym. And he sent by the hande of Nathan the prophete, and called his name Iredia, of y^e Lorde behalfe.

Joab fought agaynst Raba the cytye of the chyldren of Ammon, and toke the cytye of the kyngdome. And Joab sent messengers to David sayinge: I haue made assaut at Raba, and haue taken the cytye with waters. Now therefore gather the rest of the people together, and besiege y^e citie, that thou mayest take it, lest I take it, & call it after my name. And David gathered all the people together, and went agaynst Raba, and besieged it, and gate it. And he toke they^e kynges crowne from of his heed, whych wayed an hundred weyghte of golde, and in it were precious stones. And it was set on Davids heed: & he brought out the spoyle of the cytye in exceeding great aboundance. And he carryed out y^e people that was therein, and put them vpon sawes, & vpon yzon harowes, and vpon axes of yzon, and thrust them into the tyle kyline. The xiii. Chapter.

Ammon Davids sonne defileth his syster Thamar.
Absalom therefore killeth Ammon.

After this, chaficed, y^e Absalom the son of David had a saye syster, named Thamar, whos Ammon the son of David loved: and he was so sore vexed y^e he fell syche for the loue of his syster Thamar: for she was a virgin, and he thought it harde for him to haue his purpose of her. But Ammon had a frende called Jonadab, y^e son of Shimeah Davids brother: and Jonadab was a very wyse man. And he sayd vnto hym: how cometh it, that thou bring y^e kynges sonne art thus consumed euery day? Wyle thou not tel me? Ammon answered hym: I loue Thamar my brother Absaloms syster. Jonadab sayd vnto hym: laye the downe on thy bedde, and make thy selfe syche. And when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto hym: Oh, let my syster Thamar come, and gyue me meate, & dresse it in my syght, that I maye se it, and eate it of her hande.

And so Ammon laye downe, and made hym selfe syche. And when the kyng was come to se hym, Ammon sayde vnto hym: Oh lette Thamar my syster come, and make me a couple of frytters in my syght, that I maye eate of her hande. Then David sent home to Thamar, sayinge: go now to thy brother Ammons house, and dresse hym meate. So Thamar went to her brother Ammons house, and he was layed downe. And she toke flour, and made paste, and dresed frytters in his syght, and dyd bake them, & toke a platter, and poured them out before hym: but he wolde not eate. And Ammon sayde: haue out al men fro me. And they went al out from hym. And Ammon sayde vnto Thamar: bringe the meate into the chambere, that I maye eate of thyne hande. And Thamar toke the frytters, whiche she had made, and brought them into the chambere to Ammon her brother: And when she hadde set them before hym to eate, he toke her, & layde vnto her: come lye with me my syster. And she answered hym: naye my brother, doo not force me, for there hath no such thyng be done in Israel: do not thou this abhominacyon. For whyther shal I be able to go wth my shame. And thou shalt be as one of y^e foles in Israel. O speake vnto the kyng, and he shal not denye me vnto the.

Howbeit, he wolde not hearken vnto her voyce but toke her, and forced her, and lay with her. And then Ammon hated her exceedingly: so that the hate wherewith he hated her, was greater then the loue, with which he before loved her. And Ammon sayde vnto her: vp, and gette the hence. She answered hym: thou hast no cause. This euyl that thou puttest me a way, is greater then the other, that thou dydest vnto me. Nevertheless, he wolde not heare her, but called his boye that serued hym, and sayde: put a waye this woman fro me, and bolte the doze after her. And she had a kystle of dyuers colours vpon her: for wth such were the kynges doughters (that were virgins) apparelled. Th^{is} his seruante brought her out, & locked the doze after her. And Thamar toke, & put asbes on her heed and sente her gape kystle that was on her, and layed her hand on her heed, & so went, and as she went, cryed. And Absalom her brother sayd vnto her: hath Ammon thy brother bene wth thee? Now yet he kyll my syster: he is thy brother. Let not this thyng greue thyne herte. And so Thamar remayned desolate in her brother Absaloms house. But when kyng David herde of al these thynges, he was very wroth. (And he wolde not bere the synne of Ammon his sonne, for he loved hym, because he was his firstborne.) And Absalom sayde vnto his brother Ammon, neyther good nor badde. Howbeit, Absalom hated Ammon, because he had forced his syster Thamar.

And it happened after two yere, that Absalom had y^e shepherders in y^e playne of Bazai besyde the trybe of Ephraim, & bad al the kynges sonnes ney, and came to the kyng & sayde: beholde, thy seruant hath thepererres, let the kyng & his seruantes come to thy seruant: The kyng answered Absalom: naye my sonne. We wyll not go all, nor be chargeable vnto the. And Absalom laye soze vpon hym: howbeit, he wolde not go, but blessed hym. Then sayde Absalom: If thou wylt not come, then let my brother Amnon go with vs. And the kyng answered hym: What nedeth it, that he goe with the? But Absalom made such instance, that he let Amnon and all the kynges chyldren go with hym.

Row had Absalom commaunded his pongme saying: make when Ammons herte is mery w wyne, & when I byd you synge Amnon, then kyl him: and feare not, haue not I hydden your beholde thefoze, & play the men. And the pong men of Absalom dyd vnto Amnō, euen as Absalom had commaunded. And all the kynges sonnes arose, and eury man gat hym vp vpon hys mule, & fled: And it fortuned, & while they were yet in & way, tydynges came to Dauid, saying Absalom hath slayne all the kynges sonnes, & there is none left alpyue. The Dauid arose, and tare his garmentes, & laye alonge on the earthe, and all his seruantes rode by w the; clothes rent. And Jonadab the son of Simeach Dauids brother answered and sayde: let not my lord suppose & they haue slayne all the ponge men the kynges sonnes, saue Amnon onely is dead. For & hath ben determined in Absaloms mynde, syns he forced his sister Thamar. Now therfoze let not my lord the kyng take the thyng so greuouslye, so thynke that all the kynges sonnes are dead, saue Amnon onely is dead.

But Absalom fled. And the ponge man that kept the watche lyfte vp his eyes, & lohed. And beholde, there came moche people by a waye, alonge by the hynder part on an hyllsyde. And Jonadab sayd vnto the kyng: beholde, & kynges sonnes come. As thy seruante sayde, so it is. And as soone as he had left speake, beholde, the kynges sonnes came, and lyfte vp theyr voyces, and wept. The kyng also and all his seruantes wept exceedingly. But Absalom escaped & wote to Thalmat the sonne of Amihur kyng of Gethur. And Dauid mourned for his son eury day. And so Absalom escaped and went to Gethur, & was there thye yeres. And kyng Dauid desired to go forth vnto Absalom: For where as Amnon was dead, he was comforted ouer hym.

The. xliii. Chapter.

Why the woman of Thchoa, Absalom is called agayne.

The sonne of Jaria perceyued, & the kynges herte was toward Absalom, and he sent to Thchoa, and sette thence a wyfe woman, and sayd vnto her: sayne thy selfe to be a mourner, and put on mournynge apparell. And annoynt not thy self with oyle. But be as a woman that had longe tyme mourned for some deed body. And come to the kyng, and speake of thys maner vnto hym. And so Joab taught her what she shoulde saye. And when the woman of Thchoa had fallen on her face to the grounde, and done obeysance, she sayde vnto the kyng: helpe me, O kyng.

The kyng sayde vnto her: what ayleth the? She answered: I am a wyddowe, and my hus band is dead. And thy handmayde had two sonnes, and they two foughte together in the filde (where was noman to go betwene them) but the one smote the other, and slue hym. And beholde, the hole kyngdome is ryisen agaynst thyne handmayde, and they sayde: *delyuer vs hym that smote his brother: that we maye kyl hym, for the soule of his brother whome he slae. We wyll destroye the deye also. And so they shall quench my sparkle whiche is left, that he shall lyre vp (to my husbände) neither name nor ille sue vpon the earth. And the kyng sayde vnto & woman: go home to thyne house, I wyll gyue a charge for the. And the womā of Thchoa sayd vnto the kyng: O lord, O kyng, this trespassse be on me, and on my fathers house, and the kyng and his seate be gyflesse. And the kyng sayde: If any man laye ought vnto the: byngge hym to me, and he shall hurt the nomye. Then sayde she: Let the kyng remembre hys Loyde God, that the auenger of the blood gather not on heapes togyther to destroye, and that they slay not my sonne. And he answered: as sure as the Loyde lyueth, * there shall not on heare of thy sonne fall to the earth.

The woman sayde: let thynne hande mayde speake one woide moze with my Loyd the kyng. And he sayd: laye on. The woman sayd: wherfoze then haste thou determyned suche a thyng agaynst the people of God: For the kyng doth speake this thyng as one which is fante, that he shoulde not fet home agayne hys banyshe. For we must nedes dye, and perpyse as water spilt on the grounde, which cannot be gathered vp agayne. Forther doth God spare any soule. Let the kyng therfoze fynde the meanes, that his banyshe be not utterly expelled from him. Now therfoze am I come, to speake of this thyng vnto the kyng my lord. For they that be of & people wyll feare me. And thy handmayde sayde: Now wyll I speake vnto the kyng, peradventure the kyng wyl perfourme the request of his handmayde. And the kyng, whal heare his hand mayde, so delyuer her out of the hande of & man that wolde haue destroyed me, and also my son out of & inheritaunce of God. And thynne handmayde sayde: the woide of my Loyde the kyng shall now be comfortable. For my lord the kyng is as an angel of God in bearyng of good e.v. and bad:

and bad: therefore the Lorde thy God be wth the.

Then the kynge answered, and sayde vnto the woman: hyde not fro me (I praye the) the thynges that I shall aske the: And the woman sayde: let my lord be the kynge now saye on. And the kynge sayde: Is not the hande of Joab with the in al this matter? The woman answered, & sayde: as sure as thy soule lyueth my lord kynge there is els noman (on the ryght hande nor on p^r left) but as my lord be the kynge hath spoken, thy seruau^t Joab he badde me, and he put all these wordes in the mouth of thyne handmaide. For to the intent that I shoulde alter my communication, hath thy seruau^t Joab done this thing. And my lord is wylle as an Angel of God to vnderstande all thynges that are in the earth. And the kynge sayde vnto Joab: beholde, I am content to do this thyng. So and set home the chyld Absalom agayne. And Joab fell to the grounde on his face, and bowed hym selfe, and blessed the kynge. And Joab sayd: now thy seruau^t knoweth, that I haue found grace in thy syght (my lord). Whynge in that the kynge hath fulfilled the request of his seruau^t. And so Joab arose, and went to Geth, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. And the kynge sayde: let him turne to his owne house, and not se my face. And so Absalom returned to his owne house, and sawe not the kynge face.

But in all Israel there was not so goodly a man as Absalom, for he was verie beautifull in somoch that from the sole of his foote to the toppe of his head, there was no blemish in hym. And wh^{er} he shaued his head (for at euery yere ende he shaued it, bycause the heere was deuy on hym, and must needs shau^e it) the heere of his head wayed two hundred syckles after the kynge's weyght. And this Absalom had thre sones borne hym, and one daughter named Thamar: whiche was a fayre woman to loke vpon. So Absalom dwelt two yere in Jerusalem, & sawe not the kynge's face. Therefore Absalom let for Joab, to haue sente hym to the kynge. But he wold not come to hym. And when he let agayne he woulde not come, therefore he sayd vnto his seruantes: beholde, Joab hath a parcel of lade fast by my place, & hath barly therein. So, & set it on fyre. And Absalom's seruantes set it on fyre.

Then Joab arose, and came to Absalom vnto his house, and sayde vnto hym: Wherefore haue thy seruantes burnt my felde with fyre? And Absalom answered Joab: beholde, I sente for the, desyrynge the to come, bycause I wolde haue sent the to the kynge, for to saye: wherefore am I come from Geth? It had bene better for me to haue ben there still. Nowe therefore wold I se the kynge's face. And yf there be anye trespass in me, kyll thou me. And so Joab came to the kynge, and tolde hym: whiche when he had sent for Absalom, he came to the kynge, and fell to the grounde on his face before hym. And the kynge kysed Absalom.

C The .xv. Chapter.

David is taken to Geth for feare of hym.

After this it is foreshewed, that Absalom gat hym charrettes & horses, and spyt men to runne before hym. And he arose vnto early in the mornynge, and rode in the place of the entrynge in of the gate. And euery man that had any matter, and came to the kynge for iudgement, hym dyd Absalom call vnto hym, and sayd: of what cite art thou? He answered: thy seruau^t is of one of the trybes of Israel. And Absalom sayd vnto hym: se thy matter is good and ryghteous, but there is no man deputyd of the kynge to heare the. Absalom sayd moouer: O that I wer made iudge in the lande, that euery man whiche hath any ple and matter in the lawe, myght come to me, and that I myght do hym iustice. And when anye man came nye to hym, and dyd hym obeyssaunce, he put forth his hand and toke hym to hym, and kysed hym. And on this maner dyd Absalom to all Israel, that came to the kynge for iudgement: and he stole the hertes of the m^{id} of Israel. And after fouretye yeres it is foreshewed, that Absalom sayd vnto the kynge: let me go nowe to Hebron, and paye my vowe whiche I haue vowed vnto the Lorde, for thy seruau^t vowed a vowe (when I was in Geth, in the lande of Idria) sayynge: Yf the Lorde shall byynge me agayne from Jerusalem, I wyll serue the Lorde. And the kynge sayd vnto hym: go in peace. And so he arose, and went to Hebron.

But Absalom sent spyers thorowout all the trybes of Israel, sayynge: as soone as ye heare the voyce of the trumpet blowe, ye shall saye: Absalom raggeth kynge in Hebron. And wyth Absalom went two hundred men out of Jerusalem, that were called. And they wente with pure hertes, not knowynge of any thyng. And Absalom sent also for Ahiathophel the Gilonite Dauid's counsailler, that he shoulde come out of his cite Silo, whyle he offered sacrifices. And there was wrought stronge treason. For the people wente, and increased wyth Absalom in multitude. And there came a messenger to Dauid, and sayd: the hertes of the men of Israel are turned after Absalom. And Dauid sayde vnto all his seruantes that were with hym at Jerusalem: wy, that we maye be gone, for we shal not els escape from Absalom. Make speede, to departe, lest he come sodainly & catche vs, & bring some mischefe vnto vs, & smyte the cite with p^r edge of the sword. And his seruantes said vnto him: beholde, thy seruantes are redy to do what soeuer my lord be the kynge shall appoynt.

And the kynge and all his household, departed on fote, and left behynde hym ten concubines to kepe the house. And so the kynge and all the people went out on fote, & taried in a place that was a farre of. And all his seruantes went aboute hym. And all the Cherethites and all the Prethites and al the Gethites (whiche were men of Geth) (euen fyre hundred men whiche were come on fote from Geth) went before the kynge. The sayd the kynge to Ahiathophel the Gethite: wherefore comest commett thou with vs? Returne agayne with the kyng, for thou art a stranger, and arte remoued from thine owne place. Thou cameste but yesterdape, and shouldest thou disquiete the to-dape to go with vs? I will go whither I can. Therfore retourne thou, and carie agayne thy brethren. Weepe and truste.

And Ithai answered the kyng, & sayd: as truly as God liueth, and as my lord the kyng liueth, in what place my lord the kyng shalbe whether in death or lyfe, even there also wil I be. And Dauid the kyng sayde to Ithai: come then, and goo forwarde. And Ithai the Gethite went forth, and all his men, and all the chyldren that were with hym. And all the countrey wepte with a loude voyce, and so dyd all the people that went forth. The kyng also hym selfe passed ouer the brooke Kydon. And all the people went towarde the waye that leadeyth to the wilderness. And Adoh and al the Leuytes were with hym, and bare the arke of the appoyntemente of God. And there they set downe the arke of God: And Abiathar wet vp vntyll the people were all come ouer, out of the cytie. And the kyng sayde vnto Adoh: Carie the arke of God agayne into the cite. If I shal fynde fauoure in the eyes of the Lorde, he wylle bying me agayne, and shewe me both it and the tabernacle therof. But if the Lorde thus saye I haue no lust vnto the, beholde, here am I: let hym do with me, what seemeth good in his eyes.

The kyng sayd also vnto Adoh the priest: Art not thou a leaer? Returne into the cytie in peace: and take your two sonnes with you, Ahimaaz thy sonne, and Jonathan the sonne of Abiathar. Beholde, I wyl tarie in the felde of the wilderness, vntyll there come some word from you to be tolde me. Adoh therfore and Abiathar caried the arke of God agayne to Ierusalem, and they taried there. And Dauid wente vpon mount Oliuet, and wept as he wet, and had his head couered, and went barefoote. And all the people that was with hym had euery man his head couered, and as they wente vp, they wept also. And one tolde Dauid, sayinge: Ahithophel is one of them that haue conspyred with Absalom. And Dauid sayd: O Lorde turne the counsaile of Ahithophel into foolery.

When Dauid was come to the toppes of the mount he worshypped God: and behold, Husai the Arachite came agaynst hym with his coote towe, and haunged earth vpon his head. Vnto whome Dauid sayde: If thou go with me, thou shalt be a burthe vnto me. But if thou retourne to the cite, and saye vnto Absalom: I wyl be thy seruante, O kyng: (as I haue this longe ben thy fathers seruante, so am I now thy seruante) thou mayest for my sake destroye the counsaile of Ahithophel. And thou hast there with the Adoh and Abiathar the priests, vnto whom thou shalt shewe all that thou canst heare out of the kynges house. And behold, they haue there with them their two sonnes. Ahimaaz Adohs sonne, and Jonathan Abiathars son: by them also shalt thou sende me al that thou canst heare.

And so Husai Dauids frende gat hym to the cytie. And Absalom also entered into Ierusalem.

The xxi. Chapter.

When Dauid was a little past the toppes of the hill: beholde, Ithai the seruante of Ahithophel came to meet hym, with a couple of asses saddled, and vpon them two hundrede loaves, and one hundrede bunches of ryssynges, and an hundred clusters of dyed rysses, and a hottell of wyne. And the kyng sayd vnto Ithai: what meanest thou with these? And Ithai sayd: They be asses for the kynges household to eate on, and breade and frute for the yonge men to eate, and wyne, that theye as be saynt in the wilderness may drynke. And the kyng sayde: where is thy masters sonne? Ithai answered vnto the kyng: beholde, he stieeth styl at Ierusalem. For he sayd: this daye shall the house of Israel restore me the kyngdome of my father: then sayd the kyng to Ithai: beholde, thyne are all that persayued vnto Ahithophel. And Ithai sayde: I do homage to the: I beseeche the, that I maye fynde grace in the eyes of my lord, O kyng.

And when kyng Dauid came to Babirim beholde, then came out a man of the kynred of the house of Saul, named Gomeri the sonne of Gea. and he came out cursyng. And he cast stones at Dauid, and at all the seruantes of kyng Dauid. And all the people also, and all the men of warre were on his ryghte hande, and on his lefte. And thus sayde Gomeri when he cursed: come forth, come forth thou bloodshedder: and thou man of Belial. The Lorde hath brought vpon the all the bloode of the house of Saul, in whose steade thou hast raygned, and the Lorde hath deliuered the kyngdome into the hande of Absalom thy sonne. And behold, thou art come to thy myschefe, because thou art a bloodshedder.

Then sayde Ahisai the sonne of Nerai vnto the kyng: why doest this dead dogge curse my lord the kyng? let me go now and take of the head of hym. And the kyng sayd: what haue I to do with you, ye sonnes of Nerai: let him curse for the Lorde hath bydden hym curse Dauid. Who darre then saye: wherfore hast thou done so? And Dauid sayd to Ahisai, and to all his seruantes beholde, my sonne which came of myns owne bodie, seeketh my lyfe. How muche more then maye this sonne of Nerai doo it? Suffre hym to curse, for the Lorde hath bydden hym: happelp the Lorde wyl loke on my weppynge eyes and wretchednesse, and do me good for this cursyng this dape. And as Dauid and his men went by the waye, Gomeri went alonge on the hillis syde ouer agaynst hym, and cursed as he went, and threw stones at hym, and cast dust. And the kyng and al that were with him came wepye, and refresched them selues there.

And Absalom and all the people of the nif of Israel came to Ierusalem, and Ahithophel was with hym.

with hym. And as soone as Husai the Archite Dauides frend was come vnto Absalom, he sayd vnto hym: God saue the kynge, God saue the kynge. And Absalom sayd agayn to Husai: is this the kyndenesse thou owest to thy frende? Whyp wete thou not with hym? Husai answered vnto Absalom: naye not so: but whom the Lord & this people and all the men of Israel chose, hym wyl I be, and with hym wyl I dwel. Wozenner, vnto whoshal I do seruyce, but euen to his sonner? And as I was seruaunt before to thy father, euen so shall I be with the. The spake Absalom to Abithophel: gyue counsell what is best for vs to do. And Abithophel said vnto Absalom get the in vnto thy fathers concubines, which be hath left to kepe y house. And all Israel shal heare, that thou arte cast out of thy father: then shal the handes of al that are with the be strong. And so they pyched Absalom a tente vpon the toppes of the house. And he went in vnto his fathers concubines in the sight of all Israel.

And the counsayl of Abithophel which he counsayled in those dayes, was as a man had asked counsayle of God: euen so was all the counsayle of Abithophel, both with Dauid and w Absalom.

¶ The xvii. Chapter.

¶ Abithophel forge hym counsayle by salomon of Husai, and forsaken, hanged hym selfe.

Abithophel sayde to Absalom: let me chose out now tweiue. Men. And I wyl by y folow after Dauid this night, & I wyl come vpon him whyle he is wey & weke habed, and wyl feare hym, and all the people y are with him shal fye. And so I wyl smyte the king only, & wyl bring agayne al the people vnto the, euen as casely as yf I wolde bypnyng any other thyng. And when I haue slayne the man whom thou sekest, al the people shal haue rest. And the sayinge pleased Absalom wel, and all the elders of Israel. The sayd Absalom: cal also Husai the Archite, and let vs heare hym counsayle. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto hym, saying: Abithophel hath gyuen such counsayl: shal we do after his saying, or no? tell thou.

Husai answered vnto Absalom, the counsayle that Abithophel hath gyue, is not good at this tyme: for (sayde Husai) thou knoweste thy father, and his men, how that they be strong. And they be chased in theyr myndes, and are euen as a beare robbed of her whelpes in the feld. Thy father is a man also practysed in the warre, and maketh not sayyngs with the people. Beholde, he lurketh now in some caue, or in some other, (stronge) place. And though some of his men be ouerthrowen at the fyasse bzunter: yet they that heare it wyl saye: The people that folowe Absalom be put to the worse. And the best men thou hast whose berres are as the berres of yps, shal thynke therat. For all Israel knoweth, that thy father is a myghty man, and they whych be with hym, are all men of warre.

¶ Therefore my counsayle is, that all Israel be gathered vnto the, fro Dan to Beerseba (which are as the sande of the sea in nymbre) and that thou go to battayle in thyne owne person. For so shall we come vpon him in one place or other, where we shal fynde hym, and we wyl byp him euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on y ground. And of all the men that are with hym, we shall not leaue hym one. Wozenner, yf he be gotten in to a towne, then shal al the men of Israel byng ropes to that cytie, & we wyl drawe it into the ryuer, vntyll there be not one stone found there. And Absalom & all the men of Israel sayd: the counsayle of Husai the Archite is better, then the counsayl of Abithophel. For it was euen y Lordes determinaciō to destroye the good counsayle of Abithophel: & the Lord impyde bypnyng euell vpon Absalom. The sayd: Husai vnto Dauid & Abithophel the prestes: of this and y manner byd Abithophel and the elders of Israel counsayle Absalom. And thus & thus haue I counsayled. Now therefore send quychly, and let we Dauid, saying: carpe not at nyght in the felde of y wyldernes, but get the ouer, least the kynge be deuoured and all the people that are with hym. Now Jonathas and Ahimaaz abode by y well of Rogel: (for they myght not be seene to come into the cytie.) And a wenche wence, and tolde them. And they wnt and met we David.

¶ Nevertheless, a lad sawe them, and tolde it to Absalom. But they went both of them a way quychly, and came to a mans house in Babul, whiche had a well in his parde, into the whych they went downe. And a womā toke and spred a couerlet ouer the welles mouthe, and strowed fumentye coyne thereon. And the thyng was not espyed. And whē Absaloms seruantes came to the wyfe to the house, they sayde: Where is Ahimaaz & Jonathas? The woman answered them: they be gone ouer the lytle brooke of water. And when they had sought them, and could not fynde them, they retourned to Jerusalem. And as soone as they were departed, the other came out of the well, and went and told kynge Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: y, and get you quychly ouer the water, for suche counsell hath Abithophel gyuen agaynst you: Then Dauid arose, and all the people that were with hym, & they were comye ouer Iordane by that it was daye: so that there lacked not one of them, that was not come ouer Iordan. And when Abithophel sawe, that his counsayl was not folowed, he sadied his asse, and arose, and gat him home to his owne house, and to his owne cytie, & put his houtholde in ordye, and hanged hym selfe, & dyed, & was buryed in y sepulture of his father.

¶ Then Dauid came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed ouer Iordan, he and all the men of Israel with hym. And Absalom made Amasa captayne of the host in the stede of Ioab, whiche Amasa was a mannes sonne named Iethra an Israelite, that went into Abigail the daughter of Nabal, syster to zeulā, Iobas mother. So Israel and Absalom pyched in the land of Gilead. And when Dauid was come to Mahanaim, hebi the sonne of Nabal out of y Raba the cytie of the ephraim of Ammon, and watche the Abisalom is overcome in battayle. he hangeth by the heave in an oke. he is kylled and put in a pyre. Dauid is so controulled for the death of Abisalom, he weepeth.

And Dauid nombred the people that were with hym, and set captaynes of thousandes & of hundredes ouer them. And Dauid sent forth the thyrde part of the people vnder the hande of Joab, and an other part vnder the hande of Abisai the sonne of Nerua Joabs brother, and the other thyrde parte vnder the hande of Ittai the Gethite. And the kyng sayd vnto the people: I wyl go with you also. And the people answered. Thou shalt not goo forth: for yf we flye, our aduersaries wyl not care for vs: neyther shall they regarde vs though halfe of vs were slayne: but thou art worth ten thousande of vs: wherefore it is better, that thou succoure vs out of the cytie. And the kyng sayde vnto them: What semeth you best, that I wyl do.

B And the kyng rode by the gate syde, and all the people came out by hundredes and by thousandes, and the kyng commaunded Joab and Abisai, and Ittai, sayinge: entreate the pong man Absalom gently for my sake. And all the people herde that the kyng gaue all the captaynes charge concernyng Absalom. And so the people went oute in the felde agaynst Israel, and the battayle was in the wood of Ephraim: Where the people of Israel were put to the worse before the seruautes of Dauid, and there was a great slaughter that day, euen of twenty thousande men. For the felde was foughe there in dyuers places, all abode vpon the earth. And the wood deuoured mo people that day the wynde the swerde. And Absalom came before the seruautes of Dauid, rydng vpon a mule, whiche carped hym vnder the thyrke bowes of a greake oke. And his hed was caught of the oke, and he was lyfte vp betwene heauen and earth: and the mule that was vnder hym went his waye. And one that sawe it tolde Joab, sayinge: Beholde, I sawe Absalom hange in an Oke, and Joab sayde vnto the man that tolde hym: If thou dydest se hym, why dydest not thou ther smyte hym to the ground, and I wold haue gyuen the ten syles of syluer, and a gyrdle.

C The man sayd vnto Joab: though thou woldest lape a thousande syles of syluer in myne hande, yet wolde I not stretch out myne hand agaynst the kynges sonne. For we herde with our eares, when the kyng charged the, and Abisai, and Ittai, sayinge: Beware, that none touchethe the pong man Absalom. Hoze oure, yf I had done it, I shoulde haue done agaynst myne owne lyfe: for there is no matter yd fro the kyng: yea, and thou thy selfe woldest haue tene agaynst me. Then sayd Joab: I maye not stande thus sayyng with the.

And he toke the speeres in his hande, and thrust them thorow Absalom, whyle he was yet alpye on the body of ferce. And ten seruantes that bare Joabs weapons, touryed smote Absalom, and slue hym. And when Joab slewe the trepser, the people returned from folowynge Israel. For Joab spared the people. And the ptoke Absalom, and cast him into a great pye in the wood, and laped a myggyr great hepe of stones vpo hym. And all Israel fled to the pye trees. And this Absalom yet in his lyfe tyme toke couerage: & reared vp a pyller, whiche is in kynges dale. For he sayde: I haue no son. And therfore, to kepe my name in remembraunce do I it. And he called the pyller after hys owne name. And it is called vnto this daye: Absaloms pyller.

E Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock: let me runne now, and beare the kyng tidynge howe that the Lozde hath iudged hym quyte of the hande of his enemyes. And Joab sayd vnto hym: thou art no man to beare good tydynge to day: thou shalt beare tydynge an other tyme but to daye thou shalt beare none: because the kynges sone is deed. Then sayd Joab to Chusi: Goo, and tell the kyng, what thou hast sene.

And Chusi bowed hym selfe vnto Joab, and ranne. Then said Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock agayne to Joab: come what come wyl, let me also runne after Chusi. And Joab sayd: Wherefore wylt thou runne my sonner seing that for tydynge thou shalt haue no reward: wel (sayd he) come what wyl, let me runne. he sayde vnto him: runne. Then Ahimaaz ranne by the plaine waye, and came before Chusi.

F And Dauid sat betwene the two gates. And the watchman wente vp to the rooke ouer the gate vnto the wall, and lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe, and beholde, there came a man runnyng alone. And the watchman cryed, and tolde the kyng. And the kyng said: yf he be aloune, there is good tydynge in his mouth. And he came, & dic we nye. And the watchman sawe an other man runnyng, and he called vnto the poster, and sayde: beholde, there cometh an other man runnyng alone. And the kyng sayd: he is also a tydynge bringer. And the watchman sayd me thyng that the runnyng of the formost is like the runnyng of Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock. The kyng sayd: he is a good man, and cometh with good tydynge. And Ahimaaz called, and sayd vnto the kyng: good tydynge, and he fel downe flat to the earth vpon his face before the kyng, and saide: blessed be the Lozde thy God, which hath put vp the men that lyfte vp theyr handes agaynst my lozde the kyng. And the kyng sayd: Is the pong man Absalom safe? Ahimaaz answered: when Joab sent (Chusi) the kynges seruaunte, and me thy seruaunte, I sawe moche ado: But I wot not what it was. And the kyng sayd vnto hym: turne, and stand here. And he turned, and rode awyl.

G And beholde, Chusi came also, and sayde: Good tydynge my lozde the kyng, for the Lozde hath quyte

And he kept the this daye out of the hande of all them that rose agaynst the. And the kyng sayd vnto Chusi: Is the yonger man Absalom late? Chusi answered: The enemyes of my lord the kyng, and all that rise agaynst the to doo the hurt, be as that yonger man is. And the kyng was moued, and went vnto a chamber ouer the gate, and wept. And as he went, thus he sayde: O my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde God I had dyed for the: O Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

C The xix. Chapter.

Dauid is returned to his kingdom and brought againe to Ierusalem.

A And it was tolde Joab: Beholde, the kyng mourneth and wepeth for Absalom. And the vnto of that daye was turned into mourning vnto all the people. For the people heard saye that day howe the kyng sorowed for his sonne. And the people shal awaye that daye from goinge into the cite, as people confounded to scale awaye when they lye in battaile. But the kyng dyd his face, and cryed with a loude voyce. O my sonne Absalom, O Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

B And Joab came into the house to the kyng and said: thou hast named this daye the faces of all thy seruantes, which this daye haue saued thy life, & the lyues of thy sonnes & of thy doughters, & the lyues of thy wyues, & of thy concubines, in & thou louest thyne enemies, & hatest thy frendes. For thou hast declared this day, & thou regardest neither thy lordes nor seruantes. And this daye I perceyue, & yf Absalom had liued, & all we had dyed this daye, & had pleased the wel. Now therfore vnto, & come out, and speake kindly vnto thy seruantes: For I sweare by & lord, excepte thou come out, there wyl not escape one man with & this night. And that wyl be worse vnto the, then all the euyl & fell on the from thy youth vnto this houre. Then the kyng arose, & sat downe in the gate. And they tolde vnto all the people, saying: Beholde, the kyng doeth lye in the gate. And all the people came before the kyng. But Israel fled euery man to his tent.

C And it fortuned, that all the people were at strete tharowout all the trybes of Israel, saying: the kyng saued vs out of the hand of oure enemyes, he deliuered vs out of the hand of the Philistines, and now he is fled out of the lande for Absalom. But Absalom whom we anoynted ouer vs is dead in battaile. Therfore why are ye so still, & ye saynge not the kyng agayne? And kyng Dauid sent to Zadok & Abiathar & priests, saying: Speake vnto the elders of Juda and saye: why are ye behynd to saynge the kyng agayne to his house, seeing that such a spynge is come from all Israel vnto the kyng, euen to his house? (For the kyng had sayde: Whom shall ye saye vnto the people of Juda?) Ye are my brethren, my bones and my flesh: wherfore then are ye the last to saynge the kyng home agayne? And say ye to Amata: art thou not of my bone & of my flesh? God do so & so to me, yf thou be not captain of the hoste to me for euer in the roume of Joab.

And he bowed & beried of al & men of Juda, eue as the best of one man: so & they sent this word to & saynge: Returne thou w all thy seruantes. So the kyng returned, & came to Iordan. And Juda came to Gilgal, for to go downe to mete the kyng, & to chury hym ouer Iordan. And Abimelech the sonne of Gera, & son of Jemim, which was of Baburim, halld and came with & men of Juda to mete kyng Dauid, and there were a thousand men of Ben Jamin w him, and & Jiba the seruante of & house of Dauid, and his xvj. sonnes and twentye seruantes which hym. And they went quichly ouer Iordan before & kyng. And there went ouer a bore that caried ouer & kynges householde, and they dyd hym pleasure.

D And Abimelech the sonne of Gera, fell before the kyng (as he was come ouer Iordan) and sayde vnto hym: let not my lord: impute wychednes vnto me, nor remembre the thynges that thy seruante dyd wychedly when my lord the kyng departed out of Ierusalem, that the kyng shuld take it to hart. For thy seruante doeth knowe: how that I haue done amysse. And therfore beholde, I am the first this daye of al the house of Joseph, that am come to go downe, to mete my lord the kyng. But Abisai the sonne of Neria answered, and sayde: I shall not & meit dye for this, because he cursed the Lordes annoynted? And Dauid sayd: what matter is betwene you and me, ye sonnes of Neria? For this daye ye be aduersaries vnto me. What ther any man dye this daye in Israel? Doo not I knowe, that I am this daye kyng ouer Israel? And therfore the kyng sayd vnto Abimelech: thou shalte not dye and the kyng swore vnto hym.

E And Miphiboseeth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kyng, and had neyther washed his feet, nor shauen his beard, nor washed his clothes from the tyme the kyng departed, vntill he came agayne in peace. And it fortuned, & when he was come to Ierusalem, and met & kyng the kyng sayd vnto him: wherfore wentest thou with me Miphiboseeth? he answered: my lord, O kyng, my seruante discrepued me. For thy seruante sayd: I wolde haue myne asse saddled to ryde theron, for to go to the kyng, because thy seruante is lame. And Jiba hath saille reposed of thy seruante vnto my lord the kyng. And my lord the kyng is as an angel of God do therfore what semeth good in thyne eyes. For all my fathers house were but dead men be fore my lord & kyng, and yet dydest thou put thy seruante among them & did eat at thyne own table. What tyme therfore haue I yet, to crye any more vnto the kyng. And the kyng sayde vnto him: why speakest thou yet in thyne owne cause? (As it is decreed, that) I haue sayd: thou & Jiba dwelde the landes betwene you. And Miphiboseeth sayd vnto the kyng: yea, let him take all: for so moche as my lord the kyng is come agayne in peace vnto his owne house.

And Bersai the Giliadite came downe fro Rogitim, and wente ouer Iordan to the kyng, to chury him ouer Jorda. Bersai was a very aged man, euen fourscore yere olde, & prouided the

A the kyng of sustenance, whyle he laye at Gabaon: for he was a man of deepe greute subtilite. And the kyng sayd vnto Berisai: come thou with me, and I wyll sende the with me in Jerusalem. And Berisai sayd vnto the kyng: I am thus olde, and howe am I able to go vp with the kyng vnto Jerusalem? I am this day fourescore yere olde: and can I decreue betwene good or euill? Hath thy seruante any taste in that he eateth or drynke? Can he heare any moze the voyce of kyngyngemen and women? Wherefore then shoulde thy seruante be yet a burthen vnto my lord the kyng? Thy seruante wyll go a lytle waye ouer Jordan with thy kyng and wyll the kyng recompence it me with suche a rewarde? O let thy seruante turne backe agayne, that I maye dye in myne owne cite, and be buried in the graue of my father and of my mother. Beholde, here is thy seruante Chimiam, let hym go with my lord the kyng, and do to hym what shall please the.

And the kyng answered: Chimiam shal go with me. And I wyll do to hym that thou shalt be content with. And whatsoeuer thou shalt requyre of me, that same wyll I do for the. And al the people went ouer Jordan. And when shing was come ouer Jordan, he kissed Berisai, and blessed hym, and he went back agayne vnto his owne place. And then the kyng went to Gilgal, and Chimiam went with hym, and so dyd all the people of Juda, and brought ouer the kyng, and there were but halfe the men of Israel.

And beholde, all the men of Israel came to the kyng, and said vnto him: why haue our brethren the men of Juda stolen the away, & haue brought the kyng & his household, and all Dauids men with hym ouer Jordan? And all the men of Juda answered the men of Israel the kyng is nere of hym to vs: wherefore be ye angry for matter? thinke ye we care of the kynges cost, or we take vs any gyftes? And the men of Israel answered the men of Juda, & sayde: we haue ten partes in the kyng, & haue therto moze rpyght to Dauid then ye. Why the dyd ye despise vs, that our aduyls shuld not be fyist had, in restoring our kyng a gayner? And the wordes of the men of Juda were fearece then the wordes of the men of Israel.

The .xx. Chapter.

Beha the sonne of Bichai rayseth Israel agaynst Dauid Joab kylleth Amasa treacherously: the head of Beba is despyred to Joab: Dauids sorowes are multiplied.

When there came thither a certayne man of Betial (named Beba the sonne of Bichai, a man of Gemini) he blew a trowper, & sayde: we haue no part in Dauid, neither haue we embertanence in the sonne of Israhel, let the men of Israel depart vnto theyr tentes. And so euery man of Israel went from Dauid & folowed Beba the sonne of Bichai. But the men of Juda claue fast vnto the kyng, from Jordan to Jerusalem. And Dauid came to his house to Jerusalem, & toke el even women his concubines, & he had left behinde hym to kepe the house, and put them in warde, and fedde them: but laye no moze with them. And so they were enclosed vnto the day of their death, luyng in wyddowhed.

Then sayde the kyng to Amasa: cal me the men of Juda togyder agaynst the egypte daye and be thou here also. And so Amasa went to gather the men of Juda togyder: but tarped longer the tyme which he had appoynted hym. And Dauid sayd to Abisai: now that Beba the sonne of Bichai do vs moze harme, the dyd Abisai. Take thou therfore the lordes seruantes and folowe after hym, lest he get hym walled cities, and escape vs. And there went out after hym Joabs men, and the Creethites & the Iselethites, and all the myghtyest men. And they departed out of Jerusalem, to folowe after Beba the sonne of Bichai. And whyle they were at the great stone in Sibeon, Amasa went before the. And Joabs garmente (that he had about hym) was gyde vnto hym, and he had gyde thereon a knyfe, whiche was gyded fast to his loynes in such a wyse, that (as he went) it fel somtymes out. And Joab said to Amasa: art thou in belch my brother? And Joab toke Amasa by the chin with the rpyght hand to kylle hym. But Amasa toke no hede to the knyfe that was in Joabs hande, for therewith he smote him in the horte rpyghtes, and shed out his bowels to the ground, and thrust at hym no moze and he dyed.

And Joab & Abisai his brother folowed after Beba the sonne of Bichai: & one of Joabs men stode by him, & sayde: he shal beareth any fauour to Joab or good wyll to Dauid, let hym go after Joab. And Amasa laye wallowed in bloode in the myddes of the way. And there was a ma whiche when he sawe & all the people stode styll, he rowled Amasa out of the way into the feld, & cast a cloth vnder hym, because he sawe that euery one shuld stode styll by hym. And as soone as he was tumbled out of the waye, all the people went after Joab, to folowe after Beba the sonne of Bichai.

And he went thowowe all the tribes of Israel vnto Abel, and Bethmaacha and al the places of Barim. And they gathered togyder, & went after hym. And they came, and besieged hym in Abel, and Bethmaacha. And they caste up a banke agaynst the cye that stode in the valley. All the people that was with Joab, thrust at the wal to ouerthrowe it. The cryed a wyle woman out of the city: heare, heare. And Joab come hitther & I may speake to hym. When Joab was come vnto her, the woman said vnto him. Art not thou Joab? And he answered, I am. And she sayde to hym: heare the wordes of thyne handmayde. And he answered: I do heare: & she sayd agayne: They spake in the olde tyme, saying: men must aske castel and my delyuerer. God is my strength, in hym wyl I trust: he is my spyde, and the hoine of my saluaciō, my wozshyp and my refuge: my saypōne, thou shalt saue me from wjōnge.

ps. cxviii. a * I wyl cal on the Lorde which is my people wozshyp, and so shal I be saued from myne enemyes. For the corrupciōs of death closed me aboute: the floudes of Belial put me in lease. The sorowes of hell compassed me aboute: the snares of death ouertoke me. In my tribulation wyl I call vpon the Lorde, and crye to my God. And he shall heare my voyce out of hys temple, and my crye shall enter into his eares. The earth trembled and quaked: the foundacions of heauen moued and shoke, when he was angry.

B Smoke went vp in his wrath, & consuming fyre out of his mouth, coles were kindled thereof. And he bowed heauē, & came downe, & there was darkenesse vnder his fete. And he sat vpon Cherub & vpon slye, he was seene carped vpon the wynges of the wynde. He made darknesse a tabernacle rounde about hym, & waters gathered together in thynke cloudes. Thowow f baryghenelle of his ptesence were the fyre coles kindled.

God thundred from heauen, & he that is moost hye, dooth put out his voyce. He shot arrowes, & scattered them: he hurled lightning, & ouerthrew them. The flowynges of the see appeared, & the foundacions of the world were sene, by f reason of the rebukynge of the Lorde, & thowow the blastynge of the breath of hys nostrilles. He shall sende fro heauen, & fet me, he shall plucke me out of many waters. He shal delyuer me from my myghtye aduersarye, & from myne enemyes, for they are to stronge for me. When they had ouer taken me, in the daye of my calamitie the Lord stayed me vp. For he brought me out into rooth he delyuered me, because he had a loue vnto me.

C The Lorde wyl rewarde me accordynge to my ryghtousnesse: accordynge to the purenes of my hādes wyl be recompence me. For I haue kept the wayes of the Lord, & done no wychednes agaynst my God. For all hys lawes are in my spght, and his statutes wyl not I put away fro me. In hys spght also haue I bene vndefyled, & haue kept me from myne iniquitie.

And the Lorde byd to me agayne, accordynge to my ryghtousnesse, euen after my purenes in hys eyre spght. Wylth the godlye thou shalt be godly, and with the mā that is vncorrupt, thou shalt be vncorrupt. With the pure thou shalt be pure, and with the frowarde thou shalt be frowarde. And the poore people that are in aduersitie, thou shalt helpe. And on the proude shalt thou caste thynne eyes. Thou arte my lycht, O Lorde: the Lorde shall lycht my darkenesse.

For wylth thynne helpe I wyl runne thowowe an doost of men, and in my God wyl I spyng out a wall. God is vncorrupte in his waye: the word of the Lorde is tryed in the fyre: he is the defender of all them that trust in hym.

For who is a God saue the Lorde, and who is my thype, saue our God? God strengthech me w power, and ryddeth the waye in battayle cleare before me. He maketh his fete lyke hertes fete, and stretteth me fast vpon my holde.

* He teacherd my handes to fgyht, that euen a bowe of stele is to weake for myne armes.

Thou hast gyuen me the spyde of thy saluaciō, and with thy louynge mekenesse thou doost multiplie me. Thou shalt make me space to walke in, & my legges shall not fayle me. I wyl followe vpon myne enemyes & destrope them, & turne not agayne: vntyl I haue consumed them. I wyl waste them and smyte them, that they shall not be able to aryse: pea, they shall fall vnder my fete.

Thou hast gydded me aboute wylth myght to battayle, and them that arose agaynst me, hast thou subdued vnder me.

And thou madest myne enemyes, (and them that hated me) to turne theyr backs to me that I myght destrope them. They loke for helpe, but there is none to saue them: Pea, euen vnto the Lorde do they crye, but he heareth them not.

I wyl beate them as small as the dust of the earth: I wyl stamp them as the dust of f strette and wyl spreade them abrode.

Thou shalt delyuer me from the dysensyon of my people, thou shalt kepe me to be an hee over nacions: the people whych I knewe not, shall serue me.

Strange chyldren d: Amble wylth me. At the hearynge of the care they obeye me.

Strange chyldren wyl shyne away, and they shal be smytten wylth feare in theyr pryue chambie. God is almyr, & blessed be my maker: magnified be God, my moost stronge saluaciō. It is God that auengerth me, & bringeth downe the people vnder me. He deliuereth me fro myne enemyes, thou also shalt lycht me vp on hye from them that rpe agaynst me, thou shalt delyuer me from the wyched men.

And therefore I wyl prayse the (O Lorde) amonge f nacions, & wyl syng vnto thy name. Which he wylth great saluaciō for his kyng, & dealeth mercifully wylth hys annoynted: euen wylth David, and wylth his seede for euer moze.

¶ The. xxiij. Chapter.

C The last commendation of David, and the description of the myghty men to hym belōngynge.

¶ He be the last sayynges of David, Dauid the son of Isai sayde: And the man (which was made, the anoynted of the God of Jacob, & the noble psalmist of Israel) sayd: the spyrte of the Lord spake by me & his worde was in my tounge. The God of Israel spake of me, euen the moost myghtye of Israel sayde: he that beareth rule ouer men, ought to rule in slye in the feare of God. And as the moynge lycht when the sunne is vp, a moynge in whiche are no cloudes to let the dyghthenesse, & as the grasse of the earth is by the vertue of the rayn. Shal not my house be so wylth God? * For he hath made with me an euerylastyng cōuenant, partye & sure in all popytes: and thys is truly all my healeth and all my delyue, that it growe but not as grasse. But f vngodly mā of Belial shall be as a thorne cleane pluchte vp, wherof can not be taken with handes: But the man that shall touche them, must haue yron, or a longe beire. * Or elles muste they be burnt with fyre in the same place.

These be the names of the myghtye men whos David had: one that sat in the seate of wisdom beinge chiefe amonge the: pleasaunte was he and strong: he slue eynghundred at one tyme. After hym was Eliazar the sonne of Doi, the sonne of Abi, one of the thre worthyes, with David, which defied the Philistines that were there gathered together to battayle, when the men of Israel were gone by. He arose and layed on the Philistines vntill hym hand was weary, & claued vnto the sword. And the Lord gaue great victory the same day. And the people ^(which was) returned and went after him to runne to the spoyle. After hym was Samma the son of Age the Hararite: and the Philistines gathered together besyde a towne. And the Lord gaue great victorye.

* These thre (which were of the thre type chiefe captaynes) went downe to David in sharpest tyme vnto the caue of Adullam, and the host of the Philistines abode in the valeys of glaunces. And David was then in an holde. And the soundours of the Philistines were in Bethlechem. And David longed, and sayde: O, that I had of the water that is in the welle, by the gate of Bethlechem for to drynke. And the thre myghty bryghte showe the hoste of the Philistines, and set water out of the well of Bethlechem that was by the gate, and toke & brought it to David. He uerthelesse he wold not drynke therof, but offered it vnto the Lord, and sayde: the Lord forbyd I shulde do so. Is not this the blood of the men that went in leopardy of the: lyues: and therefore he wolde not drynke it. And these thynges dyd these thre myghty men. * Abisai the brother of Joab, & sonne of Baruiab, was chiefe amonge the thre, & he lyfte up hym speare agaynst the hundred, and slue them, & had the name amonge the thre. For he was nobler man then the thre, and was theyr captayne. Howbeit he attayned not vnto ^(the thre) the thre.

And Banaiab the son of Jehoiaab (the sone of a myghtye man (valiant in actes) of Gadzeel slue two stronge lyons, and lyons of Doab. He wote downe also, & slue a lyb in a pynt in tyme of snow. And he slue an Egyptian a goodly bygger man, which had a speare in his hande. But he wente downe to him with a staffe, & plucked the speare out of the Egyptians hande, & slue hym with hym owne speare. These thynges dyd Banaiab the sonne of Jehoiaab, & had & name amonge the thre worthyes. He was honourable amonge the thre, but he attayned not to the thre. And David made hym of his counsell. Abisai & brother of Joab also was one of the thre type. The Elhanan the sone of Dodo of Bethlechem: Sama the Hararite: Elia & Hararite: Hele & Baithier: Iea the sone of Ihes & Thehoite: Abime of Anothor Geobai the Husa thite: Jethai an Abobite: Warai & Aetopbatite: Hele the son of Baanah an Aetopbatite: Ithai the son of Ribai out of a byl of & childe of Benjamin. Banaiab & Shira tonite: Hedai of the riuer of Gaas: Abial the Aetobite: Amantetha a Barhumite: Elhaba a Baalhonite: & the sonnes of Isen, Jonathas, Sama & Hararite. Abia the sonne of Baran Hararite. Elphelet the son of Asbai the sonne of a Maachabite. Eliam the sonne of Abiehopel & Gilonite: Hezrai & Carmelite: Barai the Aetobite: Igal the sonne of Atha of Zoba: Bani the Gadite: Jeler an Amomite: Abahai a Berobite, which was the barne bearer of Joab the sonne of Ierua. Iea the Ietibite: Gared the Ietibite, Elia the Ietibite, threty and seven wall.

The xxiii. Chapter.

David caused the people to be numbered, and therefore is Israel plagued with pestilence, so that in thre dayes there dyed .ixc. thousande.

As agayne, the Lord was wroth a gaynst Israel, & he moued Dauid a gaynst them, in that he sayd: * go & nobbe Israel & Iuda. For the kyng said to Joab & captayne of his host go & abode now, thowout all the tribes of Israel, euen from Dan to Beerseba and nombze ye the people, that I may knowe the nombze of them. And Joab sayd vnto the kyng: I beleche the Lord thy God, to make thy people as many mo as they be: pea, and an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my lord & kyng maye se them. And what is the cause that my lord the kyng hath a lust to this thyng? For withstandyng the kynges woide pteupled agaynst Joab & agaynst & captaynes of the host.

And Joab & the captaynes of the host went out from the presence of the kyng, to nobbe the people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jordan, and pyched in Aroer on the ryght syde of the cytie that lyeth in the myddes of the valeys of Gad ouer agaynst Jazer. And then they came to Gilead, & to the netherlande, where was a new habitation, & from thence they came to Dan Jaan about to Bithon, & came to the stronge holde of Tyre & to all the cyries of the Heuites & of Cananites, & then went out of the South of Iuda, euen to Beerseba. And so, when they had ben a bode thowout all the lande, they returned to Ierusalem agayne, after the ende of nyne monethes & twentye dayes. And Joab despyrred by the nobbe & summe of the people vnto the kyng. And there were in Israel eynghundred thousand men of myghte that bryewe swordes. And the me of Iuda were thre hundred thousande men.

And Dauides herte smote hym, after that he had nombzed the people. And Dauid sayd vnto the Lord: I haue sinned exceedingly in that I haue done. And now Lord take awaye the trelasse of thy seruant, for I haue done very foolishly. And when Dauid was vp in a morning the word of the Lord came vnto & prophet Gad Dauides sear, saying: go, and saye vnto Dauid, thus sayeth the Lord: I offer the thre thynges, chose the which of them I shall do vnto the.

So Gad came to Dauid, and shewed hym, & sayde sayd vnto hym: Wylte thou haue seuen yeares hungere to come in thy lande, or wylte thou syle iii. monethes before thyne enemyes, they solo- wyng the, or that there be thre dayes pestilence in thy lande? Howe therfore aduise the, and se, what answer I shall gyue to hym that sente me: and Dauid said vnto Gad: I am in extreme trouble. * We wyl fall now into the hande of the Lord, for moche is his mercy, and let me not fall into the hande of man.

And so the Lord sent a pestilence in Israel, from the morning vnto the tyme appoynted. And there dyed of the people ffe hundred thousande men. And when the angell stretched out his hande vpon Iherusalem to destroy it, the Lord had compassion to do that euyl, and sayde to the angell that destroyed the people: it is now sufficient: holde thyne hande. And the angell of the Lord was by the thershyng place of Arefna the Jebusite. And Dauid spake vnto the Lord (when he sawe the angell that smote the people) and sayde: lo, it is I that haue synned, and I that haue done wyckedye. But these shepe, what haue they done? let thine hande (I praye the) be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house.

And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayd vnto hym: go vp, and reare an altare vnto the Lord in the thershyng flooze of Arefna the Jebusite. And Dauid, accorshyng to the sayinge of Gad, went vp, as the Lord commaunded. And Arefna looked, and sawe the kyng and his seruantes commyng towarde hym. And Arefna went oute: and bowed hym selfe before the kyng flat on his face vpon the ground, and Arefna sayde: wherfore is my lord the kyng come to his seruante? Dauid answered: to bye the thershyng flooze of the, and to make an altare vnto the Lord, that the plage maye cease from the people.

And Arefna sayde vnto Dauid: let my lord the kyng take & offre what semeth hym good in his eyes. Beholde, here be oxen for burnt sacrifice, and seades, and the other instrumentes of the oxen for wood. All these thynges dyd Arefna gyue vnto the kyng, and sayd moreover vnto the kyng: the Lord thy God accept the. And the kyng sayd vnto Arefna: not so, but I wyl bye it of the at a pryce, and wyl not offre sacrifice vnto the Lord my God of that which doeth cost me nothyng. And so Dauid boughte the thershyng flooze, and the oxen for fyfte pyles of syluer. And Dauid buyt there an altare vnto the Lord, and offered burnt sacrifices and peace offerings. And so the Lord was intreated for the lande. And the plage ceased

from Israel.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The yonge virgin Abisag heperth Dauid in his extreme age. Adonia occupeth the realme contrary to his father. Salomon is anointed kyng, and so Adonia gets kild hym alwaies.

Ad kyng Dauid was olde & stryken in yeres, so that whē they couered hym with clo- thes, he caughte no heate: wherfore his seruantes sayd vnto him: let there be soughte for my lord the kyng a yonge mayden, to stande before the kyng, and to cherishe hym. And let her lye in thy bosome, that my lord the kyng maye get heate. And so they sought for a saye dame sell thowout all the coastes of Israel, and founde one Abisag a sumatite, and brought her to the kyng. And the dame sell was exceedyng saye, and cherished the kyng, and mynistred to him. But the kyng knewe her not.

And Adonia the sonne of Hagith exalted him selfe, sayinge: I wyl be kyng. And he gat hym charettes & horsemen, & fyfte men to runne be- fore hym. And his father wolde not displease hym at any tyme, nor sayd so moche to hym, as: why doest thou so? And he was a goodly man, & his mother bare hym next after Absalom. And he toke counsaile of Joab the son of sarua, and at Abiathar the priest. And they helped Adonia. But Sadoc the priest, Banaiabu the son of Je- holada, Nathan the prophete, Bemei, and Rei, and al the men of myght which were with Da- uid, fauoured not Adonia. And Adonia sacrificed shepe and oxen, and fat castel, by the ston of jobelet, which is fast by the well of Rogel, & called all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and the men of Iuda the kynges seruantes. But Nathan the prophete, and Banaiabu, and the other myghtye men, and Salomon his brother he called not.

Wherfore Nathan spake vnto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon, saying: hast thou not herde howe Adonia & sonne of Hagith doth reigne? and Dauid our lord knoweth it not? Howe shouldest thou come, & I wyl gyue the counseil, how to saue thyne thyne owne lyfe, and the lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. So and get the in vnto kyng David, and saye vnto hym: dyddst thou (my lord, O kyng) sweare vnto thy handmayde, saying: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall sit vpon my seate, wher is then Adonia kyng? Behold, whyle I yet talkest there wth the kyng. I wyl come in after the, & cōfyrme thy wordes.

¶ ii. thyne

C And Bethsabe went in vnto the kyng into the chambrye. And the kyng was very olde, and Abisag the Sunamite ministered vnto the kyng. And Bethsabe skouped & made obysaunce vnto the kyng. And the kyng sayd: what is the matter? He answered him: my lord, thou swarst by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handmayde: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, and he shall sit vpon my seate. And beholde, now is Adonia kyng, and my lord the kyng wtherth not of it. And he hath offered oren, fat catel, and many shepe, and hath called all the sonnes of the kyng, & Abiathar p^riest, & Joab the captayne of the host. But Salomon thy seruau^t hath be not bydden. And nowe my Lorde (O kyng) the eyes of all Israel wayte on the, that thou wyldest tell them, who ought to sit on the seate of my lord the kyng after hym. For eis when my lord the kyng shal slepe with his fatheres, I and my sonne Salomon shal be synners.

D And whyle the p^ret talked with the kyng, Nathan the prophete came also. And they told the kyng, saying: beholde, here cometh Nathan the prophete. And when he was come in to the kyng he made obysaunce before the kyng vpon his face on the ground, & Nathan sayd: My lord, O kyng hast thou sayde: Adonia shall raygne after me, & shal sit vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this dape, & hath slayne many oren, and fat shepe, & hath called all the kynges sonnes, & the captaynes of the host, & Abiathar the p^riest. And beholde, they cate & drynke before him, and saye: God saue kyng Adonia. But me thy seruau^t, and Sadok the p^riest, and Banaiab the sonne of Jehoiada, and thy seruau^t Salomon hath be not called. Is this thyng done of my lord the kyng, and thou hast not shewed it vnto thy seruau^t, who wylde sit on the seate of my lord the kyng after hym?

E Then kyng David answered, and sayd: call me Bethsabe. And she came into the kynges presence, and stode before hym. And the kyng sware, sayinge: As trulye as the Lorde lyueth (that hath ryd my soule out of al aduersitie) iur^e as I sware vnto the by the Lorde God of Israel sayinge: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall sit vpon my seate for me, so wyl I do this day. Then Bethsabe bowed on her face to the earth, and byd^e reverence vnto the kyng, & sayd: I praye God that my lord kyng David maye lyue euer. And kyng David sayd: call me Sadocke the p^riest, & Nathan the prophete, and Banaiab the sonne of Jehoiada: And they came before the kyng. The kyng also sayd vnto them: take wth you the seruantes of your lord, & let Salomon my sonne vpon myne owne mule, & carry hym downe to Gihon. And let Sadocke the p^riest & Nathan the prophete annoynte hym there kyng ouer Israel. And blowe ye wth trompettes, & saye: God saue kyng Salomon. And thus came vp after him, & he may come & sit vpon my seate. For he shal be kyng in my stede. And I wyl commaunde hym to be captayne ouer Israel & Iuda. And Banaiab the sonne of Jehoiada answered the kyng, & sayd: Amen. I praye God & the Lorde God of my lord the kyng saye so to. And as God hath ben wth my lord the kyng, euen so be he wth Salomon also, & make his seate greater, then the seate of my lord kyng David hath ben.

And so Sadok the p^riest, and Nathan the p^rphet, and Banaiab the sonne of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites and Phelithites wet downe, and sette Salomon vpon kyng Davids mule, and brought him to Gihon. And Sadocke the p^riest toke an hoine of oyle oute of the tabernacle, and anoynted Salomon. And all they of the people blew trompettes, and sayde: God saue kyng Salomō. And al the people came vp after him, p^ryinge wth p^ripes and reioysyng greatly, so that the earth rang with the sounde of them.

And Adonia and al the gesses that he had called vnto hym, herd it, euen as they had made an ende of eatyng. And when Joab herde the sounde of the trompet, he sayde: how happeneth it that there is such a noyse in the cytye? And as he yet spake, behold, Jonathan the sonne of Abiathar the p^riest came. And Adonia sayd vnto him: come in, for thou arte a valyaunt man, and byngest good tydings. And Jonathan answered, & said to Adonia: Verily our lord kyng David hath made Salomō kyng. And the kyng hath sent wth hym Sadok the p^riest, & Nathan the p^rphet, and Banaiab the sonne of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Phelithites, & they haue set him vpon the kynges mule. And Sadok the p^riest, and Nathan the prophete, haue anoynted him kyng in Gihon. And they came vp agayne and reioysed, that the cytye byd sounde agayne. And that is the noyse that ye haue hearde. And Salomon speteth on the seate of the kyngdom. And mozeouer, the kynges seruantes came to blisse our lord kyng David, saying: thy God make the name of Salomō moze honorable than thy seate. And the kyng bowed him selfe vpon the bed. And thus sayd the kyng: Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel: whiche hath made one to sette on my seate this dape, myne eye seinge it.

And all the gesses that were wth Adonia were asfroped, and rose vp, and went euery man his waye. And Adonia fearyng the presence of Salomon, arose, and went, ^(into the tabernacle of the Lorde) and caught holde on the hoines of the altare. And one tolde Salomon, saying: Behold, Adonia doth feare kyng Salomon: for he hath caught holde on the hoines of the altare, saying: let kyng Salomon sweare vnto me this dape, that he wyl not slaye my seruantes wth the swerde.

And Salomon sayde, yf he wyl be a chyld of vertue, there shal not an heere of him fall to the earth. But yf wickednesse be found in him, he shal dye. And so kyng Salomon sent, and they brought brought hym from the altare. And he came and bowed himselfe vnto kyng Salomon. And Salomon sayd vnto hym: get the to thyne house.

The ii. Chapter.

Chaun dyeth. Adonia requyeth to haue Absag to his chere, and therefore Salomon commaundeth to slaye hym. Abiathar is put from his pythode. Hemi and Joab are slayne.

In the dayes of wauid dyewe nre that he shulde dye, and he charged Salomon hys sonne, sayinge: I go the waye of al the world, * be thou stronge ther-foze, and serue thy lyfe a man. Kepe thou the watche of the Lozde thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and kepe his statutes, and his pre-ceptes, his iudgements, and his testimonies, euen as it is wyrtten in the lawe of Moyses: that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and in euery thyng that thou meddest wythall.

That the Lozde also make good hys waide whiche he spake vnto me, sayinge: yf thy chyliden take heed to thes wayes, & they walke before me in truthe, wyth all thes herces, and wyth all thes soules, * then shalte thou not be wythout a man on the seate of Israel.

* Wozeouer, thou wotest how Joab the sonne of zacaria serued me, & what he dyd to that two captaynes of the hoodes of Israel: vnto Abner the sonne of Ner, & vnto Amasa the sonne of Je-ther: whiche he slue, & shed blood in tyme of peace, (euen as it had ben in warre) and put the blood of warre vpon hys gyde that was about hys loynes, and in hys shoes that were on hys feete.
Deale wyth hym therefore accordyng to the wyse dome, & bypunge not his booz heere downe to the graue in peace. * but he we kyndnesse vnto the sonnes of Bersaias the Gileadites, & they may eate at thy table. For they came to me whē I fled from Absalom thy brother.

* And beholde, thou baste wyth the Hemi the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Gemini, of Ba-burim, whiche cursed me wyth an hoireble curse in the daye when I went to Mahanaim. But he came to mete me at Jozbane, and I swaie to hym by the Lozde, sayinge: I wyll not slaye the wyth the swerde: but thou shalte not count hym as vngyltlye. For thou art a man of wyse dome, and knowest what thou oughtest to doo vnto hym. hys booz heere shalte thou bypunge to the graue wyth blood.

And so * Dauid slepte wyth his fathers, and was buryed in the cytie of Dauid. And f dayes whiche Dauid raygned vpon Israel, were four-tye yeres: seuen yeres raygned he in hebron, and thirty & thye yeres raygned he in Ierusalem.

* Then sat Salomon vpon the seate of Dauid his father, and hys kyngdome was stablyshed myghrelye. And Adonia f sone of Hagith came to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon. And she sayd: * Comest thou peaceably? And he said preceably. He sayd, mozeouer: I haue somewhat to saye vnto the. She sayd: saye on. And he sayd: I knowest that the kyngdome was myne, & that all Israel let their faces on me, & I quid raygn, howbeit, the kyngdome is turned away, and geuen to my brother: for it is apoynted him of the Lozde, & now I aske a petition of the: denye me not. And she sayde vnto hym: Saye on. And he sayde: Speake, I praye the, vnto Salomon the kyng, for he wyll not sape the nape, that he geue me Absag f Hunamite to wyfe. And Bethsabe sayd: wel, I wyll speake for the vnto f kyng.

Bethsabe therfoze went vnto kyng Salomon, to speake vnto hym for Adonia. And the kyng rose to mete her, & bowed hym selfe vnto her, and sat hym downe on hys seate. And there was a seate set for the kynges mother, & she sat on hys ryght syde. Then she sayd: I bespye a lytle petition of the, I praye the sape me not nape.
And the kyng sayd vnto her: Aske on my mother, for I wyll not sape the nape. She sayde: let Absag the Hunamite be gyuen to Adonia thy brother to wyfe. And kyng Salomon answered and sayd vnto hys mother: why doest thou aske Absag f Hunamite for Adonia aske for him the kyngdome also: for he is myne elder brother, and deyd for him Abiathar the prest, and Joab the sonne of zacaria. Then kyng Salomon swaie by the Lozde, sayinge: God do so, and so to me, yf Adonia hath not spoken thes woide agaynst hys owne lyfe. Now therfoze as trulpe as the Lozde lyueth, whiche hath ordeyned me, and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and made me an house, as he promysed, Adonia shal dye this daye. And kyng Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, and he smote hym that he dyed.

And vnto Abiathar the prest sayd the kyng: get the to Anatoch vnto thyne owne felde: for thou arte worthy of deathe: but I wyll not at this tyme kyll the, because thou barest the arke of the Lozde God before Dauid my father, and by cause thou hast suffred wyth my father in al his afflictions. And so Salomon put awaye Abiathar from bringe prest vnto the Lozde, that he myght fulfyll the woides of the Lozde whiche he spake ouer the house of Eli in Silo. Then bypunges came also to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adonia though he turned not after Absalom. And Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lozde and caught holde on the hoines of the altare. And it was tolde kyng Salomon, how y Joab fled vnto f tabernacle of the Lozde, & stode by the altare. Then Salomon sent Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, sayinge: go, & fall vpon hym.

And Banaiahu came to the Tabernacle of the Lozde, and sayd vnto hym: Thus sayth the kyng: come out. And he sayde: nape, but I wyll dye euen here. And Banaiahu brought the kyng woide agayne, sayinge: thus sayde Joab, and thus he answered me.

And the kyng sayd. Do euen as he hath sayd synce hym, and burye hym, that thou mayest take awaye the blood whiche Joab shed cause-lesse, from me, and from the house of my father.
And the Lozde shal bypunge his blood vpon hys owne heed, for he smote two men ryght ouer better thā he, & slue them wyth the swerde, my father Dauid not knowyng therof: euen Abner the sonne of Ner, captayn of f hood of Israel, & Amasa the sonne of Jether captayn of the hood of Juda. Thy blood shall therefore returne vpon the head of Iosab. and on the head of thy seed for euer. But vpon Dauid, and vpon thy seed, & vpon his house, & vpon his state shall there be peace for euer of the Lorde. So Banaiabu the sonne of Jehoiada went vp, & smote hym, & slue him, & buried hym in his owne house in the wall berneffe. And the kyng put Banaiabu the sonne of Jehoiada in his rounne ouer the hooft, & put Adolai the priest in the rounne of Abiathar.

And the kyng sente, and called Semel, and sayd vnto him: buyde the an house in Ierusalem, and dwell there: and let that thou goo not for the thence anye whither. For be thou sure, that the daye that thou goest oute, and passest ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalt dye that daye, & thy blood shall be vpon thyne owne head. And Semel sayd vnto the kyng. This is a good thyng as my lord the kyng hath sayd: so will his seruante do. And Semel dwelt in Ierusalem many a daye. And it chaunced after thise peres, that two of the seruantes of Semel ranne awaye vnto Achis, sonne of Maacha kyng of Geth. And they tolde Semel, saying: behold, thy seruantes be in Geth. And Semel stode vp, and saddled his asse, and gat hym to Geth to Achis, to seeke his seruantes, and returned, & brought his seruantes agayne from Geth.

And it was tolde Salomon, howe that Semel had gone fro Ierusalem to Geth, and was come agayne. And the kyng sent & called Semel, and sayd vnto hym. Dyd I not charge the by the Lorde wyth an othe, and testified vnto the, saying: be sure, that whensoever thou goest oute, & walkest abrode any whither, thou shalt dye the death? And thou saydest vnto me: it is good thynges that I haue herd. Why thā hast thou not kept the oth of the Lorde and the commaundement that I charged the wythall?

The kyng sayd mozeouer to Semel: Thou remembrest al the wickednesse which thyne herte knoweth, that thou dydest to Dauid my father. The Lorde also shall byryng the wyckednesse vpon thyne owne head: and kyng Salomon shall be blessed, and the seate of Dauid stablished before the Lorde for euer. So the kyng commaunded Banaiabu the sonne of Jehoiada: which went out & smote him that he dyed. And thing done was stablished in the hāde of Salomon.

The. iii. Chapter

Salomon taketh his two daughters in wyfe. The Lord appeareth to hym, and graunt hym wisdom. The plea-ring of the two daughters, who shalbe due the prayng of the, and Salomons sentence thereon.

Salomon made affinitie with Pharaos kyng of Egypte, and toke Pharaos daughter, and brought her into the cytye of Dauid, vntill he had made an ende of buydyng his owne house, & the house of the Lorde, & the wall of Ierusalem rounde about. Only the people sacrificed in altares made on hylls, because ther was no house buylt vnto the name of the Lorde, vntill those dayes. And Salomon loued the Lorde, & walked in the ordinaces of Dauid his father, save only that he sacrificed and offered incense vpon altares in hylls

And the kyng went to Gibeon to offere there, for it was a speciall offering place. And a thousande burnt offerings dyd Salomon offere vpon that altare: & in Gibeon the Lorde appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyght. And God said vnto Salomon: thou shalt haue what thou wilt, that I maye graunt it the. And Salomon sayde: thou hast shewed vnto thy seruant Dauid my father great mercye, wch he walked before the in trueth, in ryghteousnes, & in playnesse of heart wyth the. And thou hast kept for him this greute mercye, that thou hast giuen hym a sonne, to sit on his seate: as it is come to passe this daye. And now, O Lorde my God, it is thou that hast made thy seruant kyng in seide of Dauid my father. And I am but yong and wote not howe to go out & in. And thy seruante is in the myddell of the people, whiche thou hast chosen. And verely the people are so many that they can not be told nor nombred for multitude. & Give therefore vnto thy seruant an vnderstandyng herte, to iudge the people, that I maye decerne betwene good and bad. For who is able to iudge this, thy so myghty a people?

And this pleased the Lorde well, that Salomon had desired this thyng. And God sayde vnto hym: because thou hast asked this thyng, & hast not asked longe lyfe, neyther hast asked riches, nor the soule of thyne enemies, but hast asked vnderstandyng & discretion in iudgement.

Beholde, I haue done accordyng to thy petition. For I haue giuen the a wyle & an vnderstandyng herte, so that there was none lyke the before the, neither after the shall any arple lyke vnto the. And I haue also giue the, that whiche thou hast not asked, euen riches and honoure, so that there shalbe no kyng lyke vnto the al thy dayes. And if thou wilt walke in my wayes, to kepe myne ordinaunces and my commaundementes, as thy father Dauid dyd walke, I will lengthen thy dayes. When Salomon awoke, behold it was a dreame. And he came to Ierusalem, and stode before the arke of the testament of the Lorde, & offered burnt offerings & peace offerings, and made a feast to all his seruantes.

Then came there two women, that were harlots, vnto the kyng, and stode before him. And the one woman sayd: Oh my lord: I & this woman dwell in one house. And I was deliuered of a chyld with her in the house. And the chyld day after that I was deliuered, she was deliuered also: and we were together, and no straunger with vs in the house, save we two.

And this wyues chyld dyed in nyght, for she smothered it. And she rose at mydnyght, & toke my sonne from my syde, whyle thyne handmayde slepte, & layed it in her bosome, and put her deed chyld in my bosome. And whē I rose vnto gyue my chyld sucke, behold, it was deed. But whē I had looked vpon it in the mornyng, behold, it was not my sonne, which I dyd beare.

The other woman sayde: it is not so: but my sonne lyueth, and thy son is deed. And she sayde agayne: No, but thy sonne is deed, and myne is aliue. And thus they pleated before the kyng. Then sayde the kyng: the one sayeth, this that that is alvye is my sonne, and the deed is thynne. And the other sayth, naye: but thy sonne is deed, and the lpyunge chyld is myne. And the kyng sayd: bypunge me a swerde. And they brought out a swerde before the kyng. And the kyng sayd: Deynde the lpyunge child in two, and gyve the one halfe to the one, and the other to y other.

Then spake the woman whose the lpyunge chyld was, unto the kyng, for her bowels pynned upon her sonne, and sayde: I beseeche the my lord, gyve her the lpyunge chyld, & in no wyse slay it. But the other sayd: let it be neither myne nor thynne, but deuyde it. Then the kyng answered and sayd: agyve her the lpyunge chyld, and slay it not, for he is the mother thereof. And all they of Israel heard of the iudgement, which the kyng hadde iudged, and feared the kyng: for they sawe that the wysdome of God was in hym to do iustyce. **¶

¶ Abinadab the sonne of Hiddo had Madenaim. Abimaaz was in Sephehalim, and he toke Basmath the daughter of Salomon to wyfe. Baanah the sonne of Hufai was in Aker and in Aloth. Jehoiahyb the sonne of Baruah was in Ithar. Semel the sonne of Ela was in Ben-Jamin. Saber the sonne of Aizp was in the colli fyre of Gilead, the lande of Sehon kyng of the Amoytes, and of Og kyng of Basan, & was officer alone in the land. And Juda and Israel were many, such as the lande of the see in nobbye earping, bypnyng, and mahyng merre. ¶ And Salomon ragned ouer al kyngdomes, fro the ryuer unto the lande of the Philistines: cut vn to the bordre of Egypte, and they brought presentes, & serued Salomons at the dayes of his life.

And Salomons byerd for one daye was. xxx quarters of manchet flour, and thescoze quarters of meale: ten stalled oxen, and. xx. out of the pastures, and an hundred shepe, besyde hertes, buckes, and wyld gootes, and capons. For he ruled in all the region on the other syde Euphrates, from Chiblad to Ala, ouer al the kynges on the other syde the ryuer. And he had peace w all his seruantes on every syde. And Juda and Israel dwelt wythoute feare, euery man under hys vyne and under his fygge tree, from Dan, to Berseba, al the dayes of Salomon.

And Salomon had. xli. G. stalles of houses for charettes, and. xli. G. boylmen. And the officers prouyded vytapies for kyng Salomon, & for all y came out of any place to kyng Salomons table, euery man his moneth, so that there lacked nothyng. Early also & strawe for the horses & mules, brought they vnto the place where the officers were, euery man in his office.

¶ And God gaue Salomon wysdome and understanding excedyng moche, and a large herte, such as the lande that is on the see shore: and Salomons wysdome excelled the wysdome of all the chyldren of the Eastre cuntrye, and all the wysdome of Egypte. For he was wyser then all men: yea, then Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, Chalcol, and Darda the sonnes of Babel. And his name was spokt of thorow out al nacions on every side. And Salomons spake thre thousand pouerbes. And his songes were a thousande and fyue. And he spake of trees, cut from the Cedar tree that groweth in Libanon, vnto the Ploie that spryngeth out of the wall. He spake also of beastes, of foules, of womes, & of fytches. And there came of al nacions to heare the wysdome of Salomon, & from al kynges of the earth, which had herde of hys wysdome.

¶ And Salomons

^{1. Sam. xii. 4} sente to Hiram, sayinge: thou knowest * howe that Dauid my father could not buyde an house vnto the name of the Lord his God, for I warres which were about him on every syde, vntill the Lord put them vnder the soles of his fete. But now the Lord my God hath gyue me rest on every syde, so that there is neither aduersary, nor any euill plage. And beholde, * I am determined to buyde an house vnto the name of the Lord my God, as the Lord spake vnto Dauid my father, sayinge: thy sonne whome I wyll set vpon thy seat for euer, he shal buyde an house vnto thy name. Now therfore commaunde thou that they beue me Cedar trees out of Libanon. And my seruantes shalbe with thyme, & vnto the wil I gyue the hyze for thy seruantes, accordyng to al such thynges as thou shalt appoynt, for thou knowest that there are not among vs, that can shpell to beue tymbre, lyke vnto the Sidones.

^{2. Sam. xii. 3} When Hiram herde the wordes of Salomon he reioysed greatly, and sayd: Blessed be f Lord this daye, which hath gyue vnto Dauid a wyse sonne ouer this myghty people. And Hiram let to Salomon, sayinge: I haue conspyred the thyngs which thou sentest to me for, and wyl accordyng to al thy desyre, concernyng tymbre of cedar trees and fyre. My seruantes shal bypunge the from Libanon to the see. And I wyl conuey the by wypp vnto the place that thou shalt beue me and wyl cause them to be discharged there, and thou shalt receyue them. And thou shalt do me a pleasure agayne, yf thou minister fode for myne house. And so Hiram gaue Salomon cedar trees and fyre trees accordyng to al his desyre. And Salomon gaue Hiram twenty thousand quarters of wheate for foode to his housholde, and twentye buttes of pure oyle. Thus moche gaue Salomon to Hiram yere by yere.

^{1. Sam. xii. 4} And the Lord gaue Salomon wylsome as he promised him. And there was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon, and they two were confederat togyther. And kyng Salomon rayled a summe out of all Israel. And the summe was thysyde thousand men, whom he sent to Libanon ten thousand a moneth by course, so that when they had bene one moneth in Libanon, they abode two monethes at home.

^{1. Sam. xii. 4} And * Adoniram was ouer the summe. And Salomon had thyscote and ten thousande that bare burthens, and fourescore thousand maids in the mountaynes, besydes the lordes, whome Salomon appoynted to ouerse the worke, euen thre W. and thre hundred, whiche ruled the people * (and them) that wrought in the worke. And the kyng commaunded the to bypung great stones free stones, and hewed stones for the solidacion of the house. And Salomons macons, & the macons of hira ded beue the wylch the workemen of the corners. And so they prepared both tymber and stones for the buydyng of the house.

The vi. Chapter.

Howe and when the temple was buyden.

³ And it came to passe that in the foure hundred & foure score yere (after the chyldren of Israel were come oute of the lande of Egypte) and * in the fourth yere of the raygne of Salomon vpon Israel, and in the moneth yisse, whiche is the seconde moneth * he beganne to buyde the house of the Lord. And the house which Salomon buyde for the Lord, was thre score cubytes longe, and twenty cubytes bryde, and thysyde cubytes hye. And * he made a porch before the bodye of the temple, which was twety cubytes longe after the brydth of the house, and ten cubytes bryde, euen in the forefront of the house. And in the house he made wyndowes, bryde without, and narrowe wythin.

And in the wall of the house, he made chambers rounde aboute, (euen in the walles of the house) rounde about the temple and the quere, & made sydes rounde about. The nethermost chamber was fyue cubytes bryde, and the thyrde was seven cubytes bryde. For without in the wall of the house he layed beames rounde aboute, that the beames of the chambers shoulde not be fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was buyt of stone, made perrye alr by before it was brought thither, so that there was neyther hammer nor axe, eyther any tooke of yron herde in the house, whyle it was in buydyng.

The doze of the myddle chamber was in the ryght syde of the house: & he went vp with wyndyng steyres into the myddle chamber, & oute of the myddle into the thyrde. And so he buyt the house & finished it, & roust it with beames of Cedar tymbre. And thal he buyt chambers to all the temple of fyue cubytes brydth, and they were ioynd to the house, with beames of Cedar.

And the worde of the Lord came to Salomon sayinge: concernyng the house which thou arte in buydyng, yf thou wyl walke in myne ordynances, & execute my lawes, & kepe al my commaundementes, to walke in them: then wyl I make good vnto the my promise * which I pmo mysed Dauid thy father. * And I wyl dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel, & wyl not forsake my people Israel. Salomon therfore buyt the house, & finished it, & syled the walles of f house wythin with bozdes of cedar tree: euen from the pavement of the house vnto f rooffe byd he syle the walles of it wythin with cedar tree, & boozded the flooze of f house with planks of fyre.

And he syled twenty cubytes in the sydes of the quere of the temple, both flooze & walles, with bozdes of Cedar, & dyessed it wythin in the secret place of the temple, euen in the moost holy. And the fyyst house, that is to say: the bodye of the temple without was forty cubytes long. And the Cedar of the house wythin, was keued wylch knoppes, & grauen with floures, and al was cedar tymbre: so f no stone was sene. And f quere that was wythin the temple, he prepared to set there the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord. And the quere before, was twenty cubytes longe, and twenty cubytes in brydth, and twety cubytes in brydth. And he syled it with pure golde, and boozded the altare wylch Cedar.

And Salomon also syled f house wythin with pure gold. And he made golden barres runne alonge f quere, which he had couered with golde And

And the whole house, he overlaid with golde, vntill he hadde ended it. And the altare that was in the quyre he overlaid with golde also.

And within the quyre he made two Cherubins of olyue tree, ten cubytes hie. Fyue cubytes longe was a wyng of the other Cherub: so that from the uttermost parte of one wyng vnto the uttermost parte of the other, were ten cubytes. And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hie also: so that bothe the Cherubs were of one measure and one hie: for the length of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubs within the inner house. And the Cherubs stretched out theyr wynges, so that the one wyng of the one touched the one wall, and the one wyng of the other touched the other wall. And the other two wynges of them touched one another in the myddes of the house. And he overlaid the cherubs with golde.

And in all the walles of the house round aboute, he made figures of carued & fyed worke as namely, pictures of Cherubs & palme trees, and grauen flowers, both within in the quyre and without in the temple. And the floore of the house he couered with golde, both within in the quyre, and also without in the temple. And in the entree of the quyre he made two doores of olyue tree: And bothe the vpper and the lower doores were fyue square. The two doores also were of olyue tree, and he graued them with grauyng of Cherubs and paulme trees: and grauen flowers and couered them with golde, and layde thynne plates of golde vpon the Cherubs and paulme trees. And in like maner did he in the doore of the temple, sayng that the doores were of olyue tree fyue square. The two doores were of fyue tree, and epyther doore with two foldyng leues, he graued thereon Cherubs, paulme trees and flowers and couered them with golde, which was layed thynne vpon the carued worke.

And he buylt synner court with thre rowes of heued stone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde.

In the fourth yere was the foundation of the house of the Lord: layde euen in the moneth 21st. And in the leauenth yere, in the moneth 21st, (which is the epyght moneth) was the house full finished thowme out all the partes thereof, accordyng to all the fashion of it, and so was he leuenth yere in buyldyng it.

¶ The vii. Chapter.

The buyldyng of the house of Salomon. The house of pharaons daughter. The founde of the pylers of brass, at the heauen for or.

At Salomon was buyldyng his owne house thyrtyne yere, and synfined it all. And he buylt the house in the wood of Libanon, an hundred cubytes longe, and fyfte cubytes bryde, and thyrtyne cubytes hie. And (it stode) vpon four rowes of Cedar pylers, and cedar beames (were layed) vpon the pylers. And the rooffe was Cedar above vpon the beames that laye on the pylers, euen 11th beames in fyftene rowes. And there were wyndowes in thre rowes, and the wyndowes were one against another thre fold. And the doores with the fyue postes, and the vpper postes, were foure square, & had wyndowes one agaynst another thre fold.

And he made a porche by the pylers (the bare by the house) fyfte cubytes longe, and xxx. cubytes bryde, and the porche was before thost, & the other pylers. For there was a thicke tre set before them. Then he made a porche to lye and iudge in, fyed with Cedar thowme out all the pamentes. And his owne house (that he kept residence in: and that was in another court without the porche) was made of the same woode. And then Salomon made a house for pharaons daughter * (whome he had taken to wyfe) lyke vnto the fashion of the porche.

And all these were of the best stones, heued after a measure, and sawed with sawes, within and without, from the foundation vnto the beames (that laye above, after the measure) and cut so on the outsyde towards the great court. And the foundation was layed vpon ryche stones, and that very great stones, wherof some were ten cubytes, and some epyght cubytes. And a boue were good stones, squared after a certayn rule, and couered with Cedar. And the great court round about was with thre rowes of heued stones, and one rowe of Cedar plankes, after the maner of the inner court of the house of the Lord, & of the porche of the temple. * And kyng Salomon sente, and set one hiram out of Tyre, a wyndowes some of the trybe of Asephthalim, his father being a man of Tyre which hiram was a crafterman in brasse: ful of wysdom, vnderstandyng and cunnyng: to worke all maner of woode in brasse. And he came to kyng Salomon, and wrought all his worke. For he cast two pylers of brasse of xviij. cubytes hie a pece, and a stryng of twelue cubytes byd compass epyther of them aboute. And he made two head pees of molten brasse (after the fashion of a crowne) to set on the toppes of the pylers. The length of the one head pece contayned fyue cubytes, and the length of the other head pece contayned fyue cubytes also: he made also net worke & garlandes of chaine worke vpon the head pees that were on the toppe of the pylers euen leuen (rowes) vpon the one head pece, and sent on the other. And so he made the pylers, and two rowes rounde about, in the one wyndowes worke to couer the head pees that were vpon the pomgranates. And thus byd he also for the other head pece.

And the head pees that were on the toppes, of the pylers couered he above, with a curyous worke of roses towards the palace by the space of foure cubytes. Lyke wyse vnder the head pees in those two pylers beneth, ouer agaynst the myddes, and before the net worke: And vpon the seconde head pece were thre two hundred pomgranates in two rowes rounde about. And he set vpon the pylers in the porche of the temple. And when he had set vpon the epyght piler, he called the name thereof. * Jachin: & when he had set vpon the left piler, he called the name thereof. * Boaz. And in the toppe of the pylers was a worke of roses, and so was the worke maner of the pylers synfined.

Strength.*

D And he made a molten lautoy, ten cubites hye from bym to bym, rounde in compasse, & fyue cubites hye. And a syngre of thye cubites dyd compasse it aboute, and vnder the bym of it there were knoppes round about ten in one cubite: and they compassed the lautoy rounde aboute. And the knoppes were caste wyth it, in two rowes, when it was caste. And it stode on twelue oxen: of wyche thye loked towarde the north thye towarde the weste, thye towarde the south and thye towarde the easte, and the lautoy stode vpon them, and all they: vnderpartes were inward. It was an hande byaderth thye, and the bym wrought lyke the bym of a cup wyth flowres of lypen. And it conteyned two thousande Battes.

And he made ten sohettes of brasse, foure cubites long, and foure cubites broade a pece, and the cubites hye. And the worke of the sohettes was on this maner: They had sydes, and the sydes were betwene the ledges. And on the sydes that were betwene the ledges, were lyons, oxen and Cherubs. And lyke wyse vpon the ledges were above: and beneath lyons and oxen, were certayne addicions made of thynne worke. And vnder every sohet were foure brasse wheles, and boyes of brasse. And in the foure corners thereof, were vnderletters: vnder the lautoy cast eke ouer agaynst his felowe.

And the skalle of the lautoy was in the myddle of it, (where it is line on the out syde) one cubite hye, and a cubite and an halfe rounde, and in the bredth of it were grauen wykes whose sydes were made foure square, and not rounde. And vnder the sydes were foure wheles, and the axeltrees toynded sake to the bottome. And the bredth of every whele was a cubite and an halfe. And the workmanshipp of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charet whele. And the axeltrees, the nauelles, spokes and shaftes were all molte. And there were foure vnderletters in foure corners of one sohet: and the vnderletters were of the very bottome selfe.

And in the heighth of the bottome was there a rounde compasse of halfe a cubite hye: and in that bredth of the bottome, there proceeded bothe ledges and sydes out of the same. For in the boyes of the ledges and on the sydes he had grauen pictures of Cherubins, lyons and palmetrees, one by another round about. Thus made he the ten sohettes after thys maner: And they had al one fashyon of casting: one measure, and one sphe. Tha made he ff lauerys of brasse, one lauer contaynyng forty Bates: and one lauer was foure cubites, and vpon every one of the ten sohettes, he put one lauer. And he put fyue of those sohettes on the right side of the house, and other fyue on y left. And he set the lautoy on y right syde of y house eastwarde & towarde the south.

And he made pottes, Houelles and basens, and so synneth all the worke that he made kyng Salomon for the house of the Lord: that is to saie, two pylers and two rounde headpieces that were to be set on the toppes of the two pylers, and foure hundred pomegranates for the two net wykes, (euen y two rowes of pomegranates in one net wyke) to couer y two headpieces that were to set on the toppes of the pylers. And the ten sohettes, and ten lauerys on the sohettes. The lautoy, and twelue oxen vnder it, & pottes, Houelles and basens. And all these vesselles which hiram made to kyng Salomon for the house of the Lord, were of bryght brasse. In the playne of Iordam dyd the kyng cast the euen in y thye clape betwene Moab & yartba. And Salomon made all the vesselles vnywaped because they were so exceeding many, neyther founde they out the wryght of the brasse.

And so Salomon made all the vesselles that perteyned vnto the house of the Lord: the golden altare, and the golden table whereon the shewbread was: And fyue candelestickes, for the ryght syde, and fyue for the left, before y quyre of pure golde: with flowers, lampes, & snuffers of golde: and boullies, flat peeces, basens, spones and masours of pure golde: & bindges made be of gold both for the boyes of the quyre (the place most holy) and for the boyes of the temple also.

And so was ended all the worke that kyng Salomon made for the house of the Lord. And Salomon brought in the thynge which Dauid his father had dedicated: eue the spuer, gold and vesselles, and layed them vp amonge y treasures of the house of the Lord.

¶ The viii. Chapter.

¶ The ark is borne into the temple. A cloud filleth the temple. The temple is blessed.

When Salomon gathered together the elders of Israel, all the headdes of the tribes, (and them that were captaynes among the fathers of the chyldre of Israel) vnto him in Ierusalem y they myght bryng vpon the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord out of the cyte of Dauid, which is Zion. And all the men of Israel assembled vnto kyng Salomon to the feast that fallith in the moneth Ethanim, which is the seuenth moneth. And al the elders of Israel were come and the prestes toke vp the arke. They bare y arke of the Lord into the tabernacle of wynter, and all the holy vesselles that were in the tabernacle: those dyd the prestes and Leuytes bere. And kyng Salomon and all the congregacion of Israel that were assembled vnto hym (and went with hym before the arke) dyd offere shepe and oxen, that coulde not be tolde nor numbred for multitude.

And so the prestes brought the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord vnto his place: euen in the quyre of the temple and place most holy. vnder the wynges of the Cherubs. For the Cherubs stretched out they wynges ouer the place of the arke, and couered both it and also the stanes thereof a hye vpon it. And they drew out the stanes, that the endes of the myght appear out of the holy place within the quire, but they were not sene without. And ther they haue bene vnto this daye, and there was nothynge in the arke, save the two tables of stone which Moyses put there at Horeb, in y which (tables) y Lord made an appoyntment to the chyldren of Israel, wha he brought them out of the lande of Egypte.

And it fortuned that when the priestes were come out of the holy place, the cloude fylled the house of the Lorde, that the priestes coude not stande and minister, because of the cloude for the glory of the Lorde had fylled the house of the Lorde. Then spake Salomon: the Lorde said that he wolde dwell in the darke cloude. I haue buyt the an house to dwell in, an habitation for the to abyde in for euer. And the kyng turned his face, & blessed al the congregation of Israel, & all the cōgregation of Israel stode still, and he sayde.

Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, whych spake with bys mouth vnto Dauid my father, and hath with bys hande fulfilled it, sayeng: Sencer the daye that I brought my people Israel out of Egypte, I chose no cytie of al the trybes of Israel, to buyde an house that my name myght be therein: But I haue chosen Dauid to be ruler ouer my people of Israel.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buyde an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. And the Lorde sayde vnto Dauid my father: Where as it was in thy herte to buyde an house vnto my name, thou dydest wel, that thou wast so mynded. Neuertheless thou shalt not buyde the house, but thy sonne shall come out of thy loynes, he shall buyde the house vnto my name. And the Lorde hath made good bys woide that he spake. And I am risen up in the rowme of Dauid my father, and sit on the seat of Israel, as the Lorde promysed, & haue buyt an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. And I haue prepared therein a place for the Ark, where in is the couenant of the Lord whych he made w our fathers, wher he brought them out of the lande of Egypte. Salomon stode before the altare of the Lorde in the syght of all the congregation of Israel, and stretched out bys handes toward heauen, and sayd: * Lorde God of Israel, there is no God lyke the in heuē aboue, or in the earth beneath, thou that hepest cōuenant & mercy for thy seruantes that walke before the wyth all they herte: thou that haste kepte with thy seruant Dauid my father, that thou promysedst hym. Thou spakest also with thy mouth and hast fulfilled it with thyne hāde as it is come to passe this daye. Therefore nowe Lorde God of Israel, kepe with thy seruante Dauid my father, that thou promysedst hym, sayeng: * Thou shalt not be without a mā in my syght to sytte on the seat of Israel: so that thy chyldren take heed to they wape, & they walke before me, as thou hast walked in my syght. And nowe (O God) of Israel, let thy woide be verified, whych thou spakest vnto thy seruante Dauid my father.

Upll God in dede dwell on the earth: & behold: the heauens, and heauens of all heauens are not able to contayne the: And howe should the thys house do it that I haue buyt: haue thou therefore respecte vnto the prayer of thy seruante, & to his supplication (O Lorde my God) to heare the voyce and prayer before the, this daye: that thyne eyes maye open toward thy house, myght and daye, euen toward this place (of whych thou hast sayde, * My name shall be there.) That thou mayest hearken vnto the prayer whych thy seruante prayeth in this place: And regarde thou the supplication of thy seruante and of thy people Israel when they pray in this place: And heare thou in heauen thy dwelling place, and when thou hearest, haue mercy. * If any man trespass agaynst his neyghbour, and there go an oth betwene them, and the one compele the other, and come swearing before thyne altare in this house, the hearken thou in heuen & worke & iudge thy seruantes, that I condemne the vngodly to byng bys wape vpon his head and iustifye the ryghteouse to geue hym accordyng to bys ryghteousnesse. * When thy people Israel be put to the worse before the enemy, because they haue synned agaynst the, and afterwarde turne agayne to the, and knowledge vnto thy name, and praye and make supplication vnto the in this house: then heare thou in heauē to be mercifull vnto the synne of thy people Israel and byng them agayne vnto the lande, whych thou gauest vnto they fathers.

* If heauē be shut vp, and there be no rayne because they haue synned agaynst the: yet if they praye in this place, & knowledge vnto thy name and turne from they synne, thou owe thy scourgyng of them: then heare thou in heauen, and be mercifull (vnto the synners) of thy seruantes and of thy people Israel, & thou thet them a good wape to walke in & geue rayne vpon the lāde & thou hast geuen to thy people to enherite.

If there be in the lande dearth, or pestilence, or drought, or blasting, or grethopper, or caterpyller, or if they enemy belege them in the lāde of they cyties, or what so euer plage or sykenesse chaunce: then what prayers and supplication to euer be made of any man of al thy people Israel, whych shall knowledge every man the plage of bys owne herte, and stretch forth bys handes toward this house. heare thou then in heuē, euen in thy dwelling place, and be mercifull, and worke, & geue every man accordyng to his wapes, (euen as I that only knowest his herte, for I only knowest the hertes of all the chyldren of men) that they maye feare the as long as they lyue in the lande. Whych thou gauest vnto our fathers. And lyke wyse, if a straunger that is not of thy people Israel, come oute of a farr countrey for thy names sake, for they shall heare of thy great name, and of thy myghty hande and of thy stretched out arme, and shall come and pray in this house. Therefore heare thou, in heauen thy dwelling place, and do all that the straunger calleth to the for: that all nations of the earth may know thy name and feare the, as do thy people Israel: and that they maye knowe that thy name is called vpon in this house that I haue buyt.

If thy people go out to batayl agaynst they enemy, whether so euer thou shalt sende them, and shall pray vnto the (O Lorde) & toward the wape of the cytie whych thou hast chosen, & toward the house that I haue buyt for thy name (heare thou in heauen they prayer and supplication

* And when Salomon had made an ende of prayenge al thys prayer and supplication vnto the Lorde, he arose from before the altare of the Lorde, and from kneelinge on his knees, & from stretchyng of his handes vnto heauen, & stode and blessed all the congeration of Israel wth a loude voyce, sayeng: Blessed be the Lorde y hath gyuen rest vnto his people Israel, accor dyngte to all that he promyled: * there hath not fayled one worde of al the good promyle whych he promyled by the hande of Moyses his seruauit. The Lorde our God be w vs, as he was wth our fathers, and forsake vs not, neyther leaue vs, but that he maye holde our bertes vnto him that we maye walke in all his wayes, and kepe his commandementes, his statutes, and his lawes, whych he commaunded our fathers. And these my wordes whych I haue prayed before the Lorde, be nye vnto the Lorde our God dape & nyght that he defende the cause of his seruauit & the cause of his people Israel (what thing so euer chaunce at any tyme) that al naciōs of y erth maye knowe that the Lorde is God, and none but he. Let your bertes therfore be perfect wth the Lorde our God, that ye walke in his statutes, & kepe his commandementes, as thys day.

And the kyng and all Israel wth hym, offered offerynges before the Lorde. * And Salomon offered a sacrifice of peace offerynges vnto

the Lorde, and he offered vnto the Lorde. xxiij. thousande oxen, and an hundred & twenty thousande shepe: And so the kyng and all the chyl dren of Israel dedicated the house of the Lorde. The same day dyd the kyng halowe the mydle of the court, that was before the house of the Lorde: for there he offered burnt offerynges, meat offerynges, and the fat of the peace offerynges. he caule the brasen altare that was before y Lorde was to lytle to receyue y burnt offerynges, meat offerynges, and the fat of the peace offerynges.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye feast and all Israel wyped hym, a very great con gregation, euen fro the entreyng in of hemath vnto the ryuer of Egypte, before the Lorde our God, & seuen dayes and seuen dayes, euen. xiiij. dayes. And the viij. day he sent y people away. And they blessed y kyng and wente vnto they tentes ioyous and wth glad bert, because of al the goodnesse that the Lorde had done for Dauid his seruauit, and for Israel his people.

¶ The. ix. Chapter.

¶ The Lord appeared to Salomon. Salomon greatly returned to God. The Canaanites become tributaries. The Lord shows his gold. He displays many signs.

¶ And when Salomon had synplyed the buyldyng of the house of y Lorde & the kynges palace, and all that he had in his mynd, and was appoin ted to make: the Lorde appeared vnto hym agayne as he appeared vnto hym at Gibeon. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: I haue herde thy prayer and thy intercession, that thou hast made before me. For I haue halowed this house (whych thou hast buylt,) to putte my name there for euer, and myne eyes, and myne bertes, shall be there perpetuallye. And yf thou wylt walk before me (as Dauid thy father wal ked, in purenes of berte, and in ryghteousnesse) to do al that I haue commaunded the, and wilt kepe my statutes, and my lawes, then wylle I stablyshe the seate of thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer, as I promyled to Dauid thy father sayeng: * Thou shalt not be wythoute a man vpon the seate of Israel.

But and yf ye and your chyldre turne away from me, and wyl not kepe my commandmen tes and my statutes (whych I haue set before you) but go and serue other goddes, & wooshypp them: then wyl I wede Israel oute of the lande whych I haue giue the: And this house whych I haue halowed for my name, wyl I cast out of my sight, and Israel shall be a prourbe & a fable amonge all naciōs. And this house shall be taken away: so that every one that passeth by it, shall be astonysed, and shall hylle: and they shall say: * why hath the Lorde done thus vnto this lande and to this house? And they shall answer because they forsoke y Lorde they God, whych broughte they fathers out of the lande of Egypte and haue taken holde vpon other Goddes, and haue wooshypped them, and serued them: therfore hath the Lorde broughte vpon them al this ruel. * And it fortuned, that at the ende of twen tye yeres, Salomon synplyed the buyldyng of the two houses, that is to wete, the house of the Lorde Lozde and the kynges palace. And Hiram the kyng of Tyre, broughte Salomon tymber of Cedar, and fyre trees, golde, and what so euer he desyred: And Salomon againe gaue hi ram. x. cyties in the lande of Galile. And Hiram came out from Tyre to se the cyties whych Salomon had geuen him, and they pleased him not. And he sayd: what cyties are these whiche thou hast geuen me, my brother? & he called the the lande of Cabul vnto thys daye. And Hiram sent the kyng. vi. scoze hundred weyght of golde And thys is the summe, whych kyng Salomon raysted for a tribute when he buyded the house of the Lozde, and hys owne house, and Gillo, and the walle of Jerusalem, and Hazort, and Megiddo, and Gazar.

C For Pharaos kyng of Egypt went by, and toke Gazar, and buente it with fyre & slue the Canaanites that dwelte in the cytie, and gaue it for a presente vnto hys daughter, Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylt Gazar and Bethhoron further: and Baalath and Thamar in the wybernesse and in the lande: & all the treasure cyties that Salomon had, ^{whiche he made stronge} and cyties for hys charrettes, and cyties for hys horsemen, and all that Salomon desyred and wolde buyde in Jerusalem, in Libanon and in all the land of his dominion.

D And all the people that were leste of Amorit, Hethites, Pherezites, Hemitas and Jebusites, whych were not of the chyldren of Israel: they chyldren that were leste after them in the lande, whome the chyldren of Israel also were not able to destroye. Those dydde Salomon compell to bynge tribute vnto thys daye.

E But of the chyldren of Israel dydde Salomon make no bondme. But they were me of warre hys mynisters, hys lordes, hys capaynes, & rulers of hys charrettes & his horseme. And these were the lordes, that were set ouer Salomons worke: euen fyue hundred were they and fyty, & they ruled the people that wrought the worke.

And Pharaos daughter came out of the cite of Dauid vnto the house whych Salomon had buylt for her. And then dyd he also buyde Gillo. And thys is a peere dyd Salomon offer burnt offerings and peace offerings vpon the altare whych he buylt vnto the Lozde: And he burnt incense vpon the altare that was before the Lozde and so he fynished the house.

And kyng Salomon made a nauy of Shyppes in Idio Sabar which is beside Eloth, & the bynche of the red se, in the lade of Edom. And Hiram sent by Shypp also of his seruantes, that were Shyppmen, and had knowledge of the sea, with the seruantes of Salomon. And they came to Ophir and fet from thence one & twetic scoze hundred weyght of golde, and brought it to kyng Salomon.

CCDe. x. Chapter.

C The queene of Saba cometh to heare the wysdome of Salomon, whose story also is here desyred.

A And the queene of Saba hearing of the fame of Salomon (concernyng the name of the Lozde) came to proue him with hard questions. And she came to Jerusalem with a very great trayne: with Camels & bare swete odoures, and golde exceeding much, and pprecious stones. And she came to Salomon, & communed with hym of all that was in her herte. And Salomon declared vnto her all her questions, so that there was not one thyng hyd from the kyng, whych he expounded not vnto her.

And the queene of Saba considered al Salomons wysdome, and the house that he had buylded, and the meate of hys table, and the setting of hys seruantes, the ordre of hys mynisters, & the apparel, hys dynke & his burnt sacrifices that he offered in the house of the Lozde, & she was astonyed. And she sayd vnto the kyng. It was a true worde that I herde in myne owne lande of the sayenges: & of thy wysdome. howbeit I beleued it not tyl I cam, & sawe it with myne eyes. And beholde the one halfe was not tolde me: for thy wysdome & prosperitie exceedeth the fame whych I herde of the. happy are thy men: & happy are these thy seruantes, which stande euer before the, & heare thy wysdome. Blessed be the Lozde the God, which loued the, to set thee on the seat of Israel, because the Lozde loued Israel for euer & made the kyng, to do equitie & righteuousnes.

And she gaue the kyng fyre scoze hundred weyght of golde, & of swete odoures exceeding much, and pprecious stones. There came no more suche aboundance of swete odoures, as the queene of Saba gaue to kyng Salomon. The nauy also of the Shyppes of Hiram: that carped gold from Ophir brought likewise great plenty of Almuge tree and pprecious stones. And the kyng made of the Almuge trees, pillars for the house of the Lozde and for the kynges palace, & made harpes & psalteries for lyngers. There came no more suche Almuge trees, nor were anye more sene vnto this daye. And kyng Salomon gaue vnto the Queene of Saba accordyng to all her desyre what so euer she asked: besydes that he gaue her of a free wyll with hys owne hande. And so she returned vnto her owne countrey: both she, and her seruantes.

The weyght of golde that came to Salomon in one peare, was fyre hundred thre scoze & fyre talentes of gold, besydes that he had of chayne and of marchautes & of porticaries, & of all the kynges of Arabye, & of the lordes of the countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten golde, fyre hundredde cycles of golde went to a buckeler. And he made thre hundred shyldes of beaten golde, the pounce of golde wente to one shyld, & the kyng put them in the house of the wood of Lybanon.

And the kyng made a great seate of iuery and couered it with the beste golde. And the seate had fyre stappes. And the toppe of the seate, was rounde behynde, & there were pomels on eyther syde on the place of the seate, & two Lyons stode besyde the pomelles. And there stode. xii. Lions on the stappes. vi. on a syde. There was none lyke (worke) sene in any kyngdome. And all kyng Salomons dynynge vessels were of golde, and lykewise al the vessels of the house of the of the wood of Libanus were of pure golde. And as for syluer, it was nothyng wourchyn in dayes of Salomon. For the kynges nauye of hyppes wente on the sea vnto Charis wth the nauy of hyrams hyppes: euen ones in thre yere wth the nauy to Charis, and broughte gold and syluer Elephantes teeth, apes and pecoques. * And so hynges Salomon exceded all the hynges of the earth both in ryche and in wyledome. And all the world resorted to Salomon, to heare his wyledom, which God had put in his hert. And brought hym euery man hys ptesente, vessels of syluer, and vessels of golde, rayment, barnesse, and sweete odoures, and horses and mules, here by pere. And Salomon gathered together charrettes and horsemen: and he hadde a thousande and foure hundred charrettes, and .xii. thousande horsemen, whome he bestowed in the charret cyties, and with the kyng at Jerusalem.

* And the kyng made syluer in Jerusalem as plentous as stones, and Cedar as pteous as the world tyge trees that growe aboutidantely in the seides. The byngynge of horses also out of Egypte: and the collectio of the warres: byd the kynges marchauntes take agayne, & solde the stuffe for a myce. A charret came out of Egypte for .vi. hundred speles of syluer: that is, one horse for an hundred and fiftye. And euen so for all the kynges of the herbiten and for the kynges of Siria, byd they byngne them out the same they handes.

The .xi. Chapter.

Salomon hath seven hundred concubines and three hundred concubines, whiche byngne hym to idolatrye, hys abwesces rebell agayn hym. he dyeth.

But hynges * Salomon loued many outelandyche women: and the daughter of Pharaos: and women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, and Idomites, and herbiten. Where as yet (concernynge these nations) the Lorde sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: * come not ye at them, noz let them come at you. Elles wyl they turne your hertes after they goddes. Nevertheless, Salomon claue vnto them in loue. * And he had seven hundred concubines, and thre hundred concubynnes, & hys wyues turned away his herte. For it came to passe, when Salomon was olde, hys wyues turned hys herte after other gods: and his herte was not perfecte wth the Lorde hys God, as was the herte of Dauid hys father: For Salomon folowed Astaroth the God of the idons, and Milcon the abhominacion of the Ammonites. And Salomon wrought wychednes in the syght of the Lorde, and folowed not the Lorde perfectly, as byd Dauid hys father. For the byd Salomon buyde an hye place for Chamus the abhominacion of Moab, in the hylle that is before Jerusalem, and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the chyldren of Ammon. And lyke wyle byd he for al his outlandysch wyues which burnt cens and offered vnto they goddes. And the Lorde was angry wth Salomon, because hys herte was turned fro the Lorde God of Israel: whiche had appeared vnto him tyme and gaue hym a charge (concernynge thys thyng) that he shulde not folowe other goddes. But he kepte not that, whiche the Lorde commaunded hym: wherfore the Lorde sayde vnto Salomon for as much as this is done of the, and thou hast not kept mynt appoyntment, and my statutes (whiche I commaunded the) I wyl rent þing dome from the, and wyl graue it to thy seruaunt Horwith Landynge in thy dayes, I wyl not do it, because of Dauid thy father but wyl take it from the hylde of thy sone. howbeit I wyl not take awaye all the kyngdome: But wyl graue one trybe to thy sone, because of Dauid my seruante, & because of Jerusalem which I haue chos.

And the Lorde stirred vp an aduersary vnto Salomon: euen one Hadad an Edomite, of the kynges seide, whiche was in Edom. For when Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the captayne of þ host was gone vp to bury them that were slayne, he smote all the men chyldren in Edom. For .vi. monethes byd Joab remaine there and all Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men chyldren of Edom. And thys Hadad fled and certain other Edomites of hys seruantes wth hym, to come into Egypte: Hadad byngne yet a lytle chyld. And they arose out of Arabia, and came to Paran, and toke men with them oute of Paran, and came to Egypte vnto Pharaos kyng of Egypte, whiche gaue hym an house, and appoynted hym bytayles, and gaue hym lande.

And Hadad gat grete fauoure in the syghte of Pharaos, so that he gaue hym to wyfe the syster of hys owne wyfe, euen the syster of Chabpenes the quene. And the syster of Chabpenes, bare hym Genubath hys sonne, whom Chabpenes nourished in Pharaos house. And Genubath was at Pharaos household amonge the sonnes of Pharaos. And when Hadad herde in Egypte, that Dauid was layd to slepe with hys fathers and that Joab the captayne of þ host was dead also, he sayd to Pharaos: let me depart, & I maye go to myne owne countrey. Pharaos sayd vnto hym: what hast thou lacked here wth me, that thou woldest thus go to thine owne countrey? he answered, nothyng: howbeit let me go. And God stirred him vp another aduersary, one Rezon the sonne of Eliada, whiche fled fro hys lorde Hadadzer kyng of zoba. And he gathered men vnto hym, and became captayne ouer the company, when Dauid slue them. And they went to Damasco, and dwelte there, & raygned in Damasco. Therfore was he an aduersary to Israel all the dayes of Salomon. And thys was the myschefe, in that Hadad byd abhorre Iroch and raygned ouer Siria.

And Irochom the sone of Achab an Ephraimite of iacoba (whose mother was called ieruah, whiche was a wyddowe, and he Salomons seruant) lyfte vp hys hande agayn þ kyng. But thys was the cause, that he lyfte vp hys hande agayn the kyng: Salomon buyde Delo, and mended the broken places of the cytie of Dauid hys father. And thys fellow Iero boam was a man of warre. And Salomon saue the ponge man that he was able to do the worke, he made hym ruler ouer al þ charges of the house of Ioseph

Joseph. And it chanced at that crason, that Jeroboam wente out of Ierusalem, and the prophet Ahiab the Bilonite met hym by the waye, hauynge a newe mantell on hym, & they two were alone in the felde. Ahiab caught the newe man tell that was on him, and rent it in twelue peces, and sayd to Jeroboam: take the ten peces. For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: behold, I wyl rent the kyngdome out of the handes of Salomon, and wyl gyue ten trybes to the: and he shall haue one, for my seruaunte Dauid sake: & for Ierusalem the cytie whych I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel: because they haue forsake me, and haue worshipped vnto Astarte the God of the ydons, and Chamos the God of the Moabites, and Milcom the God of the chyl dren of Ammon: & haue not walked in my wayes (to fulfill my pleasure, my statutes and my lawes) as dyd Dauid my father.

I wyl not take the whole kyngdome out of hys hande: but I wyl make hym chiefe all hys lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruaunte sake, wold I chose: because he kepte my commandementes and my statutes. * But I wyl take the kyngdome out of hys sonnes hande, and wyl gyue it vnto the, euenthen trybes of it, & vnto hys sonne whyl I gyue one trybe that Dauid my seruaunt maye haue a lyght alwaye before me in Ierusalem, the cytie whych I haue chose me, to put my name there. And I wyl take the, and thou shalt ragyne accordyng to al that thy soule desireth, and shalt be hynge ouer Israel. And yf thou hearken vnto all that I commaunde the, & wylt walke in my wayes and do that is ryght in my syght, that thou kepe my statutes & my commaundementes (as Dauid my seruaunt dyd) then wyl I be wyth the, and buyde the a sure house that shall continue, as I buyde for my seruante Dauid, & wyl gyue Israel vnto the. And I wyl for thy offence (whych Salomon hath committed) vexe the seide of Dauid, but not for euer.

Salomon sought therfore to kyl Jeroboam, and Jeroboam arose, and fled into Egypte vnto Sishak kynge of Egypte, and continued there in Egypte vntill the death of Salomon. The rest of the wordes that concerne Salomon, and all that he dyd, and hys wysedom: are they not wyrtten in the booke of the wordes of Salomon?

The tyme that Salomon ragyned in Ierusalem vpon all Israel, was fouetye yere. And Salomon slepte & he lapyd hym wyth his father & was buried in the cytie of Dauid his father & Rehoboam hys sonne ragyned in hys steade.

The. xii. Chapter.

The kyngdome is deuyded, Rehoboam ragyneth ouer two trybes, and Jeroboam ouer ten. Auarum is slayd, Jeroboam maketh golden calves.

Ad Rehoboam went to Sichem: for all Israel were come to Sichem, to make hym kynge. And Jeroboam & some of Ahab (whych was yet in Egypte) herde of it: for he fledde to Egypte from the presence of kynge Salomon, and dwelt in Egypte. So they sent and called him: and Jeroboam and al the congregation of Israel came, and spake vnto Rehoboam, saying: thy father made our poke greuous nowe therfore, make thou the greuouser seruyce of thy father and hys soze poke whych he put vpon vs, lyghter, and we wyl serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Rehoboam toke counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon hys father, whyle he yet lyued, and sayd: what counsell gyue ye, that I maye haue matter to answer thes people? And they sayd vnto hym: Yf thou be a seruaunte vnto thes people thes daye, and folowe thes mynides and aunswere them, and speake kynde wordes to them: they wyl be thy seruauntes for euer. But he forsooke the counsell that the olde men had gyuen hym, and called vnto hys counsaill yonger men, that were growen vp wyth hym, and wayted on hym.

And he sayd vnto them: what counsell gyue ye, that we maye answer thes people (for they haue communed wyth me, saying: make þ poke whych thy father dyd put vpon vs, lyghter. And the yonger men that were growen vp wyth hym, spake vnto hym sayinge. Thus shalt thou speake vnto thes people (that haue sayde vnto the: thy father made our poke heuie, but make thou it vs lyghter.) Euen thus shalt thou saye vnto them: My lytle synge shall be waygydeter then my father was in the loynes. And nowe where as my father dyd lade you and put a greuous poke vpon you, I wyl make it heuier. My father also corrected you wyth scourges, but I wyl chastise you wyth scorpions. And so Jeroboam and all the people, came to Rehoboam the thryde daye, as the kynge had appointed, saying: come to me agayne the thryde day. And the kynge answered the people chollyshly, and lefte the olde mens counsell (that they gaue hym) and spake to them after the counsell of the yonger men, saying. My father made your poke greuouser, and I wyl make it greuouser. My father also chastised you wyth whippes, but I wyl chastise you wyth scorpions. And þ kynge herkened not vnto the people: for it was the ordinaunce of God, that he myght perfourme his sapenge, whych the Lorde spake by Ahiab the Bilonite vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat.

And so when al Israel saw that the kynge regarded them not, the people answered the kynge with these wordes, sayinge: what porciõ haue we in Dauid: we haue no inheritaunce in þ sone of Isai. * To your tentes, O Israel, nowe se to thynne owne house Dauid. And so Israel departed vnto thes tentes howbeit ouer the chylde of Israel whych dwelt in the cytie of Iuda, dyd Rehoboam ragyne still. The kynge Rehoboam sent Auarum receyuer of the trybute. And all they of Israel stoned hym to dea. But kynge Rehoboam made spede to get him vp to hys charret, & to fflye to Ierusalem. And they of Israel rebelled agaynst þ house of Dauid, vnto this day. And whyle al Israel hearde that Jeroboam was come agayne, they sent & called him vnto þ multitude, & made him kynge ouer al Israel: & there was no tribe þ folowed the house of Dauid, but Iuda

6. par. 2. Juda only. * And when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he gathered all the house of Juda with the tribe of Ben Iamin an hundred & four score thousande of chosen men (which were good warreours) to fight against the house of Israel and to brynge the kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon.

¶ And the word of God came vnto Hemaia the man of God, sayenge: speake vnto Achobeam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Iuda, and vnto all the house of Iuda & Ben Iamin, and to the remnaunt of the people, sayenge: Thus sayeth the Lorde. Ye shall not go vp, no: yet fyghte agaynste poure wherberne the chyliden of Israel, retorne euery man to his house, for this thyng is my doynge. They hearkened therfore to the word of the Lorde & returned to depart, accordynge to the word of the Lorde. Then Jeroboab buylt Sichem in mount Ephraim, & dwelt ther in. And went from thence. * and buylt Denuel.

And Ieroboam thought in hys herte: nowe shall the kyngdome returne to the house of Dauid. And he sayd vnto the people go ye do sacrifice in the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem the shall the herte of this people turne agayne vnto the Lorde. Rehoboam kyng of Iuda: so that they hyl me and go agayne to Rehoboam kyng of Iuda.

And he saide vnto them, I haue a word from the Lord. * And he layde his hand vpon the yonge toke counsell, & made two calues of golde, & saide vnto them, It is muche for you to go vnto Ierusalem. * Beholde, O Israel: these are thy goddes, whych brought thee out of the lande of Egypt. And he set the one in

The. tit. Chapter.

Crisboom being sacrificed unto the calves, is reprehended of the prophets. Kings bands bareth up, words be spoken is out against the prophet. The prophet is killed, a buried.

Rehold, there came a mid of God out of Iuda (by the word of the Lorde) vnto Bethel, & Jeroboam stood by the altare to put incense. And he cryed agaynst the altare in the word of the Lord & sayd, O altare altare, thus saith the Lorde: Beholde, a chyld shall be bozne vnto the house of Dauid, (Josia by name) & vpon the shall be offer the pictures of the hye altars that burnt incense vpon the, and innues bones shall be zente vpon the. And he gaue a token the same tyme, sayenge: This is the token, that the Lorde hath spoake it. Behold

¶ And so it came to passe, & when he had eaten hym agayne, saddled hym an asse. And when he was gone, * a lyon met hym by the waye, & slue him, and his carkasse was cast in the waye, and the asse stode thereby, and the lyon stode by the coorse also. And men passed by, sawe the car-casse cast in the way, and the lyon standing ther by: and they came & tolde it in the towne where the olde prophet dwelt. And when the prophete that brought hym backe agayne from the way hearde thereof, he sayde: it is the man of God. he was disobedient vnto the wyrd of the Lord, and therfore the Lord hath deliuered hym vnto the lyon, whiche hath rent him and slayne hym, according to the wyrd of the Lord, which he spake vnto hym. And he spake to his sonnes, sayinge: saddle me an asse: and so they byd. And he went and foude his body cast in the waye, and the asse and the lyon stode by the coorse. And the lyon had not eaten the carkasse no3 hurt the asse. And the prophet toke vp the body of the man of God and layed it vpon the asse, and brought it agayne and the olde prophet came to the cytye, to lament, and bury hym. And he layed his bodye in his owne graue, and they lamented ouer hym: (Alas, my brother.)

¶ And when he had buried hym, he spake to his sonnes, sayinge: When I am deed, let that ye bu-rye me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buried: laye my bones besydes his bones.

* For the saying which he cryed at the doore of the Lorde agaynst the altar in Bethel (and a-gaynst all the houses of hyaulters which are in the cytie of Samarie) shall come to passe.

Howbeit, for all that, Jeroboam conuerted not from his wyched waye: but turned backe, & made of the lowest of the people, prestes of the hyaulters. And whoso pleased hym, he fylled his hande, and became prest of the hyaulters.
And this thyng turned to syn vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to destroye hym, and to bynne hym to nought from the face of the earth.

fell sycke. And Jeroboam sayd vnto his wyfe: vp (I praye the) and disguise thy selfe, & thou be not knowen to be the wyfe of Jer-oboam, & get the to Silo. For there is Abia the prophet which told me: * I shuld be king ouer this people. And take w the ten lounes & cracknels, & what shall become of the chylde. And Jeroboams wyfe byd so: and arose, and wente to Silo, and came to the house of Abia. But Abia could not

¶ And the Lorde sayd vnto Abia: Behold, the for her son, for he is sycke. But thus shalte thou saye vnto her: And when she came in, she feyned her selfe to be an other woman. But whē Abia hearde the sounde of her feet as she came in at the doore, he sayde: come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam, why feynest thou thy selfe to be an other? I am sent to thee to shewe the heuere thynges.

So tel Jeroboam, thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: (It repented me) forasmuch as * Jer-oboam hath rebelled against me amonge the people, and made the prynces ouer my people Israel: I byd eft the kingdom away fro the house of Dauid, & gaue it the:
Reuerendeste, thou hast not bene as my seruante Dauid, whiche kept my commaundementes, and folowed me with all his herte, to do that which is right in myne eyes: but hast done euill aboue all that were before the, for thou hast gone and made the other goddes, and molten ymages, to prouoke me, and hast cast me behynde thy back: therfore behold, I wyll bynne euill vpon the house of Jeroboam, and wyl roote out from Jeroboam, euen hym that * pylleth agaynst the wall, and hym that is in pylon and fastaken in Israel, and wyll take awaye the remnaunte of the house of Jeroboam, as a man taketh awaye donge, till he hath carryed out all.

* Whosoever of Jeroboams house dye in the towne, hym shall the dogges cate: and he shal dye in the felde that the foules of the ayre eat: for the Lorde hath sayde it. Up therfore, and gette the to thyne house. Behold, whē thy fore entree into the cytie the chylde shall dye. And all they of Israel shall mourne for hym, and bury hym:
for he only of Jeroboam shall come to the sepulchre, because in hym there is founde goodnesse towards the Lorde God of Israel: in the house of Jeroboam. Whereouer, the Lorde shall bynne hym vp a kyng ouer Israel which shall destroye the house of Jeroboam in that daye. But what is it now? For the Lorde shall smyte Israel, as when a reed is shaken in the water, and he shall wede Israel out of this good lande, whiche he gaue to they fathers, and shal scatter them beyonde the ryuer, because they haue made them groues, and angered the Lorde. And he shal gync Israel vp, because of the synnes of Jeroboam, which byd synne, and made Israel to spenne.

¶ And Jeroboams wyfe arose, and departed, and came to Thizab, and when she came to the threshold of the doore, the chylde was deed. And all Israel buried hym, and lamented hym, according to the word of the Lord which he spake by the hand of his seruante Abia the prophet.
And the rest of the thynges that concern Jeroboam, howe

howe he warred, and howe he raygned. Behold, they are wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And the dayes whiche Jeroboam raygned were. xxi. yere. And when he was layed alleys with his fathers, Nabab his sonne raygned in his stede.

Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon raygned in Juda, and Rehoboam was. xli. yere old whē he begā to raygne, and raygned. xlii. yere in Jerusalem: the cytie which the Lord dyd choise out of all the tribes of Israel, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naama an Ammonite. And Juda brought wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde: and angered hym in mothinges then they fathers dyd in they synnes which they synned. For they also made them pylalters, pynges, and groues on every hye hyll, & vnder every thycke tree. And there was a flues of male chylidren in the lande, and they dyd accordyng to all the abhominacions of the nations which the Lord cast out before the chyliden of Israel. And it so tyned, & in the fyfte yere of kyng Rehoboam: Shishak kyng of Egypt came vpon agaynst Jerusalem, & toke a way the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of the kynges house, & spoyled all that was to be had. And he toke away the spides of golde which Salomon had made. In whose stede kyng Rehoboam made brassen chyldes, and commytted them vnto the handes of the keepinge of the captaynes of the garde, which waited at the doore of the kynges house. And when the kyng went into the house of the Lorde: they of the garde bare them, and brought them agayne into the garde chambyze.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Rehoboam, and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda? And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam all they synes. And Rehoboam slepe with his fathers, and was buryed besyde his fathers in the cytie of David. His mothers name was Naama an Ammonite. And Abiam his sonne raygned in his stede.

The. xv. Chapter

Whiche Abiam raygned ouer Juda, and vyghten Ala successerly in his toun. The battayle betwene Ala and Baasa. Jehosaphat successerly Ala. Nabab successerly Jeroboam. Baasa kyllyth Nabab.

In the. xvi. yere of kyng Jeroboam the son of Nabat, raygned Abiam ouer Juda. The yere raygned he in Jerusalem, & his mothers name was Maacha the daughter of Abisalom. And he walked in all the synnes of his father, which he had done before hym: and his hert was not perfect to the Lord his God: as the herte of David his father. Neuertheles, for Dauid sake dyd the Lorde his God gyue hym a lyght in Jerusalem, that he set vp his sonne after hym, and to stablysh Jerusalem, because Dauid dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde, and turned from nothyng that he commaunded hym, all the dayes of his lyfe, & saue only in the matter of Gias the herbyte. And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam as long as they lyued. The rest of the wordes that concerne Abiam, and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda? And there was war betwene Abiam, and Jeroboam. And Abiam slepe with his fathers, and they buryed hym in the cytie of David. And Ala his sonne raygned in his stede.

In the. xx. yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israel raygned Ala ouer Juda. xli. yere raygned he in Jerusalem, and his mothers name was Maacha, the daughter of Abisalom. And Ala dyd & lemed ryght in the eyes of the Lord, as dyd Dauid his father. And he toke awaye the whores hepres out of the lande, and put awaye all the abhominable ydoles that his father had made. And he put downe Maacha his mother from bearyng rule, because she had made pynges in groues. And Ala destroyed her pynges, and burnt them by the brooke Cedron. But the pylalters were not put downe. Neuertheles, Alaes herte was perfecte with the Lorde all his dayes. He brought in the holy vessels of his fathers (and he had dedicate) vnto the house of the Lorde: golde and syluer, and ierwels. And there was warre betwene Ala and Baasa, kyng of Israel all they dayes.

And Baasa kyng of Israel wente vpon agaynst Juda, and burye Rama, so he wold let none go out of in, to Ala kyng of Juda. Then Ala toke all the golde and syluer that was left in the treasures of the house of the Lord, & the treasures of the kynges house, & deliuered them into the handes of his seruantes, and Ala sent them to Benbadad the sonne of Tabrimon the sonne of Hezion kyng of Siria (that dwelte at Damasco) saying: there is a bonde betwene the and me, betwene my father and thy father. And behold, I haue sente vnto the a present of syluer, and gold, & thou come & bryake the bonde thou hast to Baasa kyng of Israel, & he may departe from me. So Benbadad herkened vnto kyng Ala, & let the captaynes of the hostes (which he had) agaynst the cyties of Israel, and smote Hion, & Dan, & Abel, Berh, Maacha, & al the regyon of Ceneroth, with all the lande of Arphithai. And when Baasa herde therof, he left buyldyng of Rama, and dwelt in Tiberia. Then kyng Ala made a proclamacion thowout al Juda, that none shulde be excused. And so they toke the stoncs of Ramah, and the ryuer (wherewith Baasa had buylded) & kyng Ala buyld with the the pyl of Ben Jamin and Giza. The remnaite of all the wordes that concerne Ala, and all his myght and all that he dyd, & the cyties whiche he buylded, are they not wyrtten in the booke of the chronycles of the kynges of Juda? Neuertheles, in his old age he was diseased in his fete. And Ala slepe with his fathers, and was buryed besyde his fathers in the cytie of David his father. And Jehosaphat his son raygned in his stede. And Nabab the sonne of Jeroboam beganne to raygne vpon Israel the seconde yere of Ala kyng of Juda, and raygned vpon Israel two yere. And he dyd euyl in the syght of the Lorde, walhyng in the wyape of his father, and in his synne wherewith he made Israel sin. And Baasa son of Abia of Aſa (which was of ſoule of Maſar, conſpyred agaynſte hym, and Baſa ſmote hym at Gibbethon which is a cytie of ſ Philſtines, for Adab and all Iſrael layed ſiege at Gibbethon. Even in the thyrde yere of Aſa kyng of Iuda, dyd Baſa ſlaue hym, and ragned in his ſtede.

* And it ſortuned, that when he was kyng, he ſmote all the houſe of Jeroboam, and lefte hym nought that breathed, but yll he hadde put hym cleane out, accordyng to the ſaying of the Lord which he ſpoke by his ſervant Aſa the ſerlomite: becauſe of the ſpynes of Jeroboam where-with he ſpyned, and made Iſrael ſpyn, wde he w his prouocacib angered ſ Lord God of Iſrael.

The reſt of the wordes that concerne Adab and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iſrael? And there was warre betwene Aſa and Baſa kyng of Iſrael, all they dayes.

So in the thyrde yere of Aſa kyng of Iuda, began Baſa the ſonne of Aſia to ragnen ouer all Iſrael in Thirza. xxiii. yere. And he dydde that whyche is euyl in the ſyghte of the Lord, walkyng in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his ſpynne, which made Iſrael to ſpynne.

¶ The. xvi. Chapter.

¶ Jehu prophesyeth agaynſt Baſa, whomeſa ſuccedeth. zimey thyllyth the matter elia, and deſceyved ſ ſonke of Baſa. Ahab ſuccedeth Ahab, and ſaboth to wyle wyched Jezabel.

¶ When the worde of the Lord came to Jehu the ſonne of Hanani agaynſt Baſa, ſayinge: ſo ſalmoche as I exalted the oute of the duſte, and made the captayne ouer my people Iſrael, and thou haſt walked in the way of Jeroboam, and haſt made my people Iſrael to ſpynne, to angre me with they ſpynes: Beholde, I wyll rote out the poſteritie of Baſa, and the poſteritie of his houſe, & wyll make his houſe lyke the houſe of Jeroboam the ſonne of Abat. * That man of Baſa whiche dyeth in the cytte, hym ſhall the dogges eate: and that man of hym which dyeth in the feldeſ, ſhall the foules of the ayre eate.

The reſt of the wordes that concerne Baſa and what he dydde, and his power, are they not wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iſrael? And ſo Baſa ſlept with his fathers, and was buried in Thirza. And Ela his ſonne ragned in his ſtede. And by the hande of the prophet Jehu the ſonne of Hanani, came the worde of the Lord agaynſt Baſa, and agaynſt his houſe, and agaynſt all the wychedneſſe that he dyd in the ſyght of the Lord (in angrynge hym wyth the worke of his owne handes) that he ſhoulde be lyke the houſe of Jeroboam, and becauſe he kyled hym: ow (that is to ſay) Jehu the ſonne of Hanani the prophet.

The. xxvi. yere of Aſa kyng of Iuda began Ela the ſonne of Baſa to ragnen ouer Iſrael in Thirza, two yere. And his ſervant zimey, whiche was captayne of halfe his charettes conſpyred agaynſte hym, as he was in Thirza dyynyng: and was donk in the houſe of Aza ſharde of his houſe in Thirza. And zimey came and ſmote hym, and kyled hym in ſ xxvi. yere of Aſa kyng of Iuda, and ragned in his ſtede. And it ſortuned that when he was kyng, * and late on his ſeate, he ſure all the houſe of Baſa, not leaſing thereof one to pſſe agaynſt a wal. Pea, he ſure his kynſfolkes and fredeſ alſo. And thus dyd zimey deſtroye all the houſe of Baſa, accordyng to the worde of the Lord whiche he ſpoke agaynſt Baſa by the hande of Jehu the prophet, for al the ſpynes of Baſa, and ſpynes of Ela his ſonne, whiche they ſpyned and made Iſrael to ſpynne, and angred the Lord God of Iſrael with they vanyties. The reſt of the wordes that concerne Ela, and all he dyd: are they not wyrtten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Iſrael?

In the. xxvii. yere of Aſa kyng of Iuda dyd zimey ragnen. vii. dayes in Thirza, and the people was then in the hoſt beſiegyng Gibbethon a cytie of the Philſtines. And the people of the hoſte hearde one ſape: zimey hath conſpyred, and ſlape the kyng: wderſore all they of Iſrael made Amri (the captayne of the hoſte) kyng ouer Iſrael that ſame daye, even in the hoſte. And Amri departed wyth hym, and they beſieged Thirza. And when zimey ſawe, that ſ cytte muſt nedes be taken, he went into the palace of the kynges houſe, and burnt hym ſelfe and the kynges houſe with fyre, and ſo dyed for his ſpynes whiche he ſpyned, in doing that which is euyl in the ſyght of the Lord, and in walkyng in the waye of Jeroboam and his ſpynes which he dyd, and in that he made Iſrael to ſpynne.

The reſt of the wordes that concerne zimey, and the treaſon that he wrought, are they not wyrtten in ſ boke of the Chronicles of ſ kynges of Iſrael? Then were the people of Iſrael deuyded into two partes, for halfe ſ people folowed Thibni the ſonne of Sinath making him king and the other halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri pryncypled agaynſte the people that folowed Thibni the ſonne of Sinath. And ſo Thibni dyed, and Amri ragned.

In the. xxxi. yere of Aſa kyng of Iuda began Amri to ragnen ouer Iſrael twelue yere. Syre yere ragned he in Thirza. he bought the byll Schomron of one Decomar for two talentes of ſyluer, and buyt in the byll, and called the name of the citie which he buile after ſ name of Deche mar, which had ben owner of the byll Schomron. But Amri wrought that whych was euyl in the eyes of the Lord, and dyd woſe then all that were befoze hym. For he walked in all the way of Jeroboam the ſonne of Abat, and in his ſpynes that made Iſrael ſpynne: to angre ſ Lord God of Iſrael with they vanyties. The reſt of the wordes that concerne Amri, and all that he dyd, and his ſtrengthe that he ſhewed: are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iſrael? And ſo Amri ſlept wyth his fathers, and was buried in Schomron, and Ahab his ſonne ragned in his ſtede.

In the. xxxviii. yere of Aſa kyng of Iuda began Ahab the ſon of Amri to ragnen ouer Iſrael, & the ſame Ahab the ſonne of Amri ragned ouer

G. ii. Iſrael

Israel in Samaria. xlii. years. And Ahab the sonne of Aziel dyd euyl in the syght of the Lorde aboute all that were before hym. For it seemed vnto him but a lyght thing to walke in the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. He toke Jezabel also the daughter of Ethbaal kyng of the Sidonites to wyfe, and * wente and serued Baal, and worshypped hym. And he reared vp an auter of Baal in the temple of Baal, which he had buylded in Scomeron. And Ahab made groues, and proceded further in angryng the Lorde God of Israel, then all the kynges of Israel that were before hym.

The. xvii. Chapter.

Elia is nourished and fed of ravens, and after is sent to zaphath (otherwise called Achaz) to a woman whole chyld he caried in lye.

And Elia the Thersiter (which was of the inhabitours of Silad) sayde vnto Ahab: * as truly as the Lorde God of Israel liueth, before whom I stand * there shalbe neither dewe nor rayne these yeres, but accordyng to my word.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto hym saying: get the hence, & turne the eastward, and byde thy selfe in the brooke Cherith, for is it that I saye to the Lorde: Thou shalt dymne of Syria: & I haue commaunded the rauen to fede the there. And so he wnt, & dyd accordyng vnto the worde of the Lorde. For he went, and dwelt by the brooke Cherith this before Jordan. And frauens brought him byed & flesch in the morning, and lykewise byed and flesch in the evening, and he drank of the brooke. And it chaunced after a whyle, & the brooke dried vp, because there fell no rayne vpon the earth. * And the worde of the Lorde came vnto hym, saying: * vp, and get the to zaphath, which is in Sidd, and dwell there.

Beholde, I haue commaunded a wyddowe there, to sustayne the. So he arose: & wet to zaphath. And wher he came to the gate of the cytie the wyddowe was there gathering fykes. And he called to her, and sayd: * set me I praye the, a lytle water in a vessel, & I maye dymne. And as she was going to set it, he cryed after her, and said: dymne me I praye the, a morsell of byed also in thyne hande. She sayde: As truly as the Lorde thy God lyueth, I haue no byed ready but eue an handefull of mele in a barell, and a lytle oyle in a cruse. And beholde, I am gathering two fykes for to go in, and byesse it for me and my sonne, that we maye eate, and dye.

And Elia sayd vnto her: feare not, come and do as thou hast sayde, but make me therof a lytle cake fyfte of all: and dymne it vnto me, and afterwarde make for the, and thy sonne. For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: the mele in the barell shal not be wasted: neyther shal the oyle in the cruse be diminished, vntill the Lorde haue sent rayne vpon the earth. And she went, and dyd as Elia sayde. And she and her house dyd eate a good space, and the mele wasted not out of the barell, neyther was the oyle spent out of the cruse, accordyng to the word of the Lorde, which he spake by the hande of Elia. * And after these thynges it happened, that the sonne of the wyfe of the house fell sycke. And his synchelle was so sore, & there was no byeth left in hym. And she sayd vnto Elia: what haue I to do with the, O thou man of God: art thou come vnto me to call my synne agayne to remembrance, and to slaye my sonne? he sayde vnto her: gyue me thy sonne, and he toke hym out of her lappe, and caried hym vp into a loft, where he abode, and layed hym vp in his owne bedde, and called vnto the Lorde, and sayd: O Lorde my God, haste thou punished also this wyddowe (with whom I dwell as a stranger) and haste slayne her sonne: * And he stretched hym selfe vpon the chyld the thre tymes, & called vnto the Lorde, & sayde: O Lorde my God: let this chyldes soule come into him agayne. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Elia, and the soule of the chyld came in to hym agayne, and he reuyned. And Elia toke the boye, and brought him downe out of the chyld into the house, and deliuered hym vnto his mother, and Elia sayd: beholde, thy son lyueth. And the womā sayd vnto Elia: now I knowe that thou art a man of God, and that the word of the Lorde in thy mouth is true. * And

The. xviii. Chapter.

Elia is sent to Ahab. Obadiah (otherwise called Abdia) byeth an hundred prophetes. Elia killeth al Baals pyrophetes, and afterwarde a rayneth rayne.

After proccesse of manye dayes, the worde of the Lorde came to Elia, in the thyrde yere, sayinge: go the we thy selfe vnto Ahab, and I * wyl sende rayne vpon the earth. And Elia went to shewe hym selfe vnto Ahab, and there was a great samishment in Scomeron. And Ahab called Obadiah, whiche was the gouernour of his house: & Obadiah feared God greatly: For when Jezabel destroyed the pyrophetes of the Lorde, he toke an hundred prophetes, and hysd them, bytpe men in one cause, and bytpe in an other, and prouyded byed and water for them. And Ahab sayde vnto Obadiah: go into the lande, vnto all the fountaynes of water and vnto all the brookes, if happely we maye fynde grasse to save the horses and the mules, & that we destroye not some of the bestes. And so they deuyded the lande betwene the to walke thowoe it. Ahab went one waye by hym selfe, and Obadiah went an other waye by hym selfe. And it

Ezech. xlii. d.

B And it chanced, that as Obadia was in the waye, Elia met him. And Obadia knewe him: and fell on his face, and sayde: arte not thou my lord? Elia: And he answered hym: I am he. So and sei the lord: beholde, Elia is here. He sayd: what haue I synned, that thou woldest deliuer the seruante into the hand of Ihab, to slaye me? As truly as the Lord thy God liueth, there is no nation of kyngdom, whither my lord hath not sct to seke the. And when they sayd: he is not there, he toke an oth of the kyngdom and nation, wher he founde the not. And now thou sayest: go and tell thy lord, that Elia is here. And as soone as I am gone from the, the spyute of the Lord shal carry the into some place that I doo not knowe, and so when I come, and tell Ihab, and he can not fynde the, he shal slaye me. But I thy seruant seace the Lord from my youth vp. Was it not tolde my lord, what I dyd when Ihabel slue the Prophetes of the Lord, how I dyd an hundred men of the Lordes Prophetes, fyfthe men in one caue, and fyfthe in another, and poynted them of breede and water? And now thou sayest: go thou now and seke the thy lord, beholde Elia is here, that he maye slaye me.

C And Elia sayde: as truly as the Lord of hostes lyueth, before whome I stande, I wyll shewe my selfe vnto hym this daye. So Obadia went to mete Ihab, and tolde hym. And Ihab went to mete Elia. And it fortuned, that when Ihab sawe Elia, he sayde vnto hym: arte thou he that troubleth Israel? he answered: it is not I that haue troubled Israel, but thou, and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the Lord, & thou hast folowed Baal. Howe therfore sende, and gather to me all Israel vnto mount Carmel, & the prophetes of Baal: foure hundred and fyfthe, and the prophetes of the groves foure hundred, whiche eate of Ihabels table. So Ihab sente vnto all the chyldren of Israel: and gathered the prophetes together vnto mount Carmel.

D And Elia came vnto all the people, and sayd: howe longe haue ye betwene two opinions? If the Lord be God, folowe hym: but if Baal be he, then go after hym. And the people answered hym not a worde. Then sayd Elia vnto the people agayne: I onely remaine a Prophete of the Lord: But Baals prophetes are foure hundred, and fyfthe. Let them therfore gyue vs two oxen, and let them chole the one, and cut hym in peces, and laye hym on wood, and put no fyre vnder, and I wyll dresse the other ox, and laye hym on wood, and wyll put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of poney god, and I wyll call on the name of the Lord: and then the God that answereth by fyre, let hym be God.

E And all the people answered, and sayd: it is well spoken. And Elia sayd vnto the prophetes of Baal: chole you an ox, and dresse hym fyre, (for ye are many) and call on the name of your goddes, but put no fyre vnder. And they toke the one ox that he had gyue them, and they dresed it, & called on the name of Baal, from morninge to noone: saying: O Baal heare vs.

But there was no voyce, nor one to answer. And they lepe vpon the alter that they had made. And at noone it fortuned, that Elia mocked them, and sayd: crye loude, for he is a god: peradventure he is eathing or occupied (in folowing of his enemyes) or is in his iourney, or happye he slepeth, and must be awaked with your crye. And they cryed loude, and cutte them selues as they manner was, with knyues and launcers, tyll the bloode folowed on them. And it chanced, that when myddaye was passed, they propheted, vntill the tyme of the euenynge sacrifice. But there was neyther voyce nor one to answer, nor any that regarded them.

And Elia sayd vnto all the folke: come to me. And all the people came to hym. And he repared the auttare of the Lord that was broken. And Elia toke xii. stoones, accordynge to the nombre of the xii. trybes of the sones of Jacob, (vnto whome the worde of the Lord came, saying: * Israel shalbe thy name. And with the stonnes he made an autter in the name of the Lord. And he made a ditcheround about the alter, as bryde as two foorlozes of the corne felde. And he put the woode in ordre, and hewed the oxe in peces, and layed him on the wood, & sayd: fyll foure barels with water, and poure it on the burnt sacrifice, and on the wood. And he sayd: do so agayne. And they dyd so the second tyme. And he said agayne: doo it the thyrde tyme. And they dyd it yet the thyrde tyme. And the water ranne round about the auttare: & he fylled the pye with water also.

And it fortuned, when the tyme came (wherin the burnt sacrifice of the euenynge used to be offered) Elia the prophet came, & sayd: Lord God of Abraham, Ihabac of Israel, it shall be knowne this daye, that thou arte the God of Israel, and that I am thy seruant, and that I haue done all these thynges at thy commaundement. Heare me (O Lord) heare me, & this people maye knowe that thou art the Lord God, and that thou hast turned the pye hert agayne now at the last. And the fyre of the Lord fell, and consumed the burnt sacrifice, the wood, the stonnes and the dust, and lyched vp the water that was in the pye. And when all the people sawe it, they fell on theyr faces, and sayde: The Lord, he is God: the Lord he is God. And Elia sayd vnto them: Take the prophetes of Baal, & let not one of them escape. And they toke them, and Elia brought them to the brooke kilde, and slue them there. And Elia sayd vnto Ihab: Get the vp, and eate & drynke, for there is a sounde of moche rayne. And so Ihab wente vp, to eate and to drynke, and Elia wente vnto the toppe of Carmel. And he layed hym selfe flatte vpon the earth, and put his face betwene his knees, and sayd to his seruant go vp (I praye the) and loke toward the way of the see. And he went vp and loke, and sayd: there is nothyng. And he sayd: go agayne seuen tymes. And it fortuned, that at the seuen th tyme, he sayd: beholde, there aryseth a lytle cloude of the see lyke a mannes hande. He sayd: Go, and saye vnto Ihab: Wake faste thy charette, and get the downe, that the rayne stoppe not.

G. iii. And

And it came to passe, that in the meane while, that heauen was blacke with cloudes & wynde and ther was a great rayne. And Abab gat vp and came to Jezrael. And the hand of the Lord was on Elia, and he gyved vp his loynes, and ranne before Abab tyll he came to Jezrael.

The xix. Chapter.

Elia rising from Jezabel, is nourished of the angel of God: and is commended to anoynt Azael, Jazai, and others, whome the Hebrews call Elia.

2 And I hab tolde Jezabel, all þe Elia had done, and how he had slayne al the prophetes with the swerde. Then Jezabel sent a messenger vnto Elia, sayinge: *so and so let the goddes do to me, yf I make not thy soule: lyke one of theys by tomozowe this tyme. When he sawe that, he arose, and wet for his lyfe, and came to Beersaba in Iuda, and left his seruait there. But he hym selfe went a dayes iourneye into the wilderneße, and came and sate doونه vnder a Juniper tree, and despyed for his soule, that he myght dye, and sayd: *it is now ynough (O Lorde) take my soule, for I am not better, then my factheys.

3 And as he laye and slept vnder the Juniper tree, beholde, an angell touched hym, and sayde vnto hym: vp, and eate. And when he looked aboute hym, beholde, there was a lofe of bryled bread, & a vessel of water at his heed. And he did eate and drynke, and layed hym downe agayne to slepe. And the Angell of the Lorde came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched hym, and sayd: vp and eate, for thou hast yet a great iourneye. And he arose, and did eate and drynke, and walked in the strength of that meate *fourtye dayes and fourtye nyghtes, euen vnto hozeb the mount of God. *When he came thither in to a caue, he lodged therein all nyght.

C And beholde, the worde of the Lorde came to hym, & sayd vnto hym: what doest þe here Elia? And he answered. I haue ben gelous for þe Lord God of hostes sake. For the chyldren of Israel haue forsaaken thy couenaunte, *broken downe thyne alters, & slayne thy prophetes with the swerde, & I only am left, & they seke my lyfe to take it away. And he sayd: come out, and stande vnto þe mount before the Lord. And beholde, *the Lord went by a myghty strong wynde & rēt the mountaynes, & brake þe rockes before the Lorde. But þe Lord was not in þe wynde. And after the wynde came an earthquake. But the Lord was not in the earthquake. And after the earthquake came fyr: but the Lord was not in the fyr. And after þe fyr came a small styl voyce. And when Elia herd it, he couered his face wth his mantel, & wet out, & stode in þe entering in of the caue. And beholde, there came a voyce vnto hym, & sayde: what doest thou here Elia? And he answered: I haue bene gelous for the Lorde God of hostes sake, because the chyldren of Israel haue forsaaken thy couenaunte, cast downe thyne alters and slayne thy prophetes wth the swerde, & I only am left. And they seke my lyfe to take it away. And the Lord sayd vnto hym: go & turne thy way to the wylberneße vnto Damascus, & thou mayest

The xx. Chapter.

The first and seconde tyme that Hamaria was besieged of Benhadab kyng of Siria.

A And Benhadab the kyng of Siria gatherd all the host together, hauynge xxxii. kynges with him, and horses, & charrettes: and went vp, and besieged Hamaria, & warred agaynst it. And he sent messengers to Abab kyng of Israel, into the cite, and sayd vnto hym: thus sayeth Benhadab: Thy syluer and thy golde is myne, and the sayest of thy wyues, and of thy chyldren be myne. And the kyng of Israel answered, and sayd: My lorde kyng accordyng to thy sayinge, I am thyne, and all that I haue.

And when the messengers came agayne, they sayd: thus sayeth Benhadab: For as moche as I haue sent vnto the, sayinge: thou shalt deliuer me thy syluer and thy golde, and thy wyues and thy chyldren: I wyl therfore sende my seruantes vnto the tomozow this tyme: and they shall se arche thyne house, and the houses of thy seruantes. And what soeuer is pleasaunt in thyne eyes, they shall take it in theyr handes, and bying it away. Then the kyng of Israel sent for all the elders of the lande, & sayd: take heede I praye you, and se how this felow goeth about mischefe. For he sent vnto me for my wyues, for my chyldren, for my syluer and for my golde: and I denyed hym not. And all the elders and all the people sayde, herken not vnto hym, nor consent.

Wherfore he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadab: tel my lorde the kyng, all that thou dyddest send for to thy seruant at þe fyrst tyme that I wil do, but this thing I may not do. And the messengers departed and brought answer agayne. And Benhadab set vnto hym agayne, and sayde: thus and thus do the goddes to me, yf the dust of Hamaria be ynough for al þe people that folowe me, to take euery man an handfull. And the kyng of Israel answered, and sayde: tel hym: Let not him that putteth on his barnelle boost him selfe, as he that putteth it of.

And it

And it fortuned, that when Benhadad hearde, that cydinges as he was with the kynges dymyng within the paultions, he sayd vnto his seruantes: put on your barnells, and they set them selues in aray agaynst the cytye.

C And beholde, there came a prophete vnto Ahab kyng of Israel, saying: thus sayeth the Lord: hast thou bene all this greete multitude? Behold, I wyl deliuer it into thine hand this day and thou shalt knowe, that I am the Lord. And Ahab sayd: by whom? he sayd: thus sayeth the Lord: euen by the seruantes of the gouernours of the Syries. he sayd agayne: Who shall ordeyne the battayle? and he answered: thou. That he nombred the seruantes of the gouernours of the Syries, and they were two hundred, & xxii. And after them also he nombred all the people, all the chyldren of Israel euen seuen thousande. And they wente oute at noone: but Benhadad dyd hymke tyll he was drunken in the pauplyngs, bothe he and the kynges: euen. xxxii. kynges, that holpe hym. And the seruantes of the gouernours of the Syries went out tyll.

D And Benhadad set out, and they shewed him, sayinge: there are men come oute of Samaria. he sayde: Whether they be come oute for peace, take them aliove: or whether they be come oute to fyght, take them yet aliove. And so those ponge men of the gouernours of the Syries came out of the cytye, & the doost after them, and they slue euery one his enemye that came in his way. And the Syrians fled, and they of Israel folowed after the. And Benhadad the kyng of Siria escaped on an horse with his horsemen. And the kyng of Israel went out, and smote the houses & charettes, and w a great slaughter slue he the Syrians.

And there came a Propheet to the kyng of Israel, and sayde vnto hym: goo forthe, and playe the man, be wyse and take hede what thou dost: for when the peare is gone aboute, the kyng of Siria wyl come vp agaynst the. And the seruantes of the kyng of Siria sayde vnto hym: The goddesses of the hylls are they; goddesses, and therefore they had the better of vs: but let vs fyghte agaynst the in the playne, and for what we wyl, we shall haue the better of them. And this doo: take the kynges away, euerpe man oute of his place, and put dukes in theyr roumes. And doo thou nombze the an doost, lyke the doost that thou hast lost: such houses and such charettes, and we wyl fyght agaynst the in the playne, and thou shalt se vs get the better of them. And he berkened vnto theyr voyce, and dyd euen so.

E And it fortuned, that after the yere was gone aboute, Benhadad nombzed the Syrians, & went vnto Aphek to fyght agaynst Israel. And the chyldren of Israel were nombzed, and w theyr hole nombze went they agaynst them, and the chyldren of Israel pyched before them, lyke two lytle flockes of kyddes: but the Syrians fylled the countrey: And there came a ma of God, and sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: thus sayeth the Lord: Because the Syrians haue sayde: The Lord is but God of the hylls, & not God of the valleyes: therefore wyl I deliuer all this great multitude into thine hande, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lord. And they pitched one ouer agaynst the other seuen dayes, & it came to passe that in the seuen daye the battayle was toynd. And the chyldren of Israel slue of the Syrians an hundred thousande footemen in one daye. But the rest fled to Aphek into the cytye. And there fel a wall vpon. xxvii. thousand of the men that were left. And Benhadad fled, and came into the cytye, from chambze to chambze.

And his seruantes sayd vnto hym: Behold, we haue herd say: that the kynges of the house of Israel are merciful kynges. We wyl therefore put sackcloth about our loynes and ropes about our neckes, & go out to the kyng of Israel: so happily he wyl lene the lyfe. And so they gyrded sackcloth about theyr loynes, and put ropes about theyr hedes, & came to the kyng of Israel, & sayd: Thy seruant Benhadad sayth: I praye the let me lyue. he sayde: is he yet aliove? he is my brother. And they toke that word for good lucke, & hastily caught it out of his mouth, and sayd: yea thy brother Benhadad. he sayd: go, byng him hether. And Benhadad came out vnto hym, & he caused hym to come vp vnto a charet. And he sayd vnto him: the cyties which my father toke fro thy father I wyl restore agayne. And thou shalt make stretches for me in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I wyl make an appoyntment with the, & sende the away. And so he made an appoyntment w hym, & sent him away.

And there was a certayne man of the chyldren of the prophetes, which sayd vnto his neyghbour in the woide of the Lord: smyte me I pray the. And the ma wold not smyte him. That sayd he vnto him: because thou hast not berkened vnto the voyce of the Lord, beholde, alsoone as thou art departed fro me I wyl slaye the. And it came to passe, & alsoone as he was departed fro hym, a lyon found him & slue him. Then he found another man, & said: smite me I pray the. And the ma smote him, so that in smyting he wounded hym. So the prophet went forth, & wayted for the kyng by the way, & put him selfe out of knowledge w althes which he layd vpon his face. And when the kyng came by, he crept vnto the kyng, & sayd: thy seruant went out in the myddes of the battayle: & beholde, there went a way a man, who an other man brought vnto me, and sayd: kepe this man. And if he be missed or lost, thy life shall goe for his: or els thou shalt paye a talent of syluer. And as the seruant had here & there to do, he was gone. And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto him: eue so shall thy iudgement be, as thou hast defyned it thy selfe.

And he hasted, and toke the althes awaye fro his face: and the kyng of Israel knew him that he was of the prophetes: And he sayd vnto him thus sayeth the Lord: because thou hast let go a man that is in my curse, thy lyfe shall goe for his lyfe: and thy people for his people. And the kyng of Israel wente to his house, waywarde and in dyspleasure, and came to Samaria.

The xxii. Chapter.

Chazael commaunded to kill Naboth, for the bynne payde that he refused to sell to Ahab. Heling eysenbery Ahab, and his reyners.

C. liii. After

After these thynges it chaunced, þat Naboth the Jezrabelite had a vineparde in Jezrabell, barde by the palace of Ahab kyng of Samaria.
And Ahab spake vnto Naboth, saying: * Gue me thy vineparde, that I maye make me a garden of herbes thercof, bycause it lyeth so nye myne house: and I wyl gue the for it a better vineparde then it is: or rather yf it pleaseth the, I wyl gue the, the worth of it in moneye. And Naboth sayd to Ahab: the Lorde forbyd that fro me, that I shulde gue the inheritaunce of my father vnto the.

And Ahab came into his house heuy and euill apayed, bycause of the worde whiche Naboth the Jezrabelite had spoken vnto hym, for he had sayd: I wyl not gue the the inheritaunce of my fathers. And he layed him downe vpon his bed and turned awaye his face ^{on (to the wall)} þat wolde eate no bredd. And Jezabel his wyfe came to him and sayd vnto him: why is thy sprytle so way-warde, that thou eatest no bredd? And he sayde vnto her: For I spake vnto Naboth the Jez-rabelite, and sayd vnto hym: Gue me thy vineparde for moneye, or els yf it pleaseth the, I wyl gue the an other vineparde for it. And he answered: I wyl not gue the my vineparde.

And Jezabel his wyfe sayd vnto hym: Wost thou thus gouerne the kingdome of Israel? vp, eat bredd, and set thynne here at rest, I wyl gue the the vineparde of Naboth the Jezrabelite.
And so he wrote a letter in Ahab's name, and sealed it with his scale, and sent the letter vnto the elders, and to the nobles that were in his citye dwellynge with Naboth. And he wrote in the letter, saying: Proclaime a fast, and let A-both on hys amonge the people, and let two vn-thyftes befoze hym, to beate ^(to) hym. And he wrote agaynst hym, saying: thou dydest blasphemie God and the kyng. And then carpe hym oute, and stoned hym to death.

And the men of hys ctye, that is to saye: whych dwelle in hys ctye, byd as Jezabel had sent vnto them: as it was wyrtten in the letter, whiche she had sent vnto them. They proclaimed fastyng, and let Naboth amonge the chefe of the people, and there came in two men (the chyldren of Belial) and sat befoze him. And the two unthyspe persones wyrtelled agaynst Naboth in the presence of the people, sayinge:
Naboth dyd blasphemie God and the kyng.

Jeru. vii. 9

* And they carped hym out of the ctye, and stoned him with stones, that he dyed. And whā they sente to Jezabel, sayinge: Naboth is stoned to death. And it fortuneth, when Jezabel herd that Naboth was stoned to death, she sayd to Ahab: vp, and take possession of the vineparde of Na-both the Jezrabelite, whiche he denyed to gue the for moneye, for Naboth is not aloue, but deed. And when Ahab herd that Naboth was deed, he stode vp to godowne to þe vineparde of Naboth þe Jezrabelite, to take possession of it.

E And the worde of the Lorde came vnto Elia the Theluite, sayinge: vp, and goo downe to mee Ahab kyng of Israel, whiche is in Samaria. For so, he is gone downe to the vineparde of Naboth: to take possession of it. And therefore shalt thou saye vnto hym: thus sayeth the Lorde: hast thou kyled, and gotten possession? And thou shalt speake vnto hym, sayinge: thus sayeth the Lorde: * In the place wher dogges lyched the bloode of Naboth, shall dogges lyche euen thy bloode also. And Ahab sayde to Elia: haste thou founde me, O thou myne enemye? he answered: I haue founde the: for thou art euen sold to worke wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde.

Beholde, I wyl bypunge euill vpon the, & wyl make cleane ryddaunce of thy posterite, and wyl * destrope from Ahab, euen him þat maketh water agaynst the wall, and hym that is shut vp, and lette behynde in Israel, and wyl make thynne house lyke the house of Jeroboam the son of Ahab: and lyke the house of Baasa the sone of Aha, for the prouocacyon wherewith thou hast prouoked, and made Israel to synne.

And of Jezabel spake the Lorde, sayinge:
* dogges shall eate Jezabel, in the possession of Jezrabell. And he that dyeth from Ahab in the towne, hym shall dogges eate: and he that dyeth in the feldes, hym shall the foules of the ayre eat.
But there was none lyke Ahab, whiche dyd euen sell hym selfe, to worke wickednesse in þe syght of the Lorde: and that bycause that Jezabel hys wyfe psyched hym for ward. he dyd excedyng abominably, in folowynge foule dools, accor-dyng to all thynges as dyd the Ammonites,
* whome the Lorde cast out befoze the chyldren of Israel.

And it fortuneth, that when Ahab herd those wordes, * he rent his clothes, and put sackcloth about his fether, and fasted, and lape in sackcloth and went barefote. And the worde of the Lorde came to Elia the Theluite, sayinge: seest thou howe Ahab humbled hym selfe befoze me? by-cause he submytted hym selfe befoze me, I wyl not bypunge that euill in hys dayes: but in hys sonnes dayes, wyl I bypunge euill vpon hys house. And they contynued the yere wythoute warre betwene Syria and Israel.

¶ The xxiiij. Chapter.

*¶ Four hundred falsse prophetes doo counsaile Ahab and Jehosaphat to warre agaynst Ma-nach. Early in the mornynge they set out, for whiche he is smytten, and put in prison.
¶ Of Ahasia the wyfe called Jehosiah.*

Ad * in the thyrde yere byd Je-hosaphat the kyng of Juda, come downe to the kyng of Israel. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto hys seruauntes: knowe ye not that Ramoth in Gilead is ours? and we lyt styll, and take it not out of the hande of the kyng of Syria. And he sayde vnto Jehosaphat: wyte thou come wyth me to battayle agaynst Ramoth in Gilead?
And Jehosaphat sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: * I wyl be as thou arte, and my people shal be as thynne, and my horses as thynne.

And Jehosaphat sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: * altho counsaile, I praye the, at the worde of the Lorde todaye. And then the kyng of Israel

rael gathered the prophetes together vpon * a four hundred men, and sayd vnto them: Shall I go agaynst Ramoth in Gilead to battayle, or shall I let it alone? And they sayd go vp: for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kyng. And Jehosaphat sayde, is there here neuer a prophet of the Lorde more, & we myght enquire of hym? And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto Jehosaphat: there is yet one man (Michea's sonne of Jimla) by whom we maye aske counsaile of the Lorde. But I hate him, for he doth not prophesie good vnto me, but euill. And Jehosaphat sayd: let not the kyng say so. Then the kyng of Israel called a chamberlayne, and sayd let Michea the sonne of Jimla hyther at ones.

And the kyng of Israel and Jehosaphat the kyng of Iuda set either in his seate, and they apparell on them: in a voyde place besyde & entering in of the gate of Samaria, and all the prophetes prophesied before them. And Iedekia's sonne of Canaana made hogues of yron, & sayd: thus saith the Lorde: with these hogues shalt thou pulle the Syrians, vntyll thou haue made an ende of them. And all the prophetes prophesied euen so: sayenge: So vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and prosper, for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the kynges hande.

And the messenger that was gone to cal Michea, spake vnto hym, saying: beholde, the wordes of the prophetes speake good vnto the king with one mouth: let the word therfore (I praye the) be lyke the woorde of euerye one of them, to speake that which is good. And Michea sayde: as truly as the Lorde liueth, whatsoeuer the Lorde sayeth vnto me, that will I speake. And so he came to the kyng: and the kyng sayd vnto hym Michea, ought we to go agaynste Ramoth in Gilead to battayle: or to be still? he answered vnto hym: * go, and prosper, the Lorde shall deliuer it into the hande of the kyng. And the kyng sayd vnto hym. So and so many tymes do I charge the, that thou tell me nothyng, but that which is true in the name of the Lorde. He sayd. I sawe all them of Israel scattered vpon the hillcs, as shepe that haue not a shepheard. And the Lorde sayd: these haue no master, let euery man returne vnto his house in peace. And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto Jehosaphat: dyd I not tell the, that he wolde prophesie no good vnto me, but euill? And he sayd agayne: heare thou therfore the woorde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sit on his seate, and all the host of heauen stode about him on his ryght hand & on his left. And the Lorde said: * Who shall perswade Ihab that he maye go and fall at Ramoth in Gilead? And one sayde on this maner: and an other on that. And there came forth a certayne spyrite, & stode before the Lorde, and sayd: I will perswade hym. And the Lorde sayd vnto hym: where with?

And he sayd: I will go out, and be a false spyrte in the mouth of all his prophetes. He sayde: thou shalt perswade him, and maye, go forth then, and doo euens. Some therfore beholde * the Lorde hath putte a iynge spyrte in the mouth of all these thy prophetes, and the Lorde hath spoken euill toward the.

But Iedekia the sonne of Canaana went to and smote Michea on the cheke, and sayd: when went the spyrte of the Lorde from me, to speake vnto the? And Michea said: beholde, & wait se in & day, when thou shalt go from chabze to chamber to hyder the. And the kyng of Israel saide: Take Michea and cary him vnto Imon the gouernour of the cite, and vnto Joab the kynges sonne, and say, thus sayth the kyng: But this se lowe in & prison house, and fede him with bryde of affliction, and with water of trouble, vntyll I returne in peace. And Michea sayd: if thou returne in peace, the Lorde hath not spoken by me. And he sayd: hearken ye people euery one of you.

And so the kyng of Israel and Jehosaphat the kyng of Iuda went vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and the king of Israel sayd to Jehosaphat chaunge the worn thou goest to warre: and put on thyne apparell. And the kyng of Israel chaunged hym selfe, and went to battayle. But the kyng of Syria commaunded the. xxii. capitaynes (that had rule ouer his charrettes) sayenge. fyght neyther with small nor greates, saue onely agaynste the kyng of Israel. And when the capitaynes of the charrettes sawe Jehosaphat they sayd: surely it is the kyng of Israel, & they turned to fyght agaynst hym. And Jehosaphat cryed. And so it came to passe, that when the capitaynes of the charrettes sawe that he was not the king of Israel, they turned backe from him:

And a certayne man dyne a howe ignozantly and (by chaunce) smote the kyng of Israel betweene the rybbes and his harnesse. Wherefore he sayde vnto the dyner of his charrettes: turne thy hande, & cary me out of the booke, for I am hurt. And the battayle increased & daye and the king stode still in his charet agaynst the Syrians, & dyed at euen. And the blood ran out of the wounde into the myddle of the charet. And there went a proclamatione howe out the host, about the going downe of the sunne, saying: euery man to his cytie, & to his owne countrey. And so the kyng of Israel dyed: and they came to Samaria, and buryed hym there. And one washed the charet in the pool of Samaria: and the dogges lyched vp his bloode (and harlottes washed by the pooles syde) accordyng vnto the woorde of the Lorde whiche he spake.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Ihab and all that he dyd, and the prynces house which he made, and al the cities & he buylded, are they not wytted in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel? And so Ihab slepte with his father: and Iahaz his son reigned in his stede.

* Jehosaphat's son of Aza began to reigne vpon Iuda in the fourth yere of Ihab kyng of Israel: and Jehosaphat was. xxxv. yere olde, wher he began to reigne, and reigned. xxv. yere in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Iuba the daughter of Adlai. And he walked in all the wayes of Aza his father, and bowed not therefrom: but dyd that which was right in the eyes of the Lorde. Nevertheless, the high alters were not taken out of the waye: for the people offered and burnt incense yet in the high places. And Je-holaphat made peace with the kyng of Israel.

 The rest of the wordes that concerne Jeholapath, and the myght that he used, and how he warred: are they not written in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And the re-maine of the bones of the males, which remayned in the dayes of his father, he put cleane out of Ilande. There was no kyng in Edom. And Jeholaphat made. x. shippes in the sea, to come thowme Tharsis to Ophir for golde, but they went not, for the shippes brake at Ophir Gaber. Then sayd Ahazia the sonne of Ihab vnto Jeholaphat: let my seruantes go with thy ser-uantes in shippes. But Jeholaphat wolde not. And Jeholaphat dyd slepe in his fathers sepulchre. And he was buried in his fathers sepulchre. And Jehozabab his son reigned in his stede.
 Ahazia the sonne of Ihab began to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria, the seuententh yere of Jeholaphat kyng of Iuda, and raygned two yeres ouer Israel. But he dyd euill in the syght of the Lorde, and walked in the waye of his father, and in the way of his mother, and in the waye of Jeroboam the sonne of Ahab, which made Israel to syn. For he ser-ued Baal, and worshipped hym:
 and prouoked the Lorde God of Israel vnto wrath, according vnto all that his father had done.

Ad Moab dyd wychedly a-gaynst Israel after the deth of Ihab: and Ahazia sei tho come a lattelle wyndowe of his upper chambere that he had in Samaria: and whyle he was in his synnesse, he sent messengers, & sayde vnto the go, & enquire of Belzebub the god of Chom, whether I shal recover of this my disease. But the angel of the Lorde spake to Elia the Thesbite: Arise, & go up agaynst the messengers of the kyng of Samaria, and saye vnto the: Is there not a God in Israel, that ye goo to aske counsaile at Belzebub the god of Chom? Therfore, thus sayde the Lorde: thou shalt not come downe fro the bedde on which thou art gone vp, but shalt dye the deathe. And Elia departed.

And when the messengers returned backe a-gayne vnto him he sayd vnto them: why are ye nowe come? They answered hym: there came a man vpon agaynst vs, and sayd vnto vs: go, and turne agayne vnto the kyng that sent you, and saye vnto hym: Thus sayde the Lorde: Is there not a God in Israel, that thou sedest to enquire of Belzebub the god of Chom? Therfore thou shalt not come downe fro the bed on which thou art gone vp, but shalt dye the deathe. And he sayd vnto them: what maner of man was that which came vpon your way, and told you these wordes? And they answered hym: it was an de-reye man, & as gyde is a gyde of letter about his loynes. And he sayd: it is Elia the Thesbite.

Then the kyng sent vnto him a captayne ouer sytye (with his sytye men) and beholde, he sat on the toppe of an hyll. And he spake vnto hym: Thou man of God, the kyng hath sayde: come downe. Elia answered, and sayd to the captayne ouer the sytye: If I be a man of God, sytye come downe from heauen, and consume the and thy sytye. And there came sytye of God, and consumed hym and his sytye: And the kyng went agayne, and sent an other captayne ouer sytye, with his sytye. And he answered, and sayd vnto him: O man of God, thus hath the kyng said make haste, and come downe: Elia answered and sayd vnto them: If I be a man of God sytye come downe fro heauen, and consume the and thy sytye. And there came sytye of God downe from heauen, and consumed hym and his sytye.

And the kyng wente agayne, and sent the thyrde captayne ouer sytye with his sytye me.
 And the thyrde captayne ouer sytye went vp and came, and fell on his knees before Elia, and besought hym, and sayd vnto hym: O man of God let my lyfe and the lyfe of the sytye, thy seruante be precious in thy sight. Behold, there came sytye downe from heauen, and burnt vp the two foze captaynes ouer sytye with the sytyes.
 Therfore let my lyfe now be precious in thy sight
 And an angel of the Lorde sayd vnto Elia: goo downe to him, & be not afraid of him. And he arose, and went downe with him vnto the kyng.

And he said vnto hym: thus sayde the Lorde: for as moche, as thou hast sente messengers to aske counsaile at Belzebub the god of Chom, as though there hadde bene no God in Israel, whose word thou mightest seke after: therfore thou shalt not come downe of the bed on which thou art gone vp, but shalt dye the deathe. And so he dyed according to the word of the Lorde which Elia had spoken. And Jehozabab the wyfe of Jehoram the sonne of Jeholaphat kyng of Iuda, because he had no sonne. The reste of the wordes that concerne Ahazia, what thyn-ges that he dyd, are they not written in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel?

The ii. Chapter.

Elia was taken up into heauen. The synners and wicked men are punished. The synners that make synnes are punished. The synners that make synnes are punished. The synners that make synnes are punished.

And

As it chauned, that when the * Lorde wolde take vp Elia in to heauyn by a whyllewind: Elia went with Elisa from Gilgal, ¶ Elia sayd to Elisa: tary here,
I praye þe, for the lord hath sent me to Bethel. Elisa sayd vnto hym: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth: I wyl not leaue the. And they came downe to Bethel, and the chyldren of the prophetes that were at Bethel, came out to Elisa, & sayd vnto hym: knowest thou not, howe that þe Lorde wyl take a waye thy master fro thyne head this daye?
he sayde: I knowe it also: holde ye your peace.

¶ And Elia sayd vnto hym, Elisa, tarye here,
I praye the, for the Lorde hath sent me to Jericho. he said: as surely as þe Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth I wyl not leaue the, and so they came to Jericho. And the chyldren of the prophtes that were at Jericho came to Elisa, & sayde vnto hym: knowest thou not, that the Lorde wil
take a waye thy master fro thyne head this daye?
he answered: I knowe it also: holde ye your peace. And Elia sayde vnto hym, tarye I praye the here, for the Lorde hath sent me to Jordan. he sayde: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth. I wil not leaue the. And so they two went together. And fiftie men of the lonnes of the prophetes came & stode on the other syde a farr of, and they two stode by Jordan.

¶ And Elia toke his mantell, and waite it together, and smote the waters, and they were diuided, parte the one waye, and parte the other:
so that they two wente ouer thowowe the drye lande. And it fortuneth, that as one as they were ouer, Elia said vnto Elisa: aske what I shal do for the. yett I be taken awaye from the. And Elisa sayde: I praye the, let thy spyrte be double vpon me. And he sayd: thou hast asked an harde thyng. Acuerthelesse, yf thou se me when I am taken a waye from the thou shalt haue it so: yf thou do not, it shal not be. And it fortuneth, that as they went walkyng and talkyng, beholde there appeared a charret of fyre, and hoxses of fyre: & departed them both a sondre. ¶ And Elia went vp thowowe the whyllewynde into heauyn.
¶ And Elisa sawe, & cryed: O my father, O my father, the charrette of Israel, and the hoxsmen therof, and he sawe him nomore: and he toke his owne clothes, and rent them in two peces.

¶ He toke vp also the mantell of Elia that fell from hym, and wente backe agayne, and stode by Jordans syde, and toke the mantell of Elia

(that fell fro hym,) and smote the waters: and they departed not a farrer. ¶ he sayd: where is þe Lorde God of Elia, and he hym selfe? And wher he had smitten the waters, they parted this waye and that waye: and Elisa went ouer. And when the chyldren of the prophetes whiche were at Jericho sawe hym from a farrer, they sayde: the spyr-rite of Elia doeth rest on Elisa, and they came to mete hym, and fell to the grounde before hym, and sayde vnto hym: Se, there be with thy seruauntes fiftie stronge men, let them goo, and seke thy master: happily the spyrte of the Lorde hath taken hym vp, & cast hym vpon some mo-tayne, or into some valey. And he sayd: ye shall sende none. And when they lay vpo him tyll he was ashamed, he said, sende. They set therfore fiftie men, whiche sought hym thre dayes, but found him not. And when they came agayne to hym, whiche taried at Jericho, he sayd vnto the vnto not I saye vnto you, that ye shulde not go?

¶ And the men of the cytie sayde vnto Elisa, beholde: wy, the dwelling of this cytie is pleasaunte, as thou thy selfe seest: But the water is noughtie, and the grounde barren. he sayde vnto me a newe cruse: and put salt therin.
And they brought it to hym. And he went vnto the springe of the waters, and cast the salt in therther, and sayd: thus sayth the Lorde: I haue healed this water, there shal not come hereafter eyther dearth, or barrenesse. So the waters were healed vntyll this daye, accordyng to the sayinge of Elisa wher he spake.

¶ And he went vp from thence vnto Bethel.
And as he was goyng vp the waye, there came lytle chyldren out of the cytie, and mocked him, and sayd vnto hym: So vp thou balde head, go vp thou bald head. And he turned backe, and loked on them, and cursed them in the name of the Lorde. And ther came two shebeares out of that wood, and tare. xlii. chyldren of them. And he went from thence to mounte Carmel, and from thence he turned agayne to Samaria.

¶ The iiii. Chapter.

¶ The kynges of Israel, Baas and Ahas, lorde waters, wher they obtained through the prayer of Elisa.
¶ The kyng of Moab tyrannized agaynst Israel.

¶ Jehoiam the sonne of Ahas, began to reigne vpon Israel in Samaria, the xliii. yere of Jeholaphat kyng of Juda, and reigned twelue yeres. And he wrought euill in the sight of the Lorde, but not lyke his father & lyke his mother: for he put awaye the ymages of Baal that his father had made. Acuerthelesse, he cleued vnto the synners of Jeroboam, the sonne of Ahas: (which made Israel to synne) and departed not therefrom.

¶ And Mesa kyng of Moab was a Lorde of wepe, and rendyed vnto the kyng of Israel an hundred thousand lambes, and an hundred thousande rammes with the wolle. But when Ahas was dead, it fortuneth, that the kyng of Moab rebelled agaynst the kyng of Israel, and kyng Jehoiam went oute of Samaria the same season, and nombred all Israel, and went, and set to Jeholaphat the kyng of Juda, sayinge: the kyng of kyng of Moab hath offended agaynst me, wilt thou come with me agaynst Moab to battayle? he answered: I will come up, for as I am, so art thou: and as my people be so art thy people and thy horses as myne. And he sayde: What waite shall we goo up? And he answered, The waite that owne the wyldernesse of Edom.

B And so the kyng of Israel toke his journey and the kyng of Iuda, and the kyng of Edom. And when they had compassed the waite seven dayes, they had no water for the hooft, and for the cattell that folowed them. And the kyng of Israel sayde: Alas, the Lorde hath called these three kynges together, to deliuer them ouer into the hande of Moab. But Jehosaphat sayde: is there not here a prophete of the Lorde, that we maye enquire of the Lorde by hym? And one of the kynges of Israel seruaunte answered, and sayde: here is Elisa the sonne of Saphat, whiche poured water on the bandes of Elisha. And Jehosaphat sayd: Is not the worde of the Lorde with hym? And so the kynges of Israel, and Jehosaphat, and the kyng of Edom went downe to hym.

C And Elisa sayde vnto the kynges of Israel: what haue I to do with yee? Set ye to the prophetes of the father and to the prophetes of thy mother. And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto him: Oo, naye. For the Lorde hath called these three kynges together to deliuer them into the hande of Moab. And Elisa sayde: as sure as the Lorde of hooftes lyueth (in whose syde I stande) and it were not, that I regarde the presence of Jehosaphat the kyng of Iuda, I wolde not loke towards yee, nor yet se yee.

But nowe byngre me a mynstrel. And when the mynstrel played, the hande of the Lorde cam vpon hym. And he sayde: thus sayde the Lorde: Make this playne grounde full of dyches. For thus sayde the Lorde: ye shall se nyeher wynde nor rayne, and yet the dyche shall be fylled with water, that ye maye drynke: both ye and your bestes, and your cattell. And this is per but a small thyng in the syghte of the Lorde, for as moche as he will gyue ouer the Moabites also into your handes. And ye shall imyte euery stronge towne and euery goodly cytir, and shall fell euery pleasaunt tree, and stoppe euery well of water, and marre euery good plot of ground with stoones. And in the moynynge when the meat offryng was offred, it fortuned, that there came water by the way from Edom: and the countrey was fylled with water.

And when all the Moabites herde that the kynges were come up to fight agaynst them, they gathered all together, from the yongeste that was able to putte on harness, and so bydded, and stode in the border of the lande.

And they were vpon early in the moynynge and the sunne shone vpon the water, that the Moabites sawe the water as farre of, as red as blood: and they sayde: this is the bloode of slaughter: the kynges are slayne, and one hath imytten another: now therefore Moab get the to the people. And when they came to the hooft of Israel, the Israelites stode up, and smote the moabites, so that they fledde before them, but they folowed vpon them, and smote Moab. And they overthrew the cyties: and on euery good parcell of lande cast euery man his ston, and fylled it, and they stopte all the welles of water, and killed all the good trees. Onele in the cytie of bysche left they the stonnes therof: howbeit they went about it with synges, and smote it.

And when the kyng of Moab sawe that the battayle was lost agaynst hym, he toke with hym seven hundred men that dyne the swerde to haue goone thowowe, even vnto the kyng of Edom: but they could not. And then he toke his richeste sonne (that shoulde haue raygned in his stede) and offred hym for a burnt offryng vpon the wall. And there was greate indignacion agaynst Israel, and they departed from him, and returned to theyr owne lande.

The. iiii. Chapter.

E God graunt a certayne poore woman oyle and floure, by which shee, &c. (whome the text callith Eliza) a seruaunt of God a cytyll for her hooft: whiche oyle, and is after sayd to lyfe. He maketh thence the portage: and multiplieth the house.

Ad there cryed a certayne woman of the cyties vnto Elisa, saying: thy seruaunte my husbnde is dead, and thou knowest, that thy seruaunt dyd feare the Lorde.

And I credittour is come to let my two sonnes to be his bondemen. Elisa sayd vnto her: tel me wher I shall do for the: what hast thou in thyne house? She sayd: thyne handmayd hath nothyng at all in the house, save a ptycher of oyle. He said vnto her: go, and bozowe vessell for the of them that are withoute, even of all thy neyghbours, emptye vessels: and that not a fewe. And when thou arte come in, thou shalt put the doze after the and after thy sonnes, and poure out into all those vessels, and let asyde that which is full.

And so the woman went from hym, and put the doze after her, and after her sonnes. And they brought to her, and she poured out. And it came to passe, & when the vessels were full, she sayde vnto her son: byngre me pet a vessel. And he sayd vnto her: I haue no mo. And she oyle crased. The she came and told the man of God. And he sayd go, & sell the oyle, & paye them & thou art in det vnto, but lyue thou and thy chyldre of & rest. B

And it fel on a daye, that Elisa came to Sunem, where was a great woman that toke hym in for to eate bread. And so it came to passe, that fro that tyme forth (as oft as he cam that way) he turned in thither to eate bread. And she sayd vnto her husbnde: Beholde, I perceyue, that this is an holpe man of God that cometh so oft by our place. Let vs make him a chambere (I pray the) with walles, and let vs set hym there a bed and a table and a stole, and a candlestyk: that he maye turne in thither when he cometh to vs.

And it fortuned on a day, & he came thither and turned into the chambere, & laye there, and sayde to Sebeys his seruaunt: call this Sunamite. And when he called her, she prestred her selfe before hym.

foze him. And agayne he sayd vnto him: tel her Beholde, thou hast ben carefull for vs, and hast made all this piousid. What shall we now do for the woldest thou be spoken for to the kyng or to the capayne of the host? he answered: I dwelle amonge myne owne people. And he sayd again: what is to be done for her? Gehezi answered: Merely she hath no chyld, & her husbnde is olde. And he sayd: call her. And wha he had called her, she stode in f doze. And he sayd: by such a tyme, and as soone as the frute can lyue, thou shalt embrace a sonne. And she sayd: Oh nape, my lord, thou man of God, do not lye vnto thy handmayde. And the wyfe concyured, and bare a sonne that same season that Eliseus had sayd vnto her, as soone as the frute coude haue lyfe.

And when the chyld was grown, it fell on a dape, that he went out to his father, and to the reapers. And he sayd to his father: my head, my heed. And he sayd to a lad: Carry hym to his mother. And when he had carped him and brought him to his mother, he sat on her knees tyll none and then dyed. And he went vp, and layed him on the bed of the man of God, and thus the doze aboute hym, and went out, and called vnto her husbnde, and said: sende with me (I praye the) one of the yonge men and one of the asses. For I will runne to the man of God, and come a-gayne. And he sayde: wherfoze wilt thou go to him, seeinge that to day is newe moone no? Whabboth dape? he answered: for health.
The she sadden an ass, and sayd to her seruante leade away f ass, and make her not go slowly.
(because I ryde vpon her) but when I byd the.

And so she went, and came vnto the man of God to moune Carmel. And it fortuned, that when the man of God saw her face of, he sayd to Gehezi his seruante: Beholde, ponder is the Sunamite. Runne therfoze to mete her, & saye vnto her: Is all wel with the and with thy hus-bnde, & with the lad? And he answered: All is well. And when he came to the man of God by to the byll, she caught hym by the fete. But Ge-hezi went to her, to thrust her awaye. And the man of God sayd: let her alone, for her soule is vered within her, and the Loyde hath byd it fro me, and hath not tolde it me. Then she sayd: did I besyze a sonne of my lord? byd I not requyre the, that thou shouldest not disceyne me?

Then he sayd to Gehezi: gyde vnto thy loynes, and take my staffe in thynne hande, and go thy waye. * Yf thou mete any man salute hym not. And yf any salute the, answer hym not a gayne. And lay my staffe vpo f face of the child And the mother of f chyld sayd, * as sure as the Lorde lyueth, & as thy soule lyueth, I will not leane the. And he arose, & folowed her. Gehezi went before them, & layed the staffe vpo f face of the chyld. But there was newe voyce no? any feling: wherfoze he wote agayn to mete him and tolde hym, saying: f chyld is not aualed.

And when Elisa was come into the house, beholde, the chyld was dead, and layed vpon his bed. He went in therfoze, and put the dooze to the lad and hym, and prayed vnto the Loyde

* And went by, and laye vpon the lad, and put his mouth on his mouth, and his eyes vpon his eyes, and his handes vpon his handes, and whil he so laye vpon the chyld, the flesh of the chyld warmed warme. And he went agayne, & walked ones by and downe in the house, and then wot by and layed hym selfe vpon hym agayne. And then the chyld gasped seuen tymes, and opened his eyes. And he called Gehezi, and sayde: Call for this Sunamite. So he called her, whiche when she was come in vnto hym, he sayde vnto her: * Take thy sonne. Therfoze she went in, and fell at his fete, and bowed her selfe to the ground, and toke vp her sonne, and went out. *
Elisa came agayne to Gilgal, and there was a dearth in the lande, and the chyldren of the prophetes dwelt with hym. And he sayde vnto his seruante: Set a greete potte on the fyre, and make pottage for the chyldren of the prophetes and one went oute into the felde, to gather her-bes, and founde (as it were) a wyldc vigne, and gathered therof wyldc Colouintidas bys lay full, and came and tyed them into the potte of pottage: for they knewe it not. So they poured oute for the men to eate. And it forruned, that whil they tasted of the pottage, they cryed oute, and sayd: O thou man of God, there is dearth in the pot: and they coude not eate throof. But he sayde: byngre me. And he cast it into the pot, and sayde: Fyll for the people, that they maye eate, and there was nomore harme in the potte.

There came a man from Baal Salise, and brought the man of God bread of the fyrst fru-tes, even t wety lones of barley, and newe corne, which was yet in his bagges, and sayde: Gyue vnto the people, that they maye eate. And bys mynistre answered: why shall I set this before an hundred men? he sayd agayne: gyue it vnto the people f they maye eate. For thus sayeth the Lorde: they shal eate, and there shal be left ouer
And so he byd set it before them, & they did eate, and left ouer accordyng to the word of f Loyd.

Chap. v. Chapter.

Naaman the Syrian is healed of bys leprosie. Gehezi is dysceyned bys leprosie, because he toke money, and rayment of Naaman.

Naaman capayne of the host of the kyng of Siria, was a greete man, and honourable in the syght of his master: because that by him the Loyde had gyuen healthe vnto Siria. he also was a myghty m^d and experte in warre, but he was a lepre. And the Sirians had gone oute by companyes, and had brought out of the countrey of Israel a lytic mayde, and she was with Naamans wyfe.
And she said vnto her lady: I wolde to God my lord were with the prophete that is in Samaria: for he wolde deliuer him of his leprosie. And he went in, and tolde his lord, saying: thus and thus sayde the mayde that is of the lande of Israel. And the kyng of Siria sayde: Come, and entre in, and I will sende a letter vnto the kyng of Israel: And he came, and toke with hym ten talentes of syuer, and syre thousande pecers of golde, and ten chaunge of raymetes: & brought the letter to the kyng of Israel containing this tenour: Another whyle this letter is come vnto the beholde, I haue therewith sent Naaman my seruant to the, that thou mayest see him of his leprosie. And it fortuned, that when the kyng of Israel had red the letter, he est his clothes, and layd: I am I God, that shoulde slaye and make almyer? For he doeth sende to me, that I shoulde deliuer a man from his leprosie: Wherfore consydre (I praye you) and se how he seareth a quarrell agaynst me. Which when Elisa the man of God had hearde howe that the kyng of Israel had sent his clothes, he sent vnto the kyng saying: wherfore hast thou sente thy clothes? Let hym come now to me, and he shall knowe, that there is a Prophet in Israel.

And so Naaman came with his boyes, and with his charettes, and stode at the doore of the house of Elisa. And Elisa sent a messenger vnto him, saying: go & wash thee in Jordan. vii. tymes and thy flesh shal come agayne to the, and thou shalt be cleane. But Naaman was wroth and went awaye, & sayd: Beholde, I thought w my selfe: he wolde surely come out, & stand, & call on the name of Lord his God, and put his hande on the place, that he myght heale the leprosie. Are not Abana & parphar, ryuers of Damascus better then all the waters of Israel? If I wash me also in them, shall I not be cleane? And so he turned hym, and departed wth displeasure. And his seruantes came, and communed with hym, and sayde: Rather ys the Prophet had bid den the do some great thyng, oughtest thou not to haue done it? howe moche rather then, when he sayth to the: wash, and be cleane? Then went he downe, and washed hym selfe seven tymes in Jordan, accordyng to the saying of the man of God: and his flesh chaunged, lyke vnto the flesh of a lytle chyld, & he was cleane.

And he turned agayne to the man of God, he and all his company, and stode before him & sayd: Beholde, I know now, that there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israel. Now therefore take a blessing of thy seruant. But he sayde: as surely as the Lord lyueth (before whom I stand) I wyl receyue none. And when the other woulde haue constrained hym to receyue it, he wold not. And Naaman sayd: (euen as thou sayst: but I desire it.) Shall there not be gyuen to thy seruant as moche of this earthe as two mules may beare? For thy seruant wyl henceforth offer neyther burnt sacrifice nor offering vnto any other god save vnto Lord. But herein the Lord be merciful vnto thy seruant, & when my master goeth into the house of Rimmon, and baryth woth hym there, and leaneeth on myne hand, and I also woth hym in the house of Rimmon. (When I do worship, I saye:) in the house of Rimmon the Lord be merciful vnto thy seruant because of this thing. Vnto whom he sayd: go in peace. And whyle he was departed from hym as it were a forlonge of grounde, Gehazi the seruante of Elisa the man of God sayd: beholde, my master hath spared Naaman this Syrian, & he wolde not receyue of his hande those thynges, that he offred. As surely as the Lord lyueth, I wil run after hym, and take some what of hym. And so Gehazi folowed Naaman. And when Naaman sawe hym running after hym, he light downe from the charette to mete hym, and sayde: * is all well? he answered: It is wel. Beholde, my master hath sent me, saying: see, there be come to me, euen now from mounte Ephraim two young men of the chyldrene of the Prophetes: gyue them I praye the, one talent of silver, and two chaunge of garmentes. And Naama sayd with a good wyl. Take two talentes: & he compelled him to bynde two talentes of silver in two bagges, & two chaunge of garmentes, & layd them vpon two of his seruantes, to beare them before hym. And when he came into a secreete place, he toke the syllver & the bagges, & bestowed it in the house, & the me were let go: & they departed.

But he went in, and stode before his master. And Elisa sayd vnto hym: whence comest thou Gehazi? he sayd: thy seruant went no whyle. But he said vnto him: wyl not myne brett to the when the man returned agayne from his charette to mete the? Is it now a tyme to receyue moneye, to receyue garmentes, olyue trees, vyneyardes, sheepe and oxen, men seruantes, and mayde seruantes? The leprosie therefore of Naaman shall cleane vnto the, and thy seed for euer. * And he went out from his presence a lepre whyle as snowe.

¶ The vi. Chapter.

Calistus maketh hym to dysmyne about the water. The Syrians beseege Israel, so that two women agree together to care theryn olme chyldren.

The chyldren of the prophetes said vnto Elisa: Beholde, & place where we dwell with the is to lytle for vs. We wil therefore goe vnto Jordan, & take there euery man a beeme, & buyde vs a place to dwell in. And he answered: go. And one said: be cōtente (I praye the) & com w thy seruantes. And he answered: I wil come, and so be wyl to them. And whyle they came to Jordan they cut downe wood. But it fortuned, that as one was felling downe of a tree, the axe head fell into the water. And he cryed and sayd: alas master, it was lent me. And the man of God said: wherfel it? And he shewed hym the place. And he cut downe a byche, and cast it in thither, and immediatlye the yron dyd swym. Therefore sayde he: take it vp. And he stretched out his hand, & toke it vp.

But the kyng of Siria warred agaynst Israel and toke captiue his seruantes, and sayd: In ydole secreete place shal be my remayning. And the man of God sent vnto the kyng of Israel, saying: Beware that thou go not ouer to such a place, for there the Syrians are lurking. Therefore the kyng of Israel sent to the place which the man of God told him, and warned hym of, and saved hym selfe from it, not ones, nor twyse.

And the hert of the kyng of Siria was troubled for this thing, & he called for his seruantes and sayd vnto them: wyl ye not shew me which of our men (remayneth) to the kyng of Israel? And one of his seruantes sayde: none my Lord dyspyng, but Elisa the prophet that is in Israel tell the

tellect the kyng of Israel: yea, euen the wodes þ thou speakest in thy nyght chibbe. he sayde go, and tpye where he is. þ I may send and fet him. And one told him, sayng: beholde, he is in Bethan. Therfore sente he thither hoxys, and charettes, and a myghty hooste. And they came by nyght, and compassed the ctye about.

D And whē þ seruante of the mā of God arose by early to go out, beholde, there was an hoost roide about the towne with hoxys & charettes.
And his seruante sayde vnto hym: Alas master what shall we do? he answered: feare not, for they þ be with vs are mo the they þ be with the.
And Elisa prayed, and sayd: Lord (I beseech the) open his eyes, þ he may se. And the Lord opened the eyes of the pongeman. And beholde the moostapne was ful of hoxys & charettes of fyre round about Elisa. And whē they came downe to hym, Elisa prayed vnto the Lord, and sayde: Smyte this people I praye the, with * blynde-nesse. And he smote them with blyndnesse, accor-dyng to the desyre of Elisa. And Elisa sayd vnto them: this is not the way, neyther is this the towne: folowe me, and I wyl byynge you to the mā whē ye seke. But he led them to Samaria.

E And it fortuned, that when they were come to Samaria, Elisa sayd: Lord, open theye eyes that they may se. And the Lord opened theye eyes, and they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddell of Samaria. And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto Elisa whē he sawe them: Wyfa ther, hal I smyte them: And he answered: thou halt not smyte the: But smyte them that thou hast taken with thynne owne swearde, and wyth thynne owne bowe. But rather set byed and water before them, that they maye eate and drynke and go to their master. And he prepared a great refectiō for them. And when they had eate and dronken, he sent them away: and they went to theye master. And so the souldyers of Syria came nomore into the lande of Israel.

F After this it chaunced, that Benhadad kyng of Siria gathered all his hoost, and went vp, & besyged Samaria. But there was a greate deth in Samaria: and beholde, they besyged it vntyll an asses head (was solde) for foure scoze syluer pence, and the fourth parte of a cab of doues dunge, for fyue sylles. And as the kyng of Israel was goyng vpon the wall, there cryed a woman vnto him, sayng: helpe, mye Lord. hying. he sayde: yf the Lord do not succour the, wherwith can I helpe the: with the barne or w-the vynepyll? And the kyng sayde vnto her: what wilt thou? She answered: ponder womā sayd vnto me: byng thy son, that we maye eate hym to day, and we wyl eate myne to morowe.

G And so we dressed my sonne, and byd eate hym.
And I sayd to her this order day: byng thy son that we maye eate him, and she hath byd her son.
And it came to passe, that when the kyng herde the wordes of the woman, he rent his clothes, & went vp on the wall. And the people looked, and beholde, he had sackcloth vnder, vpon his fleshe.
Then he sayde: * God do so and so to me, yf the head of Elisa the sone of Sappat shall stand on hym this daye. But Elisa sat, in the bouir, and the elders sat by hym, and the kyng sent a man before hym: But yee the messeng. came to him he sayd to the elders: haue ye not i. we do so that the sone of this mā murthered hath sent to take away myne head: be circumspect when the messenger cometh, and that the doze, and hold hym at the doze: is not the sound of his masters fecte behynde hym: Whyle he yet talked with them: beholde, the messenger came downe vnto hym, and sayd: beholde, this euyl is of the Lord, and what moze shall I loke for of the Lord?

The. vii. Chapter.

Elisa propheseth pntecost. It is vnto the end of the world. The Syrians come away, and have no man following them. The lady that would not believe the word of Elisa to smite to death.

H When Elisa sayd: heare ye the woide of the Lord: thus sayth þ Lord: * to mo-rowe this tyme hal a bulshet of fyne floure be sold for a sicke, & two busshels of barley for a sicke in þ gate of Samaria.
The a certayne lord (on whose hande the king learned) answered þ mā of God, & sayde: beholde, yf þ Lord wold make windowes in heul might this sayng come to passe: he sayd: beholde, thou halt se it w thynne eyes, but shalt not eat therof.

And there were foure leperous men at the entryng in of the gate. And they sayde one to an other: why sht we here vntyll we dye? yf we say we wyl enter into the citty: beholde, the deth is in the ctye, & we shal dye therin. And yf we sht styll here, we dye also. Nowe therfore come, & let vs fall vpon the hooste of the Syrians: yf they saue our lyues we shal lyue: yf they kyll vs, the are we dreed. And so they arose in the nyght, to go to the hoost of the Syrians. And when they were come to the vtmoste parte of the hooste of Siria, beholde, there was noman there.

I For the Lord had made the hooste of the Si-rians: to heare a noyse of charettes, and a noyse of hoxys, & the noyse of a great host. In so moch that they sayd one to an other: lo, þ kyng of Israel hath byred agaynst vs þ kynges of the He-thites, & the kynges of the Egyptians to come vpon vs. Wherfore they arose, & fled in the nyght and left theye ttes, theye hoxys & theye asses, & the fiede which they had pyched, eue as it was and fled for theye lyues. And whē these lepers came to the edge of the hooste, they went into a tent, and byd eate and drynke, and carped the syluer and golde, and raymente, and went and byd it, came agayne, and entered into an other tent, and carped thence also, and went & byd it.

Then sayd one to an other: We do not well this day, forasmoch as it is a day to byng good eydings, & we holde our peace. yf we tary tyll the day light, som mischefe wyl come vpon vs.
Nowe therfore come, that we may go, and tri þ kynges boutholde. And so they came, and called vnto the porters of the ctye, and told them, say-ng: we came to the pauplyons of the Syrians: and se, there was noman there, neyther voyce of man, but hoxys and asses tyed: and the tentes were euen as they were wont to be.

And so the man called vnto the porters, and they told the kynges house within. And þe king aroſe in the nyght, and ſayd vnto his ſeruantes: I wyll ſewe you now, what the Syrians haue done vnto vs. They knowe þe be hungrye, & therfore are they gone out of the pemiſſions, to byde them ſelues in the ſelde, ſayinge: whē they come out of the ctye, we ſhal catche the alme, & get into the citie. And one of his ſeruantes answered, and ſayde: Let men take (I praye you) ſyre of the hoſtes that remaine, and are leſte in the multitude. Beholde, they are euen as all the multitude of Iſrael that are leſte in the ctye: be holde (I ſaye) they are euen as the multitude of the Iſraelites that are conſumed, and we wyll ſende, and ſe. They toke therfore the hoſtes of two charrettes, and the kyng ſent after the hoſte of the Syrians, ſayinge: goo, and ſe. And they went after them euen vnto Jorſan, and loe, all þe waye was full of clothes and veſſels which the Syrians had caſt from them in theyr haſt.

D And the meſſengers returned, and told þe king. And the people wente out & ſpoiled the ſettes of the Syrians. And ſo it came to paſſe, þe a buſhell of ſyne flour was ſolde for a ſicle, and two buſhells of barley for a ſicle: according to þe word of the Lorde. And the kyng appoynted þe Lorde (on whoſe hand he leued) to be at þe gate. And þe people trode vpon him in the gate, & he dyed: according to the word of the man of God, which he ſayd: when the kyng came downe to hym. And ſo came the thing to paſſe, þe the ma of God had ſpoken to the kyng, ſayinge: two buſhells of barley for a ſicle: and a buſhell of ſyne flour for another. And he ſayde: ſhalbe ſomowhe this tyme in the gate of Damaria. And here vnto that lord answered þe man of God, and ſayde: Yea, and yf the Lorde made wyndowes in heauen, myghte it come to paſſe: And he ſayde, Beholde, thou ſhalte ſe it with thine eyes, and ſhalt not eaſe thy ſelf. And euen ſo chaunced it vnto hym: for the people trode vpon him in the gate: and he dyed.

¶ The viii. Chapter.

Elisa propheseth vnto the ſunamite the death of ſeven yere. After the death of Benhadad raygneth Aſa in Siria. Jehoſaphat the ſonne of Jehoſaphat raygneth in Iuda. Edom ſhall be ſubdued from Iuda. Jehoſaphat ſuccedeth Jehoſaphat.

Ihen ſpake * Elisa vnto the woman, (whoſe ſonne he had reſtozed to lyfe agayne) ſaying: vp, & go, thou, & thine houſe, & ſojourne whereſoeuer þe canſt, for the Lorde hath called for a death, and þe ſame ſhall come vpon the lande ſeven yeres. And the woman aroſe, and dyd after the ſayinge of the man of God, and wēt both ſhe and her houſhold and ſojournd in the lande of the Philiftines ſeven yere. And at the ſeven yeres ende, it fortuned, that the woman came agayne out of þe land of the Philiftines, and went out to cal vpon the kyng for her houſe & for her lande. And the kyng talked with Geſezi the ſeruante of þe ma of God ſayinge: tel me (I praye þe) al the great deedes, that Elisa hath done. He tolde the kyng, how he had reſtozed a dead man to lyfe agayne: but in þe meane tyme the woman (whoſe chyld he had rayſed vp agayne) cryed to þe kyng for her houſe and for her lande. And Geſezi ſayde: My lord

O kyng, this is the woman, and this is her ſonne whom Elisa rayſed vp agayne. And when the kyng aſked the woman, ſhe told him. And ſo the kyng deliuered her a chamberlayne ſayinge: reſtore thou vnto her, all that are hers: and all the frutes of the ſilde ſyn the daye that ſhe leſt the lande, vntill this tyme.

And * Elisa came to Damasco, and Benhadad the kyng of Siria was ſyche. And one told hym, ſayinge: The ma of God is com hither. And the kyng ſayd vnto Hazael: * take a preſent in thine hande, and go mete the man of God, þe thou maſteſt aſke the Lorde by hym, whether I ſhal reſcouer of this diſeaſe. And ſo Hazael went to mete hym, and toke the preſent with hym, and of euery good thinge of Damasco, euē as moche as fortye camelles coulde beare, and came and preſented hym ſelfe befoze hym, and ſayd: Thy ſonne Benhadad kyng of Siria hath ſent me to the, ſayinge: ſhalt I reſcouer of this diſeaſe?

And Elisa ſayde to hym: goo, and ſaye vnto hym: thou ſhalt reſcouer, howbeit, the Lorde hath ſhewed me, that he ſhall ſurelye dye. And he lohed aſyde, and was aſhamed, and the man of God wepte. And Hazael ſayde: why weperſt my lord? he answered: for I knowe the euill thynge that thou ſhalte do vnto the chyldren of Iſrael: for theyr ſtronger ctyes, ſhalt thou ſet on fyre, and theyr ponge men ſhalt thou ſlaye with the ſwerde, and ſhalt daſſe oute the bzaynes of theyr ſuckynge chyldren, and all to ſcare theyr women with chyldre.

But Hazael ſayd what is thy ſeruſaſit a dog that I ſhoulde do this great thynge? And Elisa answered: þe Lorde hath ſerued me, þe thou ſhalt be kyng of Siria. And ſo he departed fro Elisa and came to his maſter, whyche ſayde to hym: What ſayde Elisa to the? he answered, he tolde me that thou ſhouldeſt reſcouer. And on the morowe it fortuned, that he tooke a thynke clothe, and dypte it in water, and ſprede it on his face, and he dyed: and Hazael raygned in þe ſilde.

The ſyſth yere of Jehoſaphat the ſonne of Ahab kyng of Iſrael, Jehoſaphat being alſo kyng of Iuda, Jehoſaphat the ſon of Jehoſaphat kyng of Iuda began to raygne. xxxii. yere olde was he, when he became to raygne: and he raygned cyght yere in Jeruſalem. And he walked in the wayes of the kynges of Iſrael, as they þe were of the houſe of Ahab, for the daughter of Ahab was his wyfe, and he dyd euill in the ſyghte of the Lorde. And the Lorde woulde not beſtrope Iuda: and that bycauſe of Dauid his ſeruante: * as he promiſed him to gyne him alway a light amonge his chyldren.

* In thoſe dayes Edd dyd wyckedly when he was vnder þe hand of Iuda. For they made the a kyng of their owne. And Jehoſaphat wēt to ſaſt, he & al his charrettes with hym. And he aroſe by nyght, and ſmote the Edomites whyche eſpaſed him in with the captaynes of his charrettes, and the people fled into theyr tentes. But Edd rebelled, ſo that he wolde not be vnder the hand of Iuda vnto this daye. And then Lobnab began to be diſobedient euen that ſame tyme.

The reſte

The rest of the wordes that concerne Joiam all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in booke of the chronicles of the kynges of Judah And Jo ram rested with his fathers, and was buried be syde his fathers in the cytye of Damb. And A haziab his sonne raygned in his stede. In the
xii. yere of Joia the son of Ahab kyng of Isreal dyd Ahaziab the son of Jehoram kyng of Ju dah begyn to raigne. Two & therty yere old was Ahaziab when he began to raigne, and he ray gned one yere in Jerusalem, & his mothers name Jehaliab the daughter of Omri kyng of Is rael. But he walked in the waye of the house of Ahab, and dyd euyl in the sight of the Lord, eue as dyd the house of Ahab. For he was the sonne in lawe of the house of Ahab.

And he went with Joiam the sonne of Ahab to war agaynst hazael kyng of Siria in Ra moth Gilead, & the Siria's wounded Joia. And king Joia went backe agayne to be healed in Jerusalem of his woundes which Siria's had gree ued him at Ramoth wher he fought agaynst hazael kyng of Siria. And Ahaziab the son of Jehoram kyng of Judah went downe to se Joiam the son of Ahab in Jerusalem, because he was speke there.

The ix. Chapter.

Jehu is made kyng of Isreal, and hilleth Jehoram the kyng thereof, and Ahaziab, which was called Je hozabab & the kyng of Judah also, & causeth Jezabel to be cast downe out of a window, & the dogges eat her.

And Elisa the prophet called one of his children of the prophetes, and sayd vnto him: Gryde vnto thy loynes and take this boxe of oyle in thy hande, & get the to Ramoth in Gilead. And wher thou comest thither, loke where is Jehu son of Jehoshaphat, the sone of Nimshi, & go to hym, & make hym arise up from amonge his brethren, and carry hym to a secreete chabze. Then take the boxe of oyle, and poure it on his hebd, and saye: thus sayeth the Lord: I haue annointed the to be kyng ouer Isreal. And then open the boxe, & swe without any tarryng. And so the seruante of the prophet gat hym to Ramoth Gilead, and when he came in, beholde, the captaynes of the hooste were syttinge togyther. And he sayd: I haue an errande to the, O captayne. And Jehu sayd: vnto which of all vs he sayd: to the, O captayne. And he arose, and wet into the house.

And he poured the oyle on his hebd, and sayd vnto hym: thus sayeth the Lord God of Isreal:
I haue annointed the to be kyng ouer the peo ple of the Lande, euen ouer Isreal. Thou shalt luite the house of Ahab thy master, that I may auenge the blood of my seruantes the prophetes, and the blood of all the seruantes of the Lande of the house of Jezabel, for the whoole house of Ahab shall be destroyed: and I will destroy fro Ahab, euen hym & his whorish water agaynst the wall, and hym that is pyloned and forsaken in Isreal: and I will make the house of Ahab lyke the house of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, & lyke the house of Baasa the sone of Abia. And as for Jezabel, the dogges shall eat her in the stree te of Jerusalem, and there shall be none to burye her.
And he opened the boxe, and shed.

Jehu came out to the seruantes of his lord and one sayd vnto hym: is all well? Wherfore camest thou mad fello to the? And he sayd vnto them: ye know what manner of man it is, & what his communicacyon is. They sayd vnto hym a gayne: it is not so, tell vs he sayd: thus & thus saye he to me, saying: Thus sayeth the Lord:
I haue annointed the to be kyng ouer Isreal.
Then they helpe the bozologre halter, & toke euery man his garment, and put it vnder hym, and blew with trompettes, saying: Jehu is kyng. And so Jehu the sonne of Jehoshaphat the sonne of Nimshi conspyred agaynst Joiam. Jo iam kept Ramoth Gilead, he and all Isreal by cause of hazael kyng of Siria: and kyng Jo iam returned to be healed in Jerusalem of the woun des which the Siria's had greeued hym, wher he fought with hazael kyng of Siria.

And Jehu sayd: yf it be your myndes, then let a noman departe & escape out of the cytye, to go tel in Jerusalem. So Jehu gat vp into a charet, & went to Jerusalem where Joiam laye, and Aha ziab kyng of Judah was come downe thither to se Joiam. And the watchman that stode in the towre in Jerusalem, spied the companye of Je hu as he came, and sayd: I se a companye. And Jehozab sayd: take a horseman and sende to mete them, & he may aske whether it be peace. And so there wet one on horsebacke to mete him, & sayd thus sayeth the kyng: is it peace? and Jehu sayd: what hast thou to do w peace? turne the behinde me. And the watchman tolde, saying: the mes senger came to them, but he cometh not agayne.

Then he sent oute an other on horsebacke, which came to them and sayd: thus saith the kyng is it peace? Jehu answered: what hast thou to do with peace? turne the behinde me. And the watch man tolde, saying: he came to them also and com meth not agayne, & the dyspyng in lyke the dys pyng of Jehu the son of Nimshi: for he dyspyrth charet as he were mad. And Jehozab sayd: make ready, and the charet was made ready. And Je hoshaphat kyng of Isreal & Ahaziab kyng of Ju dah wet out epyther of them in his charet agaynst Jehu, & met him in the foze longe of Naboth the Jerusalemite. And it fortuned, that wher Jehozab lawe Jehu: he sayd: is it peace? Jehu: he answered.
What peace shalbe there be, so longe as the whoredomes of thy mother Jezabel, & her witch craftes are so greater. And Jehozab turned by handes, and fled, and sayd to Ahaziab: there is fallshede, O Ahaziab. And Jehu toke a bowe in his handes, and smote Jehozab betwene the ar mes, and the arrowe went thorow his hebd. And he fel downe flat in his charet. Then sayd Jehu to Gydhaz a captayne: take hym, and cast hym in the plot of grounde of Naboth the Jerusalemite for I remember that when I and thou rode to gyther in a charet after Ahab his father, & Lord laid his hebd vpon hym. I haue sene yesterday the blood of Naboth, & the blood of his sones, sayeth the Lord: and I will quyte it the in this grounde, sayeth the Lord: Now therefore take hym & cast him in the plot of the ground, ac cordinge to the wordes of the Lord. But when Ahaziab

Jehoiada the kyng of Juda saw this, he fled by the way of the garden house. And Jehu followed after hym, and sayd: Smyte hym also in the charet: or (and they smote hym) in his charet at the going up to Gur by Jibleam, and he fled to Hagibdo and there dyed. And his seruantes caried hym in a charet to Jerusalem, and buried hym there in his sepulchre with his fathers in the cytie of David: And in the xi. yere of Joiaz son of Jhab, begat Jehoiada to raigne ouer Juda. And whē Jehu was come to Jezrael, Jezabel herde of it, and starched her face, & tyed her heed, and looked out at a wyndowe. And as Jehu entred at the gate, she sayde: had ymer peace which shewe his master: And he lyft up his eyes to the wyndow and sayde: who is of my syde, who? And there looked out to hym two of his chambrelaynes, & he sayd: throwe her downe. So they threw her downe, & her blood dashed towarde the wall, & toward the houses, & he rode her under fore.

And when he was come in, he dyd eat & drinke and sayd: go & visite I praye you yonder cursed creature, & bury her: for she is a kynges daughter. And so whē they cam to bury her, they found no more of her then the skull & the feet: & the palmes of her handes. Wherefore they came agayn and tolde hym. And he sayd: this is the word of the Lord, which he spake by the hand of his seruante Elia the Tsebiter, sayinge: in the felde of Jezrael shal the dogges eate the fleshe of Jezabel. And so the carkas of Jezabel was cut as dunge vpon the earth in the felde of Jezrael: so that no man myght saye: This was Jezabel.

Chap. i. Chapter

Jehu causeth the xxx. sonnes of Abah to be slayne, & after that, ch. of his brethren. He spureth a meane also to hyl: all the prechers of Baal. After his death, his sonne ragnerh in his bedde.

Abah had xxx. sonnes in Samaria.

And Jehu wrot letters, and sent to Samaria vnto the rulers of Jezrael, to the elders, and to them that brought up Abahs child, saying: Now when this letter cometh to you, ye that haue with you your masters sonnes, ye haue to you borde charettes and horses, & a stronge cytye haue ye also, and harnesse, loke whiche of your masters sonnes is best & mooste mete, & let hym on his fathers seate, and fyght for your lordes house. But they were exceedingly afrayed, and sayd: se, two kynges were not able to stande before hym, how shall we then be able to stande?

And he that was gouernour of Abahs house, & he that ruled the cyrie, the elders also, and the tounes sent to Jehu, saying: we ar thy seruantes and wyl do all that thou shalt byd vs: we wyl make no man kyng: therefore do thou what semeth good in thine eyes. Thā he wrote another letter to them, saying: ye be myne, & wyl herken vnto my voyce, then take the heed of the men that are your masters sonnes, and come to me to Jezrael by tomoowe this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were xxx. persons, and they were with the great men of the cyrie, which brought them vp, and whē the lettere came to them: they toke the kynges children, & slew them, euen xxx.

persones, and layed theyr herdes in baskets, & sent them vnto hym to Jezrael: And there came a messenger and tolde hym, sayinge: they haue brought the heed of the kynges ioncs. And he sayd: let them lay them on two heapes in the entrynge in of the gate, vntill the morninge.

And when it was day he went out, and stode & sayd to all the folke: ye be ryghteous. Beholde I haue agaynst my master, & slue hym. But who slue al theser? Learne here that three shal fall vnto the earth nothyng of the word of the Lord whiche he spake concerning the house of Abah, for the Lord hath brought to passe the thynges y he spake by the hande of his seruante Elia. And so Jehu slue al that remayned of the house of Abah in Jezrael, & al that were great with hym, & his kynskolles & priestes, so y he let nothing of hym remayne. And he arose, & departed & cam to Samaria. And when Jehu was in the waye to the house where the prechers dyd were they: there, he met with the brethren of Jehoiada kyng of Juda, & sayd: what are ye? They answered: the brethren of Jehoiada are we: & go downe to salute the children of the kyng & the quene. And he sayd: take them alwaye. Whome when they had taken them alwaye, they slew them at the well wherche was besyde the house where they were are chosen, euen xlii. men, neyther left he any of them.

And when he was departed thence, he met with Jehonadab the son of Rechab coming agaynst him. And he blessed hym, & sayd to hym: is thine heart ryght, as my herte is true with thine? And Jehonadab answered: ye y it is: or (if it be, sayd he) then gyue me thine hande. And when he had gyuen hym his hande, he toke him vp to him in the charet, & sayde: comewith me, & se the zeale that I haue for the Lord: & so they made him ryde in his charet. And whē he cam to Samaria, he slue al that remayned vnto Abah in Samaria, tyll he had wypte him out, accordinge to the saying of the Lord which he spake to Elia. And Jehu gathered al the people together, & sayd vnto them: Abah serued Baal a lytle, but Jehu shal serue hym moze. Now therefore cal vnto me al the prophetes of Baal, all suche as serue hym, & all his priestes, & let none be lackig. For I haue a great sacrifice to do to Baal, & therefore whosoener is mysted, he shall not lyue. But Jehu dyd it for a subtiltie, to chintent y he myght destroye the seruantes of Baal. And Jehu sayd: proclatme an holy conuocation for Baal, & Jehu sent vnto al Israel. And al the seruantes of Baal came, that there was not a man left behind that came not. And they cam into the house of Baal, & the house of Baal was full from one ende to an other.

And he sayd vnto hym that was the keeper of the vestrye: bringe forth garments for all the seruantes of Baal. And he brought them out garments. And when Jehu wente with Jehonadab the son of Rechab into the house of Baal he sayde vnto the seruantes of Baal: seache, & loke, that there be here with you, none of the seruantes of the Lord, but the seruantes of Baal onely. And when they wente in to offere sacrifice and burnt offeringe, Jehu appointed cryers 1000 men without, and sayde: If any of the men whos I haue brought vnder your handes, escape he that letteth go, shall dye for hym.

¶ And it fortuned, y^e alsoone as he had made an ende of offering the burnt sacrifice, Jehu sayde to the men of warre, and to the captaynes: go in and slepe the, let none come out. And they smote them with the edge of the swerde. And the men of war and the captaynes cast them out, & went vnto the cite of the temple of Baal, & set the ymages out of the temple of Baal, & burnt them. And they brake y^e ymage of Baal, & brake y^e house of Baal, & made a blast house of it vnto this daye. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But fro the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel to synne, Jehu departed not neither fro folowynge of them, ^{¶ (neither fro the)}

the golde calves that were in Bethel and in Dan. And the Lord sayde vnto Jehu: because thou hast done ryght well in bypnyng to passe the thinge that is right in myne eyes, and hast done vnto the house of Ahab accordynge to all thynges that are in myne heart, therefore shall the childrien vnto the fourth generation syt on the seate of Israel. But Jehu cared not for this, to walk in the lawe of the Lord God of Israel with all his heart, for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam, which made Israel to synne.

¶ In those dayes the Lord began to cut Israel short: and Hazael smote the in all the coostes of Israel, fro Jordan eastwarde, euen all y^e land of Gilead, the Gadites, y^e Rubenites, and the y^e were of Manasses, from Tabor vnto the ryuer Arnon: euen Gilead and Balan. The rest of the wordes that concerne Jehu, and al that he dyd, and all his power, are they not wyrtten in the booke of Chronicles of y^e kynges of Israel? And Jehu slepte with his fathers, and they buried hym in Samaria, and Jehoahaz his sonne raygned in his stede. And the tyme that Jehu raygned vpon Israel in Samaria is. xxviii. yeres.

¶ The. xi. Chapter.

^{¶ Athalia puttech to death all the kynges sonnes, excepte Joas the sonne of Jehoahaz, whiche is byddon and after her death is made kyng.}

¶ And Athalia y^e mother of Ahaziah wher the law y^e her son was deed she arose, and destroyed all the kynges seed. But Jehosaba the daughter of king Joaz, & sister to Ahaziah toke Joaz y^e son of Ahaziah, & scale hym fro among y^e kynges sonnes y^e were slayne, & his nourice wth him, out of a slepyng chamber, and had hym from Athalia y^e he was not slayne. And he was wth her dyd in the house of the Lord for yere. And Athalia dyd raygne ouer the lande.

¶ And the. vii. yere Jehoiada sent and fet the rulers ouer the hundredes, & the captaynes & the of the garde, & toke the to hym into the house of the Lord, & made a bonde wth them, & toke an oth of them in the house of y^e Lord, & thewed them y^e kynges sonne. And he commaunded them, saying this is it y^e ye must doo: one thyrde parte of you, whose dutye is to come on the Sabbath daye, shall kepe the watche of y^e kynges house: And an other thyrde parte shall kepe the gate of Sur: & an other thyrde parte shall kepe the gate whiche is behynde them of the garde: and so shal ye kepe the watch of the house of Wellah, and two partes of you, that is all that go oute on the Sabbath daye shall kepe the watche of the house of the Lord aboute the kynges, and ye shal compass the kyng round about, and every man shal haue his weapon in his hande, and whosoener cometh within the ranges, let hym be slayne. And se y^e ye be with the kyng, as he goeth out and in.

¶ And the captaynes ouer the hundredes dyd accordynge to all thynges y^e * Jehoiada the priest commaunded, & they toke every man his me that were to come in on the Sabbath daye wth them y^e should go out on y^e Sabbath, and came to Jehoiada the priest. And to the captaynes ouer hundredes dyd the priest gyue kynges Danas speeres and shylde that were in the temple. And they of the garde stode, and every man had his weapon in his hande rounde aboute the kyng, from the ryght corner of the temple to the lette, alonge by the alter and the temple. And he brought out the kynges sonne, and put the crowne vpon him and deliuered hym * the wytnesse, and made hym kyng, and annoynted him. And they clapt they handes, and sayde: God loue the kyng.

* And when Athalia herde the noyse of the ringinge of the people, she came to y^e people into the temple of the Lord. And wher she looked, beholde, the kyng stode by a pylle, as the maner was, & the syngers & the trogetters by the kyng, and al the people of the lande reioysed, and blew wth trumpettes. And Athalia rent her clothes, and cryed treasch, treason. But Jehoiada y^e priest commaunded the captaynes of the hundredes that had the rule of y^e host, and sayd vnto the: haue her out wth out y^e temple, y^e she may be within the ranges, and yf any folow her, kyll him with the swerde: for y^e priest had sayd: she may not be slayne in y^e house of the Lord. And they layed handes on her tyl she came into the way, by the which the horses went into the kynges palace, & there was she slayne.

* And Jehoiada made a bonde betwene the Lord & the kyng, and the people, y^e they shoulde be the Lordes people: & also betwene the kyng and the people. And all y^e people of the land went into the house of Baal, and destroyed it, his high alters also, & his ymages brake they downe in shreke, and slue Zachan y^e priest of Baal before the altiers. And the priest set a watch ouer the house of the Lord: and toke the rulers ouer hundredes, the captaynes, & them of the garde, and al the people of the land. And they brought y^e kyng fro the house of the Lord: & came by the waye of the gate.

the gate of them of the garde to the kynges palace. And he sat hym downe on the seat of kynges. And al the people of the lande reioysed, and the cytie was in quiet. And they slue Zebadiah the swerde belyde the kynges palace. Whene perre olde was Jehoas whē he began to raygne.

Jehoas maner punishment for the repaying of the temple, he is helpe by rule of his seruantes: and Amasiah raygneth in his steede.

And he began to raygne in the seventh perre of Jehu. xi. perre raygned he in Jerusalem, & his mothers name was Zebadiah of Beersaba. And he dyd that whiche was good in the syght of the Lord, as longe as Jehoiada the prest entourned him. But the dilauters were not taken away, for the people offered & burnt incense yett vpon the dilauters. And Jehoas sayd to the prestes: all the siluer of dedicate thinges that be brought to the house of the Lord in curraite money, that is to say: the money that every man is set at, & al the moneye & every man with a wyllynge herte gyuerth & byngreth into the house of the Lord: let the prestes take it to them, every man of hys acquaintance: to repayze the broken places of the house: where soeuer anye decaye is found. And so it came to passe, that vnto the xxiij. perre of kynges Jehoas, the prestes had meded no thyng, that was decayed in the temple. Then kyng Jehoas called for Jehoiada the dyshop, & the prestes, & sayde vnto them: why repayze ye not the broken places of the temple? Now therfore: se that ye receyue nomore money of your acquaintance, excepte ye deliuer it to repayze the temple wythal. And the prestes consented to receyue nomore money of the people: excepte to repayze the decayed places of the temple.

But Jehoiada the prest, toke a chest & bozard an hole in the wyde of it, & set it belyde the altare, on the ryght syde, as every man cometh into the temple of the Lord. And the prestes kepte the vessels, put therein al the money that was brought into the house of the Lord. And it fortuned that whē they sawe there was moche money in the chest, the kynges scribe & the hys prest came vp, and tolde the money that was founde in the house of the Lord, & put it into a bagge. And they gaue the money scaled into the handes of them that executed the worke, and they had the ouersyght of the house of the Lord: & they brought it out to the carpenters & buylders that wrought vpon the house of the Lord: & to masons & brewers of stone. And they brought synbze & freestone, to repayze the decay in the house of the Lord, & to all that wente out to mend the temple: howbeit there was not made for the house of the Lord, bowels of siluer: instruments of musike, basons, troyettes: or any vessels of golde, or vessels of syluer, of the moneye that was brought into the house of the Lord. But they gaue that to the workemen, and repayzed there wyth the house of the Lord. Whereouer, they rehened not wyth the men, into whose handes they deliuered that moneye to be bestowed on workmen: for they dyd theyr busynesse faithfully. howbeit trespasse money and synne money was not brought into the house of the Lord for it was the prestes.

Then came Hazael kyng of Syria vp, and fought agaynst Geth and toke it, & Hazael set hys face to goo vp to Jerusalem. And Jehoas kyng of Juda toke al the hallowed thynges that Jeholaphat, Jehoazam, & Joasabab hys fathers kynges of Juda, had dedicate, and that he hym selfe had dedicated, and all the golde that was founde in the treasures of the house of the Lord: & in the kynges house, & sent it to Hazael kyng of Syria, and so he departed from Jerusalem.

The remnant of the wordes that concerne Jehoas & all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda? And his owne seruantes arose & wrought treason, & slue Jehoas in the house of Hillo, whē he came downe to Hillo. Jozaber the sonne of Seameath: & Jehoabad the son of Zomer his seruantes smote hym, & he dyed. And they buried hym wyth hys fathers in the cytie of David. And Amasiah his sonne raygned in his steede.

¶ The xliij. Chapter.

Jehoas the sonne of Jehoas deliuered into the handes of the Syrians, and dyed. Joas his son raygneth in his steede. Hila dyed.

In the xliij. perre of Joas the sonne of Jehoasabab kyng of Juda, Jehoasabab the sonne of Jehu began to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria. xliij. years. And he wrought that which was euill in the syght of the Lord, & folowed the synnes of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, which made Israel to synne, & departed not therefrom. And the Lord was angry with Israel, & deliuered them into the handes of Hazael kyng of Siria, and into the handes of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael all theyr dayes.

And Jehoasabab besought the Lord, & the Lord heard hym. For he consydered the trouble of Israel, wherewith the kynges of Siria troubled them. And the Lord gaue Israel a deliuerer, so that they went out fro vnder the subiection of the Siria. And the children of Israel dwelt in theyr tentes as before tyme. Nevertheless they departed not from the synnes of the house of Jeroboam which made Israel synne, but walked in them.

And there remayned a groue sylualso in Samaria. Neither dyd he leaue of the people to Jehoasabab, but synne bozemes, ten charrettes, & ten thousand footemen, & for the kyng of Siria destroyed them, & made them lyke chafed dust. The rest of the wordes that concerne Jehoasabab and all that he dyd, and his power, are they not wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel? And Jehoasabab slept with his fathers, & they buried hym in Samaria, and Joas hys sonne raygned in hys steede. In the xxxv. perre of Joas kyng of Juda, began Jehoas the sonne of Jehoasabab to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria syxtene years, and dyd that which is euill in the syght of the Lord, and departed not from al the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, (that made Israel synne) for he walked therein.

The remnant of the wordes that concerne Joas & all that he dyd, & hys power wherewith he fought agaynst Amasiah kyng of Juda: are they not wyrtten in the chronicle booke of the kynges of ges of Israel: And Joas slept with his fathers, & Jeroboam late upon his seat. And Joas was buried in Samaria among the kynges of Israel.

When Elisa was fallen of his synne (whereof he dyed) Joas the kyng of Israel came downe vnto hym, and wepte before hym, and sayd: O my father, my father: the charret of Israel, & the horseman of the same. Elisa said vnto hym: take bowe and arrowes. And he toke vnto hym bowe & arrowes. And he sayde to the kyng of Israel: put thyne hand vpon y bow, & he put his hande vpon it. And Elisa put his handes vpon the kynges handes, and sayde: open a wyndowe eastwarde: & when he had opened it, Elisa sayd: shot, and he shot. And he sayd: the arrowe of helth of the Lord, & the arrowe of helth agaynst Siria: for thou shalt smyte Siria in Aphek, tyll thou haue made an ende of them.

And he sayde: take the arrowes: and he toke them. And he sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: smyte the ground: and he smote thysse, and ceased. And the ma of God was angry w him, and sayd: thou wuldest haue smytte tye of syre tymes: & then thou haddest smytten Siria, tye I haddest made an ende of the: where nowe I walt smyte Siria, but thysse. And also Elisa dyed, & they buried hym, & the souldyers of the Soabites came into the lande the same yere. And it chaunced as some of them were buryng a man, & tpyed the souldiers, they cast the man into the sepulchre of Elisa. And when the man was rolled downe, and touched the bodye of Elisa: he reuyned and stode vpon his fete.

But Hazael vered Israel, all the dayes of Jehoahaz. And the Lorde had mercy on them, & pytyed them, and had respect vnto them because of his appoyntment made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: and wold not destroye them, neither cast he them fro him as yet. So Hazael the kyng of Siria dyed: & Benhadad his son ragyned in his steede. And Jehoas the sonne of Jehoahaz went agayne: & toke out of the hande of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael, the cities whiche he had taken away out of the hnde of Jehoahaz his father in war: for thye tymes dyd Joas beat hym, & restoyed the cyties vnto Israel agayne.

The. xliii. Chapter.

And he dyd that which is good in the syght of the Lord, yet not lyke Dauid his father, but dyd accordyng to all thynges as Joas his father dyd. Seyther were the hyllaulers taken away. But the chyldren of those murderers he slue not, accordyng vnto it that is wyrtten in the boke of the lawe of Moses: wherein the Lorde commaunded, sayinge: let not the fathers dye for the chyldren, nor lette the chyldren be slayne for the father. But let euerye man be put to death for his owne synne. He slue of Edom in the salte valleie ten thousande, and toke the castell on the rocke in the same battel, and called the name of it Joktheel vnto this daye.

Then Amaziah sent messengers to Jehoas the sonne of Jehoahaz, sonne of Jehu kyng of Israel, sayinge: come, let vs se eche other. And Jehoas the kyng of Israel sente to Amaziah kyng of Juda, sayinge: dyd not a thysle that is in Libanon, sende to a cedar tree that is in Libanon, sayinge: gyue thy doughter to my sonne to wyfe: And the wylde beaste that was in Libanon, went and trode downe the thysle. Thou hast smytten Edom, thye herte hath made the proude: Enioye this gloire: and tarpe at home. Why doest thou pyncke to my selfe, that thou shuldest be ouerthrowen, and Juda wyth the?

But Amaziah wolde not heare. And Jehoas kyng of Israel went vp: and he and Amaziah kyng of Juda sawe echer other at Bethzames whiche is in Juda. And Juda was put to y wozle before Israel, and they fled euerye man to theyr tentes. And Jehoas kyng of Israel toke Amaziah kyng of Juda, the sonne of Jehoas the sonne of Ahaziah: at Bethzames, and cam to Jerusalem, & brake downe the wall of Jerusalem fro the gate of Ephraim to the corner gate, foure hundred cubytes. And he toke all the golde and syluer, & all the vessels that were founde in the house of the Lord, and in the treasures of the kynges house, and the chyldren toke he to be his wardes: and returned to Samaria agayne.

The rest of factes of Jehoas whiche he dyd and his power, & howe he fought with Amaziah kyng of Juda, are they not wyrtten in the Chronicle boke of the kynges of Israel: And Jehoas slept with his fathers, and was buried at Samaria, amonge the kynges of Israel: and Jeroboam his sonne ragyned in his steede.

Amaziah the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda, luyed after the death of Jehoas sonne of Jehoahaz kyng of Israel systre yere. And the remnant of the wordes y concerne Amaziah, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Juda: But they conspyred treason agaynst him in Jerusalem, & when he fled to Lachis, they sent after him to Lachis: and slue hym there. And they brought hym on horses, & he was buried at Jerusalem with his fathers, in the cytie of Dauid. And al y people of Juda toke Azaria, which was. xvi. yere olde, & made hym kyng for his father Amaziah. He buylte a claud, & brought it agayn to Juda, after that the kyng was layed to rest with his fathers.

In the. xv. yere of Amaziah the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda, was Jeroboam the sonne of Joas made kyng ouer Israel in Samaria, & ragyned. xlii. yere: & wrought y which was eny in the syght of the Lord. Seyther turned he away hynge of Israel, yea, & made * his sonne to go thorow the fyre, after the abhominacions of the hevythen, to whome the Lorde cast oute before the chylde of Israel. And he offred & burnt incense in ꝑ hyaulcers & on the hylls, and vnder euery the oven that were vnder it: and put it vpon a pauement of stones. And the helye fo: of Sabboth (that they had made in the house) and the kyn ges entrie withoute tourned he to the house of the Lorde, fo: feare of the kynge of Assiria.

The rest of the wordes of concerne Ahas, what

Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda? And Ahas slept with his fathers: and was buryed wth his fathers in the cytie of Dauid: and hezrah his sonne reygned in his stede.

¶ The xvii. Chapter.

Choyra king of Israel is taken. And he and all his realme brought to the Assyrians.

In the xii. yere of Ahas kynge of Iuda beganne Hosea the sonne of Ela, to sayge in Samaria, vpon Israel. ix. yere, and ydd that which was euill in the syght of the Lorde, but not as the kynges of Israel, that were before hym. And Salmana-sar kynge of Assyria came vp agaynst hym, and Hosea became his seruauit, & gaue hym presentes. And the kynge of Assyria founde treason in Hosea: for he had sent messengers co. to the kynge of Egypt, & brought no present vnto the kynge of Assyria, from yere to yere: & therefore the kynge of Assyria toke hym: and put hym in prison.
And when the kynge of Assyria came vp the

* And then the kynge of Aſſiria came vp thowtownt all the lande, and gat by agaynſte Samaria, and beſieged it the yere. In the nyynth yere of Hoſea, the kynge of Aſſiria, toke Samaria, & caried Iſrael awaye vnto Aſſiria, and put the in Gala, in Habor by ryuer of Goza: 9

In the dayes of Jeroboam: For it came to passe, that the chyldren of Israel synned agaynst the Lord theyr God, whiche had brought them out of the lande of Egypt, from vnder the hande of Pharaon kynge of Egypt: & feared other goddes. And they walked in the ceremonies of the heyden, whome the Lord cast out before the chyldren of Israel: & in the ceremonies, which the kynges of Israel had made. And the chyldren of Israel went about to hyde those thynges that were not lawfull, from the Lord theyr God. And they built them highalters in al theyr cyties, both in the towres where they kept watch, and also in the stronge townes. And they made them ymages and groves in every hyl, & vnder every thyche tree. And there they burnt incense in all the highalters, as dyd the heyden, whom the Lord carped away before them: and wrought wyched thynges to angre the Lord withall: For they serued moost vyle ydolles: wherof the Lord had sayde vnto them: Ye shall do no suche thynges.

Deu. xiii.

C And the Lord testified in Israel, and in Iuda by al the prophetes, and by al the sears, saying: Turne fro your wyched wayes, and hepe my commaundementes and my statutes: accordyng to all I saue which I commaunded your fathers, and which I sente to you by my seruantes the prophetes. Notwithstandyng, they wolde not heare, but rather hardened theyr neckes, lyke to the stubburnes of theyr fathers, that dyd not beleue in the Lord theyr God. For they refused his statutes and his appoyntment that he made with theyr fathers, and the witness (wherewith he wytnessed vnto them) and they folowed vanity, and became wayne, and went after the ydols: then that were rounde about them: concernyng whome, the Lord had charged them, that they shoulde not do lyke them. But they left the commaundementes of the Lord theyr God, & made them ymages of metall, & even two calves, and made groves, and worshipped all the hoste of heauen: and serued Baal. And they sacrificed theyr sonnes and theyr daughters in fyre, & used wychecraft and enchauntmentes, & even sellynge them selues: to worke wychednesse in the syght of the Lord, and to angre hym.

Hosea. xiii.

Deu. xiii.

And the Lord was exceeding wroth with Israel: & put them out of his syght, & that there was left but the tribe of Iuda only. Howbeit the lesse, Iuda also hepte not the commaundementes of the Lord theyr God, but walked in ceremonies of Israel, which they made. And the Lord cast vp all the seed of Israel, and vexed the, and deliuered the into the handes of spoylers, vntyl he had cast the out of his syght. For Israel drayned them selues from the house of Dauid, & made them a kynge, euen Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. And Jeroboam aduise Israel a waye (that they shoulde not folowe the Lord) and made the syn a grent syn: for the chyldren of Israel walked in al the synnes of Jeroboam which he dyd, and departed not therefro, vntyl the Lord put Israel a way out of his syght, as he had sayde by all his seruantes the prophetes.

C And so was Israel carped away out of theyr owne lande, to Assyria, euen vnto this daye.

And the kynge of Assyria brought men from Babylon, from Cutha, from Aua, from Hamath, & from Sepharuaim, and put the in the cyties of Samaria in stede of the chyldren of Israel. And they possessed Samaria, & dwelte in the cyties thereof. And it fortuned, that at the beginning of their dwelling there they feared not the Lord. And the Lord sent Lyons amonge the, wherby the theilderose, men sayde to the kynge of Assyria. The nations which thou hast translated, & put in the cyties of Samaria, knowe not the lawe of the God of the land, therefore he hath sent Lyons vnto the, & behold, they are the, because they knowe not the maner of worshippynge of the God of the land.

Then the kynge of Assyria commaunded, saying: carpe the one of the wayne of the priestes whiche brought thence, and let them go & dwel there and teache them the fallshon, howe to serue the God of the countrey. And than one of the priestes which they had carped thence came & dwelte in Bethel, and taught them how they shoulde feare the Lord. Howbeit, every nacion made them goddes of theyr owne, and put them in the houses of the highalters which the Samarians had made, every nacion in theyr cyties, wherein they dwelt. The men of Babylon made Mooth Be nob: and the men of Cuth made Nergal: & the men of Hamath made Adma. The Auites made Adibai, and Chardak. And the Sepharuaites burnt theyr chyldren in fyre: for Adramelech, & Anamelech the Goddes of Sepharuaim. And so they feared the Lord, and made them priestes of the highalters, whiche sacrificed for them in the houses of the highalters. And so they feared the Lord, and serued theyr owne goddes after the maner of the people whom they caried thence.

And vnto this day they do after the olde maner: & neyther feare God, neyther do after theyr ordinaunces and customes, & after the lawe and commaundement which the Lord commaunded the chyldren of Jacob: whom he called Israel. And the Lord made an apoyntment with them, and charged the, saying: feare none other goddes, nor bowe your selues to them, nor serue the, nor sacrifice to the: but feare the Lord which brought you out of the lande of Egypt with greates power, and a stretched out arme: hym feare, and to him bowe, and to him do sacrifice. The statutes ordynaunces, lawe, and commaundement whiche he wrote for you, so that ye be diligent to do for evermore: and feare not any other goddes. And the appoyntment that I haue made with you, so ye forget not, & feare none other goddes: but the Lord your God ye shall feare, & he shal deliuer you out of the handes of al your enemyes. Howbeit, they dyd not heark, but dyd after their olde custome. And so these nations feared the Lord, and serued theyr ymages also: lyke as dyd the chyldren, and theyr chyldrens chyldren. Euen as dyd theyr fathers: so do they vnto this daye.

The xviij. Chapter.

Ezekia kynge of Iuda paterlye rebuketh the heathen synners, and rebuketh the priestes. He commaunded synners to the Assyrians. The blasphemous of Samaria, & of Sepharuaim.

In the

In the thirde yere of hosia, sonne of Ela kyng of Israel, it came to passe, that hezekia the sonne of Abaz kyng of Iuda ragned. * Twenty and fyve yere olde was he when he began to ragnen, and ragned. xxiij. yere in Ierusalem. Hys mothers name also was Abi the daughter of zacharia, & he dyd that whiche is ryght in the syghte of the Lozde, accordyng to all as hys dauid hys father. * He put awaye the pylalters, and bjahe the ymages, and cut downe the groves, and all to bjahe the * bjafen serpent that Moyses hadde made. For unto those dayes the childzen of Israel did burne sacrifice to it, & he called it Ahaban. He trusted in the Lozde God of Israel: so that after hym was none lyke hym amonge all the kynges of Iuda, neether was there any such before hym. For he clene to the Lozde and departed not from hym, but kepte hys commandmentes, whiche the Lozde commaunded Moyses. And the Lozde was with hym: so that he prospered in all thynges, whiche he toke in hilde. And he rebelled agaynst the kyng of Assyria, and served hym not. He smote the Philistines euen unto Gaza, and the coastes therof, both castles where they kepte watches: & strong cyties.

* And in the fourth yere of kyng hezekia: (whiche was the seventh yere of hosia sonne of Ela kyng of Israel) it fortuned, that Sennacherib kyng of Assyria, cam up agaynst Samaria, and belleged it. And after thre yeres, they toke it: euen in the fyfte yere of hezekia: that is to saye, the nyth yere of hosia kyng of Israel. And Samaria was woine. And the kyng of Assyria dyd carpe awaye Israel unto Assyria, and put them in Holah and in Habor, by the ryuer of Golan, and in the cyties of the Medes: because they wolde not hearken unto the voyce of the Lozde: they God: but transgressed his appoyntment, and al that Moyses & seruantes of the Lozde commaunded, and wolde neyther heare them nor do them.

* Therfore, in the xliij. yere of kyng hezekia dyd Sennacherib kyng of Assyria come up agaynst all the strong cyties of Iuda, and toke them. And hezekia kyng of Iuda, sente to the kyng of Assyria to Lachis, sayenge: I haue of sende: departe from me and all that thou puttest on me, that wyl I beare. And the kyng of Assyria appoynted unto hezekia kyng of Iuda thre hundred talentes of syluer, and thre tyntalentes of golde. * And hezekia gaue him al the syluer that was founde in the house of the Lozde, and in the treasures of the kynges house. At the same season dyd hezekia rent of the doores of the temple of the Lozde, and the pylers (whiche the sayd hezekia kyng of Iuda had conuerted ouer) and gaue them to the kyng of Assyria.

And the kyng of Assyria sent Tharban & Rablaris, and Rabshake from Lachis to kyng hezekia with a great host, agaynst Ierusalem. And they went up, and cam to Ierusalem, and gat them up, and stode by the condyte of the upper poole, whiche is in the waye of the fullers side. And when they had called to the kyng, there came out to them, * Eliakim the sonne of Elihu whiche was steward of household, and Sobna the scribe, and Ioab the sonne of Asaph the recorder. And Rabshake sayd unto the: Telle hezekia I praye you: thus sayeth the great kyng, euen the great kyng of Assyria: What confidence is this that thou haste? Doest thou speake such a lyght worde in dede? By counsell and power I wyl be ready to make warre. On whom then doest thou trust, that thou rebellest agaynst me? Doest thou trust to the staffe of this broken reede Egypte, on whiche yf a man leane, it wyl goo into hys hande, and pearce it. Euen so is Pharao kyng of Egypte vnto al that trust on hym. * Yf ye saie vnto me: we truste in the Lozde our God: Is not that he whose pylalters and hys other alters, hezekia hath put downe, and hath sayd to Iuda and Ierusalem: ye shall worship before this altare here in Ierusalem?

Nowe therefore, deliuer I warded to my lord the kyng of Assyria, that ye rebell not, & I wyl deliuer I two thousande horses yf thou be able to set rybers vpon them: Why thynkest thou scozne at the presence of one of the lest dukes of my maysters seruantes, and trustest to Egypt for charrettes and horsemen? Wozeour, am I nowe come wthout the bydding of the Lozde to this place, to destroye it: the Lozde sayde to me: go up to this land, and destroye it. And he liakim the sonne of helia and Sobna, and Ioab sayd vnto Rabshake: speake (I praye the) to thy seruantes in the Assyrians language, for we vnderstande it: and talke not wth vs in the Jewes tongue, in the eares of this people that are on the wal. And Rabshake said vnto them: hath my master sent me to thy master and to the, to speake these wordes? Hath he not sente me because of the men whiche syle on the wall, & they maye eate they owne donge, and dyspnye they owne pylle wth you?

And so Rabshake stode, & cryed wth a loude voyce in the Jewes language, & saie, sayeng: heare the sayeng of the great kyng of Assyria. Thus sayeth the kyng: let not hezekia beggyle you, for he shall not be able to deliuer you oute of my hande: neyther let hezekia make you to trust in the Lozde, sayenge: the Lozde shall sure ly deliuer vs: & this citie shall not be gryn ouer into the hilde of the kyng of Assyria. Heke not vnto hezekia, for thus sayth the kyng of Assyria. Weale kyndly wth me, and come out to me. And eate euery man of hys owne vyne, & of hys owne figge tree, and dyspnye euery man of hys.

the water of hye owne well tyll I come, and fet pon to as good a lande as yours is: a lande of coyne and wyne, a lande of breade and vneyar des, a lande of oyle, of oliver trees, and of house that prynces lye and not dye. And herhen not vnto hezekia, for he begyleth pou, sayenge the Lorde shall deliuer vs: & hath cury one of the goddess of the nations deliuered bys hande out of the kynges of Assyria: Where is the God of Hamath: and Arphad: and where is the God of Sepharuaim: Hena and Iua: dyde they deliuer Hamatha out of mine hande: and what God is it amonge all the goddess of the nations, & hath deliuered bys lande out of myne hande: Shall the Lorde deliuer Jerusalem out of myne hande?

clay. ii. b.

But they that were of the people helde they peace, & auerred not hym a woide, for they had commaunded, sayenge: and were hym not.
Then Eliakim which was stuarde of household and Sobna the scribe, & Ioad the sonne of A saph the recorder, came to hezekia with they clothes rent & told him the woordes of Rabshake.

The xix. Chapter.

The word of the Lorde which came to hezekia the sonne of Achaz king of Iuda in the dayes of Sennacherib king of Assyria.

It came to passe, that when kyng hezekia hearde it, he rente bys clothes & put on sacke: and came into the house of the Lorde: & sent Eliakim which was the stuarde of household, and Sobna the scribe, and the elders of the priests clothed in sacke, to saye the prophete the sonne of Amos.

clay. xix. a.

And they sayde vnto hym, thus sayeth he zekia: this daye is a daye of tribulation and of rebuke, and blasphemie. For the chyldren are come to the byrth, and ther is no strengthe to be deliuered. Peradventure, the Lord thy God wyl heare al the woordes of Rabshake, whom the kyng of Assyria bys master hath sent, to rayle on the livinge God, and to rebuke hym with woordes whych the Lorde thy God hath herde. And lyft thou vp thy prayer for the ten iunter & are lefte: For the strenantes of kyng hezekia came to I sai. And I say sayd vnto them: So shal ye saye to your master: Thus sayeth the Lorde: be not afraid of the woordes whych thou hast herde, wh ych the poynt men of the kyng of Assyria haue rayled on me: Beholde, I wyl put hym in another mynde, & he shal heare thynges, & sore turne to bys owne lande: & And I wyl bypunge to passe, that he shall fall vpon the swerde: & e uen in bys owne lande.

clay. xix. b.
clay. xx. a.

And Rabshake wente backe agayne, and foundede the kyng of Assyria by the pynge against Ibna: for he had herde how & he was departed from Lachis. And when he hearde mentace of Thirhaka kyng of the blacke Moyses: Behold he is come out to fyght against the, he departed & sent messengers vnto hezekia sayenge: Thus speake to hezekia kyng of Iuda, sayeng: let not thy God disceiue the in whom thou trustest, say enge Jerusalem shall not be deliuered into the hande of the kyng of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast herde what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue utterly de stroyed them. And shalt thou (alone) escape haue the goddess of the hepyden deliuered them whych myne aliceries haue destroyed: As So zan, and Haran, Receph, and the chyldren of E den whych were in Babilon: where is the kyng of Hamath, and the kyng of Arphad, the kyng of the cytie of Sepharuaim, and of Hena & Iua.

So hezekia receyued the letter of the hande of the messengers, & redde it: And hezekia went vnto the house of the Lorde, & layed it abode before the Lorde. And hezekia prayd before the Lorde, and sayd: O Lord God of Israel: whych dwellest betwene the Cherubs, thou arte God alone ouer all the kyngdomes of the earth: thou hast made heauen and earth. Lord bowe down thyne eare, and heare. Open Lorde thyne eyes (I beseech the) and see: & heare the woordes of Sen nacherib whych hath sent this man to rayle on the livinge God: Of a truth Lorde, the kynges of Assyria haue destroyed nations and theyr la des, and haue set tye on theyr goddesses: For they were no goddess, but the woike of the handes of man, euen of wood & stone. And they destroyed them. Nowe therefore, O Lorde our God, I be seeche the, saue thou vs out of bys hande, that al the kyngdomes of the earth maye knowe, that thou onely arte the Lorde God. And I say the sonne of Amosente to hezekia sayenge: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: that whiche thou hast prayed me, concernynge Senna cherib kyng of Assyria: I haue heard it. This is therfore the woide that the Lorde hath sayde of hym: The virgin euen the daughter of Sy on, hath despyed the: and laughed be to scoone (O thou kyng of Assyria) the daughter of Je rusalem hath waken her head at the. & Whome hast thou rayled on, and whome hast thou blas phemed: Agaynst whome hast thou exalted thy voyce, and lyfted vp thyne eyes so hye: Euen a gaynst the holy of Israel. By the hande of the messengers thou hast rayled on the Lorde, and sayd: with the multitude of my charettes I am come vnto the toppes of the mountaynes, euen alonge by the fyttes of Libanon, and wyl cutte downe the hye Cedar trees, and the lusty Kiter trees therof: and I wyl go into the lodgyng of bys nest: & into the wood of bys piapne: I haue dygged, and dyonke strange waters: and with the strepe of my goynge wyl I drye all the wa ter pooles that are besyged.

hast thou not herde, howe I haue ordeyned suche a thyng a great whyle ago, and haue pre pared it from the begynnynge: And shall I not nowe bypunge it forth, that it may destroye, and to bypunge stronge cities vnto waste heapes of stones: and the inhabitours of the halbe of ly tel power, and sayne herred, and confounded, and & shalbe lyke the grass of the fildes, or grene herbe or as the hey of the toppes of the houses: or as the

I knowe thy dwellinge, thy conuynge out, & thy goynge in, & (and the way) and thy surpe a xviii. a.

by alters for Baal, and made groves (as dyd Ahab kyng of Israel,) and worshipped al the boost of heauen and serued them. And he buylte altars in the house of the Lozde, of wyche the Lozde sayd: * In Jerusalem wyll I put my name. And he buylte alters for all the booste of heauen, euen in twoo courtes of the house of the Lozde. * And he offered hys sonnes in fyre, and gaue bede vnto wythcraft and sozcerye, and maintayned workers with spytes and tellers of fortunys: and brought much wychednesse in the syght of the Lozde to angre hym.

B And he put an ymage of a groue (that he had made) euen in the temple, of wyche the Lozde had sayd to Dauid and to Salomon hys sonne, * In this house, and in Jerusalem: wyche I haue chosen out of all trybes of Israel) wyll I put my name for euer. Neyther wyll I make the fete of Israel moue any more out of the lande, wyche I gaue theyr fathers: so that they wyll obserue and do all that I haue commaunded them: and accordyng to al the lawe that my seruants Moyses commaunded them. But they perkened not, and Manasse led them out of y way, to do moze wychedly then dyd the heythen people, whome the Lozde destroyed befoze y children of Israel.

C And the Lozde spake by hys seruantes the prophetes, sayenge: because Manasse kyng of Iuda hath done such abhominacions, and hath wrought moze wychedly then all that the Amorytes (which were befoze him) dyd: y hath made Iuda synne also wyth hys Idolles. Therefore, thus sayeth the Lozde God of Israel. * Behold I wyll byynge such euell vpon Jerusalem and Iuda, that whoso heareth of it, both hys eares shall tynge. And I wyll stretch ouer Jerusalem the squaringe lyne of Samaria: and the plomet of y house of Ahab. And I wyll wypp out Jerusalem, as a man wyppeth a bythe, y whel he hath wypped it, turneth it vpside downe. And I wil leaue the remnaunte of myne inheritaunce, and deliuer them into the hande of theyr enemies, y theyr shalbe robbed and spoyled of all theyr aduersaries, euen because they haue done euyl in my syghts, and haue angred me, syns the tyme theyr fathers came out of Egypt vntil this day.

D And Manasse shed innocent bloude exceeding much, tyll he repleyned Jerusalem from corner to corner, besyde hys synne where wyth he made Iuda to synne, and to do euyl in the syght of the Lozde.

The reste of the wordes that concerne Manasse, and all that he dyd, and hys synne that he synned: are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda? And Manasse slept with his fathers, and was buried in hys owne house, euen in the garden of Aia: and Amon hys sonne raygned in hys stede.

E Amon was. xxi. yere olde, whel he began to raygne, and he raygned two yere in Jerusalem. hys mothers name also was Gedelemeth the daughter of Harum of Iotha. And he dyd euyl in the syght of the Lozde (as hys father Manasse dyd) and walked in all the waye that hys father walked in: and serued the Idolles y hys father serued: and worshipped them. And he for soke the Lozde god of hys fathers: and walked not in the waye of the Lozde.

F And the seruantes of Amon conspyred agaynst hym, y slue the kyng in his owne house. And the people of the lade slue al them that had conspyred agaynst kyng Amon, and the people made Jolia hys sonne kyng, in hys stede. The reste of the wordes that concerne Amon, what thynges he dyd: are they not wyrtten in y booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda? And they buried hym in hys sepulchre, in y garde of Aia: and Jolia his sonne raygned in hys stede.

G The. xxi. Chapter.

After Jolia hearde of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he sendeth to Sallah the people teller for counsell.

H Jolia was. xxiij. yere olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned. xxi. yere in Jerusalem. hys mothers name also was Jedida y daughter of Adaia of Bozath. he dyd that wyche is ryght in the syght of the Lozde, and walked in al the wayes of Dauid hys father: and bowed neyther to the ryght hande, or to the left.

I And it came to passe, that in the. xviii. yere of the raygne of kyng Jolia, the king sent Saphan the sonne of Azalia the sonne of Azielam the scribe to the house of the Lozde, sayenge: * go vp to helkia the hye prest: that he may summe the synner wyche is brought into y house of the Lozde, wyche the heyers of the porche haue gathered of the people, and let them deliuer it into the hande of them that do the worke, and that haue the ouer syghte of the house of the Lozde, and let them gyue it to them that woork in the house of the Lozde: (to repaie the decayed places of the temple) euen vnto carpenters and masons, and workers vpon the walles: and for to bye tymber, and fre stone to repaie the temple. howbeit, let no rekenyng be made wyth them of the money that is deliuered into theyr hande for theyr use to deale saythfully.

K And helkia the hye prest sayde vnto Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the boke of the lawe of the house of the Lozde, and helkia gaue the boke to Saphan, and he red in it. And Saphan the scribe came to the kyng, and brought hym woze agayne, y sayd: thy seruantes haue bestowed the money (that was founde in y temple: y) and haue deliuered it vnto the that do the worke, and that haue y ouer syghte of the house of the Lozde. And Saphan y scribe shewed the kyng, sayenge: helkia the prest hath deliuered me a boke. And Saphan red in it befoze y kyng.

L And it fortuned, y when the kyng had herd the wordes of the boke of the lawe, he rent hys clothes. And the kyng commaunded helkia the prest, and Ahiham the sonne of Saphan, y Achboz the sonne of Michaia, and Saphan y scribe and Aiaha a seruant of the kynges, sayenge: * go ye and enquire of the Lozde for me, and for the people, and for all Iuda, concernyng y wordes of this boke that is founde. For greete is y wrath of the Lozde that is kyndled agaynst vs, because our fathers haue not perkened vnto the worde woydes of this booke, to do accordynge vnto all that wherof is wyrtten therein for vs.

D So helia the hye prest and Abikam, Achobz & Shaphan, and Iahia went vnto Hulda & Propheetesse the wyfe of Shulman, the sonne of Thinnai, the sonne of Harhan heper of Sward-rope: wherof propheetesse dwelt in Jerusalem in the house of the doctryne, and they communed wyth her. And she answered them: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: Tell the man & sente you to me, thus sayeth the Lorde: behold, I wyl byynge euil vpon this place, and on the inhabitants therof: (cut al & woydes of the booke wherof the kynges of Iuda hath red) because they haue forsake me, & haue burnt incense vnto other goddes, to anger me wyth all the wooyshes of theyr handes. My wrath also shalbe kindled against this place, and shall not be quenched.

But to the kyng of Iuda (which sent you to aske counsell of & Lorde) so shall ye say: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel, as touchynge the woydes wherof ye haue hearde: Because thynne herte did melt: & because thou hast humbled thy selfe before me the lord, wher thou herdest what I spake agaynst this place, & agaynst the inhabitants of & same (how & they shuld be destroyed & accursed): and hast rent thy clothes, and wept before me: of that also haue I herde, sayeth the Lorde: Beholde, therefore I wyl receyue the vnto thy fathers, and & shalt be put into thy graue in peace: and thynne eyes shal not se all the euill, wherof I wyl byynge vpon this place. And they brought the kynges woide agayne.

¶ The. xliii. Chapter.

Jolia readeth Deuteronomy before the people. He putted downe & pholies. after he had hyllid the prestes therof. He heperly was counsellor. He was hyllid in Samaria, and hys sonne Ichonaz sayneth in hys booke. After he was taken, hys sonne Jeroboam was made kynge.

Ad then the kyng sent, and there gathered vnto hym al the elders of Iuda & of Jerusalem. And & kyng went vnto the house of the Lorde, with al the men of Iuda and al the inhabitants of Jerusalem, with the prestes and propheetes, and al the people both smal & great. And he red in the eares of them: all the woydes of the booke of the covenant: wherof was found in the house of the Lorde. And the kyng stode by a pylle, & made a couenaunt before the Lorde, & they shuld walke after the Lorde, and kepe hys comandementes, hys wytnesses, & hys statutes, wyth all theyr herte, and al their soule, and make good the woydes of the sayd appoyntment & were wyrtten in the forsayd booke. And all the people consented to the appoyntment.

B And the kyng commaunded helia & hye prest and the inferior hye prestes, and the hepers of the ornamente, to byynge out of the temple of the Lorde, all the vesselles that were made for Baal, for the grones, and for all the hostes of heauen. And he burnt them withoute Jerusalem in the felde of Cedron, & carped the ashes of them into Bethel. And he put downe & minsters of Baal, wherof the kynges of Iuda had fouled to burne incense in the & hylaulters & ctyes of Iuda, that were rounde about Jerusalem: & also them & burnt incense vnto Baal, to & sone to the moon, to the planettes, & to all the hostes of heauen. And he brought out the grone frid the temple of the Lorde withoute Jerusalem vnto the brooke Cedron, & burnt it there at the brooke Cedron, & stampet it to powder, and cast the dust therof vpon the graues of the chyldren of & people. And he brake downe the celles of the males stues that were by the house of the Lorde, where the women woude hangynge for the groue.

And he brought all the prestes out of the ctyes of Iuda, and despyed the hylaulters where the prestes had burnt incense: euen from Seba to Beerseba: and destroyed the alters of the gates, that were in the enterynge in of the gate of Jolia the gouernour of the ctye wherof were (as a man goeth in) on the lefte hande of & gate of the ctye. Hewer the lisse the prestes of the hylaulters came not vnto the altar of the Lorde in Jerusalem, save only they dyd eat of & swete bread amonge theyr brethren.

And he deryle & Copheph: wherof is in the valley of the chyldre of Dimon: because no man shulde offre his sonne or his daughter in fyre to Molech: he put downe the hostes & the kynges of Iuda had & puen to the sonne at the enterynge in of the house of the Lorde, by the chaire of Nathanmelech, the chambrelayne wherof was ruler of the suburges, & burnt the charrettes of the sunne wyth fyre. And the alters that were on the topper of the parloire of Iahaz wherof & kynges of Iuda had made) and the & alters wherof Manasse had made in & two courtes of & house of the Lorde did & kynges brake downe & canne there: & cast & dust of the in the brooke of Cedron.

And the hylaulters that were before Jerusalem on the ryght hande of the mount Oliuete, & (wherof Salomon the kyng of Israel hadde buylded for Altharoth the Idoll of the zibons, and for Chamos the Idoll of the Moabytes, & for Milchom the abhominable Idoll of the chyldren of Ammon) those the kynges despyed: and brake the ymages, and cut downe the grones & fylled theyr places wyth the bones of men.

Moreouer & the altar that was at Bethel, the hylaulter made by Jeroboam, & son of Nabat (wherof made Israel synne) both the altar & also the hyl, he brake downe and burnt & hyl altar and stampet it to powder, and burnt the groue. And as Jolia turned hym selfe, he spyed the graues, that were in the mounte, and sent & fet the bones out of the graues, and burnt them vpon the altare to polute it, accordynge to the woide of the Lorde that the man of God proclaymed & wherof tolde the same woies.

D Then he sayde what graue stone is yonder that I se: And the men of the ctye tolde hym, it is the sepulchre of the man of God, wherof came from Iuda, and tolde & selfe same thynges that thou hast done to the altar of Bethel. And he sayd let hym be: se that no man moue hys bones. And so his bones were saued with the bones of a propheete that came out of Samaria.

And all the houses of the hylaulters in the ctyes.

cities of Samaria which þe kinges of Israel had made to angre ^{the Lande} withall: those Josia put out of the way, & dyd to them accordyng to all the actes þe had done in Betel. And he sacrificed all the ydes of the bylaunters þe were there, even vpon the altars, and burne mens bones vpon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

E And the kyng commanded all the people, sayinge: * kepe the feaste of pascouer vnto the Lorde your God, as it is wyrtten in the booke of this couenaunte. * There was no pascouer holden ythe that from the dayes of the Judges that iudged Israel, and in all the dayes of the kynges of Israel, and of the kynges of Juda. In the xviij. yere of kyng Josia was this pascouer holden to the Lorde in Jerusalem.

And ther to workers with spytted and sorde-fapens, ymages, ydols, & all the abhominacions that were espyed in the lande of Juda and Jerusalem, those dyd Josia put out of the way, to performe the wordes of þe lawe whiche were wyrtten in the booke þe helia the prest founde in the house of the Lorde: ythe vnto hym was there no kyng before hym, that turned to the Lorde wyth all his hert, with all his soule, and all his might accordyng to all the lawe of Moyses, neyther after hym arose there any suche as he.

Not withstandinge, the Lorde courned not fro þe fiercenesse of his gret wrath (wher with he was angry agaynst Juda) because of al the prouocations that Manasse had prouoked him withall. And the Lorde sayd: * I wyl put Juda also out of my syght, as I haue done away Israel: and wylle caste of this cytie Jerusalem: whiche I haue chosen, and the house of which I sayde: my name shalbe there.

F The rest of the wordes that concerne Josia, and all that he dyd: are they not wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda?

E In his dayes Pharaos Aecho kyng of Egypt went vp agaynst the kyng of Assyria to the ryuer Euphrates. And king Josia went agaynst hym, and was slayne of hym at Magiddo, wher he had sene him. And his seruantes caried him dreed from Magiddo, and brought hym to Jerusalem, and buried hym in his owne sepulchre. And the people of the lande, toke Jehoahaz, the sonne of Josia, and annointed hym, & made hym kyng in his fathers steede.

G Jehoahaz was. xiiij. yere olde wher he began to raygne, and raygned thre monethes in Jerusalem. his mothers name also was hamiel the daughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he did euyl in syght of the Lorde, accordyng to al thinges as his fathers had doone. And Pharaos Aecho put hym in bondes at Ribla in the lande of Hamath, þe shulde not raygne in Jerusalem, and put the land to a tribute of an hundred talentes of syluer, and a talent of gold. And Pharaos Aecho made Eliakim the sonne of Josia kyng in þe roume of Josia his father: and turned his name to Jehoakim, and toke Jehoahaz away, whiche when he came to Egypt, dyed there.

And Jehoakim gaue the syluer and the gold to Pharaos, and tased the lande, to gyue the mo ney accordyng to the request of Pharaos: requyryng of euery man (accordyng to theyr abilitie) syluer and golde: even of the people of the lande to gyue vnto Pharaos Aecho. Jehoakim was xxv. yere old wher he began to raygne, & he raygned. xi. yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was Iehuda the daughter of Bedaia of Rama. And he dyd that whiche was euyl in the syght of the Lorde, accordyng to all thinges, as his fathers had done.

E The xxiii. Chapter.

E Jehoakim dyeth. Jerusalem is besieged of the Babylyonians. Jehoakim prayeth hym selfe to the kyng of Babylyon. And in his counte came agarthan whiche was called jehchial.

In his dayes came Nabuchodonozar, kyng of Babylyon vp, and Jehoakim became his seruant thre yere, and the turned, and rebelled agaynst him. And the Lorde sent vpon hym men of warre from amonge the Caldees from amonge the Assyrians out of the Goabites, and from the chyldren of Ammon. and sente them agaynst Juda, to destroye it, accordyng to the layeng of the Lorde whiche he spake by his seruantes the prophetes. Onely at the byddynge of the Lorde happened it so to Juda, to put them out of his syght, for the synnes of Manasse, accordyng to all that he dyd, and for the innocent blood that he shed, and fylled Jerusalem with innocent blood: and the Lorde wolde not be reconcyled.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Jehoakim and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of Chronicles of the kynges of Juda? And so Jehoakim slepe with his fathers: and Jehoachin his sonne raygned in his steede. And the kyng of Egypt came nomore oute of his lande: for the kyng of Babylyon had taken fro the ryuer of Egypte, vnto the ryuer Euphrates, all that pertayned to the kyng of Egypte. Jehoachin was egyptene praye olde, and raygned in Jerusalem thre monethes, his mothers name also was Nechusta, the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he did that whiche was euyl in the syght of the Lorde, accordyng to all as his father had done. * In þe tyme came the seruantes of Nabuchodonozar kyng of Babylyon vp agaynst Jerusalem, and the cite was besieged. And Nabuchodonozar kyng of Babylyon came agaynst the cite, and his seruantes dyd besiege it. * And Jehoachin the kyng of Juda came out to the kyng of Babylyon, he and his mother, his seruantes, his lordes, and his chambelaynes. And the kyng of Babylyon toke hym in the epght yere of his raygne.

* And he caried out thence all the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasure of the kynges house: and brake all the vessels of golde whiche Salomon kyng of Israel had made in the temple of the Lorde, as the Lorde had sayd. And he caried away all Jerusalem, and al the lordes, and all the stronge men of warre, euen ten thousande into captiuitie: and all craftesmen and hepers, none remaynyng save the poore common people of the lande.

* And he carped a waye Ichoachim to Babylon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, hys chāberlaynes, and them that were myghty in the lande: those carped he a waye in to captiuitie from Ierusalem to Babylon. And all the actiue men of warre, euen. vii. thousand and apt for war, dyd fflyng of Babylon bringe to Babylon captiue. And the kyng of Babylon made Balthassar hys fathers brother, king in his steade: & chaunged his name to zedekia.

zedekia was. xxi. yere olde when he began to rapgne, and he rapgned eleuen yere in Ierusalem. Hys mothers name also was hamitall the daughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, accordyng to all as Ichoachim had done. For fflyng of f Lorde was moued agaynst Ierusalem and Iuda vntyll he cast them out of his syght. And zedekia rebelled agaynst the kyng of Babylon.

¶ The. cxi. Chapter.

Ierusalem is besieged of Nabuchodonosor, otherwyse called Nabuchadnezer, and is the temple and city burnt. The sonnes of zedekia are slayne before hys eyes, and after are hys owne eyes put out. Iuda is brought to Babylon, & after is Ichoachim exalted.

As it is fortunēd, that in the nynthe yere of hys rapgne, the tenth daye of the tenth moneth: Nabuchadnezer kyng of Babylon came, he and all his hoste agaynst Ierusalem & pyched agaynst it: and made engyns agaynst it on euery syde. And the ctyte was belleged vnto the eleuenth yere of kyng zedekia. And the nynthe daye of the moneth, there was so greute hunger in the ctyte: that there was no bread for the people of the lande.

And the ctyte was broken vp: and all the men of armes fledde by nyght, by a waye thorow a gate, whiche is by the twente wallies by the kynges gardeyne: the Chaldees spenge aboute the ctyte.

And the kyng wente the waye towarde the playne. And the loudpers of the Chaldees folowed after the kyng, and toke hym in the playne of Jericho, and all his armye were scattered a waye from hym, (and lette hym.) So they toke the kyng, and brought hym to Nabuchadnezer the kyng of Babylon to Babil, where they reasoned wth hym. And they slewe the sonnes of zedekia before hys eyes: and he put out the eyes of zedekia, & fettered hym wth two chaynes and carped hym to Babylon.

And the. vii. daye of the. v. moneth whiche is the. xii. yere of kyng Nabuchadnezer kyng of Babylon, came Nabusaradan a seruaunt of the kyng of Babylon, and chefe captayne of f men of warre, vnto Ierusalem: and burnte the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house and all the houses of Ierusalem, and all greute houses burnt he with fyre. And all the loudpers of the Chaldees that were wth the chefe captayne of the men of warre broke downe the wallies of Ierusalem round about. But the rest of the people that were left in the ctyte, & them that were fled to the kyng of Babylon, & the remnant of the comon people, dyd Nabusaradan the chefe captayne of the men of warre: carpe a way: but the captayne of fouldyers left of the poore of the lande to dwelle the vynges, and to tyll the lande.

* And the pylers of brasie that were in the house of the Lorde, and the sockets, and the brasen lauatorye f was in the house of the Lorde dyd the Chaldees breake, and caried all the brasie of them to Babylon. And the portres, chowels, dyef syng hurpers, spones, & al the vessels of f brasie that they myghted in, toke they a waye. And f fyre pannes, & basens, & suche thynges as were of golde, and of syluer, them toke the chefe Captayne a waye: euen two pylers, one lauatorye, & the sockets whiche Salomon had made for the house of f Lorde. The brasie of all these vessels was without wayghte. The dryght of the one piler was. xviij. cubytes, and he had thereon was brasie, and the cubytes hys & vpon f head was there a wether wyche and pomegranates rounde about all the brasie. And of the same fas tyon was the second piler, & a wether wyche.

And the chefe captayne of the men of warre, toke Sarais the chefe Dyresse, & zephonias the best pyeste sūe one, and the thre keepers of the foly thynges. And out of the ctyte he toke a chāberlayne, that had the ouersyght of the men of warre, and. v. men of them that were cuer in the kynges presence, whiche were founde in f ctyte: and hym that was scrpye to the captayne of the host, whiche broughte out the people of the land to warre, and the scoz men of the people of the lande, that were founde in the ctyte. And Nabusaradan the chefe captayne of the men of warre toke these, & broughte them to the kyngs of Babylon to Babil. And f kyng of Babylon smote them, & slue them at Babil in f hand of Hanath. And so Iuda was caried a way out of the land.

Howbeit, there remayned people in f lande of Iuda, whome Nabuchadnezer kyng of Babylon left, and made Sedalia the sonne of Abiham the sūe of Saphan ruler ouer them. And all the captains of the fouldyers and other men harde, that the kyng of Babylon had made Sedalia gouernor: & there cam to Sedalia at Wazphabe: Ismael the sonne of Serthania, Johanna the sonne of Karea, Sarais the sonne of Chan humeth the Serthophatite, And Jazania the sonne of Maachari, and they men. And Sedalia swore to them, and to the men whome they had wth them, and sayde vnto them: feare not ye because ye are the seruauntes of the Chaldees, dwell in the lande, and serue the kyng of Babylon, and ye shall be well.

But it chaunced in the seventh moneth, that Ismael the sonne of Serthania the sonne of Eliama, of the kynges bloode, came, & ten men wth hym, and smote Sedalia, that he died: and so dyd he the Jewes, and f Chaldees that were wth hym at Wazpa.

And all the people both small and greute, & the captaines of warre arose, & came to Egypt for they were afrayde of f Chaldees. For wth standynge yet in the seuen and thyrty yere after Ichoachim kyng of Iuda was carped a waye the

And of the halfe trybe of Manasse. xvi. thousande, which were appoynted by name to come and make David kyng. And of the chyldren of Issachar whiche were men that had vnderstandyng in the ryght tyme, to knowe what Israel ought to do. The heedes of them were two hundred, and all they bryethen were at theyr wyll. And of Zabulon that went out to battayle, and proceeded forth to the war: wryth all maner instrumentes of warre, syttee thousande that were prepared to the war wryth out any doublenesse of herte. And of Reueben a thousande captaynes, and wryth them shylde and speare. xxxvii. thousande. And of Dan prepared to battayle. xxviii. thousande and syxe hundred. And of Aser that went out to warre and kept the fore fronte of the battayle, fourtye thousande. And of the other syde of Iordan of the Rubenytes and Gadites, and of the halfe trybe of Manasse wryth all maner of instrumentes of war, a hundred and twentye thousande.

All these were men of warre, heppuge the foresyont of battayle wꝝ perfect hert, & came to Hebron to make David kyng ouer al Israel. And all prest of Israel was of one accord, to make David kyng. And there they were wꝝ David. iii. dayes eating & drynkynge, for they bryeth had prepared so; the. Woꝝeouer they were nye the vntyl Issachar, Zabulon and Reueben brought bread on asses, camels, mules, & oxen and meat, flour, sygges, reysynges, wyne and oyle, oꝝ & shepe abundantly. For ther was ioy in Israel.

¶ The. xlii. Chapter.

¶ The arke is brought agayne from Hethin to Jerusalem. (The other wyll called 2da.)

As David counsailed with the captaynes of thousandes and hundredes, and with all the loyden, and sayd vnto all the congregacion of Israel: If it seme you good, and to be of the Loꝝde oure God we wyll take and sende vnto our bryethen, that are left in all the lande of Israel: and with them also, to the pꝛeſtes and Leuytes whiche are in theyr cyties and suburbes, to gather them togyther vnto vs. And we wyll bypnye agayne the arke of the Loꝝde to vs, for we regarded it not in the dayes of Saul. And all the congregacion was content that he shoulde do so, for the thing semed good in the eyes of all the people.

So David gathered all Israel to gyther fro Hethin in Egypt, vnto the enterynge of Hemath, to bypnye the arke of the Loꝝde from Kypriath Jearim. And David went vp and all Israel to an hye place towards Kypriath Jearim, that was in Iuda, to set thence the arke of the Loꝝde God that dwelleth betwene the cherubes wher his name is called on. And they carped the arke of God in a newe carter out of the house of Abinadab. And Aza and his bryeth guyded the cart. And David and all Israel played before the arke of God wꝝ all theyr myght, wryth syngynge and harpes, psalteryes, and tymbrels and trompettes. And when they came vnto the cherebyng place of Chidon, Aza put forth his had to hold the arke, for the oxen (being a lytle wyll) stabled. And the Loꝝde was wꝝ oꝝ wryth Aza, & smote hym, because he put his hande to the arke. And there he dyed before God. And David was out of quyet, because the Loꝝde had rent a rente in Aza, and he called the name of that place the retyng of Aza vnto this daye. And David was afrayed of God that daye, sayng: howe shal I bypnye the arke of God home to me? And so David brought not the arke home to hym to the cytye of David: but carped it into the house of Obed Edom a Gethite. And the arke of God remained wryth Obed Edom, euen in his house thre monethes. And the Loꝝde blessed the house of Obed Edom, and all that he had.

¶ The. xliii. Chapter.

¶ Othiam smyth wood and workmen to David, to buyde hym an house.

¶ Othiam the kyng of Tyre sent messengers to David, and tymbre of Cedre trees, with masons and carpenters to buyde hym an house. And David percepued that the Loꝝde had confirmed hym kyng vpon Israel, and that his kyngdom was lift vp on hye, because of his people Israel. And David toke yet mo wyues at Jerusalem, and begat mo sonnes and donghters. These are the names of his chyldren whiche were borne vnto him at Jerusalem: Samua, Nohab, Natha, and Salomon: Ithar, Elifua & Eliphale, Hoga, Reueben & Iaphia, Elifama, Belisaba, and Eliphale. And when the Philistines hearde that David was annoynted kyng vpon Israel: all the Philistines went vnto seke David. And David herde of it, and went out agaynst them. And the Philistines came in, and prauced theroꝝe the valey of Rephaim. And David asked counsaile at God, sayng: Shall I go agaynst the Philistines, and wylt thou deliuer them in to myne hande? And the Loꝝde sayd vnto hym: I. y.

go vp, for I wil deliuer them into thine hand And so they came vp to Baal Perazim and David smote them there. And David sayde: God hath deuyded myne enemies with myne hande as a man woulde deuyde water. And therfore they called the name of that place: Baal Perazim. And when they had left they: goddes there David gaue a commaundement, and they were burned with fyre.

D And the Philistines came together agayne, & rushed into the valley. And David asked agayne at God. And God sayd to hym: go not vp after them, but turne away fro them, that thou mayest come vpon them ouer agaynst the peccetrees. And when thou heareste a sounde, goe in the toppes of the peccetrees, then go oute to bat taye: for God is gone forth before the, to smite the host of the Philistines. David therfore dyd as God commaunded hym: and they smote the host of the Philistines from Gibeon to Gazer. And the fame of David went out into all landes and the Lozde made all nations feare hym.

C The xv. Chapter.

C The Levites baryng the arke agayne. David baryng the arke vnto it, is despyed of hym with synbol.

A And David made hym houses in the cite of David, & prepared a place for the arke of God, & pyched for it a tent. Then David sayd: the arke of god ought not to be caried, but of the Leuytes: for them hath the Lozde chosen, to beare the arke of the Lozde, and to mynistre vnto hym for euer. And David gathered all Israel together to Ierusalem to fetch the arke of the Lozde vnto hys place whiche he had ordeyned for it.

And David broughte together the chyldren of Aaron and the Leuytes. Of the sonnes of Caath was Eliel the chiefe, and of hys byethren three were an hundred and twenty. Of the chyldren of Merari, Asaia the chiefe, and of hys byethren two hundred and twente. Of the sonnes of Gersom, Joel the chiefe: and of hys byethren an hundred and thyrtye. Of the chyldren of Eliaphan, Demas the chiefe: and of hys byethren two hundred. Of the sonnes of Hebron, Eliel the chiefe, and of hys byethren: lxx. Of the sonnes of Uzziel: Aminadab the chiefe: and of hys byethren an hundred and twelue.

And David called Zadock and Abiathar the prestes and the Levites, Uzziel, Asaia, Joel, Demas, Eliel, and Aminadab: and sayde vnto the: ye that are the principal fathers of the Leuytes: let that ye be holpe with poure byethren, that ye maye byng in the arke of the Lozde God of Israel, vnto the place that I haue prepared for it. For because ye were not there at the first, & lozde our God made a rente amonge vs, for that we sought hym not, as the fallion ought to be. So the prestes & the Levites sanctified them selues to set the arke of the Lozde God of Israel. And the chyldren of the Levites bare the arke of God vpon their shoulders w staves thereon, as Moses commaunded: accordyng to the woide of the Lozde.

C And David spake to the chiefe heades of the Leuites: that they shoulde appoynt certayne of they: byethren to syng with instrumentes of mulke, psalteries, harpes and cymbales: that they myght make a sounde, and to syng on bye with ioyfullnesse: And the Levites appoynted heman the sonne of Joel: and (of his byethren) Asaph the sonne of Berachia: and of the sonnes of Merari and of they: byethren: Ethan & sonne of Chusaiah. And with them they: byethren of the seconde degree: zachariab, Ben Jaaziel, Hemiramoth, Jediel, Ami, Eliab, Benaiab, Maasias, Matathiah, Eliphaleh, Wihiah, Obed, Edom, and Joel porters. So heman, Asaph and Ethan the syngers made a sounde w cymbales of brass: And zachariab, Jediel, Hemiramoth, Jediel, Ami, Eliab, Maasiah, & Benaiab played with psalteryes on an Alamoth. Matathiah, Eliphaleh, Wihiah, Obed Edom, Jediel and Asaiab, played vpon harpes an eyght above with courage. And Chenania the chiefe of the Leuytes, was mayster of the song, for he taughte other to syng, because he was a man of vnderstandyng.

Berechias and Elhana kepte the doze of the arke. And Berachias, Jeholaphat, Berachias, Amasai, zachariab, Benaiab, and Eliezer, the prestes dyd blowe with trumpettes before the arke of God. And Obed Edom and Jedia, were the keepers of the doze of the arke.

And David and the elders of Israel and the captaynes ouer thousandes, went to set the arke of the appoyntment of the Lozde out of the house of Obed Edom with ioyfullnesse. And woe god helped the Leuytes that bare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lozde, they offered seven oxen and seven rammes. And David had on hym a linnen garment, lyke as had also all the Leuytes that bare the arke, and so had the syngers & Chenania the ruler of the song with the syngers. And David had vpon hym an Ephod of lynn. And all they of Israel broughte the arke of the Lozde couenaunt with shouryng and blowing of the floure and trumpettes making a noyse with cymbales, psalteryes and harpes.

And as the arke of the appoyntment of the Lozde came into the cite of David, Michol the daughter of Saul looke oute at a wyndowe sawe kyng David dauncyng and playeng, & she despyed hym in her herte.

C The xvi. Chapter.

David asyneth Asaph and hys byethren to mynstre before the arke. he hym selfe mayster the lozde God of Israel.

So they brought in the arke of God, & set it in the myddes of the tentye, that David pyched for it, and they offered burnt sacrifices and peace offerynges before God. And when David hadde made an ende of offeryng the burnt offerynges and peace offerynges, he blessed the people in the name of the Lozde. And he deale to all Israel (both ma and woman) a crakel of bread, & a good pyece of fleshe, and a flasket of wyne.

And he appoynted certayn of the Leuytes to mynistre before the Lozde, and to repecte and to thanke and prayse the Lozde God of Israel.

And

And Asaph was the chefe, and nexte to hym Zacharia, Isiel, Semiramoth, Isiel, Machabias, Eliab, Benai, * Obed EDOM, and Isiel wyth psalteries and harpes. But Asaph made a sonde wyth cymbales. Banasab and Zabaziel presides, blew wyth trompettes continually before the arke of the couenaunt of God.

And that same tyme Dauid byd appoynt the sy to thanke the Lord by Asaph and his brethren. * O gyue thanks vnto the Lord, call vpon his name, make his actes knowne among people. Synge vnto hym, and playe vnto hym: talke of all his wondrous dedes. Reioyse in his holy name: let the hartes of them that seke the Lord be glad. Behold the Lord and his strength: seke his presence alwaye.

Remember his maruailes whiche he doth, and his wonders, and the iudgements of his mouth. The seed of Israel are his seruantes, the chyldren of Jacob are his chosen. He is the Lord our God, in all landes are his iudgements.

Thynke on his appoyntment for euer: (and on the word which he commaunded to a thousand generations) whiche he made with Abraham, and of his oth to Isaac: which he set before Jacob for a decree, and to Israel for an euerylasting couenaunt, saying: to the well I gyue the lande of Chanaan, to be the porcion of your euerlasting faunce. When ye were fewe, and small in nomber, and souldiers therein. And they walked from nation to nation, and from one kyngdom to an other people. He suffered nom to do them wronge: but rebuked euen kynges for they lacked. Touch not myne appoynted, and do my prophetes no harme.

* Synge vnto the Lord all the earth, and shewe from daye to daye his saluation.

Tell of his glorie amonge the hepten: his wondrous dedes amonge all nations.

For great is the Lord, and worthy to be prayesed exceedingly, he is to be feared aboue al gods.

For all the goddes of the people are of no value. But the Lord made heauen.

People and honour are in his presence, strength, and gladnesse are in his place.

Ascribe vnto the Lord ye hundred of people: Ascribe to the Lord glorie and dominion. Ascribe vnto the Lord the glory due vnto his name: by synge sacrifices and come before hym, and worshippe the Lord wyth holy honour.

Let all the earth feare hym, although the chaffe of the earth be stablyshed that it can not be moued: let the heauens reioyse, and lette the earth be glad, and let men tel amonge the nations, that the Lord is kyng.

Let the see thunder, and the fulnesse thereof: let the felde reioyse and all that is therein.

Then shal the trees of the wood reioyse at the presence of the Lord, because he cometh to iudge the earth: O gyue thanks vnto the Lord for he is good, for his mercy endureth for euer: and saye ye: saue vs (O God) of oure saluation, gather vs together, a deliuer vs from amonge the hepten, & we may giue thanks to thy holy name, & triumph in the prayse of the. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel for euer and euer: and let all people saye: Amen: and praise the Lord.

And so he sette there before the arke of the Lordes couenaunt Asaph & his brethren, to minister before the arke continually, in suchethynges as were to be done daye by daye: (and that by theyr course.) And Obed EDOM & his brethren thre score and eght: and Obed EDOM the sonne of Jeduthun, and Hosa, were appoynted to be porters. And Zabab the priest, and his brethren the priests, were before the Tabernacle of the Lord, in the hye place that was at Gibeon, to offer burnt offerynges vnto the Lord, vpon the burnt offering alter perpetually, in the morning and euenyng: accordyng vnto all that which is wyrtten in the lawe of the Lord, which he commaunded Israel. And with them were Heman, and Jeduthun, & other that were chosen (whose names were exprest) to gyue thanks to the Lord, that his mercy lasteth euer. And wyth them byd Heman and Jeduthun synge wyth the trompettes and cymbales, making a sweet melody with instrumentes of musyke and goodly songes. And the sonnes of Jeduthun were porters. And all the people departed, euery man to his house: & Dauid returned to blesse his house.

The xvii. Chapter.

Dauid is iudged to dwelle in his house vnto the Lord. Child is promysed vnder the figure of Salomon.

As it fortuneth, that when Dauid dwelt in his house, he sayd to Nathan the prophete: lo, I dwell in an house of Cedar tree but the arke of the Lordes couenaunt remaineth vnder curtaynes: And Nathan sayde to Dauid: do all that is in thyne heart for God is wyth the.

And the same tyme it fortuneth, that the word of God came to Nathan, saying: Go, and tell Dauid my seruant, thus sayth the Lord: thou shalt not buyde me an house to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no house, syns I daye I brought oute the chyldren of Israel vnto this daye: but haue gone from tent to tent, and from one habitation to another. And whersoeuer I haue walked wyth all Israel, spake I euer one word to any of the iudges of Israel (whom I commaunded to fede my people) saying: why haue ye not buyt me an house of Cedar tree? Now therefore thus shalt thou saye vnto my seruant Dauid: thus sayth the Lord of hostes: I toke the oure of the pastures when thou wentest after shepe, that thou shouldest becapitayne ouer my people Israel. And I haue bene wryth the whypper for uer thou haste walked, and haue weded out all thynne enemyes out of thy syde, and haue made the a name, lyke the name ^(of me) of the greatest men that are in the earth. And I haue ordeyned a place for my people Israel, & made it fast, so that now they maye dwel in thery place, and moue nomore: Acyther that the chyldren of wichebedne beere them any moze, as at the begynnyng. And syns the tyme that I commaunded iudges to be ouer my people Israel: I haue subdued al thynne enemyes, and I told the, that the Lorde woulde buyde the an house.

C This also shal come to passe: when thy dayes be expyred, that thou must go vnto thy fatheres I wyl rayse vp thy seed after the, whych shalbe of thy sonnes, and wyl prepare for hym the kynngdome: he shal buyde me an house, and I wyl stablish his seate for euer: I wyl be hym father and he shalbe my sonne: and I wyl not take my mercy a waye from hym, as I toke it from him that was before the. But I wyl set him in mine house, and in my kynngdome for euer, and his seate shalbe sure for euermoze.

According to all these wordes, & accordyng to al this visid, did Nathan tel king David. And David the kynge came and sat before the Lorde and sayd: what am I (O Lorde God) and what is myne householde, that thou hast promoted me thus farr? And yet this seme lyke in thynne eyes, O God, But thou hast also spoken of thy seruantes house, for a great while to come: and hast lohed vpon me as vpon a man of hye degre. (O Lorde God) what shall David desyre moze of the for the honoure of thy seruante? O Lorde for thy seruantes sake, sent accordyng to thynne owne herte, hast thou done all this magnificence to the all great thynges, Lorde, there is none lyke the: neyther is there any god save thou: accordyng to all that we haue herde with oure eares. Woiover, what nation on the earth is lyke thy people Israel, to whom God hath vouchsafed to come and redeme the to be hym owne people, and to make thy name of an excellencie and terribleness, with castyng out nations from before thy people, whome thou hast deliuered out of Egypt.

D Thy people Israel dyddest thou make thynne owne people for euer, and thou becomest they: God. Therefore nowe Lorde, let the thyng that thou hast spoken concernyng thy seruante and his house, be true for euer, that thou do as thou haste sayde: let it come to passe, that thy name maye be magnified for euer, that it may be said the Lorde of hostes is God of Israel) euen the God of Israel) and the house of David thy seruante endureth stable before the. For thou (O my God) hast told thy seruante, that thou wilt buyde hym an house. And therefore thy seruante hath founde in his hert to pray before the. And nowe Lorde thou art God, and haste prompted this goodnesse vnto thy seruante. Nowe therefore, let it be thy pleasure, to blesse the house of thy seruante, that it maye contynue before the for euer. For whom thou blessest (O Lorde) the same is blessed for euer.

The xviii. Chapter.

The battayle of David agayn the Philistines.

After this it fortuneth, that David smote the Philistines, and subdued them, and toke Geth, and the towne that * longed thereto, oute of the hand of the Philistines. And he smote Moab, and the Moabites became Davids seruantes, and payed hym tribute. And David smote Hadarezer kynge of zoba vnto hanath, as he went to stablish his dominion by the ryuer Euphrates. And David toke from hym a thousand charettes, and seuen thousand horsemen, and twenty thousande footemen: and lamed al the charetthorses, and reserved of them and hundred charettes. And when the Syriens of Damasco came to helpe Hadarezer kynge of zoba: David slue of the Syrians, xxi. thousand and David subdued Siria Damasco. And the Syriens became Davids seruantes: & brought hym tribute. And the Lorde preserved David in all that he went to:

And David toke the sheldes of golde that were on the seruantes of Hadarezer, & brought them to Ierusalem. And from Tadmah, and from Chun (cities of Hadarezer) brought David exceeding moche bzasse. Wherewith Salomon made the basen lanatoye: * the pylers and the vessels of bzasse.

And when Tou kynge of hemath herd how David had beaten al the strenght of Hadarezer kynge of zoba, he sente Haduran hym sonne to kynge David, to make peace with hym, and to blesse hym, because he had fought agaynst Hadarezer, and beaten hym (for Tou had warre with Hadarezer) and David bycught al maner fewels of golde, spuer and bzasse with hym.

And kynge David dedicated them vnto the Lorde, with the spuer and golde that he brought from all nations: from Edom, from Moab, from the chyldren of Ammon, from the Philistines, and from Amaleche. And Abisai the sone of zeruah slue of the Edomites in the salt valleye. xviij. thousande, and put souldyers in Edom, and all the Edomites became Davids seruantes. Thus the Lorde kept David in all that he toke in hande.

And David raygned ouer Israel, and executed iudgements and ryghteousnesse amonge all his people. And Joab the sonne of zeruah was ouer the host. And Jehosaphat the sonne of Achub recorde: and Zabach the sonne of Abitob, and Abimelech the sonne of Abisaph were the preestes, and Banai was scribe, and Banai the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Cethites and Shelethites, and the eldest sones of David were next vnto the kynge.

The xix. Chapter.

Dauid kynge of the sonnes of Ammon becometh enemye to the seruantes of David.

After this it chaunceth, that * Nahab the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, & hym sonne raygned in his stede. And David sayde and sayde: I will shewe kyndnesse vnto hanon the son of Nabal: because his father belongeth to me. And David sente messengers to comforte hym ouer the death of his father.

And the seruantes of David came into the lande of the chyldren of Ammon to hanon, to comforte hym. But the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayde to hanon: thou hast thou that wold doth honoure thy father in thy sight, that he hath sent comforters vnto the? Are not his seruantes come to search, to loke & spy out the land?

Wherfore hanon toke Dauids seruantes (and poynted them) and shewed them, & cut of their cootes harde by their buttoches, and sent them away. And there wrote certayne and tolde David: howe the men were serued. And the kynge sent to mete them: for the men were exceedingly ashamed) and the kynge sayd: stay at Jericho vntill your bearded be growen: & then returne.

And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that they stank in the sighte of David, hanon and the chyldren of Ammon sent a thousande talentes of siluer, to buye them charettes and horseshes out of Mesopotamia and out of Siria, Gaacha, and out of zoba. And they byed xxxii. thousande charettes, and the kynge of Gaacha and his people, which came and pitched before the zoba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered the selues together fro their cyties, and came to batayle. And when David herde of it, he sent Joab and all the hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out, and put them selues in aray to battayle before the gate of the cite. And the kynge that were come, kept them by them selues backe in the felde.

When Joab also sawe that the fronte of the battayle was agaynst him before and behynde he chose out all the chosen men of Israel, and put them in aray agaynst the Sirians. And first of the people he deliuered vnto the hand of Abisai his brother, & they put them selues in aray agaynst the chyldren of Ammon. And he sayde: If the Sirians be to stronge for me, thou shalt succour me: and if the chyldren of Ammon preuaile agaynst the, I will helpe the: blucke up thyne hart, and let vs play the men: for our people sake and for the cyties of our God, and the Lorde shall do that which is good in his owne sight. So Joab and the people that were with hym: due nye before the Sirians vnto the battayle, and they fledde before hym. And whil the chyldren of Ammon sawe that the Sirians were fled, they ranne awaye lyke wynde before Abisai his brother, and gate them into the cite. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

And when the Sirians sawe that they were put to the worse before Israel, they sent messengers and set out the Sirians that were beyond the ryuer, and Shobach the captayne of the hoste of Hadarezer wente before them. And it was tolde David: and he gathered all Israel, & went together ouer Jordan, and came & set vpon them. And when David had put hym selfe in aray agaynst the Sirians, they fought with hym. But the Sirians fled before Israel, And Da-uid destroyed of the Sirians four thousande charettes, and xl. thousande footmen, & kylled Shobach the captayne of the hoste. And when the seruantes of Hadarezer, sawe that they were put to the worse before them of Israel: they made peace with David, and became his seruantes. After this wolde the Sirians helpe the chyldren of Ammon any more.

The xx. Chapter.

Of the most vncertaine battayles of David.

As it came to passe after the yere was expired (* about the tyme that kynge go out a warrefare:) Joab carryed out the army of the hoste, & destroyed the countrie of the chyldren of Ammon, and came and besieged Rabba and destroyed it: But David tarped at Jerusalem whyle Joab smote Rabba and destroyed it. * And David toke the crowne of their kynge, from of his heed, & founde that it had the waight of a talent of golde, and there were precious stones in it: and it was ordeyned for Dauids head. And he broughte also exceedingly moche spoyle out of the cite. And he brought out the people that were in it: & tormented them with sawes, and harowes of yron, and with other warpe instruments, and so brast David with all the cyties of the chyldren of Ammon. And David and all the people came agayne to Jerusalem. * After this it fortuned, that there arose warre at Gazer with the Philistines. At whiche tyme Dohai the husbande of the Shippai, that was of the chyldren of Rephaim & they were subdued.

And there was battayle agayne with the Philistines: and Elhanan the sonne of Jaar the Lahemi, the brother of Goliath the Gethyre, whose speare was lyke a weavers beame. And there chaced yet agayne warre at Geth, wher as was a man of a great stature, with xxiii. fingers and toes. vi. on euery hand and vi. on euery foote: and was the sonne of Raphath. But when he defied Israel, Jehonathas the sonne of Dumea Dauids brother slue hym. These were bozne vnto Rappah at Geth, & were ouerthrowen in the hande of David: and in the hande of his seruantes.

The xxi. Chapter.

David caused the people to be numbered, and these were lxx. thousande men of the presthood.

As Nathan stode vpon agaynst Israel & prouoked David to number Israel. And David said to Joab: & to the rulers of the people: go ye and number Israel fro Beerseba to Dan, and bring it to me: I may knowe the nombre of them. And Joab answered: the Lorde make his people an hundred tymes so many as they be. But my lord, O king are they not all my lordes seruantes: wherfore doth my lord requyre this thinge? why wille my lord be a cause of trespasses to Israel.

Nevertheless, the kynge wolde preuaile agaynst Joab. And Joab departed and walked thowhe out all them of Israel, and came to Jerusalem agayne, & gaue the nombre of the people vnto David. And all they of Israel were were a thousande, and an hundred thousande men that drew swerde: and Iuda was, cccc. lxx. thousande men that drew swerde. But the Levites and Ben Jamin counted he not among them. For the hynges woide was abhominable to Iohab. And the Lord was displeased with this thing: and smote Israel. And David sayd unto God: I have synned exceedingly in doing this thing. And nowe (I beseeche the) do awaye the wickednesse of thy seruantes, for I have done very foolishly.

B And the Lord spake unto Gad David's seer, saying: go and tell David, saying: Thus saith the Lord: I gree the, the choyle of the thynges: chose the one of them, that I maye do unto the. And Gad came to David, and said unto him. Thus sayeth the Lord: Chose the eyther that prynces sampliment, or the monethes to be destroyed before thyne aduersaries, and the swerde of thyne enemyes maye ouertake the, or els the swerde of the Lord and pestilence in the lande the dayes: and the angel of the Lord destroying thorowout all the coastes of Israel. And nowe aduise thy selfe, what woode I shal hyngre agayne to hym that sente me. And David sayd unto Gad: I am in an exceeding strait. Let me not be falle into the hande of the Lord, for paynyng great are his mercies, but let me not fall into the hande of men.

C So the Lord sent pestilence vpon Israel and there were ouerthrowe of Israel. lxx. thousand men. And God sent the angell into Ierusalem to destroy in it. And as he was about to destroy the Lord behelde, and had compassion on Ierusalem and sayd to the angel I destroyed: it is ynough let now the hande cease. And the angell of the Lord stode by the thershyng floore of Oznan the Jebusite. And David lyft up his eyes, and sawe the angell of the Lord stand betwene the earth and heauen, haupnge a drawen swerde in his hande, stretched out towards Ierusalem. Then David and the elders of Israel, whiche were clothed in sacke, fel vpon theyr faces. And David sayd unto God: Is it not Ieha that commaunded the people to be nombred? It is I that haue synned and done euyl in dede, & what haue these thepe doner? Let thyne hande (O my God) be on me and my fathers house, but not on thy people that they shoulde be paynyshed.

And the angell of the Lord commaunded Gad to saye to David, that David shoulde go vp, and set vpon an alter unto the Lord in the thershyng floore of Oznan the Jebusite. And David went vpon accordyng to the saying of Gad, whiche he spake in the name of the Lord. And Oznan turned about, and sawe the angell, & his four sonnes were with hym, and hyd them selues: But Oznan was thershyng wheat. And as David came to Oznan, Oznan looked and sawe David and went out of the thershyng floore, & bowed hym selfe to David with his face to the ground.

D And David sayd to Oznan: gree me I place of the thershyng floore, that I maye buyde an aultare therein unto the Lord. Thou shalt gree it me for as moche monepe as it is worth, that the plage may cease from the people. And Oznan sayd unto David: take it to the, and let my lord the kyng do that which seemeth good, in his eyes: so, I gree the oxen also for burnt sacrifices, and the thershyng sheafes for wood, and wheate for meat offering: I gree it all. And kyng David sayd to Oznan, not so: but I wyll bye it for as moche money as it is worth. For I wyll not take that which is thine for the Lord nor offre burnt offerings without cost.

And so David gaue to Oznan for that place sixes of golde. vi. hundred by wayght. And David buyde there an aultare unto the Lord, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings, and called vpon the Lord, and he berde him fro heauen in fyre vpon the aultare of burnt offering. And when the Lord had spoken to the angell, he put up his swerde agayne into the sheathe of it. At that tyme when David sawe that the Lord had berde hym in the thershyng floore of Oznan the Jebusite, he vled to offre there: for the Tabernacle of the Lord whiche Moses made in the wyldernesse, and the aultare of burnt offering were at that season in the hyll at Gibeon. And David coude not go before it to aske counsaile at God, for he was afrayed of the swerde of the Angell of the Lord.

¶ The xxii. Chapter.

David tolyth his sonne Salomon to buyde the temple of the Lord, whiche thing he dyd wille that he shoulde do.

A And David sayde: this is the house of the Lord god, and this is the aultare for the burnt offering of Israel: And David commaunded to gather together the strangers that were in the lade of Israel, and he set masons to be we freer stone for the buyldyng of the house of God. And David prepared plenty of pyon for nayles, and doers of the gates, & to iopne with al and aboundaunce of byasse without wayght and cedre trees without nombre. For the zibon and they of Tyre broughte moche Cedar wood to David. And David sayd: Salomons my sonne is younge and tender, and the house that is to be buyde for the Lord, must excede in greatnesse that it maye be spoken of, & praysed in al lades, I wyll therfore make ordinaunce for it. And so David prepared many thynges before his deeth.

B And he called Salomon his sonne, and charged hym to buyde an house for the Lord God of Israel. And David sayde to Salomon: my sonne, I thoughte (as it was in myne herte) to buyde an house unto the name of the Lord my God. But I woide of the Lord came to me saying: thou hast shed much blood, and hast made great battayles: thou shalt therfore not buyde an house unto my name: for I have shed moche blood vpon the earth in my lyght. Beholde, a sonne is bozne to the, and he shal be a man of rest, for I wyll gree hym rest from all his enemyes rounde about. For his name is Salomon: and I wyll send rest & peace vpon Israel in his dayes. He shall buyde an house for my name, and he shall be my sonne, and I wyll be his father, and wyll prepare the seate of his kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. Nowe therfore my sonne, the

Lord

Loide be with the, and prosper the, and I will build the house to the name of the Lord, the God of Israel. And the Lord shall give the wisdom and understanding, and shall give the commandments for Israel, that ye may keep the law of the Lord the God. For then thou shalt prosper: even when thou takest heed, and fulfillst the statutes and laws which the Lord charged Moses with for Israel. Pluck up thine heart therefore, and be strong, be not, nor be discouraged. Behold, in myne adversity have I also prepared for the house of the Lord, an hundred thousand talents of gold, and a thousand thousand talents of silver, and as for brass and iron it can not be numbred, for it is verie much. And I have prepared tymber and stone, and thou mayst procure more thereto. Moreover, thou hast workmen with the ynowgh, and masons, and carpenters to worke in stone and tymber, and many men that be accint for every worke. And of gold, silver, brass, and iron, there is no numbre. Up therefore, and be doinge, and the Lord be with thee.

D And David commaunded al the lordes of Israel to helpe Salomon his sone sayenge: Is not the Lord your God with you? hath he not given you rest on every side? for he hath given the inhabitants of the land into my hand, and the land is subdued before the Lord and before by people. Nowe therefore let your heartes and sonles to like the Lord your God. Up, and build ye the temple of the Lord God to bying the arke of the covenant of the Lord and the holy vessels of God into the house so built for the name of the lord.

Of which xxiii thousand were set to further the worke of the house of the Lord. And fyve thousand were officers and iudges. Four thousand were porters, and four thousand prayed the Lord with such instruments as was made to playe wythall.

And David sayd: the Lord God of Israel hath given rest vnto his people, that they may dwell in Ierusalem for ever. That the Levites also shoulde now be nomme to beare the tabernacle and all the vessels for the service thereof: for accordyng to the last wordes of David: the Levites were numbred from twenty yere, and about, and they were under the handes of the sones of Iahar, for the service of the house of the Lord, in the courtes and celles, and in purifying of all holy thynges, and in the worke of the service of the house of God. In the shewe bread, in the fyne flour, in the meat offering, in the wafters of sweete bread, in fryng panne, in gredyon, and in all manner of measures and cyle, and to stande euerye daye in the morninge, to thanke and prayse the Lord, and so to the wyle at euen. Hearemy brethren and my people: * I had in my herte to buyde an house of rest for the ark of the couenaunte of the Lord, and for the store stole of our God, and had made redy for y buydyng. But God sayd vnto me: * thou shalt not buyde an house for my name, because thou hast ben a man of warre, and hast shed blood. Whereouer, the Lord God of Israel * chose me before all the house of my father, to be kynge ouer Israel for euer, for in Iuda wolde he chose a captain, and of the householde of Iuda is the house of my father, and amonge the sonnes of my father he had a luste to me to make me kynge ouer all Israel. And of all my sonnes (for the Lord hath gyfte me many sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne to sit vpon the seate of y kingdom of the Lord in Israel. And he sayde vnto me: * Salomon thy sonne, he shal buyde me an house & courtes I haue chosen hym to be my son, and I wil be his father. I wil stablish his kingdom for euer: If he wil be stronge to do my commandementes & my lawes, as it goeth this day. And thou Salomon my son, knowe thou the God of thy father, & serue hym with a pure herte, and with a swete courage. * For the Lord searcheth all hertes, and vnderstandeth all the ymaginacions of thoughtes. And yf thou seke hym, he will be founde of the. But yf thou forsake hym, he will cast the of for euer. Take hede now, for the Lord hath chosen the, to buyde hym an house of a sanctuarye: Be stronge therefore, and playe the man.

And David gaue Salomon his sonne the patterne of y porche (of the temple also) and of the houses that lodged therto, of the store houses, upper chambers, inner parlours, & of the house of y mercyseate: and the example of all that he had in his mynde, for the courtes of the house of the Lord, and for all the ceilles rounde about, for the treasures of the house of God, & for the treasures of the dedycate thynges, & for the deuotions of the preestes and Leuites that waited by course, and for al the wo:hemanship that shoulde serue for the house of the Lord, and for al the vessels that shoulde

Quide setue in the house of the Lorde. For gold and for the wayght of golde, for all vessels of sonde ministracions: for all maner of vessels of silver in wayght, and for all vessels whatsoeuer purpose they serued vnto. The wayght of golde for the candle stykes, and the golde for the lampes, and the wayght for euery candle styke, and for the lampes thereof. And for the candle stykes of silver by wayght, both for the candle styke and also for her lampes, accordyng to the diuersitie of the vse of euery candle styke. And by wayght: for the golde for the tables of shewbryd, euen for euery table: and for the siluer for the tables of silver. And golde for the gobets cusses, and dymyng pottes. And pure gold in wayght for basons: eue for euery bason. And like wyse silver by wayght for euery bason of silver. And for the altar of incense pure gold by wayght. And golde for the paterne of the chaire of the eunuchs that strected out theyr wynges, and couered the arke of the conuenance of the Lorde. All (sayde he) was gyuen by wyppyn of the hande of the Lorde, which made me vnderstande al the worke manshipp of the paterne.

And Dauid sayde to Salomon his sonne: be stronge, and do manlye, feare not, nor be saynted: for the Lorde God, euen my God, is with the, and he shal not fayle the, nor forsake the. Vntill thou hast finished all the worke that must serue for the house of the Lorde. Beholde, the prestes and Leuites are deuoted in companies for all maner of seruyce that pertayneth to the house of God: they are with the for all maner of worke manshipp, and so are all that excel in wisdom for any maner of seruyce. Thou hast also lordes and al the people for euery thyng that thou hast neede of.

¶ The xxix. Chapter.

The offering of Dauid and of the princes for the building of the temple. Dauid dyed: and Salomon his sonne reigned in his steede.

AD Dauid the kynge sayde vnto all the congregation: * God hath specially chosen Salomon my son which is yet yong & tender, and the worke is greates: for the house shall not be for man, but for the Lorde God. Moreover, I haue prepared with al my might for the house of God, golde for vessels of golde, silver for them of silver, brasse for thynges of brasse, yron for thynges of yron, and wood for thynges of wood and onix stones: and stones to be set, glystryng stones and of diuers colour, and al maner of precious stones, and marble stones in great aboundance. And because I haue lust to the house of my God: I haue of myne owne pryue good, golde and silver which I haue sentrally gyuen to the house of my God, besyde all that I haue prepared for the holy house, euen the thousand talentes of golde of Oppir, and seuen thousand talentes of tryed silver to ouerlape the walles of the house to wythall, the golde for thynges of golde, silver for them of silver, and for all maner of worke by the handes of artycers. And whosoever is willing may this day consecrate his hande vnto the Lorde.

And so the ancient fathers & the lordes of the trybes of Israel, the captaynes of thousandes & hundredes, with the lordes that were rulers ouer the kynge's worke, were willing, and gaue for the seruyce of the house of God, syue thousandes talentes of golde, and ten thousand peeces of golde, and ten thousand talentes of silver, and xviij. thousandes talentes of brasse, and one hundred thousandes talentes of yron. And they with whome precious stones were founde, gaue them to the treasure of the house of the Lorde, by the hande of Jehiel the Gersonyte.

And the people reioysed when they were so willing to gyue theyr goodes, and with a perfect herte they offered vnto the Lorde. And Dauid the kynge reioysed with great gladnesse. And Dauid blessed the Lorde before all the congregation, and sayd: Blessed be thou Lorde God of Israel our father for euery & for euery. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatnesse and power, glorie, victory and prayse: for all that is in heauen and in earth is thine, and thine is the kyngedome (O Lorde) and thou excellest aboue all, euen as the heede of all. And thyselfe and honour come of the, and thou raynest ouer all, and in thine hande is power and strenght, and in thine hande it is to make great, and to gyue strenght vnto all.

And nowe our God, we thanke the, & prayse thy glorious name. But who am I and what is my people, that we shoulde enioy our selues to gyue these thynges to thynglyng? But all thynges come of the: and of that which we receyued at thine hande, we haue gyuen the. * For we be but strangers before the, and sojourners, as were all our forefathers.oure dayes on the earth also are but as a * shadowe, and there is none abydyng. O Lorde our God, al this stuffe that we haue prepared to buyld the an house for thyne holy name, cometh of thine hande, and is al thine. (I wrote also my God) & thou trest the hartes, and hast pleasure in vnfaynednesse. And in the vnfaynednesse of myne herte, I haue willingly offered all these thynges. And nowe haue I sent the people which are founde here, to offer vnto the willingly and with gladnesse. O Lorde God of Abraham, Isaac and of Israel our fathers kepe this for euery as the begynning of the thoughtes of the herte of thy people, and prepare theyr hartes vnto the. And gyue vnto Salomon my sonne a perfecte herte to kepe thy commandementes, thy testimonyes, and thy statutes, and to doo all, and to buyld the house for the which I haue made pounstion.

And Dauid sayde to all the congregation: Nowe bless the Lorde your God. And al the congregation blessed the Lorde God of theyr fathers, & bowed downe theyr heedes, and worshipped the Lorde and the kynge. And they offered offringes vnto the Lorde. And on the morowe after the sayde daye, they offered burnt offringes vnto the Lorde, euen a thousande ponge oxen, a thousande rammes, and a thousande sheepe, with theyr dymhe offringes. Many sacrificys offered they for all Israel, & byd east and dymhe before the Lorde the same daye with greates gladnesse.

¶ ii. And

And they made Salomon the sonne of Dauid kyng the seconde tyme, & anointed hym prince befoze the Loyde, and sadoe to be the hye preeft. iii. reg. ii. 10. And Salomon sat on the seate of the Loyde, and was kyng in stede of Dauid his father, and prospered: & all they of Israel obeyed hym. And all the loydes & men of power, and all the sonnes of kyng Dauid submitted them selues: and were vnder kyng Salomon. And the Loyde magnified Salomon in dignitie, in the syght of all the of Israel, & gaue hym so glorious a kyngdome, as no kyng had befoze hym in Israel. iii. reg. ii. 11.

And so Dauid the sonne of Isay ragyned ouer all Israel. And s̄ spacer that he ragyned ouer Israel was .xl. pere: first pere ragyned he in hebbō, and .xxiii. pere ragyned he in Ierusalem: & he dyed in a good age: full of dayes, cyches and honour. And Salomō his son ragyned in his stede. The actes of Dauid the kyng first and last: beholde, they are writen in the boke of Samuēl s̄ fear, & in the boke of Nathan p̄p̄phet, & in the boke of Gad the sear, with al his kyngdom & power, and tymes that went ouer him, & ouer al Israel and ouer all the kyngdomes of the earth.

The first Chapter.

The offering of Salomon in the bplauiter at Gibeon, where he receyued an answer of God, what wysdome shoulde he giuen hym: with the nombre of his charrettes and horsen.

iii. reg. iii. 10.

And Salomon the son of Dauid waxed strong in his kyngdome: & the Loyd his God was w̄ hym, and magnified him in the dignitie. And Salomon spake vnto all Israel, to s̄ captaynes ouer thousandes, to s̄ captaynes ouer hundredes, to s̄ iudges, & to euery officer in al Israel, and to the auncient fathers. And so Salomō, & all the congregacion with hym, went to the hye place that was at Gibeon: for there was the tabernacle of s̄ witness of God: which Moses the seruaut of the Loyde made in s̄ wyldernes. But the arke of God: had Dauid brought fro Hyrlath Ierlm, into s̄ place whiche Dauid had prepared therfoze. For he had prepared a tent for it at Ierusalem. And ouer the bplauiter: that Bezalet the sonne of Uri, the sonne of hur had made, was there befoze the tabernacle of s̄ Loyde. And Salomon & the congregacion went to visite it. And Salomō gat vp there befoze s̄ Loyd to s̄ bplauiter that was befoze s̄ tabernacle of witness, & offered a thousand burnt sacrifices vpon it. And the same nyght byd God appeare vnto Salomon, & sayd vnto hym: after what I shall gyue the. And Salomon sayd vnto God: thou hast shewed great mercye vnto Dauid my father, and hast made me to raygne in his stede. Now therfoze, O Loyde God, let thy promise whiche thou madest vnto Dauid my father, be true. For thou hast made me kyng ouer a people which is lyke the dust of the earth in multitude: wherfoze gyue me now wysdome & knowledge, that I maye be able to go in and out befoze this people: for who els can iudge this people that be so great? And God sayde to Salomon: because this was in thyne herte, & because thou hast not asked treasure, cyches, & honour, and s̄ lyues of thyne enemyes, neyther yet longe lyfe: but hast asked wysdome & knowledge for thy selfe to iudge my people, ouer which I haue made s̄ kyng: wysdome & knowledge is graunted vnto the, and I wil gyue the treasure & cyches and gloze: so that amonge the kynges that haue ben befoze the, & after s̄, none was as thou be like the. And so Salomon came from the bplauiter (that was at Gibeon) to Ierusalem, from the tabernacle of witness, & raygned ouer Israel: And Salomon gathered the charrettes & horsmen: and he had a thousand & foure hundred charrets, and xii. thousand, whom he bestowed in the charret cytes, & with the kyng at Ierusalem. And the kyng made siluer and golde at Ierusalem, as plenteous as stoness: and cedre trees made he as plente as the mulberre trees that growe in the valeys: & the horsen which Salomon had, were brought hym out of Egypt by the kynges merchants that were together, whiche bringe of one companie, take them out at a payce. Ther came also and brought out of Egypt a charret for syre hundred peces of siluer: euen an horse for an hundred and fyftee. And so brought they horsen for all the kynges of the hebrues, and for the kynges of Assyria by thery owne hande.

The ii. Chapter

Salomon freeth to Hyram the kyng of Tyre for wood and for stones.

And Salomō determined to build an house for s̄ name of the Loyd, and an house for his kyngdom: and Salomō told out thyscoze & ten thousand me to beare burthens, & foure scoze thousand men to hewe stoness in the mountayne: and the thousand and syre hundred to ouersee them. And Salomon sent to Hyram the kyng of Tyre, saying: As thou dydest deale with Dauid my father, & dydest sende hym cedre wood to buyde hym an house to dwel in, euen so deale with me. For I am about to buyde an house for the name of the Loyde my God, to offre vnto hym holy thynges, and to burne sweete incense, and to set the wyndes befoze him continually: to offre offer burnt sacrifices for the morning and evening: on the Sabbath dayes, in the first day of euerie new moone, and in the solempne feastes of the Lorde our God: for it is an ordinance to be continually kepte of Israel. And the house wherby I buyde shalbe great, for great is our God aboue all goddes. But who is able to build hym an house when that heauen, and heauen aboue all heauens is not able to receiue hym?

B What am I that I shoulde buyde him an house? nay, but euen to burne sacrifice before hym, shal this buydyng be: sende me now therefore a conynge man that can worke in golde & syluer, in brasse and yron, in purple, crymosen and pelowe sylke, & that can skil to graue in the chynge met that are with me in Iuda and Ierusalem, whom Dauid my father dyd prepare. Sende me also Cedre trees, Wyne trees & Almuge trees oute of Libanon. For I wot that thy seruantes can skil to hewe tymber in Libanon. And beholde, my men shalbe wyth thyne, that they maye prepare me tymber ynough. For the house wherby I am determyned to buyde shalbe wonderful great. And beholde, for the vse of thy seruantes scutters and the betters of tymber I haue gyft. xx. thousande quarters of beaten wheate, and .xx. thousande quarters of barley, and .xx. thousande bates of wyne, & .xx. thousande bates of oyle. And Hiram kynge of Tyre answered in wyrtynge which he sent to Salomon: Because the Lorde hath loued his people, therefore he hath made the kynge ouer them. And Hiram said mozeouer: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel which made heauen and earth, and that hath gyuen Dauid the kynge a wyfe sonne, & one that hath discretion, prudence and vnderstandyng to buyd an house for the Lorde, & a palace for hym selfe. And now I haue sent a wyse man, and a man of vnderstandyng (whome my father Hiram dyd use) the son of a woman of the daughter of Dan, & his father was a man of Tyre, & he can skil to worke in golde and syluer, in brasse and yron, in stone, and tymber, in purple and pelowe sylke, in fyne wypper and crymosen: and can graue sondry manner of subyle worke that shall be sette before hym, with thy conynge men, and with the conynge

D men of my lorde Dauid thy father. Nowe therefore the wheat and barley, oyle and wyne, which my lorde hath spoken of, let hym sende vnto his seruantes. And we wyll cut wood in Libanon as moche as thou shalt nede, and wyll brynge it to the in thyppes by the see to Iapho, fro wher thou mayest cary them to Ierusalem. And Salomon nombred all the straungers that were in the lande of Israel, after the nombere of them whom his father Dauid had nombred. And they were founde an hundred and lxx. thousande, and fyve hundred. And he sette lxx. thousande of them to beare burthens, and lxxx. thousande to hewe stones in the mountayne: and thre thousande and fyve hundred officers to set the people a worke.

The iii. Chapter.

The temple of the Lorde: and of the porche are buylded, with other thynges thereto belongyng.

And Salomon began to buyd the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem, in mount Moria: where the Lorde appeared vnto Dauid his father, euen in the place that Dauid prepared in the thiersyng floore of Oman the Jebusite. And he began to buyd in the seconde daye of the seconde moneth, & the fourth yere of his raygne. And these are the paterne wherby Salomon was instructed to buyd the house of God. The length was threescore cubytes after the olde measure, and the bredth .xx. cubytes. The porch, & was in bredth as large as the temple, had .xx. cubytes: & the depgth was an hundred and .xx. cubytes. And he overlaid it on the inner syde with pure golde.

B And the greater house he tyld with fyfetye re which he overlaid with the best gold, and graued thereto palmestrees & chaynes. And he overlaid the house wyth precious stone beautifuly. And the golde was golde of Paruaim. The house (I saye) the beames, pooles, walled, and doores therof overlaid he with golde, & made grauen worke vpon the walled.

And he made the house mooste holpe, whose length was .xx. cubytes lyke the bredth of the house, and the bredth therof was also .xx. cubytes. And he overlaid it with good golde, cut in fyve hundred talentes. And the weygth of the naples of golde was fyfetye syckles. And he overlaid the vpper chambres with golde.

C And in the house mooste holpe he made two Cherubins of ymage worke lyke chyliden, and overlaid them wyth golde. And the winges of the Cherubs were .xx. cubytes longe. The one wyng was .v. cubytes reachyng to the wall of the house, & the other wyng was lyke wyse fyve cubytes, reachyng to the wyng of the other Cherub. And euen so the one wing of the other Cherub was .v. cubytes, reachyng to the wal of the house, & the other wyng was .v. cubytes also, & reached to the wyng of the other Cherub. So that the winges of the sayd Cherubs were streched out .xx. cubytes, and they stode on their feet and looked in wardes. And he made a foze hanging of pelowe sylke, purple, crymosen, and fyne wypper, and caused the pectures of Cherubdes to be bzodied thereon. And he made before the house two pylers of .xxxv. cubytes hie. And the heed that was aboue on the top of euerie one of them was .v. cubytes, and he made chaynes of wyrtyn worke for the quere, & put them on the heedes of the pylers, & made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the chaynes. And he created vpon the pylers before the temple: one on the right hand, and the other on the left, and called the ryght Jachin, and the left Boaz.

The iiii. Chapter.

The altier of brasse, the laver, the baskets to brynge the candyls, &c.

And he made an altier of brasse .xx. cubytes longe, and .xx. cubytes bzyde, and ten cubytes hie. And he cast a bzylen lanne of ten cubytes from hym to hym, rounde in compasse, and fyve cubytes hie: and a lyne of thyrty cubytes dyd compasse it rounde aboute.

And vnder it was the fasson of oren which byd compass it rounde about: with ten cubites byd they compass the lauatory rounde about, & there were two rowes of oren which were cast of lyhe molten worke. And it stode also byd twelue oren, they looked towards the north, they towards the west, they towards the south, & they towards the east, and the lauatory was set vpon them, & all they backes were towards the lauatory. And the thicke hett of it was an hand bierde, and the hymn lyke the hymn of a cup, with floures of lyhes. And it was curiour, and helde the thousande dates.

11. 1. 1. 1.

* And he made ten lauers, and put fyue on the ryght hande, and fyue on the lefte, to wasche and clynse in them suche thynges as they offered for a burnt offring. But the great lauatory was for the prestes to wash in. And he made ten candlestyches of golde (accoording to the paterne that was gauen of them) and put them in the temple fyue on the right hand, and fyue on the lefte. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple fyue on the ryght syde, and fyue on the lefte. And he made an hundred basens of golde. And he made the court of the prestes, and the great court and doores to it: and overlaped the doores of them with brasse. And he set the great lauatory on the right side of the east ende ouer agaynst the south. And Hiram made pottes, houels and basens, and finished the worke that he was appoynted to make for kynge Salomon in the house of God. The two pylers, the couerynges of two heedes on the toppes of the pylers, and the two wyrtches to couer the two scalpes of heedes that were on the toppes of the pylers: and foure hundred pomegranates on the two wyrtches, two rowes of pomegranates on one wyrtch to couer the two toppes of heedes, that were on the pylers. And he made two botomes: and lauers made he vpon the botomes: the great lauatory, and the lye oren vnder it. Pottes also and houels, shouers, and all these vessels byd Hiram (his father) make to kynge Salomon for the house of the Lorde of bright brasse. In the playne of Jordan byd the kynge caste them, euen in the claye grounde that is betwene Mocoth and Jarebatha. And Salomon made all these vessels in great aboundance, for the wayght of brasse coulde not be reckened.

10 And Salomon made all these vessels that were for the house of God: the golden altar also and the tables to set thewbyzed vpon. Mozeouer, the candlestyches, with theyr lampes (to burne after the maner before the quere) and that of precious golde: and the shouers and the lampes, and the incensers made he of golde, and that perfect golde, and the brylling knyues, basens, sponges, and censers of pure gold. And he made the doore of the temple, and the inner doores wch in the place mooste holy, and the inner doores of the temple were gyted. And so was all the worke that Salomon made for the house of the Lorde fynished.

¶ The v. Chapter.

¶ The arke is brought into the temple, wher it is fylled with the glory of the Lorde.

1 Also all the worke that Salomon made in the house of the Lorde was finished, and Salomon brought in all the thynges that Dauid his father had dedicated with the silver and golde, and all the Jewels, and put them amonge the treasures of the house of God.

Then Salomon gathered the elders of Israel together, and all the herdes of the tribes & ancient fathers of the chyldre of Israel vnto Jerusalem to bring the arke of the couenant of the Lorde out of the cytie of Dauid, which is Iton. Wherfore all the men of Israel resorted vnto the king in the feast, eue in the vii. moneth. And all the elders of Israel cam, & the Leuites toke vpp the arke. And the prestes and the Leuites brought a way the arke & the tabernacle of wyrtchess, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle, and they bare them. And kynge Salomon and all the congregation of Israel were assembled vnto hym before the arke, offered there & oren, so many, that they coulde not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And the prestes brought the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde vnto his place, euen into the quere of the temple, within the place moost holy, and set it vnder the wynges of the Cherubs that the Cherubs stretched out theyr wynges ouer the place of the arke, and the Cherubs couered bothe the arke and her barres aboue on hye. And the barres of the arke were so long, that the heades of the barres were sent without the arke into the quere, but not without. And there the arke remayned vnto this daye. But there was nothing in the arke save the two tables which Moyses put therein at Horeb, when the Lorde made a couenant with the chyldre of Israel, after they were come out of Egypte. And it fortuneth, that wher the prestes were come out of the holy place (the sanctuary was fylled with smoke) for all the prestes that were present were sanctified and byd not then wayte by course, that both the Leuites and the syngers vnder Asaph, Heman and Jeduthan were appoynted to sonde offycers, with theyr chyldren and betheren, and were arrayed in fyne whyte, haunginge cymbales, psalteries and harpes, and stode at the east ende of the altar, and by them an hundred & twenty prestes blowinge with trompettes. And the trompet-blowers, and the syngers so agreed, that it seemed but one voyce, in playnginge and thankyng the Lorde. And when they lyft vpp theyr voyce with trompettes, cymbales, and other instrumentes of musycke: and when they played the Lorde, (and sayd) how that he is good, and his mercy lasteth euer: the house of God was fylled with a cloude, so that the prestes could not endure to minstre by the reason of the cloude. For the maner of the Lorde had fylled the house of God.

¶ The vi. Chapter.

¶ The wordes of Salomon to the people, and the people that he made vnto God.

1 Then Salomon sayd: * the Lorde hath spoken, howe that he will dwell in the cloude. And I haue buylt an habitacile for the, and a place for thy dwellynge for ever. And he hys turned his face, & blessed the hole congregation of Israel, & al the congregation of Israel stode. And he sayde: blessed be the Lozde God of Israel, whych hath w his handes fulfilled it, & he spake w his mouth to my father Dauid, saying: thus the day that I brought my people out of the land of Egypt, I chose no cite among al the trybes of Israel to buyde an house in, that my name myght be there, neyther chose I anye man to be a ruler over my people Israel: I saynge: I have chosen Jerusalem, & my name myght be there, & I have chosen Dauid to be over my people Israel. * And whē it was in the hart of Dauid my father to buyde an house for my name, I dyddest well that thou so thoughtest in thy hart. For with this dyng, thou halt not buyde a house, but thy son whiche is y occaded oute of thy loynes, he shall buyde an house for my name. The Lozde therfore hath made good his saying that he hath spoken: I am rylen up in the roume of Dauid my father, & am set on the seate of Israel, as I Lozde promysed, and have buyt an house for the name of the Lozde God of Israel. And in it have I put the arke wherin is the covenante of I Lozde, that he made w the chyldre of Israel. And the kynge stode before the auter of the Lozde, in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and stretched out his handes. For now Salomon had made a bzalen pulpyt of fyue cubites longe, and fyue cubites wyde, & the top of bryght, & had let it in the myddes of the great court, and upon it he stode, and kneeled downe upon his knees before all the congregation of Israel, and stretched oute his handes toward heauē, and sayd: * O Lozde God of Israel, there is no god lyke the in heauen and earth, which hepest couenant, and thewest mercy vnto thy seruantes, that walke before the with all theyr hartes. Thou whiche haste hepest wiche thy seruante Dauid my father, the thinges that thou promysdest him, thou saydest it with thy mouth, and haste fulfilled it with thy handes, as it is to se this daye.

And now Lozde God of Israel, hepe wiche thy seruante Dauid my father, & thinges that thou promysdest hym, & saynge: thou shalt be in my ryght not be without a man that shall sye vpon the seate of Israel: so that thy chyldre take hede to theyr wayes, to walke in my lawe, as thou hast walked before me. And now Lozde God of Israel, let thy saying be true whiche thou spakest vnto thy seruante Dauid. And wyl God in very dede dwell wth men on earth? Beholde, * heauen, and heauen above all heuens do not contayne the: how moche lesse the house whiche I haue buylded: Let it be thy pleasure therfore to turne to the prayer of thy seruante, and to his supplicacion (O Lozde my God) to hearken vnto the voyce & prayer whych thy seruante prayeth before the, and let thine eyes be open toward this house daye & nyghte over this place, wherin thou hast sayd: that thou wouldest put thy name, to hearken vnto the prayer whiche thy seruante prayeth in this place: hearken vnto the prayers of thy seruante, and of thy people Israel which they praye in this place: heare thou (I saye) out of thy dwelling place, euen out of heauen, heare and be mercyfull. * If a man synne agaynst his neyghboure, and take not an othe agaynst hym, and make hym to sweare, and they bothe come before thine auter in this house, then heare thou from heauen, and worke, and iudge thy seruantes, that thou rewarde the vngodly and recompence hym his waye vpon his hebd, and iustifye the ryghtous, and gyue hym accordyng to his ryghtousnesse.

And if thy people Israel be put to the worst before the enemye, because they haue synned agaynst the. Yet if they turne & gyue thanks vnto thy name, & make intercession & praye before the in this house, then heare thou from heauen, & be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy people Israel and byngne them agayne vnto the lande whiche thou gauest to them and to theyr fathers.

* When heauen is quete vp, and there be no rayne, because they haue synned agaynst the: yet if they praye in this place, & confesse thy name, & repente for theyr synne, for the whiche thou chastenest them, then heare thou in heauen, and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy seruantes, and of thy people Israel, and gyde thou them into the good waye to walke in, & sende rayne vpon thy lande, which thou hast gyuen vnto thy people for an inheritaunce.

And if there be dearth in the lande of pestilence, corruption, of blasting of cozne, grethoppers, of caterpillers, or that theyr enemyes besiege them in the cyties of theyr lande, or whatsoeuer plage or synnersse it be. Then what supplications & prayers soeuer shall be made of any man, and of al thy people Israel which shall knowe euery man his owne loze, and his owne grete, & shall stretch out their handes toward this house, thou shalt heare from heauen, euen from thy dwelling place, and shalt be mercyfull, and gyue euery man accordyng vnto all his wayes, euen as I do knowe euery mannes herte: for thou onely knowest the hartes of the chyldren of me: that they may feare the, & walke in thy wayes as longe as they lyue in the lande whych thou gauest vnto theyr fathers.

* Moreover, the straunger which is not of thy people Israel, if he come from a farr lande for thy great names sake, & thy mighty hand, & thy stretched out arme. If they come (I say) & pray in this house: thou shalt heare from heauen, euen from thy dwelling place, & shalt do accordyng to all that the straunger saith to the: for that all people of the earthe may knowe thy name, and feare the as doeth thy people Israel, & that they may knowe, how that in this house whych I haue buyt, thy name is called vpon.

If thy people go out to warr agaynst theyr enemyes, by the way that thou shalt send them, and they praye to the, in the way toward this cite whiche thou hast chosen, euen toward the house whiche I haue buyt for thy name: then heare thou from heauen theyr supplicacion and prayer, and helpe them in theyr ryght.

E * If they syn agaynst the: * as there is no man but he doth sinne, and thou be angry with them and deliuer them ouer befoze their enemies, and they take them and lede them away vnto a land farre of nere, yet if they repent in theyr herte in the lande where they be in captiuitie, and turne and pray vnto the in the lande of theyr captiuitie, saying: we haue synned, we haue done euill and wychedly: and turne agayne to the with al theyr herte, and all theyr soule, in the lande of theyr captiuitie, where they kepe them in bondage, and so praye towardes theyr lande whych thou gauest vnto theyr fathers, euen towardes the cytie which thou hast chosen, & towardes the house whych I haue buylte for thy name. Then heare thou from heauen, euen fro thy dwelling place theyr supplication and theyr prayer, and iudge theyr cause, and be merciful vnto thy people which haue synned agaynst the.

Nowe my God, let thyne eyes be open, & thyne eares attente vnto the prayer that is made in this place. Nowe vp, * O Lorde God into thy resting place, thou and the arche of thy strength. O Lorde God, let thy prestes be clothed with health: and let thy sayntes reioyse in goodness. O Lorde God turne not away the face of thyne annoynted. Remembre the mercyes whiche thou hast promysed to Dauid thy seruaunt.

The vii. Chapter

The fire consumed the sacrifice. The house was placed in Salomon the seconde tyme.

Ad * when Salomon had made an ende of praying, it came downe fyre from heauen, and consumed the burnt offeringe and the sacrifices. And the house was fylled with the glorye of the Lorde, and the prestes coulde not go into the house of the Lorde, because the glorye of the Lorde had fylled the Lordes house. And when al the children of Israel saw how the fire and the glorye of the Lord came downe vpon the house, they fell downe flat vpon theyr faces to the earth, vpon the pavement, and worshipped and offered vnto the Lord, that he is gracious, and that his mercy lasteth euer.

25 And the kynge and al the people offered sacrifices befoze the Lorde. And kynge Salomon offered a sacrifice of. xxi. thousande oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousande shepe. And so the kynge and all the people dedicated the house of God. And the prestes wayted on theyr offices, and the Levites had the instrumentes of musyke of the Lorde, which kynge Dauid had made to confesse vnto the Lord, that his mercy lasteth euer: playinge a Psalm of Dauid with theyr bandes. And the prestes blew with trumpettes befoze them: and all they of Israel stood.

So ceoney Salomon halowed the myddle of the couerte that was befoze the Lorde, for there he offered burnt offerings, and the fat of the peace offerings, because the bryasen altier which Salomon had made, was not able to receiue burnt offerings, and the meate offerings, and the fat.

So at the same tyme Salomon kept a feast of seven dayes, and all they of Israel with hym an exceeding great congregacion, euen from the entryng in of Hamath vnto the ryuer of Egypt. And in the eighth daye they made a gathering: for they kept the dedication of the altier seven dayes, and the feast seven dayes. And the xxiii. daye of the seventh moneth he let the people departe into theyr tentes glad and mery in herte: for the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed to Dauid & to Salomon, and to Israel his people.

And Salomon finished the house of the Lorde, and the kynge house, & al that came in his hert to make in the house of the Lorde, & in his owne house, went prosperously forwarde.

And the Lord appeared to Salomon by nyght and sayd to hym: I haue herde thy petition, and haue chosen this place for my seile, to be an house of sacrifice. ¶ If thou wilt vpon heauen that there be no rayne: or if I commaunde the locustes to deuoure the lande: or if I sende pestilence amonge my people: and if they that are of my people, among whom my name is called vpon, do humble them selues, and make intercession, and seeke my presence, and turne from theyr wyched wayes: then wilt I heare from heauen, and be mercifull to theyr synne, and wilt deale theyr lande.

And from henceforth myne eyes shall be open and myne eares attente vnto the prayer that is made in this place. ¶ And therefore now * I haue chosen and sanctified this house, that my name be there for euer: and myne eyes and myne herte shall be there perpetually.

And if thou wilt walke befoze me, as Dauid thy father walked, to do al that I haue commaunded the, and shalt obserue my statutes and my lawes, then wilt I stablysh the seate of thy kynge dome, accordyng as I made the couenaunt with Dauid thy father, saying: * thou shalt not be without a man to be ruler in Israel. But and if thou turne away, and forsake my statutes and commaundementes which I haue set befoze you, and shalt go and serue other goddes, & worshippesthem: then wilt I pluche them up by the rootes, out of my lande which I haue gyven them, and this house which I haue sacrificed for my name wilt I cast out of my syde, and wilt make it to be a pyowerte and a iest amonge all nationes.

And euery one that passeth by shall be astonysed at this house whiche belonged to the mooste hye God, and shall saye: * why hath the Lorde deit on this fashion with this lande, and with this house? ¶ And they shall aunswere: because they forsoke the Lorde God of theyr father, whych brought them out of the lande of Egypte, and taught holde on other goddes, and worshipped them, and serued them: euen therfore hath he brought all this euill vpon them.

The viii. Chapter.

The cyties that Salomon buylded after that the house of God was finished.

Ad * it fortuneth, that after. xx. yeres whiche Salomon hadde buylte the house of the Lorde, and his owne house: he buylt the cyties that Hyram gaue hym, & put of the children of Israel in the. And Salomon went to Hamath math zoba, & strigged it. And he buile Chadmos in y^e wyldernesse, and repayred al y^e stozz cities which were in Hamath. And he buile Beth hozon the upper, & Beth hozon the nether, strong cities, haunging walles, gates and barres. And Baalab, and all the stozz cities that Salomon had, and all the charret cities, And the cities of the hoysmen, & every pleasant place that Salomon had lust to buyde in Jerusalem, & Libanon, & thozowout al the lande of his dominion.

B And all the people that were left of the hebreites, Amozites, Pherezites, Heuites, and Jebusites, whiche were not of the chyldzen of Israel: but were the chyldzen of them whiche were left after them in the lande, and were not consumed of the chyldzen of Israel, them dyd Salomon make to paye tribute vntyll thys daye.

But of the chyldzen of Israel dyd Salomon make no bondmen for his worke: but they were of warre, and rulers, and great lordes wyth hym, and captaignes ouer his charrettes & hoysmen. And kyng Salomons officers that ouer sawe, and ruled the people, were two hundred and fyfye. And Salomon brought y^e daughter of Pharaon oute of the cite of Dauid, into the house that he had buyded for her. For he sayde: my wyfe shall not dwelle in the house of Dauid kyng of Israel, for it is holy: because that the Arke of the Loyde is come vnto it.

C Then Salomon offered burnt offrynges vnto the Loyde, on the analtare of the Loyde, which he had buyde before the porch, dayng euerie thynge in his due tyme, and offeryng accordyng to the commaundement of Moyses, in the Tabbothes, netwe Doones, and solemnye feastes, & thre tymes in the yere, that is to saye: in the feast of sweete bread, in the feast of weakey, and in the feast of Tabernacles.

And Salomon set the sortes of prestes to the officers, as Dauid his father had ordered them, and the Leuites in the watches, for to praye & minster before the prestes day by day and the porters by course, at euerie gate.

D For so had Dauid the man of God commaunded. And they omitted not the commaundement of the kyng vnto the prestes and the Leuites, concernyng any maner of thynge, and concernyng the treasures. For Salomon made prouision for the charges, from the fyfthe day that the foundacyon of the house of the Loyde was layde, tyl it was fynished, that the house of the Loyde was perfyete. Then went kyng Salomon to Ezion Gaber, and to Elath to the see syde in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sent hym by the handes of his seruantes, wyppes, and seruantes y^e had knowledge of the see: & they came wth the seruantes of Salomon to Ophir, and caried thence four hundred and fyfye talentes of golde, & brought it to kyng Salomon.

¶ The ix. Chapter.

C The communicacyon of Salomon wth the queene of Saba and the gyftes that she gaue the kyng. The death of Salomon, after whome successeth Jeroboam.

A And when the queene of Saba hearde of the fame of Salomon, she came to proue hym in harde questyons at Jerusalem, with a verie great company, with camels that bare spyes and plentye of golde, and precious stones. And when she was come to Salomon, she communed wyth hym of all that she had in her herte. And Salomon sayed her all her questyons, and there was not one worde dyd frome Salomon, whiche he tolde her not.

B And when the Queene of Saba had sene the wysedome of Salomon, and the house that he had buyde, & the meate of hye table, & the setting of his seruantes, and the standing of hye waytes, the appaill, hye buiterers, the appaill, his goynge vp, by the whiche he went into the house of the Loyde, there was no more sperte in her. And she sayde to the kyng: the saying which I heard in myne owne lande, of thine actes, and of thy wysedome, is true. I beleued not the wordes of them, vntill I came, & myne eyes had sene it. And behold the one halfe of thy wysedome was not tolde me: for thou excellest the fame that I herde. Happy are thy men, and happye are the thy seruantes whiche stande before y^e alway, and heare thy wisdom. Blessed be the Loyde thy God, which had lust to the, to set the kyng on his seate, that thou mygdest be kyng, ordeined by the Loyde thy God. Because thy God loueth Israel, and hath helpe to make them contynue euer: therfore made he the kyng ouer them: to do ryght and equite.

C And she gaue the kyng an hundred and xx. talentes of golde, & of spyes excadynge great aboundaunce and precious stones, neyther was there any more such spye, as the Queene of Saba gaue kyng Salomon. And the seruantes of hyam, & the seruantes of Salomon which brought gold fro Ophir, brought also Almuge wood and precious stones. And the kyng made of the Almuge wood, keyes in the house of the Loyde, and in the kynges palace, and harpes and psalteries for syngers. And there was no such wood sene before in the land of Iuda. And kyng Salomon gaue to the Queene of Saba euerie pleasant thynge y^e she asked, but not so muche as she brought vnto the kyng. And so she turned & went away to her owne labe wth her seruantes.

D The weyght of golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was fyre hundred. lxvi. talentes of golde, besydes that which chapmen & marchantes brought: and all the kynges of Arabia & rulers of that coltre, brought golde and syluer to Salomon. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten gold, and fyre hundred syces of beaten gold were spent vpon one buckler, and thre hundred wydes made be of beaten golde, and one sylde cost thre hundred peces of golde, and the kyng put them in the house that was in the forest of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seate of Iuoy & ouerlayde it wth pure golde. And there were fyre steppes to the seate, with a fotebole of golde fastened to the seate: and pommells on eche syde of the setting place, and two Lyons standing by the pommells. And xii. Lyons stode on y^e one syde and on the other vpon the fyre steppes, so y^e there was no such work made in any kingdom.

R. V. And

E And all the brasse vessels of king Salomon were of gold, and all the vessels of the house that was in the fourth of Lebanon were of precious gold: for silver was counted nothing worth, in the dayes of Salomon. For the hynges whynes went to Charis with the seruantes of hyam: every three yere ones came the hynges to Charis, and brought gold, silver, Iuoy, and apes, and peccocks.

¶ And hyng Salomon passed all the hynges of the earthe in wysdome. And all the hynges of the earthe sought the presence of Salomon, to heare his wysdome that God had put in his hart. And they brought every man his present, vessels of silver, & vessels of golde, raiment, harness, cyfers, boxes, and mules, & what so ever myght be gotten yere by yere.

¶ And Salomon had four thousand stables for horses, and charrettes, and twelue thousand horsemen, whome he bestowed in the charret cyfers, and some were with the hyng: at Jerusalem. And he raygned ouer all the hynges that were from Euphrates vnto the lande of Philistynes: and to the border of Egypte.

¶ And the hyng made silver in Jerusalem, as plentiful as stones. And Cedar trees as plentiful as the mulberry trees that growe in the valleyes. And they brought vnto Salomon boxes out of Egypte, and out of all landes.

¶ The first of the actes of hyng Salomon first and last, are they not wyeten in the saynges of Nathan the prophete, and in the prophete of Ahiah the Shilonite, and in the visions of Iddo the seer of visions agaynst Jeroboam sonne of Nabat. And Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israel fourty yeres. And Salomon slepe with his fathers, & they buried hym in the cite of Dauid his father: and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

¶ Certe fourthly of Rehoboam, and the deuotion of his realm.

Ad Rehoboam went to Shchem: for to Shich were all Israel come together, to make hym hyng. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which was fled into Egypte from the presence of Salomon the hyng heard it, he returned out of Egypt. And they sent and called hym. And so Jeroboam and all they of Israel, came and communed with Rehoboam, sayenge: Thy father layd a greuous yoke vpon vs now therfore remyt thou somewhat of greuous seruyce of thy father, and of his heuy poche that he put vpon vs: and we wyl serue the. And he said to them: come agayne vnto me after thre dayes. And the people departed.

¶ And hyng Rehoboam consulted with the elders that had stande before Salomon his father, while he yet lyued, and he sayde: What counsaile gyue ye me, to answer this people a gayner. And they tolde hym, sayng: If thou be hynde to this people, and shewe thy self lowly to them, and speake lowngre wordes to them: they wyl be thy seruantes for euer. But he left the counsaile whiche the elders gaue hym, and toke counsaile with the ponger men that were growen up with him, and that stode in his presence. And he sayd vnto them: what a vyle geue ye, that we maye amerce this people, whiche haue comend to me, sayng: adatte somewhat of the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs.

And the ponger men that were growen up to hym, spake vnto hym, sayng: Thus shalt thou amerce the people that spake to the, sayenge: Thy father made oure yoke heuy: but make it somewhat lighter for vs. Thus shalt thou say vnto them, my litle synger shall be heuyer then my fathers loynes. For wher my father put a heuy yoke vpon you, I wyl put more to your yoke. my father chastised you with whypes but I wyl chastise you with scorpions.

And so Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the thirde day, as the hyng bad, sayng: come agayne to me the thirde daye. And the hyng answered them cruelly: & hyng Rehoboam leste the counsell of the aged men, & answered them after the aduise of the pong men sayenge: My father made your yoke greuous, and I wyl adde thereto: my father chastised you with whypes, but I wyl chastise you with scorpions. And so the hyng berkened not vnto the people, but the occasion came of God that shoulde myght make good his sayeng, & whiche he spake, by the hande of Ahiah the Shilonite to Jeroboam sonne of Nabat. And when all they of Israel sawe the hyng wolde not agre vnto them: the people answered the hyng, sayenge, what part haue we in Dauid, or engeritader to the sonne of Harriet every man of Israel go to his tent. And now Dauid, se to thyne owne house. And so all Israel gat them to theyr tentes, so Rehoboam raygned ouer no mo of children of Israel, the dwelt in cities of Iuda. The hyng Rehoboam also sent Hadurá I was ruler ouer the tribute, & the chyldren of Israel stoned hym with stones & he dyed. But hyng Rehoboam made swete to get hym vnto his charret, to fflye to Jerusalem. And they of Israel rebelled agaynst the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

¶ The .xi. Chapter.

¶ Certe howe he fought agaynst Jeroboam. He hath .xviii. wyues, and .lx. concubynes, and by them .xviii. sonnes, and .lx. daughters.

Ad when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he gathered of shoulde of Iuda and Ben Iamin, nine score. Chosen men of warre to fyght agaynst Israel, and to hyng the hyngdome agayne to Rehoboam. And the wordes of the Lord came to Achishai the man of God, sayeng: speake vnto Rehoboam, the sonne of Salomon hyng of Iuda, & to all them of Israel that are in Iuda and Ben Iamin, and saye: thus sayeth the Lord. Ye shall not go vp now; fyghte agaynst your brethren: returne every man to his house for this thing is done of me. And they obeyed the wordes of the Lord, and returned fro Jeroboam agaynst Jeroboam.

And Rehoboam dwelt in Jerusalem, & built stronge cities in Iuda he builded by Bethle, and

and Ekham, And Ticho: Bethzur, Mocho, and Iouliam: Gath, and Garria: and ypp Iourahim, Lachis and Iercha: zorea, Ialain and Hebion, which is in Iuda and Ben Iamin, strong cities. And he repayed the stronge holdes and put captaynes i them, and store of vptayle, and wyne, and oyle. And in all cities he put wyldes and speeres, and made them creadynge strong hauninge Iuda and Ben Iamin on hys tyde.

C And the priestes & the Levites that were in all Israel, resorted vnto hym out of all theyr coastes. For the Levites left theyr suburbs & theyr possellid, and came to Iuda and Ierusalem: * for Jeroboam & his sonnes had cast them out from minystrynge vnto the Lorde. * And he ordeyned hym priestes for the hylalters, for ydols and for the calves whiche he had made. And after the Levites there went of al the trybes of Israel, such as submytted theyr hartes to seke the Lorde God of Israel, and came to Ierusalem to offer vnto the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And so they strengthed y^e kyngdome of Iuda, & made Roboam the sonne of Salomon myghtye, the yere long, for that yere they walked in y^e waye of Dauid and Salomon.

And Rehoboam tooke hym Habelath the daughter of Jerimoth the sonne of Dauid to wyfe, & Abihail the daughter of Eliab the sonne of Hui, which bare hym chyldren Ierus. Samaria, and Jaba. And after her he toke Maacha daughter of Absalom which bare hym Abia, Attai, Ziza, and Melomich. And Rehoboam loued Maachah the daughter of Absalom above all his wyues and concubines, for he toke eghten wyues, and thre scoze concubynes, and begatte xxviii. sones, and thre scoze daughters. And Rehoboam made Abiah the sonne of Maachah the chiefe ruler among his byerthen, and to haue the ouersight of the kyngdome. And he playde wylf, and scattered all his chyldren thowout al the countreys of Iuda and Ben Iamin vnto euerie stronge cite. And he gaue them abundance of vitayle, and obtayned many wyues.

¶ Defach kinge of Egypte witheth the temple of the Loid. Nehoboam dyeth, and Zedaya cometh succer-beth hym.

As it came to passe, & when Rehoboam had stablished the kingdome, and became mygdy, he forsoke the lawe of the loyde, and all Israel with him. * And it fortuned & in the first yere of hyng Rehoboam, Desai the hyng of Egypte came by agaynst Ierusalem, because they

Then came Demetria the prophet to Rehobam together within Ierusalem for Sefiac, and said vnto them: thus sayeth the Lorde, ye haue left me, and therefore haue I also left you in the han the kynge humbled them selues, and sayde: & them selues, therefore I will not destroye them.

But I wylle deliuer them some what, and my my seruyce, and the seruyce of the kynge dome of the world. And so Sefiac kynge of Egypte res of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of the kynges house: he toke euery all. And he ca ried awaye the wyldes of golde, & which Salo ppre men whych were stronge & men of armes.

And Abia rode vp vpon jemeratim an hyll, whiche is in mount Eubaim, & sayde: heare me thou Jeroboam & al Israel. Do not you knowe howe that the Lord God of Israel gaue þing dome ouer them of Israel, to Dauid for euer, euen to hym and to his sonnes wyth a salted covenante? And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat þe seruant of Salomon the sonne of Dauid is risen vp, and hath rebelled against his Lord. And there gathered to him leude men the chyldren of Belial, & ppeuapled agaynst Rehobad the sone of Salomon, whil Rehobad was sponge and tender herted, & could not stande before them.

And nowe pescape, þe be able to ppeuaple a geynt the kyngdome of the Lozde, whych is in the handes of þe sonnes of Dauid, & ye be a great myltitude, & haue the golden calues & whych Jeroboam made you for goddes. * And haue ye not caste out the prestes of the Lozde the sonnes of Aaron, and the Leuites, and haue made you prestes after the maner of the nacjons of other landes: so þe whosoener cometh & consecrateth his hand with a sponge ore &. vii. camis, þe same may be a preste of them that are no goddes.

But we belonge vnto þe Lozde our god whil we haue not forsaken, & the prestes are þe sonnes of Aaron whych minystrer vnto the Lozde, and the Leuites waite vnto the prestes office. They burne vnto the Lozde euery moynynge and euenynge burntacrifices & swete incense, & we beade set they in order vnto a pure table: & prepare the candlesticke of golde & the lampes of the same to burne euer at euen. And truely we kepe the watche of the Lozde our God: but ye haue forsaken hym. And behold, God hym self is our cap tapne, and his prestes blowe wyth the * trompettes, and crye alarum agaynst you. Ope chyldren of Israel, fygth not agaynst the Lozde god of your fathers, for it wyl not prosper to you.

But for all that, Jeroboam conueyed me ppeuaply aboute, to come behynde them: and so they were before Juda, and the ipers in waite were behynde them. And when they of Juda loked aboute, beholde the battayle was before and behynde, and they cryed vnto the Lozde, and þe prestes blew wyth the trompettes, and the men of Juda gaue a shout. And as the men of Juda shouted, it came to passe, that God smote Jeroboam and Israel before Abia & Juda. And the chyldren of Israel fled before Juda, and God be spured them into the hande. And Abia & his people slay a greete slaughter of them: there fell downe wounded of Israel. v. c. w. chosen men. And so the chyldren of Israel were broughte vnder at that tyme: & the chyldren of Juda ppeuapled: because they leaned vnto the Lozde God of their fathers. And Abia folowed after Jeroboam, and toke the cities from hym, Bethel, with the towncs belogging therto, Jersala & the towncs that lodged therto, & Ephraim & her towncs. And Jeroboam recovered no strenght agayn in þe dayes of Abia. And the Lozde plagued hym, & he dyed.

But Abia wared myghtie, & married. xiiii. wyues, & begat. xxii. sonnes & xvi. daughters.

The xiii. Chapter.

Of the bygge of Asa.

Asa the sone of Abia slepte with his fathers, and they buried hym in the cite of Dauid and * Asa his sonne reigned in his stede: In whose dayes the lande was in quyetnesse ten yere.

And * Asa byde that was good and ryght in the eyes of the Lozde his God: for he toke away strange alters & the pylalters, & brake downe the ymagis, and cut downe the groves, and commaunded Juda to seke the Lozde God of their fathers, and to do accordyng to the lawe & commaundment: And he put away out of al cityes of Juda the pylalters and the ymagis, and the kyngdome was quiet before hym. And he bygge stronge cities in Juda: because the lande was in rest, and he had no warre in those yeres. For the Lozde had gyuen hym rest.

Therfore he sayd to Juda: let vs bygge these cities and make aboute them walles, towres, gates, and barres, for the lande is yet in rest before vs, because we haue sought the Lozde our God: we haue sought hym, and he hath geue vs rest on euery syde: and so they bygge and it prospered wyth them. And Asa had an army of me that bare spydes and speares oute of Juda the hundred thousande: and out of Ben Jamin that bare spydes and dyre bowes, two hundred and foure score thousand, al these were valiant men.

And there came out agaynst them Zerah, the blacke Moopan * with an hoste of ten hundred thousand and the hundred charettes, and came as farre as Warresa. And Asa went oute before hym, and they toynd the battayle in the valley of Jephata helyde Warresa. And Asa cryed vnto the Lozde his God, and sayde Lozde: * it is no harde thyng wyth the to helpe cyther man, or them that haue no power: helpe vs therfore, O Lozde our God, for we trust to þe, & in thy name we go agaynst this myltitude. Thou arte the Lozde our God, and no man shall ppeuaple agaynst the. So the Lozde smote þe blacke moes before Asa and Juda, and the blacke moes fled. And Asa and the people that was wyth hym folowed after them vnto Serer. And the blacke moes hoste was ouerthrowen, that there was none of them left, but were destroyed before þe Lozde and before his hoste. And they carped away a myghtye greete praye. And they smote all the cityes rounde about Serer. For the feare of the Lozde came vpon them. And they spoyled all the cityes, and there was exceedinge muche spoyle in them, they smote also the tentes of cat tell, and carped awaye plenty of shepe and camels, and returned to Jerusalem.

The xiv. Chapter.

Of the bygge of the mynyon of the prophet Asaia sayngis vnto the Lozde. He was myghtie in a myghty maner.

As the spete of God came vpon Asaia: the sone of Obed. And he wente oute to meete Asa, and sayde vnto hym: heare me Asa, and all Juda, and Ben Jamin. The Lozde is wylth you, dwyle ye be wylth hym, and when ye seke hym, he wyl be founde of you, & agayne when ye forsake hym, he also wyl forsake you. And truly for a longe season in Israel no man soughte the true God, no man regarded the priest that taughte them, no man cared for the lawe. And wher any man in his trouble dyd turne vnto the Lorde God of Israel, and soughte hym, he was found of them. And in that tyme ther was no peace to hym, that dyd go out & in: but great sedition was there amonge all the inhabytants of the earth. And nation was destroyed of nation, and cite of cite: for God dyd moue all aduersite amonge them. Blame ye therfore men and let not your handes slacke, for your worke shall be rewarded.

And when Ala heard those wordes, and the prophesye of Azaria: the sonne of Obed the pphete, he toke courage, and put a waye the abhominable ydolls out of all the lande of Juda and Ben Jamin, & out of the cities which he wanted in mount Ephraim, and renewed the Altare of the Lorde, that was before the porch of the Lorde. And he gathered al Juda & Ben Jamin, and the strangers wylth them out of Ephraim. Manasse and Simeon. For there fell many to hym out of Israel, when they saw that the Lorde his God was wylth hym. So they assembled to Jerusalem the thyrde moneth, the xlvijth yere of the raygne of Ala. And they offered vnto the Lorde of same tyme of the spoyle which they had brought vii. hundred oren, and vii. thousand shepe.

And they made a couenaunt to seke the Lorde God of they fathers, wylth all they herte, and all they soule. And who so euer wolde not seke the Lorde God of Israel, shulde dye for it: wylth ther be were small or great, man or woman. And they swore vnto the Lorde wylth a loude voyce shouting and blowing wylth trompettes and Hawkes. And all they in Juda reioiced at the orde, for they had sworn vnto the Lorde wylth all they herte, and soughte hym wylth all they lust, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue them rest rounde about on every syde.

And kynge Ala put Maacha his mother out of auctoryte, because she had made an abhominable ydoll: & of wyages in a grone: & Ala brake downe her ydoll, & stamped it, & burnte it at the broke Cedron. But all the hyaulternes were not taken awaye out of Israel: though the hert of Ala was perfyte all his dayes. And he brought into the house of God the thynges that his father had dedycate, & that he hym selfe had dedycate: euen syluer, and golde, and Jewelles. And there was no more warre vnto the xxxv. yere of the raygne of Ala.

The xvi. Chapter.
Ala the sonne of Asa kynge of Israel, witherth a couenaunt wylth Benhadad kynge of Syria.

In the xxxvi. yere of the raygne of Ala came Baasa kynge of Israel by agaynst Juda, & buylt Rama to then tent: for he wolde let none passe oute of it: & he wrote to Ala kynge of Juda. And Ala set out golde and syluer, oute of the treasures of the house of the Lorde, & of the kynges house & sent to Benhadad kynge of Syria & dwelt at Damascus, & sayde: There is a consideration betwene me & the, betwene my father & thyne. Beholde, I haue sent the syluer & gold, that I wyl come & breake thine appoyntment wylth Baasa kynge of Israel: for he maye departe fr om me. And Benhadad graunted vnto kynge Ala, & sent to the captaynes of his army to the cities of Israel. And they smote Iion, Don, & Ibelmain, and the strong cities of Nepthalay. And wher Baasa heard this, he lefte buyldynge of Rama, and let his worke cease. And then Ala & kynge toke all Juda, & carped away the stones & tymbre of Rama wher wylth Baasa was a buylding and he buylt ther wylth Seba and Gizza.

At that same tyme Hanani the sear came to Ala kynge of Juda: & sayd vnto hym: because thou hast trusted in the kynge of Syria, & not rather put thy trust in the Lorde thy God, therfore is the hoste of the kynge of Syria escaped out of thine hande. & had not the blake Voyes, & Lubim an excedynge greute hoste wylth many charrettes and horsemen: And yet because thou trustedest in the Lorde, he deliuered them into thyne hande. For the eyes of the Lorde beholde all that is earth to strenghten them: & all of perfyte herte toward him: & herin thou hast done foolishlye, & therfore shouldest thou haue daue warre. And Ala was wrooth wylth the sear, & put hym into a pryse house for he was dyspleased wylth hym, because of this thyng. And Ala destroyed certayn of the people the same reason. And behold, these dedes of Ala first and last, are wyrtten in the booke of the kynges of Juda and Israel. And Ala in the xxxix. yere of his raygne fell sycke in his sette, and that dyscase continued vnto longe. And in his sykkenesse, he soughte not the Lorde, but phisycons. And Ala slept wylth his fathers, and died in the xli. yere of his raygne. And they buried hym in his owne sepulchre, whiche he had made for hym selfe in the cite of Dauid, and layde hym in the bed whiche he had fylled wylth dyuers kindes of spices & sweete odoures, made by crafts of the potecaryes. And they burnte very moche spycer aboute hym.

The xvi. Chapter.

Jeholaphat causeth the feare of the Lorde to be reuened amonge the people.

And Jeholaphat his sonne raygned in his stead, and preuailed agaynst Israel. And he put souldiers in al the strong cities of Juda, and set rulers in the lande of Juda & in the cities of Ephraim, which Ala his father had wonne. And the Lorde was wylth Jeholaphat, because he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauid, and soughte not Baalim. But soughte the Lorde God of his father, and walked in his commandmentes, and not after the doinges of Israel. And the Lorde stablished the kyngdome in his hande, & all they that were in Juda, brought hym plesentys, so that he had aboundaunce of rychesse and honoure. And he sette vp his hert vnto the wayes of the Lorde, & he put downe yet more of the hyaulternes

B alters and groves oute of Iuda.

In the thyrde yere of his reygne he sent to hye loydes, euen to Benhai, Obadia, zacharia, Bethdaniel, and to Michaahu, that they shoulde teache in the cities of Iuda, and wryth them he sent Leuites: euen Semelahu, Aethaniahu, za badiahu, Isabel, Semiramoth, Jehonathan, Adoniyahu, Tobiah, & Tubadonia, and wryth them Elisamah and Jehoiad prieres. And they taught in Iuda, and had the booke of y^e lawe of God wryth them, and went about thowout al the cities of Iuda, and taught the people.

C And the feare of the Lorde fell vpon all the kyngdomes of the landes y^e were rounde aboute Iuda, & they fought not agaynst Jehosaphat, & some of y^e Philistines broughte Jehosaphat gyftes & tribute syluer. And thereto the Arabians broughte hym camel: euen. vii. M. & vii. C. rams & vii. M. & vii. C. begotes. And so Jehosaphat prospered & grue vp an hye. And he buylt in Iuda, castels & stronge cities, & he had greute substaunce in the cities of Iuda, but the men of armes and strongest souldyers were in Jerusalem.

D And these are the offyces of the in the houses of they: fathers, the captayns ouer thousandes in Iuda. Adna the caprayne, and wryth hym of fygdyng men. iii. C. M. And nexte to his hade was Jehobanana captayn, & wryth hym. ii. C. & lxxx. M. And next hym was Amazia y^e son of richai, which of his owne good wyll offered hym selfe vnto the Lorde & wryth hym. ii. C. M. myghtye men of warre. And of the chyldren of Ben-Jamin, Eliada a man of myght, and had wryth hym armed men wryth bowe & spyde. ii. C. M. And nexte hym was Jeholabad, & wryth him an C. lxxx. M. y^e were prepared for the war. These wayted on the kyng, besydes those whiche the kyng put in y^e strong cities thowout al Iuda.

C The. xviii. Chapter.

After Ahab had at his counsaile of the foure hundred prieres, he put Michaah in y^e first rowe. he wryth wryth the booke of an attorde.

A And Jehosaphat had aboundaunce of ryches and honoure, & lorned as- synpte with Ahab. And after cer- tayne yeres he wett downe to Ahab to Hamaria. And Ahab slue many theye & oren for him, and for the people y^e he had wryth hym, and entreated him to go vp wth him vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And Ahab kyng of Isra- el sayd to Jehosaphat kyng of Iuda: wyle y^e go wryth me to Ramoth in Gilead? And he answered hym: I wyl be as y^e and my people shalbe as thyne, and we wyl go wryth the to the warre.

B And Jehosaphat sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: as he counceyl I pray the at the word of the Lorde this same daye. Therfore the kyng of Israel gathered together of prieres. iiii. C. men, & sayd vnto them, Shall we go to Ramoth in Gilead to fyght, or shulde I ceasse? And they sayd: go vp, & God shall deliuer it into the kynges hande. But Jehosaphat sayde, is there yet here neuer a prophete moze of y^e Lorde than we myghte aske of hym? And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto Jehosaphat: there is yet one man, by whom we maye aske the Lorde. But I hate him for he neuer prophesyeth me good, but alwaye euell, & the same is Michaah the sonne of Iunia, and Jehosaphat sayde: let not the kyng saie so.

C And the kyng of Israel called one of his chyl- derlayns, & sayde fetche herther quickly Michaah the sonne of Iunia. And the kyng of Israel, & Jehosaphat kyng of Iuda late cyder of them on hye seate in theyr apparell, in a chyrse kynges honore besyde the gate of Hamaria, and all the prieres ppropheryed before them. And one Je- dekia the sonne of Chanana had made hym hoz- nes of yron, and sayde: thus sayth the Lorde, whiche shall thou ouerthrowe Moysa, vntyl they be broughte to nought. And all y^e prieres ppro- pheryed euen so, sayenge: Go vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and it shall prosper wryth the: for the Lorde shall deliuer it into y^e hande of the kyng.

D And y^e messenger y^e went to cal Michaah spake to hym, sayenge: beholde, the wordes of the prieres speake good to y^e kyng wryth one assent let the wordes therfore be lyke one of theys, y^e thou speake that whiche is pleasaunt. And Mi- chaah sayde: as truly as y^e Lorde lyueth, eue what my God saith y^e wyl I speake. And whil he was come to the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto hym: Michaah, shall we go to Ramoth in Gilead to fyght, or leaue off? And he sayde: go vp, & al shal be well: and they shal be deliuered into your hande. And the kyng sayde to hym: So and so many tymes do I charge y^e, that y^e say nothyng but the truth to me: in the name of the Lorde.

E Then he sayde: I byd le all them of Israel scattered in y^e mountayns, as theye y^e haue no shep- herde. And the Lorde sayd: these haue no maister let them retorne euery ma therfore to his house in peace. And the kyng of Israel sayde to Jeho- saphat: byd I not tell the, y^e he wold not prophete good vnto me: but euell. But he sayd agayn therfore heare ye y^e wordes of the Lorde. * I saw the Lorde sye vpon hye seate, & al the chyrany of heauen stode on hye ryght hande & on hye left. And the Lorde sayde. who shall deceaue Ahab kyng of Israel: y^e he maye go vp & be ouertho- wen at Ramoth in Gilead? And he said: one say- eth thes, another y^e. And there came out a spiete & stode before y^e Lorde, & sayd: I wil deceiue him. And y^e Lorde sayde vnto hym. Wherein? And he sayde: I wyl go out, and be a lyeng spiete in the mouth of all his prieres. And the Lorde sayde thou shalt deceaue hym: & shalt puaile go out and do enen so. And now therfore beholde, * the Lorde hath put a spenge spiete in y^e mouthes of all these thy prieres, & the Lorde hath spoken euell agaynst the. And dedekia the sonne of Cha- nana went to, & smote Michaah vpon the cheke: & sayd, by what way went y^e spiete of y^e Lorde fro me, to speake wth the? And Michaah said y^e shalt se the daye when y^e shalt go in from chahye to chahye, for to byd the selfe. And the kyng of Isra- el sayd: take ye Michaah, & byng hym to Amou the gouernour of y^e cite & to Ioas y^e kynges sone and ye shal saye, thus sayth the kyng, put this felowe in the prison house, & fede hym wth breade of affliction & water of trouble vntyl I come a- gayne in peace. And Michaah sayd: y^e come a- gayne gayne in peace, then hath not the Lord spoken to me. And he said heark to ye people every one of you. And so the kynge of Israel and Jehosaphat the kynge of Juda went up to Ramoth in Gilead. And the kynge of Israel sayde unto Jehosaphat: I must change me, when I go to the battayle: but se that thou have thine owne apparell upon the. And the kynge of Israel chaunged hym selfe, and they came to battayle. But the kynge of Siria had commaunded captains of the charretts were with him, sayinge: se ye fyght not agaynst small or great, save agaynst the kynge of Israel onely. And when the captaines of the charretts sawe Jehosaphat, they sayde: it is the kynge of Israel, & therfore they compassed about hym to fyght. But Jehosaphat cryed out, & the Lord helpe him, & God chaſed them away fro hym. For it came to passe when the captaines of the charretts perceyved it was not the kynge of Israel, they turned backe agayne from hym. And a certayne man dyde a bowe with al his myght, & smote the kynge of Israel betwene the ioyntes of his habergein. And he sayd to his charretman, turne thine hande, that thou mayst carrye me out of this place, for I am wounded. And the battayle ceased that daye. Howbeit the kynge of Israel caused his charrette to stande still agaynst the Sirians untill euen. And about the tyme of the sunne going downe, he dyed.

The xix. Chapter.

After Jehosaphat was rebuked by the prophet Jehu, he called againe the people to the house of the Lord.

After Jehosaphat the kynge of Juda came home agayne in peace to Jerusalem. And Jehu the son of Hanani the seer went out to mete him, & sayd to king Jehosaphat: Woldest thou helpe the vngodly, & loue them that hate the Lord? therfore is wrath come vpon thee from before the Lord. Reuer theles, there are some good actis found in thee, in that thou hast broken downe thy grones out of the lande and hast prepared thine heart to seke god. And so Jehosaphat dwelt at Jerusalem: and turned and went out to the people from Beerseba to mount Ephraim, and brought them agayne vnto the Lord God of theyr fathers. And he set Judges in the land thowout al the strong cities of Juda, citie by citie: & sayde to the Judges: take hede what ye do, for ye execute not iudgements of man, but of God, whiche is w you in the iudgement. Wherfore now, let the feare of the Lord be vpon you and take hede, and be doynge the thing that pleaseth hym: for there is no vneygherousnesse with the Lord our God: that he should haue any respecte of persones, or take rewardes.

Whereouer in Jerusalem dyd Jehosaphat set of the Levites, & of the prestes & of the auncient fathers ouer Israel, in the iudgement & cause of the Lord. And they returned agayne to Jerusalem. And he charged them sayinge: Thus shal ye do in the feare of the Lord, w the truth and a pure herte: What cause so euer come to you of your brethren & dwell in theyr cities, betwene blood & blood, betwene lawe & commaundment, betwene statutes & ordinaunces, ye shal warn them: they trespasse not agaynst the Lord, & so wrath come vpon you & on your brethren. Thus do ye shall not offende. And behold, Amarias the prest is amonge you in al matters of the Lord. & Jehadiah the son of Imael, a ruler of the house of Juda, he is ouer such busynesses as concerne the kynge: there be officers of the Levites also before you. Take courage to you therfore, & be doynge manfully: & the Lord shalbe w such as be good.

The xx. Chapter.

The marvelous victory that the Lord gave Jehosaphat kynge of Juda agaynst the Moabites, and the children of Ammon, and them of their

After this also, it fortuned that the children of Moab & the children of Ammon and with them other of the Ammonites came agaynst Jehosaphat to battayle. And there came some to tolde Jehosaphat sayinge: there cometh a great multitude agaynst thee from the other syde of the sea, & out of Siria. And behold they be in Hasalon Tamar, which is engaddi. And Jehosaphat feared: and set hym selfe to seke the Lord, and proclaimed fastynge thowout all Juda. And they were in Juda, gathered the scitens together to aske counsell of the Lord. And they came out of al the cities of Juda to make intercession to the Lord. And Jehosaphat stode betwene the congregacion of Juda and Jerusalem in the house of the Lord before the new court. & sayd. O Lord God of our fathers, art not thou God in deaul, & rappest not thou on al the kynghomes of the earth? And in thine hande is power & myghte, & there is no man that is able to withstande thee. Art not thou our God, which dydest cast out the inhabitants of this lande before thy people Israel, & gauest it to the syde of Abazai the loue for euer? And they dwelt therein, & haue buyt a temple therein for thy name, sayinge: & it shall come vpon vs, as a swerde of iudgement, pestilence, & hunger, the yf we stand before this house in thy presence, for thy name is in this house, & cry vnto thee in our tribulacion, heare thou and helpe.

And now beholde, the children of Ammon & Moab, & mount Seir, by whom thou woldest not let them of Israel go, wher they came out of the lande of Egypt: but they departed from them, & destroyed them not. We, how they rewarde vs, to come for to cast vs out of thy possessiō, which thou hast geuen vs to inheret. Our God wilt thou not iudge them: for we haue no myghte agaynst this great company that cometh agaynst vs. Rather wote we what to do: but our eyes be vnto thee. And al Juda stode before the Lord with theyr yonge ones, theyr wyues, & theyr children: and there was Jehasiel the sone of Zacharia the sonne of Banania the sonne of Jehiel the sonne of Athania, a Leuite of the sones of Iaph, and vpon hym came the spere of the Lord, euen in the myddes of the congregacion. And he sayd her to al Juda, & ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou kynge Jehosaphat: Thus sayth the Lord vnto you: be not afrayde, nor saynte deryd by reason of this great multitude: for the battayle is not yours, but Goddes. To morowe go ye downe agaynst them for they come vpon at this daye.

ye shall fynde them at the ende of þe booke before the wyldernesse of Jeruel. Ye shall not neede to fynde in this battayle: but they forsook and stand and beholde the helpe of the Lord which is with you: feare not. nor let your hartes faile you, O ye of Juda and of Jerusalem. To morowe goo out agaynst them. for þe Lord wilbe with you. And Jehosaphat bowed his face to the earth: and al Juda and the inhabiteers of Jerusalem fel before the Lord. And they worshipped the Lord. And the Leuites of the chyldren of the Canaanites & of the chyldren of the Cozathytes stode up, to prayse the Lord God of Israel: with a loude voyce on þe. And when they arose early in the mornynge, they gat them out vnto the wyldernesse of Cheloa. And as they went oute, Jehosaphat stode & sayd: heare me, O Juda, & peenhabytters of Jerusalem. Put your trust in þe Lord your God, that ye maye be founde sayth full. Gue credence to þys prophete, and so shall ye prosper. And he gaue the people councel, and set some to synge vnto the Lord, & to prayse hym in the bewtyr of holynes, and to go out before þe armie, as they went, and to saye, prayse þe Lord for þys mercye lasterthuer. And what tyme as they began to laude and prayse, then the Lord stered vnto certayne of the chyldren of Ammon & Moab, whych layde wayte for them that were of moite Heir: which were come agaynst Juda. And they were ouerthrowen with strokes among them selues. For the chyldren of Ammon and Moab rose agaynst the inhabiteers of moite Heir. And they slew and destroyed them: And when they had made an ende of the inhabiteers of Heir, euery one helped to destroye an other amonge them selues.

And when Juda came to the edge of the wyldernesse, they looked vnto the multitude. And behold, they were dead carcasses fallen to þe earth, and none escaped. And whē Jehosaphat and his people came to take awaye the spoyle of them: they found amonge them aboundaunce of goodes, rayment & pleasant Jewels, whych they toke for them selues, more then they coude cary awaye: so that they were thre dayes in gatheringe of the spoyle, it was so moche. And the fourth daye they assembled in the valley of blessing, for there they blessed the Lord. And there for they called the name of the same place, the valley of blessing vnto this daye. And so all the men of Juda and Jerusalem returned with Jehosaphat they drede, for to go agayne to Jerusalem with gladnesse, for the Lord had made them to reioyce ouer theyr enemyes. And they came to Jerusalem with psalteries, and harpes and shawmes, euen vnto the house of the Lord. And the feare of God fel in the kyngdoms of all landes, when they hadde hearde that the Lord fought agaynst the enemyes of Israel. And so the realme of Jehosaphat was in tranquillite: and þys God gaue hym rest on euery syde.

And Jehosaphat raygned vpon Juda, and was, xxxv. yere olde when he began to raygne and raygned. xxv. yere in Jerusalem, and þys mothers name was Iudith the daughter of Sil

hi. And he walked in the wayes of Asa his father, & bowed not ther from, buyng that whych was ryght in the syght of the Lord. Howbeit the hylaulters were not taken awaye, for þe people had not yet prepared theyr hartes vnto the God of theyr fathers. The rest of þe actes of Jehosaphat fynd ye last beholde they are wyrtt amonge the sayenges of Iehu þe sonne of Hanani which noted the in þe booke of þe kynges of Israel. After this dyd Jehosaphat kyng of Juda toyne hym selfe with Ithaziah kyng of Israel whose mynde was to do wychevyl. He coupled hym selfe with hym, to make theyr wayes to go to Charchis. And they made the theyr wayes in Ezion Gaber. And Elizer the sonne of Dodanah of Moab prophecyed agaynst Jehosaphat, sayenge: because thou hast toynd thy selfe with Ithaziah, the Lord hath broken thy wayes. And the theyr wayes were broken, that they were not able to go to Charchis.

The xxi. Chapter.

Jehosaphat dyed, and Ithaziah succeeded hym, whych the hylith was Ithaziah, and so apperith of the booke of the first.

Jehosaphat also & slept w his fathers and was buryed with his fathers in þe cite of David, and Jehozam his sonne raygned in his stede, & he had borthre whiche were þe sonnes of Jehosaphat, Azaria, Jehiel, zacharia, Azaria, Michael, & Sephatiah. All these were the sonnes of Jehosaphat kyng of Juda. And theyr father gaue them many great gyftes of gold & syluer & other spexiall substauns with stronge citres in Juda: but the kyngdom gaue he to Jehozam, for he was the eldest. And Jehozam rose up agaynst the kyngdome of his father, and pynayled, & slue all his borthre with the sweerde, & dyuerse of the Lordes of Israel. Jehozam was. xxxii. yere olde when he began to raygne, & he raygned. viii. yere in Jerusalem. And he walked in the wayes of þe kynges of Israel, the as dyd the house of Ahab, for he had þe daughter of Ahab to wyfe, & he wrought euil in the eyes of the Lord. Howbeit, þe Lord wolde not destroye the house of David, because of the couenaunte that he had made with David, as he promysed to geue a lyght to hym, and to þys sonnes for euer. In his dayes þe Edomites rebelled whē they were vnder þe dominion of Juda, & made them selues a kyng. And Jehozam went forth to his Lordes, & all his charets were with hym: & he rose up by night, & smote þe Edomites, which compassed him in, & the captayns of the charets. But Edom rebelled agayne, so þe they wolde not be vnder þe bande of Juda vnto this daye. That same tyme also dyd Libna departe fro beyng vnder þys bande because Jehozam had forsaken þe Lord God of his fathers. Whereouer he made hylaulters in þe cities of Juda, & caused þe inhabytters of Jerusalem to comyt fornicaris, & prouoked Juda to Idolatry. And there came a wyrttynge to hym from Elia þe prophete sayeng Thus saith þe Lord god of David thy father by cause þe hast not walked in þe wayes of Jehosaphat thy father, & in þe wayes of Asa hig of Juda, but walkedst in þe wayes of þe kynges of Israel, & hast made Juda and the dwellers of Jerusalem to go a whozing, like to the whozedom of the house of Ahab, and hast slayne thy brethren, turn thy father's house, which were better then thou: behold, with a great plague will the Lord smyte thy folk, thy chyldre, thy wyues, & thy goodes. And thou shalt suffer great payne: cut a disease of thy bowels vntyl thy guttes fall out by reason of thy speckles, daye by daye.

D And so the Lord stirred up agaynst Jehoiada the spryte of the Philistines, and the Arabians & were besyde the blacke moyses. And they came vp into Juda, and wastred, and carped awaye all the substance that was founde in the kynges house, and his sonnes, & his wyues: so that there was neuer a sonne left hym save Jehoiachaz, which was the yongest amonge his sonnes. And after all these thynges, the Lord smote hym in his bowels with an incurable disease. And it came to passe, that in processe of tyme, cut after the ende of two yeres, his guttes fell out in his synnes: & so he dyed of verye cruel diseases. And they made no burninge for him like the burninge of his fathers. When he beganne to raygne, he was .xxii. yere olde, and raygned in Jerusalem viii. yere, and lyued wretchedly, howbeit, they buried hym in the citye of David, but not amonge the sepulchres of the kynges.

The xxii. Chapter.

As Ahaziah raygneth in the house of Jehoiada. Jehoiada of Israel killed Ahaziah. Ahaziah purseyth to death all the kynges synners: only Joas escapeth.

Ad * the inhabitants of Jerusalem made Ahaziah his yongest son king in his stede. For the men of warre that came with the host of the Arabians, had slaine all his eldest sones. And so Ahaziah the sonne of Jehoiada kyng of Juda was made kyng. Two and fourty yere olde was he when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned one yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Athaliah the daughter of Aheri. And he walked also in the wayes of the house of Ahab, for his mother, by her counsel, entyled hym to do wickedly. Wherefore he dyd & which was cruel in the syght of the Lord, as dyd they that were of the house of Ahab: for they were his counsellors after the death of his father, to his destruction.

B And he walked after the counsel, and went with Jehoiada the sonne of Ahab kyng of Israel to fight agaynst Hazael kyng of Siria at Rama in Gilead: and the Siria smote Joaz. And he returned to be healed in Jezrael, of the woundes which were gyve him at Rama, when he fought with Hazael kyng of Siria. And Ahaziah the sonne of Jehoiada kyng of Juda wente downe to se Jehoiachaz the sonne of Ahab at Jezrael, because he was diseased. And it cam of God, that Ahaziah shuld be despyed for his comynge to Jehoiachaz: for when he was come, he went out with Jehoiachaz agaynst Iehu the sonne of Haimi, & whome the Lord had appointed to destroye the house of Ahab.

C And so it came to passe that when Iehu was executing iustice vpon the house of Ahab & had founde the lordes of Juda and the sonnes of the brethren of Ahaziah & waited on Ahaziah, he slue them. * And he sought Ahaziah, & they caught hym where he was hid in Samaria, & brought hym to Iehu. And wher they had slayne him, they buried hym: because sayde they he is the son of Jehosaphat, which sought the Lord with all his herte. And the house of Ahaziah had no power to kepe still the kyngdome.

D But when Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah sawe that her sonne was deed, she arose & destroyed all the kynges seed in the huntred of the house of Juda. And Jehosabeth the daughter of the kyng toke Joas the sonne of Ahaziah, and saile him from amonge the kynges sonnes that were slayne, and put him and his nurse in a pypur chambze. And so Jehosabeth the daughter of king Jehoiada the wyfe of Jehoiada the prest and the syster of Ahaziah had him from Athaliah that he was not slayne. And so he was with them hyde in the house of God fyve yere. And Athaliah raygned over the lande.

The xxiii. Chapter.

Joas the sonne of Ahaziah is made kyng. Athaliah is put to death.

Ad * in the seynt yere, Jehoiada the bringer belde, toke the captaynes of hundreds, Ahaziah the sonne of Jehoiada, and Jisrael the sonne of Jehoiada, Ahaziah the sonne of Obed, Ahaziah the sonne of Adasah, & Elizaphat the sonne of Ichai, and made a bonde with them. And they went about in Juda, and gathered the Levites out of all the cities of Juda, and the ancient fathers of Israel: and they came to Jerusalem. And all the congregacion made a bonde with the kyng in the house of God. And he sayde vnto them: behold, the kynges sonne muste raygne: as the Lord hath sayde of the chyldren of David.

This is it therfore that ye shal do. The third parte of you shal, on the Sabbath, come to the prestes, Levites, and keepers of synners. And an other thyrde parte shalbe in the kynges house, and an other thyrde parte shalbe at the gate of the foundation, and all the people shal be in the court of the house of the Lord. But there shal none come into the house of the Lord, save the prestes, and they that minister vnto the Levites. They shal go in, for they are holy: but all the people shal kepe the watch of the Lord. And the Levites shal compass the kyng rounde about, and euery man shal haue his weapon in his hande, and what other man so ever doeth come into the house of the Lord, he shalbe slayne, and let them be with the kyng, when he cometh in, and when he goeth out.

C And the Levites and all Juda dyd accordyng to all thinges that Jehoiada the prest had commanded, and toke euery man his men that came on the Sabbath, with them that went out on the Sabbath daye, neyther dyde Jehoiada the prest let the companies departe. And Jehoiada the prest deliuered to the captaynes of hundreds, speares, shylles, and bucklers that had pertayned to kyng David, & were in the house of God. And he set all the people every man having his weapon in his hande, fro the right syde of the temple, to the left syde of the temple alonge by the alter & the temple rounde about the hynges.

And they brought out the hynges son, and put upon hym the crowne, and the testimonye, & (and they gave hym in hym hande, the latter that was to be kept) and made hym kynge. And Jehoiada & his son-nes anointed hym, & sayd: God save the kynge.

When Jehoiada heard the noise of people running and prayinge the kynge, he came to the people into the house of the Lorde. And he looked, and behold, the kynge stood in his place at the entering in, and the lordes and the trayettes were by the hynges, & all the people of the lande reioysed, blowing with trayettes, & dyd playe with instruments of musyke, & taught to synge and prayse. But Jehoiada rente her clothes, & sayd: treason, treason. And Jehoiada the prest went out to the captaynes of hundreds that were gouerners of the host, & sayd vnto them: haue her out withoute the doore of the temple: and whoso foloweth her, let hym be slayne with the sword. For the prest sayd that they shulde not slaye her in the house of the Lorde. And they laped handes on her, til she was come to the entering of the house gate, beynde the hynges house:
and there they slue her.

And Jehoiada made a bonde betwene him and all the people, and the kynge, that they shulde be the Lordes people. And all the people went to the house of Baal, and destroyed it, & brake the alters, and the ymages, and slue Chathan the prest of Baal, before the alters. And Jehoiada put the officers for the house of the Lorde, vnder the handes of the prestes and Leuites, as Wa-uid had distributed them in the house of the Lord, to offer burnt offrynges vnto the Lorde, & as it is wyrtten in the lawe of Moyses, with reioy-syng and synnyng, as it was ordeyned by Wa-uid. And he set potters by the gates of the house of the Lorde, that none which was vncleane in any thyng, shulde entre in.

And he toke the captaynes of hundreds, and all the nobles, and the gouernours of the people & all the folke of the lande, and caused the kynge to come downe out of the house of the Lord, and they came thow the hye gate into the hynges house, & set the kynge vpon the seate of the hyng-dome. And all the people of the lande reioysed, & the cyte was in tranquillite, after that they had slayne Jehoiada with the sword.

¶ The xxiij. Chapter.

Joas buryng the lyke of Jehoiada heareth the latter, but after his death he repareth it not. He kylleth zacharie the pprophet. Joas is kylled of his owne seruantes: after hym reigned Amaziah.

Joas was seuen yere olde when he began to reygne, & he reygnd four tye yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name also was ziba of Bere Beba.
And Joas did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, all the dayes of Jehoiada the prest. And Jehoiada toke hym two wy-ues, and he begat sonnes and daughters.

And it chaunced after this, that Joas was mynded to renne the house of the Lorde, and he gathered together the prestes and the Leuites and sayd to them: go out vnto the cyties of Juda, and gather of al Israel money to repayre the house of your God, from yere to yere, & let that be the hynges: howbeit the Leuites were slacke. And the hynges called Jehoiada, & was the chiefe, and sayde vnto hym: Why requyrest thou not of the Leuites to byng in out of Juda & Jerusalem, & the collection of money, accordyng to the commaundment of Moyses the seruant of the Lorde: and the congregacion of Israel shulde offer it for the tabernacle of wyrtelle. For wyrthed Jehoiada and her chyldren brake up the house of God, and all the thynges that were dedicate for the house of the Lorde, bydde they become for Bealim.

And at the hynges commaundment & they made a chest, & set it withoute at the gate of the house of the Lord: & made proclamation thow the Juda and Jerusalem, to byng into the Lorde & the taxation of money, that Moyses the seruant of God set vpon Israel in the wyldernesse. And the lordes and all the people reioysed, & brought in, & cast into the chest, vntyll it was full. And it fortuned, & at the same tyme they brought in the chest (vnto them which were in the hynges bu-synes) by the hande of the Leuites. And wher they sawe that there was moche money, the hynges scribe (one appoynted by the hye prest) came and emptyed the chest, and toke it, and caried it to his place agayne: thus they dyd day by daye, and gathered moche moneye.

And the kynge and Jehoiada gaue it to such as dyd the labour and woike in the house of the Lorde, and byed masons and carpenters to repayre the house of the Lorde, and so dyd the ar-tisyers in yron and brasse, to amende the house of the Lorde. And so the woikemen wrought, and the woike amended thow they handes:
and they made the house of God as it ought to be, and strenghted it. And when they had finy-shed it, they brought the rest of the moneye before the kynge and Jehoiada, and there with were made vessels for the house of the Lorde: euen vessels to mynister withall, & to serue for burnt offrynges, chargers & spoones, vessels of golde, and syluer. And they offered burnt offrynges in the house of the Lorde continually all the dayes of Jehoiada: But Jehoiada waxed olde, & dyed full of dayes. For an hundred and thyrtye yere olde was he wher he dyed. And they buried hym in the cytie of Dauid amonge the hynges, because he dealt well with Israel, and with God and with his house. And after the death of Jehoiada, came the lordes of Juda, and made obey-saunce to the kynge. And the kynge becheued vnto them. And so they left the house of the Lord God of their fathers, and serued groues and y-dolles. And then came the wrath of God vpon Juda and Jerusalem, for this they trespassed saue. And he sent pprophetes to them, to byng them agayne vnto the Lord. And they testifyed vnto them: But they wolde not heare.

And the spryite of God came vpon zacharie
the

ria the sonne of Jehoiada the prest, which stode by the people, and sayd vnto them. Thus sayeth God: why transgresse ye the commandementes of the Lorde, that ye cannot prosper? For because ye haue forsaken the Lorde, he also hath forsaken you. And they conspyed agaynst him and stoned him with stones at the commaundement of the kynge: euen in the court of the house of the Lorde. And so Joas the kynge remembred not the kynnesse whiche Jehoiada hys father had done to hym, but slue hys sonne.

And when he dyed, he sayde: the Lorde loke vpon it, and requyre it. And when the yere was out, it fortuned that the host of Siria came vpon agaynst him, and they came agaynst Juda and Jerusalem, and destroyed all the lordes of the people from amonge the people, and sent all the spole of them vnto the kynge of Damasco, for the Sirians came with a smal company of mē, and the Lorde destroyed a very great host into the hande, because they had forsaken the Lorde God of thyr fathers. And mozeouer, they serued Joas accordyng to hys dedes.

And when they were departed fro hym, they left hym in greatese diseases, and his owne seruauntes conspyed agaynst hym for the bloude of the chyldren of Jehoiada the prest, & slue hym on his bed, & he dyed, and they buried him in the cytie of David: but not in the sepulchres of the kynges. And these are they that conspyed agaynst him: Jehad the sonne of Shimeathan Ammonite and Jehosabad the sonne of Shimrich, a Moabite, and his sonnes. And the summe of the race that was rayled in his tyme, and the rayping of the house of God: behold, they are wyrtten in the booke of the booke of the kynges. And Amaziah hys sonne reigned in his stede.

The xxv. Chapter.

Amaziah ouercometh the Edomites. And Joas kynge of Israel ouercometh Amaziah.

Amaziah was xxv. yere olde, when he began to reigne, and he reigned xxv. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jehoadab of Jerusalem. And he dyed which is right in the syghte of the Lorde, but not with a paynt hert. And as soon as he was buried in the kyngdome, he slue his seruauntes, that had kyled the kynge his father. But he slue not thyr chyldren because it is wyrtten thus in the lawe and booke of Moses, where the Lorde commaunded, sayinge: the fathers shall not dye for the chyldren, neither shall the chyldren dye for the fathers, but every man shall dye for hys owne synne.

And Amaziah gathered Juda togyther, and made them captyues ouer thousandes, & ouer hundredes, accordyng to the houses of thyr fathers, thowout all Juda and Ben Jamin. And he nombred them from twenty yere olde & aboue, and founde amonge them, thre hundred thousand cholen men, able to go to battayle, and that coulde handle speare and shylde. He dyed also an hundred thousande fryghtfyll stronge men out of Israel, for an hundred talentes of syluer. And there came a man of God to hym, and sayd: O kynge let not the arme of Israel come with the: for the Lorde is not w Israel, neyther with all the house of Ephraim. But if thou wilt nedes be saythlesse, come on, & take the battayle in hande, and God shall make the fail before the enemye. For God hath power to helpe, and to cast downe. And Amaziah sayde to the man of God: what shall we do then for the hundred talentes whiche I haue gyuen for the host of Israel. The man of God answered: the Lorde is able to gyue the moche moze then they be.

And Amaziah sent them to hym that was come to hym out of Ephraim, to go home agayne. Wherfore they were exceedingly wroth with Juda, and returned home in greatese angie. And Amaziah toke hert, & carped out his people, and went to the salt valley, and smote of the chyldren of Siria: ten thousande. And other ten thousand dyd the chyldren of Juda take alpur, and carped them vnto the toppe of a rocke, and cast them downe from the top of the rocke, that they all to burst: but the souldyers of the arme whiche Amaziah sent awaye, that they shoulde not go with his people to battayle, fel vpon the cyties of Juda from Samaria vnto Bethbois and smote iii. of them: and toke moch spole.

And it chaunced, after that Amaziah was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought the goddes of the chyldren of Siria, and set them vnto be his goddes, & bowed him selfe before them: and burned incense vnto them. Wherfore the Lorde was wroth with Amaziah, and sent vnto hym a prophete, whiche sayde vnto him: why hast thou sought for goddes of the people, whiche were not able to deliuer theyr owne people out of thy hande? And it chaunced that as the prophete talked with hym, the kynge sayde vnto hym: haue men made the of the kynges counsaile/cease, why wilt thou be beaten? And the prophete ceased, and sayde: I am sure the Lorde is mynede to destroy the, because thou hast done this, and agreest not vnto my counsaile.

Then Amaziah kynge of Juda toke aduise, and sent to Joas the sonne of Jehoaham the sonne of Jehu kynge of Israel, and sayde: come that we maye se cyther other. And Joas kynge of Israel sent to Amaziah kynge of Juda, sayinge: a chyftie that is in Liban sent to a Cedar tree of Libanon, sayinge: gyue thy daughter to my sonne to wyfe. And there came a wilde beast of Libanon, and trode downe the chyftie.

Thou sayest that thou hast beaten the Edomites, and thynne hert maketh the proude to glory thy selfe. Now therefore hyde at home: why dost thou prouoke vnto euill, that thou mayst perishe, both thou and Juda with the.

But Amaziah wolde not hearken to hym: for it came of God, euen to deliuer them into the hande of their enemye, because they sought counsaile at the goddes of Edom. And so Joas the kynge of Israel came vpon: and they sawe cyther other, both he and Amaziah kynge of Juda at Bethsames, whiche is in Juda. And Juda was ynto the worse before Israel, & they slew every man to his tent. And Joas the kynge of Israel toke Amaziah kynge of Juda & son of Joash the son of Jehoahaz of Bethlamas: & brought hym to Jerusalem, and tare the wall of Jerusalem (from the gate of Ephraim unto the gate & was over against it) foure hundred cubites. And he toke away also al the golde and syluer, and all the ieruelles that were founde in the house of God with Obed Edom, and the treasures of & kynges house, and the ponge wardens, and returned to Samaria. And Amaziah the sonne of Joash kynge of Juda lyued after & death of Joash sonne of Jehoahaz kynge of Israel sytene yere. The rest of the actes of Amaziah synne & last, are they not wyrtten in the booke of the kynges of Juda & Israel. And after the tyme that Amaziah had tounne away from the Lorde, & they conspyred treason agaynst hym in Jerusalem: and wher he was fled to Lachis, they sent to Lachis after hym, and slue hym there: and brought hym up wth houses, and buried hym wth his fathers in the cytie of Juda.

¶ The xxvi. Chapter

¶ After the death of Amaziah raygneth Uzziah (other: whyle called Uzzia) whiche is here here wth the leprose, & Jotham raygneth in his roume

When al & people of Juda toke Uzziah which was & sytene yere olde, and made hym kynge in & roume of his father Amaziah. And he buyt Eloth, & broughte it agayne to Juda after that the kynge was laped to lepe wth his fathers. Sytene yere olde was Uzziah, when he began to raygne, and he raygned lxx. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name also was Jecholiah of Jerusalem. And he dyd & whiche was ryght in the syghte of the Lorde, accordynge to all, as dyd his father Amaziah. And it came to passe that he soughte God & in the dayes of zachariah (which maynteyned the feare of God) & as longe as he soughte & Lorde: God made hym to prosper.

And he went to battayle agaynst & Philistynes and brake downe the wall of Geth, and the wall of Jabne, and the wall of Asdod and built cyties aboute Asdod, and amonge the Philistynes. And God holpe hym agaynst the Philistynes, and agaynst the Arabians & dwelt in Gurbaal and Hammathan. And the Ammonytes gaue tribute to Uzziah, & his name spied abroad, euen to the entrynge in of Egypte, for he played the m^a exceedingly. Moreover, Uzziah buyt towres in Jerusalem by the corner gate, and by the valley gate, and at the turnyng of the wall: and made t^em stronge. And he buyt towres in the wyldernesse and dygged many welles. For he had moch cattel in the valleys & playnes, plowmen, and vnyuersall in the mountaynes, and in Charnel: for he loued husbandrye.

And Uzziah had an host of fygging men that went out to warre in the armye, accordynge to the nomber of the office vnder the h^ade of Jechiel the scribe, and Maaziah the ruler, and vnder the hande of Hananiahu, which was one of the kynges lordes. And the whole nomber of the auncient fathers, and of the m^a of myght, were two. And syx hundred: and vnder the hande of them was the armye of the men of warre, eue the hundred and seven thousande, and syue hundred that made warre wth the power of an armye, bepyng the kynge agaynst the enemyes. And Uzziah prouided them thowout all the boote, wyldes, speares, helmettes, habergyns, bowes and syngeles for to cast stones. And he made subtyll engyns in Jerusalem, wher he inuented & layed on the towres & corners, to shote arrowes and great stones wthhall. And his name spied farre abroad, because he was helpe to excellent lye, so that he became very myghtye.

But in his strength his heere arose to his destruction. For he trasgressed agaynst the Lorde his God, and went into the temple of the Lorde to burne incense vpon the altare of incense. And Azariah the p^rest went in after hym, & wth him foure scoze p^rest of the Lorde, that were valiant men. And they stode by Uzziah the king and sayde vnto hym: & it pertayneth not to the Uzziah to burne incense vnto the Lorde, but to the p^rest the child of Aaron, that are consecrated for to offere incense: Come therfore out of the Sanctuary for thou hast trespassed, and it is no wythstand to the befoze the Lorde God.

And Uzziah was wroth, and had insence in his hande to burne it: and so whyle he had indignacion agaynst the p^rest, & the leprose sprange in his forehead befoze the p^rest in the house of the Lorde, euen befoze the incense altare. And Azariah the chefe p^rest, wth all the other p^rest looke vpon hym, and beholde, he was become a leprose in his forehead, and they vexed him there. And he was layne to go out, because the Lorde had smyten hym. And Uzziah & kynge continued a leprose vnto & daye of his death, and dwelt seuerall, in an house beinge a leprose, & wth out of the house of the Lorde. And Jotham his son had the gouernance of & kynges house, and iudged the people of the lande. The rest of the actes of Uzziah first and last, dyd I say the p^rphet the son of Amos wyte. And so Uzziah slept wth his fathers, & they buried hym wth his fathers, in the felde of & burial which was befoze the sepulchres of & kynges. For they sayd: he is a leprose. And Jotha his son raygned in his stede.

¶ The xxvii. Chapter.

¶ Jotham raygneth, and ouercometh the Ammonites. And his sonne raygneth in his stede.

Jotham was syue and twentye yere olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned sytene yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was also Jerusa the daughter of Zadoc. And he dyd & whiche was ryght in the syghte of the Lorde in all poyntes as dyd his father Uzziah, saue & he came not into the temple of & Lorde, and the people dyd per wched lye. He buyt the hye gate of the temple of the Lorde, and on the wal (where the house of azb^a nath was) he buyt moche. Moreover, he built cyties in the mountaynes of Juda, and in the wood countreyes he buyt castels and towres.

He fought wth the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, and preuayled agaynst them. And the chyldren of Ammon gaue hym the same yere an hundred hundred talents of silver: and ten thousand quarters of wheat, and ten thousand of barley. So moche by the chyldren of Ammon gave hym the second yere and the thyrde also. So Jotham became myghty, because he directed hys waye before the Lorde hys God.

D The rest of the actes of Jotham, and all hys warres and his conuersacion, lo, they are wyrtten in the boke of the kynges of Israel, and Iuda. He was. xlv. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and raygned sytene yere in Ierusalem. And Jotham slepte with hys fathers: and they buryed him in the cytie of Dauid. And Ahaz his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ The xxviii. Chapter.

Ahaz was. xx. yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned sytene yere in Ierusalem: and he dyd not whiche is ryght in the syghte of the Lorde, as dyd his father Dauid. For he walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and made molten ymages for Baalim. He offered incense in the valley of the sonnes of hinne, and burnt hys chyldren in fyre, after the abhominacyons of the hepten, whom the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. He offered also and burnt incense in hylasters, and on mountaynes, and vnder every grene tree.

* Wherefore the Lorde his God deliuered hym into the hande of the kyng of Assyriens: which bet hym, and carped awaye a greate multitude of hys captiue, and brought them to Damasc. And he was deliuered into the hand of a kyng of Israel, which smote him with a great slaughter. For Becab the sonne of Remaliahu, slue in Iuda an hundred and twente thousande in one daye, which were al sygdyng men, and that because they had forsaken the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And yichai a myghty man of Ephraim slue Maasiah the kynges sonne: And Irica a gouernoure of the house, and Elicana that was nexte to the kyng. And the chyldren of Israel toke prisoners of theyr brythren; two hundred thousande women, sonnes and daughters, and carped awaye moche spoule of them, & brought the spoule to Samaria.

But there was a prophete of the Lordes, (whose name was Obed) and he went oute before the host that came to Samaria, and sayde vnto them: Beholde, because the Lorde God of your fathers is wryth wryth Iuda, he hath deliuered them into your hande. And ye haue slayne them wryth cruelnesse, that reacheth vnto heauen. And now ye purpose to hepe vnder the chyldren of Iuda and Ierusalem, and to make them bondmen and bondwomen. And do ye not lade your selues with synne in the syghte of the Lorde your God? Now heare me therfore, and deliuer the captiues agayne, whiche ye haue taken of your brythren, for els shall the greate wryth of God be vpon you.

Wherefore certayne of the heedes of the chyldren of Ephraim, as Iacia the sonne of Jehohanan, Berechiah the sonne of Mesilemoth, and Jehoziah the sonne of Shallum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadlay, stode by agaynst them that came from the warre, and sayd vnto them: Byng not in the captiues wyth them. For where as we haue offended towards God alreadye, ye entende to adde more to our synnes & trespasses. For our trespass is great alreadye, and there is a searce ward agaynst Israel. And vpon that, the men of armes left the captiues & the spoule, before the lordes and all the congregation.

And the men that were nowe recheard by C name, rose vp and toke the prisoners, and wroth the spoule clothed all that were naked amonge them, and araped them, and shod them, & gaue them to eate and drynke, and annoynted them, and carped all that were feble of them vpon asses, and brought them to Jericho (the cytie of Dauides trees) to theyr brythren: and then they returned to Samaria agayne.

* At that same tyme dyd kyng Ahaz sende vnto the kynges of Assur, to haue helpe of them. And the Edomites cam agayne, & slue the sonnes of Iuda, and carped awaye captiues. And the Philistines inuaded the cyties in the lowe country, and toward the South of Iuda, and toke Bethlames and Aialon. And Sederor & Socho, wryth the towines longyng therto, & Timna, wryth the towines of the same: Gimsa, and a towine therof, and dwelt there. For the Lorde brought Iuda lowe, because of Ahaz kyng of Iuda, whiche made Iuda naked, & transgressed soe agaynst the Lorde. And Tiglath Pilneser kyng of the Assirians came vpon hym and troubled him rather then strengthened him: For Ahaz toke awaye a portion out of the house of the Lorde and out of the kynges house, and out of the lordes houses, and gaue vnto the kyng of the Assirians, and yet it helped hym not. And in the very tyme of hys tribulation dyd kyng Ahaz trespass yet more agaynst the Lorde.

For he offered vnto the goddes of them of Damasco, whiche heste hym, and he sayd: because the goddes of the kynges of Assyria helpe them, therfore wil I offe to them, that they may helpe me also. But they were hys destruction, and destruction of all Israel. And Ahaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God, & brake them, and * putte vnto the doores of the house of the Lorde, and made hym * alters in euery corner of Ierusalem. And in all the cyties of Iuda, he made hylasters, to burne incense vnto other goddes, and angred the Lorde God of hys fathers: The rest of hys actes, and hys woikes sytne and last: beholde, they are wyrtten in the boke of the kynges of Iuda, and Israel. And Ahaz slepte wryth hys fathers, and they buryed hym in the cytie of Ierusalem: but brought him not vnto the sepulchres of the kynges of Israel. And Hezekia his sonne raygned in hys stede.

¶ The xxix. Chapter.

¶ Hezekia the wyche called Hezekia (as Hezekiah) recheard vnto the temple of the Lorde all the thyngs that had not ben recheard of his predecessors.

L.iii. Hezekia

iii. Chron. 32. 1. 2.

ii. Chron. 32. 1. 2.

ii. Chron. 32. 1. 2.

Hezechia began to reign, when he was five and twenty years old, and captured him and twenty years in Jerusalem. And his mothers name was Abi-bia the daughter of zachariahu. And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, in all points as David his father, he opened the doors of the house of the Lord (in the first year and first month of his reign,) and repaired them. And he brought in the priests & the Levites, and gathered them together into the east street, and said unto them: heare me ye Levites, and now be sanctified and halowe the house of the Lord God of your fathers, byng fylehynesse oute of the holie place. For our fathers have trespassed, and done evill in eyes of the Lord our God, and have forsaken hym, and turned away theyr faces from the habitation of the Lord, and turned theyr backs on it. And besyde that, they have shut up the dores of the porch, and quenched the lampes, and have neither burnt incense, nor offered burnt offeringes in the holie place unto the God of Israel.
Wherefore the wrath of the Lord fell on Juda and Jerusalem: and he hath brought them to trouble, to be wounded on, and to be hyllid at, even as we se with our eyes. For so, our fathers were overthrowen wyth the swerde, and our sonnes, our daughters and our wyves were caried away captives for the same cause. And now it is in mine hart, to make a covenant with the Lord God of Israel: that he may turne away his wrath from us. Nowe therfore my sonnes, be not negligent: for the Lord hath chosen you to stand before hym, and for to my-nistre and serve hym, and to burne incense.
Then the Levites arose: Mahath the sonne of Amasai, and Joel the sonne of Jacharihu of the Gathites. And of the sonnes of Merari, his the sonne of Abdi, and Achisaihu sonne of Jehalelel. And of the sonnes of the Gersonites, Jothab the sonne of Simma, & Eden the sonne of Joab. And of the sonnes of Eliazaphan, Simri, and Jehiel. And of the sonnes of Asaph, zechariahu, and Mataniahu. And of the sonnes of Herman, Jehiel, and Semel. And of the sonnes of Jeduthun, Semaria and Azriel. And they gathered theyr brethren, and purged them selves and came accordyng to the commaundement of the kynge, and the wordes of the Lord for to cleuse the house of the Lord. And the priests went into the inner partes of the house of the Lord, to cleuse it, & brought oute all the uncleynesse that they founde in the temple of the Lord, into the courte of the house of the Lord.
And the Levites toke it, to carry it out into the broke Cedion. They beganne the first daye of the first month to purify, and the eighth daye of the month came they to the porch of the Lord: and poured the house of the Lord in eight dayes and in the last daye of the first month they made an ende. And they went in to hezekia the kinge, and sayd: we have cleused al the house of the Lord, the altar of burnt offering, wyth all his vessels, and the table wyth al

his apparell: and all the vessels whiche kynge David had cast asyde wherein he ragged, & transgressed, them we have prepared and sanctified: and behold, they are before the altar of the Lord.
And hezekia the king rose early, and gathered the lordes of the cytie, and went up to the house of the Lord. And they brought seven oxen, seven rammes, seven shepe, and seven begootes, to be a synoffryng for the kyngdome, for the sanctuarie, and for juda. And he commaunded the priests the sonnes of Aaron, to offer them on the altare of the Lord.

And they slue the oxen, and the priests received the blood, & spynkled it upon the altare: lyke wyse, when they had slayne the rammes they spynkled the blood upon the altare: they slue also the shepe, and they spynkled the blood upon the altare. And then they brought forth the begootes for the synoffryng before the kynge & the congregacyon, and put theyr handes upon them. And the priests slue them, and the blood of them they cleused the altare to make satisfaction for al Israel, for the kynge commaunded that the burnt offering and the synoffryng shoulde be made for al Israel.

And let the Levites in the house of the Lord with cymbales, psalteries, and harpes, accom-panyng to the commaundement of David, & God the kynges sear, and Nathan the prophete. For so was the commaundement of the Lord, to show the hande of his prophetes. And the Levites stode singing the instrumentes of David, & the priestes helde the trompettes. And hezekia commaunded to offer the burnt offering upon the altare.
And when the burnt offering began, the songe of the Lord beganne also, and the trompettes, wyth the instrumentes that were ordeined by the hande of David kynge of Israel. And all the congregacion worshipped, synng a songe & blowng with the trompetts, & al this continued, untill the burnt offering was synghed.

And when they had made an ende of offering the kynge and all that were presente wyth hym bowed them selves, and worshipped. And hezekia the kinge and the lordes spake to the Levites to prayse the Lord wyth the wordes of david, and of Asaph the sear. And the Levites sang praises wyth gladnes, & the other bowed them selves, and worshipped.

And hezekia answered, and sayde: now we have consecrate your handes to the Lord: go to therefore, and byng in the sacrifices & thank offeringes into the house of the Lord. And the cogregacion brought in the sacrifices, and thank offerings and burnt offerings, as many as were of free lyberty here. And the nombre of the burnt offerings which the congregacion brought was. lxx. oxen, an hundred rammes, & two hundred shepe: which were all for the burnt offering of the Lord. And there were dedicated syre hundred oxen, and thye thousande shepe. And the priests were to sewe to slape all the burnt offerings: but theyr brethren the Levites dyd helpe them, tyll they had ended the worke: and until the priests were sanctified. For the Levites were purer her-ted to ted to be sanctified, then the priests. And there to the burnt offerings were many, with the fat of the peace offerings and the burnt offerings that belong to the burnt offerings. And so the scripture pertayning to the house of the Lord, was fulfilled. And Hezekia rejoiced and all the people, that God had made the folk so ready: that the thing was so soon done.

The xxx Chapter.

Hezekia reneweth the feast of passover.

Ad Hezekia sent to all Israel, and Juda, and wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasse, that they should come to the house of the Lord at Jerusalem, and offer Passover unto the Lord God of Israel. And the king held a counsel with his lordes and all the congregation of Jerusalem: to kepe the feast of Passover in the seconde month. For they could not kepe it at that tyme: because the priests were not sanctified sufficiently, neither was the people gathered together to Jerusalem. And the thing pleased the king, and all the congregation. And they decreed that it should be proclaimed throughout all Israel from Beersabee to Dan, that they should come, and holde the feast of Passover unto the Lord God of Israel, at Jerusalem: for they had not done it of a great season, as they should have done by the lawe.

So the postes went with letters of the king, and of his lordes throughout all Israel and Juda: and at the commandment of the king they sayd: Ye children of Israel turne agayne unto the Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and let every one returne to the remnant that are escaped you out of the handes of the kings of Assur. And be not ye like your fathers, and your brethren, which trespassed agaynst the Lord God of their fathers: which gaue them up to be destroyed as ye be.

And now be not ye stiffnecked like as were your fathers: but ye shall be like unto the Lord, and entre into his holy place, which he hath sanctified for ever: and serve the Lord your God, and the fearfulness of his wrath shall turne away from you. For ye shall turne agayne unto the Lord, then shall your brethren and your children fynde compassion in the presence of them that take them captive, and they shall come agayne unto this land. For the Lord your God is gracious and merciful, and will not turne away his face from you, ye shall conuerter unto him.

Ad so the postes went from cyrie to cyrie in the lande of Ephraim and Manasse, euen unto Zabulon. But they laughed them to scorn, and mocked them. Nevertheless, yet dyuers of Issachar, Manasse, and of Zabulon submitted themselves, and came to Jerusalem. And the hande of God was in Juda, so that he gaue the one hearte to do the commandment of the king, and of the rulers, according to the worde of the Lord. And there assembled to Jerusalem much people, and there was present a myghty great congregation: to holde the feast of sweete bread in the seconde month. And they arose, and removed the * altars that were in Jerusalem. And all the vessels of incense they brought, and cast them into the brooke Cedron. And they slew Passover the fourteenth daye of the seconde month. And the priests and Levites which were ashamed, sanctified themselves, and brought in the burnt offerings into the house of the Lord. And they stood in their office after the manner, and according to the lawe of Moses the man of God.

And the priests sprinkled the blood, which they receyued by the handes of the Levites. For there were many in the congregation that were not sanctified: and the Levites dyd slay Passover for all that were not cleane, and that myght not execute the holy worke of the Lord. For many of the people, and very many out of Ephraim, Manasse, Issachar and Zabulon were not cleansed, and yet dyd eat Passover against the law appointed. Wherefore Hezekia prayed for them, and sayde: the good Lord be merciful unto them: For he set his hole hearte to seke the Lord God, and the God of his fathers: but all the other dyd not so, according to the lawe of holynesse. And the Lord heard Hezekia, and healed the people. And the children of Israel that were present at Jerusalem, held the feast of sweete bread seven dayes with greete gladnesse, and the Levites, and the priests praised, and magnified the power of the Lord day by day, upon instruments.

And Hezekia spake verely unto all the Levites that had understanding, and were of a good mynde towards the Lord. And they dyd eat throughout that feast, seven dayes longe, and offered peace offerings, and thanked the Lord God of their fathers. And the whole assemble toke counsaile: to do so other seven dayes, and they held those seven dayes with gladnesse. For Hezekia king of Juda toke out (from amonge his cattel) for the congregation, a thousand yong oxen, and seven thousand shepe. And the lordes gaue out to the congregation a thousand yong oxen, and ten thousand shepe. And a great number of the priests were sanctified.

And all the congregation of Juda, with the priests and Levites, and all the congregation that came out of Israel, and the strangers that came out of the lande of Israel, and that dwelt in Juda rejoiced: and there was great gladnes in Jerusalem. For syng the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid king of Israel, there was no such joy in Jerusalem. And the priests and the Levites arose, and blessed the people, and their voice was heard of the Lord, and their prayer came up unto heaven, his holy dwelling place.

The xxxi Chapter.

After that Hezekia had called agayne the people unto the worke of the Lord, he ordered the priests, unto whom he commaunded to give tythes.

Ad when all these things were finished, all they of Israel that were present in the cities of Juda, went out and brake the ymagis, and cut downe the ydols groves, and all to brake the high places, and altars throughout all Juda and Beniamin, in Ephraim also, and Manasse, until they had destroyed them all. And all the child of Israel returned every man to his possessions, and to their owne cities. And Hezekia appoynted sondy companes of p̄c̄esters and Levites after the duertie of their mynistracions, every man accordyng to his office, both p̄c̄esters and Levites, for the burnt offering and peace offerings, to mynistr, & to gyve shewbreads, and praye in the gates of the host of the Lorde. And the kynges portion of his substance that he gave, were daily burnt offerings in the morning and evening, and burnt offerings for the Sabbath dayes, new moones, and solempne feastes, accordyng as it is written in the lawe of the Lorde. And he had the people that dwelte in Jerusalem gyve the parte to the p̄c̄esters, and Levites, that they myght substantially applye them selves to the lawe of the Lorde.

And as soone as the kynges commandement came abode, the child of Israel brought abundance of first frutes, of corne, wyne, oyle, honye, and al maner of frutes of the felde, & the tythes of all maner of thynges, brought they in plentifully. And the child of Israel & Juda dwelt in the cities of Juda, they also brought in the tythes of oxen and shepe, & other holpe thythes which were consecrate unto the Lorde their God: they dyd offer, & brought them all by heapes. In the thyrde moneth they beganne to laye the heapes (in maner of a foundation) and finished them in the fourth moneth. And whē Hezekia and the lordes came, and sawe the heapes they blessed the Lorde & his people Israel. And Hezekia questioned with the p̄c̄esters and the Levites, concernyng the heapes. And Azaria the chiefe p̄c̄est of the house of David answered him and sayd: syns the people beganne to bring the bever offerings unto the house of the Lorde: we also have had ynough to eat, there remainyd so moche: for the Lorde hath blessed his people and this praye is left. And Hezekia had prepare the chambers in the house of the Lorde. And they dyd prepare them, and carreyd in the first frutes, the tythes, and the dedicate thynges faithfully.

Over which Conaiabu the Levite had the rule, and Semei his brother nexte to hym. And Ichiel, Azariahu, Barbad, Asael, Jerimoth, Jocabab, Eliel, Jesmachabab, Gabath, & Banaiabu were overseers ordeyned by Bonaniahu, & Semei his brother was an officer of Hezekia the kyng, and Azaria was the ruler of the house of God. And Choze the sone of Jimna the Levite, & porter of the east doore: had the oversight of the thynges that were offered of a fre wyl unto God (and were gyven in maner sentrally unto the Lorde) and over the thynges most holy. And under his hand were Eden, Hamanin, Jelsa, Semelahu, Amariahu, and Mechaniabu, in the cyties of the p̄c̄esters apoynted of their fidelitie to gyve to the child of Israel their portions: as well to the small as to the great. Except that to the males were rekened from thys ree and above (among all that went into the house of the Lorde) they shoulde gyve daye by daye, for mynistracion, and for the gyving attendaunce, and for the byuerse waptynges by course. And to the p̄c̄esters & Levites shewdout the householde of their fathers from twentye p̄re and above, to wayte when courses came.

And to the families of all the babes, wyves, sonnes and daughters shewdout all the congregation. For upon the fidelitie of them were the holy thynges bestowed. And to the child of Aaron, the p̄c̄esters which were in the felde and suburbs of the cyties, cytie by cytie, the men (whose names were expelld afore) shoulde gyve portions, even to al the males amonge the p̄c̄esters, and to all the Levites, accordyng to their nombre. And of this maner dyd Hezekia shewdout al Juda, & wrought it that is good, and ryght and true, before the Lorde his God. And in all the wythes that he beganne for the service of the house of God, for the lawe and for the commandementes, he sought his God and that dyd he with all his herte, and prospered.

The xxxii. Chapter.

Sennacherib (or Sennacherib) besyginge Jerusalem to destroye it. Hezekia dyeth, after whom succeedeth Manasse.

After that these debes were faithfully done: Sennacherib kyng of Assur came and entred into Juda, and compassed the stronge cyties, and thought to wynn them for hym selfe. And so when Hezekia sawe that Sennacherib was come, and that he was purposed to fyght agaynst Jerusalem, he took counsaile with his lordes and me of myght, to stoppe the water of the fountaynes without the cytie: and they dyd helpe hym. For there gathered many of the people together, and stoppe all the welles, and the brooke that ran thowre the myddes of the lande sayinge: why shall the kynges of Assur come, & fynde moche water? And Hezekia wente to the city, and buyle up all the wall where it was broken, and made ordinaunce upon the towres and to the other wall without, and repayred the bulwarkes in the cytie of David, and made manye darters & hellders. And he set captaynes of warre over the people, and gathered them together to him in the large strete of the gate of the cite, and spake gently to them, sayinge: Blinche vpon your hertes, & be stronge. Be not afrayed nor discouraged, for the kyng of Assur, & for all the multitude that he hath with hym: for there be mo with us then with hym. With hym is an arme of flesh. But with us is the Lord our God, for to helpe us, & to fight our battayles. And the people took a courage thowse wordes of Hezekia kyng of Juda. After

* After this dyd Sennacherib king of Assur sende of his seruantes to Jerusalem (but he him selfe remayn: d besyde Lachis: banynge all hys power with him) vnto Hezekia king of Iuda & vnto all Iuda that were at Jerusalem, sayinge:

111. 11. 11. 11.

Thus sayeth Sennacherib the kyng of Assur: * wherein do ye truste, O ye that dwell in Ierusalem which is besiged: Doth not Hezekia entyce you to gyue ouer your selues vnto death, hūgre and thurst, sayeng: the Lorde our God shall rēd vs out of the hande of the kyng of Assur: hath not the same Hezekia put downe his hys places and hys alters, and commaunded Iuda & Ierusalem, saying: Ye shall worshyp before one aulter and burne incense vpon the same.

Knowe ye not what I and my fathers haue done vnto the people of all landes? Were the gods of y^e people of other landes able o^r mighte to saue they^r landes out of my hande: whych of al the goddes of those nations (that my fathers destroyed) coulde deliuer his people out of myne hande: And shal your God be able to deliuer you out of myne hande? Wherefore now, let not Hezekia deceyue you, nor perswade you of this falsshon, nor yet beleue hym.

D For as no god amonge all nacyns & kyngdomes was able to rid his people out of my hand and out of the hande of my father. Howe much lesse shal your goddes be able to kepe you out of my hande? And yet mo thynge dyd his seruantes speake agaynst the Lord God, and agaynst his seruante Hezekia. And (Sennacherib) also wrote a letter, to raple on the Lorde God of Israel & spake agaynst him, saying: as the gods of the nations of other landes haue not ben able to deliuer their people out of my hand. Enf so shal not the god of Hezekia deliuer his people out of myne hande. And they cryed wth a loude voyce in the Jewes sprache vnto the people of Ierusalem that were on the wal to feare them and to make them saynt herted, and that they myght so take the cite. And they spake agaynst the God of Ierusalem as agaynst y^e goddes of the nations of the earth, which were y^e workes of y^e handes of men.

111. 11. 11. 11.

E But Hezekia the kyng, and the prophet Iai the son of Amoz prayed agaynst y^e blasphemye and cryed vp to heauen. And the Lorde sente an aungel which destroyed all the men of war, and the lordes and captaynes of y^e host of the kyng of Assur, that he turned his face agayn wth shame towarde hys owne lande. * And when he was come into the house of his God, they that came of his owne body slue hym ther wth the sword. And so the Lorde saued Hezekia and the inhabitants of Ierusalem out of the hand of Sennacherib kyng of Assur, and from the hande of al o^rther, and mayntayned them on euery syde. And many brought offsprynge vnto the Lorde to Ierusalem, and presentes to Hezekia kyng of Iuda, so that he was magnified in the syght of all nacyns from thence forth.

111. 11. 11. 11.

* In those dayes Hezekia was speche vnto the death, and prayed vnto the Lord, which answered him: and shewed him a wonderful myracle. But Hezekia dyd not agayne vnto God according to it y^e he had shewed him for his hert aroise and there came wthath vpon hym, and vpon Iuda and Jerusalem. Not withstandyng Hezekia submytted hym selfe: after that his hert was risen vp) he, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and the wthathe of the Lorde came not vpon them in the dayes of Hezekia.

And Hezekia had exceeding much ryches and honour. And he gat hym treasures of silver, and golde, p^{re}cious stones and sp^{er}ces, cyphers, and of all maner of p^{re}calasse it welis: and made store houses for y^e frutes of corne, for wyne and oyle: and stalles for all maner of bestes, and foldes for shepe. And he made him cities, & had of they^r and oren great aboundaunce. For God had gyuen hym substance exceeding much. This same Hezekia stopped the vpper water sprynge of Gihon, and brought th^{er} downe to the well side of the cite of Dauid. And Hezekia prospered in al his workes. And when the p^{re}ncers of Babylon sent vnto hym embassadours, to enquire of the wonder that chaunced in the land, God left hym: to t^{er}re hym, and that all that was in hys herte myght be knowne.

Deu. vii. 4.

The rest of the dedes of Hezekia, and his goodnes, beholde, they are wyrtten in the v^{er}sion of Iai the prophet the sonne of Amoz in the booke of the kynges of Iuda and Israel. And Hezekia slepte with his fathers, and they buried hym in the moost worthy place of the sepulchres of the sonnes of Dauid: and al Iuda & the inhabitants of Jerusalem dyd hym wtholp^{er} at his death. And manasses hys sonne raygned in hys stede.

have chosen afore all the trybes of Israel, * wyl I put my name for ever, and wyl no more brynge the seate of Israel from the lande which I have ordeined for your fathers. If so be that they wil be diligent, and do all that I have commaunded them in all the lawe and statutes, and ordinaunces by the hande of Moyses. And so Manasse made Juda and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to erre, and to do worse then the heptiden whome the Lord destroyed befoze the children of Israel. And the Lord spake to Manasse and to his people, but they wolde not regarde.

C Wherefoze, the Lord brought vpon them the capraynes of the hoste of the kynge of the Assyrians, which toke Manasse in holde, and bound hym with chaynes, and carped hym to Babilon. And when he was in tribulacion, he besought the Lord his God, and humbled hym selfe exceedingly befoze the God of his fathers, and made intercession to hym: and God was entreated of hym, and herde his prayer, and brought hym agayne to Jerusalem into his kyngdome. And the Manasse knewe that the Lord was God.

After this he buylt a wall without the cite of David, on the west side of Syon, in the valey as they come to the syth gate, and round about Ophel, & brought it vp of a very great heygth, and put capraynes of warre in all the strong cyties of Juda. And he toke awaye straunge goddes and ymages out of the house of God, and wallt the altiers that he had buylt in the mounte of the house of God, & Jerusalem, and cast them out of the cite. And he prepared the alter of the Lord, and sacrificed thereon peaceofferynges, & thanksofferynges, and charged Juda to serue the Lord God of Israel. Nevertheless, the people dyd offre still in the hyaulters, howbeit, vnto the Lord they served God onely.

D The rest of the actes of Manasse & his prayer vnto his God, and the wordes of the sears, and of them that spake to him in the name of the Lord God of Israel, behold, they are wyrtten in the saynges of the kynge of Israel. And his prayer and how that he was herde, and all his synnes, and his trespasses, and the places where he made hyaulters, and set vp groues and ymages (befoze he was meakened) behold, they are wyrtten amonge the saynges of the sears. And Manasse slept wth his fathers, and they buried hym in his owne house: And Amon his son raygned in his roume. Amon was two and thentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned two yere in Jerusalem. But he dyd euyl in the syght of the Lord, lyke as dyd Manasse his father, for Amon sacrificed to all the kered ymages, whiche Manasse his father had made and serued them, and submytted not hym selfe befoze the Lord: as Manasse his father hadde meakened him selfe. But Amon trespassed greatly. And his owne seruauntes conspyred agaynst hym, and slewe hym in his owne house. But the people of the lande slue all them that had conspyred agaynst kyng Amon. And some people of the land made Josia his son king in his roume.

C The xxxiii. Chapter.

These be the actes of the phylites, and the actes of the temple in which is founde the booke of the sears. The sears to which the phylites say counte.

Josia was eyght yere olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned in Jerusalem xxxi. yere. And he dyd that whiche was ryght in the syght of the Lord, and walked in the wayes of David his father, and bowed neyther to the ryght hande nor the lefte. In the eyght yere of his raygne (when he was yet a chyld) he began to seche after the God of David his father. And in the twelue yere he began to poure Juda, and Jerusalem from hyaulters, groues, kered ymages, and ymages of metall: and they brake downe the altiers of Baalim, euen in his presence: and other ymages, that were in greater honour then they, he caused to be destroyed. And the groues, kered ymages, and ymages of metall, he brake and made dust of them, and strowed it vpon the graues of them that had offered vnto them. And he burnt the bones of the yreastes vpon the altiers of them, and cleaned Juda and Jerusalem. And euen so dyd he in the cyties of Manasse, Ephraim, Symeon, vnto Asaphthall. And in the wildernesses of them, rounde aboute, he plucked a sondre the altiers and the groues, and did beate them and stampe them to powder, and beate downe all the ymages thowoute all the lande of Israel: and returned to Jerusalem agayne.

In the xviii. yere of his raygne when he had poured the lande and the temple, * he sent Saphan the sonne of Amasiah, and Maasiah the gouernour of the cytye, and Joab the sonne of Joabaz the recorder, to repaire the house of the Lord his God. And when they came to heliah the hye priest, they deliuered them the money that was brought into the house of God, whiche the Leuytes that kepte the entres, had gathered of the hande of Manasse, & Ephraim, and of al that yet remayned in Israel, and of al Juda and Ben Jamin, and of the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And they put it in the handes of the workemen that had the ouersyght of the house of the Lord: and they gaue it to the labourers that wrought in the house of the Lord: to repaire and amende the house. Euen to masons & carpenters gaue they it, to get stone and timbe for coules and for beames of the houses, which the kynge of Juda had destroyed: And the me dyd the worke saythfully.

C And the ouersers of them to courage them forwarde, were Jahath & Obadihu Leuytes, of the children of Gerar: and Secharia, & Mesullam, of the chyldren of the Cabathytes, and other of the Leuytes: whiche all coulde skyll of instrumentes of musike. And ouer the bearyers of burthens, and ouer al that wrought, in whatsoeuer workmanshipp it were, were these scribes, officers, and porters of the Leuytes.

And when they brought out the money that was brought in to the house of the Lord, heliah the priest & founde the booke of the lawe of the Lord giuen by Moyses. And heliah answered red & sayd to Saphan the scribe: I have found the booke of the lawe in the house of the Lorde, and helkia gaue the booke to Saphan. And Saphan carryed the booke to the kyng, and brought the kynges word agayne, sayeng: all that was committed to thy seruantes, that do they. And they haue gathered together the monye I was founde in the house of the Lorde, and haue deliuered it into I haues of I overleas of the woake and to the handes of the wochemen. And then Saphan the scribe shewd the kyng, sayeng: helkia the preste hath gyven me a booke, and Saphan red in it befoze the kyng.

E And it fortuned, that when the kyng had herd the woordes of the lawe, he tare his clothes and the kyng commaunded helkia and Abiam the sonne of Saphan, and Abidon the sonne of Micah, and Saphan the scribe, and Asaia a seruant of the kinges, sayeng: go and enquire of the Lorde for me, and for them that are left in Israel and Juda, concernyng the woordes of the booke that is founde. For great is the wrath of the Lorde that is fallen vpon vs, because our fathers haue not hepte the woordes of the Lorde, to do after all that is wyrtten in thys booke.

And helkia and they that the kyng had appoynted, went to hylda a prophete the wyfe of Shallum, the sonne of Tokath, the sonne of Haska heper of the wardrope (for he dwelte in Jerusalem within the seconde wall) and so they communed with her. She answered them: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: tel ye the man that sent you to me. Euen thus sayth the Lorde beholde, I wil byng euil vpon this place, and vpon the inhabytters thereof: euen all the curses, that are wyrtte in the boke which they haue red befoze the kyng of Juda) because they haue forsaaken me, and offered vnto other goddes, to agree me with all maner workes of theyr handes therfore is my wrath set on fyre agaynst this place: and shall not be quenched. And as for the kyng of Juda whych sent you to enquire of the Lorde, so shall ye saye vnto hym: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, concernyng the woordes which thou hast herde.

I Because thyn heart dyd melt, and thou didest meke thy self befoze God whyle thou herdest hys woordes against this place and against the inhabytters thereof: and humbledst thy self befoze me and tarest thy clothes, and wepest befoze me that haue I herde also sayth the Lorde. Behold I wyl take the to thy fathers, and thou shalt be put in thy graue in peace, and thyn eyes shall not se all the myschance that I wyl byng vpon this place, and vpon the inhabytters of the same. And they brought I king word agayne. * Tha the kyng sent and gathered together all the elders of Juda & Jerusalem. And the kyng went vnto the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda, and the inhabytters of Jerusalem, and the prestes and Leuites and al the people great and smal, and the kyng byd craide in theyr eares all the woordes of the booke of the counsaile that was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kyng stode at his standyng, and made a coue naunt befoze the Lorde, to folowe the Lorde, and to kepe his commandementes. hys wyrttes, and his statutes, with all his herce, and with all his soule, and to fulfyll the woordes of I appoyntment wyrtten in the same booke.

And he set in theyr roume all them that were founde in Jerusalem, and Ben Jamin, and the inhabytters of Jerusalem byd accordyng to the couenaunt of the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Josia put away al maner of abhominacyons out of all landes that pertayned to the chyldren of Israel, & brought in al that were found in Israel to worship and to serue I Lorde theyr God. And they turned not asyde from after the Lorde God of theyr fathers as long as he lyued.

The xxxv Chapter.

Josia holdeth passeouer. He freghen agaynst the kyng of Egypt, and dyed. The people demaile hym.

Ad Josia helde the * feast of passeouer vnto the Lorde in Jerusalem, & they slue passeouer in the xiiii. daye of the fyfthe moneth. And he set the prestes in theyr offyces, and ayded them in the seruice of the house of the lord, And he sayd vnto the Leuites (that taught al Israel and were sanctified vnto the Lorde) put the holy arke in the house whych Salomon the sonne of Dauid kyng of Israel byd buyde, there shall no other burthen be layed vpon your shulders: But nowe serue the Lorde your God and his people Israel. And prepare your selues by your auncient householdes and companyes, accordyng to the wyrttyng of Dauid kyng of Israel, and the wyrttyng of Salomon his sonne, and stande in the holy place accordyng to the deuision of the auncient householdes of your byethren the chyldren of the people, and after the deuision of the auncient householdes of the Leuites, kyll passeouer, and sanctify, & prepare your byethren that they may do accordyng to the word of the Lorde by the bande of Moses.

And Josia gaue to the people flockes of shepe and kyddes, all for passeouer, and for all I were present thysy thousand by sale, & thys thousand oren, & these were euen of the kynges substance. And his lordes gaue wylling the boch vnto the people and to the prestes, and vnto the Leuites helkia also, zacharia and Jehiel, rulers of the house of God, gaue vnto I prestes for passeouer offrynges, two thousand & fyre hundred shepe, and thys hundred oren: Conania and Semetahu and Bethanel his byethren, and Halabiah and Jaiel, and Josobad, rulers of the Leuites gaue vnto the Leuites passeouer offrynges, euf tyre thousande shepe, and tyne hundred oren.

And so the seruyce was prepared, & the prestes stode in theyr places, & the Leuites in theyr distinct companys at the kynges commaundment. And they slue passeouer, and the preaste spynghled the blood with theyr hande, & the Leuites pulled of the skynnes of the beastes. And they set away the burnt offrynges to gyue them vnto the people that were decayed by auncient houses, and that they shuld offre vnto the Lorde lyke as it is wyrtte in the boke of Moses. And

And in all the seruice of the Lojd was prepared the same daye, to offre Passouer, and to offre burnt offrynges vpon the aultare of the Lojd, accorpyng to the commaundement of kynge Josia.

And in the chyldren of Israel that were present offred Passouer the same tyme and kepte the feast of sette hundred seuen dayes, and there was no Passouer lyke to that kepte in Israel, from the dayes of Samuel the p. iust: neither byd al the kynge's of Israel holde suche a Passouer feast as byd Josia & the p. iustes & Lewites and all Juda, & Israel that were presente, & the inhabitants of Jerusalem. After this, when Josia had prepared the temple, Necho kynge of Egypt came vp to fight agaynst Carchamis besyde Euphrates, and Josia went out agaynst hym: which sent messengers to hym, and sayd: what haue I to do with the thou kynge of Judah? Be not thou agaynst the selfe this day: for my warre is agaynst an o ther house, and God had me make haste. Leane of therfore and meble not with God whyche is with me, lest he destrope the. Nevertheless, Josia would not turne his face from hym, but rather toke aduys to fyght with hym, & herkened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouth of God, and came to fyght in the valley of Megiddo, and the hostes that hartes at kynge Josia. And the kynge sayd to his seruantes: carpe me away, for I am soze wounded. His seruantes therfore had hym out of that charret, and put him in an othe charret that they had.

And wher they had brought hym to Jerusalem he dyed, and was buryed in the sepulchre of his fathers. And all Juda and Jerusalem mourned for Josia. Moreover, all the rulers the p. iustes and the people trespassed moze, synnyng after all maner of abominacions of the hepten, & polluted the house of the lojd which he had halowed in Jerusalem.

And the Lojd God of theyr fathers sent to them, by his messengers, clypyng up by tymes and sendyng, for he had compassion on his people, and on his dwellynge place. Cyrus smyth agayne the people that was in captiuitie, and rebuieth them their holy temple, and commaundeth them to buyld agayne the temple.

In the first yere of Cyrus kinge of Persia (that the word of the Lord spoken by the mouth of Ieremia might be fulfilled) the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus kinge of Persia, that he caused to be proclaimed thorowout all his empire, and to be written, saying: Thus sayeth Cyrus kinge of Persia: The Lord God of heauen hath gyuen me all the kingdoms of the earth, and hath commaunded me to buyld hym an house at Ierusalem, whiche is in Iuda.

Whosoever nowe amonge you is of his people, the Lord his God be with him, and let him

And whosoever remaineth yet in any manner of place (where he is a stranger) let the men of that place helpe hym with silver and golde, with good and cattel, besyde that whiche they willingly offer, for the house of God that is at Ierusalem.

¶ The .iii. Chapter.

After the foundacyon of the temple was reued, they sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And when s seventh moneth came, and the chyldren of Israel were now in their cities: the people came togyther (even as one man) vnto Ierusalem. And there stode vp Iesua s sonne of Joseder: and his brethren the priestes, and zojobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and his brethren, and buyled the aultare of the God of Israel, to offre burnt offrynges thereon, as it is wytten in the lawe of Moyses the man of God, and the aultare let they vpon his foekettes: for there was a fearfulness amonge them, because of the nations & landes: therfore they offered burnt offrynges thereon vnto the Lorde in s morning and at euen. And they held the feast of tabernacles: as it is wytten: and offered burnt sacrifices dayly, accordyng to the nombe and custom day by day. Afterwarde they offered dayly burnt offrynges also, and in the newe monethes and in al the feast dayes that wer consecrate vnto the Lorde, & for all them which byd (of theys owne free wyll) offer vnto the Lorde.

From the fyfte daye of the seventh moneth began they to offre burnt sacrifices vnto the Lorde: euen when the foundacyon of the temple of the Lorde was not yet layed. They gaue money also vnto the masons, & carpenters, & meat and drynke: and oyle vnto them of sydon and of Tyre, to buyng the Cedre tymber from Libanus, mus by see unto Joppa, accordyng to the graue that they had of Cyrus the kynge of Persia.

C In the second yere of theyr comyng vnto the place of the house of God at Jerusalem in the second moneth began zojobabel the sonne of Ba-lathiel, and Jesua the sonne of Josedec, and the remnant of theyr brethren the prestes and Le-uites, & all they that were come out of the captiuetye vnto Jerusalem, & appoynted the leuites from twenty yere olde and aboue, to se that the worke of the house of the Lorde went forwarde.
And Jesua stode with his sonnes and brethren:
and Cadmiel with his sonnes, and the chyldren

God, euen the chyldren of Henadab, with theyr chyldren, and theyr brethren the Leuites.

And when the buylders layed the foundaciō

Lorde: after the maner of Dauid kynge of Israel. And they sang together when they gaue praysie & thankes vnto the Lorde, because he is gracious, & because his mercy endureth for euer vnto Israel. And all the people shouted loude, in praysyng the Lorde, because the foundation of the house of the Lorde was layed. Many also of the prestes & Leuites and auncient fathers whiche had sene the first house (when the foundaciō of this house was layd before their eyes) ioye: so that the nople gaue a great sounde: in so moche that people coulde not diserne of ioyful sounde & gladnes, from the nople of the weeping among the people: for the people shouted with a loude crye: and the nople was herde farre of.

The. liii. Chapter.

Cyrus buyldyng of the temple is hyndred and lxx.

But when the aduersaries of Juda and Ben-Jamin hearde, that the chyldren of the captiuitie buylded the temple vnto the Lorde God of Israel. And they cam to zojobabel, & to the principall fathers, and sayd vnto them: We will buylde wyth you: for we see the Lorde your God lyke as ye do. And we haue done sacrifice vnto hym spon the tyme of Asohadd the kynge of Assur: which brought vs up hyther. And zojobabel, and Jesua, and the other auncient fathers of Israel, sayde vnto them: it can not be, that you and we together, shoulde buylde the house vnto our God, for we our selues wyl buylde alone vnto the Lorde our God of Israel, as Cyrus the kynge of Persia hath commaunded vs.

And it came to passe, that the folke of the land hyndred the people of Juda, and troubled them as they were buyldyng, and byred counsailers agaynst them, to hyndre theyr deuyce, as longe as Cyrus the kynge of Persia lyued, vntill the reigne of Darius kynge of Persia. And in the reigne of Balthazar (euen in the begynnyng of his reigne) wrote they vnto hym a complaynte agaynst the inhabytors of Juda and Jerusalem.

And in the dayes of Artaxerxes, wrote Withaiababeel, & the other of his counsell vnto

Artaxerxes the kynge of Persia by saye wordes.
And the scripture of the letter was wyrtten in the Syriack speche, and interpreted in the language of the Syrians. Return the recorder and Damasai the scribe wrote a letter from Jerusalem to Artaxerxes the kynge: as it foloweth.

Then Return the recorder, and Damasai the scribe, and other of theyr compaignes of Dina, of Arphasath, of Tharpiu, of Persia, of Arach, of Babylon, of Gulan, of Meda, of Elan, & other of the people: whom the great and noble Asa-par brought ouer: and set in the cyties of Samaria, and other, that are nowe on this side the water. This is the coppe of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artaxerxes.

Thy seruantes and the men that are now on this syde the water. Be it knowen vnto thy kynge that the Jewes which came vp from the to vs, are come vnto Jerusalem (a cytie seditious and frowarde) and buylde the same, and set vp the walles therof, and laye the foundations. Be it knownen now also vnto thy kynge, that if this ci-tie be builded, and the walles therof made vp a gayne, then shall not thy gyue tolle, tribute, & custome, and the kynges pryncesse shall incurre damage. And nowe in the meane season we haue destroyed the temple, and wolde no longer se thynges dishonoure. Therefore sent we oute also and certified the kynges: that it maye be sought in the booke of the Chronicles of thy progeny-tours, and so shalt thou fynde in the booke of the Chronicles, and perceyue that this cytie is seditious and noplome vnto thynges & landes, and that they cause other also among them to rebell of olde, and for the same cause was this cytie destroyed. Therefore do we certifye the kynge that if this cytie be buylde agayne, and the walles therof made vp: thou shalt hereafter haue no porcyon on this syde the water.

Then sent thy kynge an answer vnto Return the recorder, & Damasai the scribe, & to the other of their compaignes that dwelt in Samaria, & vnto the other that wer be yond the water, in Belan & Ebedeth. The letter which ye sent vnto vs hath ben openly red before me, & I haue comaunded to make searche: & it is founde: that this cytie of olde, hath made insurrection agaynst thynges, & that rebellion & sedition hath bene comitted therein.
There haue ben myghty thynges also at Jerusalem, whiche haue raygned ouer all countreys beyond the water: and tolle, tribute, & custome was gyuen vnto them: & ye pe nowe therefore comaundement, that the same men be forbyddē and that the cytie be not buylde agayne, till I haue gyuen an other comaundement. Take hede now that ye be not negligēt to do this: for why shoulde the kynge haue harme therethowre?

Nowe when the coppe of thynges Artaxerxes letter was red before Return and Damasai the scribe, and theyr compaignes, they went vp in all the haste to Jerusalem, vnto the Jewes and forbadde them with violence and power. Then ceased the worke of the house of god at Jerusalem: and continued so vnto the seconde yere of Darius kynge of Persia.

The .v. Chapter.

At the exhortation of Aggeus and zacharye is the temple buylded agayne.

3 Eſdras

The prophetes Aggeus and zacharye the sonne of Iddo prophesied vnto the Jewes that were in Iuda, and Jerusalem: in the name of the god of Israel.

Aggeus

* Then gat vp zoſobabel the sonne of Sala thiel, and Iesua the sonne of Joſeder, and began to buyde the house of God at Jerusalem: and with the were the prophetes of God, which hel- ped them. At ſame tyme came to them Tath- nai, whiche was capayne on this syde the wa- ter, and Starbazani, & theyr companions, and ſayd thus vnto them: Who hath commaunded you to buyde this house, and to make vp these walles? Then tolde we them the names of the men that made this buyldynge. But the eye of theyr God was vpon the elders of the Jewes, that they coude not cause them to cease, tyl the matter was brought to Darius, and then they answered by letters ther vnto.

This is the copy of the lettre, that Tathnai (whiche was capayne on this syde the water) and Starbazani, & the counsailers of Apha- ſap, which were on this syde the water, sent vn to kyng Darius. And the matter that they sent vnto hym, was wyrtten thus within the lettre: Vnto Darius the kyng, al peace. Be it knowen vnto the kyng, that we went in to the lande of Judee, to the house of the great God, which is builded with mighty great stones, and beames are layed in the walles, and the worke goeth fast forth, & prospereth in theyr handes. Then ared we the elders, & sayd vnto them as it foloweth: Who commaunded you to buyde this house: and to make vp the walles thereof? We asked theyr names also, that we myght certify the, & wyte the names of the men that were theyr rulers.

But they answered vs with these wordes, & sayd: We are the seruantes of hym that is God of heauen & earth, and buyde the house that was buylded many yeres ago, * which a great kyng of Israel buylded, & set vp. But after four fa- thers had prouoked the God of heu vnto zach- * he gaue them ouer into the hand of Nabucho- donozor the kyng of Babilon, & of the Chaldees whiche brake downe this house, and carped the people awaye captiue vnto Babilon.

i. esdras

* But in the fyfth yere of Cyrys the kyng of Babilon, the same kyng Cyrys gaue commaundement concernynge this house of God, that it shuld be buylded agayne. And ſ vessels of golde and syluer of the house of God, which Nabucho donozor toke out of the temple that was at Je- rusalem, & brought them into the temple at Ba- bilon, those dyd Cyrys the kyng take out of the temple at Babilon, * and they were deliuered vnto one Hasbazar by name, whome he made capayne, & sayd vnto hym. Take these vessels and go thy way, and set them in the temple that is at Jerusalem, and let the house of God be buylded in his place. The came the same Hasbazar and layed the foundation of the house of God, whiche is at Jerusalem. Hys that tyme also vntyl now hath it be in buyldynge, and yet it is not finished. If it please the kyng now ther- fore let there be scribe made in the kynges librar- y whiche is there at Babilon, whether it haue ben kyng Cyrys commaundement, that this temple of God at Jerusalem shuld be buylded, and let hym sende vs the kynges mynde concernynge the same matter.

The .vi. Chapter.

At the commaundement of Darius kyng of Persia, after the temple was buylded and dedicated, the captiues of Israel kept the feast of unleuened bread.

Then commaunded kyng Darius, and they made sarche in the librarie, euen in the place where they layed by the treasure at Babilon. * And there was founde in a coffer (in the place that is in the land of the medes) a volume, and therein was it thus wyrtten, & such a memoriale: In the fyfth yere of kyng Cyrys, gaue the same kyng Cyrys commaundement concernynge the house of God at Jerusalem, that the same house shuld be buylded in the place where they offre the sacrifices, and to ioyne the walles togyther of threſcore cuby- tes heygth, and threſcore cubytes bredth. The rowes of rough stones, & one rowe of tymber, and the expences shall be gauen of the kynges house. And let the gold and syluer vessel of the house of God, (whiche Nabuchodonozor toke out of the temple at Jerusalem and brought vn to Babilon) be restored, and brought agayne vnto the temple at Jerusalem to theyr place in the house of God.

Get you far from them therfore, thou Thah- nai capayne beyonde the water, and Starbuzani, and your counsailers and Apher Sechel, which are beyonde the water, get ye away from them. Let the worke of the house of this God alone, that the capayne of the Jewes and their elders maye buyde the house of God in his place. I haue commaunded what shall be done to the elders of Iuda for the buyldynge of the house of God, that there shall be diligent hede taken of the kynges goodes, euen of the rentes beyonde the water, and gyue vnto the men, that they be not bynded. And if they haue neede of calues, rammes, & lambes for the burnt offerynge of the God of heauen, wheate, saltre, wyne, and ople, after the custome of the prestes at Jerusalem, let the same be gauen them daily without anye delay: that they maye offre sweete sauours vnto the God of heauen, and pray for the kynges life and for his chyldren. And such a commaunde- ment haue I giuen: that what man soeuer he be that altered this worde, there shall a beame be taken from his house, and set vp, and he shall be hanged thereon, and his house shall be made a donge hyll, for the same thyng.

And the God that set his name there, destroy al kynges and people that put to theyr hand to altere, & to breake downe the house of God whiche is at Jerusalem. I Darius haue commaunded, that this be done with speede.

Then Thahnai the capayne of the country beyonde the water, and Starbozanai with their counsailers

C counsailers to whom kynge Darius had sent did they diligence. And the elders of the Jewes builded, and they prospered thow the prophesyinge of Aggeus the prophete, and zachary the sonne of Iddo: and they builded and layed up the foundacyon, accordyng to the commaundement of the God of Israel, and after the commaundement of Cyrus and Darius, and Artaxerxes kinges of Persia. And the house was finished the thyrtye daye of the moneth Adar, even in the fyrte pere of the reygne of kynge Darius.

 And the chyldren of Israel, the prestes, the Leuites, & the other chyldren of captiuitie held the dedication of this house of God with ioye, and offered at the dedication of this house of God an hundred oxen, two hundred rames: four hundred gootes, & for the reconcylyng of all Israel twelue hegootes: accordyng to the nombre of the tribes of Israel, and set the prestes in theyr sondy courses: and the Leuites in theyr duties offces to mynister vnto God at Jerusalem: as it is wyrtten in the booke of Moses.

D And the chyldren of the captiuitie helde passeouer vpon the fourteenth daye of the fyrst moneth, for the prestes and Leuites were purgysed, so that they were all cleane togyther, and kyllled passeouer for all the chyldren of the captiuitie, & for their brythren the prestes, & for the selues. And the chyldren of Israel whych were come agayne out of captiuitie, and all such as had separated them selues vnto them, fro the synchynesse of the hepten of the land: to seke the Lord God of Israel, byd eate, and helde the feast of vnleuened bredd seven dayes with ioye: for the Lord had made them glad, & turned the heart of the king of Assur vnto them, to strengthen their handes in the worke of the house of God, and of the God of Israel.

The vii. Chapter.

By the commaundement of Artaxerxes, Esdras taketh his companions the chyldren of Israel, and cometh to Jerusalem.

After these actes, there was in the reygne of Artaxerxes kynge of Persia, one Esdras the sonne of Saria, the sonne of Iehia, the sonne of Ballum, the sonne of Iadoc, the sonne of Abiob, the sonne of Amaria, the sonne of Saria, the sonne of Meraiob, the sonne of Ieremia, the sonne of Eli, the sonne of Buchi, the sonne of Abisua, the sonne of Phinebes, the sonne of Eleasar, the sonne of Iarob the chiefe prest. This Esdras also went up fro Babilon, & was a perfect scribe in the lawe of Moses, whych the Lord God of Israel byd gyue. And the kynge gaue hym al that he requyred because the hande of the Lord his God was vpon hym. And there wente up certayne of the chyldren of Israel: of the prestes, Leuites, syngers, porters, & of the Artchymis vnto Jerusalem, in the seuenthy pere of kynge Artaxerxes. And he came to Jerusalem in the fyfth moneth, even in the seuenthy pere of the kynge. For vpon the fyfthe daye of the fyfth moneth, began he to go up fro Babilon, & on the fyfth daye of the fyfth moneth came he to Jerusalem, because the good hande of God was vpon hym. For Esdras prepared hym bert to seke the lawe of the Lord, & to do it, and to teache the precept and iudgement in Israel.

And this is the coppe of the letter that kynge Artaxerxes gaue vnto Esdras the prest and scribe, whych was a wyrtter of the wordes and commaundementes of the Lord, & of his statutes ouer Israel. Artaxerxes a kynge of kynge.

Unto Esdras the prest & scribe of the lawe of the God of heauen, peace & salutation. I haue commaunded, that all they of the people of Israel, & of the prestes & Leuites in my realme (whych are mynded of their owne good will to go vnto Jerusalem) go wyth the: and therfore art thou sent of the kynge & of his seuen counsailers, to vnto Iuda & Jerusalem, accordyng to the lawe of the God, whych is in thy hande. And that thou shouldest take with the syluer & golde, whych I haue & my counsailers offce of theyr owne good will vnto the God of Israel (whose habitation is at Jerusalem) & all the syluer & golde thou canst fynde in all the countrey of Babilon, with it that the people offre of theyr owne good will, and the prestes gyue for the house of their God whych is at Jerusalem.

Take thou the same, & be diligent wyth the same money, oxen, rames, and laves, with theyr meate offerynges and drynke offerynges: and thou shalt offer them vpon the auter of the house of your God, whych is at Ierusalem. And loke what it shal the & thy brythren to do with the remnant of the money, that do after the will of your God. And the vessels that are gyuen the for the ministracion in the house of the God, those deliuer thou before God at Jerusalem.

And whatsoeuer thing more shalbe nedfull for the house of thy God, whych is necessary for to spende, thou shalt receyue the charges out of the kynges treasure house. I haue Artaxerxes haue commaunded al the treasurers beyonde the water, that loke whatsoeuer Esdras the prest and scribe, in the lawe of the God of heauen, requyret of you that ye fulfill the same speedily, vntill an hundred talentes of syluer, vntill an hundred quarters of wheate, and tyll an hundred battes of wyne, and tyll an hundred battes of oyle, and salt withoute measure. Whatsoeuer also belongeth to the lawe of the God of heauen, let the same be done without any delay for the house of the God of heauen, & he be not worth agaynst the realme, & agaynst the kynge, & his chyldren.

And we certifie you: that ye haue no authoritie to requyre taxpynge and custome, & pearelyntes vpon anye of the prestes, Leuites, syngers, porters, Artchymis, and ministers in the house of the God. And thou Esdras (after the wysedome of thy God, that is in thy hande) see iudges and arbiters by my authoritie, to iudge all the people that is beyonde the water, euen al suche as knowe the lawe of thy God, and them that knowe it not: those se that ye teache. And whosoer shal not fulfill the lawe of thy God, and the kynges lawe, lette hym haue his iudgement without delaye, whether it be vnto death, or to be rootid out, or to be condemned in goodes, or to be put in prison.

And I was comforted (euen as the hande of the Lorde my God was vpon me) and so gathered I the heedes of Israel together, that they myght go vp wryth me.

Of the chyldren of Ithar, zachary the sonne of Ithar, and with hym eghth and twenty men. Of the chyldren of Ithar, Ithar the sonne of Ithar, and with hym an hundred and ten men. Of the chyldren of Ithar, Ithar the sonne of Ithar, and with hym an hundred and ten men. Of the last, whose names are these: Eliphelet, Ithai & Samaiab, and with them thre score men. Of the chyldren of Ithar, Ithar, & zabud, and with them leuentye men. And I gathered them together by the water that runneth toward Abana, and there abode we thre dayes. And I looked amonge the people & the preeisten, and found there none of the chyldren of Leui. Then sent I to Elizer, to Ithai, Benecia, Elnachan, Ithar, Elnachan, nathan, zachary, and to Beniamin the rulers, and to Ithar and Elnachan, which were men of vnderstandyng, and to those gaue I commaundemente: vnto Ithar the chiefe at Casaphia, that they shulde fetch vs mynisters for the house of our God, and I tolde them what they shulde saye vnto Ithar and to his wythten the Eethimins at Casaphia.

And (thow the good hande of our God vpon vs) they brought vs a wyle man from amonge the chyldren of Ithar the sonne of Leui, the sonne of Israel: And Ithar with his son, and his wythten, euen eghthene. And Ithar, and with hym Ithar of the chyldren of Ithar, with his wythten, and they sonnes: went ye.

And of the Eethimins, whome Ithar and the mynisters gaue to mynister vnto the Leuytes, to hundred and twente of Eethimins, whiche all were named by name.

And euen there at the water, besyde Abana, I proclaimed a fast, that we myght haue our selues before our God, and seke of hym a ryght waye for vs, and for our chyldren, and for al our substance. For I was ashamed to requyre of the kyng, souldiours and hoysmen, to helpe vs agaynst the enemy in the waye: but we sayd vnto the kyng: The hande of our God is vpon all them that seke hym in goodnes, & his dominion: his violence and wrath is agaynst al them that forsake hym. So we fasted, and besought our God for this: and he herde vs.

And I toke out twelue of the chiefe preeisten: Ithar, and Ithar, and ten of their wythten with them, & wayed them the syluer & golde, and vessels that were appoynted for the house of our God, which the kyng and his counsailers, and his lordes, & all Israel that were there at hande had gyuen together. And I wayed vnto they hand thre hundred and fyfthe talentes of syluer, and in syluer vessel an hundred talentes, and in golde, an hundred talentes: twente basens of golde, of a thousande peces, and two costly ornaments of good basse, as cleare as golde: and I sayd vnto them: ye are consecrate vnto f Lord, lyke as the vessels are holy also, and the golde & syluer are gyuen of a good wyll vnto the Lorde God of your fathers. Watche ye, and hepe it: for ye shall waye it downe before the chiefe preeisten and Leuytes, & auncient fathers of Israel at Jerusalem in the treasures of f house of the Lorde. Then toke the preeisten and Leuytes the wayed syluer and golde, and vessel to byynge it to Jerusalem, vnto the house of our God. And we brake vp from the water of Abana on the tweluth daye of the fyfth moneth, to go vnto Jerusalem: and the hande of our God was vpon vs, and deliuered vs from the hande of the enemies, and of suche as layed waye for vs by the waye. And we came to Jerusalem, and a bode there thre dayes. But on the fourth daye was the syluer & golde and vessel wayed in the house of our God by the hand of Ithar the sonne of Ithar the preeist, & with him was Eleazar f sonne of Ithar, & with them was Ithar f son of Ithar & Ithar the sonne of Ithar the Leuytes. I cryng to the nombre & weyght of euery one, was the weyght all wrytten vp at the same tyme.

And the chyldren of the captiuitie, which were come out of prision, offered burnt offrynges vnto the God of Israel, twelue bullockes, for all Israel, syxe and nyntey rammes, leuen and leuentye lambes, twelue hegootes for a synoffryng, all to the burnt offryng of the Lorde. And they deliuered the kynges commissio vnto the kinges officers, and to the captaynes that were on this syde the water. And they promoted the people, and the house of God.

The ix. Chapter.

Certaine complacency on the people that ben returned from Ithar to God, and manyed wryth the Eethimins.

When

When these thynges were done, the rulers came to me, & sayd: The people of Israel, & the prestes and Leuites are not separated from the people of the landes (as touchyng theyr abhominacyons,) namely, of the Cananites, Hethites, Pherezites, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egypcians, and Amouites. * For they haue taken the daughters of the same to them selues, & to theyr sonnes, and the holy seede is myxed with the nacions in the lande, and the bande of the princes and rulers hath ben principal in the trespass.

* And when I heard this saying, I rent my clothes and my garment, and plucke of the beere of my heed, and of my heerde, & sat mournynge. And there rested vnto me all such as feared the wordes of the Lord God of Israel, because of the transgression of the people of captiuitie. And I sat mournynge vntill the euening sacrifice. And aboute the euening sacrifice, I arose vnto my leynes, and left my clothes and my payment and set vpon my knees, and spreade out my handes vnto the Lord my God, and sayde:

O Lord God, I am ashamed, and dare not lyfte vnto my eyes vnto my God: for oure wickednesses are growen ouer our heed, & oure trespass is waxed grete vnto the heauen. Whyns tyme of our fathers, haue we bene in grete trespass vnto this day, * and because of our wickednesses haue we and our wynges bene deliuered into the bande of the kynges of the nacions, into the swerde, into captiuitie, into shame, and into confusion of face: as it is to se this daye.

And now is there a lytle and sodayne grace. ouercome come from the Lord oure God, in causing some of vs to escape, and that he may gyue vs a nable in vns holy place, and that oure God may lyght oure eyes, and gyue vs a lytle lyfe to take breath in our bondage. For we are bondemen, & oure God hath not forsaken vs in our bondage, and hath enclined mercye vnto vs in the syght of the kynges of Persia, to gyue vs lyfe, to let vp the house of oure God, and to redresse the desolation thereof, and to gyue vs a wall in Juda and Ierusalem.

And now oure God, what shall we saye after this? For we haue forsaken thy commaundementes wherch thou hast commaunded by thy seruantes the prophetes, saying: The lande vnto which ye go to possesse, it is an vncleane lade because of the fylthyneesse of the people of the landes, wherch with theyr abhominacyons haue made it ful of vncleane on euery syde. * Therefore shall ye not gyue your daughters vnto their sonnes, & theyr daughters shall ye not take vnto your sonnes, nor seche theyr peace and weale for euer, that ye maye be stronge and enioye the good in the lande, and that ye and your chyldren maye haue the inheritaunce of it for euermore.

And after that all these thynges are come vpon vs (because of our euyl dedes, and great trespasses) thou oure God hast thrust downe our wickednesses, and hast gyuen vs a deliuerance, as it is to come to passe this daye.)

And yet we turne backe agayne to let go thy commaundementes, and make contract with the people of these abhominacyons, wherch thou not then be wroth at vs (and not without cause) tyme we be secretly consumed, so that nothyng remaine, and tyme there be no deliuerance. O Lord God of Israel, thou arte ryghteous, for we remaine yet escaped, as it is to se this day. Beholde also, in thy presence are we in oure trespasses, and because of it maye we not stande before the.

The x. Chapter.

The people repent and tume, and put awaye theyr strange wyues.

Ad when * Edoas prayed after this manner, & knowledged, wepte, & lay before the house of God, there rested vnto hym oure of Israel a very grete congregation of men & women & chyldren: and the people wepte very soze. And Berchania sonne of Iehiel one of the chyldren of Elam, answered: and sayd vnto Edoas: We haue trespassed against our God, and haue taken strange wyues of the people of the lande. Nowe there is hope yet in Israel concerning this thyng: For now we will make a covenante with our God, and put awaye all the wyues (such as are borne of them) accordynge to the counsaile of the Lord: & we will be in the feare of the commaundementes of our God, that we maye do accordynge to the lawe. Set the vp: for this matter belongeth vnto the: we also will be with the: be of good comforte therfore, and do it.

* Then arose Edoas: & toke an oth of the prestes & Leuites, & of al Israel, that they shoulde doo accordynge to this word: and they sware. And Edoas stode vp fro before the house of God & went into the chylde of Iohanan the sonne of Eliashib. And when he came thither, he dyd eate no bread, nor drinke water: for he mourned, because of the transgression of the people that had ben in captiuitie. And they caused a proclamation to go thorowout Juda and Ierusalem, vnto all the chyldren wherch had ben in captiuitie, that they shoulde gather them selues together vnto Ierusalem. And that whosoever cam not with in the dayes accordynge to the druple of the rulers and elders, al his substance shoulde be forsake, and he shoulde be put forth from the congregation of the captiuitie.

Then all the men of Juda and Beniamin gathered them selues together vnto Ierusalem within the dayes, euen the twente daye of the nynt moneth, and al the people sat in the strete before the house of God, and trembled because of this matter, and for the rayne. And Edoas the prest stode vp, and sayde vnto them: * Ye haue transgressed, and haue taken strange wyues, to make trespass of Israel yet more: & sell now the: soze vnto the Lord God of your fathers: & do his pleasure, & separate your selues fro the people of the lade, & fro the strange wyues. And al the congregation answered, and sayd w a loude voyce: it shalbe so: & we will do as thou sayde. But the people are many, & it is a raynye wyther, and the people are to faynte to tarpe without in the strete, neither is this a worke of my brethren came to certayne men of Juda, and I asked the how the Jewes byd that were delivered and escaped from the captivite, and how it went at Jerusalem. And they sayd unto me: The remnant of the captivite are there in the land in great mistytune and rebuile. * The wall of Jerusalem also is broken downe: and the gates therof are bzent with fyre.

It fortuned, that when I herde these wordes
I late me downe and wepte, and mowened cer-tayne dayes, and fasted and prayed befoze the Then were appointed Jonathan the sonne of Habel, & Jachalia the son of Tethua over this matter: And Hecalia & Sabachan the Levites helped them. And the chyldre of the captivite byd even so. And Edoas the prest, & the auncient herdes thowow shoulde of the fathers all men of great fame, separated them selfe, & sat them examin the matter. And vntyl the fyfthe dape of the fyfthe moneth they were finishyng the bypyness of thy seruante, and to the prayer of thy seruantes, whose desyre is to feare thy name, & let thy seruante prosper thy daye, and graunte hym mercede in the sight of thy man, for I was the hynges butteler.

¶ The ii. Chapter.

After Mothema had obtained letters of Astharettes, he came to Jerusalem, and buyde the walles.

It fortuned, that in the moneth of Nissan in the twentyeth yere of kyng Astharettes, the wyne stode before him, & I toke vp the wine, and gaue it vnto the kyng. And I was heuy in his presence. And the kyng sayd vnto me: why lokest thou so sadly, why art not specke? it is nothyng els, but that I arte heuy hearted. And I was soye afraied, and sayd vnto the kyng, God saue the kynges lyfe for euer. Howe shulde I not loke sadly, whē the cytie and place of my fathers buryall lyeth wast and the gates thereof are consumed with fyre. And the kyng sayde vnto me: what is then thy requeste? I made my prayer also to the God of heauen, & sayde vnto the kyng: yf it please the kyng: and yf thy seruante haue founde sauoure in thy sight, sende me into Iuda vnto the cytie of my fathers buryall, that I maye buyde it.

And the kyng sayd vnto me (the queene hys wyfe syttinge by hym) how longe shal thy iourney continue, and when wylt thou come agayne? And it pleased the kyng to sende me, & I let him a tyne, and sayd vnto the kyng: yf it please the kyng, let hym gyue me letters to the captaynes which are beyonde the water, that they maye carry me ouer, tyll I come into Iuda: and letters vnto Asaph the loyde of the kynges wood, that he maye gyue me tymber to make beames for the gates of the palace (which is hard by the house) and for the walles of the cytie, and for the house that I shall entre into. And the kyng gaue me accordyng to the hande of my God, whych was good vpon me. And when I came to the captaynes beyonde the water, I gaue them the kynges letters. And the kyng sent captaynes and hostmen with me.

Danabalat also the Hozonite, and Tobia a seruante (the Ammonite) hearde it, and it grieved them soye, that there was come a mā which sought the wealth of the chyldren of Israel. And I came to Jerusalem, and was there thre dayes & I gat me vp in the nyght season, and a few men with me, neyther tolde I anye man, what God had gyue me in my dert to do at Jerusalem, and there was not one beast with me, save it that I rode vpon. And I departed in the nyght by the valley porte, before the draggon wel, and to the donge porte, and conspyed the walles of Jerusalem howe they were broken downe, and the postes thereof consumed with the fyre. And I went ouer vnto the well porte, and to the kynges conduyte, and there was no roume for the beast that was vnder me to passe. Then wente I on in the nyght by the broke syde, and conspyed the wall, and turned backe, and came home agayne by the valley porte.

And the rulers knewe not wher I wente or what I dyd, neyther dyd I as yet tell it vnto the Jewes, to the priestes, to the noble men to the rulers, & to the other that laboured in the worke. Then sayd I vnto them: ye se the myserte that we are in, how Jerusalem lyeth waste, & how the gates thereof are burnt with fyre: come therefore that we maye buyde by the wall of Jerusalem, & that we be nomore a rebuke. And I told them of the hande of my God, (that it was gratious ouer me) & the kynges wordes that he had spoken vnto me. And they sayde: let vs get vp, and buyde: & they strenghted theyr hande to good.

But when Sanabalat the Hozonite, & Tobia the seruante (an Ammonite), and Gelim the Arabian herde it, they laughed vs to scoone and mocked vs, and sayd: what is this that ye do? Well ye fall awaye from the kyng: Then answered I them, and sayd: the God of heauen, he it is that hath graunted vs prosperite: and we be his seruantes. Let vs get vp and buyde. As for you, ye haue no portion nor ryght, nor remembraunce in Jerusalem.

¶ The iii. Chapter.

The nombre of them that buyded the walles.

As Eliab the hye priest gat hym vp with his brethren the priestes, & they buyded the shepegate. They repayred it, and set vp the doores of it: and vnto the towre Dea repayred they it, & vnto the towre of Hananel. Next vnto him also buyded the men of Jericho. And besyde hym Sachur the sone of Amri. But the fyfthe porte dyd the chyldren of Manna buyde, which also layed the beames thereof, & set on the doores lockes, and barres of it. And next vnto him buyded Meremoth the son of Uria, the son of Pahoz: and next vnto them buyded Meshulā the sonne of Barachia the sonne of Gheselabel: and next vnto him buyded Jador the son of Sana. And next vnto him buyded they of Thekoa. But the greafe men were amonge them, put not their neckes to the worke of their Lord.

The olde gate buyded Jchoiada the sonne of Paseah, & Meshulā the sonne of Besodja, they layed the beames thereof, & set on the doores lockes & barres of it. Next vnto them buyded Melatiah of Sibeon & Jodon of Merano, me of Sibeon, & of Mispa, where he that was captain on this syde the water had a mansion. Next vnto hym buyded Miel the sonne of Harabiah the gold smyth. Next vnto hym also buyded Harnania the sonne of Harahim, & they repayred Jerusalem vnto the wyde well. Next vnto them buyded Rappah the son of Hur, the ruler of the halfe parte of Jerusalem. Next vnto hym buyded Jedaia the sonne of Harumaph ouer agaynst hys house: & next vnto hym buyded Harnū the sone of Hasabnia. But Meshia the sonne of Hartim & Hasub the son of the captayne of Moab buyded the other pece, and the towre besyde the fornares. Next vnto hym buyded Shallum a syn-gers sonne, the ruler of the halfe parte of Jerusalem, he and his daughters.

The valley gate buyded Hanum, & the city of Jonoa. They buyded it, & set on the doores lockes.

The burthens of Jerusalem is hyndred and let, but the Jewes buy the it, being readye hearted, lett theye enemyes quyle invade them.

lockes & barres therof, and a Cubyted on the wal, vnto the donge porte. But the donge port buylded Weichiah the sonne of Rechiab, the ruler of the fourth parte of Bethcharem: he repayed it, and set on the doxes, lockes & barres therof. But the well gate repayed Shallu the sonne of Chothobah the ruler of the fourth parte of Githpa he buylded it, and layed the beames, and set on the doxes, lockes and barres therof, and the wal vnto the poole of Siload by the kinges garde, and vnto the steeppes that go downe fro the cite of Dauid. After him buylded Shehemiah the sonne of Ithob: the ruler of the halfe parte of Bethsur, vntyl the other syde ouer agaynst the sepulchres of Dauid, and to the poole that was repayed, and vnto the house of the myghtye.

¶ After hym buylded the Leuytes, Reham the sonne of Bani, and next vnto hym buylded Hasabiah the ruler of the halfe part of Ieriah in hys quarter. After hym buylded thei brethren: Banai the sonne of Benadab the ruler of the halfe parte of Ieriah: and after him buylded Ezer the sonne of Iesua the ruler of Githpa the other pece barde ouer agaynst the goinge vp to the house of the ordinaunce that was in the corner. Agayne, after him buylded the sonne of Zachai of indignacyon, & repayed the other pece fr the turninge corner, vnto the doore of the house of Eliashib the hye priest. And after him also buylded Weerimoth the sonne of Aza the son of Hacer, the other pece fr the doxe of the house of Eliashib, even as longe as the house of Eliashib extended. After hym buylded the prestes, the men of the playne. After hym buylded Ben Jamin and Halub ouer agaynst thei house, and after him wroughte Aaria the sonne of Masia, the sonne of Anania, next vnto his house. After hym also buylded Benim the sonne of Hanadab the other pece, from the house of Aaria vnto the turninge of the wall, and vnto the corner.

¶ After hym buylded Bala the sonne of Aisai, ouer agaynst the corner & the hygh towre which lyeth out ouer from the hynges house, that was beynde the court of the prison. After hym buylded the sonne of Shorbon (as for the Serdinims they dwelt in the stronge holde vnto the watergate, towarde the east, & to the towre that lyeth out.) After him buylded they of Echeua & other pece ouer agaynst the great towre, that lyeth outwarde, vnto the wall of the stronge holde.

¶ But from aboue the hoyle gate forth buylded the prestes, euery one ouer agaynst his house. And after them buylded Iabon the sonne of Immer ouer agaynst his house. After hym buylded also Semetia the sonne of Merhania the keeper of the eastgate. After hym buylded Hanania the son of Seicmia, & Hamun the sonne of Ialah & syet the other pece. And after hym buylded Meshullai the son of Serachia ouer agaynst his house. After hym buylded Valachia the goldsmithes sonne, vntyl the house of the Serdinims, and of the marchauntes ouer agaynst the gate Weichah, & to the parlour in the corner. And betwene the parlour of the corner vnto the wepogate buylded the goldsmithes and the marchauntes.

¶ At that tyme Hanabaiat hearde that the Jewes builded the wal, he was wroth in hym selfe, & toke great indignacion, & mocked the Jewes, & sayde before his brethren and the souldoyers of Samaria: what do these impotent Jewes: wyl the heathen suffer them? Shall they offer? Shall they perforce it in one daye? Shall they make stones whole againe that are brought to dust & brayle? And Tobiah the Ammonite was beynde him, and sayde: Though they buyde, yet yf a fore go vp, he shall breake downe theyr stony wall. Heare (O our God) for we are despised: turne their shame vnto theyr owne heed, and gyue them ouer into delpyng in the lande of theyr captiuitie. Couer not theyr wyckednesse, and let not theyr syn be put out in thy piensence: for they haue prouoked the vngyders. And so buylded we the wal, & it was topped hole togyther, vnto the halfe heygth therof. And the people were mynded to labour.

¶ And it fortuned, that when Hanabaiat, and Tobiah, & the Arabians, Ammonites, & Adobites hearde that the walles of Jerusalem were made vp, & that the gappes began to be stopped they were very wroth, & conspyred also togyther to come & fight agaynst Jerusalem, & to make the people an hyndsaunce therein. Nevertheless we made our prayer vnto our God, & set watchme by them, which buylded day and nyght ouer agaynst them. And Iuda sayde: the strength of the beargers is to feble: and there is yet moche more moztie, & we are not able to buyde on the wall. And our aduersaries sayde: they shall not know neyther se, tyll we come in the myddes amonge them & slay them, and hynde the worke. But it fortuned that when the Jewes (which dwelt beynde them) came, they told vs as good as ten tymes: that in al places where ye go vnto, they are appoynted to fall vpon vs. Therefore let Iude the people after thei hyndes with thei swerdes, speares and bowes beneth in the lowe places beynde the wall, and Ioshed, and gat me vp: and said vnto the chiefe men, to the rulers, and to the other people, be not ye afrayed of them: * But thynke rather vpon the great Lord, which ought to be feared, and fyght for your brethren, your sonnes, your daughters, your wyues, and your houses. Nevertheless, it chaunced that whil our enemyes herde that we had gotten woide of it, God broughte theyr counsell to nought: and we turned all agayne to the wal: euery one vnto hys labour. And fro that tyme forth it came to passe that the halfe parte of the yonge men dyd the labour, and the other halfe parte of them held the speares, shylles, bowes, & bestplates: and the rulers stode beynde al the house of Iuda, whiche buylded on the wal, & bare burthens from those that laded them. With one hande dyd euery one worke: and with the other helde hys weapon. And euery one that buylded, had hys swearde gyde by hys chynghe, and so buylded they. And the trumpet blew beynde me.

And

D And I sayd vnto the principal me, to the rulers, and to the other people: the worke is great and large, and we are separated vpon the wall, one farre fro an other. Loke in what place therfore ye heare the noyse of the trompet, resorte ye thither vnto vs, and our God shall syght for vs: and we will be labouryng in the worke. And the halfe part of them helde the speares fro the morning hyng: til the starres came forth. And at the same time sayd I vnto the people: every one abyde by his seruaunt at Jerusalem, that in the night season we may watch, and labour on the day tyme. As for me & my brethren, my seruauntes and the men of the watch (which were behynde me) we put neuer of oure clothes, no more then the other dyd they: harnesse, save only bycause of the water.

The v. Chapter.

The people are vexed with hunger. He requyryth not the hyng of a captayne.

Ad there arose a greate complainnt of the people, and of they: wyues agaynst they: brethren the Iues. For there were some that sayde: our sonnes and daughters and we are to manye therfore will we take coine for them, that we maye eat and lyue. Some also there were that sayd: let vs set our landes: vineyardes & houses to pledge & take by coine in the dearth. But some there were that sayd: let vs bozowe money for the hynges tribute: and that vpon our landes and vineyardes. Beholde, our bodies as the bodies of our brethren, & our chyldren as they: chyldren: els shuld we subdue our sonnes and daughters vnto bondage, and some of our daughters are subdued vnto bondage already and no strengthe is there in our handes, and other men haue our landes and vineyardes.

B And when I harde they: complainnt & suche wordes, it displeased me sore, and I aduised so in my mynde, that I rebuked the counsellors, and rulers, & sayd vnto them. Every one of you is to chargeable vnto his brother. And I brought a greate congregation agaynst them, and sayde vnto them: we (after oure abilitie) haue bought our brethren the Jewes, which were solde vnto the heathen. And will you sel your brethren agayne vnto the heathen, after that they haue ben solde vnto vs? Then helde they they: peace, and coude fynde nothyng to answer.

C And Achemia sayde: It is not good that ye do. Oughte ye not to walke in the feare of God, bycause of the rebuke of the heathen that are our enemies? And my brethren, and my seruauntes do lend them money and coine: but as for vsury let vs leane it. Therfore, this same day I praye you that ye restore them they: landes agayne they: vineyardes, oyle gardens, and their houses, and remyt the hundred parte of the mony of the coine, wyne and oyle that ye haue donne of them. Then sayde they: we will restore them agayne, and will requyre nothyng of them: and will do as thou hast spoken. And I called presbyters, & toke an oth of them, that they shuld do so. And Iooke my lappe, & sayde. God make out every man after the same maner from his house & labour that mayntayneth not this worke: and thus be he shalke out, & dyde. And al the congregacion sayd: Amen, & prayed the Lord: And the people dyd so. And from the tyme forth that (the hyng) commytted vnto me to be a captayne of them that were in the land of Iuda cul fro .xx. yere vnto the .xxii. yere of hyng Artbarestus, (that is .xii. yere) I with my brethren liued not of such substance as was giuen to a captayne. For the olde captaynes that were before me, had bene chargeable vnto the people, & had taken of them byed and wyne, & .xl. species of synner: yea, & they: seruauntes had oppressed the people. But so dyd not I, & that bycause of the feare of God. But I laboured also in the worke vpon the wall, & bought no lande. And all my seruauntes came thither together vnto the worke. Wherouer there were at my table an .c. and .l. of the Jewes & rulers, which came vnto me fro among the heathen that are about vs. And there was prepared for me dayly an oxe, & syre chosen shepe, & vyders, & euer ones in .x. dayes a great summe of wyne. Yet requyred not I the hyng of a captayne, for the bondage was greuous vnto the people.

* Thynke vpon me my God vnto the best, as cōsyng to all that I haue done for this people.

The vi. Chapter.

The buydyng is yet agayne hyndred and let.

Ad when Sanabaiar, Tobiah, and Sersem the Arabian, & the other of our enemies herde that I had buylded the wall, and that there wer no mo gappes therein (howbeit, at the same tyme had I not daged the dozes vpon the gates) Sanabaiar & Sersem sent vnto me, saying: come that we may mete and take counsell together in the bylages that are in the plaine of the cytie Dno. Acuerdprell, they thought to do me euill. And I sent messengers vnto the, saying: I haue a greate busynesse to do, & I can not come downe. The worke shuld stand styll, if I were negligent, & came down to you. Howbeit, they sent vnto me as good as foure tymes after the same maner. And I gaue the the same answer. Then let Sanabaiar his seruante a tyne vnto me the fyfth tyme, in an open letter in hyndred & thre was writen: it is to be the deare of Sersem hath sayd it, that I and I Iues thynke to rebel, for the which cause I buylded the wall that I may be they: hyng in these matters, & hast ordeyned the prophetes to preache of the at Jerusalem, and to saye: he is hyng of Iuda.

And now shal this come to the hynges eares, come now therfore, & let vs take our counsell together. And I sent vnto him, saying: there is no such thyng done as thou sayest: for thou saynest them out of thyne owne hert. For they were all mynded to make vs a trapped, saying: they shall withdraue they: handes fro the worke, that it shall not be finished. Howbeit, I strenghted my hande the more. And I came to the house of Semeta the soune of Dalaias the soune of Orberabeel, & he had shut hym selfe wpythin, & sayde: let vs come together into the house of God, cul vnto the myddes of the temple, & shut the dozes of the temple, for they will come to slay the people, cul in the night will they come to put the to death. And I sayd: Shuld any such man as I speake who is that, being as I am, that will go into the temple, to saue hym selfe: I will not go in.

C And I perceyued, that God had not sent hym. Yet spake he prophete vpon me, neuertheless, Tobiah and Sanabalar had hyed hym for money. Therefore toke he the moneye, that through feare I shulde so do, and spake: that they myght haue an euill reporte of me, to blasphemie me. My God thynke thou vpon Tobiah & Sanabalar accordeynge vnto these theyr wordes, and of the prophet Aodias, & of the other prophetes that wolde haue put me in feare.

D And the wall was synplyshed on the fyue and twenty day of the moneth Elul, in two & fyftee dayes. And when all our enemyes herde thereof, al the heathen that were about vs, were asfayed, and their courage fayled them. And they perceyued, that this worke came of our God. And at the same tyme were there many of the chiefe of Iuda whose letters went vnto Tobiah & agayne from Tobiah vnto them (for there were many in Iuda, that were sworne vnto hym, for he was the sonne in lawe of Serchania, the sonne of Arab, and his sonne Jedonathan had the daughter of Helisai, the sonne of Barachia, & they spake good of him befoze me: & tolde him my wordes) and Tobiah sent letters to put me in feare.

A And when the wall was buylded: I hanged on the doores also, and the porters, spengers & Leuites were appoynted. And I commaunded my brother Hanania and Hanania the ruler of the castell at Jerusalem: for he was a faythful man, and feared God more then byd many other. And I sayd vnto them: let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened, vntyl the sunne be whole. And whyle they were standyng in the watch, they shut the doores, and barred them. And we appoynted certayne cytyzens of Jerusalem, to be watche men, euery one to kepe his watche, and euery one to be ouer agaynst his house. As for the cytie, it was large of roume and greute: but the people were fewe therein, and the houses were not buylded.

B And my God gaue me in my heart, that I gathered togyther the principal men, & the officers and the people, to nombre them: and I founde a register of the nombre of them: which came vp befoze out of the captiuitie: and founde wyrtten therein: these are the sonnes of Ilande that went vp fro the captiuitie of scarping away (whom Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon had brought away) and came agayne to Jerusalem & Iuda: euery one vnto his cytie. The viii. Chapter.

Celcias gathered together the people, & ready to them the law. They kept the feast of tabernacles in boches.

And al the people gathered the selues together: as one man, in the strete that was before the watergate, and they sayde vnto Eldras the scribe, that he shoulde fetch the boke of the lawe of Moyses, whych & Lozde commaunded to Israel. And Eldras the preste brought the lawe before the congregacion both of men and women: and all that coulde under-stande bydderhen vnto it, vpon the first day of the seuenth moneth, and he redde therein, in the strete that was before the watergate (from the moynynge vntill the noone dape) before men & women that byd harken to it: and the eares of all the people were inclyned vnto the booke of the lawe. And Eldras the scribe stode vpon an hye pulpyt of wood whych they had made for & preachinge, and besyde hym stode Warbarthia, Sema, Anania, Aritah, Helkia, and Maaseria on his ryght hande, and on his lefte hande stode Bedaia, Misael, Malchia, Hasum, Halebada-na, Zachari, and Heculam.

And Eldras opened the boke before all & people, for he stode aboue all the people: And when he opened it, all the people stode vp. And Eldras prayd the Lozde the great God. And all the people answered: Amen, Amen, with theyr handes vp, and bowed them selues, and worshypped the Lozde fallynge downe vpon theyr faces to the grounde. And Jesua, Baam, & Raiah, Jamin, Acub, Sebatbai, Hadata, Maasla, Celita, Azaria, Jozabad, Hanan, Belata: & the Leuites caused the people to gyue bede vnto the lawe, and the people stode in theyr place. And they red in the boke of the lawe of God by synctlye and plainly, so that men understode the thing that was red. And Aethimiah (which is Harbisatja) and Eldras the prest and scribe and the Leuites that caused the people to take bede, sayde vnto all the people: this dape is holy vnto the Lozde your God: he not you say, and wepe not. For al the people wepte, when they hearde the wordes of the lawe.

And he sayde vnto them: go your way and eate of the fat, and drynke the wyne, and sende part vnto them also that haue not prepared the selues: for this dape is holy vnto our Lozde, be not ye soze therfore: for the ioye of the Lozde is your strength. And the Leuites stilled al the people, and sayde: holde your peace, for the dape is holy, wepe not ye your selues. And al the people went theyr waye to eate and drynke, and to sende parte vnto other, & to make great myrthe because they had understode the wordes that were declared vnto them.

And on the nexte dape were gathered together the chiefe fathers amonge all the people and the prestes and Leuites, vnto Eldras & scribe that they myght understande the wordes of the lawe. And they founde wyrtten in the lawe, (whiche the Lozde had commaunded by Moyses) that the chyldren of Israel shoulde dwell in boches in the feast of the seuenth moneth, and & they shoulde cause it to be declared and proclaimed in all theyr cities and thowowout Jerusalem, saying: go forth vnto the mount, and fetch the olyuebranches, pinebranches, myrtbranches, Palmebranches, and branches of the cheke tree: to make boches, as it is wyrtten.

And so the people went forth, and set them & made them boches, eueryc one vpon the rofe of his house, and in theyr courtes, and in the courtes of the house of God, and in the strete by the watergate, and in the strete by porte Ephraim.

agayne out of captiuitie made bother, and sat vnder the bother: for during the tyme of Iosua the sonne of Nun vnto this daye, had not the chyl dren of Israel done so, and there was very great

Chapter 11

THE people repent, and forsake their strange turns.
 They cry for the benefits of God, and the fountains of the people.

1
In the .xliiii. day of this moneth came the children of Israel together againe with fasting and clothes and earth vpon the and they that were of the seed of Israel were leperated, from all the straunge children, & stode and knowledged they synnes and the wychednesses of they fathers, and stode vp in the place and red in the booke of the lawe of the Lord their God foure tymes on the day, and they knowleged and worshipped the Lorde they: God four-tymes on the day. And the Leuites stode on hye namely Iesua, Bani, Cadmiel, Nabaniab, Eui, Nababiah, Bani and Canani, & cryed loude vnto the Lorde they: God. And the Leuites, Iesua and Cadmiel, Bani, and Nababiah, Ne-rechia and Nodia, Nabania & Phathabiah sayde: stande vp, and prayse the Lorde poure God for euer: and let thankes be giuen vnto the name of the glorie, whiche excelleth all thankesgyuyng and prayse Thou arte Lorde alone. Thou hast made heauen, and the heauen of all heauens, with all they: hooste, the earth: and all thynges that are therein, the see and all that is therin, and thou preseruest them all, and the hooste of heuen worshippeth the.

B Thou arte the Lorde God, that hast chosen Abra, and broughtest him out of Chaldea, and calleddest hym Abraham, and founddest his hart faythfull before the *, and madest a covenante with hym, to geue vnto hys side the lande of the Canaanites, Hethites, Amorites, Pheresites, Jebusites and Gerisites, and hast made good thy woordes: for thou arte ryghte-ous. * and hast considered the misery of our fathers in Egypt, and hearde thers complainnt by the redde, and spewed tokens and wonders vpon Pharao, and on al his seruantes, and on al the people of hys lande: for thou knowest that they were petyous and cruel agaynst them, and so madest thou the a name, as it is this daye.
And the red see dyddest thou drupe in sondre be-foze them, so that they went thorow the myrdes of the sea brye thodde: and their persecuters threwest thou in to the depe (as a stone) in the myghte waters: and leddest them on the dawe tyme with a clowde pyller, and on the nyghte season in a pyller of fyre to shewe them lyght in the waye that they wente.

E Thou camest downe also vpon mount Si-Exod. 4. nai, and spakest vnto them from heaue, and gauest them right iudgementes, true lawes, good commaundementes and statutes, and declared dest vnto them thy holy & abboth, & commaundest them pierces, ordinaunces, and lawes, by the hande of Moyses thy seruante: and gauest them breade from heauen, when they were hungry, and broughtest forth water for them oute of the rocke, when they were thyrste: and promysedest them that they shoulde go in, & take possession of the lande: ouer which thou haddest lyfte up thynne hande for to gyue them.

But they and our fathers were psonde and hardened: so that they folowed not thy commaundementes: and wolde not obeye, neyther were myndeſulle of the wonders that thou vpreſt for them: but became obſtynate & heaſy, in ſome ch that they touned backe to theſe bondage for theyr diſobediencie. And thou my God forgaueſt, and waſt gracyous, merciful, parent and of greate goodneſſe, and forgokeſt not them.

* And though they made a molten calfe (as sayd This is thy gods that broughte the oute of the lande of Egypte) and dyd greate blasphemyes, yet forsooke he them not in the wilbernesse, accorpyng to the great mercy. * And the cloudy pyller departed not from them on the day tyme to leade them the waye, neither the pyller of fire in the nyght season, to shewe them the lyght in the waye that they went.

And thou gaueste them the good spyete to enfourme them, & s witheldest not thy Mana from the; mouth, & gaueste the water whē they were thysyrt. Fouretye yerres longe madest thou prouision for them in the wyldernesse, so y they lacked nothing & the; clothes wared not olde, and the; fete swelled not. And thou ga-ueste them kyngdomes and nacjons, and parted dest them accordynge to the; porcyons: so that they possessed & the lande of sydon kyng of he-sebom: and the lande of Og the kyng of Basan.
And the; chyldren multiplieddest thou as the starres of heauen, and broughtest them into the lande: where of thou haddest spoken vnto the;
fathers, that they shulde go into it, and haue it in possession.

And the chyldren went in, and possessed the lande, * and thou subduedst befoze them the inhabitants of the lande, euen the Cananites: and gauest them into theyr handes, with theyr kynge and the people of the lande, that they might do with them what they wolde. And they wone theyr stronge cityes and a fat lande, & toke possession of houses, that were full of all maner of goodes: Welles dygged out, vyneyardes, oyle-gardens, and many fruiteful trees, and they dyd eate, and were fylled: and became fat, and lyued in welth thozow the great goodnes. Neuer the lesse they were disobeidient, & rebelled agaynst the, and cast the lawe behinde their backes and *sue the prophetes (which exhorted them earnestly, that they myght bring them agayn vnto the) and dyd greates blasphemyes. Therfoze thou gauest them ouer into the hande of theyr enemyes that vned them.

And in the tyme of theyr trouble when they cryed vnto the: thou herdest them from heauen:
and thou shewest thy great mercy thou gauest them saueours

saunders tobych helped them out of the hand of they: enemies. But whē they came to rest they turned backe agayne, to do euil before the: the foze leftest thou them in the hande of they: ene-myes, so that they had the dominyon ouer them And whē they conuerred and cryed vnto the thou herdest them from heauen, & many tymes hast thou deliuered the according to thy great mercy, and testifyedst vnto the that thou myght test bynge them agayne vnto thy lawe.

¶ Notwithstandyng, they were proude, and berkened not vnto thy commandementes, but spined in the lawes (which yf a mā do he shal lyue in them) and turned the thuldr away, and were styfnecked, and wolde not heare. And many peres dydest thou so: beare them, and testy-fyedst vnto them thow the spyrte, euen by hande of the prophetes: and yet wolde they not heare. Therefore gauest thou them into the hande of the nations in the landes. And for thy greates mercy sake, thou hast not yettelyr consumed them neither forsaken them: for thou art a gracious and mercifull God.

¶ Nowe therefore our God, thou great God, myghtye and terrible, thou the best couenant and mercye, regarde not a lytle all the traouyle that hath happened vnto vs, and our kynge, our princes, our prestes, our prophetes and our fathers, and all thy people syns the tyme of the kynge of Assur vnto this day. And truly thou art iust, in all that thou hast brought vpon vs: for thou hast done ryghte. As for vs, we haue bene vngodlye, and our kinges and our princes, our prestes and our fathers haue not done after thy law, nor regarded thy commandementes and thy earnest exhortacions wherwith thou hast exhorted them, and they haue not serued the in they: kyngdome, and in thy great goodnes that thou gauest them, and in the large and plethous lande which thou gauest before them, and haue not conuerted from they: wyched wykes. Be-holde, we are in bondage this day: and so is lande that thou gauest vnto our fathers, to en-tope the frutes and goodnes therof, behold, there are we bondmen. And great is the increase of it vnto the kynge whome thou hast set ouer vs, because of our synnes: and they haue dominyon ouer our bodies and cattell (euen as they wyll them selues) and we are in greates trouble. And in all this make for a sure couenant, & wyte it, and our princes, Leuites & prestes scale vnto it

¶ The xi. Chapter.

Who dwelled in Jerusalem after it was buylded, and who in the cities of Iuda.

Ad the rulers of the people dwelte at Ierusalem. The other people also cast lottes, & among ten, one parte shulde go to Ierusalem into the holy cite to dwel, and nyne partes to be in the Cityes: and the people thanked all the men that were willinge to dwel at Ierusalem.

These are the headres of the lande that dwelt in Ierusalem and in the Cities of Iuda, euery one in his possession, and in theyr cityes: they of Israel, the prestes, Leuites, Retbunims, and & children of Salomons seruantes. And at Ierusalem dwelt certayne of the children of Iuda and Ben Jamin.

And Maasia the son of Israel, the sonne of Abai, the sonne of Mo-selemoth, the sonne of Immer: and his byethen were valeaunt men: an hundred and eght and twentye. And they ouersaw was zabbid a son of one of the great men.

¶ Of the Leuites, Semela the sonne of Hasub, the sonne of Aserikam, the sonne of Hasabia the sonne of Buni, and Sabathai, and Iosabad of the chefe of & Leuites, had the ouersight of the outwarde busynesse of the house of God. And Warhamiab the sonne of Micba, the sonne of zaddi, the sonne of Asaph, was the principall to begynne the thanke synging and prayer. And Bahubia the seconde amonge hym byethen, & Abda, the sonne of Sammua, the sonne of Galai, the sonne of Jeduthan. All the Leuites in the holy cite were two hundred four scoze and four. And the porters Iud and Calub, and they byethen that kepte the portes, were an hundred and two and seuenye. As for the residue of Israel, the prestes and Leuites, they were in all the cityes of Iuda, euery one in his indureaunce.

And the Retbunims dwelt in Ophel: and Iba and Silpa was set ouer & Retbunims. The ouersaw of the Leuites at Ierusalem was Uri, the sonne of Baani, the sonne of Asabi, & sonne of Warhamia, the sonne of Micba.

Of the children of Asaph there were singers aboute the busynesse in the house of God, for it was the kynges commaundement concernyng them: that the syngers shoulde deale faythfully euery daye as was accordyng.

¶ The xii. Chapter.

The prestes and Leuites whiche came by the zoiobabel vnto Ierusalem are numbered, and the wall is dedrearch.

These are the prestes and Leuites that went by with zoiobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and with Irlua, Sararia, Jeremy and Edozas, Amaria, Galuch, Hatus, Serchania, Rehum, Merinoth, Idbo, Genthai, Abia, Giamin, Maaria, Selga, Semela, Joarib, Joiaha, Salu, Amocke, Belhia and Iadria: These were the headres amonge the prestes: and they byethen in & dayes of Irlua. The Leuites were these, Irlua, Ben-nui, Cadmiel, Sarabia, Iuda, and Warhamia, which was ouer the offyce of thanke syngyng he and his byethen, Bahubia: and himni, and they byethen, were about them in & watches.

Irlua begat Ioahim: Ioahim also begate Elialib: and Elialib begat Joiaha: Joiaha begat Jonathan: and Jonathan begat Iadua. In the the dayes of Iohachim were these þe these fathers amonge the prestes: vnder Sararia, Sararia, vnder Jeremij, Hanania, vnder Edoas, Mesulai, vnder Amaria, Jehonah: vnder Silco, Jonathani: vnder Serania, Ioseph: vnder Harim: vnder Ioua: vnder Saraioth, Helia: vnder Iddo: zachari: vnder Semthion, Mesullam: vnder Abia, zichai: vnder Miniamin, and Moabia, Bilgat: vnder Belgai, Samua: vnder Semeia, Jehonathai: vnder Ioharib, Nathanael: vnder Iadai, Ussai: vnder Belai, Belai: vnder Imoth, Eder: vnder Heichai, Halabai: vnder Iadai, Achanael. And in þe tyme of Eliashib, Iohanan and Iadua were the chiefe fathers amonge the leuites and the prestes, wyrtten vnder the regne of Darius the Persian. The chyldren of Levi, the principal fathers were wyrtten in the Chronycles vnto the tyme of Jonathan the son of Eliashib. And these were the chiefe amonge the Leuytes: Halabai, Serubai, and Iesua the son of Cadmei, and they: byerthien in they: prestes to geue praye and thankes, accordyng as Dauid the man of God had ordeyned it, one watch ouer agaynst another. Sarania, Balbukia, Moabia, Mesullam, Talmon and Ithub were porters in the watche at the chiesholdes of the gates. These were in the dayes of Iohachim the sonne of Iesua, the sonne of Iosedec, and in the dayes of Beremia the captayne, and of þe prest Edoas the Scribe.

And in the dedication of the wall at Jerusalem: they sought the Leuites out of all they: places, that they myght be brought to Jerusalem to kepe the dedicacyon & gladnesse, with thankesgeynges and syngyng with cymbales, psalteryes and harpes. And the chyldren of þe syngers gathered them selues together from euery syde out of the playne countrey about Jerusalem, and from the byllages of Netophathi, fro the house of Gilgal, and out of the coferies of Seba, and Asmauerb, for the syngers had byllyd the byllages rounde about Jerusalem. And þe prestes and Leuites were purified, and clenched the people: and the gates, and the wall.

And I brought the princes of Iuda vpon the wall, and appoynted two grete queres of men to geue thankes, whiche went on the right hande of the wall towarde the donge gate, and after them went Hosai, and halfe of the princes of Iuda, and Asaria, Edoas: and Mesullai Iuda, Ben Jamin, Semeia & Jeremij: & certayn of the prestes chyldren wyth trumpets, namely zachari the sonne of Jonathan, the sonne of Semeia, the son of Nathania, the son of Michai the sonne of zacur, the son of Asaph and his byerth, Semeia, Asarai, Malalai, Silalai, Natani, Nathanai, and Iuda & Hanani, wyth musical instrumentes of Dauid the man of God.

And Edoas þe scribe went before them and besyde the welgate, they went vpon ouer agaynst them vpon the steeptes of the cite of Dauid, at the goynge vp of the wall beyonde the house of Dauid, vnto the water gate Eastwarde.

The other quere of them that gaue thankes went ouer agaynst them, and I after them, & the halfe parte of the people vpon the wal, beyonde the forname gate vnto the byde wall, & beyonde the porte of Ephraim, and beyonde the olde gate beyonde the sythegate, and the tower of Hanani, and the tower of Ora, vnto the drygate. And they stode stil in the pylson gate, & so stode the two queres (of them that gaue thankes) in the house of god: and I and the halfe of the rulers with me, and the prestes, namely Eliakim, Maasia, Miniamin, Michai, Elieoeni, zachary, and Hanania: wyth trompettes, and Maasia, Teremah, Eleasar, Arsi, Johanan, Melchiah, Elam, and Ser. And the syngers sang loude, haupng Iestabiah for they: ouerleas.

And the same daye they offred grete sacryfices and reioyced: for God hadde gyuen them great gladnesse, so that both the wyues & chyldren were ioyfull: and the myrch of Jerusalem was heard farre of.

At the same tyme were there men appoynted ouer the treasure houses (wherin were the beuoffrynges, the sythrynges, and the tythes) that they shulde gather them out of the felde about the cite, to destreyne them vnto the prestes and Leuytes, accordyng to the lawe: for Iuda was glad of the prestes and Leuytes, that they stode and wayted vpon the offer of they: god which is a pure offyce. And the syngers and porters stode after the commandement of Dauid and of Salomon his sonne, * for in the tyme of Dauid and Asaph, were the chiefe syngers founde, and the songes of praye & thankesgyng vnto God. In the tyme of Iosobabel, and Beremiah dyd all they of Israel, geue porcyons vnto the syngers and porters, euerye daye they: porcyon, and they gaue tythes vnto the Leuytes, and the Leuytes gaue tythes agayne vnto the chyldren of Iaron.

The xlii. Chapter.

The lath is xlv, and when they haue herde it they Capore from them all the synners.

And that daye vnto they: reade in the booke of Moyses, and the people hardened thereto, and there was founde wyrtte & þe Ammonites, & Moabites wylde neuer come into þe congregation of God, because they met not þe chyldren of Israel with breade & water: * but byed Balaam agaynst them, that he shulde curse the and our God turned the curse into a blessinge. Now when they heard þe lawe, it fortuned, that they seperated from Israel euerye one that had myrte hym selfe therein. And before this had the prest Eliashib the ouersyght of the treasure of the house of oure God, and he was hyrman to Tobia: and had made hym a great chambere: there had they afore tyme layd the offerynges frankincense, vesselle, and the tythes of corne, wyne and oyle (accordyng to the commandementes gyuen to the Leuites, syngers and porters) and the beuoffrynges of the prestes.

But in all this tyme was not I at Jerusalem: for in the xxxii. yere of Artaxerxes king of Babylon, came I vnto the hyng, and after certayne dayes obtayned I licence of the kyng to come to Ie to Jerusalem. And I gat knowledge that Eliashib dyd vnto Tobia, in that he had made hym a chambre in the court of the house of God, and it grieved me sore, & I call forth all the vessels of house of Tobia out of the chambre, and commanded them to cleanse the chambers. And they broughte I agayne the vessels of house of god with the meat offering and the incense.

And I perceyued that the porcyons of the le-uites were not geue them, & that every one fled to his lande, euen the Leuites and syngers that executed the worke. The reppoued I the rulers and sayde: whye is the house of God forsaken?
And I gathered them together, and set them in theyr place. Then brought all Iuda the tithes of coine and wyne, and oyle, vnto the treasurie.

And I made treasurers ouer the treasurie, euen Soleman the priest, and Iadoc the scribe, and of the Leuites, Iohadai, and vnder theyr hande was Hanan the sone of zacur the sone of Ma-than, for they were counted saythfull, & they offre was to distrybute the porcyons vnto theyr brethre. Ethynke vpon me, O my God herein & wyte not out my mercye that I haue shewed on the house of my God, and on the offces therof.

1. 2. 3. 4. 5.

At the same tyme saw I some treyding wyne pyelles on the Sabbath, & byngyng in beues, and asses laden with wine, grapes, pygges, and byngyng all maner of burthens vnto Jerusalem vpo the Sabbath day. And I rebuked the earnestly the same daye that they solde the vytayles. There dwelte men of Tyre also therein which brought fyre and all maner of ware, and solde on the Sabbath vnto the chyldren of Juda in Jerusalem. Then reppoued I the rulers in Iuda, and sayd vnto them: what euell thyng is this that ye do, and breake the Sabbath daye?
Wyd not your fathers euen thus, and ouer God brought all this plage vpon vs, and vpon theyr cite? And ye make the wrath more yet vpo Israel, in that ye breake the Sabbath.

E And it foryned that when the postes of Jerusalem began to be darke in the enyngte before the Sabbath, I commaunded to shut the gates and charged, that they shuld not be opened til after the Sabbath: & some of my seruantes let I at the gates, & there shuld no burthe be brought in on the Sabbath daye. Then remained the chapme and marchauntes ones as they ouer nyght wout Jerusalem with all maner of wares. Then reppoued I them sore, & sayde vnto the: why tary ye all nyght about the wall? If ye do it ones agayne, I wil laye handes vpon you. And that tyme forth came they nomore on the Sabbath.
And I sayd vnto the Leuites & they shuld clyse the selues, & that they shulde come and hepe the gates, to halowe the Sabbath daye. Ethynke vpon me (O my God) concernyng this also, & spare me accordyng to thy great mercye.

D And at the same tyme saw I Jewes that maried wyues of Amod, of Ammon, and of Moab and theyr chyldren spake halfe in the speache of Amod, and coude not speake in the Jewes language, but by the tonge myght a man perceyue euery people. The I reppoued them, and cursed them, and smote certayne men of them, & made them bare, and toke an oth of them by God: Ye shall not geue your daughters vnto theyr son-nes, neyther shal ye take theyr daughters vnto your sonnes, or for your selues. Wyd not Solomon the kyng of Israel synne for suche, and yet amonge many be yehen was there no kyng lyke hym, whiche was dere vnto hys God, and God made hym kyng ouer Israel: and yet neuer the lesse, outlandyshe women caused hym to synne.

Shall we then obeye vnto you, to do all this grate euill, and to transgresse agaynst our god and many straunge wyues?

E And one of the chyldren of Iehoiada the son of Eliahib the hye preeste had made a contracte wth Manabaiat the Mozonite: but I chaied hym frome: (O my God) ethynke thou vpon them & despise the preesthode & the cournaunt of the preest hode & of the Leuites. Thus clenst I them fro all suche as were outlandyshe, and appoynted the courses of the preestes and Leuites euery one in hys offce, and to offer the wood at tymes ap-poynted, and the fyre frutes: Ethynke thou vpo me (O my God) for the best. Amen.

E The ende of the seconde booke of Esdras other wyse called: the booke of Nehemia

✠ The booke of Esther.

E The fyrst Chapter.

Thynke that Cyrus maketh a coryall feast, wherunto he quene Maddis sayll not come, for whych cause she is dyuyned.

E Fortuned, in the dayes of Abasuerus, which raygned from India vnto Ethiopia (ouer an hundred and seuen and twenty landes) euen in those dayes when the kyng Abasuerus sat on hys seate royall, whych was in Susa the chefe cite, in the thyrde yere of his raygne, he made a feast vnto all hys prynces and seruantes.
And the myghtye men of Persia and Media, the captaynes also and rulers of hys countries were before hym, and he shewed the glory of his kyngdome, & the glouyous worthynesse of his greatnes many dayes longe: euen an hundred and lxxv. dayes.

And when these dayes were expyed, the kyng made a feast to all the people that were in Susa the chefe cite, bothe vnto greete and small seuen dayes longe in the court of the garden by
the

the kynges palace: where there hanged whete greene and yelow clothes, fastened with cordes of fyne sylke, and purple in siluer spunges, vpon pylers of marble stone.

C The benches also were of golde and syluer made vpon a pavement of grene, whete, yelow and blache marble. And they dranke in vessels of golde. And chaunged vessel after vessel. And the kynges wyne was muche accordyng to the power of the kyng. And the dysnye was so appoynted, that none shulde compell any man, for to the kyng had commaunded by the officers of hys house, that euery one shulde do, as it lyeth hym. And the quene Vasthi made a feast also for the women in the palace of Abasuerus. And on the seventh daye when the kyng was merry: after the wyne, he commaunded Achuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagthan, sethar, and Charbas, the seven chamberlaynes (that had seruyce in the presence of kyng Abasuerus) to fetch the Quene Vasthi with the crowne regall into the kynges presence, that he myghte shewe the people and princes her faynes, for she was beutiful. But the quene Vasthi wolde not come at the kynges woide, by hys chamberlaynes. Then was the kyng very wroth, and his indignacyon kyndled in hym.

D And the kyng spake to the wyse men, that had vnderstandyng in the ordynaunces of the lande, for the kynges matters must be handled before all suche as haue knoweledge of the lawe and iudgemente: and the ^(these and) nexte vnto hym were Carisena, Sethar, Admata, Charis Hares, Warcena and Hamucan & seven princes of Persia and Media, which sawe the kynges face, and sat aboute in the kyngdome. What lawe (sayd the kyng) shulde be executed vpon the Quene Vasthi, because she had not accordyng to the woordes of the kyng Abasuerus, whiche he commaunded by hys chamberlaynes. And Hamucan answered before the kyng and the pynces: the Quene Vasthi had not onely done euill agaynst the kyng but also agaynst all the pynces, and agaynst all the people that are in all shandes of kyng Abasuerus: for this dede of the quene shal come abrode vnto all women, so that they shal despyse the shandes, before the eyes, and shal saye: the kyng Abasuerus commaunded Vasthi the quene to be brought in before hym, but she wolde not come. And so shal the pynces in Persia and Media, saye lyke wyse vnto all shandes & princes wher they here of this dede of the Quene: thus shal there arys to moche despytfulnesse and wrauche. If it please the kyng therfore: let there goo a commaundement from hym, and let it be wyrtten accordyng to the lawes of the Persians, and Medians (and not to be transgressed) that Vasthi come nomore before kyng Abasuerus: and let the kyng geue her kyngdome vnto another that is better then she.

E And when this commaundement of the kyng (which shalbe made) is published thowout all his empyre (which is great) al women shal holde their husbandes in honour both among great & small. This pleased the kyng and the pynces, and the kyng dyd accordyng to the woordes of Hamucan. For he sent letters forth into all the kynges landes into euery land accordyng to the wyrtynge therof, and to euery people after the language, that euery man shoulde be lord in hys owne house. And this caused he to be spoken after the language of his people.

Chapter.

After the quene is put away, certayn goodly yonge damels are chosen out. Also, as before is called Esther, pleasyng the kyng, so is made quene. Hamucanus a pryncy counsaillor kyng Abasuerus had moche benyng to hym.

After these actes, when the dyspleasure of kyng Abasuerus was now layd, he thought vpon Vasthi, and what she had done, and what was concluded agaynst her. Then sayd the kynges seruantes that myghte vnto hym: Let there be sayde yonge virgins sought for to the kyng, and the kyng appoynted certayne men in all the landes of hys empyre, whome he charged that they shulde bringe together al the yonge virgins vnto Susan the head cite, to the womens buyldyng, vnder the bande of Haggei the kynges chamberlayne, & hepe the women, to geue them the appaile. ^(and other thynges as neede shal be had.) And that the damel which pleased the kyng: shoulde be quene in Vasthis steade. And this pleased the kyng: and he dyd so.

In the cite of Susan, there was a Jewe, whose name was Harbocheus the son of Jair, the sonne of Semei, the son of Elia a man of Jemini, which was caried away from Jerusalem when Jeronin the kyng of Iuda was led awaye, (whome Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon caried thence) & he noystrid Abassa, that is Esther, his vncles daughter: for he had neyther father nor mother, and she was a saye and beutifull damsell: whome Harbocheus (when her father and mother was dead) receyued for his owne daughter.

So it fortuneth, that when the kynges commaundement and commysion was published, and many damels were brought together in the cite of Susan, vnder the bande of Haggei: Esther was brought also vnto the kynges house vnder the hand of Haggei the keeper of the womens and the damself pleased hym, and she founde fauour in his syght. And he caused ornaments to be geuen her, and suche thynges as belonged to her, and appoynted her seven comely damelles out of the kynges house, and fauoured both her and her gentyl women synghulerlye in the house of the women. But Esther shewed not her people & her kineed: For Harbocheus had charged her, that she shulde not tel it. And Harbocheus walked euery daye before the court of the womens house, that he myght knowe how Esther dyd, and what shulde become of her.

And when the appoynted tyme of euery damel came, that she shulde go into the kyng Abasuerus, after that she had bene welue monethes in the deckyng of the women: for they deckyng must haue so muche tyme, namelpe, fyre monethes with balme and myrr, and fyre monethes with good speers: so were the women beautified: then went there one damsell vnto the kyng and whatsoeuer she requierd. ^(so that it were comely) that must be geue her, to go with her out of the womens buyling vnto the kynges palace. In the ennyng she wente, and on the morowe agayne into the seconde house of the women abyding vnder the bande of Maasga the kynges chamberlayne, which kept the concubines: and she came into the kynges nymme, except it pleased the kyng to haue her, and she called her by name.

C Now when the tyme came of Esther the daughter of Abiam the vncle of Wardochus (whych hadde receaued her as his owne daughter) that she shoulde come into the kynges, she desired no thinge, but what hager the kynges chamberlayne the keeper of the women sayde.

D And Esther founde fauour in the syght of all them that lohed vpon her. And Esther was take vnto king Abasuerus into his house royal in the tenth moneth, whych is the moneth * Te both, in the seuenth yere of his reygne.

And the kyng loued Esther aboue all the women, and she founde grace & fauour in his sight before all the vyrgins: so that he set the crowne of the kyngdome vpon her heade, and made her Queene in steede of Vasthi. And the kyng made a great feaste vnto all his prynces & seruauntes (whych feaste was because of Esther) & caused the landes to be in quyetnesse, and gaue gystes, as became the royaltie of a kyng.

D And when the vyrgins were gathered together the seconde tyme, Wardochus sat in the kynges gate. And as yet had not Esther shewed her kyndred and people, accordyng as Wardochus had hydden her: for Esther had after the word of Wardochus, lyke as she had bene yet vnder his gouernance. At the same tyme while Wardochus sat in the kynges gate, two of the kynges chamberlaynes, Bigshan and Theres, which kept the doore were wroth, and sought to lay their handes on the kyng Abasuerus: wherof also Wardochus gat knowledge: and tolde it vnto Queene Esther, and Esther certified the kyng thereof in Wardochus name. And when inquisition was made, it was founde so. And they were both hanged on a tree: and it was written in the chronicles before the kyng.

The .iii. Chapter.

C Haman the agarchon, after he was created, obteyned of the kyng, that all the Jewes shoulde be put to death, because Agarchon had not haue him worship as other had.

After these Actes had kyng Abasuerus promoted Haman the sone of Amadatha the Agagite, and sette hym on hye, and set his seate aboue all the prynces that he had with him. And all the kynges seruauntes that were in the kynges gate, bowed theyr knees, and worshipped Haman: for the kyng had so commaunded concerning hym. But Wardochus bowed not the knee, and worshipped hym not. Then the kynges seruauntes which were in the kynges gate sayde vnto Wardochus: whye transgresseth thou the kynges commaundement? And when they spake this daylye vnto hym, he folowed them not, and they tolde Haman: that they myghte be dothe Wardochus matters wolde endure. For he had tolde them, that he was a Jewe. And when Haman sawe that Wardochus bowed not the knee vnto hym, nor worshipped hym, he was full of indignacion, and thoughte it to lye to lay handes on Wardochus: for they had shewed hym the nacyon of Wardochus, wherfore he sought to destroye all the Jewes, that were thowout the hole empyre of Abasuerus and that were of the nacyon of Wardochus.

B In the first moneth (that is the moneth Nisan) in the tweluth yere of king Abasuerus: they cast vnto (that is a lot) before Haman from day to daye, and from moneth to moneth, to the tweluth moneth, that is the moneth Adar: and Haman sayd vnto king Abasuerus: There is here a people scattered abode, & dispersed among all people in all the landes of thyne empyre, & they haue theyr lawes contrary from all people, and do not after the kynges lawes, neyther is it the kynges ppyete to suffer them after this maner. If it please the kyng, let it be wyrtten that they maye be destroyed, and so wyl I wepe downe. I thousande talentes of syluer by the handes of the workemen, to be brought into the kynges treasury. And the kyng toke his rynge fro his hand and gaue it vnto Haman the sone of Amadatha the Agagite the Jewes enemye. And the kyng sayd vnto Haman: Let the syluer be thyns, and do wyth that people as it pleaseth the.

C Then were the kynges scribes called on the thyrtyeth daye of the first moneth (that is Nisan) and there was wyrtten (accordyng as Haman commaunded) vnto all the kynges officers, and to the captaynes that were in all the landes, and to the rulers of every people in the countreyes on every syde, accordyng to the wyrtynge of every nacyon, and after theyr language: in the name of king Abasuerus was it wyrtten, and sealed wyth the kynges rynge. And the wyrtynge was sent by postes into all the kynges landes, to roote oute, to kyll and to destroye all Jewes, bothe yonge and olde, chyldren and women, in one daye (namely, vpon the thyrtyeth daye of the tweluth moneth, which is the moneth * Adar) and to spoyle theyr goodes.

D This was the same of the wyrtynge that they shoulde be a commaundement geuen in all landes, & published vnto all people, that they shoulde be ready agaynst the same day: and the postes went in all the haste, accordyng to the kynges commaundement. And in Susa the cytye was the commaundement deuysed. And the kyng & Haman sat and dranke, when in the meane tyme the cytye of Susa was disquieted.

The .iii. Chapter.

C Wardochus gat the queene knowlege of the cruel decree of the kyng agaynst the Jewes.

When Wardochus perceyued all that was done, he rente his clothes, and putte on sackcloth, wyth ashes, and wente oute in to the myddes of the cytye, and crept lowe, and lamentable, and came before the kynges gate, but he myght myghte not entre wythin the kynges gate, by cause he had sackcloth on. And in all landes, countreyes and places, as farre as the kynges wynde and commaundement extended, there was greete lamentacyon amonge the Jewes, fastyng, wepyng and mourning, and many lape in sackclothes and in ashes. So Esthers damiels and her chambelaynes came and tolde it her. Then was the Quene exceedingly astonnyed. And she sent rayment, that Harbocheus wolde put on, and lape the sackcloth from hym: But Harbocheus wolde not take them. Then called Esther Harbath one of the kynges chambelaines (which stode before her) and gaue hym a commaundement vnto Harbocheus, that he myght knowe what it were, wherfore he dydo. So Harbath went forth to Harbocheus vnto the streate of the cyrte, whych was before the kynges gate.

B And Harbocheus tolde hym of all that had happened vnto hym, and of the summe of syluer that Haman had promysed to weye downe into the kynges treasurie by cause of the Jewes, yf he wolde destroy them: and he gaue hym the copy of the kynges commaundement that was deuysed at Susan, to destroy them, that he might shewe it vnto Esther: and so spake to her, and charged her, that she shoulde go into the kyngre, and make her prayer and supplicatio vnto him for her people.

C And when Harbath came in, he tolde Esther the wordes of Harbocheus. And agayne, Esther spake vnto Harbath, and commaunded hym, to lape vnto Harbocheus: all the kynges seruantes and the people in the landes of the kyng knowe that whosoeuer cometh withoute the court vnto the kyng, whether it be man or woman, whych is not called, the commaundement is: that she say: Shall I lape vnto the kyng? And he shalde out the golden sceptre vnto hym. And then he shal lyeue. As for me, I haue not bene called to come now vnto the kyng this thysyde dayes.

D And they certified Harbocheus of Esthers wordes: and Harbocheus had saye agayne vnto Esther: thynke not to saue thyne owne lyfe, whyle thou arte in the kynges house, before all Jewes: for yf thou holdeste thy peace at this tyme, then shall the Jewes haue helpe and deliuerance oute of an other place, and thou and thy fathers house shalbe destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come to the kyngdome, for this causes sake? Esther had the gyue Harbocheus this answer: Soo thou thy waye, and gather al the Iues together: they are found at Susan, and faste for me, that ye eat not & drynke in this dayes, neyther day nor nyght. I and my damiels will fast lyke wyse, and so will I goo into the kyngre, whiche thyng is yet contrarie to the commaundement: and yf I perishe, I perishe. So Harbocheus went his waye, and dyd all that Esther had commaunded hym.

C The v. Chapter.

E Esther entred into the kyngre, and byddeth hym and Haman to a feest. Haman prepareth a galles for Harbocheus.

And on the third day it fortuneth that Esther put on her royal apparell, & stode in the court of the kynges palace within, ouer agaynst the kynges house. And the kyng sat vpon his royal seate in the kynges palace ouer agaynst the gate of the house. And when the kyng sawe Esther the quene standing in the court, he found grace in his syght. And the kyng helde out the golden sceptre that was in his hande: towarde Esther. So Esther strey forth, and touched the top of the sceptre. Then sayd the kyng vnto her: What wylt thou Quene Esther? and what requestest thou? as he euen the halfe of the empyre, it shalbe gyuen the. And Esther answered: yf it please the kyng, let the kyng and Haman come this day vnto the banquet, that I haue prepared for hym. And the kyng sayde: cause Haman to make haste that he maye be as Esther hath sayd.

So the kyng and Haman came to the banquet that Esther had prepared, and the kyng sayde vnto Esther at the banquet of wyne: what is thy petition, that it maye be gyuen the? And what requestest thou? yf it be euen the halfe of the empyre it shalbe done.

Then answered Esther, and sayde: my petition and desyre is, yf I haue founde grace in the syght of the kyng, and yf it please the kyng to gyue me my petition, and fulfill my request, shal let the kyng and Haman come to the banquet. I shall prepare for them, and so wyl I do to morrowe, as the kyng hath sayde.

Then went Haman forth the same daye to poul and mery in his mynde. And when the same Haman sawe Harbocheus in the kynges gate: he stode not vp and kneeled before hym, he was full of indignacion at Harbocheus. Neuertheless, Haman refrayned hym self: and when he came home he sent, & called for his frendes, and zares his wyfe, and Haman tolde them of the glory of his rychesse, and the multitude of his chyldren, and all together howe the kyng had promoted him so greatly, & howe that he had see him aboute the princes and seruantes of the kyng. Haman sayd mozeouer: Yea, & Esther the quene dyd let noman come in with the kyng to the banquet that she had prepared, except me. And to morrowe am I bydden vnto her also with the kyng. But in all this am I not satisfied, as longe as I see Harbocheus the Jewe syting at the kynges gate. Then sayd zares his wyfe and al his frendes vnto hym: Let hym make a galles of fytye cubytes hie, and to morrowe speake thou vnto the kyng, that Harbocheus maye be hangged thereon: and go thou in meryly with the kyng vnto the banquet. And Haman was well content wythall, and caused the galles to be made.

C The vi. Chapter.

E The kyng turneth ouer the chourles, and syneth the lawes of Harbocheus, & then to the confusio of Haman, Harbocheus is ordeined to be had in honor.

He same nyght could not the kyng slepe: and he commaunded to byng & chourles & stoures: whiche when they were red before the kyng, they happened on the place, where it was wyrtten howe Harbocheus chap. 1.

chens: had tolde, that Bigthana, and Theris the kynges two chambelaines (whiche kepte the thresholds) sought to laye handes on kyng Ahasuerus. And the kyng sayd: what worship and good haue we done to Mardocheus therefore? Then sayd the kynges seruantes that misynstred vnto hym: There is nothing at al done for hym. And the kyng sayd: Who is in court? (for Haman was gone into the court without, before the kynges house) that he myght speake vnto the kyng to hang Mardocheus on the tree that he had prepared for hym. And the kynges seruantes sayd vnto him: behold, Haman standeth without in the court. And the kyng sayd: let hym come in. And when Haman came in, the kyng sayde vnto hym: what shalbe done vnto the man whom the kyng wolde saue byng vnto worship? Haman thought in his heart: whom desyret the kyng to byng vnto worshippe, more then me? And Haman answered the kyng: Let the man whom the kyng please to byng vnto worshippe, be brought byder: that he may be arrayed with the royall garments, whiche the kyng vseth to wear: and the horse that the kyng rydeth vpon, and that the crowne royall may be set vpon his head. And let this rayment and horse be deliuered vnder the hande of one of the kynges pynces, that they may aray the man withall (whom the kyng is disposed to byng to honour) and carry him vpon the horse thorow the strete of the cite, and proclayme before him: thus shall it be done vnto the man, whome the kyng please to byng to honour.

And the kyng sayd: make haste, and take as thou hast sayde: the rayment and the horse: and do even so vnto Mardocheus the Jew, that standeth before the kynges gate, & let not byng sayle of all that thou hast spoken. Then toke Haman the rayment and the horse, and arrayed Mardocheus, and brought hym on horse backe thorow the strete of the cite, & proclaymed before hym: Euen this shal it be done to the man whome the kyng is disposed to honour. And Mardocheus came agayn to the kynges gate: but Haman gat hym home in al the haste mourning bareheaded and tolde iares his wyfe & all his frendes euery thinge that had happened hym. Then sayd his wyfe men, and iares his wyfe vnto hym: If it be Mardocheus of the seed of the Jewes, before whom thou hast begun to fall, thou shalt not preuaile agaynst hym, but shalt surely fall before hym. And while they were yett talkyng wth hym, came the kynges chambelaines, and caused Haman to make haste, to come vnto the banquet that Esther had prepared.

The vii. Chapter.

The queene byddeth the kyng and Haman agayn and prayeth for her selfe & her people. She accuseth Haman, and he is hanged on the gallows, whiche he had prepared for Mardocheus.

And the kyng and Haman came into the banquet that Queene Esther had prepared: and the kyng sayde vnto Esther on the seconde daye at the banquet of wyne. What is thy petition, (Queene Esther) that it maye be graunted? And what requestest thou? For, aske euery halfe of the empyre, and it shall be done. And Esther the Queene answered, and sayd: If I haue founde grace in thy syghte (O kyng) and if it please the kyng, then graunte me my lyfe at my desyre, and my people for my petition sake: for we are solde, I and my people, to be destroyed, to be slayne, and to perishe. And wolde God that we were solde to be bondemen, and bondwomen, then wold I holde my tongue: for the enemy pondreth not the kynges harme. The kyng: Ahasuerus answered, and sayde vnto Queene Esther: Who is he, and where is he, that dare presume in his mynde to do after that manner? And Esther sayd: the enemy and aduersary is this wyched Haman.

Haman was exceedingly afrayed before the kyng & the Queene. And the kyng arose fro the banquet and from the wyne in his displeasure: & went in to the palais garden. And Haman stode vp, and besought Queene Esther for his life: for he sawe that there was a myschance prepared for hym of the kyng already. And when the kyng came agayn out of the palais garden, into a place where they drank the wyne, Haman had layed him vpon the bed that Esther lay vpon. Then sayd the kyng wyl he force the queene also before me in the house? As soone as the word went out of the kynges mouth, they covered Hamans face: and Harbona one of the chambelaines that stode before the kyng sayd: behold, there standeth a galous in Hamans house: cubites hye, which he had made for Mardocheus, that spake good for the kyng. The kyng sayd: hang him thereon. So they hanged Haman on the galous, that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kynges wrath pacified.

The viii. Chapter.

After the death of Haman two Mardocheus created, and then are there comfortable letters sent vnto the Jewes.

The same daye byd the kyng Ahasuerus grue the house of Haman the Jewes enemy vnto queene Esther. And Mardocheus came before the kyng: for Esther tolde howe he be helged vnto her. And the kyng put of his ringer a rying which he had taken fro Haman, & gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Esther set Mardocheus ouer the house of Haman. And Esther spake yett more before the kyng: and fell downe at his feet weeping, and besought hym that he wolde put away the wickednesse of Haman the Agagite, & his druyse that he had imagined agaynst the Jewes. And the kyng (accused byng to the maner) helde oute the golden sceptre towarde Esther, (whiche was declared a token of grace & successe.) Then arose Esther, and stode before the kyng, and sayde: If it please the kyng, and if I haue founde grace in his syghte: and if it be acceptable before the kyng, then let it be wyrtten that the letters of the deuyle of Haman the son of Amadatha the Agagite may be called again, whiche letters he wrote to destroye the Jewes, whiche are in all the kynges landes. For howe can I susteine and se the euill, that shall happen vnto my people? Or howe can I loke vpon the destruction of my kynrede?

And the kyng Ahasuerus sayd vnto queene Esther:
